 - (2) The filling of the Spirit is temporary, depending on the experiential status of the believer-out of fellowship through sin or in fellowship through the function of rebound.
 - (3) The purpose of the filling of the Spirit is to provide enabling power for the execution of the protocol plan for the Church. Every time the believer commits a sin, he loses fellowship with God and the filling of the Spirit. Every time the believer uses the rebound technique of 1 Jn 1:9, he recovers fellowship with God and the filling of the Spirit.
 - (4) Apart from the filling of the Spirit there is no divine power for perception, metabolization, or application of doctrine to experience. Apart from the filling of the Spirit there is not and cannot be the fulfillment of the will, plan, and purpose of God for the Church Age.
 - (5) Divine power is necessary to execute the divine plan. Therefore, the two powers options belong to experience rather than the indwelling of the Spirit. The two power options are the filling of the Spirit and teaching ministry of the Holy Spirit to the human spirit plus the conversion of GNOSIS doctrine to EPIGNOSIS. In both cases your volition is involved.
 - (6) The indwelling of Christ belongs to all believers at the moment of faith in Christ and remains a permanent possession regardless of spiritual status quo or lack of it. The indwelling of Christ as the Shekinah glory guarantees we have the divine blessing of our portfolio of invisible assets. Christ also indwells us as the guarantee of the irrevocability of our escrow blessings.
 - (7) Occupation with Christ relates to the soul and occurs experiential for the few who are persistent in the use of the three spiritual skills. The experiential factors related to occupation with Christ are as follows:

- (a) Cognition of the indwelling of Christ contributes to number one priority being given to the three spiritual skills as the means of occupation with Christ. Understanding precedence for the Christian way of life. Cognition of the indwelling of Christ becomes motivation for perseverance in the use of the spiritual skills.
- (b) The experience of Christ formed in you, Gal 4:19; tantamount to the experience of Christ formed in your hearts through doctrine, Eph 3:17.

Spir Dynamics 292 11/7/93; Eph 312-328, 6/24/86-7/11/86; 12/30/77; 9/18/78

“the body is dead because of sin” – there is something that is not translated here, an affirmative particle men used correlatively with de. For some reason men was not translated in the KJV. Men and de is translated “on the one hand, and on the other.” The nominative singular subject sōma (σῶμα) [pronounced SOH-mah] with the definite article is the word for the human body which is the headquarters of the old sin nature, the ex-husband. With it is a predicate nominative neuter singular from the adjective nekros (νεκρός) [pronounced nehk-ROSS]—“death,” referring here to the believer’s status in carnality, also called temporal death or being out of fellowship and not using rebound. It can be either carnality or reversionism. Cf. Romans 8:10; Luke 15:24, 32; Eph. 5:14; Jas. 1:15; Rev. 3:1.

Then dia plus the accusative of hamartia (ἁμαρτία, ας, ῆ) [pronounced hahm-ahr-TEE-ah]—“because of death,” referring to the old sin nature as the ex-husband. Formerly the believer as an unbeliever was spiritually dead from birth, being married to the old sin nature. But through salvation the great divorce occurs and we are separated from the old sin nature as far as positional truth is concerned. When the believer as the wife of Christ returns to the old sin nature the status is called death—temporal death or being out of fellowship.

“but the Spirit is life” – de is used correlatively with men, so it should be “on the other hand.” Then the nominative singular neuter subject pneuma (πνεῦμα) [pronounced PNYOO-mah], used here for God the Holy Spirit received at salvation. It is a reference to the indwelling of the Spirit. Plus the predicate nominative from zōê (ζωή) [pronounced dzoh-AY], referring to life compatible with Christ which is the indwelling and the filling of the Spirit. So this is the new life which is compatible with the new marriage. A new marriage means a new life for the woman. The first marriage was tyranny for all of us under the old sin nature; the second marriage is great blessing because of the new life involved.

“because of righteousness” – dia plus the accusative of dikaiosunê (δικαιοσύνη) [pronounced dih-kai-oh-SOON-ā/dik-ah-yos-OO-nay], referring to the righteousness imputed at salvation. Everywhere we go in the Scripture we always get back to the fact that the big thing that God did for us, and the greatest thing, was to give us His own perfection. Imperfection cannot please perfection. But through the judicial imputation of divine righteousness at salvation we are now in a position to please Him because we carry around with us the perfect means of doing so. The only thing that we have that is perfect is God’s perfect righteousness. The whole issue of the Christian way of life after salvation is the imputation of divine blessing to the target or the home which is God’s righteousness.

Romans 8:10 In fact if Christ is in you, on the one hand the body is dead [temporal or reversionistic death] because of the sin nature; but on the other hand the Spirit is life because of imputed righteousness.

Principle

1. We do not have in this phrase experiential righteousness. This is imputed righteousness.
2. Maturity provides the missing link between the judicial imputation of divine righteousness at salvation and blessing from the justice of God at maturity.
3. The missing link between salvation and maturity is capacity for life from doctrine.
4. The imputed righteousness of God at salvation completes the grace pipeline encapsulated by the integrity of God.
5. On the originating end of the pipeline is the justice of God. On the receiving end of the pipeline is the righteousness of God. His justice gives to His righteousness.
6. The combined attributes of divine justice and righteousness form the holiness or the integrity of God.
7. Since righteousness and justice demands justice, and since the justice of God does what the righteousness of God demands, it follows that this pipeline is necessary for blessing from the justice of God to the mature believer.
8. These blessings can be provided for the mature believer without any compromise to the attributes of God. In fact, these blessings given to the mature believer are given to God’s righteousness, thereby avoiding any compromise of any kind.

Now we suddenly go from the discussion of the great inner conflict, as well as some of the objectives of the Christian life, into the future. We all sooner or later have to face the fact that unless the Rapture occurs in our life time we are going to depart from this life through physical death. The Lord has appointed a way for each one of us to die. The dying is no problem provided that we have lived our life under Bible doctrine, for God provides the most wonderful blessing in dying, even greater than the blessings of living. So it is, then, that we go beyond death and penetrate into the screen of the eternal future to see how all of these things relate. We have been discussing imputation, the indwelling ministry of the Holy Spirit, and the great inner conflict of mental attitude, i.e. divine versus human viewpoint. Now all of these things come together in an application from ultimate sanctification, the future possession of a resurrection body minus the old sin nature and minus human good.

298 12/31/1977 Romans 8; Psalm 138:2 Principle of the importance of Bible doctrine; memorial to Hood's Texas Brigade

Imputations reviewed. The imputations explain why we are born and why we remain alive after salvation. The capacity is Bible doctrine in your soul. The following doctrine was mentioned back in Lesson #80, but barely covered. This lesson was a more extensive examination of this doctrine. This is covered again in Lesson #459; but any notes are placed here.

The Importance of Bible Doctrine

Ephesians #996 2/9/89; 5/3/81; 7/4/78; 4/12/77; 10/1 1/76; 8/6/76; 12/24/74

A. Definition.

1. Doctrine is important because it is related to the attributes of God.
2. Doctrine is the basis for all true worship. Psalm 138:2 I myself will worship toward Your holy Temple, and praise [or, celebrate] Your person [name] [that is, occupation with Christ] for Your grace and doctrine, because You have magnified Your doctrinal teaching above Your person. Praising the Lord is not saying an empty hollow phrase, but thinking doctrine. The only way you can apply doctrine is to put doctrine first in your life.
3. By comparing Luke 23:46, "Into Your hands I deposit My spirit," with Psalm 31:5, we learn what was not recorded in Luke, ...for You have delivered Me, O Lord, God of doctrine.
4. Romans 3:3-4 Shall their unbelief cancel the faithfulness of God? Definitely not! Moreover, let God continue faithful, even though every man is a liar. Even as it stands written [in Psalm 51:4], That You might be vindicated by Your doctrine, and that You might prevail when You are maligned.
 - a. God only deals with us in truth. All faithfulness is based on truth. God always levels with us and tells us the truth.
 - b. You can malign the truth (Bible doctrine), but you can't destroy it. Bible doctrine is maligned in two ways.
 - (1) Distortion, which is false teaching.
 - (2) Ignorance.
5. Bible doctrine is the content of the Bible communicated by teaching and instruction. It is the communication of Bible subjects based on the exegetical analysis from the original languages, including the context, analysis, classification of subjects and teaching. Teaching, analyzing and applying.
6. While grace is the genius plan of God to bless us and integrity is the character of God, doctrine is the manifestation and explanation of that genius.
7. Bible doctrine is the written permanent expression of God's integrity to the human race. It is the verbalization of divine justice. Doctrine is the study of the attributes of God. Psalm 33:4 For the Word of the Lord is integrity, and all His provision is in faithfulness.

8. Bible doctrine is the thinking of God in terms of relationship to the human race. Nothing is more important than knowing what God thinks, understanding how God operates, and understanding the basis for all of these things through His integrity.
 9. Imputations require the understanding of Bible doctrine.
- B. Nomenclature for Bible Doctrine.
1. Hebrew.
 - a. EMETH means true versus false doctrine, Prov 22:21; Psalm 31:5, 25:5, 26:3, 86:11, 119:142.
 - b. CHAKMAH means doctrine in the right lobe of the soul, Psalm 8:1.
 - c. SHEMUAH means what is heard or concentrated on, Isa 28:9.
 - d. LEQACH refers to the self-discipline necessary to learn doctrine, Deut 32:2; Prov 4:2; Job 11:4; Isa 29:24.
 - e. MUSAR means what is learned by discipline or instruction, Job 10:8; Prov 1:2, 4:13, 23:23. It refers to learning Bible doctrine as the principle by which you live your life.
 2. Greek.
 - a. GINOSKO means to learn, to know; GNOSIS means objective understanding in the left lobe of the soul.
 - b. EPIGNOSIS means doctrine in the right lobe.
 - c. PROGNOISIS, PROGINOSKO means doctrine in the mind of God; doctrine which existed in eternity past, the "foreknowledge" of 1Peter 1:2 which refers to God's omniscience.
 - d. LOGOS means speech, word, thinking, doctrine, Heb 6:1; 1 Cor 1:18.
 - e. DIDACHE means what is taught, Mt 7:28, 22:33; Mk 1:22, 27; 4:2; 1 Cor 14:6; 2 Tim 4:2; Heb 6:2; Rev 2:14; Rom 6:17, 16:17.
 - f. GNOSTOS means capable of being known, doctrine as a potential, intelligible, Rom 1:19.
 - g. Didaskalia (διδασκαλία) [pronounced dee-dask-ah-LEE-ah/did-as-kal-EE-ah] means the teaching of doctrine or what is taught, Mt 15:9; Eph 4:14; Col 2:22; 1 Tim 1:10, 4:1, 6, 13, 16; Tit 1:9, 2:1, 7, 10; 2 Tim 3:10, 16, 4:3.
 - h. SUNEISIS, SUNEIDESIS means doctrine in the conscience.
 - i. GNOTES refers to an expert in doctrine, Acts 26:3.
- C. The believer's legacy in Old Testament times was Bible doctrine.
1. Psalm 138:2 [I myself will worship toward the temple of Your Holiness \[heaven\], and I will be motivated to praise Your person because of Your grace and Your doctrine, because You have magnified Your doctrinal teaching over Your reputation.](#)
 2. Worship is the intake of Bible doctrine. God's reputation with you is based on your understanding of doctrine.

3. Doctrinal teaching is your highest priority in life. We must be motivated by Bible doctrine to praise God. Once you understand the integrity of God, you have enough doctrine to praise Him.
 4. Doctrinal teaching is the only way anyone can understand the integrity of God. This is why doctrinal teaching is magnified above all else by God.
 5. God is glorified when he can give us our escrow blessings. He cannot do so unless we have maximum Bible doctrine in the soul for the capacity to appreciate the Source of those blessings.
- D. In His dying words Christ made Bible doctrine the legacy of the royal family. In His dying breath, Jesus Christ made Bible doctrine the spiritual legacy of the royal family. Lk 23:46 cf Psalm 31:5, "Into Your hands I deposit My spirit, for You have delivered Me, O Jehovah, God of doctrine."
- E. Bible doctrine preexisted the human race, Proverbs 8:33-36.
1. Heed Bible teaching, become wise, do not neglect it. Happiness to the man who listens to me [Bible doctrine], watching daily at my gates [assembling for Bible teaching], waiting at my doors. He who finds me [Bible doctrine] finds capacity for life and obtains grace blessing from the Lord. But he who sins against me injures himself. All those who hate me love death [the sin unto death].
 2. Both Bible doctrine and evil were here before you came and will be here after you have gone. You cannot change either, but they can change you.
 3. Attitude toward doctrine determines whether the believer is blessed or disciplined in time, Prov 8:33-36; Heb 11, 12. The issue in life is not sin, but whether evil or Bible doctrine controls the soul.
- F. Doctrine is the basis for the distribution of escrow blessings in time, Isaiah 53:12 Therefore, I [God the Father] will distribute the plunder of victory to Him [Jesus Christ] because of the many [royal family]; then He will distribute the plunder of victory to the great ones [mature believers] because He poured out His soul to death...
- G. Doctrine is the basis for the distribution of escrow blessings for eternity, Hebrews 11:9-10 cf 11:13; Jas 1:25 cf 2:12-13.
- H. Bible doctrine must be more real than empirical knowledge, 2Peter 1:12-21. If there is a conflict between what you see in life and Bible doctrine, Bible doctrine is always right. Bible doctrine is more real than anything else in life to the mature believer.
- I. Lack of Bible doctrine destroys a nation, Hosea 4:1-6 Hear the doctrine of Jehovah, you citizens of Israel. [this was the last chance given to the northern kingdom before they went out under the 5th cycle of discipline] because Jehovah has a lawsuit against the citizens of ... because there is nothing of doctrine being taught [the justice of God destroys a nation without doctrine] therefore, nothing of grace being taught, nothing of knowing Elohim in the nation. Instead [whenever doctrine declines; whenever there is indifference to doctrine] there is false communication [government deception], lying, deceiving, murdering [crime rate always goes up when doctrine is rejected; in a time of liberal apostasy]; there is homicide and stealing, where they break in to commit adultery [rape; there is no respect for womanhood; instead, women are violated]; therefore, blood reaches out and touches blood [which is violence in the streets; and this is the way that we are going in the United States]. For this cause, the land shall mourn [have great adversity] therefore, everyone who is in the land—the citizens—will lose strength along with the animals in the field, the birds in the sky, the fish of the lake—they shall all be destroyed [referring to a military invasion]. And let no one [a reversionistic believer] try to put down the authority of someone teaching doctrine nor impugn anyone who teaches doctrine; since your people [the northern kingdom of Israel] destroy the authority of the communicator [there is always an attack upon those who teach doctrine; at the time of writing, this refers to the prophets; in our time, pastor-teachers—there is ridiculing of the pastor-teacher, there is the diluting of his authority in the local church]. Therefore, you will stumble in the daytime and even the prophet will stumble with you in the night darkness; and I will destroy your mother [that is, your nation]. Therefore, you have stumbled [you have entered reversionism; you are under the influence of evil] in the daylight [which is the time of good doctrinal teaching] and even the prophet [the communicator of doctrine] will stumble with you in the night darkness [the apostate false teaching]. And I will destroy your mother [the administration of the fifth cycle of discipline to the northern kingdom]. My nation is destroyed from lack of knowledge of doctrine. Because you have rejected the principle of knowing doctrine, therefore, I will reject you from being a priest nation to Me. Since you have neglected doctrine, the Torah of your God, I will neglect the citizens. This is what destroys a nation.

- J. Bible doctrine is part of the principle of logistical grace, Colossians 1:25-29; Hebrews 13:7, 17; Ephesians 4:11-13. God keeps us alive to take in doctrine. Logistical grace includes time, food, shelter, clothing, money, transportation, protection, the Bible, a pastor, a local church, friends, and loved ones. Bible doctrine is an essential part of our logistical grace provision for our advance to maturity.
- K. The plan of God is both the advance and vindication of Bible doctrine, Isaiah 53:10 However, Jehovah the Father made a command decision to crush Christ on the cross. He caused the affliction of Christ on the cross (when you will appoint His soul a trespass offering) He (Christ) will see a seed (a royal family) , He shall prolong days to rule Israel in the Millennium ; and therefore, the plan of Jehovah the Father shall advance in His hand. cf Rom 3:4; Psalm 51:4. You are vindicated through the application of doctrine when you are maligned or rejected.
- L. The pastor establishes the balance of residency between the filling of the Holy Spirit and Bible doctrine in the soul of the believer, making possible the advance to maturity. 1Corinthians 6:19, 3:16; Ephesians 5:18.
 - 1. Bible doctrine is transferred from the written page to the believer's soul by Bible teaching from one's right pastor-teacher. This is called the function of GAP (grace apparatus for perception).
 - 2. The purpose of this transfer of doctrine is to establish a balance of residency with the filling of the Holy Spirit, whereby God can be glorified in your life by blessing you.

3. Since the Holy Spirit works through the Word in the Church Age, the vacancy of doctrine in the soul creates a demand for the grace apparatus for perception.

4. Daily function of GAP creates a balance of residency.

M. The importance of the consistency of GAP, Heb 10:25, 35-36, 39; You only have supergrace capacity through persistent positive volition and the daily function of GAP.

1. Colossians 2:6–7 According to as you have received to yourselves Christ Jesus as Lord, so also keep on walking in Him, having been rooted and constantly being edified in Him; being stabilized by means of doctrine in the manner that you have been taught, overflowing with thanksgiving. When you take in doctrine, thanksgiving will overflow.

N. Hebrews 10:35-36, Don't throw away as worthless your confidence in doctrine; which confidence continues having a rich distribution of blessing. For you keep on having need of perseverance (persistence) in order that when you have accomplished the will of God [advancing to maturity] you might carry off for yourself the promise [that is, the imputed blessings in time with the guarantee of blessings in eternity] [this promise referring to the categories of blessing].

O. Consistency is the secret to reaching maturity. The biggest problems to being consistent are distractions, mental attitude sins, inordinate desire rather than contentment, and entertainment.

1. Hebrews 10:25 Stop neglecting the assembling the assembly of yourselves together as is the habit of some is, therefore it behooves each one of us to use each day for the perception of doctrine.

P. Proverbs 8 the most important thing is Bible doctrine.

Q. The Results of Bible Doctrine in the Soul.

1. It produces confidence in time, Job 5:24-27; 2 Cor 5:6-8; Hebrews 10:35.

2. It produces divine viewpoint of life and establishes right priorities in the soul, Isa 55:7-9; 2 Cor 10:5.

3. It orients the believer to the plan of God, Isaiah 26:3-4; Rom 8:28.

4. It produces stability of mind, James 1:8.

5. It is the basis for divine guidance and the execution of the will of God, Rom 12:2-3.

6. It leads to occupation with Christ, your social life with Christ, and the capacity and ability to love God and appreciate Him as the Source of blessing when it comes, Phil 3:10; Eph 3:19; Heb 12:1-2.

7. It attains and holds maturity, Phil 3:12-14.

8. It attains eternal grace blessing, Heb 11:9, 10, 13; James 1:25 cf 2:12-13.

9. Luke 11:27–28 doctrine in the soul is the issue; doctrine resident in the soul is our source of happiness. Right in the middle of His teaching, He is interrupted. This woman has an arrogance problem. She is trying to get in a Word for woman's lib. "You would not be a thing if it wasn't for your mother breast feeding you. She is one of those libbers. Happinesses are to those who keep hearing and keep retaining the Word of God. Happiness belongs to those who persevere in doctrine.

- R. Synonyms for Maximum Bible Doctrine in the Soul.
1. Language: CHAKMAH, ἐπίγνωσις.
 2. Theological: James 4:6, "MEIZONA CHARIS" means super grace.
 3. Priestly: Heb 13:10, "Altar of the soul."
 4. Building: Eph 4:12, 16, "edification complex of the soul."
 5. Time: Toward God, Ephesians 5:15-18, "redeeming the time." Toward the unbeliever, Colossians 4:5.
 6. Central control: Eph 6:10, "Dictator of the soul."
 7. Military:
 - a. Eph 6:11-18, "Putting on the full armor from God."
 - b. Heb 12:1-2 cf 11:1-3 "follow the colors to the high ground." Cf. Col 2:5-8, "establishing a command post of the soul."
 8. Crucifixion: Mk 8:34; Mt 10:38; Lk 9:23, 14:27, "Taking up your cross" and "follow Me" emphasize the impersonal love of the mature believer.
 9. Chemical: Mt 5:13; Mk 9:50; Col 4:6; Lk 14:34, "Salt of the Land."
 10. Sanctification: 1 Tim 6:3-4; 2Peter 1:3, "Godliness."
- S. Bible doctrine in the soul is the means of promotion, 1Chronicles 11:1-2.
- T. Bible doctrine in the soul is the true source of happiness, Luke 11:27-28. Jesus is teaching Bible doctrine. It is necessary for people to listen. There was an arrogant woman in the audience, who had bad manners, interrupted the Lord with a loud, horsey voice. She wants to get into the act and she wants equal opportunity. And she did not want any man to be the leader of the family. "Wrong! Happiness is hearing and retaining the Word of God." Life without learning is death.
- U. The important Bible passages on the importance of doctrine are Heb 11, Prov 8, 2Peter 1:12-21, and Isa 53:12.
- V. Thinking is the application of Bible doctrine to experience. (Ephesians 998.)
1. Learning is understanding. Understanding is thinking. Therefore, thinking is the application of understanding. Thinking doctrine is the application of doctrine
 2. Learning Bible doctrine is tantamount to understanding Bible doctrine. Therefore, thinking Bible doctrine is synonymous with application of Bible doctrine. First we must learn doctrine, then we must think doctrine.
 3. You have to learn Bible doctrine before you can think Bible doctrine or apply Bible doctrine.
 4. No believer can apply doctrine to his experience until he has metabolized that doctrine in the right lobe of the mentality of the soul. Application of doctrine depends on metabolization of doctrine.
 5. You have to think metabolized doctrine before you can apply it.
 6. There are three concepts for the environment of application: learning, thinking, and solving.

- a. Learning is tantamount to perception and application of Bible doctrine.
 - b. Thinking is the application of metabolized doctrine to experience.
 - c. Solving is understanding and using the problem-solving devices of the protocol plan of God.
7. The direction of application.
- a. Toward God includes worship, personal love for God, and occupation with Christ.
 - b. Toward people means impersonal love for all mankind.
 - c. Toward self refers to spiritual self-esteem.
 - d. Toward dying means the application of the doctrine of dying grace.

The stupidity of the president insures that many great military men will die. Those men in Washington know nothing about free enterprise. They could not operate a penny stamp business. When these men attack the oil companies and car industry, they know nothing.

The voting franchise should be confined to males, property owners and those who served in the military.

Hood's Texas Brigade and there was a Washington monument to them. Not for fame or reward, but in simple obedience to duty, suffered all, sacrificed all, and died. Cannot even find this by google. The monument appears to have been removed.

1977 Romans

Lesson #299

299 01/01/1978 Romans 8:11 Ministry of the indwelling of the Holy Spirit

If the rapture does not occur, then we will all leave this life through death. We go beyond death and penetrate into the screen of our eternal future. The great inner conflict of mental attitude; human viewpoint versus divine viewpoint.

Ultimate sanctification is the possession of our resurrection body and no sin nature.

Romans 8:11 And if the Spirit of the One having raised up Jesus out from the dead dwells in you, the One having raised up Christ Jesus out from the dead also will give life to your mortal bodies, on account of His Spirit dwelling in you. (BLB)

Verse 11 – application from ultimate sanctification. “But if the Spirit of him that raised up Jesus from the dead dwell in you” – the transitional use of the conjunctive particle de is translated “now.” With it is also a conditional conjunction called the particle of the first class condition, ei (εἰ) [pronounced ī]—“Now if.” Plus the nominative singular subject referring to the third person of the Trinity, God the Holy Spirit—pneuma (πνεῦμα) [pronounced PNYOO-mah], and an ablative singular of source from the definite article used as a personal pronoun for God the Father who sent the Holy Spirit in the doctrine of procession. “Now if the Spirit from him.”

Then a reference to resurrection: the aorist active participle of egeirō (ἐγείρω) [pronounced ehg-ī-row], a verb for resurrection. The aorist tense is a constative aorist for an instantaneous action of resurrection, the resurrection of the humanity of Christ. The active voice: it is God the Holy Spirit who actually produces the action of raising Jesus Christ from the dead. A circumstantial participle rounds out the verb. The Holy Spirit, then, had a part in the resurrection of Jesus Christ. This was a part of His sustaining ministry of our Lord during His earthly ministry. The name “Jesus” is the accusative singular direct object from Iêsous (Ἰησοῦς) [pronounced ee-ay-SOOCE] and it emphasizes the humanity of Christ since the deity of Christ was not resurrected. Plus the generic use of the definite article emphasizing the fact that the humanity of Christ is absolutely unique, different from all other members of the human race.

Then the preposition ek (ἐκ) [pronounced ehk] plus the ablative of nekros (νεκρός) [pronounced nehk-ROSS] in the plural minus the definite article to indicate the qualitative aspect of the two deaths of Christ on the cross—“from deaths.” This is resurrection from His spiritual as well as His physical deaths. When our Lord’s humanity was raised from the dead the Father and the Spirit both raised Him, so both are agents in the resurrection of Christ. The fact that God the Father is the agent of resurrection is found in Colossians 2:12; 1Thessalonians 1:10; 1Peter 1:21. The fact that God the Holy Spirit is also the agent of resurrection is found in Acts 2:24; Romans 1:4; 8:11; 2Peter 3:18. The preposition ek (ἐκ) [pronounced ehk] is a special one because it has with it a definite article instead of being anarthrous. If it had no definite article it would imply that Jesus was raised from among dead ones. But because there is a definite article here it indicates that this is from the two deaths which He died on the cross. “Now if the Spirit from Him [God the Father] who has raised up the Jesus from deaths [spiritual and physical].” Jesus died twice on the cross.

Then “dwell in you” is a present active indicative of the verb oikéō (οικέω) [pronounced oy-KEH-oh], meaning not only to dwell but to reside, or with the preposition en (ἐν) [pronounced en] to indwell—“indwells you.” The present tense is a static present for a condition which perpetually exists. The active voice: the Holy Spirit produces the action of the verb. The indicative mood is declarative for a dogmatic statement of fact. The final preposition phrase indicates that not only does God the Holy Spirit indwell us for a purpose now but He also indwells us for a future purpose as well. The preposition en (ἐν) [pronounced en] plus the locative plural of su, indicating all believers.

There is another purpose of the Spirit, it has to do with the future. The Holy Spirit indwells us in the present as a down payment on our future resurrection body. The resurrection body is going to be the target, the home, or the residence for future blessing. All of the rewards and blessings of eternity are imputations from divine justice and they must be imputed to a home or a target. The home or the target is the resurrection body minus the old sin nature, minus human good. For all blessing from God is a real imputation. The real imputation is the thing imputed and the target, to which it is naturally pulled to.

“he that raised up Christ from the dead” – this is God the Holy Spirit. This is the aorist active participle of the verb egeirō (ἐγείρω) [pronounced ehg-Ī-row]. The aorist tense is a constative aorist for an instantaneous action. The resurrection of the humanity of Christ was instantaneous, it was accomplished by God the Holy Spirit. The active voice: the Holy Spirit produces the action of the verb. The participle is circumstantial. It is followed by the prepositional phrase ek (ἐκ) [pronounced ehk] plus Nekros—“he who raised Christ Jesus from the deaths.”

“shall also quicken” – the future active indicative of the verb zōopoiēō (ζωοποιέω) [pronounced dzo-op-oy-EH-oh] [zōos means to be a living thing or being; poiēō (ποιέω) [pronounced poi-EH-oh] = to make or to do] literally means to make alive or to give life to. When it is followed by a dative case it means to give life to. If it is followed by the accusative, as here, it means to make alive. This is a predictive future tense meaning this is going to happen in the future, after death at the time of the Rapture. The active voice: the Holy Spirit produces the action of the verb in providing a resurrection body for each one of us. The indicative mood is declarative for a dogmatic statement of fact. The one who indwells us is also going to give us a resurrection body. The adjunctive use of kai means “also.”

“your mortal bodies” – this indicates the fact as to why the Holy Spirit indwells us now, and then fashions us a new body later on. It indicates our infirmities. The word “mortal” is found in the accusative plural direct object from thnētós (θνητός) [pronounced thnay-TOSS]. It is correctly translated “mortal” in the sense of being subject to the frailties of life. With this adjective is the noun sōma (σῶμα) [pronounced SOH-mah] for the body.

If God the Holy Spirit can sustain us in the devil’s world where Satan is not only the ruler of this world but the old sin nature is the sovereign of life; if He indwells us to sustain, to protect us, to give us capacity for life, to keep us in the perspective of grace, to keep us from arrogance and inordinate ambition, then obviously He has a future relationship with us.

When we stand before the Lord Jesus Christ, we get our efficiency rating. We will be evaluated from the time that we believed in Christ and for the years that we are on the earth. Our responsibilities are so simple, that it would seem to most to be easy.

This verse completes the principle that the Holy Spirit has a part in every phase of God’s plan for the believer. If we grow spiritually, we will have blessing and reward in heaven. The whole thing is, how did you exploit that righteousness which I gave you? If you ran around and got arrogant and competitive and thought that you are the only one doing great things for God, you have missed the point.

The indwelling of the Holy Spirit is given to us to teach us doctrine. God is not glorified in the way that you think He is. He is not glorified by the things that we do for Him. It is what God does for us on this earth in the devil's world. By His Spirit which dwells in you.

“by his Spirit that dwelleth in you” – dia plus the ablative means “by his Spirit” but it is an unusual construction, dia plus the ablative of pneuma (πνεῦμα) [pronounced PNYOO-mah]. The ablative is used here to express means, and the reason for it is because we have the expression of means accompanied by the implication of its source. Since the Holy Spirit is also the source as well as the means we have a very unusual prepositional phrase. The ablative of source always brings in the means. The one who indwells us, God the Holy Spirit, is also the means of fashioning that resurrection body with which we stand before the Lord Jesus Christ for evaluation.

In eternity, the blessings and rewards are given to us in our resurrection body. In time, the blessings are sent to our +R. No matter how filled we are with self-righteousness and asceticism, what we do for God is not the key. Doctrine becomes a tremendous issue; the rebound technique becomes one of the most important issues in life.

The attempt to make people equal is insanity. The only One Who can do it, will not do it. Everyone will be there; and there will be no regrets; and no one is going to rub it in. Bob could spend the first million years rubbing it in. There will be vast differences in eternity.

Romans 8:11 Now if the Spirit from Him [God the Father] Who has raised up Jesus from deaths [spiritual and physical] indwells you [and He does], He who raised Christ Jesus from deaths will also make alive your mortal bodies by the agency of His Spirit Who resides in you.

Did you know the Holy Spirit indwelt you? Why didn't you exploit that? Did you know that you had God's righteousness? Then why didn't you exploit that?

Indwelling, baptism, sealing, distribution of spiritual gifts. In phase III, the Holy Spirit activates the resurrection body. God Who also sealed us gave us the Spirit as a down payment. Now He Who prepares us for this very purpose is God.

Lesson #300

300 01/01/1978 Romans 8:12–13a "Brother"; obligation and authority; results of the believer living under the authority of the old sin nature

Heirs with Christ

Romans 8:12 So then, brothers, we are debtors, not to the flesh, to live according to flesh. (BLB)

Verse 12 – a negative approach. For positive believers who are positive toward doctrine and interested in honoring the Lord the negative approach is not necessary, but there are some people who never can understand a positive command, it always has to be given to them in a negative manner. “Therefore, brethren,” we are debtors.” The verse begins with an inferential illative particle ára (ἄρα) [pronounced AHR-ah]. It is a rare particle designed to express inference when used with an inferential conjunction. So immediately following is the more common word oun (οὐν) [pronounced oon], also designed to express inference. Then a vocative of address directed toward those who are called adelphos (ἀδελφός) [pronounced ad-el-FOSS] which means brother. Here it is in the vocative plural which means many brothers, translated “brethren.” It refers to the royal family of God and could just as legitimately be translated that way: “Consequently, royal family.” The royalty of the Lord Jesus Christ explains why we are in the Church Age. He is calling out a royal family for Himself.

In Beverly Hills, there were two types of people: actors and people who did not like actors.

Next is a verb of clarification, the present active indicative of eimi (εἶμι) [pronounced eye-ME], the verb to be which is correctly translated “we are.” The present tense is a progressive present indicating the action in a state of persistence, linear aktionsart in present time. The active voice: the royal family of God, believers in the Church Age, produce the action of the verb. The declarative mood represents the verbal action from the viewpoint of reality. The word that follows will indicate just exactly why a negative command is necessary. The predicate nominative plural indicates that all believers are involved in this designation prior to a negative command. The designation is the predicate nominative plural from opheilētēs (ὀφειλέτης) [pronounced off-ī-LEHT-ace], the word for a debtor. This doesn’t mean that we are in debt to God, that we owe God something special. It is much greater than that. The word “debt” doesn’t go too well with royal family connotation. It really has the connotation of obligation. We are debtors only in the sense of obligation, and royalty has always had obligation. There are certain obligations that go with high rank and this is what is meant here. We have the highest rank in life because the moment that we believed in the Lord Jesus Christ we were not simply born again but we were born into the royal family of God, therefore we have great obligation. So this opening phrase introduces a negative obligation of the Christian way of life which is related to the divorce from the first husband, the OSN, which occurred at salvation through the ministry of the baptism of the Holy Spirit.

“not to the flesh, to live after the flesh” – the negative adverb ou (οὐ) [pronounced oo] denies the reality of the fact. The OSN alleges obligation after the divorce. This is a part of the function of the OSN inside of each one of us, alleging that there is responsibility which we have to the OSN. This, of course, is not true. Divorce means death, and death means no further obligation on the part of the wife—in this case, the believer. The problem with the word “flesh,” sarx (σάρξ) [pronounced sarx], is that we think of the OSN as merely being inside of us and sort of isolated from everything else in life. But there are many ways in which the OSN destroys any sense of obligation. The word “to live” is a present active infinitive from zaō (ζάω) [pronounced DZAH-oh]. zaō (ζάω) [pronounced DZAH-oh] deals with our life, what we are. It is what makes up the real person. The perfective present tense of zaō (ζάω) [pronounced DZAH-oh] denotes the continuation of existing results of the baptism of the Spirit and retroactive positional truth. The active voice: the believer produces the negative obligation. The infinitive of intended results indicates the fulfilment of a negative obligation. This is also an articular infinitive in the Greek, and the definite article with the infinitive is an Attic Greek idiom. The definite article is therefore translated “that”—“that we should live.” Plus kata with sarx (σάρξ) [pronounced sarx], “according to the flesh.”

Romans 8:12 Therefore, brethren, we are not debtors to the old sin nature, that we should live according to the flesh.

Principle

1. Negative obligation prepares the way for the statement of alternatives in the next verse.
2. Negative obligation implies that we can miss the purpose for which we continue to live after salvation.
3. Therefore negative purpose helps to define the positive objectives of the Christian way of life.
4. The solution to the problem of the old sin nature is found in each stage of the plan of God. Phase one, salvation: retroactive positional truth breaks the power and the authority of the OSN; phase two, the believer in time: the experiential power of the OSN as the ex-husband is broken through maturity adjustment to the justice of God. That involves two adjustments: rebound when necessary and a consistent positive attitude toward Bible doctrine; phase three: the OSN is eliminated from the resurrection body, along with the destruction of good and evil at the judgment seat of Christ.
5. Both carnality and reversionism ignore this negative obligation.
6. Carnality emphasizes the old sin nature’s trend toward sin.
7. Carnality is not the believer’s sinning but the sinning believer’s failure to rebound, failure to utilize the grace solution.
8. Reversionism is the believer’s rejection of doctrine and his involvement with good and evil.
9. Consequently, the believer is not obligated to the ex-husband to follow the policy of sin, good, and evil.
10. Having no obligation to the sin nature as the ex-husband clears the decks to follow the policy of the new husband, the Lord Jesus Christ.
11. The policy of the Lord Jesus Christ for the believer in time is maturity adjustment to the justice of God through the filling of the Spirit and the daily function of GAP.

Romans 8:13 For if you live according to flesh, you are about to die; but if by the Spirit you put to death the deeds of the body, you will live. (BLB)

Verse 13 – the alternatives of the Christian way of life. It begins with the first alternative which was prohibited in the previous verse. “For if ye live after the flesh.” It begins with the conditional conjunction ei (εἰ) [pronounced /] plus the indicative, it introduces the protasis of a first class condition, supposition from the viewpoint of reality. The protasis presents a fact which conditions another point of doctrine. The fact of the protasis is either carnality or reversionism, or both. The word “for” is the emphatic use of the postpositive conjunctive particle gar which means “indeed” here. Plus the present active indicative of the verb zaō (ζάω) [pronounced DZAH-oh], which in the previous verse was an infinitive. It is referring to living the Christian life or phase two, the life between salvation and death. The retroactive progressive present tense denotes what has begun in the past and continues into the present time. In this case we are looking at carnality or reversionism, or both. The active voice: the reversionistic believer produces the action of the verb. The indicative mood is declarative for the protasis of a first class condition. Then the phrase kata plus the accusative of sarx (σάρξ) [pronounced sarx]. “Indeed, if you live in relationship to the flesh [or, according to the flesh].” Even better: “under the authority of the old sin nature.” This is a first class condition, a supposition from the viewpoint of reality [and it is assumed that you do]. The old sin nature dominates the life of the believer when the believer is either carnal, minus rebound, or reversionistic and involved in the function of good and evil.

“ye shall die” – the present active indicative of the verb mellō (μέλλω) [pronounced MEHL-low], a verb that means to be about to, to be on the point of doing something, to be destined. Translation: “you are destined.” For the person who is negative toward doctrine, the person who is careless about the teaching of the Word of God, or who wants to emphasize works and functions of good and evil, this person is destined for something. The present tense is a futuristic present denoting the fact that maximum discipline, the sin unto death, has not yet occurred but is on the verge of occurring, or is contemplated as occurring in the near future. The active voice: reversionistic believers produce the action of the verb. The indicative mood is declarative representing the verbal action from the viewpoint of reality. There is a supporting verb in the infinitive form, the present active infinitive of apothnēskō (ἀποθνήσκω) [pronounced op-ohth-NACE-koh], used here for maximum discipline of the believer in time. The only time that God can discipline a believer is in time, and this refers to the sin unto death. The perfective present denotes the continuation of the existing results of reversionism. The active voice: the reversionist produces the action. He is a believer who possesses eternal salvation, and cannot lose his eternal salvation, but he is still going to go out in this way. The infinitive is conceived result assumed as a consequence of reversionism.

Principle

1. The first option presented to the believer in phase two is rejection of rebound plus neglect of Bible doctrine resulting in varying stages of divine discipline.
2. When the old sin nature dominates the believer the trends of the sin nature result in sin, good, and evil.
3. The believer following one or more of these trends enters into either carnality or reversionism through the function of human good, but inevitably winds up under the concept of reversionism under the influence of evil.
4. All the good deeds, all the personality improvements, all the self-righteousness, all the dedications, do not stop the avalanche of reversionism.
5. Only the function of rebound and the daily perception of Bible doctrine protects the believer against reversionism and the ultimate discipline of the sin unto death.

6. The believer cannot afford the option of living under the authority of the old sin nature.
7. The a fortiori begun at salvation with the imputation of divine righteousness is never completed with maximum blessing from the justice of God to the immature believer. The only way that those blessings can be imputed to the glory of God is for the believer to crack the maturity barrier.
8. Lacking the blessings from the justice of God in time the believer in eternity has nothing above and beyond ultimate sanctification. Therefore a principle: To lose out in time, as far as reward and blessing is concerned, means to lose out in eternity, as far as reward and blessing is concerned.
9. There is no loss of salvation, only loss of blessing and reward above and beyond imputed righteousness in time, and the resurrection body in eternity.

1977 Romans

Lesson #301

301 01/02/1978 Romans 8:13b–14a Doctrine of the sin unto death; alternatives in the Christian life; concepts of divine guidance

Romans 8:13 For if you live according to flesh, you are about to die; but if by the Spirit you put to death the deeds of the body, you will live. (BLB)

“Indeed if you live under the authority of the old sin nature [and you do], you are destined to die.” This is the sin unto death.^[8]

The sin unto death was covered back in Lesson #280. Any notes from this doctrine will be placed there. It was barely covered in this lesson.

The second alternative deals with the phrase, “but if ye through the Spirit do mortify the deeds of the body” – the adversative conjunctive particle de sets up a contrast between two clauses, between the reversionist who neglects Bible doctrine and the believer who is positive to doctrine and grows in grace. There is also the conjunctive particle ei (εἰ) [pronounced /] which is used as a conditional particle for the protasis of a first class condition. See we have an assumption which is based on reality. So long as the believer is alive he can always recover from reversionism and exercise the option of maturity adjustment to the justice of God. Then the instrumental of means from pneuma (πνεῦμα) [pronounced PNYOO-mah], referring to God the Holy Spirit who has everything to do with teaching us doctrine if we option for it. So the Holy Spirit not only controls the believer’s soul under rebound/the filling of the Spirit but He is the means of understanding doctrine so that we can grow—“but if by means of the Spirit.”

Plus another word for death. Paul has just said that if the believer lives under the authority of the old sin nature he is destined to die—the sin unto death. But he says that while the believer is still alive he can put some things to death and cancel out any possibility of dying the sin unto death. So next is the present active indicative of thanatōō (θανατώω) [pronounced thahn-aht-OH-oh], and old Attic word which means to kill, to deliver up to death, to condemn to death, or to recognize as dead. It is the latter meaning that is important here. Paul says the believer has an option to die the sin unto death, or while still alive to put something to death so that death will never be feared—“but if by means of the Spirit you recognize as dead [or, condemn to death].” That is a present active indicative.

Plus the accusative plural direct object from praxis (πρᾶξις) [pronounced PRAX-ihs] which means action, function, plus the ablative of source singular from sōma (σῶμα) [pronounced SOH-mah]—“function from the body.” We have been discussing human good, and that is exactly what has to be renounced: any system of self-righteousness, any system or panacea for improving the devil’s world.

For example, our President and our Congress are all attempting to fix up the devil’s world. Human good is the greatest temptation to the believer and the greatest distraction.

The morphology: the retroactive progressive present of thanatōō (θανατώω) [pronounced thahn-aht-OH-oh] which denotes what must begin at salvation and continue throughout the believer’s life, namely rebound for the filling of the Spirit and the daily function of GAP to stay away from the evils of self-righteousness, judging, maligning, trying to improve the world with good. The active voice: the believer must produce the action of the verb. This will result in rejection of human good as a system, for human good is the greatest temptation to the believer and the means of distraction from Bible doctrine. Recognizing human good as dead and therefore as a part of that divorce which occurred at salvation is the basis of avoiding the greatest deterrent to the Christian life, i.e. human good. The indicative mood is a potential indicative of obligation. In other words, this is the only way to live the Christian way of life. You have to condemn human good.

The morphology of thanatōō (θανατώω) [pronounced thahn-aht-OH-oh], the present active indicative, explains the instrumental of means of pneuma (πνεῦμα) [pronounced PNYOO-mah]. The Holy Spirit takes doctrine resident in the believer’s right lobe and applies it in all of these areas where we get sucked into human good. The believer must store doctrine in his right lobe in order to avoid the temptation to get off into human good and self-righteousness. Principle: All blessing from God comes through the grace pipeline. No one ever receives blessing from God through being good.

When we get to v. 32, all of this is going to fall in place.

“ye shall live” – future middle indicative from the verb zaō (ζάω) [pronounced DZAH-oh]. The future tense is progressive, it denotes the idea of progress in future time. Hence, the progressive future connotes the advance to maturity—maturity adjustment to the justice of God—and resultant glorification of Jesus Christ, and the receiving of blessing. In other words, it is a reference to living the new life of phase two, the new life which is unfolding in Romans 8, the life that belongs to the royal family of God. The middle voice is a direct middle in which the believer acts with a view toward participating in the results of the action: blessing from the justice of God, glorification of Jesus Christ. Therefore the believer participates in the results of advancing toward maturity. The indicative mood is declarative, representing the verbal idea from the viewpoint of reality—"you shall live," in the sense of blessing in maturity.

Principle

1. This is a reference to living a new kind of life, a life which is related to God's plan and completely eliminates both preconceived notions and human good motivation. In other words, this means to live life in compatibility with the character of God rather than in compatibility with our own concepts of human character.
2. This means to erase human standards and substitute divine standards.
3. Maturity is the objective of the Christian way of life.
4. Maturity means the glorification of the Lord Jesus Christ.
5. In glorifying Christ, for the first time we receive great blessing from God—true blessing. Remember that logistical grace may appear to be blessing but it is sustaining us until we reach maturity.
6. It is impossible to advance to maturity when one is entangled with systems of human good and asceticism.
7. All believers are tempted at some time in some way to enter a program of human good which is deviation of purpose in this life.

Romans 8:13 Indeed, if you live under the authority of the old sin nature, you are destined to die [maximum discipline], but if by means of the Spirit you recognize as dead the actions from the body [human good], you shall live.

Principle

1. In this verse the alternatives of the Christian way of life are defined. They are defined as far as final objectives are concerned.
2. Either the sin unto death from reversionism or divine blessing from maturity. Reversionism is maladjustment to the justice of God, while maturity is total adjustment to the justice of God.
3. Either you adjust to the justice of God or the justice of God will adjust to you.
4. If you adjust to the justice of God [to advance to maturity] the justice of God will provide for you the real imputation of divine blessing.
5. But if you are maladjusted through reversionism then the justice of God will adjust to you by divine discipline and punishment.
6. The tree of the knowledge of good and evil is just as dangerous to us today as it was to our first parents in the garden.
7. We must avoid the tree of the knowledge of good and evil.
8. This verse commands to recognize as dead the actions of the body or human good because they are dealt with in the divorce from the old sin nature.
9. This death, then, to the old sin nature is divorce. Positionally the power of the ex-husband has been broken. Experientially this is exploited through the foiling of the Spirit and the daily function of GAP. Example of the orthodox Jew who becomes a Christian. The family will have a funeral for him (or her). He is dead to them.

10. Maximum exploitation of victory occurs at maturity adjustment to the justice of God.

Verse 14-17, the results of the second alternative which is maturity adjustment to the justice of God. The first result, in verse 14, is divine guidance. Only the believer who is positive toward doctrine and only the mature believer is actually guided by God.

Romans 8:14 For as many as are led by the Spirit of God, these are sons of God. (BLB)

Verse 14 – “For as many as are led by the Spirit of God.” The postpositive conjunctive particle gar is used to express a cause or a reason. The nominative plural from the correlative adjective hosos (ὅσος) [pronounced HOS-os] refers to those believers who attain maturity through the filling of the Spirit and maximum intake of doctrine. Then the present passive indicative from the verb ágō (ἄγω) [pronounced AHG-oh], meaning here to be led—“For as many as are led.” The present tense is a retroactive progressive present, denoting what has begun in the past and continues into the present time. The mature believer is definitely led by the Lord. The passive voice: the mature believer receives the action of the verb. The indicative mood is declarative, it is a dogmatic statement of fact that the mature believer is definitely guided by God. The means is said to be the Spirit—the instrumental of means, pneuma (πνεῦμα) [pronounced PNYOO-mah]. Plus the descriptive genitive singular of theos (θεός) [pronounced theh-OSS]—“by the Spirit of God.”

Divine guidance is the doctrine of determining the will of God for your life: on specific things, on general things, on modus vivendi. Divine guidance is the communication of God’s will through God’s revelation. Divine revelation in our dispensation is limited to the Word of God. The canon of Scripture contains everything related to divine guidance. Divine discipline and human disaster as a classification of guidance from God is limited to a very negative aspect. There is guidance from God in a sense for the reversionist who receives warning discipline, then intensive discipline. This discipline merely tells him he is on the wrong road. The only classification for positively knowing the will of God is related to Bible doctrine, and the principle of guidance, then: You cannot know the will of God apart from knowing the Word of God.^[9]

The Doctrine of Divine Guidance has already been covered back in Lesson #17. It is covered briefly in the final ten minutes of this lesson. Foreknowledge and the divine decrees deal only with what really happens; but omniscience knows what all the alternatives are.

Lesson #302

302 01/03/1978 Romans 8:14a Doctrine of divine guidance: comparing of divine will, decrees, foreknowledge, omniscience and laws

Apparently the bowls are going badly. You cannot play football unless you agree to the authority of the referee.

We began with the Doctrine of Divine Guidance , which has already been covered back in Lesson #17. Last night was covering a few basic ideas. Related notes will be placed in Lesson #17.

Condemnation precedes blessing. We must be condemned before we can be saved. Imputations reviewed. God sets up a pipeline between the justice of God and the righteousness of God. There is no blessing shipped down to us if we lack the capacity. God can only send blessing to His Own righteousness; so there are many things which are eliminated from God's blessing (witnessing, giving, praying, etc.). The logistical support is not blessing, per se. Our food, home, transportation, etc. are not blessings but support. As royal family, we are considered to be entirely different from the family of God in past dispensations.

This was reviewed in Lesson #327.

Doctrine of Divine Decrees

Israel 116-117, 11/1/91, Israel 66-67; Ephesians 11-13, 274

A. Definition and Description.

1. Definition.

- a. The decree of God is His eternal (always existed), holy (perfect integrity), wise (the application of omniscience to creation), and sovereign purpose, comprehending simultaneously all things that ever were or will be in their causes, conditions (status), successions (interaction with others that leads to certain decisions), relations, and determining their certain futurition.
 - (1) This definition begins by expressing the source of the decrees. "Comprehending" refers to divine omniscience.
 - (2) The definition also expresses the attributes of God in terms of divine will in human history.
 - (3) The definition emphasizes that the omniscience of God knew simultaneously in eternity past everything that would happen in human history (the thought, action, and decision of every person in his life), furthermore, everything in relation to all of the things pertaining to it.
- b. The several contents of this one eternal purpose are, because of the limitations of our mentality and faculties, necessarily perceived by us in partial aspects and logical relations (from Scripture). Therefore, we classify the decrees as being plural, but in reality it is all one decree.
- c. A fortiori logic is a part of God's divine decrees.

- d. The decrees of God are His eternal and immutable will regarding the future existence of all events which will happen in time and the precise manner and order of their occurrence.
- e. By decrees is meant the eternal plan by which God has rendered certain all of the events of the universe (angelic history, human history) past, present, and future.
- f. The decrees of God are the chosen and adopted plan of God for all of His works.
- g. The Presbyterian shorter catechism says: "The decrees of God are His eternal purpose according to the counsels of His own will whereby for His own glory He has foreordained whatever comes to pass."
- h. The decrees are the all-inclusive will and purpose of God concerning all that ever was or will be, which originates wholly within Himself (omniscience), and which He Himself alone must have objectively designed for His own glory and for His satisfaction. We are only alive according to divine will.
- i. All creatures are placed into space and time; and all things were determined and resolved in the divine decrees. We have never surprised God with any of our actions.
- j. By accommodation to creatures of time and space subject to subdivisions reaching out to the falling of the sparrow, all decrees were simultaneous, not given by stages. However, because of the finite mental limitations of man, we must perceive them by logical and chronological progression. The human mind, when thinking properly, thinks according to logic and chronology.
- k. All decrees are efficacious in that they determine all that ever was, all that is, and all that ever will be, but the decrees are viewed by man from two standpoints.
 - (1) Efficacious means that which is directly wrought by God from His sovereignty.
 - (2) Permissive means that which is appointed by God to be accomplished by secondary causes or by the free will and action of agents (the free will of man).
- l. There are five characteristics of the decrees.
 - (1) The decrees are all-comprehensive. That means that not the slightest uncertainty could exist as to one of the smallest or most insignificant of events without confusion to all. Therefore, all events in the life of every person are interwoven and interdependent. God is not the author of confusion. Everything you think, why you think it, and the environment in which you think it, was all known to God in eternity past. This also says everything in life is a chain of cause and effect events.
 - (2) The decrees are eternal. God is not gaining in knowledge. What God has known at any time He has always known.

Omniscience means God knew simultaneously everything that ever was or will be in their causes, conditions, successions, and relations.

- (3) God is perfect; therefore, His decrees are perfect. They are not perfect in content, because they include sin, failure, etc. But everything that would ever happen was always known to God. His is a perfect system of comprehension.
 - (4) The decrees are unchangeable and certain. Nothing can possibly occur to necessitate a change. God is never "caught" not knowing something. God has never had to make any changes or any adjustments in the divine decrees.
 - (5) The decrees are the free choice of God in eternity past. (This is the most important point to understand, one which many theologians do not understand.) God is not bound to follow any necessary path. Having decreed, however, He is bound by His infinite faithfulness and truth to complete what He has begun. The free choice of God is very important, because God, from His own sovereign volition, invented free will in two categories of creatures, angels and mankind, so that both categories can choose for or against God.
- m. Ephesians 2:10, "For we are His production [we have the provision of computer assets in our very own portfolio; i.e., election and predestination], having been created in Christ Jesus [the formation of the royal family of God and a new spiritual species resulting in positional sanctification by which every believer becomes the heir of God and has equal privileges under predestination] for good achievements [in momentum in the divine dynasphere as a part of equal privilege of election] which God has prepared in advance [divine provision of your portfolio of invisible assets], that we should walk by means of them [utilization of our computer assets]."
- n. The decrees of God are His eternal purpose regarding you according to the counsels of His own wisdom and His sovereign will, whereby for His own glory (we are created for His own glory) He has programmed into the computer decrees all that will come to pass in the function of the human race in history. In the decrees, the sovereignty of God and free will of man coexist in human history.
- o. The principle of pre-creation reality.
- (1) Inasmuch as the decrees were simultaneously known by God, they were simultaneously decreed by God. To appreciate the decrees, one must understand the nature of omniscience as a part of divine essence.
 - (2) Of all the decrees, five are related to the purpose of God in election. Therefore, they are called in election the five elective decrees. From this comes the concept of lapsarianism.

- (3) The decrees must be in logical order. This is the subject of the doctrine of lapsarianism. Though the entire decree is one thought in the mind of God, the principle of cause and effect is involved in human thinking and understanding. The term lapsarian refers to the doctrine of divine decrees from the standpoint that man is a fallen being.
- (4) Lapsarianism provides the logical order for the five elective decrees. (See the doctrine of Lapsarianism.) The correct logical order is:
- (a) The decree to create.
 - (b) The decree to permit the fall.
 - (c) Unlimited atonement.
 - (d) The decree to motivate by means of election and glorify God through the deposit of escrow blessings.
 - (e) The simultaneous decrees of election and predestination, and to apply salvation to those who believe in Christ. The Bible states that man is the object of grace after, not before, the fall in John 15:9, Romans 11:5-7; Ephesians 1:4-6; 1Peter 1:2.

2. Distinctions.

- a. The distinction between the decree and the execution of the decree in our thinking means the one logically follows the other. However, the execution itself is not a part of the decree itself. The decree occurred in eternity past, the execution occurs in human history. The false views of lapsarianism fail to take cognition of this.
- b. Distinction should be made between God's laws and God's decrees. Laws regulate human conduct, while decrees are God's plan and action in eternity past. Laws can be broken; the decrees of God can never be broken. Laws regulate human life and function.
- c. Decrees partially revealed; laws of God fully revealed.
- d. Distinction between God's desires, like election, and the rejection of God's desires must be understood. God knows all your negative acts but doesn't interfere with your free will; for this would prevent the angelic conflict from ever being settled.
 - (1) For example, while sin and death are displeasing to God and incompatible with His divine nature, nevertheless, they belong to the decrees under the category of the fall of man.
 - (2) For example, while loser believers are displeasing to God and incompatible with His sovereign will, nevertheless, they belong to the decrees, having a printout from their PROM chip. We all have a PROM chip with our name on it, expressing our positive or negative volition toward God's sovereign will for our lives.

3. The Analogy to the Computer.

- a. God's eternal and sovereign will for every believer is expressed in the ROM chip, having printouts such as election, glorification, justification, and predestination.
 - b. In further explanation, the decrees of God are pictured as a giant computer, and the omniscience of God feeds the facts into the computer.
 - (1) The ROM chip is the sovereignty of God chip. It is an integrated circuit into which unchanging data can be read, but into which no new data can be written, a perfect illustration of God's knowledge of history in eternity past. ROM stands for "read only memory."
 - (2) The PROM chip is the free will of man chip. PROM stands for "programmable read only memory." It is an integrated circuit with fixed data that can be read but not altered.
 - (3) By analogy, your life can be read but not altered. You have privacy and can make good or bad decisions.
 - (4) The entering of data is performed after the PROM chip is manufactured. The omniscience of God programmed into this PROM chip how you would function in time.
 - (5) All PROM chips contain data regarding the function of the free will of man in history. He fed the facts simultaneously in eternity past. The facts include everything you ever think, decide, or do in the past, present, and future. This doesn't tamper with your free will.
 - c. All logistical grace, and those who would be blessed and their blessings, were fed into the computer decrees. God knew every problem, heartache, and situation you would face before you ever existed. (Therefore, you insult God when you pray "God help," as if He didn't already know you needed help.)
 - d. The computer of decrees prints out facts about believers under the categories of election, foreknowledge, predestination, justification and glorification. It also prints out facts on the unbeliever under the categories of reprobation, condemnation and retribution.
 - e. God did not foreknow something and then decree it. God's foreknowledge simply knows what is certain. The decrees come first.
4. The Decrees and Omniscience.
- a. The decrees of God are the sum total of God's plan designed in eternity past relating to all events of every classification collected into one single all-comprehensive whole through the omniscience of God. The decrees of God are His plan, His protocol plan.
 - b. The omniscience of God is the key to understanding the decrees. God has three categories of divine knowledge.

- (1) Self-knowledge. Each person of the Godhead has infinite and eternal knowledge about Himself and the other two members of the Trinity.
- (2) Omniscience. God knows all the knowable simultaneously about creatures, both the actual and the possible, but only the actual is programmed into the decrees.
- (3) Foreknowledge. It merely acknowledges what is in the decrees but does not make anything certain; the believer still has free will that is uncoerced. (See the doctrine of Predestination.)

5. The Decrees and Election.

- a. Election is the sovereign right of God over His creation. It is the expression of the sovereign will of God for believers only in eternity past, i.e., that you have the most fantastic blessings for time and eternity. Eph 1:4, "Since He Himself has elected us in Him before the foundation of the world." The decrees begin with election. provides
- b. Election and predestination provide equal privilege and equal opportunity for all believers.
 - (1) The equal privilege of election is God's decision to make every Church Age believer a royal priest forever.
 - (2) The equal opportunity of election is God's provision of logistical grace support for every Church Age believer.
 - (3) The equal privilege of predestination is God's decision to enter every Church Age believer into union with Christ forever through the baptism of the Holy Spirit and resultant positional sanctification. This creates a new spiritual species.
 - (4) The equal opportunity of predestination is God's provision of the divine dynasphere for the Church Age believer in time.

6. The Problem of Misinterpretation of the Decrees.

- a. Example: If the decrees make all things certain, then some say there is no occasion for man to use means, being unable to avoid the results decreed. In other words, why use any means if you are going to end up under predestination in the same situation?
- b. This ignores the fact that God has decreed the means as well as the ends, and that all God expresses in election is His desire that we all be rich from blessing.
- c. Man's destiny is the outworking of his own thinking, motivation, thinking, and decisions, which God knew and entered into a PROM chip. God knows all, yet that does not interfere with your PROM chip. God's knowledge of the facts does not interfere with their outworking in time.
- d. The decree of God removes no man from what, within the sphere of his own experience, is the outworking of his own choice, acting from his own judgment, based on his own desires, thoughts and circumstances. Whatever free will choice anyone makes is the execution of the decrees. No decree opposes human freedom. God's knowledge in eternity past in no way effects or interferes with our thoughts, motives, decisions, or actions. Knowing our failures, God went ahead with the plan anyway; that's grace.

- e. All decrees are efficacious in that they certainly determine all that ever was or will be. However, there are both efficacious decrees, things which God does directly, and permissive decrees, things which God permits as the function of free will.
- f. Some things God has decreed to do Himself. That is called immediacy. Others things come to pass through the action of secondary causes acting under the law of necessity. Other things He decreed free will agents to do in the exercise of their volition. Yet one category is rendered by the decree of God as certainly free as the other. Mankind never acts outside of the decrees.

B. The Mechanical Function of the Computer of Divine Decrees.

1. The Knowledge of God.

- a. The Omniscience of God. The omniscience of God is God's objective knowledge of the universe and all creatures.
 - (1) God is eternal; therefore, His knowledge is eternal. God is sovereign, His knowledge is superior, and not related to human or angelic limitations.
 - (2) God is infinite; therefore, His knowledge is without boundary or limitation, hence, absolute and eternal knowledge. His knowledge is infinitely superior to creature knowledge.
 - (3) God is sovereign; therefore, His knowledge is in control at all times.
 - (4) Time has nothing to do with God's knowledge. The future is as perspicuous as the past.
 - (5) All of God's knowledge is simultaneous. God knows perfectly, eternally, and simultaneously all that is knowable both actual and possible. There never was a time in eternity past or human history when God did not know all the knowable about everything. Such perception and sagacity is totally compatible with His divine essence. Every minute detail of both angelic and human creation is completely and perfectly in His mind at all times.
 - (6) God's knowledge is never irrational, speculative, theoretical, unknown, or forgotten.
- b. General Characteristics of the Knowledge of God.
 - (1) God is eternally Himself in three coequal, co-infinite, and coeternal persons. Therefore, each person in the Godhead knows Himself to be beyond comparison in His eternal and absolute knowledge of all things.

- (2) God's knowledge is never complicated by ignorance, absurdities, or emotional reaction.
- (3) God cannot change or be inaccurate in His knowledge. Divine knowledge is absolute.
- (4) God's knowledge cannot be more or less than it is.
- (5) While divine self-knowledge is related to the persons of the Godhead, omniscience is really divine knowledge related to creatures- angelic, human, and the animal kingdom.

c. There are three categories of divine knowledge.

- (1) Self-knowledge, which includes knowledge of the divine essence, the other members of the Trinity, and all things related to God.
- (2) Omniscience, which deals with creation, angelic and human, both actual and possible.
- (3) Foreknowledge, which is knowledge of what is in the decrees related to believers only. The foreknowledge of God makes nothing certain, but merely acknowledges what is certain; what is in the decrees regarding believers.
 - (a) As far as believers are concerned, there are numerous categories of printouts from the computer decrees: foreknowledge, election, predestination or foreordination, justification, and glorification.
 - (b) Foreknowledge means nothing can be known until it is first decreed. Therefore, God foreknows all events as certainly future because He has decreed them as certainly future.
 - (c) God's decrees relate equally to all future events of every kind; to the free actions of moral agents as well as to the actions of necessary agents; to sin evil and human good, as well as to moral, divine good, and honorable thoughts, decisions, and actions.
 - (d) Foreordination or predestination alone establishes certainty. Foreordination is a synonym for the decrees. Predestination is technically the printout for believers.
 - (e) Foreordination is an act of the infinitely intelligent and wise God in determining the certain futurity of all events. Omniscience decreed everything simultaneously and not by stages, because it was all in the omniscience of God in eternity past.

d. Omniscience.

- (1) Under the omniscience of God, all decrees were simultaneously known to God and simultaneously decreed by God in eternity past. There never was a time when God did not know all the knowable.

(2) God knows perfectly, eternally, and simultaneously all that is knowable both actual and possible. The omniscience of God also knows the alternatives to history; i.e., "iffy" history. God knows exactly what would have happened had another course of action occurred, but this is not entered into the computer decrees. Therefore, the omniscience of God knows every thought, act, decision of history and how they relate, plus what the alternatives would have been. God knows all that would have been involved in every case where man's decision might have been different from what it was. Divine knowledge about creatures is programmed into the computer of divine decrees. While the possible and alternatives to reality are known to God, only the reality is programmed into the computer of divine decrees. There are two categories of memory chips in the computer of divine decrees: the ROM chips are programmed by the sovereignty of God, the PROM, or free will of man chips, are programmed by the omniscience of God.

- (3) The principles of history are related to God's knowledge.
- (a) In human history, the sovereignty of God and the free will of man coexist, and this coexistence is by divine decree.
 - (b) God's knowledge of human volition has nothing to do with the function of that human volition in time. This is why God does not stop you from making bad decisions. God invented creature freedom.
 - (c) The omniscience of God simply knows and has always known every decision of every human beings in history and every thought that preceded it and every motive that was involved as well as every action that followed.
 - (d) God knew billions and billions of years ago that Isaac would believe in Jesus Christ and Ishmael would not. Therefore, the printout for Isaac's PROM chip is regeneration and true Israel, and the printout for Ishmael's PROM chip is condemnation and exclusion from the new racial species of Israel. Every human being, in the same way, has his very own PROM chip.
- (4) The concept of historical sins.
- (a) In addition to every person in history having his own PROM chip, there is another PROM chip which includes all human beings in history. The omniscience of God programmed into this PROM chip all personal sins in history. On the Cross, God the Father called for the printout of this chip and imputed all personal sins to Christ and judged every one of them. Since both sins of cognizance and sins of ignorance are the function of human volition, every sin in human history was imputed to Christ and judged by God the Father on the Cross.

- (b) The sovereignty of God and free will of man coexist by divine decree in human history. Even though God gives a perfect volition, He imputes Adam's original sin to the genetically formed old sin nature for condemnation at the point of physical birth, so that we are qualified for salvation automatically.
 - e. Therefore, omniscience perceives the free as free (God will never tamper with your volition), the necessary as necessary (divine justice as our point of reference), together with all their causes, conditions, and relations, as one indivisible system of things (every cause and effect is related to another cause and effect, and so on, so that the course of human history is just as man thinks it, wills it, and does it), every link of which is essential to the integrity of the whole.
2. The Decree Itself.
- a. The omniscience of God fed only facts into the computer decrees.
 - b. This was accomplished simultaneously in eternity past.
 - c. The decrees have become the complete and consummated right of the sovereignty of God determining the certain futurity of all things in human history.
 - d. No event is directly effected or caused by the decrees.
 - e. But the decree itself provides in every case that the events shall be effected by causes acting in a manner consistent with the nature of the event in question. (You are never deprived of your free will.) God never changes the decree of what will happen and never tampers with your actions.
 - f. Therefore, in the case of every free will act of a moral agent, the decree itself provides at the same time the following.
 - (1) That the agent shall be a free agent (self-determination). When you were given life, you were given self-determination. Therefore, you are accountable for your own bad decisions.
 - (2) That the antecedents and all antecedents of every act in question shall be what they shall be. Whenever you make a decision it shall be the result of decisions before that. The circumstances will be what they are, the facts will be what they are, and God knows what you're thinking and will decide. Man's acts are a result of man's free will, not because the sovereignty of God causes man to perform the act.
 - (3) That all present conditions of the act shall be what they are. The action takes place in a moment of time and is your very own act.
 - (4) That the act shall be perfectly spontaneous and free on the part of the agent. There is no coercion.

(5) That it shall be certainly future.

- g. Hence, the decree from God's will settled only what His creation would be.
 - h. Because God cannot contradict His own nature or His being, the essence and attributes of God necessitated His willing the highest and best for mankind.
 - i. The decrees of God are His eternal and immutable will regarding the future existence of events which will happen in time and the precise manner and order of their occurrence. The decisions are made, the circumstances are all there on tape; we just see things as they unfold in history. We know how it's going to turn out, but it's still fun watching things unroll. Your life is on tape, and the tape is running. God wouldn't be God if He didn't know it all beforehand. Yet God never violates your volition.
 - j. The decrees express the eternal plan and will of God by which God has rendered certain all events of history, past, present and future.
 - k. Therefore, the decrees are eternal and simultaneous knowledge of omniscience expressing the will of God by which all things are brought into being and controlled, made subject to His divine pleasure, and result in His eternal glory.
3. The Printout Applying to Believers.
- a. The printout applying to believers includes election, foreknowledge, predestination or foreordination.
 - b. Foreordination is also known as predetermination. Predetermination is an act of the infinite and eternal omniscience of God determining the certain futurity of all events related to the believer.
 - c. Foreknowledge is not the same as omniscience. It is more limited because it deals with only the actual, and only with believers.
 - d. Being omniscient, God knows all that would have been involved had He adopted any one of an infinite number of plans of action as well as the consequences had man chosen alternatives.
 - e. Foreknowledge refers only to those things which are within the plan of God, adopted for the believers only.
 - f. The decree alone establishes certainty. Nothing could be foreknown until it was first decreed.
 - g. Therefore, God's decrees never originate with His foreknowledge. The logical order is: omniscience, foreordination (the decree), then foreknowledge. The decrees make all things certain, not foreknowledge.
 - h. Election is the plan of God for believers only.
 - (1) Election is the key to the Jewish problem related to the four unconditional covenants.
 - (2) These promises can only be fulfilled to the elect, to those who believe in Christ. There lies the great problem in every generation of Israel: to possess the genes of Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, but not to follow them in regeneration.

(a) Romans 9:11-12, "For though his twins had not yet been born, and had not accomplished anything good or evil, in order that the predetermined plan of God might stand on the basis of election, not because of works, but because of Him who calls, it was said to her, 'The older will serve the younger.'" God knew in eternity past that Jacob would believe in Christ for salvation and Esau, his twin brother, would not believe.

(b) Hebrews 12:17, "For you know that even afterwards, when he [Esau] desired to inherit the blessings, he was rejected, for he found no place for a change of mind, though he sought for it with tears." Esau's scar tissue of the soul completely clogged up his stream of consciousness and garbage in subconscious finished the job of blocking gospel information from circulating in his soul. All he had left was emotion, and emotion will not save anyone. In eternity past, God the Father entered this information into the computer of the divine decrees. Crying for salvation is an insult to the work of Jesus Christ on the Cross.

(c) Regeneration sets aside the order and precedence of physical or natural birth. There is no equality in biological life, but in the soul life created by God at birth, there is equal privilege and equal opportunity for every member of the human race to believe in Christ and have spiritual life. No one is handicapped by biological life because God provides equality of opportunity to believe in Christ.

(d) Heb 4:13, "And there is no creature hidden from His sight, but all things are open and laid bare to the eyes of Him with whom we have to do."

(3) The gracious unconditional promises can only be fulfilled to the elect, to those who at the moment of faith in Christ receive the imputations of perfect righteousness and eternal life.

C. The Will of God and the Divine Decrees.

1. There is one all-inclusive will and purpose of God concerning all there ever was or will be from the beginning of history until its termination.
2. This will and purpose of God originated within Himself long before any creature ever existed.
3. This means the will and purpose of God related to the decrees is designed for the glory, pleasure, and satisfaction of God.

4. All creatures have been placed into space and time. Furthermore, all events related to space and time were simultaneously decreed. They result in divine action.
 - a. Related to the Godhead, these actions are immanent, intrinsic, and subjective.
 - b. Related to creation, these actions of God are extrinsic (cognizant of angelic and human volition), transient (chronological in their function), and objective (the function of divine justice as the point of reference for the human race).
 - c. If God played favorites, then we could never enjoy any fairness in life.
5. God did not decree Himself to be. God eternally existed before and outside of the decrees. Therefore, the decrees do not act upon God, but God acts upon the decrees.
6. God's decrees are efficacious, determining all that ever was, is or will be, including the directive, permissive, and overruling will of God. This is the directive will as opposed to God's permissive will. God's will is accomplished through our free will.
7. All things depend on God's will and nothing is certain apart from God's will. There comes a point in theology where God's will and the decrees must be understood as synonymous.
8. God's decrees originate from His own omniscience in eternity past separating fact from fiction.
9. Therefore, distinction must be made between the omniscience of God and the foreknowledge of God.
 - a. God's decrees do not originate from His foreknowledge.
 - b. The foreknowledge of God makes nothing certain; it merely perceives what is certain, what is decreed. Only the decrees or foreordination makes anything certain.
 - c. Therefore, nothing can be foreknown until it is first decreed. This means you never have to run to God and say, "Oh God! Help!"
 - d. Foreknowledge is cognizance of what is decreed.
10. Distinction has to be made between the decrees of God and the desires of God. The decrees include a lot of things which are not God's desires, because the decrees include all things you think, say or do. Many things in the decrees are not the desires of God.
 - a. Sin, human good, and evil are not the desires of God but are in the decrees because they are performed by our free will.
 - b. God desires His perfect will and sovereignty, but both angelic and human creatures use their God-given free will and self-determination to violate the desires of God. So the decrees contain both the will of God and desires of God. The decrees are the all-inclusive will of God.
 - c. God does not desire to cast His creatures into the lake of fire forever, but it is so decreed under the printout of retribution for all who express negative volition at God-consciousness and at Gospel hearing.

- d. God does not desire the discipline of believers, but it is decreed for all carnality and reversionism.

D. The Decrees and the Blessing of Man.

1. All imputations are the organization for the plan of God. There are seven imputations in the plan of God.
 - a. Human life is imputed to the soul. It remains in the soul forever. This means children and morons who do not reach or cannot reach the age of accountability receive automatic salvation. Since condemnation precedes salvation, they must be condemned before they can be saved.
 - b. Adam's original sin is imputed to the old sin nature, automatically condemning each member of the human race at birth.
 - c. At the point of faith in Christ, eternal life is imputed to the human spirit, created by God the Holy Spirit (called regeneration). This provides eternal security, since once given, God can never take away eternal life.
 - d. Perfect righteousness is imputed as a judicial imputation to the believer at salvation. This creates a grace pipeline for the imputation of all blessing to the believer.
 - e. On the cross the sins of the world were imputed to Jesus Christ in His spiritual death.
 - f. Blessing in time is imputed to perfect righteousness previously imputed to the believer when the believer cracks the maturity barrier.
 - g. Blessing for eternity is imputed to the believer's perfect righteousness at the Judgment Seat of Christ.
2. Equation of imputation plan of God. $X [I/HL + I/AOS = P1 \text{ (salvation) } + \text{ doctrine (gospel) } = H1 \text{ (confidence of imputation of eternal life at salvation) }] + \text{ (salvation) } Y [JI/Sin + JI/+R = P2 \text{ (potential of blessing in time) } + \text{ doctrine } = \text{ Hope 2 (confidence in escrow bless when we reach maturity) }] + \text{ (maturity) } Z [I/EL \text{ (+ in X radical) } + I/\text{Blessing in time (+ in Y radical) } = P3 \text{ (the potential of blessing at the Judgment Seat of Christ) } + \text{ doctrine } = H3] = \text{ the protocol plan or imputation plan of God.}$
3. Principle of this Formula.
 - a. The omniscience of God in taking cognizance of the fall of man graciously provided a plan based on imputations from divine justice.
 - b. This plan involves the omniscience of God feeding into the computer of divine decrees seven imputations which provide maximum blessing for mankind in time and eternity.
 - c. The decrees contain the historical reality of every member of the human race in degree of attainment.
 - d. Non-meritorious human volition can fall short of any potential of God's plan.
 - e. To what extent every individual advances in this plan was known to the omniscience of God in eternity past and fed into the computer.

- f. In too many cases the potential exceeds the reality. Only the reality was decreed.
- g. From this fact emerges the principle that the attainment of divine blessing through imputation is the means God has chosen to glorify Himself and to give Himself pleasure.
- h. Therefore, the glory of God is related to the believer's advance to maturity and resultant imputation of divine blessing.

E. The Decrees and the Glory of God.

1. The decrees of God are accomplished by the 7 imputations. In later doctrines, these imputations and X+Y+Z are left out.
2. The decrees unite in one final and all-inclusive objective the glory of God, Proverbs 16:4; Romans 11:36; Hebrews 2:10; Revelation 4:11.
3. Being alone before all creation, the decrees of God concern no one but the members of the Trinity and their eternal glory. There is nothing you can do to promote God's glory. You can glorify God, but you cannot promote His glory. Your failure doesn't stop His glory. Nothing depends on you; everything depends on God.
4. Being eternal and infinite, God the Father, Son, and Spirit are worthy of all glory.
5. God's glory is what He is and always has been in eternity past, and always will be.
6. As the origin and subject of the divine decrees, it is inevitable that every thought, decision, and action in history will glorify God. That means the plan moves on with or without you. The plan of God never stops moving. If you are to advance along with the glory of God, you must develop thought, i.e., learn doctrine.
7. God is glorified in what He is and in what He has decreed.
8. Since manifestation of His declarative glory also secures the highest glory for His creatures and their greatest good (Romans 8:28), it is inevitable that imputing blessing to the mature believer will glorify God. It will emphasize His grace and exclude human talent and human good.
9. To the finite mind the decrees are many, but to God they are all one plan, embracing both cause and effect, both means and end.
10. The decrees include every detail in the experience of every creature, including such minute aspects as the very hairs of your head being numbered.
11. The decrees of God related to His plan are those sovereign purposes of God which are efficacious, accomplished by God alone apart from creature ability, mentality, talent, function, counsel, preparation and sacrifice.
12. Therefore, God is glorified and pleased in the momentum and advance of believers within His plan.
13. The omniscience of God knew in eternity past what thoughts, decisions, and actions would carry one believer to maturity and another to reversionism. God has prepared the most magnificent things for both categories by way of escrow blessing, but He has also prepared the most horrible discipline for the reversionistic believer.

14. While omniscience knew the factual and potential, only the factual was fed into the decrees. Foreknowledge only knows what omniscience feeds into the decrees. Anything decreed by God will inevitably glorify God; it could not work out any other way.

F. The Decrees and Human Freedom.

1. God does not decree mankind to sin, but He decrees that human beings have free will function of their volition with the option to sin or not to sin.
2. God does not decree anyone to believe in Jesus Christ for eternal life, but He does decree that all human beings have free will-the function of human volition with the option of believing in Christ or rejecting Christ.
3. While God permits sin, He does not sponsor sin. God was cognizant of all human sins in eternity past and the omniscience of God fed that knowledge of sin into the computer of divine decrees without being the cause of any sin in human history.
4. While God permits the rejection of Christ as savior, He does not sponsor it or encourage that rejection. In human history, the sovereignty of God and free will of man coexist as an extension of and resolving of the prehistoric angelic conflict.
5. At the termination of human history, the justice of God will judge all those who reject Christ as savior.
6. The justice of God imputed all personal sins of human history to Christ on the Cross and judged each one of them. This is the basis for the divine invitation to every member of the human race to believe in Christ.
 - a. Repeated rejection of Christ, when exposed to the gospel, produces scar tissue in the stream of consciousness of the soul's right lobe.
 - b. Esau rejected the gospel so many times that when he wanted to be saved, there was nothing left in his stream of consciousness except emotion.
 - c. No one can be saved by emotion. Salvation is a matter of faith in Christ and how you feel is inconsequential.
 - d. The decree of God removes no person from what-within the sphere of his own experience-is the outworking of his own choice based on the function of his own volition.
7. Under the law of volitional responsibility, sin is a matter of personal decision and such decision carries a liability in time.
 - a. Under the law of volitional responsibility, every human being must take the responsibility for his own thoughts, his own decisions, and his own actions.
 - b. Human volition is the source of good decisions from a position of wisdom and strength, as well as bad decisions from a position of lust and weakness.

c. While all personal sins were judged on the Cross, all sins and evil decisions have natural consequences of suffering in life, therefore, liability.

d. While all sins were judged on the Cross, personal sins carry liability in time (not in eternity, since personal sins are not an issue in eternity at the Last Judgment) and are subject to the law of volitional responsibility.

e. The function of human volition in making decisions is the source of the sins of ignorance as well as the sins of cognizance. Therefore, each of us is held responsible by God for his or her own decisions.

f. Scripture.

(1) Galatians 6:7, "Be not deceived, God is not mocked; for whatever a person sows, this he will also reap."

(2) Hosea 8:7, "For they sow to the wind, and they reap the whirlwind. The standing grain has no heads; it yields no grain. Should it yield, strangers would swallow it up."

(3) Colossians 3:25, "For he who does wrong will receive the consequences of that wrong which he has done, and there is no partiality."

(4) Proverbs 12:13, "An evil snare is the transgression of the lips, but the person with integrity will escape from trouble."

(5) Proverbs 19:3, "A person's own folly ruins his life, yet his heart rages against the Lord." A fool blames God for his own bad decisions and consequent discipline from the Lord.

g. Conclusion.

(1) Sin's liability creates punitive action from God.

(2) Therefore, while all sins are judged at the Cross, personal sins carry liability from God under the law of volitional responsibility.

(3) However, at the Great White Throne judgment, the unbeliever is never indicted on the basis of his sins because his sins were judged at the Cross, but on the basis of his good deeds. You cannot commit a sin without it effecting someone else, without it hurting someone else. The liability for personal sins does not extend outside of time. Sin is not a liability outside of time, i.e., in eternity. Therefore, there is no contradiction between your liability for personal sins in time and the judgment of all personal sins on the Cross.

(4) Romans 9:10-13 is a printout of the divine decrees, where the omniscience of God knew simultaneously in eternity past that Jacob would believe in Christ and Esau would reject Christ to the point of developing maximum scar tissue.

8. In the function of the rebound technique of 1 Jn 1:9, the purpose is to recover fellowship with God and to recover the filling of the Holy Spirit through citing personal sins to God the Father. As a result, two things can happen to the believer with regard to the liability of sin: the believer is forgiven and the sin liability is completely removed, or the believer is forgiven and the sin liability continues and punitive suffering is replaced by suffering for blessing.

9. The decree of God removes no person from what-within the sphere of his own experience-is the outworking of his own choice based on the function of his own volition.
10. The plan of God and the decrees of God are totally consistent with human freedom and volition. God does not limit and coerce human freedom or violate self-determination. Free will isn't free unless man can decide against God and His plan.
11. However, distinction must be made between what God causes directly (such as the Cross), and what God permits indirectly (such as sin and evil).
12. God created man with a free will. Therefore, He permits human volition to function in self-determination; otherwise, there would not have been the fall of man. It is His permissive will. The permissive will is just as much a part of the decrees which glorify God as the directive will. Remember the decrees are simply human history in the mind of God in eternity past before any creature existed.
13. God is not the author of sin or evil. Free will and self- determination is the origin and source of sin, good, and evil.
14. Both sin and the cross are fed into the computer by omniscience. One is the direct will of God. The other is the permissive will of God. But the permissive, directive, and overruling will of God are all a part of the decrees.
15. The sovereignty of God and the free will of man coexist by divine decree. Every decision and desire of God and man were recorded on ROM and PROM chips respectively. Omniscience programs this data into the decrees.

G. Practical Application of the Divine Decrees.

1. Since the decrees of God are the sum total of God's plan and indicate His purpose designed in eternity past, they must inevitably center around Jesus Christ as the God-man.
2. Therefore, the free will of man must face the issue of Christ, the issue of His work on the cross; for it is at the cross that the sovereignty of God met the free will of man for the glory of God and the momentum of the plan of God.
3. Under the divine policy of grace, the work of salvation is accomplished by God while man benefits apart from his own human merit.
4. God's plan in eternity past was so designed so as to include all events, all actions related to their causes and conditions as a part of one indivisible system, every link being a part of the integrity of the whole.
5. Without violating human volition, God has provided and designed a plan so perfect that it includes direction, provision, preservation, function, plus cause and effect for all believers.

6. Under this plan God has decreed to do some things directly, some things through secondary agencies (Israel and the Church), and some things through individuals (e.g., Paul).

7. This means there are primary, secondary and tertiary functions within the plan of God. But all of these functions constitute one all-comprehensive plan which is perfect, eternal, and unchangeable without any loss of integrity ever. This is why the plan of God is so consistent with human freedom and does not unfairly coerce human freedom. The revelation of the decrees is found only in the Bible. Therefore, the most important priority of the Christian life is perception of doctrine.

304 01/05/1978 Romans 8:14b Doctrine of divine guidance (cont.); will of God (+ mechanics) for the human race and believers

Apparently there is no water in that general area, including the Galaria and the hotel. Both of them closed down.

Going back to the Doctrine of Divine Guidance \(Lesson #17\).

Romans 8:14 For as many as are led by the Spirit of God, these are sons of God. (BLB)

“they are the sons of God” – “these are,” referring to mature believers. The active voice: mature believers produce the action of the verb, though all believers are the sons of God and royal family. The indicative mood is declarative for a dogmatic statement of fact. Plus the predicate nominative plural of huios (υἱός, οὐ, ό) [pronounced hwee-OSS], used here in its correct Greek sense of “mature son.” The absence of the definite article with huios (υἱός, οὐ, ό) [pronounced hwee-OSS] helps us to understand that this is used here for mature sons. Huios (υἱός, οὐ, ό) [pronounced hwee-OSS] is an anarthrous construction. The absence of the definite article in the Greek means the high quality of the noun involved. Therefore it emphasizes the mature believer here.

Not every believer is guided by the Spirit of God.

Romans 8:14 For as many as are being led by the Spirit of God, these are mature sons of God.

All things do not work together for good unless you are a mature believer. From vv. 18–30, we are looking mostly at mature believers.

Principle #1

1. God only guides His children, the royal family of God in this dispensation. Maximum guidance, however, is the prerogative and the blessing of the mature believer.
2. Guidance through maximum doctrine in the soul and the filling of the Spirit begins when you are positive but it is actually for mature believers.
3. For the immature believer guidance comes through divine discipline as a warning to get back to Bible doctrine. The carnal believer is guided through discipline.

The absence of the definite article emphasizes the high quality of the noun.

The Mature Believer and Guidance

1. One of the results of maturity adjustment to the justice of God, then, is divine guidance through the filling of the Spirit making application of resident doctrine in the soul.
2. This results in the believer becoming spiritually self-sustaining, i.e. not depending on anyone by being counselled, not consulting with other believers and getting misinformation about any given course of action or what decision should be made. The worst thing that can happen to any believer is to start depending on other believers for their guidance or counsel. It is a terrible thing if the people in a church have to depend upon the guidance of the pastor-teacher in counseling.
3. Only the mature believer is completely spiritually self-sustaining, making his own correct decisions and possessing total confidence about the will of God in any situation or circumstance of life.
4. When it comes to knowing and doing the will of God there is no substitute for being a mature believer.
5. The mature believer does not use others as a crutch, i.e. he does not depend upon the advice of others.
6. Seeking guidance from others is a sign of weakness and a lack of spiritual growth.

The mature believer does not seek guidance or counsel, however he often provides it for others.

1977 Romans

305 01/06/1978 Romans 8:15a Doctrine of fear (review); biblical doctrine of adoption: definition and Roman custom

Romans 8:15 For you have not received a spirit of bondage again to fear, but you have received the Spirit of divine adoption as sons, by whom we cry, "Abba! Father!" (BLB)

Verse 15 – "For ye have not received the spirit of bondage again to fear." This begins with the explanatory use of the conjunctive particle gar. Paul's greatness was tying many different thoughts together. This connective particle is pulling together a variety of thoughts.

Then the aorist active indicative of the verb lambánō (λαμβάνω) [pronounced lahm-BAHN-oh] which means to receive, plus the negative ou (οὐ) [pronounced oo]. The constative aorist tense gathers into one entirety all of the negative action here. The active voice: the believer produces the action of the verb. The indicative mood is declarative representing the verbal action from the viewpoint of reality. Then the accusative singular direct object from pneuma (πνεῦμα) [pronounced PNYOO-mah]. Pneuma (πνεῦμα) [pronounced PNYOO-mah] can refer to the Holy Spirit, the human spirit, breath, and is also used for a state of mind or disposition of life and that is the meaning here: "you have not received a life."

Plus the descriptive genitive singular from douleía (δουλεία) [pronounced doo-LIE-ah] which refers to slavery. This is slavery to the old sin nature. The adverb palin (πάλιν) [pronounced PAL-in] is used here for falling back into a previous state or returning to a former manner of life. It is translated "back" or "again." The previous activity is a slavery to a mental attitude. Then the prepositional phrase eis (εἰς) [pronounced ICE] plus the accusative of phobos (φόβος) [pronounced FOHB-oss]—"for the purpose of fear." "For you have not received again a life of slavery for the purpose of fear."

This is slavery to a former mental attitude. Slavery to fear.

Fear and the Believer

1. The new life in Christ Jesus is not designed by God to be a life of slavery to fear. God has not provided all of these things to frighten us, nor does He ever intend to frighten by anything in the world.
2. We were not born again to become worry worts and little frightened people.
3. Assurance and confidence are characteristics of the normal Christian way of life. However, it isn't self-confidence so much as confidence in the integrity of God and assurance based on doctrine resident in the soul.

4. The life of the unbeliever is obviously going to be unstable. The more unstable the historical situation the more unstable the unbeliever will be.
5. The life of slavery here is marriage to the old sin nature, but we are divorced from the old sin nature through retroactive positional truth and this has freed us from the life of slavery.
6. Furthermore, the purpose of our life has changed. The purpose of our life is the glorification of the Lord Jesus Christ as members of the royal family of God. This can only be accomplished by receiving the real imputation of maximum blessing from the justice of God imputed to the righteousness of God.
7. Therefore fear is incompatible with this purpose and not required for the royal family of God.
8. Fear^[10] and instability in the believer indicate lack of the filling of the Spirit and failure to assimilate Bible doctrine on a consistent basis.

Not sure about how much the doctrine of Fear was covered; it had to be a small subset of the entire doctrine of fear.

Doctrine of Fear

Spiritual Dynamics 1048f, 420f, 241, 4/13/97; Ephesians 633, 857, 908

A. Definition.

1. Fear is used two ways in the Bible.
 - a. Fear is used for a mental attitude sin, characterized by panic when in a dangerous situation. It is a painful emotional distress aroused by impending pain, danger, disaster, evil or by illusions regarding the same. It is worry, apprehension, consternation, or horror. Fear is also an active feeling of dread, of which fright and terror are the more intense degrees.
 - b. Fear is used for reverence, respect, or awe. It is a reverence manifesting itself in obedience. In this respect, fear is a Christian virtue, 1Peter 2:17.
 - (1) The concept of fear in Exodus 20:20, "Moses said to them, `Do not be afraid; for God has come in order to test you and in order that the fear of Him may remain with you so that you will not sin.'" One of the greatest restraints on sin is fear of the righteousness and justice of God. The greatest believer of the Old Testament, Moses, was no exception to this and lost out on one of the greatest blessings of his life-entering the Land-by not respecting the righteousness of God.
 - (2) In Deuteronomy 17:19 fear denotes respect for God, "It [a copy of the Mosaic Law] shall be with him and he shall read it all the days of his life, that he may learn to fear [respect] the Lord his God, by carefully observing all the words of the law and its statutes." Respect for doctrine results in respect for the Lord.
 - (3) In Leviticus 25:17 fear prevents wrongdoing toward other persons, "So you shall not wrong one another, but you shall fear your God; for I am the Lord your God." Instead of reacting to the wrongdoing of others, you shall put the entire matter in the hands of God.

(4) Psalm 111:10, "The fear of the Lord is the beginning of wisdom; A good understanding all those who do it [application of doctrine]; His praise endures forever." Respect for the Lord is the beginning of a lifetime of learning Bible doctrine and having that Bible doctrine circulating in the stream of consciousness.

2. The meaning of the word "fear" in the Bible is determined by the context in which it is used.
3. Neglect or rejection of the mystery doctrine of the Church Age and failure to utilize its fantastic problem-solving devices result in many problems, including fear.
4. Fear is lack of thinking under pressure. It is a general problem in life. We are designed by God to be rational creatures; fear makes us irrational. Fear is an irrational and emotional sin.
5. For the believer, fear is failure to learn and apply Bible doctrine to the problems of life, and failure to learn and utilize the problem-solving devices.
6. Fear is a part of the emotional complex of sins. Fear is a whole system of sins which include worry, anxiety, insecurity, incapability of doctrinal application, and therefore inability to use the problem-solving devices.
7. Fear also includes all the problems of emotionalism, for fear is an emotional sin. Many sins involve only thinking (e.g. lust), but fear involves emotion and no thinking.
8. The Christian loser is bogged down and hindered from his advance by various categories of sins and arrogance related to fear.

B. The Snowballing Principle of Fear.

1. The more things you surrender to fear, the more things you fear. Today you may be worried about only one thing; tomorrow about two things, etc. Soon you become so emotionally involved in fear that you have no identity. Irrationality means loss of identity, which means the accumulation of fear until you are afraid of life. Fear is something that, if not controlled, continues to develop in your life until you have no capacity, and as a believer you become a loser. (One of the motivations for becoming addicted to drugs is fear of life, anxiety, worry, and tension.)
2. The extent to which you surrender to fear, the greater is your capacity for fear. To the extent to which you surrender to fear, to that extent fear controls more and more of your life. Increasing fear means increasing insecurity, which destroys your capacity for love, life, happiness, and blessing. No set of circumstances in life will ever make you happy. There is no way you can have true love or true happiness apart from a healthy mental attitude.
3. The greater your capacity for fear, the more you increase the power of fear in your life.

4. The more you increase the power of fear in your life, the greater your mind set as a loser believer and the greater your chances of failure to execute the protocol plan of God through the mechanics of the spiritual life under equal opportunity. The greater your chances of failure to execute the protocol plan of God, the sooner you cancel your equal opportunity to glorify God. The sooner you cancel your equal opportunity to glorify God, the sooner you live a life of total misery through the law of volitional responsibility.
 - a. The more things that acquire the power of fear in your life, the greater your capacity for fear. The greater your capacity for fear, the greater your capacity for arrogance and becoming a loser. For fear causes you to become totally preoccupied with yourself. Once in the arrogance complex, all the rest of the mental attitude sins come quickly. The combination of fear and arrogance causes many people to become mentally ill.
 - b. The more things that acquire the power to promote fear in your life, the more punitive suffering and self-induced misery you bring on yourself.
 - c. The more things that acquire the power of fear in your life, the greater your capacity for fragmentation and becoming a loser in the Christian life. As a loser, your capacity for life, love, and happiness is completely destroyed.
 - d. The greater your mindset as a loser-believer while living, the greater the intensification of your fear when dying.
5. Fear is an emotional sin. Emotion has no true courage. It has a pseudo courage. Arrogance and emotional domination of the soul produce cowardice. Fear is irrational and irresponsible. It creates three things: the arrogance skills, the arrogance complex of sins, and the emotional complex of sins. Fear not only removes Bible doctrine from number one priority in the life, but fear fragments and destroys the function of your spiritual life and moves you into the eight stages of reversionism. The last three stages of reversionism destroy all previously learned Bible doctrine and hinder any use of problem solving devices. Fear is a function of self-absorption. To make emotion the criterion for the spiritual life is a wedding between the arrogance skills and the emotional revolt of the soul. Normal emotional activity in the soul functions in subordination to the absolutes of Bible doctrine circulating in the stream of consciousness. Emotional response to doctrine and the thinking of the spiritual life becomes a true variable, while emotional activity that dominates and subordinates Bible doctrine to it is rejected by the absolute.
 - a. Emotion can be normal or evil, good or bad. Regardless of what it is, emotion is never a tool of cognition. You do not learn by emotion. God gave us emotion as a enjoyer of what is truth.
 - b. Emotion is not a criterion for the spiritual life. Emotions were never designed to be problem solving devices.

- c. Sinful emotional activity such as fear, worry, anxiety, hatred, anger, revenge, guilt are reactions without divine approval and totally rejected by the absolutes of Bible doctrine.
 - d. Emotional reactions, such as emotional revolt of the soul or false spirituality by ecstasies, are a distraction to the execution of the protocol plan of God. Given some testing, the loser believer under emotional revolt of the soul will scream loud and clear, find someone to blame, and fall apart.
 - e. Emotion as the criterion of the spiritual life converts reality into unrealistic expectation, illusion, denial, projection, hallucination.
 - f. The believer must distinguish between normal emotional response (like watching a good movie) or abnormal emotional reaction to life in the form of the emotional revolt of the soul (using drugs).
 - g. Fear as an emotional sin is zero. Zero application to life results in stress, intensity of suffering through additional stress, but fear does not exist in virtue-love, 1 Jn 4:18.
6. The fear principle explains the sin unto death, 1 Jn 5:16b, "There is a sin face-to-face with death." The function of worry and anxiety in living results in the function of fear in dying. There is a sin believers commit while taking the journey through their very own death-shadowed valley: fear, reaction to the fact you are dying, bitterness.
7. Destruction of capacity for life, love, and happiness increases your capacity for arrogance and emotionalism, and therefore, your capacity for fragmentation.
8. So fear is a key that unlocks many doors, starting with the door of arrogance. You cannot be afraid without putting an abnormal emphasis on yourself. To the extent that you become frightened by anything, to that extent you set up a new circuit in your life which is arrogance. From that fear comes many manifestations of arrogance.
- a. Jealousy. If you're afraid of losing someone, you become jealous when they show any favoritism toward anyone else.
 - b. Bitterness. You become bitter toward that person because they don't give you the affection and attention you think you deserve.
 - c. Vindictiveness.
 - d. Implacability.
 - e. Revenge motivation. From all this comes a series of functions in your life that absolutely destroy any capacity. Therefore, you cannot be distinguished from the unbeliever, except that you are far worse than many unbelievers. They have handled fear through establishment principles. But you have something so much greater and so much easier compared to how they must handle fear. Yet it's amazing how many unbelievers are superior to Christians in their modus operandi, conquering such things as fear the hard way through establishment principles.

9. Arrogance, fear, worry, anxiety, anger, and emotionalism are all irrational. Irrationality is a total contradiction to the protocol plan of God which manufactures invisible heroes. Fear manufactures losers.
10. Fear is lack of thinking under pressure. Of course, if you don't think under normal circumstances and in prosperity, you will be filled with fear during abnormal circumstances.
11. Fear is the mental attitude of worry, anxiety, apprehension, trepidation, and despondency. Inevitably, fear leads to arrogance, the narcissus syndrome, and even to psychosis.
12. Fear cannot coexist with the function of the protocol plan of God in your life. The function of the protocol plan of God means first the function of Bible doctrine. When you have a point of doctrine, you can say as David did when facing Goliath, "The battle is the Lord's." That overcomes the problem of fear and so releases your ability to go into action, which is exactly what David did.
 - a. Fear and the function of your spiritual life are mutually exclusive.
 - b. People who live by fear are intimidated by life. For the believer who lives in a state of fear, the fear increases like a disease. As the cancer of fear increases, that individual becomes intimidated by life.
 - c. Fear eliminates a personal sense of destiny, so that the loser believer cannot overcome emotional sins like fear, worry, anxiety, guilt, denial, projection.
 - d. Fear of death will never prevent your dying, but it will prevent your living.
 - e. Fear is being overcome by the problem, becoming enmeshed in the disaster. The disaster destroys the spiritual life rather than the advancing the spiritual life as designed by God.
 - f. A personal sense of destiny is inculcated with the solution, therefore involved in the function of the problem solving devices for the application of doctrine to experience.
 - g. Scripture.
 - (1) Psalm 56:3-4, "What time I am afraid, I will put my trust in You. In God, whose word I praise, In God I have put my trust; I shall not be afraid of what can man do to me?"
 - (2) 2 Tim 1:7, "For God has not given us a spirit of fear, but of power and of love and sound judgment."
13. Arrogance produces irrational self-deception, which in turn spawns fear, worry, anxiety, and the unhappiness of self-induced misery.
 - a. Arrogance causes loss of personality identity. Many women have lost their personality identity because they wanted to feel wanted and loved, but ended up merely being used. This is abnormal self-deception.
 - b. Some people have great capacity for unhappiness, for they can only complain and grumble about life. The more you develop your capacity for unhappiness, the farther away goes your chance of having any happiness in this life.

- c. Because of arrogance, you do not know who you are or what you are, for you cannot see your soul in the mirror.
- d. With loss of personality identity, you fall into a total state of fear so that you begin to retreat from any form of reality, becoming psychopathic or neurotic.
- e. The only hope is that, while you're still partially normal, to function under post-salvation epistemological rehabilitation. For cognition of Bible doctrine inside the divine dynasphere can remove the fear, arrogance, self-deception, and the retreat from reality which makes it impossible for God's grace to break through and be utilized in your life.
- f. But when you become a total loser, having no understanding of God's grace, you are totally miserable. So fear is the beginning of the end for you, which you do to yourself.

C. The Solution to Fear.

- 1. The protocol plan of God is designed to remove all the cobwebs of fear in your soul and replace them with confidence in doctrine, which leads to confidence in the Lord. That is the only true basis for spiritual self-esteem, which is confidence in yourself through Bible doctrine. This inevitably results in the greatest courage in life. It's more than moral courage; it is a mental attitude courage in all relationships and in all circumstances of life.
- 2. Paul stated this to Timothy who was intimidated by his congregation. 2 Tim 1:7 is a mandate which belongs to the protocol plan of God. "For God has not given to us a lifestyle of fear, but of power, and of virtue-love, and of sound judgment."
 - a. Every time fear comes into your life, you know you are not living the Christian way of life. You know immediately that you are not executing the protocol plan of God.
 - b. Power refers to the 100% available omnipotence of God. The omnipotence of God the Father is related to our portfolio of invisible assets. The omnipotence of God the Son is related to the perpetuation of human history so that we can execute the protocol plan of God. The omnipotence of God the Holy Spirit is related to our very own palace, the operational-type divine dynasphere. Relying on God's power is true courage.
 - c. True courage is virtue-love, i.e., personal love for God the Father, impersonal love for all mankind, and occupation with Christ.
 - d. True courage means sound judgment, thinking under pressure, and good judgment at all times. Sound judgment comes from Bible doctrine, not from emotion. The person with real courage is the person with doctrine in their soul. For example, when David faced Goliath, he had doctrinal courage which was far superior to Goliath's loud-mouthed macho courage.

- e. The protocol plan of God is a life of courage. The execution of the protocol plan of God is learning courage.
 - f. What passes for courage is often not courage at all, but macho arrogance and stupidity.
 - g. Virtue-love represents the problem-solving devices. Sound judgment is the result of utilizing the problem-solving devices.
3. 1 Jn 4:18, "Fear does not exist in virtue-love, but virtue-love drives out fear; for fear causes punishment. In fact, the person who is afraid has not been matured by virtue-love."
- a. If you have personal love for God the Father and you understand His integrity, you don't need to claim specific promises for every situation. You rest on the entire essence and integrity and person of God. If you love God, you therefore know God.
 - b. Therefore, once you have virtue-love, you're not afraid of anything whereby you need promises, for now you know the One who makes the promises. You understand God's integrity, and therefore, you are dependent on Him. If you are dependent upon God and His integrity, then having fear is not only an insult to God, but it is blasphemous and sinful.
 - c. Fear actually causes two categories of punishment. First, you punish yourself through self-induced misery. Then when fear gets into arrogance, divine punishment follows. So you can be punished three ways by fear: by yourself, by your peers, and by God.
 - d. Mature believers are not afraid.
 - e. Virtue-love, mentioned three times in this passage, represents all the problem-solving devices.
4. So the great problem-solving devices of spiritual adulthood eliminate fear by equating living with dying and adversity with prosperity.
- a. Fear of death destroys capacity for life; it is a sign that you are still in spiritual childhood. Death is the last thing in the world that should concern you, for you have no control over the manner of your death or time of your death. When you realize your death is strictly in the Lord's hands, the one time when the Lord's wisdom will prevail over your volition, there is no excuse for having fear of death.
 - b. Then once you understand there is nothing to fear in death, then you begin to realize there is nothing to fear in life.
 - c. Fear is a great motivation in life for most people. Yet fear is totally destructive; it destroys love. Making wrong decisions out of fear destroys your capacity for life.
 - d. Many people spend so much time being afraid of death, or of dying, or of starving, or of being poor, etc., that they do not enjoy life. They have no zest for life and no capacity for life. The one person in this world who has zest and capacity for life is the spiritually mature believer.

- e. Fear of adversity destroys capacity for prosperity. When prosperity comes, you're so afraid that you will lose it that, in your fear, you have absolutely no capacity for that prosperity. You may stash it all away for "a rainy day." That's no capacity for life. Therefore, you do not enjoy prosperity when it comes.
 5. Fear is the enemy of the protocol plan of God. It destroys any possibility of suffering for blessing in its three stages.
 6. Fear makes you herd bound so that you come to depend on others.
 7. The Church Age believer cannot think, apply doctrine, or solve problems through the thinking or mind of another believer. You must have the doctrine in your own soul and solve your own problems. To the extent that you depend upon others for your spiritual application to life, to that extent you are a loser.
- D. Fear is a sin of emotion.
1. Fear, like anger, is a sin of emotion. Emotion cannot think, apply doctrine, or function in a crisis. Emotion has no doctrinal content, when the emotional complex of sins are involved. There is emotion which is not sinful. There is good and bad emotion. Fear is the application of nothing to adversity, resulting in less than nothing.
 2. When arrogance pulls the pin of the grenade, fear is a part of the fragmented life.
 3. There are two categories of emotion.
 - a. In normal emotion, the emotions respond to the authority and thinking of the prefrontal lobes of the soul.
 - b. In abnormal emotion, the emotion controls the frontal lobes of the soul and blanks out all thinking. Abnormal emotion produces fear, worry, anxiety, anger, and hatred, resulting in violence, which is anger and hatred blocking the normal restraints from the prefrontal lobes.
 4. Fear can never think under pressure. Believers in the emotion of fear cannot apply doctrine and handle the problem. When emotion takes over, doctrine is erased.
 5. Courage is thinking doctrine and functioning under pressure as if there were no abnormal circumstances, no crisis, or no pressure. Courage is claiming promises in adversity; using the ten problem-solving devices; and functioning under the privacy of your royal priesthood to think, to apply, and to metabolize doctrine with your own intellect. However, fear makes you a loser.
 6. The status of spiritual self-esteem begins the grace function of cognitive self-confidence, i.e., thinking in terms of metabolized doctrine in your own right lobe. This is the dynamics of divine viewpoint in the frontal lobes of the soul.
 7. The Church Age believer cannot think doctrine, apply doctrine, or solve problems through fear or through the mind of another believer.

8. Fear is emotional. The spiritually adult believer eliminates emotion as a criteria for Christianity, since emotion cannot think, cannot apply doctrine, cannot learn or use the problem-solving devices, and cannot rationalize or estimate the situation from the divine viewpoint.
9. Fear is the emotional means by which people fail under any kind of pressure or even normal circumstances. Courage is thinking doctrine under pressure, claiming promises of God under adversity, understanding the utilizing the ten problem-solving devices of the protocol plan for the Church Age.
10. Since fear is a sin of emotion, it is necessary to understand more about emotion. (See also the doctrine of Emotions.)
 - a. The emotional believer defines the status of the believer who does not have the ability to think doctrine or to use problem-solving devices.
 - b. The status of spiritual self-esteem in the Christian way of life begins the grace function of cognitive self-confidence, which is the antithesis of fear. Such a believer who thinks in terms of metabolized doctrine and the ten problem-solving devices can put fear in its proper place and also experience legitimate emotion.
 - c. The believer in spiritual adulthood eliminates emotion as the criterion for Christianity, since emotion cannot think, cannot apply doctrine, cannot rationalize, and cannot estimate a situation. When emotion is out of line in the soul, it results in irrationality and its accompanying sins of fear, worry, anxiety, and anger.
 - d. Emotion is not capable of using the problem-solving devices of the protocol plan of God.
 - e. Since emotion is a part of the soul, it can be normal as well as abnormal.
 - (1) Normal emotions respond to your frame of reference. Normal emotions are subordinate to your intellect. When doctrine is in your intellect, emotions can become legitimate if they are subordinate to that doctrine.
 - (2) Abnormal emotions tear you apart (like a nagging woman). There must be a balance between your emotions and the right lobe of your soul. What you really are is what you think on the inside. Good social protocol has normal emotion related to it. Emotion is often the animation of what we think.
 - f. The Bible has a great deal to say about the emotions of the soul, often using psychological nomenclature to express the concept of emotion.
 - (1) The Hebrew word KILJAH refers to the fat pads of the kidneys, but it is used figuratively for the emotions in Psalm 7:9, 62:12; Jer 11:20, 17:10.
 - (2) The Greek word NEPHROS is used in the New Testament for emotions, translated in the KJV "reins," in Rev 2:23.

- (3) Another Greek word, SPLAGCHNON, is literally translated "guts" or "entrails." It is used for emotions in 2 Cor 6:12.
 - (4) Another Greek word, koilia (κοιλία) [pronounced koy-LEE-ah], is used for emotions in Rom 8:16 and Phil 3:19. It also connotes body cavity, stomach, womb, uterus, and intestines. It actually refers to the solar plexus, the nerve center where you feel "butterflies" or activity when excited or nervous.
- g. These words for emotion are different from KARDIA, which refers to the intellect or the right lobe of the soul where there is no emotion. The emotions should be subject to the right lobe of the soul, where the doctrine that gives you momentum and wisdom is located.
- h. The Bible distinguishes between the right lobe and emotions.
- (1) Jeremiah describes our Lord Jesus Christ as "the Lord of the armies who judges righteously, who tests the emotions and the right lobes" in Jer 11:20.
 - (2) Jer 17:11, "I, the Lord, search the right lobe, and I test the emotions in order to give to every man according to his modus operandi."
 - (a) All spiritual momentum and growth and application comes from epignosis doctrine in the right lobe of the soul.
 - (b) How the Lord judges you depends on which dominates your soul: the heart or the emotions. In the heart, there must be EPIGNOSIS and SOPHIA doctrine.
 - (c) Note that the Lord searches the heart, but He tests the emotions. He searches the heart for doctrine, and He tests the emotions to see if they are subordinate to the heart or if they control the heart.
 - (d) If the emotions dominate the heart, then the modus operandi of the believer is heretical, as with pentecostals.
 - (3) Psalm 26:2, "Examine me, O Lord, and test me; test my emotions and test my heart." In other words, see that my emotions are subordinate to my intellect and to Bible doctrine. The heart must be tested for its content of doctrine and its control of emotions.
 - (4) Rev 2:23, "And all the churches will know that I am He who investigates the emotions and the right lobes [hearts]." God is constantly investigating your life. He investigates your heart for doctrine. Without doctrine in your heart, a vacuum is created, causing your emotions to automatically dominate your heart. This results in emotional revolt of the soul.
 - (5) Prov 23:15-17, "My son, if your right lobe [heart] is wise, my own right lobe [heart] will be glad; and my emotions will rejoice when your lips speak what is right. Do not let your right lobe [heart] envy sinners, but live in respect for the Lord all the day."

- (a) When you hear truth, you have a norm and standard for truth from doctrine in your heart, and therefore, you respond emotionally.
 - (b) When you "live in respect for the Lord all day," your right lobe controls your emotions. That refers to occupation with the person of Jesus Christ.
- i. When emotion takes over control of the soul, fear and emotion become inseparable. Emotion is irrational arrogance. It has no thought, no doctrinal content, no common sense.
 - j. Even normal emotion is not the criteria by which you are to evaluate your spiritual life. Your spiritual life is what you think, not what you feel.
 - k. Believers who make emotion the criterion for their spiritual life generally have four basic problems.
 - (1) Such a believer's emotional pattern distracts him from the execution of the protocol plan of God, Rom 16:17-18. "Now I urge you, brethren, be alert for those who are causing dissensions and apostasies contrary to the doctrine which you have learned. For such believers do not obey our Lord Jesus Christ, but they obey their own emotions, serving themselves; and by their smooth and flattering speech, they deceive the hearts [right lobes] of the stupid."
 - (2) Therefore, emotion hinders postsalvation epistemological rehabilitation; i.e., the perception, metabolization, and application of Bible doctrine. 2 Cor 6:11-12, "O you Corinthians, our mouth [means of communicating doctrine] has been open face to face with you [in doctrinal teaching]; our right lobes have been enlarged [by learning more doctrine]. Therefore, you have not been hindered by us [Paul, Apollos, Timothy]; you have been hindered by your own emotions."
 - (3) Such a believer makes a god out of his emotions, Phil 3:18-19. When emotion becomes your god, you're fragmented and ripe for the tongues movement. Phil 3:18-19, "Many [cosmic] believers keep walking, concerning whom I have communicated to you many times, and now continue communicating even though weeping, that they are the enemies of the cross of Christ, whose destiny is destruction, whose god is their emotion, whose fame is by means of dishonor [whose glory is their shame], who keep on thinking about earthly things [wrong priorities from a fragmented life]."
 - (4) Such a believer's unrestrained or uncontrolled emotional pattern is the basis for criminality, violence, hatred, anger, total involvement in the arrogance complex, which means bitterness, vindictiveness, jealousy, implacability, self-pity, and guilt reaction. So there is a very close relationship between the arrogance complex and emotional sin. Such a believer's unrestrained or uncontrolled emotional pattern is related to the five categorical problems, especially #2, fear.

- l. All you have by applying the emotional sins of fear, worry, anger, and anxiety to the problems of life is nothing, or even worse, the manufacture of greater problems. Nothing (emotion) added to something (your problems) is still nothing.
- m. Fear and emotion are inseparable; you cannot have one without the other.
- n. Courage is the ability to think under pressure. Cowardice is the dominance of emotion under pressure.
- o. Emotion is irrational arrogance, using feeling or emotion as the criterion for life instead of Bible doctrine.
- p. There are two categories of emotion in the spiritual life.
 - (1) Normal emotion is under the authority of the right lobe or heart. It responds to the thinking of the epignosis doctrine in the right lobe.
 - (2) In abnormal emotion, emotion controls the right lobe or mentality of the soul. Though Christians do operate this way, it is not spiritual at all.
- q. Abnormal emotion produces sins of worry, fear, anxiety, anger, hatred, and it is the motivation for many other sins such as gossip, slander, maligning, judging, violence and even murder.
- r. In the human soul, there exists a male and a female part, just as the human body has both male and female hormones. Intellect is the male part of everyone's soul, and it must dominate the emotions. Emotion is the female part, and it must be dominated by the precordial frontal lobe.
- s. Therefore, emotion is a responder and reflector of thinking and/or norms and standards. Emotion is the feeling reflex of the soul.
- t. As a system of response and feeling, emotion in itself does not contain the following five things: the ability to reason, content of thought, common sense, vocabulary as a tool for mental function, or doctrinal content.
- u. Emotion is never the criterion for Christian experience. This means you are not spiritual because you feel spiritual or because you have an emotional or ecstatic experience.
- v. Alleged speaking in tongues is blasphemy; no one has legitimately spoken in tongues since August of 70 A.D.
- w. Under the principle of fear, worry, anxiety, and irrational arrogance, emotion is a major distraction to the execution of the protocol plan of God for the Church Age.

- x. Emotional arrogance includes the following blasphemies.
 - (1) You are not saved unless you feel saved.
 - (2) You are not spiritual unless you feel spiritual.
 - y. Emotional arrogance results in constant fear, worry, anxiety, and insecurity in the most secure plan ever provided in this world, i.e., God's protocol plan. Therefore, it is blasphemous to be in a state of fear or worry. Emotional arrogance converts reality into illusion and hallucination.
 - z. In other words, emotions are wonderful when subordinate to doctrine. Emotions are a disaster when they control your soul. The signs of such control include arrogance, fear, worry, anxiety, and insecurity.
11. Emotion is defined as that complex, biochemical and physiological process or function concerned with the somatic expression of feeling. Therefore, it is obviously not a part of the Christian way of life, which is spiritual.
- a. Emotion is the basis for thymopathic behavior, i.e., the disturbances of effects.
 - b. There are two functions of emotion.
 - (1) The conscious sensation of emotions in the soul.
 - (2) The effects of emotions on the organic functions of the body.
 - c. The conscious sensation of emotions in the soul is a mechanism of emotion in the brain area.
 - d. The effects of emotion on the organic functions of the body is the parasympathetic effects of the transmission of too many or too few motor nerve impulses to the muscles of the body.
 - e. The prefrontal lobes are the cortical areas associated with thought, motive, and decision. Normal emotions respond to thought in the frontal lobes, especially the right lobe.
 - f. Even where the frontal lobes have been removed through a frontal lobotomy, the person is still capable of emotional activity. Such a person's emotions are unstable, illustrating the relationship between emotion and certain sins such as anger, fear, hatred, and anxiety. Emotion without thought is a tragic complication of life.
12. Emotion and failure.
- a. Such sins as anger, fear, hatred, worry, and anxiety are emotional. These sins of emotion result in other sins of emotion, such as violence and murder.
 - b. Emotion is also related to human power and human influence, but never to divine power and the mystery doctrine of the Church Age.
13. Applications.
- a. Under the protocol plan of God for the Church Age, emotions are not adequate guides for motives, thoughts, decisions, or actions from the believer.
 - b. Emotions are not tools for cognition nor criteria for life.

- c. The Church Age believer must learn to distinguish between postsalvation epistemological rehabilitation as the means of executing the protocol plan of God, and emotional experience which can be normal or abnormal. But whether it is normal or abnormal, it is not actually the spiritual life, only a response to it.
 - d. Normal emotional experience results from subordinating emotion to the intellect. Abnormal emotional experience results in either subordinating the intellect to emotion, or the emotional bypassing of the norms and standards of God's protocol plan.
 - e. In other words, abnormal emotional experience may express itself in pseudo-spirituality of ecstatic experience which has nothing to do with the filling of the Spirit. Or it may express itself in emotional sins like hatred, worry, anxiety, fear, anger, violence, or even murder.
 - f. The emotional activity of fear, worry, and anxiety has no cognitive self-confidence from Bible doctrine. Therefore, there is no doctrinal conceptualism and no function of the problem-solving devices of the protocol plan of God.
 - g. The sinful activity of hatred, fear, anger, and worry promote arrogance undermine momentum in God's plan through the fragmented life.
 - h. The application of nothing to something is nothing. You cannot apply emotion or its results, e.g., hatred, anger, fear, worry, and anxiety, to the problems of life and ever come up with solutions. By applying emotions in themselves, all you have is more problems and the intensification of your problems.
 - i. The application of fear to the problems of life only creates more problems and greater problems. So the fear reaction of nothing added to something results in less than nothing, i.e., the vacuum which is the blackout of the soul.
 - j. The function of fear, with its corollaries of worry, anxiety, anger, and hatred, is both a sin and an abnormal emotion resulting in the arrogance of non-identity. The arrogance of non-identity distracts the believer from executing the protocol plan, and it disorients him to the fantastic problem-solving devices provided under that plan.
 - k. Since emotion is a biochemical and physiological process concerned with the somatic expression of feeling, it is obvious that emotion is not part of the Christian way of life. The by-products of emotion also cannot be a part of the Christian way of life; in fact, they are a part of the fragmented life.
14. Fear can be related to peer pressure, and it produces two categories of arrogance. Both categories result in fear and instability. This results in a self-identity problem, which spawns other problems. The two categories of arrogance are:

- a. The better-than syndrome, in which the believer thinks he is superior to all other believers. But when someone better comes along, he cracks up and gets into emotional sins.
 - b. The worse-than syndrome, in which the believer thinks he is inferior to all other believers. This produces arrogant subjectivity.
 - c. Peer pressure arrogance produces irrational self-deception, which in turn results in inordinate ambition, inordinate competition, which multiplies emotional sins, motivating violence, and even murder.
 - d. Such a believer has reached the saturation point of self-induced misery, and has blocked out the problem-solving devices that could help him.
15. Fear is a contradiction of the protocol plan of God for the Church Age. Contradictions cannot exist in the protocol plan. Therefore, the fragmented life is not a part of the protocol plan.
- a. Arrogance contradicts the protocol plan. Emotionalism contradicts the protocol plan. Ignorance of doctrine contradicts the protocol plan. Ignorance of the problem-solving devices contradicts the protocol plan.
 - b. Contradictions are eliminated through postsalvation epistemological rehabilitation. Contradictions are eliminated and replaced by the ten problem-solving devices.
 - c. God is perfect; therefore, His plan is perfect. Perfect God has designed a perfect plan for imperfect persons.
 - d. Fear, worry, and anxiety are a contradiction to God's plan, purpose, and will for your life.
 - e. No believer can execute the protocol plan while in a state of fear, worry, anxiety, hatred, anger, and other emotional sins.
- E. Fear is used as an expression of category one love or occupation with Christ. This is documented in many passages of Scripture, including 2 Sam 23:2-3; Neh 5:9; Job 28:28; Psalm 19:9, 34:11-12, 111:10; Prov 1:7, 9:10, 10:27, 22:4; Mal 3:16; Eph 5:21.
- F. Fear is a mental attitude sin, 1 Sam 18:12,29. 1 Sam 28:20, "The fear of man provides a snare, but he who trusts in the Lord shall be promoted."
- G. Fear is a sign of reversionism. 1 Sam 18:12,29, 28:20. Saul was afraid of David.
- H. Fear is prohibited in the grace plan of God. Deut 31:6,8; Josh 8:1; 1 Chr 28:20; Isa 41:10; 2 Tim 1:7. "Fear not, for I am with you."
- I. Maturity is characterized by courage or lack of fear. Psalm 3:6, 56:3, 11; Hebrews 11:27. This is true even when surrounded in battle.
- J. True love is the absence of fear, 1John 4:18. It is impossible to have fear and be occupied with Christ at the same time.
- K. There is a legitimate fear of failure to utilize the faith-rest drill and make doctrinal application, Hebrews 4:1. Believers should be afraid of subjective thinking and failure to claim the doctrines, promises, and logistical grace of God.

L. Principle of the Fear-Panic Ploy.

1. It is possible to learn many doctrines and yet fall apart in historical or personal disaster.
2. Sudden disaster often places the believer under great pressure and moves him into panic where he cannot concentrate on the doctrine he has learned.
3. The difference between fear and courage is the ability to concentrate under great pressure.
4. The coward cannot think under pressure, while the man of courage concentrates under the same pressure.
5. Concentration is required in learning and metabolizing doctrine, but is required to a greater extent under a pressure situation.
6. Adversity, suffering, stress, and disaster have the ability to destroy concentration and cause your rate of learning to exceed your rate of learning.
7. The suddenness or intensity of a disaster hinders the believer from concentrating on doctrine he has already learned.
8. Normal reaction to disaster can be fear and panic, so that the believer cannot apply doctrine.
9. Because of this, there are many Biblical commands about fear.
 - a. Deut 31:6,8, "Be strong and courageous, do not be afraid of them or tremble because of them for the Lord your God is the one who goes with you. He will not fail you. He will not desert you. The Lord Himself goes before you, therefore He will be with you. He will never leave you nor desert you. Do not be afraid. Do not be discouraged."
 - b. Isa 41:10, "Therefore, the Lord is the One who goes ahead of you; do not fear or be dismayed."
10. Believers in all stages of spiritual growth can find themselves suddenly in the fear-panic ploy of the cosmic system from some sudden disaster. Every believer must be prepared for this. Psalm 56:3, "When I am afraid, I will trust in you." Faith always selects something (a promise from God, a doctrine) that is stronger than the pressure that comes from stress.
11. The solution to fear is found in the faith-rest drill, by which the believer claims a promise to stabilize the mind. You cannot function under the faith-rest drill unless you have spiritual strength. 1Corinthians 2:5, "That your faith should not be in the wisdom of man [human viewpoint], but in the power from God [Bible doctrine in the soul]." 2Corinthians 5:7, "For we walk by faith and not by sight."

M. Fear And The Arrogance Skills At The Red Sea.

1. Ex 14:8 states that when the Jews left Egypt, they left in a state of arrogant defiance. This caused Pharaoh to change his mind about letting the Jews leave and motivated him to pursue and attempt to destroy them.
2. Instead of using prayer and the arrogance skills, the Jews at the Red Sea should have been using the faith-rest drill and other problem solving devices. They should have understood what Moses had been teaching them-that God has a plan for their life. Ex 14:13-14, "But Moses said to the people, `Do not fear! Take your stand and watch the deliverance of the Lord which He will accomplish for you today; for the Egyptians whom you have seen today, you will never see them again forever. The Lord will fight for you while you keep silent."

3. Principles.

- a. Cowards always hide behind arrogance.
- b. The Jews saw the problem; Moses saw the solution. The people faced the problem and were afraid. Moses faced the same problem and was confident from the application of metabolized doctrine in his soul.
- c. You cannot run around expressing fear and at the same time apply doctrine. Fear and the mechanics of the spiritual life are mutually exclusive. You are in one or in the other. You will face your D-day.
- d. A sign on the door of an English pub during the battle of Britain during World War II said, "Fear knocked at the door. Faith answered. No one was there."

4. Points of Application.

- a. The problem solving devices on the FLOT line of the soul prevent the outside pressures of adversity from becoming the inside pressures of stress in the soul. The FLOT line prevents this.
- b. Adversity is the outside pressure of life. Stress is the inside pressure of life, like fear, worry, anxiety. When there is no problem solving device on the FLOT line of the soul, then the adversity becomes stress and stress overruns the command post of the soul and puts the spiritual life out of action.
- c. Adversity is inevitable, even necessary; stress is optional, not necessary. Stress is not necessary when you deploy the problem solving devices on the FLOT line of your soul. You deal with your own problems in the privacy of your soul and avoid panic, fear, and arrogance.
- d. God gives you spiritual freedom and human freedom so you can make your own choices and learn to take responsibility for your own decisions.
- e. Stress in the soul is tantamount to sin nature control of the soul. Therefore stress in the soul overruns the command post of the heart and puts the spiritual life out of action.
- f. People who live by fear are intimidated by life. Fear is a false variable rejected by every absolute of Bible doctrine. 1 Jn 4:18, "Fear does not exist in virtue-love; but virtue-love drives out fear, because fear has self-punishment, and the one who fears has not been matured by means of virtue-love."
 - (1) Virtue-love is an absolute of Bible doctrine which rejects the variable called fear. The absolute drives out the false variable. The filling of the Holy Spirit produces virtue-love, Gal 5:22.

(2) Virtue-love is the absolute that destroys fear in the life.

N. Summary.

1. Emotion can respond to doctrine, but emotion cannot apply doctrine to experience. In an emotional state you become irrational.
2. Emotion is the feeling reflexes of the soul, therefore, never designed by God to be construed as the criterion for the spiritual life.
3. Emotion is a part of arrogance skill number three (self- absorption).
4. Emotion is not a tool for cognition nor the criterion for the spiritual life.
5. The emotional complex of sins includes fear, worry, anxiety, hysteria, anger, hatred, bitter jealousy, loathing, malice, tantrums, irrational violence, murder, egotistical irrationality related to arrogant self-righteousness, insensitivity about self but hypersensitivity about how others felt about you, denial, projection, self-pity, revenge motivation and modus operandi, guilt.
 - a. Guilt is related to morbid self-reproach.
 - b. Guilt is emotional feelings of culpability, arrogant preoccupation with the correctness of one's behavior stemming from self- absorption.
 - c. Guilt is a manifestation of the need for and absence of problem solving devices.
6. Heb 13:5-6, "Let your way of life be free from the love of money. Be content with what you have; for He Himself has said, 'I will never desert you, nor will I ever forsake you,' so that we confidently say, 'The Lord is my helper. I will not be afraid. What shall man do to me?'"

“but ye have received the spirit of adoption” – the adversative conjunction allá (ἀλλά) [pronounced ahl-LAH] sets up a contrast between the two clauses and between the first and the second marriages. The first marriage to the old sin nature is characterized by fear. The second marriage to Christ is characterized by the Spirit of adoption. “But you have received” – the same aorist active indicative from the verb lambánō (λαμβάνω) [pronounced lahm-BAHN-oh], which means to receive. It is a constative aorist referring to the instantaneous action which occurred at salvation, the baptism of the Spirit and current positional truth by which we entered into union with Christ. The active voice: the believer produces the action of the verb. The indicative mood is declarative representing the viewpoint of absolute reality.

This is followed by the accusative singular direct object from pneuma (πνεῦμα) [pronounced PNYOO-mah], this time with a slightly different meaning. It refers to God the Holy Spirit as the author of the baptism of the Spirit at salvation. Plus a descriptive genitive which is translated “adoption” – huiothesía (υἰοθεσία) [pronounced hwee-oth-es-EE-ah] [thesia = from tithēmi (τίθημι) [pronounced TIHTH-ā-mee], to place; huios (υἱός, οὐ, ὁ) [pronounced hwee-OSS] = to place as an adult son] which means to place as an adult son, and it follows the Roman custom at the time of writing. The Romans had a custom of adopting their own children at the point of maturity, and it refers to that. It doesn't refer to the adoption of a baby which was born to other parents, but to the Roman custom of adoption.^[11] The "spirit of adoption" means in this case the ceremony by which you come to recognize the first person of the Trinity as your own personal Father in a special way.

The Doctrine of Adoption is already covered back in Lesson #212, and any additional notes will be placed there.

306 01/08/1978 Romans 8:15b Biblical doctrine of adoption (cont.): mechanics and illustrations from Roman Caesars

The Doctrine of Adoption is already covered back in Lesson #212, and any additional notes will be placed there.

Bob sees an uninterested person in the back, and talks about how much he would like to beat the hell out of him.

Romans 8:15 For you have not received a spirit of bondage again to fear, but you have received the Spirit of divine adoption as sons, by whom we cry, "Abba! Father!" (BLB)

"whereby we cry, Abba, Father" – here is a preposition plus the instrumental singular from the relative pronoun hos (ὅς) [pronounced hohç], correctly translated "by whom." Then the present active indicative of the verb krazô (κράζω) [pronounced KRAD-zoh] which means to shout, not to cry. It means a shout of victory, a shout of happiness. This is the expression of great happiness when we finally realize that God has a perfect plan for us, and that includes a day-by-day plan in life, and that it provides everything in a wonderful way, and that there are no accidents and all things work together for good for those who achieve the plan which is maturity adjustment to the justice of God. Nothing can ever work out to anything but good to the mature believer. The shout is "Abba" which is actually Jewish [the Hebrew is Ab] but the Hellenistic form of the Aramaic word for "Father." When Paul finally caught on to adoption, as he did right here, he shouted out "Abba" is the Jewish language and then he went to the language in which he was writing—Greek, and then he went to Patêr (πατήρ) [pronounced pat-AYR]. Paul is by race Jewish even though he is a Roman citizen. He is recognizing for the first time as a mature believer the great structure of the plan of God, and he is using the Roman system in order to recognize it. Adoption has the connotation of great blessing. It means plan, purpose, power, blessing, and eventually glory. So here is the expression of this wonderful plan, this wonderful relationship we have with God. Cf. Galatians 4:6. Doctrine in the right lobe causes the believer to realize what a fantastic plan it is.

Romans 8:15 For you have not received again a life of slavery for the purpose of fear; but you have received the Spirit of adoption, by whom [the Holy Spirit] we keep shouting, Abba, my Father.

“Abba” is the customary Aramaic title of God. We learn how important this word is from Mark 14:36. Our Lord was contemplating His death on the cross the next day and He said to God the Father: “Abba, Father, all things are possible unto thee; take away this cup from me: nevertheless not what I will, but what You will.” That is, Your plan, Father, not mine. He recognized that the justice of the Father had a plan in taking all of the personal sins in human history and imputing them to Christ on the cross for judgment. When He said “Abba” to the Father, He made it clear to the Father that He understood the plan. Abba, then, is the vocative of the mature believer who has maximum category #1 love for God the Father, who understands where he has been—the daily intake of doctrine resulting in maturity, who understands where he is going and is now beginning to receive the great blessings that come his way—spiritual blessings, material blessings, blessings by association, historical impact, blessings of the imputation of undeserved sufferings.

Many of the Apostles understood the high blessing of martyrdom.

In maturity, the believer has capacity for life and capacity for love and for prosperity. We are related to blessing and the plan of God. We will relate this to history in the next lesson.

Lesson #307

307 01/08/1978 Romans 8:16a Analysis of the movie "Castle Keep"; devil's triangle; two witnesses of adoption of the believer by God

Bob talks about the movie at Saturday night at the movies. Stylized dialogue. Crudities and obscenities; and some believers have trouble with it; this is how GIs talk. Nothing for you to get shocked over. You don't have to be crude or obscene in order to appreciate that drama. These men could only think in terms of obscenity and the gutter. There were great conflicts; and some small conflicts; and all resolved these conflicts. Nevertheless, these men did their job. “Some of you, when you are shocked, stop thinking.” Most of you are shockable, and you will not be able to handle the communists.

The devil's triangle is composed of your legalism and your shockability. This is when you do not have enough doctrine to...

The imputation of martyrdom is one of the highest honors, which will be bestowed upon Paul. I don't think you need to worry about this one. If you are disoriented—fear, fear, fear—and we have not received the spirit of fear. Bob is comfortable communicating with a hell or a damn.

The idea that everyone goes to college is ludicrous.

It is fine for a woman to be beautiful, but she needs to be able to think. It is okay for a woman to be ugly and she needs to be able to think as well—maybe more.

Romans 8:16 The Spirit Himself bears witness with our spirit that we are children of God, (BLB)

Verse 16 – if you are ever going to be related to reality as a believer Bible doctrine must come into your life. It must be related to your life, not as an academic subject but as a part of your life. “The Spirit itself beareth witness with our spirit” – the nominative neuter singular subject pneuma (πνεῦμα) [pronounced PNYOO-mah] refers to God the Holy Spirit. The nominative neuter singular from autós (αὐτός) [pronounced ow-TOSS], the intensive pronoun, refers to a person so we say “himself.” This is a reference to the third person of the Trinity. Plus the present active indicative from the compound verb summartureō (συμμαρτυρέω) [pronounced soom-mar-too-REH-oh] [sum is the preposition sun (σύν) [pronounced soon] = with; martureō (μαρτυρέω) [pronounced mar-too-REH-oh] = to testify, to bear witness] which means to confirm or testify in support of someone or something. “The Spirit himself confirms along with” is the corrected translation. This is a historical present tense in which a past event is viewed with the vividness of a present occurrence. The active voice: the Holy Spirit produces the action of the verb, along with other sources of confirmation, namely the human spirit. The point is, the Holy Spirit plus the human spirit is inserting doctrine into the life, for remember that doctrine not only resides in the right lobe but it also resides in the human spirit. The Holy Spirit takes doctrine in the human spirit and inserts it into the reality factor. The instrumental of association from pneuma (πνεῦμα) [pronounced PNYOO-mah] is the human spirit, used this time for where doctrine resides for the construction of the edification complex of the soul and also for insertion into reality. Then the possessive genitive plural from the personal pronoun egó (ἐγώ) [pronounced ehg-OH]: “The Spirit himself testifies together with our spirit.” It is a mutual testimony: ‘In the mouths of two witnesses it shall be established.’ Reality is established here by God the Holy Spirit and the human spirit. This is the combination necessary for reality as well as advance to maturity. The filling of the Holy Spirit plus Bible doctrine resident in the human spirit constructs the edification complex of the soul, and the ECS becomes an insertion into reality with Bible doctrine. You cannot face reality properly as a believer unless you face it from the divine viewpoint. The divine viewpoint demands the insertion of doctrine into any given circumstance or situation.

Man was created with a body, soul and spirit; but we lost the human spirit at the fall. The unbeliever is dichotomous; but the believer is trichotomous. He receives the human spirit at the point of salvation. What is missing from all of this is Christian works. The doctrine is the key of the Holy Spirit and the human spirit.

Corrected translation of 1Corinthians 2:12-16

Verse 12 – But we have not received a cosmic spirit, but the spirit [human spirit] from the source of God; in order that we might have permanent knowledge of things [doctrines] having being graciously given to us under the authority of God.

Verse 13 – Which things [doctrines] also we communicate by categories, not by teaching from the source of man’s wisdom [human IQ], but by teaching from the source of the Holy Spirit, combining with the human spirit to teach spiritual phenomena [Bible doctrine through a spiritual apparatus: GAP].

Verse 14 – But the soulish man [unbeliever] does not acquire knowledge of things [doctrines] from the Spirit of God; for to him they are foolishness [he has no frame of reference], and he is not able to get knowledge because they are discerned [perceived] from the source of the [human] spirit.

Verse 15 – But the spiritual man [the believer with GAP] discerns [perceives] all doctrines, but he himself is discerned under the authority of no one [doctrines in the human spirit cannot be evaluated by human viewpoint].

Verse 16 – For who has come to know the Lord's mind [learn doctrine], who shall instruct him? We keep on having the mind of Christ.

Doctrine is the mind of Christ. Doctrine is learned by the ministry of the Holy Spirit, and this becomes resident in the human spirit as well as the right lobe. Doctrine in the human spirit causes us to have two witnesses to insert what is reality.

Bob has heard the term gentleman from way back. This concept was designed to orient to life; but when carried too far, it disorients to life. When a woman declares for equal opportunity removes her from femininity from the picture.

If Bob thinks of Jane Fonda as a lady, he carries his concepts of being a gentleman too far, to the point of unreality.

Lesson #308

308 01/13/1978 Romans 8:16b Doctrine inserted into life; two witnesses establish Bible doctrine as reality, Holy Spirit and human spirit

The background here is the devil's triangle. The two realities in your life are the things happening all around you and Bible doctrine. The devil's triangle is sin, good and evil.

The greatest honor is to die as a martyr. But most of the people who died in Fox's Book of Martyrs were reversionists.

The Roman emperor and Paul were the two most famous men of that era. Paul goes out in glory; and Nero dies and goes to hell. The cuckoo clocks will take their divine discipline and think that they are suffering for blessing.

Romans 8:16 The Spirit Himself bears witness with our spirit that we are children of God, (BLB)

“that we are the children of God” – the conjunction hóti (ὅτι) [pronounced HOH-tee] after verbs of confirmation, plus the present active indicative of the verb eimi (εἶμι) [pronounced eye-ME]. The perfective present denotes continuation of existing results, namely every believer is a child of God the Father. The active voice: the believer produces the action of the verb by constantly being a child of God. The indicative mood is declarative, it is a reality. However the word for “sons” here is teknon (τέκνον) [pronounced TEK-non], accusative plural direct object. The word ordinarily refers to a child in relationship to parents, but here it refers to the fact that every believer is the child of God the Father. Positionally every believer is huios (υἱός, οὐ, ὁ) [pronounced hwee-OSS], an adult son, we have that under adoption. Experientially we start out as teknon (τέκνον) [pronounced TEK-non]. Plus the genitive of relationship singular “of God.” Awareness of our family relationship with God has two sources of testimony: the filling of the Spirit and Bible doctrine in the soul.

Romans 8:16 The Spirit himself testifies together with our human spirit, that we are children of God.

Points

1. The reality of any spiritual phenomena is the teaching ministry of the Holy Spirit. The subject taught by the Holy Spirit is Bible doctrine.
2. The reality comes from that Bible doctrine resident in both soul and spirit. The scripture for the teaching ministry of the Holy Spirit: John 14:26; 16:12-15; 1Corinthians 2:9-16; 1John 2:27.
3. Reality about our relationship with God, our purpose in the plan of God, the mechanics of the plan of God, and our objectives for life on this earth after salvation, originate from the transfer of Bible doctrine from the page of the Scripture to the soul and the human spirit of the believer. This is accomplished through the ministry of God the Holy Spirit.
4. Reality from doctrine becomes the basis for confidence and security in our relationship with God.
5. The reality of God, the integrity of God, the plan of God, blessings from God, all stem from the same root: doctrine resident in the human soul and human spirit.
6. Doctrine resident in the soul and the spirit is the reality of relationship with God in time, as well as the above and beyond blessings from God in eternity.
7. Therefore, for the believer walking through this life—he is in full time Christian service, and an ambassador for Christ, a royal priest—there is no substitute for Bible doctrine resident in the soul and the spirit through the teaching ministry of the Holy Spirit where doctrine is communicated by authorized persons. And there is no way to get it there apart from God the Holy Spirit.
8. Illustration: “In the mouth of two witnesses it [a fact] is established” – Deuteronomy 17:6; 19:15; Matthew 18:16; 2Corinthians 13:1. In the mouth of two witnesses: the Holy Spirit takes the Word of God and inserts it into the human spirit.
9. The two witnesses are the Holy Spirit and the human spirit. The testimony of the two witnesses is Bible doctrine. By that joint testimony there is the insertion of Bible doctrine into your circumstances.

People getting involved in the devil’s triangle and trying to fix everything today.

First reality of a doctrine is in the right lobe.

The Holy Spirit is not testifying to the human spirit; the Holy Spirit is testifying with the human spirit. This is a follow-on to gap. The Holy Spirit and the human spirit say the same thing together. When these things begin to gel, then you have arrived.

Romans 8:16 The Spirit himself testifies together with our human spirit, that we are children of God.

Lesson #309

309 01/15/1978 Romans 8:17a "Beggar's Opera"; our Anglo-Saxon heritage; bureaucracy; heirship demands blessing

Opera was merely an extension of Greek tragedy. There was a chorus in Greek drama, which explained why certain things came to pass. Greek drama always had a tragic ending. Illustrated by Agamemnon.

Great Britain is separated from the rest of Europe by a ditch of water. As a result, Britain often reacted to European culture. The Magna Carta was unique in that region. It did work in England. We are directly related to the English ability in the field of humor. They could also laugh at themselves. Ballads in the 1700s even ridiculed the opera. John Gay in 1728 wrote the most popular opera of England for 200 years. It was to have all the accoutrements of opera, but without the tragic ending.

We borrowed the Irish and Welsh national anthems for two hymns sung in church today. Last night, Berachah had the Beggar's Opera, which had all of the popular ballads of that day. He took all this to the tragic ending, the hanging of the captain. The British had this done happily with the escape of the captain. This is a part of our own heritage. To go through terrible suffering and have it all go well. Vv. 18-30 will be that.

The hanging is like the superbowl for the Brits.

A review of the first 16 verses.

We have the Anglo-Saxon paragraph coming up.

Romans 8:17 and if children, also heirs: heirs indeed of God, and joint-heirs of Christ, if indeed we suffer with Him, so that we may also be glorified together. (BLB)

Verse 17 – a transitional verse. It deals with two subjects. The first sentence deals with relationship; the second sentence is the transitional sentence that starts us with undeserved as a blessing to the mature believer and ends up with glory.

The issue is never what we do or the works that we do, even legitimate, can bring even one ounce of blessing to us.

The one who adopts in Roman culture provides power, position and wealth. We are more than just children. We are adopted into the family of God.

V. 17 is a transitional verse, not belonging to either section.

“And if children, the heirs” – the postpositive conjunctive particle de puts together thoughts. Paul is going to take all of these great thoughts in the first part of the chapter and put them together with something which seems to be antithetical and incongruous. He is going to put them together with suffering. In order to head into it properly we must have one more sentence on the fact that we are related to God in a special way, and that we are dealing with the justice of God which is never unfair. Next is the conditional particle ei (εἰ) [pronounced /] which introduces the protasis of a first class condition, an assumption from the viewpoint of reality. The supposition is based on a statement of the previous two sentences: all believers are children of God, hence the first class condition. There is no verb in this first sentence, it is totally elliptical. An ellipsis applies to any idea which is not fully expressed grammatically, and leaves it to the reader to supply a self-evident omission. Generally it is the verb to be, as here, the present active indicative of eimi (εἶμι) [pronounced eye-ME]—“Now if we are.” Plus the predicate nominative plural from teknon (τέκνον) [pronounced TEK-non], the word for a son under the authority of his tutors, his parents; the son in a period of learning and understanding—“children” in the sense of being under authority, in the sense of having a lot to learn. The first class condition indicates that we are. The adjunctive use of the conjunction kai is translated “also.” Then the natural result of being a child under the authority of parents and being adopted at the same time, the predicate nominative plural of klêronomos (κληρονόμος) [pronounced klay-roh-OHM-oss] which is correctly translated “heir.” It is in the plural so all of us as believers are the heirs of God. Plus the genitive singular of relationship from theos (θεός) [pronounced theh-OSS], this heirship is “of God.” God the Father is in view. Then a second de, “on the other hand.” Then a predicate nominative plural from a compound noun, sugklêronomos (συγκληρονόμος) [pronounced soong-klay-ron-OHM-oss] [sug = the form of the preposition “with”; klêronomos (κληρονόμος) [pronounced klay-roh-OHM-oss] = heir], “fellow-heirs,” plus an ablative singular of Christos (χριστός) [pronounced krees-TOHSS]—“with Christ.” “Now if, on the one hand, we are the heirs of God the Father, and on the other hand we are fellow-heirs with Christ.” The instrumental case is generally used to express means. But the ablative is also used when the source is implied. Since Christ is the source the ablative is used—“with Christ.” Christ is the source and the means of our heirship with God, and this emphasizes again the baptism of the Holy Spirit, current positional truth, all of the principles involved with the baptism of the Spirit.

Principle

1. Not only does the doctrine of heirship come into focus, but again such doctrines as positional sanctification, royal family of God, baptism of the Spirit, current positional truth. Paul has connected one thought with another.
2. Heirship demands blessing. To be the heir of the God of the universe requires comparable blessing. These are available and a part of God’s plan. The only thing missing is that the justice of God cannot impute these blessings until there is capacity. Our government is exactly the opposite, where they believe that heirship should mean confiscation.

3. Heirship, then, is related to the concept of blessing from the justice of God in time and in eternity.
4. The imputation of divine righteousness is the first step in providing blessing from the integrity of God.
5. All blessing from the justice of God must be a real imputation from divine justice to divine righteousness.
6. To be a fellow-heir with Christ demands blessing, but blessing demands capacity.
7. Capacity for blessing only comes to those who have Bible doctrine resident in the soul and the spirit.
8. Blessing in eternity from the justice of God is a series of a fortiori principles beginning with the imputation of divine righteousness at salvation.

Lesson #310

310 01/15/1978 Romans 8:17b Capacity for and purpose of undeserved suffering for the mature believer cf. the unique suffering of Jesus Christ

Romans 8:17 ...and if children, also heirs: heirs indeed of God, and joint-heirs of Christ, if indeed we suffer with Him, so that we may also be glorified together. (BLB)

The transitional sentence introduces the next paragraph which is the new life from suffering to glorification, verses 18-30. It begins with suffering of the present time and terminates in verse 30 with glorification.

The first phrase of this second sentence reads, "if so be that we suffer with him." The compound conditional conjunction eiper (εἴπερ) [pronounced I-per] is one of the connecting links used by Paul, made up of two particles: ei (εἰ) [pronounced I], used with the indicative for a first class condition, and per with the intensive force, hence "if as is supposed" or "if indeed." With it is the present active indicative from the compound verb sumpáschō (συμπάσχω) [pronounced soom-PAS-kho] [sum is from the preposition sun (σύν) [pronounced soon] = with; paschō (πάσχω) [pronounced PAHS-khoh] = suffer], which means to suffer with or to suffer the same as. Plato used this verb to mean to suffer at the same time, or to suffer with, or to suffer the same as, but primarily to suffer at the same time but not to the same degree or content.

One thing should be eliminated immediately; this is the stumbling block of this great transitional sentence: there is no parallelism between the suffering of Christ on the cross and the suffering of Christians in time. The sufferings of Christ on the cross were absolutely unique, as unique as the person who was hanging there. Therefore there is no possibility that this verb denotes a common participation of Christ and the believer in a common suffering; there is no such thing. This is where, of course, asceticism and others try to read themselves into the picture. The sufferings of the mature believer cannot be compared with the suffering of the unique God-Man, Jesus Christ.

Furthermore, the word Christos (χριστός) [pronounced krees-TOHSS] or an equivalent pronoun, autós (αὐτός) [pronounced ow-TOSS], is not used. There is no Christos (χριστός) [pronounced krees-TOHSS] in this passage. Remembering, then, that there is no third person personal pronoun in this passage, nor no Christos (χριστός) [pronounced krees-TOHSS], translators have been presumptuous, and their presumption has led to the incorrect translation of this passage. Notice in the KJV that “him” is italicized as though somehow it is speaking of the Lord Jesus Christ, which it is not doing.

In Philippians 1:29 the believer is said to suffer for the sake of Christ, but not with Christ. Suffering in behalf of is not the same as suffering with. What this transitional sentence is saying is simply this: Capacity for blessing from maturity means capacity for suffering from that same maturity. That is what sumpáschō (συμπάσχω) [pronounced soom-PAS-kho] means: suffering in the status quo of the mature believer, just as Christ suffered in the status quo of impeccability. The believer is not impeccable but he does have undeserved suffering. Being in the status of capacity for life the mature believer has the ability to meet any suffering, any disaster, any situation in life, and handle it perfectly as God would have it handled. Therefore while we will sin as long as we live one of the areas we do not sin as mature believers is in the area of maximum pressure, maximum disaster, maximum suffering. The compound conjunction eiper (εἴπερ) [pronounced ī-per] assumes maturity adjustment to the justice of God which not only provides capacity for blessing but also capacity for undeserved suffering. Translation: “if indeed we suffer with maturity status.”

The principle: Capacity for blessing from maturity adjustment to the justice of God means capacity for undeserved suffering in maturity. Therefore the compound verb sumpáschō (συμπάσχω) [pronounced soom-PAS-kho] refers to suffering in the status quo of maturity.

In the verb we have a present tense, a retroactive progressive present denoting the attainment of maturity in the past and the continuation of maturity in the present. The active voice: mature believers produce the action of the verb, namely suffering for blessing. The indicative mood is declarative for supposition from the viewpoint of reality and maturity adjustment to the justice of God. This is telling us that from now on until we get through verse 30 we are talking about mature believers. It is telling us what we can expect once we reach maturity, and how to handle it as a mature believer.

Torquemada appears to be the administration of the sin unto death to many believers of that era. As believers, we will see great undeserved suffering.

You do not need to run around and explain yourself to other people. Romans 8 in the second half belongs to the mature believer. There appear to be two additional points beginning this doctrine. This doctrine is repeated in the next lesson, but the first two points are not there either.

Undeserved Suffering Principles

1. Suffering with maturity status is a supposition from the viewpoint of reality, i.e. the protasis of a first class condition. In other words, there is such a thing.
2. Therefore this protasis makes two assumptions:
 - a. Maturity adjustment to the justice of God through maximum doctrine resident in the soul and the spirit results in the real imputation of divine blessing to its target, +R;
 - b. Along with the imputation of blessing comes the imputation of undeserved suffering, an imputation just as much from the justice of God as those things we generally categorize as great blessing. Therefore to the mature believer undeserved suffering only has one purpose: a greater blessing than can be derived from the accoutrements of life.
3. The undeserved suffering of Christ was the status of impeccability. The undeserved suffering of the born-again believer is in the status of maturity.
4. There is a vast difference between the impeccability of Christ and the maturity of the believer.
5. The difference includes imputed sin, the old sin nature, the function of the trends: sin, good and evil.
6. The undeserved suffering of the impeccable Lord Jesus Christ is unique.
7. The undeserved suffering of the mature believer is designed to demonstrate that capacity for blessing (from doctrine in the soul and the spirit) also means capacity for suffering from that same doctrine in the soul. Capacity in itself means the ability to suffer without the pain being paramount. Instead, doctrine is paramount.
8. Therefore the undeserved suffering of the mature believer contributes to the rewards and blessing of eternity. All undeserved suffering is God's down payment on future blessing. It is God telling the believer in time that He has great things for him in heaven.
9. Just as the blessing imputed from the justice of God is the basis for blessing beyond ultimate sanctification in eternity, so the suffering from the justice of God to the mature believer is the basis for reward beyond ultimate sanctification in eternity.
10. Maturity status in time is the result of the filling of the Spirit plus maximum doctrine resident in the soul and spirit.
11. Maturity status is the place of occupation with Christ and the resultant capacity for life and suffering.
12. Occupation with Christ in blessing means capacity for that blessing.
13. Occupation with Christ in undeserved suffering means capacity for that suffering. The justice of God provides something for which you have capacity.
14. Suffering (undeserved), then, is a blessing for believers in mature status. Capacity for blessing means capacity for suffering.

“that we may be glorified together” – the other side of the picture. Undeserved suffering in maturity; glorification in eternity. The word “that” is hina (ἵνα) [pronounced HEE-na] with the subjunctive mood and it introduces a final clause to denote an objective, aim, or goal. The adjunctive use of kai used as an adverb means “also.” Plus the aorist passive subjunctive from the compound verb sundoxázō (συνδοξάζω) [pronounced soon-dox-AD-zo], which means to be glorified with someone, to be fellow-glorified ones. It means also to share in someone else’s glory—“that also we might be glorified with Christ.” The aorist tense is a culminative aorist, it views the glorification of the Lord Jesus Christ in its entirety but regards it from the viewpoint of existing results. Therefore the culminative aorist denotes the attainment of an end. The fact that Christ is glorified means that the way is now open for any member of the royal family to share in His glory. But the believer must be mature and the justice of God must impute to him suffering. The passive voice: the believer receives the action of the verb, including the rewards and blessings of eternity above and beyond ultimate sanctification. The subjunctive mood is the potential subjunctive, it depends on the believer in time attaining maturity adjustment to the justice of God. Cf. 1Timothy 2:12.

Romans 8:17 Now if we are children, we are also heirs; on the one hand heirs of God the Father, and on the other hand fellow-heirs with Christ; if indeed we suffer with maturity status, that also we might be glorified with Christ.

Principle

1. Suffering for blessing in time means reward and blessing in eternity. But it must be undeserved suffering and suffering in mature status.
2. Undeserved suffering, along with imputed blessings from the justice of God, is the basis for the greater blessing of eternity. Feeling undeserved suffering gives you a clue as to the eternal blessings to come.
3. This explains and anticipates what Romans 8:28 is all about: the mature believer in undeserved suffering.
4. The mature believer has undeserved suffering in time which is parlayed into reward and blessing from the justice of God in eternity. So that reward and blessing in eternity is a real imputation.

1977 Romans

Lesson #311

311 01/16/1978 Romans 8:17–18 Present suffering cf. eternal glory; emotion; doctrine of suffering (pts.1–4a)

Romans 8:17 Now if we are children, we are also heirs; on the one hand heirs of God the Father, and on the other hand fellow-heirs with Christ; if indeed we suffer with maturity status, that also we might be glorified with Christ.

Undeserved suffering principles from the previous lesson are reviewed (additional notes, if any, will be placed with that lesson).

Principle

1. All suffering in the status of maturity is undeserved suffering designed to glorify God, and at the same time to demonstrate that capacity for life and happiness also means capacity for suffering. The mature believer enjoys great blessings; but this does not spoil the believer. And this is shown when that mature believer suffers as well.
2. Capacity for suffering comes from Bible doctrine resident in the soul. In other words, capacity for suffering is characterized by occupation with Christ during that suffering or adversity.
3. This capacity is emphasized in Romans 8:28, which in this context emphasizes and applies to the mature believer only (and everything else in context applies to the mature believer).
4. Undeserved suffering and adversity is provided by God to confirm future blessings to the mature believer in phase three.
5. When we realize that time is just a drop in the bucket compared to eternity this suffering becomes a demonstration of the wisdom of God, the dynamics of the grace of God, and the perfection of the justice of God. All undeserved suffering is from the justice of God.
6. The suffering of maturity status is designed for future blessing and reward in phase three.
7. Undeserved suffering of the mature believer anticipates the glorious inheritance of the future. Every time that the mature believer has undeserved suffering it is God's guarantee, God's reminder, of the great blessing and rewards he is going to have for all eternity.

Verses 18-30, the new life from suffering to glorification.

Future Glory

Romans 8:18 For I reckon that the sufferings of the present time are not comparable to the coming glory to be revealed to us. (BLB)

Verse 18 – the comparison of present suffering to eternal glory. “For I reckon that the sufferings of this present time” – the explanatory use of the postpositive conjunctive particle gar, followed by the present middle indicative of the verb logizomai (λογίζομαι) [pronounced log-IHD-zohm-ai], a word which is frequently mistranslated. When God is the subject it means to impute; when man is the subject it means to conclude. In the Attic Greek this verb meant to deliberate on the basis of facts and to draw conclusions on the basis of logic. It was used, then, for non-emotional thinking. Hence, it emphasizes a rational course of thought divorced from emotion, therefore able to utilize the facts. When you tangle up the facts with your emotion you draw erroneous conclusions. Emotion does not originate thought; emotion can only appreciate thought.

But when God uses this verb, He did all of the thinking in eternity past, so we translate it “impute.” God thinks and acts on the basis of thought. God acts on the basis of the facts and therefore he imputes life to the soul. At the same time the justice of God thinks and imputes Adam's sin to the genetically-formed old sin nature so that we could be condemned at birth and have a chance to be blessed in life and for all eternity. (No imputation of Adam's sin; no chance of the person who dies before reaching accountability being saved) All of the imputations are based upon divine thinking, not foreknowledge. Foreknowledge is a result of the decrees but not the means of the decrees. Omniscience is the means; foreknowledge is the result. Foreknowledge makes nothing certain, it merely recognizes what is certain. "For I conclude." The present tense is a retroactive progressive present denoting a conclusion begun in the past and one that continues in the present time. The middle voice: this is a deponent verb which is middle in form and active in meaning. Paul as the human author produces the action of the verb through cognizance of doctrine. The indicative mood is declarative for a dogmatic conclusion from doctrine. Then comes the conjunction hóti (ὅτι) [pronounced HOH-tee] which is used instead of the infinitive in order to give the content of a conclusion from a correct system of thought.

Plus the subject, the nominative plural from pathêma (πάθημα) [pronounced PATH-ay-mah]—"For I conclude that the sufferings." Then the adverb of time nun (νῦν) [pronounced noon] which refers to the believer in phase two and brings him face to face with all of these great imputations which are the outline of this passage and our life. The life of the believer is outlined through imputation.

God gives something to God so that His essence is not compromised. All of this is done so that man cannot enter into the picture with any merit.

With this is the genitive of time singular from the noun kairos (καιρός) [pronounced kī-ROSS] which refers to both a point of time and a period of time. Here it refers to a period of time, i.e. maturity adjustment to the justice of God. The genitive of time singular from the definite article also must be considered. This is the generic use of the definite article representing a special category of suffering: undeserved suffering for the purpose of blessing. It is suffering which leads to glory as well as blessing. You do not lose your blessings when undeserved suffering comes into your life.

At this point it is necessary to insert what has been left out because of ellipsis, the present active indicative of eimi (εἰμί) [pronounced eye-ME], and we say, "For I conclude that the sufferings of the present period of time are not." The negative adverb ou (οὐ) [pronounced oo] denies the reality of the alleged fact. Then the predicate adjective axios (ἄξιος) [pronounced AX-ee-oss], meaning comparable or worthy of—"are not comparable to." The phrase "to be compared" is not there in the original, it was simply used by the translator to try to clarify an ellipsis.

"the glory" – prós (πρός) [pronounced pross] plus the accusative singular of doxa (δόξα) [pronounced DOHX-ah] should be translated "face to face with the glory." The glory refers to the eternal blessings for the mature believer.

"which shall be revealed in us" – the present active participle of mellô (μέλλω) [pronounced MEHL-low] which here means to be about to be, to be on the point of and therefore to be destined: "which is destined." This is a futuristic present denoting an event which is not yet occurring, i.e. the rewards of eternity to the mature believer, but is regarded as so certain in thought that it is contemplated as already occurring. The active voice: the glory or the blessings and rewards in eternity from the justice of God produce the action of the verb. The participle is circumstantial.

The undeserved suffering often removes all human solutions and all human dependencies.

Then the aorist passive infinitive of apokaluptô (ἀποκαλύπτω) [pronounced ap-ok-al-OOP-toe] which means to be revealed. This is a gnomic aorist for something which is absolutely certain, i.e. eternal rewards and blessings for every mature believer. The passive voice: the mature believer receives the action of the verb: in the future, great blessing and reward of eternity. The infinitive is the infinitive of actual result. With it is the prepositional phrase eis (εἰς) [pronounced ICE] plus the accusative plural of egô (ἐγώ) [pronounced ehg-OH]—“to us.”

There is no affinity between tithing and the righteousness of God. A Trappist monk lifestyle is not connected to the righteousness of God.

We all sin in different ways; otherwise we would always be standing in line to commit our favorite sins.

Romans 8:18 For I conclude that the sufferings of the present period of time [maturity adjustment to the justice of God] are not comparable to the glory which is destined to be revealed in us.

This verse contains the outline of the paragraph, verses 18-30. Basically there are two thoughts: a) the sufferings of the present time, verses 19-27; b) the glory which is destined to be revealed in us, verses 28-30.

In this outline we see three categories of present suffering, described by three groans: the groan of nature, verses 19-22; the groan of the mature believer, verses 23-25; the groan of the Holy Spirit, verses 26-7. After these three groans a promise to the mature believer in verse 28. Then follows the glory which is destined to be revealed in us, verses 29-30.

Three things to remember: a) There is no comparison between suffering as a mature believer and the rewards and blessings to that mature believer in eternity; b) No suffering in maturity is greater than the capacity of doctrine resident in the soul or in the spirit. No suffering in maturity is greater than the rewards and the blessings of surpassing grace in eternity; c) Time is just a drop in the bucket compared to eternity, and suffering in time cannot be compared to blessing in eternity.^[12]

313 01/18/1978 Romans 8:19 In undeserved suffering since the fall of man, nature awaits the Second Advent; chronology of the future

We are leaving prosperity and blessing and going into a new section, approach.

The eight imputations. Human life imputed to the human soul. Adam's original sin imputed to its genetically prepared home, which is the old sin nature. All condemnation is based upon the imputation of Adam's original sin to our sin nature. This is why a person who dies prior to reaching accountability; that person will be forgiven and spend eternity with God.

Righteousness and justice are with God; and our point of reference with God is justice.

All capacity is based upon spiritual maturity in the soul.

All of this is old hat.

Romans 8:19 For the earnest expectation of the creation awaits the revelation of the sons of God. (BLB)

Verse 19 – "For the earnest expectation of the creature" begins the with explanatory conjunctive particle gar. Then the nominative singular subject from the triple-compound noun apokaradokía (ἀποκαραδοκία) [pronounced ap-ok-ar-ad-ok-EE-ah] [apó (ἀπό) [pronounced aw-PO] = away, away from, or from; kara = head (in Ionic Greek); dokia = taken from dexomai = to take or to stretch] which means to stretch the head forward. This comes to mean intense concentration. It means also “confident expectation.” It has the connotation of security. You are not living a normal Christian life if you are insecure in any field. There is no place in the plan of God for insecurity. Insecurity means you are ignorant of the character of God, the attributes of God, and how these attributes function in the plan of God for man. Before you reach maturity you must have eliminated every insecurity area. This noun is only used here and in Philippians 1:20, which indicates that Paul coined the word. It means intense concentration resulting in confident expectation. We translate it that way here: “confident expectation.” This is talking about nature, and the question arises: Does nature think? Next comes the genitive singular of ktisis (κτίσις) [pronounced KTEES-iss] which means “creation” and refers to the material universe. “For the confident expectation of the material universe [of the creation].”

Undeserved suffering is going to be presented as an adjunct to prosperity.

We are studying the suffering of nature—we might call this nature’s undeserved suffering. In the winter, the most beautiful tulips in the world, up in Holland, Michigan; or all those roses in Tyler, Texas. They don’t deserve this. This is nature’s undeserved suffering. But they will come out again in the Spring.

“waiteth for the manifestation of the sons of God” – the verb is the present middle indicative from the compound apekdechomai (ἀπεκδέχομαι) [pronounced ap-ek-DEHKKH-om-ahee]. In secular Greek this meant to draw a conclusion, but it was used also for another meaning: to await a conclusion to be drawn by someone else. When it came into Koine Greek the verb meant to wait for someone, and it is used by Paul for the expectation of a conclusion which God will draw, or the expectation of the end of the matter. In other words, how God is going to turn it all out. In other words the material universe stands in an attitude of expectation, waiting for God to work it all out; to work out their undeserved suffering for blessing. Nature knows what we do not: that all things work together for good. And even though nature is under a curse at the present time, that curse will be removed at the second advent. So nature, between Adam’s fall and the second advent, is under undeserved suffering, a perfect illustration of what is coming up in this paragraph—blessing by undeserved suffering. God demonstrates to a few—those who crack the maturity barrier—that happiness can be just as easily related to unpleasant circumstances, and that you can be just as happy in suffering as you are in what we commonly call prosperity circumstances. And also, that there is no circumstance in this life which is greater than divine provision for the mature believer, the one who is being blessed by undeserved suffering. “For the confident expectation of the material universe [of the creation] waits eagerly [or, stands in eager anticipation].” The present tense is a customary present to denote what may reasonably be expected to occur in the material universe. The middle voice: this is a deponent verb, therefore middle in form but active in meaning. The material universe produces the action of the verb. The indicative mood is declarative, viewing the verbal action from the standpoint of reality.

Next is the accusative singular direct object from the noun apokalupsis (ἀποκάλυψις) [pronounced ap-ok-AL-ooop-sis]. The word means disclosure, revelation, the revealing of something—“for the revealing.” This is a reference to the second advent of Christ where the Church as the royal family of God and the Old Testament believers will be presented in resurrection bodies. The Church receives resurrection bodies at the Rapture. At the second advent another resurrection occurs: the Old Testament believers. All are brought together for a big manifestation. The “sons of God” is a descriptive genitive plural from huios (υἱός, οὐ, ὁ) [pronounced hwee-OSS]—adult sons, plus the possessive genitive of theos (θεός) [pronounced theh-OSS] with the definite article—“sons of the God.”

Romans 8:19 For the confident expectation of the material universe waits eagerly for the revealing of the sons of God.

“Sons of God” fall into two categories here: the royal family of God or the Church Age believer who receives a resurrection body at the Rapture,^[13] and the Old Testament believer, both Jew and Gentile, who receives a resurrection body at the second advent. This is the revealing of the sons of God.

The imputation of blessing and reward to the believers. The bride is cleansed; the sin nature is removed. Then the 2nd advent occurs. Operation footstool; demons are publically displayed; Satan is imprisoned for 1000 years. This brings us to the coronation of the groom. The wedding supper of the Lamb. The groom, the Lord Jesus Christ; the Old Testament believers in resurrection bodies; the friends of the bride and groom.

Order of Events

1. The rapture of the church.
2. Philippians 2 the big genuflex
3. The Judgment Seat of Christ; the evaluation of our lives. The bestowal of rewards and the destruction of human good. Reward based upon doctrine in the soul.
4. The bride returns with Christ.
5. The manifestation of the bride. The bride is presented.
6. Operation footstool. Psalm 110:1 1Corinthians. 15
7. The coronation of the groom.
8. The wedding supper of the lamb.

Romans 8:19 For the confident expectation of the material universe waits eagerly for the revealing of the sons of God.

Points

1. The reason for this eager anticipation is explained in the next two verses. The material universe suffered when Adam committed that sin. Gen 3:17–18
2. In bondage waiting for deliverance. All year long in some places.
3. The 2nd advent does two things. It presents the bride and restores nature to its pristine perfection. The Millennium is introduced.
4. The present curse on nature will be removed at the 2nd advent.

5. Furthermore, the personification of nature sets up a parallel of undeserved suffering for the mature believer. Cactus lets you know that nature is suffering.
6. The material universe is not alien to mankind. Nature was designed for man's pleasure and it was in alliance with man's soul. There is an affinity between the human soul and nature.
7. Nature can only be the ally of man in the perfect environment provided by God.
8. If the nonrational creature, nature or the material universe, stands in eager anticipation, how much more should the rational believer anticipate...
9. If non rational creature anticipate the ...; how much more should the believer anticipate perfect environment.
10. This demands anticipation by born again believers.
11. The enthusiasm of animate creation should exceed that of inanimate creation.
12. If the material world surrounding man under the curse of man's sin, can eagerly anticipate what is coming, surely rational man can also anticipate such a future.

No undeserved suffering for the reversionist.

Only doctrine can be infused into the life.

Doctrines of the royal family of God, uniqueness of the Church Age; the rapture of the church, the church will not go through the Tribulation, the manifestation of the bride.

Romans 8:19 For the confident expectation of the material universe waits eagerly for the revealing of the sons of God.

Going to play "the Towering Inferno" for Saturday night at the movies. Hot stars in there.

These notes are from this lesson and from Lesson #315. Taken from NB2 and the notes match up reasonably well (some of the numbering is off).

Doctrine of the Rapture

1John 6/7/81; 11/18/79; Romans 01/19–20/1978 (#314–315) Genesis 4/8/76; Ephesians 615-6, 1186 4/24/90

A. Definition.

1. While the Rapture is defined as the act of being transported, it is also defined as the state of being rapt or carried out of oneself. However, these definitions do not apply here. Rapture is used here in a technical theological sense for the resurrection of the royal family of God.

2. Since the Church or royal family of God is the first spiritual building to be completed, it is resurrected after our Lord. It is the second phase of the first resurrection following the resurrection of Christ.
 3. Christ is resurrected, ascended, and seated at the right hand of the Father as part of the strategic victory of the angelic conflict.
 4. This is known as our Lord's battlefield royalty. This is His only royalty with no family. Therefore, God interrupted the Jewish Age with the Church Age to call out and provide a royal family of God.
 5. Once the royal family of God is completed, the Church is resurrected as the body of Christ to become the bride of Christ.
 6. The Church Age is that period of human history when the royal family of God is being formed on earth, Ephesians 1:22-23 2:16 4:4-5; Colossians 1:18 24 2:19.
 7. When the royal family of God is completed, then the Rapture occurs, 1Thessalonians 4:16-18; 1Corinthians 15:51-58.
 8. During the conclusion of the Jewish Age, the bride is prepared in heaven by receiving a resurrection body exactly like that of the Lord. Then comes the Big Genuflex and acknowledgment of Christ. Then comes the Judgment Seat of Christ, when all Church Age believers are evaluated and rewarded, 2Corinthians 5:10.
- B. The Promise of the Rapture, John 14:1-3. "If I go to prepare a place for you, I will come again and receive you to Myself."
- C. The Imminency of the Rapture.
1. Imminency means impending, or threatening to occur immediately. It does not mean immediately. The rapture has been imminent for 2000 years. When Paul described the rapture as imminent, it could occur in the next few minutes or the next day; but it has not taken place yet.
 2. Rapture is used technically for the fact that no prophecy has to be fulfilled before the Rapture occurs. The Rapture will occur when the last member of the body of Christ is saved.
 3. The Church Age is the only dispensation in which there are historical trends and no prophecy. The Church Age began with an event prophesied—the baptism of the Spirit. Our Lord prophesied this in the Upper Room Discourse and just before He ascended. The Church Age terminates with the Rapture, which was also prophesied. There is no prophecy between these two events. This is the dispensation of the mystery doctrine.
 4. No prophecy between the baptism of the Spirit and the Rapture means that the Rapture is imminent. It could occur at any time; no one knows the day or the hour.
 5. The resurrection of the Church, like our dying, is completely out of our control. Just as we have no control over the time and manner of our death, so we have no control over the time and manner of the Rapture.

6. The resurrection of the Church is totally beyond our control because resurrection is the Lord's victory. 1Corinthians 15:57, "Thanks be to God who gives us the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ."
7. While the Rapture is imminent, the Second Advent is not. Before the Second Advent occurs, there are many prophecies which must occur, e.g., the Rapture, the Tribulation, the Judgment Seat of Christ, Revelation 6-19.
8. The Rapture could have occurred at the time of James or Paul because no prophecy had to be fulfilled before the resurrection occurs.
9. Distortion of the imminency of the Rapture results in instability and foolish explanation or speculation about the time of the Rapture; hence, James gives us an admonition in James 5:7-8. "Therefore, brethren, have patience until the coming of the Lord [Rapture]. The farmer waits with anticipation for the valuable production of the soil, constantly being patient until it has received the early and the latter rains. Have patience! Furthermore, all of you become stabilized in your right lobes because the coming of the Lord [Rapture] has approached with the result that it is drawing nearer and nearer."
 - a. To have patience means to apply what you know. Patience is a system of thinking Bible doctrine, a system of concentration, the application of doctrine to experience. In effect, that application says, "As long as I'm alive, I have control over my life. I can, by positive volition, execute the protocol plan of God or, by negative volition, be a cosmic believer and be my own worst enemy."
 - b. The farmer invests by sowing seed. He must break up the soil and sow the seed, then he must wait. There's nothing he can do while waiting; the seed will either come up or not. Either he will have production or he will not. In the time of this writing, that depended upon the soil and the rains. The farmer did not have control over those elements.
 - c. Verse 8 goes on to tell us how to have patience. You cannot have patience without a stabilized mentality.
 - d. "Drawing nearer" means to be approaching. Every day in the Church Age, the Rapture draws closer. Every day that the Rapture approaches, you still have control over your life as long as you live. You have control in the sense that you can be a winner or a loser.
10. Because there was no unfulfilled prophecy before the Rapture could occur, the early Church anticipated the Rapture under the concept of imminency, 1Corinthians 1:4-8. "I always thank my God concerning you for the grace of God which was given to you in Christ Jesus, that in everything you were enriched by Him by all the doctrine and all the knowledge, even as the testimony concerning you was confirmed among you. You were not lacking any of the spiritual gifts. You should be eagerly waiting for the revelation of our Lord Jesus Christ [Rapture], who will strengthen you to the end [of Church Age], blameless in the day of our Lord Jesus Christ."

- a. The Corinthian church was made up of losers, yet Paul thanked God concerning them because they were the beneficiaries of phenomenal grace, were in union with Christ, and most of all, were "enriched by Him." Each had: a portfolio of invisible assets, his very own palace-the operational divine dynasphere, the indwelling of the Father, Son, and Spirit, and the 100% available divine omnipotence of the Father, Son, and Spirit.
 - b. Enrichment in the Christian life is not measured in terms of work and Christian service, but in terms of doctrine and knowledge. Yet most of the Corinthian believers rejected that doctrine.
 - c. To be "strengthened to the end" refers, not to the end of their lives, but to the end of the Church Age. Since they died before then, what does this mean? Every believer has equal privilege and equal opportunity to execute the protocol plan of God. But it cannot be executed in human power, dynamics, energy, works, or personality; it is executed in that knowledge of doctrine and in the omnipotence of God the Father, in the omnipotence of Jesus Christ, and in the omnipotence of God the Holy Spirit. The omnipotence of Jesus Christ personally preserves history and perpetuates it, and so guarantees that the Church Age will run its course.
 - d. In a resurrection body, you will be "blameless" forever.
11. So while the Rapture is imminent, no one really knows when it will occur. In the meantime, the royal family of God lives in this dispensation of historical trends, Revelation 2-3.
 12. Three times in Revelation is the phrase, "I am coming soon": Revelation 22:7,12,20. Remember that, to the Lord, a day is a thousand years and a thousand years as a day. This statement was made in A.D. 96, and this is now A.D. 1990. Therefore, "soon" connotes imminency, not immediacy.
 13. The Rapture of the Church is the next prophetic event to occur in history.
 14. Tit 2:13, "Waiting with keen anticipation for that blessed hope [Rapture], even the appearance of the glory of our great God and Savior, Christ Jesus."
 - a. How do you wait with keen anticipation? You wait through thinking; you wait with patience, which is the application of doctrine. You know the Rapture is coming. It may not occur in your lifetime, but you still know it's coming. In this way you apply doctrine, are occupied with the person of Jesus Christ, utilize +H, virtue-love, hope 2 and hope 3, so that you have a wonderful life and death.
 - b. The glory of this world passes away (SIC TRANSIT GLORIA MUNDI) because it is based on the achievement of man, on visible heroes. But we are called to become invisible heroes by advancing to spiritual maturity.
 - c. Jesus Christ is the glory, the resurrection, and the life.

15. The imminency of the Rapture is a doctrine for mature believers only. A mature believer is eager for the Rapture to occur. He is so occupied with Christ that he looks for the Rapture.

16. Only the Trinity knows when the Rapture is going to occur.

D. The Power of Resurrection.

1. The power that raised Jesus Christ from the dead is the same power that resurrects each of us at the Rapture or resurrection of the Church.

2. Both the great power experiment of the Hypostatic Union and the great power experiment of the Church Age terminate in resurrection. Our Lord's resurrection at the end of the great power experiment of the Hypostatic Union was the first resurrection in history. The Rapture of the Church is the first mass resurrection, when all Church Age believers receive their resurrection bodies.

3. Between the first two resurrections in history is the unique Church Age, the time when maximum divine power is available to every believer.

4. 1Corinthians 6:14, "Now God has not only resurrected our Lord, but He will raise us up through His power."

a. The omnipotence of God the Father restored our Lord's human spirit in heaven to His body in the grave and thereby became an agent in the resurrection of the humanity of Jesus Christ, Acts 2:24; Romans 6:4; 1Corinthians 6:14; Ephesians 1:20; Colossians 2:12; 1Thessalonians 1:10; 1Peter 1:21.

b. The omnipotence of the Holy Spirit restored our Lord's human soul in Hades to His body in the grave and thereby became an agent in the resurrection of the humanity of Jesus Christ, Romans 1:4, 8:11; 1Peter 3:18

c. Because the great power experiment of the Hypostatic Union has been extended into the Church Age, the power that raised Jesus Christ from the dead is now available to every Church Age believer.

5. After His physical death, our Lord's human spirit went to the third heaven into the presence of God the Father. His human soul went to Hades. His body went into the grave. Three days and nights later, the omnipotence of God the Father restored His human spirit to His body, the omnipotence of the Holy Spirit restored His soul to His body, and He received His resurrection body.

6. So the power that raised Jesus Christ from the dead is not only the same power that will raise us from the dead, but in addition, it is the power made available to us today. The omnipotence of God the Father is available to you through your very own portfolio of invisible assets. The omnipotence of Jesus Christ is available to you, for He daily preserves and perpetuates human history. The omnipotence of the Holy Spirit is available to you inside the divine dynasphere.

7. Because the great power experiment of the Hypostatic Union has been extended into the Church Age, the power that raised Jesus Christ from the dead is now available to you. But that requires post-salvation epistemological rehabilitation.

E. Scriptural Documentation.

1. Phil 3:11, "If by any means I might arrive with reference to the exit resurrection, the one from the dead."
2. 1John 3:2-3, "Beloved, now we are the children of God, and what we will be He has not yet revealed. However, we know that if He should appear, we shall be [exactly] like Him because we shall see Him as He is. And everyone who keeps on having this hope [hope 3] in Him purifies Himself [in the divine dynasphere] even as He is pure [ultimate sanctification in a resurrection body]."
3. Titus 2:13, "Looking for that blessed hope [the hope of blessing, hope 3] and the appearing of the glory of our great God and Savior, Jesus Christ."
4. 1Corinthians 6:14, "Now God has not only resurrected the Lord, but He will raise us up through His power."
5. 1Thessalonians 4:13-18.
 - a. 1Thessalonians 4:13, "But we do not want you to be ignorant, brethren, about those who are asleep that you may not grieve, as to the rest of the world who have no hope."
 - (1) The worst thing that can happen to you is to be ignorant of Bible doctrine.
 - (2) The Thessalonian believers were very confused. They had learned about the imminency of the Rapture very early. Yet people were dying before the Rapture occurred, causing them to conclude that those who died wouldn't be included in the Rapture. Their ignorance led to distortion.
 - (3) Being asleep is an analogy to the body sleeping in the grave, waiting for the resurrection.
 - (4) The unbeliever has no hope, for after death there is nothing for him but the Lake of Fire.
 - b. 1Thessalonians 4:14-16, "If we believe that Jesus died and rose again [and we do], even so God [omnipotence of God the Father] will bring with Him those who have fallen asleep. For this doctrine we communicate to you by the Word of the Lord, that we who are alive and remain until the coming of the Lord [Rapture] shall not precede those who have fallen asleep. For the Lord Himself shall descend from heaven with a shout, with the voice of the archangel and with the trumpet of God; in fact, the dead in Christ shall rise first."
 - (1) In the angelic order of battle, two archangels or army commanders of angels are mentioned in the Bible: Michael and Gabriel.
 - (2) Since Michael is called the "prince of Israel" in Dan 10:21 and seems to be associated with Israel in Dan 12:1 and Jude 9, this must be a reference to the voice of the other archangel, the voice command of Gabriel.

- (3) Gabriel seems to be associated with the Church. He makes the announcement of the great power experiment of the Hypostatic Union in Luke 1:19 and 26.
 - (4) There were two sources of command for military activity in the ancient world: the voice command and the trumpet command. The trumpet command assembles the dead in Christ at the Rapture.
 - (5) The omnipotence of God the Father raises the dead in Christ by replacing their former bodies of corruption with resurrection bodies of incorruption (1Corinthians 15:53-54).
- c. 1Thessalonians 4:17, "Then we who are living who remain on the earth shall be caught up together with them [dead believers] in the clouds to meet the Lord in the air, and so shall we ever be with the Lord." The omnipotence of the Holy Spirit provides a resurrection body for the living believers at the Rapture, replacing their bodies of mortality with resurrection bodies of immortality (1Corinthians 15:53-54).
 - d. 1Thessalonians 4:18, "Therefore, comfort each other with these doctrines." These doctrines are a source of comfort when you have lost a loved one. These doctrines are a source of blessing as you face the adversities of life and realize that there's something far beyond this life, and that God has given you an eternal state in a permanent body that will never experience pain or deterioration in any possible way.
6. Revelation 3:11, "I will be coming soon; seize [grasp, become the master of] what you have [Bible doctrine], so that no one may take away your crown."
 - a. The present active imperative of the verb krateô (κρατέω) [pronounced krat-EH-oh] tells you what you should be doing if the Rapture occurs. The word means: to seize, to grasp, to get possession of, and to become the master of something. You should be learning Bible doctrine consistently in preparation for the Rapture.
 - b. Seizing, grasping, or becoming master of what you have is a reference to perception, cognition, and application of Bible doctrine on a consistent basis. This is how you prepare for the Rapture, as well as how you keep other people from distracting you from attaining your escrow blessings for eternity. Losers participate in the resurrection of the Church but lose their escrow blessings for eternity.
- F. The Rapture and the Big Genuflex, Philippians 2:9-11. The entire royal family of God will identify Jesus Christ as the head of the family to the glory of the Father. The Church in resurrection body makes a formal acknowledgment of the Father's function in the resurrection, ascension and session of Christ. The Big Genuflex occurs after the Rapture and before the Judgment Seat of Christ. We will kneel in front of the Lord Jesus Christ in a resurrection body. The first emotion that we will have is directed toward Christ. Therefore, also, the God (God the Father) has exalted Him [to the maximum] and He has bestowed on Him the rank which is above every rank [battlefield royalty] in order that in the Presence of the Person of Jesus every knee of heaven shall bow both the ones on earth and the ones under the earth. Every tongue shall acknowledge the Jesus Christ is Lord resulting in God the Father.

G. Characteristics of the Rapture.

1. Cognizance and application of the doctrine of the Rapture provides stability for the royal family in phase two of the plan of God, 1Corinthians 15:58 Therefore, my beloved brothers, be stabilized (immoveable) always abounding in the production of the Lord, knowing that your labor is not empty in the Lord. This is not being stubborn, which is ignorance; but being stable.
2. The Rapture takes the sting out of death. 1Corinthians 15:54-57, "Death is swallowed up in victory. O death where is your victory, O death, where is your sting?" Shakespear stole a great deal from the Bible.
3. The Rapture removes hysteria and the hopelessness of bereavement, 1Thessalonians 4:13-14. However, we do not desire you to be ignorant, royal family, about those who are asleep [Christian death; the body is sleeping waiting for the resurrection] in order that you might not grieve as the rest of the world who have no hope. For if we believe that Jesus died and rose again [which we do] so also the God will bring with him those who have fallen asleep in Jesus.
4. The Rapture is a source of comfort in time of bereavement, 1Thessalonians 4:15-18 For this doctrine in the Lord we communicate to you, that we who are alive who remain until the coming of the Lord [the rapture] shall not precede those who are asleep for the Lord Himself will descend from heaven with a command with the voice of the archangel, also with the bugle of God, the dead in Christ shall rise first and then we who are alive who remain shall be caught up together with them in the clouds for the purpose of meeting the Lord in the air, and so we shall always be with the Lord. Therefore, comfort one another with these doctrines. Philippians 1:6.

H. The Rapture is a part of ultimate sanctification, Ephesians 5:26-27. The royal family of God is purified at the Rapture. Human good and evil are burned and the old sin nature is removed.

I. The Rapture is the basis for confidence. Confidence is awareness of security. Integrity is a manifestation of awareness/cognizance. Many of the so-called martyrs died the sin unto death.

1. The metabolization of doctrine and resultant growth to maturity results in occupation with Christ, whereby the believer waits with keen anticipation for the Rapture, Titus 2:13 Waiting with keen anticipation for that happy guarantee, even the appearance of glory of that Great God, even our Savior, Jesus Christ; Philippians 1:6 For I have confidence in this same doctrine, that He Who began a good work in you will accomplish it until the day of Christ Jesus (being the rapture of the church); 1Peter 1:3 Blessed by the God, even the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, Who, according to His great mercy, has caused us to be born again to a living confidence through the resurrection of Jesus Christ from deaths. The word for confidence again is elpis (ἐλπίς) [pronounced el-PIS], which we often translate hope. The modern concept of hope is lack of confidence; lack of assurance.

2. The Rapture is categorized under three kinds of hope.
 - a. Living hope, 1Peter 1:3.
 - b. Blessed hope, Titus 2:13.
 - c. Purifying hope, 1John 3:3.

J. Chronology of the Rapture.

1. The Rapture takes place, 1Corinthians 15:51-58; 1Thessalonians 4:13-18.
2. The Big Genuflex occurs, Philippians 2:9-11. Emotion must follow doctrine; not vice versa.
3. The Judgment Seat of Christ when we receive our efficiency rating, 2Corinthians 5:10; Romans 5:10.
4. Bride returns with Christ at the Second Advent with our resurrection bodies, 1Thessalonians 3:13.
5. The manifestation of the Bride, Romans 8:19; Colossians 2:15 3:4 On the occasion when Christ our life might be made manifest, also you shall become manifest together with Him in glory.
6. Operation Footstool, Psalm 110:1; Zech 13:2; Colossians 2:15; 1Corinthians 15:24-25. The fallen angels are removed from the earth and incarcerated.
7. The Coronation of Christ, Revelation 19:6.
8. The Wedding Supper of the Lamb, Revelation 19:6-9 And I heard as a voice of a great crowd of people [the OT saints] and as a voice of many waters [the tribulational martyrs, who are the friends of the groom] and as a voice of mighty thunderings [the tribulational believers alive at the second advent]; singing, "Praise the Lord because the Lord God all-powerful has become King [this is an act of worship, where we first must have cognizance]. Let us express super-happiness and let us give glory to Christ because the wedding of the Lamb has occurred and His bride [the church] has prepared herself [the 7 year preparation, receiving a resurrection body minus the old sin nature, our human good burned, our rewards and decorations received]. And it was given to her [the church, the bride] that she herself should be clothed in fine linen [the perfection of ultimate sanctification; the meeting of imputed righteousness with a resurrection body] and the unsoiled [absence of human good and evil] for the fine linen is the justification of the royal family. And He said to me, "Write, happinesses to the ones invited to the wedding supper of the Lamb" and He says to me, "These are genuine doctrines from the source of the God [the friends of the groom are there in their resurrection bodies] and the friends of the bride [it will be 1000 years before they receive their resurrection bodies].
 - a. The groom is the Lord Jesus Christ; the bride is the royal family of God or the church; there are the friends of the groom and the friends of bride (who wait outside for the bride to show up). The friends of the groom are all the OT believers; and they receive their resurrection bodies. The friends of the bride who are the believers alive at the end of the Tribulation; and they go into the Millennium as the initial population. This begins a civilization. Matthew 25:1–13.

- b. With v. 7, the groom and the bride's father make a deal. "I will take the bride off your hands for 10,000 drachma." And the father says, "SOLD!" The groom says when he will pick up the bride. When he picks up the bride, that makes them married. They go to the groom's house and they have been partying for 3 hours. The bride's friends are cold stone sober. Then for 7 days there is eating and drinking and feasting (the Bible calls this making merry). The marriage is consummated sometime during the 7 days. The Bible must be interpreted in the time that it was written. The 7 days of feasting characterizes the wedding.
9. The purpose of the Rapture is to get the royal family of God prepared for the Second Advent and the Wedding Supper.
- K. The Rapture and Reward, Philippians 2:16 Be concentrating on the Word of Life [crossing no man's land to ultra super grace] that I may have a basis for esprit de corps (glorying) with reference to the day of Christ that I have not run in vain or worked hard for no purpose. Paul wants to have esprit de corps on the day of Christ as he sees his congregation rewarded. This esprit or "boasting" comes from the rewards that the royal family of God receive.
- L. The Rapture and the Two Resurrections.
 1. The Rapture is part of the first resurrection, which has four parts.
 - a. The resurrection of Christ at the First Advent.
 - b. The resurrection of the Church or royal family of God at the Rapture.
 - c. The resurrection of all Old Testament believers and tribulational martyrs at the Second Advent.
 - d. The resurrection of Millennial believers.
 2. The second resurrection is for unbelievers only.

Lesson #315

315 01/20/1978 Romans 8:20 Doctrine of the Rapture (pts. 7–10); undeserved suffering of the material universe

We have "The Towering Inferno" tomorrow night, not "Blazing Saddles."

If you are adamant about something that you do not understand, you are stubborn; if you are adamant about something you understand, that is stability.

The remaining Rapture points will be placed in the previous lesson. See the Doctrine of the Rapture

If you are positive toward doctrine, then God will provide for you. Since you believed in Jesus Christ, when was the last time that you were starving? We have at least 3 categories of security in time. David had great wealth; and he was a great general, meaning that he had professional prosperity. David got a lot of discipline when he was involved with operation Bathsheba; but when the smoke cleared, he had all of those things that God had given him (what the justice of God gives to the righteousness of God is secure; you cannot lose those material blessings). Discipline always hurts; if that is the way that you learn, it will hurt. We are secure; we have eternal life. The next step, take a good look at your life. When did you miss a meal. Many times you did not know what was going to happen tomorrow, but look at where you are. When you crack the maturity barrier, there are prosperity blessings from the justice of God.

When you go into shock, you stop thinking. Insecurity is like being a cornered animal; you just strike out at everything.

The more you do, the more evil that is produced. This is why we have an evil Congress; an evil man in the White House. Free enterprise was the greatest thing in our country; but bureaucracy is the worst aspect.

We have born-again believers in the White House, in the Senate; and they are dangerous. They live in the devil's triangle (sin, good and evil).

Romans 8:20 For the creation was subjected to futility, not willingly, but because of the One having subjected it, in hope. (BLB)

Verse 20 – “For the creature was made subject to vanity, not willingly.” This begins with the postpositive conjunctive particle gar which introduces a cause or a reason for the material universe eagerly anticipating the revealing the sons of God at the second advent. For when the Church is presented as the bride a shocking thing is going to occur with regard to nature or the material universe while the wedding feast is occurring. There is going to be a complete and total change, so that when the Church steps outside from the wedding feast it is going to see a brand new world. When Adam sinned nature was put under the curse—undeserved suffering—and it continues in that status until the revelation of the sons of God, the bride, the royal family. Bob says no cactus; but having cactus would not be impossible. In any case, nature will return to its former pristine state.

The next word is the nominative singular subject ktisis (κτίσις) [pronounced KTEES-iss]—“creation.” Remember that nature in undeserved suffering is an illustration of the mature believer in undeserved suffering. The undeserved suffering provides great blessing. The verb is the aorist passive indicative of hupotassō (ὑποτάσσω) [pronounced hoop-ot-

AS-so], which means to be subordinated to, to submit to, to be under authority. The preposition hupó (ὑπό) [pronounced hoop-OH] means under authority of; tassô (τάσσω) [pronounced TAS-soh] means to be in a military formation. “For the creation [material universe] was subordinated.” The aorist tense is a constative aorist, it refers to that point of time when Adam sinned—Genesis 3:17, “being cursed,” the qal passive participle of the verb arar, “constantly being cursed is the ground because of you.” Undeserved suffering came to nature, but it came as a blessing to man as well as a blessing to nature because this is the source of our food, our aesthetic appreciation of the material universe. The constative aorist refers to an action extended over a period of time, a succession of events gathered up into one entirety. This action occurs from the fall of man to the second advent of Christ. The passive voice: nature or the material universe receives the action of the verb, sharing in the results of Adam’s original sin. Nature was innocent but nature suffered along with man. The indicative mood is declarative, representing the verbal action from the viewpoint of historical reality.

“to vanity” – the dative singular indirect object from : mataiotês (ματαιότης) [pronounced mat-ah-YOHT-ace], which means here futility, emptiness, vacuum, purposelessness, and in the Attic Greek, nothingness. Here the noun does not refer to the vacuum created in the soul through the absence of doctrine, as noted in Ephesians 4:17, but to the state of futility which exists in nature after the fall. So we translated it, “to futility” which means void of purpose. Nature was originally perfect but is now void of purpose.

“not willingly” – the negative ou (οὐ) [pronounced oo] plus an independent nominative singular from the adjective hekôn (ἐκῶν) [pronounced hek-OWN], meaning against its own will. The independent nominative names an idea rather than an object. When an idea is conceived independent of any particular verbal relation the expression of it may be left standing alone in the nominative case. This isn’t a subject.

“but by reason of him” – the adversative conjunction allá (ἀλλά) [pronounced ahl-LAH] which always joins two sentences where there is a contrast. It sets up a contrast between the futility of man apart from God and the futility of nature apart from God. Then the preposition dia plus the accusative singular of the definite article which is used as a personal pronoun referring to God the Father, the author of the divine plan of mankind—“but because of him.”

“who hath subjected the same in hope” – aorist active participle of hupotassô (ὑποτάσσω) [pronounced hoop-ot-AS-so], meaning to subordinate. The constative aorist completes the action of the verb in its entirety. The active voice: God the Father produces the action of the verb at the second advent. The participle is circumstantial. We add the word “it” to complete the sentence in English; “it” refers to the material universe.

Plus the preposition epí (ἐπί) [pronounced eh-PEE] and the locative of time from elpís (ἐλπίς) [pronounced el-PIS]—“in the time of hope.” This is a reference to the second advent. The time of hope is that activity of the second advent in which nature is redeemed, as per Isaiah 35.

Romans 8:20 For the creation [material universe] was subordinated [at the fall] to futility against its own will, but because of Him [God the Father] who has subordinated it in the time of hope [second advent].

Isaiah 35:1 The desert and the wilderness will be ecstatic [qal imperfect of the verb gil, which means to dance around in a circle] in great happiness; and the desert will rejoice and blossom like a crocus.

Isaiah 35:2 It will blossom profusely [the qal imperfect of parach. The doubling of the verb is an intensity factor and it means to blossom profusely], it will both rejoice with rejoicing and sing with happiness; the glory of Lebanon will be given to it, the majesty of Carmel and Sharon; they will see the glory of the Lord, the majestic royalty of our God.

The material universe suffered when Adam committed the original sin, and since then the material universe has been in bondage, undeserved suffering, waiting eagerly to be delivered at the second advent. The undeserved suffering has great blessing connected with it, and that is where we see the glories of nature in agriculture, the food that is produced, and so on.

The second advent of Christ introduces His millennial reign in which nature will be restored to its pristine beauty in keeping with the perfect environment of the Millennium. Therefore nature anticipates the second advent, the time of the revealing of the royal family of God is resurrection bodies. Nature shared in the curse of man, therefore nature will share in the glory of the royal family in resurrection. Nature's subordination to futility is obedience to the integrity of God who has linked the destiny of man with the destiny of the restored earth. The corruption and disorder in nature at the present time, then, represents and parallels the corruption and disorder in man from the sin nature and from spiritual death. The redemption/resurrection of the believer's body is also accompanied by the redemption of nature in the restored Millennium.

316 01/22/1978 Romans 8:21a Parties and peasants; concepts of the Millennium; suffering of nature from the corruption of man

Some of the greatest periods of freedom have occurred during monarchies. We have lost the concept of a code of aristocracy.

Bob does not want a party to be taped at Berachah (the New Year's Eve party). Taping entertainment is a ludicrous idea. Entertainment is not to be taped. We do not know how to think anymore without a code of aristocracy. Bob's father said that no one should kiss the bride except for the groom. Bob deploras any kind of office party. Kissing under the mistletoe is a cheap shot. When a woman is in love with someone, then you do not touch or kiss her. Peasant thinking thinks otherwise. This is a loss of establishment thinking. A woman where aristocracy is learned has greater honor and respect than anywhere else.

The code of the royal family is coming up in Romans 12. We are headed into the direction of a code. Our thinking must be changed. There is a code for those whose thinking has been changed.

Bob goes back to reads vv. 11–20.

We are studying how nature shares the curse of man in suffering; but it will share the blessings that we enjoy.

The Millennium

1. The Millennium is promised—2Samuel 7:8-17.
2. The Millennium is prophesied primarily in Isaiah (Chapters 2, 11, 35).
3. The Millennium is presented in the Gospels.
4. The Millennium is postponed by the New Testament epistles.
5. The Millennium is plagiarized by the Tribulation with its political and religious organizations of the beast and the false prophet.
6. The Millennium is proclaimed by the angelic heralds of Revelation 10, and by human heralds in Revelation 11.
7. The Millennium is perfected, as per Revelation 11, 19.

In the Millennium the perfect environment is going to exist because Satan is bound. Demons are removed from the earth and therefore there is no religion in Christ's kingdom. The absence of religion is absolutely necessary, for religion is a part of human good and evil. Religion combines the functions of human good with evil. Christianity is not a religion. Religion is man by man's works seeking to gain the approbation of God. So perfect environment cannot exist as long as Satan is operating in this world.

Optimum Life in the Millennium

1. In the Millennium there is optimum spirituality among believers. In that day the believers will take their place as the true aristocracy of life they were intended to be—Isaiah 65:24; Joel 2:28,29; Zechariah 14:16,17.
2. In that day the filling of the Spirit will be quite different from the filling of the Spirit today.
3. Israel is restored as a nation in the Millennium—Isaiah 5:26-30; 10:19-23; 11:11-16; 65:19; Joel 2:16ff; Zechariah 8:20-23.
4. There will be the fulfilment of all the unconditional covenants—Daniel 9:24.
5. The nations of the earth will enjoy perfect environment under the realm of the universal reign of Jesus Christ.
6. There will be universal peace—Psalm 46:9; Isaiah 2:4; Hosea 2:18; Micah 4:3. There will not be any lengthy peace ever in the devil's world and therefore we must be prepared for war in order to guarantee the establishment principles of peace on our own nation.

7. There will be universal prosperity—Psalm 72:7,16. Free enterprise will operate, and the secret to free enterprise will be competition. Motivation will be competition and profit, an honorable principle.
8. The perfect world government under Christ will exist for the first time. There is no such thing as a perfect world government until Christ rules—Isaiah 11:1,2; Zechariah 14:9.
9. There will be a universal knowledge of God—Isaiah 11:9.
10. There will be perfect objectivity in the administration of justice, an absolute must for perfect environment—Isaiah 11:3,4; Psalm 72:12-14.
11. Perfect environment will exist in nature. Creation is released from the bondage of sin—Romans 8:19-22.
12. Plant life will abound—Isaiah 35. Animals will lose their ferocity—Isaiah 11:6-9; 65:25.
13. There will be a great human population explosion in the Millennium. The baptism of fire removes all unbelievers at the end of the Tribulation from the earth's population, and therefore the necessity of repopulating the earth under a new civilization—Ezekiel 20:34-38; Matthew 25:31-46.
14. The Gog revolution will terminate this perfect environment, just as it was in the time of Adam and Eve, with a revolt against God, therefore a revolt against perfect environment. (Revolution is never designed to improve man's environment; revolution is always a group of have-nots stealing power from those who have it. It is a power-grab, the stealing of power, the overthrow of authority) The Bible does not condone revolution. Revelation 20:7-10 is a revolution against perfect environment.

The firemen in Berachah said that the Towering Inferno was quite accurate in terms of what the firemen did.

There might be 100 to 150 martyrs in human history. Mostly those are said to be martyred actually died the sin unto death.

Romans 8:21 that the creation itself will also be set free from the bondage of decay, into the freedom of the glory of the children of God. (BLB)

Verse 21 – “Because the creature itself also shall be delivered from the bondage of corruption.” The conjunction dioti (διότι) [pronounced dee-OAT-ee] is a compound used to introduce an inferential clause. Where the inference is going to involve an analogy following you have dioti (διότι) [pronounced dee-OAT-ee] rather than oun (οὖν) [pronounced oon] because oun (οὖν) [pronounced oon] merely takes preceding information and draws a conclusion. But this is a conclusion to set up for the analogy to undeserved suffering in the Christian life, therefore Paul uses the correct word. Then the nominative singular subject from ktisis (κτίσις) [pronounced KTEES-iss], referring to nature or the material universe, followed by the adjunctive kai, meaning “also.” Plus the attributive use of the intensive pronoun autós (αὐτός) [pronounced ow-TOSS]—“itself.” “Therefore the material universe itself also.” The verb is the future passive indicative of eleutherōō

(ἐλευθερώω) [pronounced el-yoo-ther-OH-oh] which means to be set free. In the future passive it is translated correctly “shall be set free.” The predictive future tense refers to the second advent and the time of the Millennium. So this is a reference to the wonderful change which will occur in nature. The material universe or nature receives the action of the verb at the second advent of Christ at the beginning of the Millennium. The indicative mood is declarative representing the verbal action from the viewpoint of future historical reality. Then a prepositional phrase, από (ἀπό) [pronounced aw-PO] plus the ablative of douleía (δουλεία) [pronounced doo-LIE-ah] the word for slavery or bondage. Plus the genitive of reference singular from phthorá (φθορά) [pronounced fthor-AH] for “corruption.” “Therefore the material universe itself also shall be set free from the slavery to the corruption.”

Principle

1. The corruption is based on Adam’s original sin. The corruption is the trend toward sin. Good and evil.

Principle

1. The material universe or nature shares the bondage of Adam.
2. The material universe or nature under the curse still points mankind to the existence of God—Romans 1:20.
3. However, nature’s slavery to corruption results in man having to work for a living. Man must till the ground. The material universe shares man’s condemnation through Adam’s original sin.
4. is why there are thorns in nature. This also explains the crown of thorns which our Lord wore during His crucifixion.
5. nature or the material universe is now in slavery to corruption it becomes necessary for God to provide laws for nature as He has provided laws of establishment for corrupt humanity. “into the glorious liberty of the children of God” – the preposition eis (εἰς) [pronounced ICE] plus the accusative singular from e)leuqeria, “into the freedom.” Plus the descriptive genitive singular from the noun doxa (δόξα) [pronounced DOHX-ah], which refers to the same glory mentioned in verse 18, and a genitive plural of reference teknon (τέκνον) [pronounced TEK-non]—“with reference to the children,” believers in the process of learning, under the authority of Bible doctrine. Then the possessive genitive singular of theos (θεός) [pronounced theh-OSS]—“of the God”. The phrase: “into the freedom of the glory with reference to the children of God”—the believer in ultimate sanctification—the resurrection body minus the old sin nature, minus human good, and a reference also to the second advent of Christ when the believer not only has his resurrection body but the believer of this age is revealed as the royal family of God or the bride of Christ. During the Tribulation the Church as the royal family is being evaluated; after the Tribulation the manifestation of the children of God.

317 01/22/1978 Romans 8:21b–23a Blessing from undeserved suffering of the supergrace believer cf. of nature though sharing the corruption of man

Romans 8:21 that the creation itself will also be set free from the bondage of decay, into the freedom of the glory of the children of God. (BLB)

Eis + eleuthería (ἐλευθερία) [pronounced el-yoo-thehr-EE-ah], which means, freedom.
...into the freedom of glory with reference to the children of God.

Romans 8:21 Therefore the material universe [nature itself] also shall be set free from the slavery to the corruption into the freedom of the glory with reference to the children of God.

Principle

1. Nature not only shares the condemnation of mankind but at the second advent shares the glorification of mankind.
2. Just as the justice of God turns cursing into blessing for mankind, so the justice of God turns cursing into blessing for nature or the material universe, the illustration for undeserved suffering.
3. Christ is the glory of God.
4. The mature believer is the glory of Christ.
5. Nature at the second advent is the glory of the mature believer.
6. While nature shares in man's condemnation and corruption, nature will also share in man's glory at the redemption of his body and the manifestation of it.
7. The elevation of the believer through the principle of ultimate sanctification means the elevation of nature through ultimate restoration, i.e. restoration to the pristine glory which existed between the time the Holy Spirit renovated the earth up to the time of man's fall.
8. The corruption of nature reveals the corruption of mankind; the future glory of nature reveals the future glory of regenerate mankind.
9. The beauty of nature at present is analogous to the beauty of the mature believer, both are in the principle of undeserved suffering and yet both have a fantastic beauty that comes out of it. So just as beautiful nature suffers as personified in the groaning of the next verse, so the beautiful mature believer suffers as dramatized in verse 23.

Romans 8:22 For we know that the whole creation groans together and travails together until now. (BLB)

Verse 22 – “For we know that the whole creation groaneth” begins with the explanatory use of the postpositive conjunctive particle gar, plus the perfect active indicative of oida (οἶδα) [pronounced OY-da] is used as a present tense for perception. Perception of doctrine has occurred in the past and is emphasized as a present reality. From this perception comes the personification. The active voice: Paul and believers produce the action of the verb when they understand the principle of undeserved suffering in maturity. The indicative mood is declarative for the reality of cognizance of doctrine which turns great cursing into blessing.

The conjunction hóti (ὅτι) [pronounced HOH-tee] delineates the content of what is known. Then the nominative feminine singular adjective pás (πάς) [pronounced pahs] plus the nominative subject ktisis (κτίσις) [pronounced KTEES-iss], referring to the entire material universe or the realm of nature. Plus the verb, the present active indicative of sustenázō (συστενάζω) [pronounced soos-ten-AD-zo] [sus = the preposition sun (σύν) [pronounced soon], meaning together with; stenázō (στενάζω) [pronounced sten-AD-zoh] = to groan], to groan together with someone else. It means more than one person involved in the suffering. It doesn't mean to groan in unison but it means to be under the same affliction. "For we know that the entire material universe groans." The present tense is a static present representing a condition perpetually existing until the second advent and the Millennium. The material universe shares in the condemnation of man—Genesis 3:17, so the groaning of nature looks back to the fall of man. The active voice: the material universe produces the action of the verb. The indicative mood is declarative representing the verbal action from the viewpoint of reality.

"and travaileth in pain together until now" – the present active indicative from sunōdínō (συνωδίνω) [pronounced soon-oh-DEE-no], which means to suffer the pains of child birth, and with sun in from of it means along with others who are suffering intense pain. The customary present tense is what habitually occurs until the Millennium. Nature is like a woman in labour; she is in agony until delivery takes place. The birth occurs at the second advent; in the meantime there is the intense suffering of nature. The active voice: nature or the material universe produces the action. The indicative mood is declarative for the reality of this condition and the fact that the material universe illustrates the principle which is seen in the following verses.

The improper preposition achri/achris (ἄχρι/ἄχρις) [pronounced AHKH-ree/AHKH-rece] with the genitive of the definite article and the adverb of time nun (νῦν) [pronounced noon] follows, and is translated "until the present" or "until now."

Romans 8:22 For we know that the entire material universe groans along with us and suffers the pains of child birth together with us until now.

Principles of Romans 8:22 (excellent)

1. From the fall of man to the present, nature has shared in man's condemnation at the fall, and has shared undeservedly. No believer can be trapped by the discipline meted out to another believer.
2. The devil rules the world of corruption, therefore the devil rules the world of corrupted people and corrupted nature. Compared to what Adam had the devil rules a junk pile. Even in a junk pile, the mature believer can enjoy great blessing.

3. Nature shares undeservedly the curse of mankind. But since nature was designed by the Holy Spirit to be the glory of man, when man lost his glory at the fall nature had to go along with it. This continues up to the Millennium.
4. Nature will continue under the curse throughout the rest of the Church Age and the Tribulation.
5. At the second advent nature will be redeemed for the perfect environment of the Millennium. Why? Because nature is the glory of man. This is the same as the woman being the glory of the man.
6. Therefore while the groaning of nature looks back to the fall of man the travailing, or the pains of child birth, looks forward to the second advent.
7. Once the mother gives birth to the child the birth pains are over. The birth is related to the second advent and Millennium when nature will be redeemed and brought back to perfection.
8. Once the second advent occurs nature's curse and suffering are terminated permanently.

We know the parallel circumstance before we understand what it means. This is like a parable. This helps to explain the suffering of the mature believer. The undeserved suffering of the mature believer is similar to the undeserved suffering of nature.

When you are maligned, it is a great temptation to run around to give your side of the story. This is a temptation to speak up when you are under undeserved suffering. You learn, however, if you have true friends, you do not need to explain anything to them. Start a rumor about yourself someday and see what your friends think. Bob read a book and that was the basis for it. He started the rumor himself.

We have food, clothing and shelter, all related to nature.

Verses 23-25, the second groan of suffering: from the mature believer.

Romans 8:23 And not only so, but we ourselves, even having the firstfruit of the Spirit, also groan ourselves in ourselves, awaiting divine adoption as sons, the redemption of our body. (BLB)

Verse 23 – “And not only they, but ourselves also,” the beginning of the development of the analogy. It begins with the objective negative adverb ou (οὐ) [pronounced oo] which denies the reality of an alleged fact, translated “Not.” With it is a limiting adverb, monon (μόνον) [pronounced MOHN-on], “only.” Then a connective conjunction de, translated “and”—“And not only.” This is followed by an adversative conjunction, allá (ἀλλά) [pronounced ah-LAH], which sets up a contrast between the mature believer and the material universe, and the adjunctive use of the conjunction kai, meaning “also,” and finally a nominative plural intensive pronoun autós (αὐτοῖς) [pronounced ow-TOSS], setting the mature believer off from everyone else in the human race. “And not only nature, but ourselves also [mature believers].”

Principles for the First Half of Romans 8:23

1. Mankind must be defined here as the mature believer. The mature believer is provided undeserved suffering as a divine blessing.
2. Since this category of suffering is a real imputation from the justice of God to the divinely prepared home or target, the justice of God gives to the mature believer [to +R] undeserved suffering. Since this category of suffering is a real imputation from the justice of God to the divinely-prepared home or target, the righteousness of God, it is neither earned nor deserved.
3. Therefore this suffering must be distinguished from divine discipline and punitive action from the justice of God.
4. The suffering is real but is designed for great blessing.
5. The suffering for blessing category follows two general trends: a) Personal catastrophe and disaster; b) National catastrophe and disaster.
6. While mature believers suffer from divine discipline for personal sins this suffering is not included in the special blessing category.
7. When suffering comes to the mature believer it is not designed to detract from blessing but to add blessing to blessings.

1977 Romans

Lesson #318

318 01/23/1978 Romans 8:23b Blessing implications of "First Fruits of the Spirit"; doctrine of logistical grace

Something about Halley's Comet. By order of the colonel, be in fatigues tomorrow, and Halley's Comet will appear in the theater. It is a joke about orders being repeated and misunderstood.

Communist brutalization of a pastor and his son is beat to death in front of him. We are speaking of monsters with whom Carter toasts and jokes, as he chats about human rights. This is from a speech given in Dallas.

Principles from the previous class reviewed.

Romans 8:23 And not only so, but we ourselves, even having the firstfruit of the Spirit, also groan ourselves in ourselves, awaiting divine adoption as sons, the redemption of our body. (BLB)

"which have the firstfruits of the Spirit" – present active participle of the verb echô (ἔχω) [pronounced EKKH-oh]. The present tense is a static present for a condition which perpetually exists. The active voice: while it is true of all believers this verse refers to the suffering of mature believers as a part of a real imputation from the justice of God. This is a concessive participle and should be translated "though possessing." Then the accusative singular direct object from aparchê (ἀπαρχή) [pronounced ap-ar-KHAY] which means firstfruits. It is in the singular, however, and is used in the sense of being collective.

Plus the ablative of source from the noun pneuma (πνεῦμα) [pronounced PNYOO-mah], referring to God the Holy Spirit: “though possessing the firstfruits from the Spirit.” The adjective of source implies that the original situation, the indwelling of the Spirit and the filling of the Spirit, contributes in some way to the present character or state of maturity. In other words, the ministry of the Holy Spirit and the function of GAP contributed to maturity adjustment to the justice of God where blessing divine blessings are imputed to the mature believer.

Principle #1

1. The firstfruits from the Spirit are tantamount to blessings imputed to the believer at the moment of maturity adjustment to the justice of God.
2. These blessings are a real imputation based on two judicial imputations: JI#1 + JI#2 = the reality of these blessings in time. This is the finesse of the two imputed imputations which result in a single imputation of blessings in time. The less is the real imputation of blessing at maturity.
3. The judicial imputation of all personal sins to Christ on the cross plus the judicial imputation of divine righteousness at salvation provides the basis for the real imputation of divine blessing at maturity.
4. In other words, it takes two judicial imputations to provide the real imputation of divine righteousness.
5. The first judicial imputation involves the justice of God imputing all the personal sins of history to Christ on the cross. These personal sins are not antecedently His own. There is no affinity between our sins and the perfect, impeccably sons of God.
6. The second judicial imputation finds the justice of God imputing divine righteousness to the believer at the moment of faith in Christ. The perfect righteousness of God is not antecedently our own. There is no affinity between the righteousness of God and the believer with his old sin nature.
7. Therefore at salvation the greater in a fortiori blessings from the justice of God is accomplished through two judicial imputations: the imputation of our sins to Christ on the cross; the imputation of divine righteousness at salvation.
8. Therefore, at maturity the less in a fortiori blessing from the justice of God is accomplished through a real imputation. Divine blessing is imputed to its target, imputed righteousness.
9. If the justice of God provides the greater at salvation to the judicial imputation of divine righteousness, it follows a fortiori that the justice of God will not withhold the less at maturity through the real imputation of divine blessing.

Romans 8:23 And not only nature, but ourselves [mature believers] also, though possessing the firstfruits...

Principle #2

1. The phrase “firstfruits from the Spirit” imply a second a fortiori of divine blessing.
2. The firstfruits refers to the real imputation of divine blessing at maturity.

3. These blessings are firstfruits, a down payment of blessing and rewards in eternity. They are called firstfruits because they are merely the down payment.
4. The blessings and rewards of eternity are also a real imputation in which the justice of God imputes both reward and blessing to the divinely-prepared home or target, the resurrection body minus the old sin nature.
5. Therefore the firstfruits from the Spirit are not only the best thing in life but the only thing in eternity.
6. The best things in life glorify the Lord Jesus Christ in time and are parlayed into eternal rewards and blessings which glorify the Lord Jesus Christ forever. This is why we want the eternal rewards. Those rewards glorify Jesus Christ. We are taking in doctrine so that we can crack the maturity barrier.
7. Therefore if the justice of God at maturity provides the greater—the real imputation of divine blessing to the divinely prepared home of imputed righteousness—it follows a fortiori that the justice of God will also provide the less at the judgment seat of Christ, i.e. the real imputation of rewards and blessings to the divinely prepared home, the resurrection body.
8. Consequently, the blessings of maturity are the firstfruits of the blessings of eternity.
9. These blessings are from the Spirit in the sense that only God the Holy Spirit can cause grace perception necessary for the accumulation of doctrine in the soul, necessary for the maturity adjustment to the justice of God.

What about the blessings, or apparent blessings, during the interval between salvation and maturity adjustment to the justice of God? The answer is given in four principles:

Blessings between Salvation and Maturity—Four Principles

1. What appears to be blessing between salvation and maturity is the divine support of logistical grace.
2. Logistical grace includes many wonderful spiritual things, such as the provision of a right pastor, the teaching of Bible doctrine under the principle of GAP.
3. Logistical grace includes many wonderful things temporal, such as food, shelter, clothing, transportation, loved ones, friends.
4. While these things are wonderful beyond description they cannot be compared to the blessings imputed at maturity adjustment to the justice of God.^[14]

The doctrine of logistical grace. This was covered back in Lesson #208. This represents the remainder of this lesson. This doctrine will be covered several more times in this Romans series.

Lesson #319

319 01/24/1978 Romans 8:23c–25 General Keegan re Soviets; groans of undeserved suffering of nature and SG believers anticipating future blessings

Romans 8:23a And not only nature, but also ourselves [mature believers], though possessing the firstfruits from the Spirit [= the real imputation of blessings at maturity],... (R. B. Thieme, Jr.'s Corrected Translation so far)

Romans 8:23 And not only so, but we ourselves, even having the firstfruit of the Spirit, also groan ourselves in ourselves, awaiting divine adoption as sons, the redemption of our body. (BLB)

“even we ourselves groan within ourselves” – nominative plural from the intensive pronoun autós (αὐτοῦς) [pronounced ow-TOSS], translated “ourselves,” “even we ourselves.” Why do we have the intensive pronoun used in a reflexive sense? Because we have reflexive pronoun as the object of the preposition coming up immediately after the verb.

There are no Christian works which give you blessing prior to maturity.

The verb is the present active indicative of stenázō (στενάζω) [pronounced sten-AD-zoh]—“groan.” The customary present tense denotes what habitually occurs when the mature believer is given undeserved suffering. The active voice: the mature believer produces the action of the verb in suffering for blessing. The indicative mood is declarative for the reality of undeserved suffering in the life of the mature believer.

Then the prepositional phrase en (ἐν) [pronounced en] plus the locative plural from the reflexive pronoun heautou (ἐαυτοῦ) [pronounced heh-ow-TOO]—“within ourselves.” This groan is also described in 2Corinthians 12:9-10 But He said to me, “My grace is sufficient for you, for My power is perfected in weakness; most gladly, therefore, I would rather have esprit decor about my weakness, that the power of Christ may reside in me. Therefore [the testimony of a mature believer under undeserved suffering], therefore, I am content with weaknesses, with insults, with pressures, with persecutions, with difficulties for the sake of Christ, for when I am weak, then I am strong [strength in adversity is a blessing from the justice of God]. Strength in adversity is a blessing from God to the mature believer.

Romans 8:23a And not only nature, but also ourselves [mature believers], though possessing the firstfruits from the Spirit [= the real imputation of blessings at maturity], even we ourselves groan within ourselves... (R. B. Thieme, Jr.'s Corrected Translation so far)

Principles from Romans 8:23

1. The groan is the reality of undeserved suffering from the justice of God to the mature believer.
2. To be suffering must hurt, therefore the groan. The groan personalizes the suffering.
3. But no matter how great or what the category of suffering may be to the mature believer it is a blessing designed for a greater blessing. It is given at a time of blessing to intensify blessing. It is given in time of blessing to demonstrate the power of God as greater than the power of the ruler of this world. It is given in time of blessing to demonstrate, to guarantee, future blessing in eternity, and it is a down payment on that future reward.

4. When suffering can only be a blessing the believer is on top of life.
5. If the mature believer can take the worst of life, obviously he can take the best of life. The extremes demonstrate the stability and confidence of maturity.
6. The worst and the best all come to the mature believer.
7. No disaster can trap the mature believer.
8. Under the principle of undeserved suffering to the mature believer neither personal nor national disaster can trap the believer and enslave him to the suffering or the disaster.
9. Undeserved suffering does not trap the mature believer but frees him to new spheres of blessing. He is free rather than trapped.
10. Undeserved suffering follows two general trends, i.e. personal catastrophe and disaster plus national catastrophe or historical disaster.
11. Such undeserved suffering cannot trap the believer, for undeserved suffering to the mature believer is a real imputation from the justice of God to the righteousness of God.
12. Therefore undeserved suffering to the mature believer is neither earned nor deserved but simply designed by the justice of God as an imputed blessing.

“waiting for the adoption” – the present middle participle from the compound verb apekdechomai (ἀπεκδέχομαι) [pronounced ap-ek-DEHKH-om-ahēe]. It is used in secular Greek literature to mean to draw a conclusion. However, the Roman writer Heliodorus set a precedent for it by using the verb to denote waiting. That is where the Koine Greek picked it up. It connotes the idea of waiting for someone and is used by Paul in the sense of confident expectation. Therefore he means here to anticipate or to stand in eager anticipation—“waiting eagerly” or “standing in eager anticipation.” The present tense is a customary present, it denotes what habitually occurs when the mature believer faces adversity and suffering. The middle voice: a deponent verb, middle in form but active in meaning. Therefore the mature believer produces the action of the verb. The participle is circumstantial for the attitude of the mature believer in time for undeserved suffering. Plus the accusative singular direct object from hiothesía (ὑιοθεσία) [pronounced hwee-oth-es-EE-ah] which is technical for adoption—“eagerly anticipating the adoption.” Here the adoption refers to the believer in ultimate sanctification.

“to wit, the redemption of the body” – the accusative of apposition from apolutrōsis (ἀπολύτρωσις) [pronounced ap-ol-OO-troh-sis] which means redemption, plus the descriptive genitive singular from sōma (σῶμα) [pronounced SOH-mah] referring to the human body in resurrection, plus the possessive genitive from the personal pronoun egó (ἐγώ) [pronounced ehg-OH]—“the redemption of the our body.” This phrase must be distinguished from the redemption of the soul at salvation.

Romans 8:23 And not only nature, but ourselves also [as mature believers], though possessing the firstfruits from the Spirit, even we ourselves groan within ourselves, eagerly anticipating the adoption, [that is] the redemption [or resurrection] of our body.

Just as nature groans in anticipation of a wonderful fulfillment in the future, so our body groans under undeserved suffering, anticipating the greatness of our eternal state.

Romans 8:24 For in this hope we were saved; but hope being seen is no hope; for does anyone hope for what he sees? (BLB)

Verse 24 – “For we are saved by hope” is the postpositive conjunctive particle gar used as an explanatory conjunction, plus the word for hope, a dative of reference from elpís (ἐλπίς) [pronounced el-PIS], a future reference relating to the resurrection body. The noun means hope, expectation, or prospect. So we can translate it, “For with reference to that expectation.” This is the anticipation of the redemption of the body or resurrection.

There is a definite article used as a demonstrative pronoun. Next is the aorist passive indicative of the verb sôzô (σώζω) [pronounced SOHD-zoh], referring to salvation adjustment to the justice of God. This is a constative aorist for a momentary action of faith in time. The constative aorist gathers up into one entirety the action of the verb. The action of the verb can be momentary or prolonged. Here it is momentary: faith in Christ. The passive voice: at the moment of faith in Christ the individual receives salvation. The indicative mood is declarative representing the fact of the verbal action being a reality. So the content of that future hope is the resurrection body; “we were saved” – we were saved for the purpose of having a future.

“but hope that is seen is not hope” – the postpositive conjunctive particle de used here as a transitional conjunction, not setting up a contrast as it usually does, and we translate it “now.” Plus the nominative singular subject elpís (ἐλπίς) [pronounced el-PIS] which is anarthrous to emphasize the quality of hope, our prospects. Plus the present passive participle of blepô (βλέπω) [pronounced BLEHP-oh], “being seen.” This is a tendential present used for an action which is purposed but not actually occurring. The passive voice: the believer receives the action of the verb theoretically. This is a temporal participle. So, “now when a hope is seen.”

This is followed by the negative ou (οὐ) [pronounced oo] plus the present active indicative of eimi (εἶμι) [pronounced eye-ME], and then add the word elpís (ἐλπίς) [pronounced el-PIS] as a predicate nominative: “. . . now when a hope is seen it is not a hope.” This phrase is a definition for the purpose of emphasizing that elpís (ἐλπίς) [pronounced el-PIS] or hope means prospect or expectation. This definition emphasizes the future concept of ultimate sanctification.

“for what a man seeth, why doth he yet hope for?” – the inferential use of gar means “so” or “then.” The nominative singular subject from the indefinite pronoun tís (τις) [pronounced tihç] is used in a general sense as representing a category. Plus the accusative neuter singular relative pronoun hos (ὃς) [pronounced hohç], translated “For what.” Then the present active indicative of that same verb, blepô (βλέπω) [pronounced BLEHP-oh]: “For what anyone sees” or “For what he sees.” This is a pictorial present tense which presents to the mind something in the process of occurrence. The active voice: the indefinite category of persons produces the action of the verb. The indicative mood is potential of condition. It all depends on whether the believer knows doctrine or not. Then the nominative neuter singular from an interrogative pronoun, τίς (τις) [pronounced tihç], and a present active indicative from elpizō (ἐλπίζω) [pronounced el-PID-zoh]. This is an aoristic present, punctiliar action in present time. The indefinite category of persons produces the action of the verb. The indicative mood is interrogative. So, “who hopes for what he sees” is the correct translation. In other words, expectation is not a present but a future reality. Therefore hope must be defined in this context as the future reality of phase three. We cannot see heaven and all of its details, but anticipate the reality of heaven, the reality of eternity, and as mature believers we anticipate the rewards and blessings, a real imputation.

Romans 8:24 For with reference to that [future] hope we have been saved: now when a hope is seen it is not a hope: so who hopes for what he sees?

Hope, then, is confidence of reality before the reality is seen. In time, every believer has confident expectation of blessing in eternity; so that we can be recipients of divine blessings in time. This is based upon the reality of blessing based upon having the righteousness of God. There is affinity between divine blessing and divine righteousness.

You can only have one hope at a time. The hope chest for marriage. Once you get there, no hope chest; often no hope.

We are not ready for our eternal blessings yet. This is a real imputation and we do not even have a home for it. We are walking around in a mortal body with temporal life. The rapture is called a hope; future blessings are a hope.

Bob is going to cover v. 25 in five minutes.

Romans 8:25 But if we hope for what we do not see, we await in patience. (BLB)

Verse 25 – “But if we hope for that we see not.” Again, the word de, a postpositive conjunction simply translated “Now”; ei (εἰ) [pronounced I] introduces the protasis of a first class condition, “Now if.” Then the present active indicative of elpizō (ἐλπίζω) [pronounced el-PID-zoh], “Now if we hope.” This is a customary present tense which denotes what habitually occurs or is reasonably expected to occur in the life of the mature believer. The active voice: the mature believer produces the action of the verb as an extension of his faith-rest modus operandi. The indicative mood is declarative, the reality of the first class condition.

The accusative singular from the relative pronoun hos is translated “for what.” The negative ou (οὐ) [pronounced oo] plus blepō (βλέπω) [pronounced BLEHP-oh] in the present active indicative comes to mean this: “Now if we hope [confident anticipation] for what we do not see [and we do].” At salvation we do not see the blessings of maturity, but the possession of imputed righteousness gives us some hope of having those blessings. At maturity we do not see the blessings and rewards of eternity, but the possession of the imputed blessings gives us confident anticipation. In other words, one imputation gives confidence for the next imputation. Just as imputed righteousness is the hope for blessing in time, so the resurrection body is the hope for blessing in eternity. Imputations are stepping stones to glory.

Imputations are stepping stones to glory. Once the mature believer stands before the Judgment Seat of Christ and receives his blessings and rewards of eternity, his hope is replaced by reality. There is blessing by anticipation. If you are in undeserved suffering, and this is God giving the believer a hope for the future.

320 01/25/1978 Romans 8:24–25 Three hopes + intensification by undeserved suffering; construction of potential from imputation

Bob gives an announcement and hates doing that.

Romans 8:24 For with reference to that [future] hope we have been saved: now when a hope is seen it is not a hope: so who hopes for what he sees?

Principle

1. Hope is confidence of reality before the reality occurs.
2. This is why elpís (ἐλπίς) [pronounced el-PIS] is not only translated “expectation” or “prospect” but “confidence” as well. It means confidence with respect to the future.
3. Once the reality occurs the expectation or hope or confidence is replaced by the reality.
4. Therefore hope is confident anticipation prior to the reality of fulfilment.
5. In time every believer, because of the judicial imputation of divine righteousness, immediately possesses the first of a series of hopes.
6. This hope of confident anticipation is based on the reality of the possession of God’s very own righteousness.
7. There is an affinity, then, between blessing from the justice of God and divine righteousness.
8. At maturity every believer has an additional hope or confident anticipation.
9. For the possession of divine blessing through the real imputation of maturity, this anticipates the whole concept of a fortiori of the future, the second a fortiori of blessing.

Romans 8:25 But if we hope for what we do not see, we await in patience. (BLB)

“then do we it with patience wait for it” – this is the apodosis. We have a conditional clause, and in a conditional clause there is a statement of supposition in the protasis which is the basis for the conclusion in the apodosis.

We have the greater (in effort) from God, the righteousness of God imputed to us. Our hope is on the other side of a fortiori. It follows that the justice of God will not withhold the less, which is the imputation of blessings in time.

This conclusion begins with the prepositional phrase dia plus the genitive of hupomonê (ὑπομονή) [pronounced hoop-ohm-ohn-AY] which means patience, fortitude, endurance, steadfastness, perseverance—“through fortitude.” It take fortitude and perseverance to keep on taking in doctrine every day. There are many distractions which keep us from taking in Bible doctrine each day.

Then the present middle indicative of apekdechomai (ἀπεκδέχομαι) [pronounced ap-ek-DEHKH-om-ahee] which means to wait eagerly, to eagerly anticipate, to stand in eager anticipation—“we stand in eager anticipation.” The present tense is a perfective present, it denotes what is begun in the past and continues into the present as an existing result. This is the continuing existing result of being a mature believer—eager anticipation, the new hope out in the future. The middle voice: this is a deponent verb, middle in form but active in meaning. The mature believer produces the action. This is the declarative indicative mood representing the verbal action from the viewpoint of reality.

On the greater side is the basis for the hope; but the hope that God will later provide the lesser (which is a reference to the effort of God that is required).

Romans 8:25 Now if we hope [possess confident anticipation] for what we do not see [and we do], then through fortitude we stand in eager anticipation.

Principle #1: the Construction of the Potential from Imputation

1. The first two imputations at birth: human life is imputed to its divinely prepared home, the human soul. Human life will be in that soul forever. Then Adam's original sin is imputed to the genetically-formed home, the old sin nature. The fact that you have these two together forms a potential. These two imputations for up to provide a potential for salvation adjustment to the justice of God.
2. The justice of God must condemn mankind before the justice of God can save mankind. Our first parents were condemned by original sin at the fall, and they were saved after the fall.
3. Therefore the justice of God provides two imputations at birth which add up to condemnation.
4. Condemnation must precede salvation.
5. The two real imputations at birth are the potential for salvation. So we can say, then, that the whole human race from the point of birth to the point of salvation has hope. A person who dies before the point of accountability automatically goes to heaven.
6. Two imputations combine to condemn us but the condemnation has its own hope.
7. The two judicial imputations, i.e. all human sins to Christ on the cross and divine righteousness at salvation are the potential for blessing in time from the justice of God.

8. Salvation must precede blessing, and all such blessing must be imputed to divine righteousness since divine justice can only bless divine righteousness.
9. Therefore the formula: the primary potential plus the capacity equals the reality of blessing in time.
10. Furthermore two real imputations are necessary for blessing and reward in eternity from the justice of God: the imputation of eternal life plus the imputation of blessing in time to +R forms a cluster and sets up a third potential, blessing and reward in eternity.

Principle #2: Imputation and the Anticipation of Hope

1. Hope is confidence of reality before the reality occurs.
2. Once the reality occurs hope is replaced by the reality.
3. Therefore hope is confidence, anticipation prior to reality or fulfillment.
4. For example, the judicial imputation of righteousness at salvation is the basis for hope or confident anticipation of temporal blessing.
5. Hence, the judicial imputation of righteousness at salvation is not only the greater in a fortiori, plus the target of temporal blessing from the justice of God, but the hope of blessing from the justice of God in time.
6. The real imputation of blessing at maturity provides the next hope: the confident anticipation of eternal blessing and reward at the judgment seat of Christ.
7. A factor, then, is noted. Each imputation becomes the hope of the next imputation.
8. Therefore the real imputation of divine blessing at maturity is not only the greater in the second a fortiori but the hope of blessing from the justice of God in eternity. In other words, +R imputed at salvation is the hope of blessing in time. Blessing in time imputed at maturity is the hope of blessing and reward in eternity. When hope is replaced by reality a new hope is formed until the judgment seat of Christ. All hopes are based on cognizance of doctrine, inculcation of doctrine.

Equality and freedom are not the same thing. People use the word equality in order to gain power.

1977 Romans

Lesson #321

321 01/26/1978 Romans 8 Relationship of imputations, potentials, Bible doctrine and hope; stimulus of undeserved suffering for hope of SG3

Bob is put in the position of announcing another stuffing party. He don't think that the devil is after him.

Bob is thinking he should ask if we got the 8 imputations. This is the plan of God from birth through eternity.

This X, Y and Z stuff I think is presented here for the first time.

X + Y + Z = The glory of God

First Set of Points

1. The two real imputations at birth are the basis for salvation.
2. Real imputations for salvation.
3. The first imputation at birth is life and its home the soul.
4. Second imputation at birth: Adam's original sin to the old sin nature. These two imputations form the first hope, which is salvation.
5. The combination of these two real imputations at birth result in the condemnation of the human race. Eternal salvation is our only hope.
6. The justice of God must first condemn man in order to save him.
7. Justice of God must condemn before bless.
8. The potential becomes a reality through faith in Jesus Christ.

Once the reality comes, hope is no longer needed. We are now ready for [y].

The second potential is blessing in time. It takes two judicial imputations to provide blessing in time.

The Second Potential

1. The two judicial imputations provide blessing at maturity.
2. A judicial imputation has no affinity.
3. The first judicial imputation is at the cross—all of the personal sins of the human race are imputed to Jesus Christ.
4. The second judicial imputation is at salvation. The imputation of divine righteousness at salvation.
5. Must be a real imputation.
6. Second potential is fulfilled.

[X] + [Y] + [Z] = glory of God, which is the plan of God.

Each time, a potential is produced and a hope. When you have the reality, that replaces your previous hope; and you get a new hope.

Bob likes to keep a lot of distance between himself and weirdos. This church is no place for screwballs.

We are carrying around with us a hope chest, and that is God's righteousness. When Bob gets back from CA, he is going to pour out this information until it comes out of our ears.

The reversionist will have the resurrection body only, and no decorations. Bob might even ignore us in heaven if you show up like that.

Two imputations at birth give the potential of salvation. This is the hope. Faith in Christ converts the hope into salvation.

I did not take too many notes on this.

1977 Romans

Lesson #322

322 01/27/1978 Romans 8:26–27 $X+Y+Z=$ Glory of God; intercessory prayer of the Holy Spirit on behalf of the mature believer in undeserved suffering

There are three points at which the justice of God provides blessing for mankind: salvation; at maturity, blessing in time; at the judgment seat of Christ after the resurrection of the Church. These three form the whole principle of hope in the human race. Hope is our confidence for the future. $X + Y + Z =$ the glory of God.

[X] includes the imputation of human life to the soul + the imputation of Adam's original sin to the genetically-formed old sin nature = the first potential, salvation. While we are born condemned by the justice of God the potential of salvation is the hope for the human race. The potential is not a hope without cognizance, so the understanding of the gospel becomes the hope which comes from the first potential.

[Y] includes the first and the second judicial imputations which equal the second potential. The first judicial imputation is the imputation of all of our sins to Christ on the cross. The second judicial imputation is the imputation of divine righteousness to the believer at the moment of salvation adjustment to the justice of God. These two form the second potential which is blessing in time.

[Z] eternal life, a real imputation, is imputed to the target or affinity, regeneration. Plus the next real imputation, the blessing in time imputed to God's perfect righteousness imputed to us = the third potential, blessing in eternity, the blessing and reward that comes to us at the judgment seat of Christ.

$[X] + [Y] + [Z] =$ the glory of God. God is ultimately glorified by the royal family at the judgment seat of Christ. That glory is the result of what is contained in these three radicals. This is the whole plan of God.

300,000+ tapes sent out this past year. Once we send them out, no idea what happens next. People do not forget about you if you do not send out a mailer. Got a good deal on tapes, so they put down $60k for tapes recently.

Romans 8:26 Now likewise also, the Spirit joins to help us in weakness; for we do not know the things which we should pray for as it behooves, but the Spirit Himself makes intercession with inexpressible groaning. (BLB)

Verse 26 – God does not groan. The Holy Spirit is God; the Holy Spirit does not groan. It is impossible for perfect God to groan. This is an anthropathism, a way of expressing, communicating a function of the third person of the Trinity in human terms so that human beings can understand. When a person groans it means they are in pain or agony. God the Holy Spirit is not in pain. This dramatizes, just as nature's groan dramatizes, the principle. The only real groan is the mature believer in undeserved suffering.

“Likewise the Spirit also helpeth our infirmities” begins with the adverb hōsaútōs (ὡσαύτως) [pronounced hoh-SOW-tohs] which means “in the same way” or “in a similar manner.” In a similar manner the Holy Spirit groans under certain conditions which are specified in this context. Next is the postpositive conjunctive particle de, used as a transitional conjunction meaning “and”—“And in the same way.” Then the adjunctive use of the conjunctive particle kai, but it is used here as an adverb and translated “also.”

Plus the subject, the nominative neuter singular from pneuma (πνεῦμα) [pronounced PNYOO-mah], used for God the Holy Spirit—“And also in the same way the Spirit”—and the present middle indicative from the compound verb sunantilambánomai (συναντιλαμβάνομαι) [pronounced soon-ahn-tee-lahm-BAHN-oh-my] [sun = with; anti – against or instead of; lambanomai = to receive], which means to aid or to assist, hence to come to the aid of, to help with. Here it means to give a helping hand. In the Attic Greek the word antilambanomai (ἀντιλαμβάνομαι) [pronounced an-tee-lam-BAN-om-ahēe] meant to grasp, to take up a matter, to take it up helpfully. The preposition sun (σύν) [pronounced soon] added to it meant to give a helping hand. The present tense is a customary present, it denotes what may reasonably expected to occur in the life of a mature believer. This is the indirect middle voice, emphasizing the agent, the Holy Spirit, as producing the action of the verb rather than participating in the results of the action. It is translated “the Spirit himself.” The indicative mood is declarative for the special ministry of the Holy Spirit to the mature believer only.

Plus the dative singular indirect object of the noun asthénēia (ἀσθένεια) [pronounced ahs-THEH-nigh-ah], meaning “to our weakness.” “Also in the same way the Spirit gives a helping hand to our weakness.” This is the weakness of the mature believer, the weakness of the great believer. Every believer has a sin nature and they sin personally. All people are weak no matter how great they become. People have a tendency to depend on great people rather on the source of their greatness which is God Himself.

Principle #1

1. This is a reference to the mature believer in undeserved suffering, the mature believer under the great pressure of undeserved suffering which is designed to bless him.
2. In undeserved suffering the adversity is great, the pressure is maximum, the reason for the catastrophe is not apparent.
3. Therefore even the mature believer may go into shock, panic, fall into a state of hysteria or agitation, which makes effective prayer impossible.
4. Therefore God the Holy Spirit gives a helping hand. This describes the Holy Spirit's ministry of intercession in terms of an anthropopathism.

Because we are human, we are not 100% effective in prayer. Even the greatest believers can get out of fellowship and they stop thinking doctrine.

Romans 8:26a Also in the same way the Spirit gives a helping hand to our weakness...

Principle #2

1. The weakness is not the suffering, the adversity, the catastrophe encountered by the mature believer. The weakness is inability to offer the proper prayer for the suffering. No one knows how to pray for undeserved suffering.
2. The next phrase amplifies the weakness as inability to offer proper prayer on the occasion of undeserved suffering.
3. Note that the word “weakness,” asthénéia (ἀσθένεια) [pronounced ahs-THEH-nigh-ah], is in the singular. This emphasizes not a weakness in suffering but a weakness in prayer.
4. When the mature believer in the midst of great blessing and prosperity from the justice of God encounters a great catastrophe, a disaster, an adversity, his weakness is related to his prayer function. He does not know how to pray during undeserved suffering.
5. When undeserved suffering is given to the mature believer as a part of his blessing and prosperity, such a believer cannot pray for the removal of the suffering or even the strength to bear the suffering.
6. In other words, the mature believer does not know how to pray, so the Holy Spirit takes a hand in offering intercession. This intercession is dramatized by the anthropopathism, “groaning.”

Many people can turn a phrase today, but they have nothing to say.

“for we know not” – the explanatory conjunctive particle gar, the negative ou (οὐ) [pronounced oo], perfect active indicative of oida (οἶδα) [pronounced OY-da], actually a perfect form used as a present: “for we do not know” is probably better English. Ordinarily, ignorance has no excuse. But here there is stated justification for ignorance on the part of the mature believer, ignorance in relationship to undeserved suffering, whether it is a personal catastrophe or historical adversity. The present tense of oida (οἶδα) [pronounced OY-da] is the perfective present, it denotes the continuation of existing results of ignorance, i.e. a weakness in the function of prayer in time of maximum disaster. The active voice: the mature believer produces the action of the verb—ignorance of proper prayer in time of undeserved suffering. The indicative mood is a potential indicative for a state or condition which implies that not all mature believers actually have this problem in undeserved suffering. But this is not about the ones who do or the ones who do not, it is about the great ministry of God the Holy Spirit in giving a helping hand in undeserved suffering.

“what we should pray for as we ought” – the nominative neuter singular from the interrogative pronoun tís (τίς) [pronounced tihç] is used as a relative meaning “what.” The aorist middle subjunctive from the verb proseúchomai (προσεύχομαι) [pronounced pros-

YOU-khoh-mai] means to pray, with emphasis on intercession or petition in prayer. The constative aorist tense, regardless of how long it lasts, gathers into one entirety the undeserved suffering for blessing to the mature believer. The middle voice: the mature believer who generally understands prayer, produces the action of being ignorant as to how to pray when facing maximum undeserved suffering. The undeserved suffering is strictly a blessing from God, but you have to understand how this blessing works. The whole purpose is to stimulate hope. Hope is confident expectation. The subjunctive mood is a potential subjunctive.

The next phrase, “as we ought,” includes an adverb of manner, kathó (καθό) [pronounced kah-THOH]. We can pray all right, but to pray precisely, correctly, perfectly, what we should pray in time of disaster, is the problem. There is also an impersonal verb deí (δεῖ) [pronounced digh] which denotes duty, a responsibility to pray the right prayers in time of great adversity as a mature believer—“as is proper” or “as we should” or “as it is necessary.” Even for the mature believer undeserved suffering for blessing comes as something of a shock. The shock cuts down on thinking. The proper prayer to offer on such occasions is not always instantly apparent. Since God has designed the undeserved suffering for our blessing the Holy Spirit offers the proper prayer. The obvious blessing from such prayer is the intensification of confident expectation of eternity.

“but the Spirit itself” – the adversative conjunction allá (ἀλλά) [pronounced ah-LAH], plus pneuma (πνεῦμα) [pronounced PNYOO-mah] for the subject, “but the Spirit.” Then the nominative neuter singular from the intensive pronoun autós (αὐτός) [pronounced ow-TOSS], used here as “himself”; “maketh intercession for us” – the present active indicative from the compound verb huperentunchánō (ὑπερεντυγχάνω) [pronounced hoop-er-en-toong-KHAN-oh] [hupér (ὑπέρ) [pronounced hoop-AIR] = on behalf of; entugchanō (ἐντυγχάνω) [pronounced en-toong-KHAN-oh] = to make intercession]—“but the Spirit himself intercedes on behalf of us.” The iterative present describes what occurs at successive intervals in undeserved suffering. The active voice: the Holy Spirit produces the action of the verb. The indicative mood is declarative, this is a reality.

“with groanings which cannot be uttered” – the instrumental of means in the plural from the adjective alálētos (ἀλάλητος) [pronounced al-AL-ay-toss] which means “wordless, unexpressed, or unutterable.” Plus the instrumental of means plural from the noun stenagmós (στεναγμός) [pronounced sten-ag-MOSS] which means a groan or a sigh. This can be translated “with wordless groans” or “with groanings too great for words.”

Romans 8:26 And also in the same way the Spirit Himself gives a helping hand to our weaknesses—for we do not know how to pray as we should—but the Spirit Himself intercedes with groanings too great for words.

Principle #1

1. God’s plan is greater than any suffering, catastrophe, or adversity of life.
2. When undeserved suffering causes a breakdown in the mature believer’s prayer communication with God, then the Holy Spirit steps in with the right prayer.

3. The Holy Spirit takes over the ministry of intercession for those circumstances which are beyond our cognizance and control, i.e. the mature believer's.

Principle #2

1. So important is prayer that God the Holy Spirit makes intercession for the wisest of believers (in supergrace A, supergrace B or ultra super grace).
2. Mature believers are the greatest believers.
3. God the Holy Spirit makes intercession for mature believers in order to convert their undeserved suffering into blessing in the same way that the justice of God imputes prosperity to the mature believer. In blessing, we concentrate on the blessing; but undeserved suffering makes us look forward to the next hope.
4. The intercession of the Holy Spirit provides category #5 blessing, paragraph SG3.
5. This is the same pattern as Romans 8:28 which is also for mature believers.
6. Cursing is turned into blessing, and that concept is the concept behind the intercessory ministry of God the Holy Spirit on behalf of the mature believer when he is in undeserved suffering. We are, under undeserved suffering, able to look forward to the glory of God.
7. The groans of the Holy Spirit are far beyond human comprehension.
8. Man comprehends in words, vocabulary, human language.
9. The Spirit's ministry of intercession is not in man's words, man's language; it is far beyond man's use of words and sentences in prayer.
10. The greatest of all prayer ministries in this dispensation, then, belongs to the Holy Spirit in His intercession for the mature believer in time of catastrophe and adversity.
11. The prayers of the Holy Spirit are answered and the undeserved suffering is converted into blessing. Hope is stimulated, and the third hope, the greatest of all, penetrates the barriers of eternity. There is confident anticipation of great blessings for ever and ever imputed to a forever body, the resurrection body.
12. Therefore only God can turn cursing into blessing. Only God the Holy Spirit can offer prayer that turns cursing into blessing for the mature believer in undeserved suffering.
13. This is similar to the title of the Holy Spirit found in 1Kings 19:12. He is called "the voice of silence."

Romans 8:27 And the One searching hearts knows what is the mindset of the Spirit, because He intercedes for the saints according to God. (BLB)

Verse 27 – "And he that searcheth the hearts" is the transitional use of the postpositive conjunction de, the present active participle of ereunáō (ἐρευνάω) [pronounced er-yoo-NAH-oh] which means to search, to investigate, to examine something in the mind, to analyse. The verb is used also for philosophical investigation. In the Koine Greek it connotes a thorough investigation. It was used by the apostle John for searching or investigating the scriptures. But here it is used of God's omniscience having total cognizance of a facts before God’s justice blesses or condemns in any given situation. The specific situation here is undeserved suffering; maturity later.

Then the accusative plural direct object kardia, for the right lobe, many right lobes, where all spiritual growth and attainment of maturity occurs. The right lobe, along with the human spirit, is the place of the residence of Bible doctrine which is necessary for growth. The omniscience of God knew in eternity past everyone who would ever have any doctrine in his soul’s right lobe—like 1Samuel 16:7; Hebrews 4:13. This is a perfective present, it denotes what has occurred in the past but is emphasized as a present reality. The active voice: God the Father produces the action. This is a circumstantial participle for the function of divine omniscience. “And He [God the Father] keeps searching the hearts.”

“knoweth what is the mind of the Spirit” – oida (οἶδα) [pronounced OY-da] again, and with it the nominative neuter singular from the interrogative pronoun tís (τις) [pronounced tihç], used as a relative pronoun. But here we have the nominative singular subject phrónēma (φρόνημα) [pronounced FRON-ay-mah] for thinking” “knows what the thinking of the Spirit is.”

Principle for Romans 8:27

1. Omniscience communicates with omniscience. While the intercession of the Spirit in the previous verse is described as groaning too great for words, these groanings are clearly understood by God the Father with regard to their thought content.
2. The words do not have to be uttered for the omniscience of the Father to pick up the understanding and thinking of the omniscience of God the Holy Spirit
3. Part of the great blessing of undeserved suffering to the mature believer is the intercession of God the Holy Spirit which was understood by God the Father in eternity past, long before any creature ever existed.
4. The integrity of God the Father responds to the intercessory ministry of God the Holy Spirit providing great blessing in the suffering of the mature believer. The blessing which comes to us as mature believers in suffering comes from the intercession of God the Holy Spirit.

“because he maketh intercession for the saints” – the causal use of the conjunction hóti (ὅτι) [pronounced HOH-tee], plus entugchanō (ἐντυγχάνω) [pronounced en-toong-KHAN-oh], the simplified form of the verb to make intercession. The customary present denotes what habitually occurs when the mature believer is in undeserved suffering, catastrophe and adversity. The active voice: God the Holy Spirit makes intercession, producing the action of the verb. The indicative mood is declarative, it really happens. Then a prepositional phrase, hupér (ὑπέρ) [pronounced hoop-AIR] plus the genitive of hagios (ἅγιος) [pronounced HA-gee-oss]. This is specifically a royal family thing. Hagios (ἅγιος) [pronounced HA-gee-oss] represents the high quality of the believer involved, a mature believer. It is also used for royal family.

“according to the will of God” – kata plus the accusative of theos (θεός) [pronounced theh-OSS], “according to God.” Corrected translation of the last phrase: “because according to God he makes intercession in behalf of saints.”

Romans 8:27 He [God the Father] who keeps searching the hearts knows what the thinking of the Spirit is, because according to God He makes intercession in behalf of saints [mature believers].

Principles for Romans 8:27

1. The intercessory ministry of God the Holy Spirit in behalf of the mature believer meets all of the requirements of the perfect divine standards.
2. No intercession is made which is not totally compatible with the divine decrees of eternity past.
3. God the Holy Spirit is perfect, therefore His intercession on behalf of mature believers is also perfect.
4. Furthermore, God the Father always answers the prayers of God the Holy Spirit.
5. The Holy Spirit has a perfect batting average in His ministry of intercessory prayer in behalf of mature believers.
6. This intercession is responsible for turning the suffering in adversity into the grace blessings derived from adversity, as per this passage.

Psalm 139 has the same principle:

Psalm 139:1 To the choirmaster. A Psalm of David. O LORD, you have searched me and known me!

David is speaking from undeserved suffering.

Psalm 139:2 You know when I sit down and when I rise up; you discern my thoughts from afar.

Psalm 139:3 You search out my path and my lying down and are acquainted with all my ways.

Psalm 139:4 Even before a word is on my tongue, behold, O LORD, you know it all Psalm 139:5 You hem me in, behind and before, and lay your hand upon me.

Psalm 139:6 Such knowledge [Your omniscience] is too wonderful for me; it is high; I cannot attain it.

Psalm 139:7 Where shall I go from your Spirit? Or where shall I flee from your presence?

Psalm 139:8 If I ascend to heaven, you are there! If I make my bed in Sheol, you are there!

Psalm 139:9 If I take the wings of the morning and dwell in the uttermost parts of the sea,

Psalm 139:10 even there your hand shall lead me, and your right hand shall hold me.

Psalm 139:11 If I say, “Surely the darkness shall cover me, and the light about me be night,”

This is undeserved suffering.

Psalm 139:12 even the darkness is not dark to you; the night is bright as the day, for darkness is as light with you.

Psalm 139:13 For you formed my inward parts; you knitted me together in my mother's womb.

Psalm 139:14 I praise you, for I am fearfully and wonderfully made. Wonderful are your works; my soul knows it very well.

You put my body together, but it is thought that runs through my brain.

Psalm 139:15 My frame was not hidden from you, when I was being made in secret, intricately woven in the depths of the earth.

Psalm 139:16 Your eyes saw my unformed substance; in your book were written, every one of them, the days that were formed for me, when as yet there was none of them.

Psalm 139:17 How precious to me are your thoughts, O God! How vast is the sum of them!

Psalm 139:18 If I would count them, they are more than the sand. I awake, and I am still with you.

Reality through doctrine.

Psalm 139:19 Oh that you would slay the wicked, O God! O men of blood, depart from me!

Psalm 139:20 They speak against you with malicious intent; your enemies take your name in vain.

Psalm 139:21 Do I not hate those who hate you, O LORD? And do I not loathe those who rise up against you?

Psalm 139:22 I hate them with complete hatred; I count them my enemies.

Psalm 139:23 Search me, O God, and know my heart! Try me and know my thoughts!

Psalm 139:24 And see if there be any grievous way in me, and lead me in the way everlasting!

Lesson #323

323 01/29/1978 Romans 8:28a Math formula for converting potentials of the imputations into hope and reality

$X+Y+Z$ = plan of God is what we are studying. This pulls together everything from the past month or more. We are all born to potential. We all have the potential of eternal salvation. The second potential has no hope unless there is some doctrine.

Z is the potential of eternal reward based upon Y. This is added to undeserved suffering in Romans 8:23–25; and all of this works together for good. The context is not found in vv. 26–27 but in the three verses before that:

Romans 8:23 And not only nature, but ourselves also [as mature believers], though possessing the firstfruits from the Spirit [divine blessings, paragraph SG2], even we ourselves groan within ourselves, eagerly anticipating the adoption, [that is] the redemption [or resurrection] of our body.

Romans 8:24 For with reference to that [future] hope we have been saved: now when a hope is seen it is not a hope: so who hopes for what he sees?

Romans 8:25 Now if we hope [possess confident anticipation] for what we do not see [and we do], then through fortitude we stand in eager anticipation.

Paul is by far the smartest man who ever lived. We will begin to analyze this formula Romans 9–11 are parenthetical. Romans 8 leads us right into Romans 12.

With all of these blessings comes something which does not appear to be a blessing—undeserved suffering. First hope is salvation; the second hope is blessing in time; and the third hope is great reward and blessing in eternity. In our seven imputations only two are judicial. Eagerly anticipating = hope. The third hope, when it becomes a reality, becomes the final imputation. There are three hopes, and each hope is displaced by reality. When a hope is seen, it is no longer a hope; for who hopes for what he sees.

An example of this is meeting who you think is your right person; and a relationship with them is a hope until the point of marriage. Then that reality is replaced by the potential of blessing and happiness (in marriage).

The undeserved suffering is the ignition system. In the parallel I just set up, that would be the difficulties in life for a married couple. In the right relationship, those difficulties bring you closer together.

Romans 8:28 is the property and possession of the mature believer only. You must have X, Y and Z radicals as a part of your Christian life.

Romans 8:28 And we know that God works together all things for good to those loving God, to those being called according to His purpose, (BLB)

Verse 28 – When it says “All things work together for good,” it means X radical, Y radical, and Z radical. It equals “the good” of this verse. “And we know that all things work together for good” begins the postpositive conjunctive particle de which is used as a transitional conjunction. However, here this particle has still another usage which is intensive and emphatic. So we have to change up that “and” to something which is more intensive in the English: “In fact.” We are dealing with something that is extremely important, therefore the intensification.

Then the perfect oida (οἶδα) [pronounced OY-da] used as a present tense in order to indicate cognizance. The mature believer understands the principle. This is also a perfective present tense in which a fact of doctrine which has come to be in the past is emphasized as a present reality. In other words, “we know” simply means that the one involved has already passed through X radical and passed through Y radical, and is now in part of Z radical. The potential is blessing in time, and then plus pertinent doctrine we have a second hope, so that now this mature person is saved he anticipates with fortitude—consistency of the intake of doctrine—blessing in time. Then he cracks the maturity barrier which means the hope has become a reality. The third potential is not a hope until it is converted by pertinent doctrine plus undeserved suffering. Then it becomes a hope. And with that undeserved suffering that equals the good of Romans 8:28. That is why we have the perfective present tense. The active voice: the mature believer produces the action of the verb, he knows that he has the hope through knowledge and undeserved suffering combined. The indicative mood is declarative for a dogmatic statement of doctrine belonging to the mature believer only.

Then comes the conjunction hóti (ὅτι) [pronounced HOH-tee], used after verbs of cognizance to express the content of that cognizance: “We know in fact that.” Cognizance of doctrine is the assurance and security of the mature believer. Cognizance of doctrine is the basis for the third hope which is the seventh imputation. And the whole purpose of being alive is so that we can come to the judgment seat and eternity of Christ with the seventh imputation, the blessings and rewards that will come to the believer in eternity if he cracks the maturity barrier.

Then comes the verb agapaō (ἀγαπάω) [pronounced ahg-ahp-AH-oh]: “to those who love God.” The dative plural indirect object from the definite article is used as a demonstrative pronoun calling special attention to the mature believer—“to those,” the mature believers. All things work together for good to the mature believer only. The present active participle, the Greek verb is agapaō (ἀγαπάω) [pronounced ahg-ahp-AH-oh] which means love in the sense of esteem, delighting in. It is a reference to the mature believer’s attitude toward God. Category #1 love and/or occupation with the person of Jesus Christ. Only the mature believer loves God. We are in the process of learning to love God but until we crack the maturity barrier we do not love God. The Greek order is “We know in fact that to those who love God [which is mature believers only].” This is a retroactive progressive present tense in which something has begun in the past and continues into the present time. In other words, when you crack the maturity barrier you have that capacity for love which is parlayed into occupation with the person of Jesus Christ. Occupation with the person of Christ is the attitude and function of the mature believer. These are the ones who love God and therefore only to them do all things work together for good. This is category #1 love begun at the point of maturity adjustment to the justice of God and continues throughout the status of maturity. The active voice: the mature believer produces the action of the verb with capacity for love based on maximum doctrine resident in the soul. The participle is a circumstantial participle emphasizing the fact that this only applies to mature believers. The accusative singular direct object is the object of the mature believer’s love—theos (θεός) [pronounced theh-OSS]. Included is the definite article emphasizing previous reference—“the God.”

“all things work together for good” – the nominative neuter plural from the adjective pás (πάς) [pronounced pahs] refers to the variety of undeserved sufferings which combine with the other blessings of maturity. These are blessings in time which are imputed. Remember the principle that only in time can God bless the mature believer with suffering, and this suffering has a purpose, establishing in the soul the reality of the third hope; giving that anticipation and fortitude with regard to the future. The verb is the present active indicative of sunergeō (συνεργέω) [pronounced soon-erg-EH-oh] which means to cooperate with or, as here, to work together with. The present tense is a customary present, it denotes what habitually occurs to the mature believer in suffering, or what may be reasonably expected to occur in the life of the mature believer. The active voice: the “all things” of undeserved suffering produce the action of the verb. The indicative mood is declarative for a dogmatic statement of Bible doctrine.

This undeserved suffering comes out of the context of vv. 18, 23–25.

“for good” is not quite correct because there is the preposition eis (εἰς) [pronounced ICE] plus the accusative singular of agathos (ἀγαθός) [pronounced ag-ath-OSS]—“for the purpose of good.” Agathos (ἀγαθός) [pronounced ag-ath-OSS] is good of intrinsic value. It is an adjective used here as a substantive, and it connotes intrinsic value in terms of the advantages, the privileges, the rights, including that wonderful third hope which is in view especially. This is anarthrous, there is no definite article and it emphasizes the quality of the plan of God.

Mankind has three hopes from birth. The first hope is salvation, and that hope becomes a reality when one believes in the Lord Jesus Christ. The second hope is blessing in time, and this is for the believer only, the one who has displaced the first hope. Each hope is replaced by a reality. The second hope is blessing in time, and as soon as the maturity barrier is cracked then that is no longer a hope, it is a reality. That puts the believer into the third hope, but that will not be replaced with reality until the Rapture of the Church and the judgement seat of Christ, at which time the reality will occur. But right now all mature believers in time are in the land of the third hope, and so this is for them because all things, including undeserved suffering and all those blessings, are working together for good. The good is the third hope or the seventh imputation. The three hopes are predicated on a formula: $X + Y + Z = \text{good and/or the glory of God}$.

Summary of Romans 8:28 So Far

1. The combination of Romans 8:23-25 with verse 28 changes the Z radical by the insertion of undeserved suffering.
2. X radical is condemnation with the potential of salvation. And when you get to the plus, hope is replaced by reality of faith in Christ.
3. Y radical is blessing in time. When hope is replaced by the reality of maturity there is a new hope which is portrayed in the second radical.
4. Z radical is the hope of blessing in eternity. That is the third hope.
5. The third hope is the prosperity of eternity imputed to the resurrection body.[15]
6. The prosperity of maturity is a down payment, a guarantee of eternal prosperity.

“to those who love God” is a dative plural indirect object from the definite article used as a demonstrative pronoun, calling special attention to the mature believer. The indirect object indicates the ones in whose interest the act is performed, the mature believer. It is also a dative of advantage. Plus the present active participle of agapaō (ἀγαπάω) [pronounced ahg-ahp-AH-oh] which refers to category #1 love, the mature believer's occupation with the person of Christ. The retroactive positional present denotes what has begun in the past, at maturity, and continues into the present with awareness of the third hope. The subject of Romans 8:28 is the third hope. The active voice: the mature believer produces the action of the verb as a result of maximum doctrine resident in the soul. He has cracked the maturity barrier. The participle is circumstantial, emphasizing the fact that in this verse we have an application to mature believers only. Plus the accusative singular direct object of theos (θεός) [pronounced theh-OSS], and with it the generic use of the definite article which emphasizes the uniqueness of the divine attributes leading to the unique plan of God—"to those who love the God." To love the God is to know God. "The God" refers to the sum total of divine attributes.

"to them who are the called" – the dative plural of advantage and indirect object from the definite article used as a demonstrative pronoun. The demonstrative pronoun calls special attention to the mature believer only. Next is the present active participle from eimi (εἰμί) [pronounced eye-ME], intensified linear aktionsart. This is a static present for something that always exists. The active voice: the mature believer only produces the action of the verb here, though all believers are elected/called. The participle is circumstantial for the fact that mature believers are under the principle of election, as are all believers—"to those who are." Plus the dative plural of klētós (κλητός) [pronounced klay-TOSS], meaning "called to privilege." It is used technically for the doctrine of election.^[16]

"according to his purpose" – the preposition kata plus the accusative singular of prothesis (πρόθεσις) [pronounced PROTH-es-is], referring both to the purpose and plan of God and it translated "according to a predetermined plan." Notice the similarity between this and Ephesians 1:11, "the all things."

Lesson #324

324 01/29/1978 Romans 8:28b Formula for the Plan of God for the mature believer; X+Y+Z=Good; doctrine of the third hope and seventh imputation

Bob goes right into the doctrine.

The context for v. 28 is vv. 2

Romans 8:28 And we know that God works together all things for good to those loving God, to those being called according to His purpose, (BLB)

The exegesis for Romans 8:28 is reviewed.

Romans 8:28 We know in fact that to those who love the God [mature believers], all things work together for the purpose of good to those who are the called ones according to the predetermined plan.

Doctrines important to this: the Attributes of God; Category #1 Love

The justice of God has combined pairs of imputations for each new hope. The 7th imputation is unique and it occurs in eternity. All six imputations combine to form the 7th.

Doctrine of the Third Hope and Seventh Imputation

- A. Definition. The third hope is the mature believer's confident assurance of the imputation of blessing and reward to his resurrection body at the Judgment Seat of Christ. The seventh imputation is the real imputation of eternal blessing and reward to the resurrection body. Eis + agathon is the 3rd hope.
- B. The formula of the third hope and seventh imputation is $X + Y + Z = \text{the Good}$. $X [I/HL + I/AOS = P1 + \text{Doctrine} = \text{Hope 1}] + Y [JI1 + JI2 = P2 + \text{Doctrine} = \text{Hope 2}] + Z [I/EL + I/B/T = P3 + \text{Doctrine} + \text{US} = \text{Hope 3}] = \text{the Good, the plan of God}$. Therefore, God works all of these things together for good.
1. P = potential
 2. US = undeserved suffering.
 3. All of this together is the good of Romans 8:28
- C. There are three potentials.
1. The potential of salvation.
 2. The potential of blessings in time.
 3. The potential of blessings in eternity.
- D. There are three hopes.
1. When a potential is combined with doctrine, it results in a hope. The fulfillment of one hope by an imputation results in the formation of a new hope.
 2. Hope 1 is the confidence of salvation.
 3. Hope 2 is the confidence of blessings in time.
 4. Hope 3 is the confidence of blessings in eternity.
 5. Man therefore has hope from birth to eternity. Each hope is replaced by a reality, by an imputation. When this occurs, he moves to the next hope. So the mature believer stands at the Judgment Seat of Christ with three hopes and receives his seventh imputation: the rewards and blessings of eternity.
- E. The reality replaces the hope; and there is a new hope.
1. The first hope is salvation.
 2. The second hope is maturity blessing.
 3. The third hope is blessing in eternity right after the Judgment Seat of Christ. That is the 7th imputation. That is the good of Romans 8:28
 4. Undeserved suffering is a real imputation which stimulates spiritual growth.

F. The context for Romans 8:28:

1. Romans 8:23 And not only nature, but ourselves also [as mature believers], though possessing the firstfruits from the Spirit [divine blessings in time, paragraph SG2], even we ourselves groan within ourselves [the imputation of undeserved suffering to our +R], eagerly anticipating the adoption, [that is] the redemption [or resurrection] of our body.
2. Romans 8:24 For with reference to that [future] hope [the third hope/the seventh imputation] we have been saved: now when a hope is seen it is not a hope: so who hopes for what he sees?
3. Romans 8:25 Now if we hope [possess confident anticipation] for what we do not see [and we do], then through fortitude we stand in eager anticipation.
 - a. Fortitude is introduced as it is necessary for undeserved suffering.
 - b. The third hope is only fulfilled for mature believers.
4. Romans 8:28 We know in fact that to those who love the God [mature believers], all things work together for the purpose of good to those who are the called ones according to the predetermined plan.

G. There are three radicals.

1. X radical.
 - a. X radical combines the two imputations at birth, which produce condemnation, the potential for salvation, and the hope of salvation.
 - b. Condemnation must precede salvation, because man's point of reference is the justice of God.
 - c. Justice must condemn before justice can bless.
 - d. The potential of salvation is converted into hope through cognizance of the Gospel.
 - e. Hope is converted into reality through faith in Christ.
 - f. The "+" outside of the radical is the point of faith in Christ.
2. Y radical.
 - a. Y radical combines the two judicial imputations to provide the potential for blessing in time.
 - b. The judicial imputation of all personal sins to Christ on the cross is the basis for the saving work of our Lord.
 - c. The judicial imputation of perfect righteousness at salvation is the basis for the imputation of blessing in time.
 - d. The potential of blessing in time is converted into a hope through cognizance of the pertinent doctrine.
 - e. Hope is converted into a reality through reaching maturity.
 - f. The "+" outside of the Y radical is maturity adjustment to the justice of God.
3. Z radical:

- a. Z radical combines the real imputation of eternal life to the human spirit at regeneration with the real imputation of blessings in time at maturity to provide a potential for blessing forever.
- b. The potential of blessing in eternity is converted into the third hope through cognizance of doctrine plus undeserved suffering.
- c. All of this adds up to the "good" of Romans 8:28.
- d. All things is what is in the radicals.

Lesson #325

325 02/03/1978 Romans 8:28 (Review) X+Y+Z=Good; virgin pregnancy; guillotine; principle of the Y radical

A week has passed; sounds like this is going to be a review lesson.

The first potential is salvation. When this is added to Bible doctrine in the form of the gospel. Add positive volition toward the gospel and salvation is gained. But there is a new hope, which is blessing in time from maturity.

The second potential is spiritual maturity. We take salvation and add to that Bible doctrine, this hope can become a reality. Spiritual maturity is the reality; the new hope is eternal blessing in eternity. This is the third hope and the 7th imputation.

Evil is every attack on the X, Y and Z. Evolution would be an attack on human life at birth. Negative volition toward doctrine is the attack on all of these hopes.

Since the reformation, there has been very little importance of imputed righteousness.

The virgin pregnancy is what is important; this bypasses copulation. God the Holy Spirit provided 23 perfect chromosomes to match up with the 23 pure chromosomes of the egg. Virgin pregnancy bypasses copulation altogether. No sin nature.

The key is not actually that Mary is a virgin but that the pregnancy occurs apart from copulation.

All people who experience dying grace experience it as a part of the 3rd hope.

The context is Romans 8:23 And not only nature, but ourselves also, though possessing the firstfruits from the Spirit (the six categories of blessing).

Bob explains the proper way of committing hari kari. If you fail to hit the artery, it is a very painful death. Your best friend would be standing there to speed up the process. Apparently removing the head is what he would do.

Romans 8:28 And we know that God works together all things for good to those loving God, to those being called according to His purpose,... (BLB)

Some of the exegesis is repeated.

Only mature believers can say that all things work together for good. The first two imputations at birth condemn us at birth. God must condemn us in order to bless us. This is because we are dealing with the justice of God.

The love of God would not be sufficient to save us. God's justice must save us.

All the pieces of the puzzle have been put in place.

Once you crack the mature believer, then you keep moving forward.

Romans 8:28 We know, if fact, that to those who love God (mature believers), all things work together of the purpose of good to those who are the called ones according to the predetermined plan(for the believers of the Church Age).

This contains the doctrine of election and the divine decrees.

The objective of the Christian life is maturity adjustment to the justice of God.

Lesson #326

326 02/05/1978 Romans 8:29 X+Y+Z=Good; Essence of God; five steps to glory: Step 1.Thinking; summary of the doctrine of divine attributes

Beginning in the next two verses we have an outline of the various steps in that predetermined plan.

A review of X+Y+Z=Good.

Who and What is God. This is covered in paragraph form; not everything is captured below. The same doctrine has been covered at least 3x previously (under Divine Essence). There are some overlaps with Lesson #6, the Doctrine of Divine Essence. Most of the lesson was devoted to God's essence.

Essence, from ousia. The being of God or the intrinsic attributes of God. Essence implies the existence or being of God. We came into existence and we are able to related it to ourselves and eternal life. We are accustomed to thinking in terms of change, which is not what God is.

Russia is the most morbid country in the world. Jeff Cooper, at the age of 11, was taken to Europe by his father, and he had, at a very young age, a very negative impression of Russia.

God is a Spirit and His attributes are completely hidden from us. The best we do is considering God to be some sort of a superman. Each Member of the Trinity have the exact same essence. God is One in the sense of have the same attributes. Three persons with these attributes. One can mean unique.

We all have personalities. We all have volition, a conscience, a frame of reference, a vocabulary. In this was, the human race is one in essence.

The combination of all God's attributes we call His essence. We should understand His divine attributes.

Two categories of attributes.

God's glory is the sum total of His attributes. His glory preexisted any creature.

Three characteristics of infinity: existence, immutable, and unity. God is the cause of creatures, but He is not the cause of all things that creatures do. Man and angels are given self-determination. God never makes a mistake with His self-determination.

God is in perfect compatibility with Himself at all times. He is never compromised. His unity is thereby preserved.

God is above and beyond space. God exceeds space off to infinity.

Relative characteristics as related to moral beings. We can only understand God through the grace apparatus for perception. Man can never grow by what He does. All believers are royal ambassadors. God honors the doctrine in our souls.

God's justice imputed to us His righteousness. This set up a potential for blessing in time. All blessing in time is related to God's imputed righteousness. Only doctrine gets us to spiritual maturity.

The Father, Son and Holy Spirit are names given in relationship to man. All have the same attributes, but not all attributes are occurring at the same time.

Example of David and Bathsheba. David did wrong, messing around with Bathsheba, but he never lost his supergrace blessing.

Some things which we read about, God's love, compassion, anger, etc. are all characteristics which are assigned to God so that we can relate to His actions.

Lesson #327

327 02/05/1978 Romans 8:29 Step 2. Reality of the plan of God and doctrine of divine decrees; omniscience cf. decrees and foreknowledge

Romans 8:28 We know, in fact, that to those who love God (mature believers), all things work together of the purpose of good to those who are the called ones according to the predetermined plan(for the believers of the Church Age),...

Romans 8:29 ...because those whom He foreknew, He also predestined to be conformed to the image of His Son, for Him to be firstborn among many brothers. (BLB)

Verse 29 – the step called “thinking.” The believer was in the thinking of God in eternity past and therefore thinking must be a part of our function, God must come into our thoughts.

“For whom He did foreknow” – the conjunction hóti (ὅτι) [pronounced HOH-tee] is used after verbs of cognizance in order to express the content of that cognizance. It indicates a knowledge of doctrine, and means an understanding of Romans 8:28. This conjunction demands the repetition of oída (οἶδα) [pronounced OY-da] from verse 28, this is the perfect used as a present active indicative of oída (οἶδα) [pronounced OY-da]—“We know that.” Plus the accusative masculine singular from the relative pronoun hos used as a direct object—“whom.” Then the verb, the aorist active indicative of proginôskô (προγινώσκω) [pronounced gih-NOH-skoh] [ginôskô (γινώσκω) [pronounced gih-NOH-skoh] = to know; pro = before] which means to know beforehand, to know in advance, to have foreknowledge of something. In the New Testament this verb is used with only God as the subject. The aorist tense is a constative aorist which gathers into one entirety the foreknowledge of God. The active voice: since the suffix of the verb is the third person singular, the subject is God the Father, the author of the divine plan. However, both the Son and the Spirit also possess this foreknowledge.

First of all there was the omniscience of God which knew everything that would ever happen, as well as all of the alternatives. However only the reality, what happens, goes into the divine decrees. Then comes foreknowledge or foreordination. Foreknowledge deals only with what is in the decrees. Omniscience deals with not only what is in the decrees but everything that could have happened. So it all must go in this chronological order. “For we know that whom he foreknew.” The active voice: God the Father produces the action. Step one here actually says that reality in the mind of God is omniscience, but omniscience includes other things, and so omniscience leads to the decrees and the decrees result in foreknowledge. The indicative mood is the declarative indicative for the reality of the function of divine foreknowledge.

Omniscience and Foreknowledge

1. Foreknowledge is more limited in its scope than the omniscience of God. Omniscience knows the alternative; foreknowledge only deals with the realities, and therefore omniscience precedes the decrees whereas foreknowledge follows the decrees.
2. In omniscience God knows perfectly and eternally all that is knowable, whether it is actual or possible; the reality and the alternatives to that reality.
3. However, in foreknowledge we are dealing with the specifics only—the reality. Foreknowledge comes after the decrees.
4. Foreknowledge, therefore, refers only to those things which are adopted within the plan of God—only the reality.
5. In omniscience God knows all that would have been adopted and He knows an infinite number of alternatives to what occurs. God knows what would happen if Adam did not sin; or if Adam and the woman did not sin; or if Satan did not sin.
6. It must be emphasized that chronologically there is an order, but the chronological order is not in view in Romans 8:28. However, it is in view in Acts 3:23.
7. Therefore the important conclusion: election, foreknowledge, and predestination (also called foreordination), are coincidental in respect to the objects. There is no chronology here, it is coincidence. The objects in this age: the royal family of God.
8. Rather than chronological order here we have the doctrinal principle that the foreknown, the predestined, and the elect are the same person. No chronological order here because all that is being said is that the believer is the beneficiary of being foreknown, predestined and elected.
9. Placing foreknowledge before the decrees chronologically would imply that another has caused and God is merely aware of it, and that would be blasphemy.
10. Simultaneously things are broken down into steps to indicate that believers are the object of these mechanics, thus demonstrating once again that the ultimate objective of God is the good or the glory of God, i.e. the seventh imputation.
11. Nothing can be foreknown until it is first decreed.
12. Only the divine decrees establish reality. When we get down to the decrees only what actually occurs is fed from the omniscience of God into the decrees. Then, foreknowledge only deals with cognizance of the decrees, what actually happens.
13. When it comes to chronology we conclude that the omniscience and God's self-knowledge precede the decrees, while election and foreknowledge are actually the content of the decrees.
14. Since the divine decrees establish certainty, nothing can be foreknown until it is first decreed. Hence the order: omniscience, then the decrees, then foreknowledge.
15. Since foreknowledge deals only with what God decrees it emphasizes to us that each believer was in the mind of God in eternity past.
16. Divine thinking included every believer. No one is left out of the first step: divine thinking.
17. Divine thinking related to foreknowledge indicates that God has a plan for your life.
18. Everything was decreed simultaneously, not by stages. Hence the mechanical breakdown in this context is designed to relate the believer to the plan of God, giving him confidence and assurance, setting up for him a system of potentials and a system of hope, as in X + Y + Z.

“he also did predestinate” – the adjunctive use of the conjunction kai is translated “also.” The verb is the aorist active indicative of proorizō (προορίζω) [pronounced proh-ohr-IHD-zoh] which means to decide upon something before hand, to predestinate someone as something, to pre-design, to foreordain. This verb refers to the decrees or the plan of God in eternity past. As the next few words indicate we are dealing with that part of the divine decrees or the plan of God connected with the Church Age, the royal family of God. The culminative aorist tense views the decrees of God for the Church Age believer in its entirety but regards it from the viewpoint of the existing results: the last three steps. The active voice: God the Father, author of the divine plan, produces the action of the verb in eternity past. The indicative mood is declarative for the reality of the divine decrees and the Church Age believer’s relationship to them.

“to be conformed to the image of his Son” – accusative masculine plural from an adjective, summorphos (σύμμορφος) [pronounced soom-mor-FOHS], which means “conformed ones.” To what does He want us to conform? To the Y and Z radicals. This is a reference to the formation of the royal family of God.^[17]

The rest of this lesson (20–30 minutes) was given over to the Doctrine of Divine Decrees from (Lesson #302)

“We know that whom he foreknew.” Step 1, reality is in the mind of God— foreknowledge. Step 2 is the divine purpose: reality is in the plan of God, the decrees.

1977 Romans

Lesson #328

328 02/06/1978 Romans 8:29b–30a "The First Born"; Steps 2 and 3. Entrance into the plan of God; attacks on X+Y+Z; election

Romans 8:29 ...because those whom He foreknew, He also predestined to be conformed to the image of His Son, for Him to be firstborn among many brothers. (BLB)

“to the image of his Son” – the descriptive genitive singular from the noun eikōn (εἰκών) [pronounced ī-KOHN] which means an image, an image or a likeness. With it is a possessive genitive from huios (υἱός, οὐ, ὁ) [pronounced hwēe-OSS], referring to the Lord Jesus Christ specifically. Plus the possessive genitive from the intensive pronoun autós (αὐτός) [pronounced ow-TOSS], used as a personal pronoun. There is no third person personal pronoun and therefore autós (αὐτός) [pronounced ow-TOSS] is substituted, which is also an intensive pronoun. But it is used as a personal pronoun as well as sometimes a possessive pronoun; it is an intensive pronoun.

This is a reference to the resurrection body, minus the old sin nature, minus human good. Hence a reference to ultimate sanctification which is the future of every Church Age believer. In this way we see how God creates the target, the home, the antecedents for the blessings and the rewards of eternity to be imputed at the judgment seat of Christ. This in effect, then, is another way of stating the glory of God stated in Romans 8:28. We are conformed ones to the image of His Son. That means we have the resurrection body as the target, as the home, as the system of affinity. There is an affinity between the rewards and blessings of eternity imputed to that resurrection body. They go together.

“that he might be the firstborn” – eis (εἰς) [pronounced ICE] plus the accusative plural from the definite article, plus the present active infinitive of the verb einai (εἶναι) [pronounced Ī-nī or Ī-nah-ee]. The static present is for a condition which perpetually exists. The active voice: Jesus Christ in a resurrection body in ascension and session produces the action of the verb. Then infinitive is a part of the idiom and it is the infinitive of purpose. It should be translated. “that he might be.” The word “he” comes from the accusative singular of general reference from the intensive pronoun autós (αὐτός) [pronounced ow-TOSS] which is used as the third person pronoun. This is autós (αὐτός) [pronounced ow-TOSS] in the singular, therefore it acts as a third person singular pronoun—“that he might be.” Then the object of the infinitive in the idiom, the accusative singular direct object from prōtotokos (πρωτοτόκος) [pronounced proh-tot-OK-oss] which means “firstborn.” Being the firstborn connotes three things: rulership—Christ is the ruler of the Church at present and will be the ruler of the world at the second advent; priest—Christ is ordained a royal priest forever after the order of Melchizedek; the double portion—Christ has two kingdoms of believers: Israel, whom He rules as the son of David and the Church whom He rules as the King of kings. Here in this verse the emphasis is on our Lord’s rulership of the Church, the royal family of God.

“among many brethren” – the preposition eis (εἰς) [pronounced ICE] plus the locative plural of the adjective polus, polos (πολύς, πολλός) [pronounced poll-OOS] plus the noun adelphos (ἀδελφός) [pronounced ad-el-FOSS] for royal family of God, and it should be translated “among many brethren.”

Romans 8:29 We know that whom He foreknew, He also foreordained [predestinated] conformed ones to the image of His Son, that He might be the firstborn among many brethren.

Principle

1. In this way the royal family of God was formed in eternity past.
2. Christ is the firstborn of the royal family, therefore its ruler, its high priest, as well as possessing the double portion heritage. Christ is the ruler, the high priest, and has the double portion.
3. The many brethren are Church Age believers or the royal family of God.
4. All of this is designed to read the believer into the big picture, to understand how the divine decrees relate to the seven imputations.

Romans 8:30 And those whom He predestined, these also He called; and whom He called, these also He justified; and whom He justified, these also He glorified. (BLB)

Verse 30 – step three, emphasizing entrance into the plan of God. “Moreover whom he did predestinate, them he also called” – the connective use of the postpositive conjunctive particle de, “and.” Followed by the accusative masculine plural from the relative pronoun hos (ὃς) [pronounced hohç], “whom,” and the aorist active indicative of the verb proorizô (προορίζω) [pronounced proh-ohr-IHD-zoh], which means to foreordain or to predestine. This verb refers to the divine decrees or the plan of God in eternity past, which is sandwiched in between omniscience and foreknowledge of God. Omniscience comes first and determines what was put into the decree, and foreknowledge merely acknowledges what is in the decree. The aorist tense of proorizô (προορίζω) [pronounced proh-ohr-IHD-zoh] is the culminative aorist, it views the decrees of God for the Church Age believer in its entirety but regards it from the viewpoint of existing results. The active voice: God the Father, the author of the divine decrees, produces the action of the verb. The indicative mood is declarative for the reality of the divine decrees and the part of the royal family in that. Every Church Age believer is in the plan of God from eternity past. The purpose for the divine plan is for every believer to crack the maturity barrier through maximum doctrine resident in the soul. Not only does this glorify the Father and the Son but the decrees actually contain the most fabulous and unique blessings for mature believers.

“them he also called” – the word “them” is not correct. It is the accusative plural direct object from the demonstrative pronoun houtos (οὗτος) [pronounced HOO-tos], “these same ones.” It refers to something which has immediately preceded. It is called the immediate demonstrative and it is used here to emphasize the Church Age believer already mentioned. Then the adjunctive use of the conjunction kai, “also.” Plus the aorist active indicative of the verb kaleô (καλέω) [pronounced kal-EH-oh] which means to call, to name, to designate, to summon, to invite. Here it is used in the technical sense of the doctrine of election.^[18] The gnomic aorist tense takes the doctrine of election of the royal family of God and regards it as so certain as to be axiomatic in character. The active voice: God the Father produces the action of the verb. The indicative mood is declarative for a dogmatic statement of fact. All believers in the Church Age are elected. This emphasizes, then, that every believer is in the plan of God.

The following also reviewed in Lesson #329.

Principle

1. Technically each one of us entered the plan of God at the moment we believed in Jesus Christ.
2. In eternity past the omniscience of God knew that we would make this decision. Because He knew it He inserted that into the plan of God as a reality—that we would believe in Christ. Therefore that is a part of the divine decrees. That decision means that we are elected, foreknown, foreordained. All occurred simultaneously in the decrees when God knew in His omniscience that we would believe in Christ. The omniscience of God knew that we would make this decision before human history began.
3. Therefore our entrance into the plan of God from the divine viewpoint occurred before history began.

4. There can be no greater security than to realize that before human history your entrance into the plan of God was known and guaranteed. Therefore your blessings of maturity adjustment to the justice of God were provided, even before Adam existed. Those who make it were also foreordained/predestinated. And those who don't, for it is only a potential, then something else was predestinated for you: the sin unto death.
5. Remember that election is the doctrine that relates the believer to the plan of God from eternity past, and coincides with foreknowledge and predestination.
6. Like foreknowledge and predestination, election is a part of the doctrine of divine decrees which only deals with reality.
7. God had the good sense to know billions of years before man existed on the earth who would believe in Christ during human history.
8. Election is the plan of God for the believer designed in eternity past.
9. Election is the plan of God for the believer designed in eternity past, declared by foreknowledge and functions under predestination—predestination merely is God knowing ahead of time what you are going to do at any given point. This does not take away from your free will nor does it coerce your free will.
10. The key to understanding the doctrine of election is the fact that Jesus Christ was elected in eternity past, and we as Church Age believers are entered into union with Christ. In fact, election is the basis for Church Age royal family.

Romans 8:30a And whom He foreordained, these He also called [or, elected]...

Lesson #329

329 02/07/1978 Romans 8:30b–31 Election; Step 4. Justification by imputation of +R; first of five challenges to new life: opposition

Romans 8:30 And those whom He predestined, these also He called; and whom He called, these also He justified; and whom He justified, these also He glorified. (BLB)

“and whom he called, them he also justified” – the connective use of the postpositive conjunctive particle de, plus the accusative plural from the relative pronoun hos (ὅς) [pronounced hohç], “whom.” Then the aorist active indicative of the verb kaleō (καλέω) [pronounced kal-EH-oh]—“and whom he called [elected].” The aorist tense is a dramatic aorist, it states the present reality of election with the certitude of a past event, the divine decrees. The active voice: God the Father, the author of the divine plan, produces the action of the verb. The indicative mood is declarative of a dogmatic statement of doctrine. Plus the accusative plural from the demonstrative pronoun houtos (οὗτος) [pronounced HOO-tos], used here to refer to something which has immediately preceded, and the adjunctive use of kai—“these same ones also.” Then the insertion of the verb, the aorist active indicative of dikaioō (δικαιόω) [pronounced dik-ah-YOH-oh]—“justified.” The aorist tense is a constative aorist, it refers to a momentary act of imputation of divine righteousness at the moment we believe in Christ. This is a second imputation. No man earns or deserves God’s righteousness.

Principle

1. This is the second of two judicial imputations necessary for the real imputation of divine blessing at maturity, and the basis also of a fortiori—if the justice of God accomplished the greater at salvation, i.e. the imputation of divine righteousness, it follows a fortiori that the justice of God can accomplish the less, i.e. blessing in time at the point of maturity.
2. The two real imputations at birth—human life to the soul and Adam's original sin to the genetically-formed old sin nature—begin the whole structure of God's plan for each individual. We begin with condemnation. The justice of God must condemn before the justice of God can bless.
3. Being condemned by the imputation of Adam's original sin at birth frees all personal sins in the human race for judicial imputation at the cross. Only that one sin condemns every person who has ever lived or ever will live in the human race. All are condemned by the imputation of Adam's sin. All personal sins were imputed to Christ on the cross. So personal sin is never the basis for condemnation and personal sin is not an issue at salvation. Since Christ was judged for our sins, Christ is the issue at salvation and Adam's original sin is the issue in condemnation. Condemnation precedes salvation.
4. On the cross all human sins of the human race were imputed to Christ and judged.
5. Since these sins were not antecedently His own this is a judicial rather than a real imputation.
6. At the moment of salvation through faith in Christ a second judicial imputation occurs, i.e. the righteousness of God is imputed to the new believer. This imputation provides the potential as well as the hope for blessing in time. Remember the principle: When reality replaces hope, a new hope is formed from the justice of God.
7. Since this righteousness is not antecedently our own this is the second judicial imputation.
8. At salvation, and simultaneously, there is a real imputation of eternal life to the divinely prepared home or target which is regeneration. The reason for that: there must be a life, and to have any type of life it must be a real imputation. Always, human life was imputed at a birth. Physical life was imputed to the soul; eternal life is imputed to regeneration. There must be a birth involved in life.
9. The judicial imputation of divine righteousness is the basis for justification, and the only way to receive blessing in time as an imputation at maturity.
10. Note the relationship between being called/elected and the imputation of divine righteousness or being justified.
11. The imputation of divine righteousness constructs a grace pipeline with the justice of God in the giving end and the righteousness of God on the receiving end.
12. This pipeline is encapsulated by the integrity of God.
13. The integrity of God must guard the attributes of God from any compromise in prospering sinful man.
14. Therefore, prosperity and divine blessing is a real imputation from the justice of God to the divinely prepared home, imputed righteousness—salvation justification.

15. Therefore justification means qualification for blessing and prosperity in time. In effect, justification is the second potential in Y radical.
16. We are left in time after salvation in order to receive divine blessing and prosperity as the means of glorifying the Lord Jesus Christ.
17. Therefore justification is the key to the divine plan for time.
18. Justification qualifies us for blessing. The only thing we lack is capacity, and that capacity comes through maximum doctrine resident in the soul.
19. When the believer cracks the maturity barrier through maximum doctrine resident in the soul he possess capacity for blessing, and therefore receives the blessing.

And More Things about Step Four...

1. The righteousness of God is the guardian of the justice of God, and the justice of God is the guardian of all the divine attributes, protecting them from compromise.
2. The point of reference for mankind is the justice of God.
3. In the function of divine integrity, righteousness demands righteousness and justice demands justice. So that the righteousness of God demands what the justice of God executes. Righteousness will demand blessing in your life just as soon as you crack the maturity barrier.
4. The justice of God executes divine blessing in six categories to the believer when the righteousness of God demands that blessing.
5. There is no demand from the righteousness of God until the believer through the filling of the Spirit and the daily function of GAP cracks the maturity barrier.
6. Hence, justification or the judicial imputation of divine righteousness at salvation makes possible divine blessing or the real imputation of prosperity to the righteousness of God at maturity.
7. Justification is the key to understanding the objectives of the Christian way of life. Justification in Romans simply means vindicated for blessing. The potential is there.
8. Justification relates the believer to the plan of God so that the attributes of God are never compromised by blessing imputed from the justice of God.
9. This defines grace. Grace is the policy of the justice of God in blessing the believer.
10. This also defines the second hope. The first hope of salvation is replaced by the reality of salvation when we believe in Christ.
11. A new hope, the second hope, is provided through the judicial imputation of divine righteousness at salvation.

Step five, the a fortiori of blessing:

“and whom he justified” – the connective use of the postpositive conjunctive particle de, “and,” and the accusative plural from the relative pronoun hos (ὃς) [pronounced hohç],

“whom.” Plus the aorist active indicative of dikaioō (δικαιόω) [pronounced dik-ah-YOH-oh], meaning to declare righteous, to justify, to vindicate. The aorist tense is a constative aorist, referring to the momentary action, judicial imputation of divine righteousness at salvation.

The active voice: the justice of God produced the action of the verb at salvation, imputing to us the righteousness of God. The indicative mood is declarative for a dogmatic statement of Bible doctrine.

“them he also glorified” – the accusative plural from the immediate demonstrative pronoun houtos (οὗτος) [pronounced HOO-tos], plus the adjunctive use of the conjunction kai, “these same ones also.” Then the aorist active indicative of doxazō (δοξάζω) [pronounced dox-AD-zo] which means to praise, to honor, to glorify, to magnify, to promote. It has a lot of connotations in the Greek. The verb means here to have a share in God’s glory. Every time God imputes blessing at maturity and at the judgment seat of Christ He is glorified. When God is glorified we share in His glory. Remember that the imputation of divine blessing is the glorification of the Lord Jesus Christ, and we share in His glory. That is what doxazō (δοξάζω) [pronounced dox-AD-zo] means here—the seventh imputation. The aorist tense of doxazō (δοξάζω) [pronounced dox-AD-zo] is a constative aorist, it gathers up into one entirety the imputation of eternal blessing and reward to the resurrection body at the judgment seat of Christ. Therefore the aorist combines the two a fortioris of Romans five. The active voice: the justice of God produces the action of the verb through the sixth imputation plus the hope of the seventh imputation in eternity. The indicative mood is declarative for the real imputation of blessing in time at maturity plus the third hope which is confident anticipation of blessing and reward at the judgment seat of Christ.

Romans 8:30 And whom He foreordained [predestinated], the same one He also called [elected]: and whom He called, the same one He also justified: and whom He justified, the same ones He also glorified.

Principle

1. Blessing in time and in eternity are part of the divine decrees for the mature believer.
2. Therefore divine blessing and glorification existed long before any believer or person existed on this earth.
3. Omniscience knew those who would crack the maturity barrier prior to anyone actually doing it.
4. Therefore the omniscience of God regarding the reality became the decree of God.
5. Since the divine decree alone establishes certainty nothing could be foreknown until it was first decreed. Omniscience comes first, then the divine decrees, and then foreknowledge. Acts 2:23.
6. Election, foreknowledge and predestination are coincident in respect to their objects.
7. In verse 30 we do not have chronological order but merely the indication that the same persons are the object in each case. The mature believer is the object in election, foreknowledge and predestination.

God's Everlasting Love

Romans 8:31 What then will we say to these things? If God is for us, who can be against us? (BLB)

Verse 31 begins the new paragraph: the new life and its challenges. There are five challenges in this area. The first challenge is opposition. All of this truth we have received is going to receive opposition. As far as Bob knows, he has received more opposition than anyone he has ever known. Once these things gel in our soul, then you will get the opposition. “Where’d you get that? Oh, you got it from him?”

L. S. Chafer, from Billy Sunday on his neck. He really had a lot of opposition. Often you are known and judged by who your enemies are. Some of the greatest attacks of Chafer have occurred after his death in the very seminary he founded.

There is a lot of opposition by the flimsy-minded; and how could you exclude them from such a great verse as Romans 8:32.

The verse begins with the Greek idiom “What shall we say to these things?” This is a literal translation but not the correct idiomatic translation. It begins with the nominative neuter singular from the interrogative pronoun τίς (τις) [pronounced tihç], followed by the inferential postpositive conjunction οὐν (οὐν) [pronounced oon], used in the formula question as an idiom of conclusion, setting up a debater’s development here. Plus the future active indicative of λέγω (λέγω) [pronounced LEH-goh]. The future tense is a deliberative future to present a rhetorical question. A rhetorical question is a debater’s way of making a direct assertion without appearing to do so. The active voice: Paul uses rhetorical debater’s technique in order to force a correct conclusion. The interrogative indicative is one in which the indicative assumes that there is an actual fact which may be stated in answer to the question. The idiom is translated, “Therefore face to face with these things to what conclusion are we forced?” It is a reference to Romans 8:28-30 specifically. And the principle: the plan of God is greater than any problem of adversity, including opposition. The plan of God is greater than its opponents. The “face to face” has to do with the preposition πρός (πρός) [pronounced pross] plus the accusative neuter plural from the demonstrative houtos (οὗτος) [pronounced HOO-tos]—“face to face with these things.”

“If God be for us, who can be against us?” The question is elliptical, there is no verb in the original text. The conditional conjunction εἰ (εἰ) [pronounced I] which introduces a first class condition as a conclusion from the previous paragraph. The first class condition recognizes that every believer is in the plan of God and therefore God has made provision for every believer, including opposition—any disaster, any difficulty, and especially opposition. Then the nominative singular from theos (θεός) [pronounced theh-OSS], the subject, with the definite article, referring to God the Father—“If the God.” This is the generic use of the definite article to indicate that this is God the Father who has been the subject of so much in the previous paragraphs. Then a prepositional phrase, ὑπέρ (ὑπέρ) [pronounced hoop-AIR] plus the ablative of ἐγώ (ἐγώ) [pronounced ehg-OH]—“for us.” The plural means for all mature believers (context), and in effect for all believers, but obviously this prepositional phrase in its context applies to the mature believer only. God is not for reversionism. “If the God is for us?” – first class condition, “and he is.” Then the nominative singular from the interrogative pronoun tís (τίς) [pronounced tihç], “who is.” The final prepositional phrase: kata plus the genitive plural of egó (ἐγώ) [pronounced ehg-OH]—“who is against us?”

Romans 8:31 Therefore face to face with these things, to what conclusion are we forced? If the God is for us, who is against us?

Principle

1. The plan of God is greater than any opposition the believer will ever face. You do not have to apologize for the plan of God.
2. No one is God’s equal. No one has more power and ability than God.
3. The two judicial imputations of Y radical indicate that God is for us.
4. The first judicial imputation: All of our personal sins were imputed to Christ on the cross. Obviously God is for us.
5. The second judicial imputation: Divine righteousness is imputed to the believer at the moment of salvation. God had to be for us to do this. God gave His righteousness to the scroungiest creatures in this world.

The next 3 nights will be devoted to Romans 8:32. The second challenge is the great blessing that God will bestow on us. Other believers assume that there is something that they do which causes God to bless them.

Lesson #330

330 02/08/1978 Romans 8:32 Concept of and encouragement thru A FORTIORI; prosperity; doctrine of imputation (revised, 1. a–j)

Romans 8:32 For He who spared not the own Son, but gave Him up for us all, how will He not also, with Him, grant us all things? (BLB)

Verse 32 – the first half of the verse demonstrates that God is for us by means of the first judicial imputation. The last half of the verse demonstrates that God will freely give us all things because of the second judicial imputation. He is free to do so. So the second challenge is blessing. In this verse we have the second challenge. If the first challenge is opposition, the second challenge is encouragement—the encouragement that comes through a fortiori, the motivation for spiritual advance, the glorification of the Lord Jesus Christ, and the imputation of blessing in time.

A fortiori is all about effort. If God does what requires the greater effort, then He will not without that which requires less effort.

“He that spared not his own Son” begins with the nominative singular from the relative pronoun hos (ὃς) [pronounced hohç], and when you start a verse with hos you must look for its antecedent, for that is the subject of the verse. The antecedent is ho theos (θεός) [pronounced theh-OSS], found in the previous verse. So we translate, “The God who.” Then the intensive and enclitic particle ge (γέ) [pronounced geh], which means “even.” The verb is the aorist middle indicative of phéidomai (φείδομαι) [pronounced FIE-dom-ahēe] and the negative ou (οὐ) [pronounced oo], and it means to spare someone from something. “The God who did not even spare.” The aorist tense is a dramatic aorist, it states the present reality of the sacrifice of Christ on the cross with the certitude of a past event. In other words, it brings into focus judicial imputation #1. This is a Greek idiom, a device for emphasis. Our sins were imputed to Christ for the purpose of judgment. That makes this also a culminative aorist tense viewing the judicial imputation of all personal sins to Christ on the cross in its entirety but emphasizes the existing results in the Church Age—a fortiori blessings. The middle voice: this is a deponent verb, which is middle in form but active in meaning. Hence “the God” [the Father] produces the action of the verb by means of the first judicial imputation of all personal sins to Christ on the cross. The indicative mood of phéidomai (φείδομαι) [pronounced FIE-dom-ahēe] is declarative, representing the verbal idea from the viewpoint of reality. Plus the negative ou (οὐ) [pronounced oo]. The indicative plus the negative states the dogmatic fact that God the Father imputed our sins to Christ on the cross and judged them.

Next is the object of the verb, the objective genitive singular from the adjective ídios (ἴδιος) [pronounced IH-dee-os], which actually means “unique” in the Greek, and therefore correctly translated “his own.” This is the relationship between the Father and the Son from all eternity past. Plus the objective genitive singular of the noun huios (υἱός, οὐ, ὁ) [pronounced hwee-OSS] for the Lord Jesus Christ in hypostatic union. “The God who did not even spare his own Son.”

“but delivered him up for us all” – the adversative conjunction allá (ἀλλά) [pronounced ahl-LAH] sets up a contrast with what precedes, plus the aorist active indicative of the verb paradídōmai (παραδίδωμαι) [pronounced pah-rah-DIH-doh-my] which means to deliver over to judgment as the function of divine justice. However, the prepositional phrase hupér (ὑπέρ) [pronounced hoop-AIR], “on behalf of,” plus the genitive plural of both the adjective pás (πάς) [pronounced pahs] and the pronoun means substitutionary atonement, and egó (ἐγώ) [pronounced ehg-OH]—“on behalf of all of us.” The accusative singular direct object from the intensive pronoun autós (αὐτός) [pronounced ow-TOSS] is used as the third person singular pronoun, “him.” So, “but on behalf of us he delivered him over to judgment.” Paradídōmai (παραδίδωμαι) [pronounced pah-rah-DIH-doh-my] has an aorist tense which is a constative aorist, it contemplates the action of the judicial imputation of our sins to Christ on the cross in its entirety. The active voice: God the Father produced the action of the verb. The indicative mood is declarative for a dogmatic statement of doctrine.

“how shall he not with him also” – the interrogative pronoun -pōs (-πώς) [pronounced poce], used especially for rhetorical questions. It is also used for a direct question to determine how a fortiori came to be. With it is an unusual negative, ouch (οὐχί) [pronounced oo-KHEE], used as an interrogative word in a question which expects an affirmative answer. Then the adjunctive use of the conjunction kai, translated “also”—“how shall he not also.” The prepositional phrase is sun (σύν) [pronounced soon] with the dative of person from the intensive pronoun autós (αὐτός) [pronounced ow-TOSS]—“with him.” Autós (αὐτός) [pronounced ow-TOSS] is used as a third person personal pronoun to denote accompaniment or association. In other words, our association with the Lord Jesus Christ begins at salvation adjustment to the justice of God. The second judicial imputation marks the beginning of that association. Our association begins when we believe in Christ and the justice of God imputes to us the righteousness of God, thereby establishing that pipeline. All blessings will come from the justice of God to the righteousness of God.

“freely give us all things” – future middle indicative of the verb charizomai (χαρίζομαι) [pronounced khar-ID-zohm-ahee]. This is simply a verb taken from charis (χάρις) [pronounced KHAHR-ic]. When you want to make a verb out of a noun you just simply drop the σ sigma and then add the middle voice suffix. It means to grace out, to graciously give, to give beneficially. This is a gnomic future tense for a statement of fact or performance which may be expected when a believer attains maturity adjustment to the justice of God. In other words, it is future if you are not mature yet. It is also a deliberative future, if you are mature, for a rhetorical question taking the place of a direct assertion. In other words, there are two kinds of future depending on where you are in your spiritual life. The middle voice: this is a deponent verb, middle in form but active in meaning. God the Father produces the action of the verb at maturity adjustment to the justice of God. The believer possesses the potential for blessing with the imputation of divine righteousness, and the believer carries God’s perfect righteousness as the recipient of this blessing; it is a guarantee. The indicative mood here is the interrogative indicative which assumes that there is an actual fact of doctrine which may be stated in answer to this question. The answer to the question combines the two judicial imputations to form the real imputation at the point of maturity. There is also an accusative neuter direct object from pás (πάς) [pronounced pahs] with the definite article, it is used generically to comprehend all six categories of blessing which are imputed to the believer. It is translated, “the all things.”

331 02/09/1978 Romans 8:32 Doctrine of imputation (pts. 2–4); real imputations at physical birth, exception of Jesus Christ; personal sins on Jesus Christ

A mention of Suetonius, who apparently wrote some pretty racy history of Rome. Born A.D. 69. Gaius Suetonius Tranquillus, commonly referred to as Suetonius, was a Roman historian who wrote during the early Imperial era of the Roman Empire. His most important surviving work is a set of biographies of 12 successive Roman rulers, from Julius Caesar to Domitian, properly titled De vita Caesarum.

A reading of Romans 8:28–32

Omniscience ≠ foreknowledge. The predetermined plan = the divine decrees.

Doctrine of imputations so far: (1) Definition/description. (2) Imputations at birth. We are condemned at birth by one sin, and that is the imputed sin of Adam.

333 02/12/1978 Romans 8:32 Doctrine of imputation (pt. 7a): Real imputations and categories (1–3) of SG2 blessings in time

The good of Romans 8:28 is $X+Y+Z$ = plan of God Z is the imputation of eternal life at salvation + maturity blessings in time = the 3rd potential, which is eternal reward at the Judgment Seat of Christ.

Lesson #334

334 02/12/1978 Romans 8:32 Doctrine of imputation (pts. 7b–8): SG2 blessings category 4–6 blessings in eternity; judgment seat of Jesus Christ

The Doctrine of Imputations is back in lesson #125.

Bob muses about meeting problem people in the parking lot. He used to do that as a junior officer.

People who have taken over churches as coming from Berachah, and they start applying Berachah policies in the first 24 hours. That is a bad idea.

The Judgment Seat of Christ is presented as a part of the imputation doctrine; I placed it separately below:

The Judgment Seat of Christ by R. B. Thieme, Jr.

Although I took this doctrine from NB1, I edited it according to Bob's teaching from Romans #335.

1. The judgment seat of Christ or the evaluation of believers in phase two of the plan of God occurs at the termination of the Church Age. It follows the receiving of a resurrection body. (Whether a believer succeeds or fails he will have a resurrection body)
2. The purpose of the judgment seat of Christ, 2Corinthians 5:10 For we must all appear before the judgment seat of Christ; that each one of us [believers in the royal family of God] may receive what is due him for the things accomplished while in the physical body [phase two], whether good [agathos (ἀγαθός) [pronounced ag-ath-OSS]] or worthless [or evil, phaulos (φαῦλος) [pronounced FOW-loss]]. "If the believer lives his Christian life inside the cosmic system what he accomplishes is worthless or evil or both, phaulos (φαῦλος) [pronounced FOW-loss]. On the other hand if the believer lives his Christian life inside the divine dynasphere what he does is categorized as intrinsic good, agathos (ἀγαθός) [pronounced ag-ath-OSS]."
3. Agathos (ἀγαθός) [pronounced ag-ath-OSS] refers to the plan of God from the viewpoint of imputation [$X+Y+Z = \text{Good}$]. Here again we have the principle: agathos (ἀγαθός) [pronounced ag-ath-OSS] means, first through X radical, human life imputed at birth plus Adam's original sin. The imputation of Adam's original sin means spiritual death, and that sets up the first potential for salvation, plus the pertinent doctrine - redemption, reconciliation, propitiation, imputation, justification, all of those things related to the work of Christ on the cross. That equals hope 1, absolute confidence that if you believe in Jesus Christ you have eternal life plus salvation adjustment to the justice of God through faith in Christ. Now you advance to being an immature believer: Y radical. Here you have judicial imputation #1 - our sins are imputed to Christ on the cross, the basis of our so great salvation. Judicial imputation #2, the basis for our relationship with God. We have God's righteousness, one half of divine integrity, and also at the same time God has created a target for all logistical grace - imputation, and all supergrace blessing - the possession of the righteousness of God. So a new potential is set up: the potential for great blessing in time, plus the pertinent doctrine equals hope #2 - absolute confidence that you and I as believers using the divine dynasphere advance to maturity, plus maturity adjustment to the justice of God, going from gate four to gate eight. In Z radical we have the imputation of eternal life at salvation plus the imputation of supergrace blessing, blessing in time at the point of maturity, and that equals the third potential, the potential of eternal blessing and reward at the judgment seat of Christ above and beyond the resurrection body. Plus the pertinent equals hope three, absolute confidence that by attaining maturity, advancing from gate four to gate eight, we are going to receive great blessing and reward at the judgment seat of Christ. This equals the good, agathos (ἀγαθός) [pronounced ag-ath-OSS], all things working together for good - Romans 8:28. This second Koine word agathos (ἀγαθός) [pronounced ag-ath-OSS] occurs in 2Corinthians 5:10 - "that each one of us [royal family of God] may receive what is due him for the things accomplished in the body, whether good, agathos (ἀγαθός) [pronounced ag-ath-OSS], or worthless." The purpose of the judgment seat of Christ is the evaluation of each believer's life on earth between salvation and his departure.

4. The loss of reward at the judgment seat of Christ is a major issue.
 - 1) The gain or loss of reward and blessing above and beyond the resurrection body is determined by your personal volition. Your choice of dynasphere determines gain or loss of reward, 1Corinthians 3:11-15.
 - 2) Loss of reward at the judgment seat of Christ does not imply loss of salvation, 2Timothy 2:11-13. "if we endure" is persistence and function inside the divine dynasphere. Enduring here is hupomenô (ὑπομένω) [pronounced hoop-om-EHN-oh]. This is God's game plan for the Christian life, residence and function inside the divine dynasphere. And if you persist in making decisions consistent with the divine dynasphere in phase two there will be reward in phase three. "If we refuse," i.e. to function under our Lord's plan (X+Y+Z); "he will also refuse us (i.e. reward, not salvation)." Eternal security is a divine gift at the moment of salvation through faith in Christ. What God does for us cannot be lost, cannot be changed, cannot be removed. Eternal security depends upon the integrity of God while confidence toward God depends on the integrity of the believer, he must have doctrine resident in his soul. Failure to live in the divine dynasphere may destroy the believer's confidence in God but failure to live in the divine dynasphere can never destroy your eternal security. Therefore the principle of 2Timothy 2:11-13: eternal security is permanent and cannot be destroyed by Christian failure. Confidence in God is a motivating virtue which can be lost through the believer's residence and function inside the cosmic dynasphere. The principle of eternal security: John 10:28; 1Peter 1:3-5. Eternal security is never an issue at the judgment seat of Christ.
 - 3) However, the cosmic believer in losing reward at the judgment seat of Christ will experience, at least for that period of time, shame. He will be in a resurrection body but there is that implication of shame at loss of reward. Perhaps this is the closest thing to any lack of happiness that can ever exist in heaven, in eternity. And this appears to be only temporary at that moment and does not seem to be perpetuated into eternity. Philippians 1:20, Confidence in time implies reward in eternity. Phil. 3:18,19 for many keep walking in the cosmic system ..." The apostle Paul had an emotional response to his observation of cosmic Christians: "they are the enemies of the cross of Christ." What is the end of such believers? - verse 19 whose end is destruction [the sin unto death], whose God is emotion, whose glory [at the judgment seat of Christ] is their shame, who keep thinking about earthly things [a description of cosmic involvement]." 1John 2:28 And now dear children, keep on residing in it [the divine dynasphere]; that if he [Christ] should appear [the Rapture, the resurrection of the Church], we might have confidence, and might not be put to shame by him in his presence [at the judgment seat of Christ]."

5. The first is the a fortiori approach of Romans 5:15–17 For if by the transgression of one [Adam's original sin] spiritual death ruled through that one; much more they who receive in life the surplus from grace [the exploitation of logistical grace is parleyed into supergrace - surplus of grace] and the gift of righteousness [imputed righteousness], much more they shall rule through that one, Jesus Christ." Those who exploit logistical grace inside the divine dynasphere are going to rule with Christ.
6. Therefore the application of virtue to the judgment seat of Christ. Note one application found in Romans 14:10-13, You there [the weak believer who lives in the cosmic system], why do you judge your brother? [Principle of the weak controlling the strong] or you also [the strong believer] why do you regard your brother with contempt [Lack of toleration and impersonal love]? for all will be present at the tribunal of God. For it stands written [Isaiah 45:23], For surely as I live, says the Lord, every knee will bow to me [the big genuflect after the Rapture of the Church], and every tongue will confess to God [these are believers]. So then each one of us [Church Age believers] shall give an account to God concerning himself [You are responsible for your own decisions]. Therefore let us no longer judge one another: but rather make up your mind, [determine this] not to place an obstacle or distraction in front of his brother. This is application of virtue to the judgment seat of Christ. The only possible way to do this is inside the divine dynasphere where the motivating virtue of personal love for God is counterparted by impersonal love for mankind. There is where you get your toleration to tolerate believers in all stages of growth so that there is no distraction to their positive volition toward Bible doctrine.
7. The function of gap and the Judgment Seat of Christ. The divine dynasphere and its relationship to the judgment seat of Christ.
 - 1) Note James 1:25: But the one who looks intently into the perfect law [Bible doctrine] that gives freedom [perception of doctrine inside the divine dynasphere], and continues to do this [momentum in the divine dynasphere], not forgetting what he has heard but doing it, this believer will be blessed [or happy] in what he is doing. The perfect law and looking into the perfect law which gives freedom is our life inside the divine dynasphere with emphasis on perception of doctrine.

2) James 2:12-13 So keep speaking and so keep doing as though who are going to be judged [evaluated] by the law that gives freedom [perception of doctrine inside the divine dynasphere is the basis for our evaluation]. For judgment for those who have not produced mercy [have not manufactured virtue inside the divine dynasphere, or better, who do not show compassion]; compassion triumphs over judgment. This is an interim point to emphasize the fact that the judgment seat of Christ and our evaluation is related toward the many decisions for or against the divine dynasphere, residence and function therein.

8. Hebrews 6:7–12 For God is not unjust to disregard your occupation [of pastor-teacher], also the love which you yourselves demonstrated toward his person [learning Bible doctrine in the divine dynasphere and teaching it to the congregation], having ministered doctrine to the saints, and continuing such ministry."
9. The rewards given at the Judgment Seat of Christ. There was an agricultural society; and there were parables about the sort of harvest that people would have. There is the political situation, like the concept of a city state. Rome began as a city state that eventually expanded to take in all the territory around it. Herod apparently worked out a deal to will what he ruled over to Rome, and he made provision for his sons and daughter in this will. The Lord used the city-states as an illustration: some will have ten cities, some will have 50, etc. There will be great variations in eternity when it comes to rewards in heaven.
10. The decorations presented at the judgment seat of Christ. Bob discussed many decorations from more recent times. Frederick the Great and the decorations that he set up. Napoleon and his system of decorations. Decorations in the Roman empire were more remunerative. Paul was very pro-military and he knew a great deal about them. When Paul was under house arrest, he became very familiar with the praetorium guard.
 - 1) During the Roman empire there were two Greek words used for crowns. One of them, stephanos (στέφανος) [pronounced STEHF-ahn-oss], which is pertinent is a reward in two areas of life. It is a reward in military service and in the empire games. There is a second word for crown which occasionally we find in the Bible, diadema (διάδημα) [pronounced dee-AD-ay-mah]. This is a crown used for a king. Certain rewards to mature believers at the judgment seat of Christ are called stefanoi, crowns. There were six categories of such crowns given by the Roman empire. In order of merit the six categories each had a monetary reward that went with it. All six were in the form of a golden crown that you could wear for the rest of your life.
 - 2) We have in the scripture, not six of the crowns, but three listed for believers. There is the crown of righteousness for the fulfilment of the plan of God in the Church Age [in other words for advancing from gate four to gate eight]. There is the crown of life for passing all of the momentum tests as you go from gate four to gate eight. And there is the crown of glory, a decoration for pastors, evangelists and faithful communicators of the Word of God.

- 3) There used to be a phrase among fundamentalist Christians about living your life in the light of eternity. Of course it is a very sound concept, a very doctrinal principle, that while we are living a day at a time as per the mandates of our Lord, we are also to live with eternity in mind. That is exactly what we have in verse 10 with regard to the judgment seat of Christ.
- 4) There are three crowns mentioned in the Word of God. The first one is the crown of righteousness, 2Timothy 4:7–8 The corrected translation of verse 7 is as follows: "I have fought that honorable fight [a reference to the advance to maturity inside the divine dynasphere. It refers to going from gate four to gate eight of the divine dynasphere. It indicates that the apostle Paul has attained spiritual maturity at gate eight], I have completed the course [the fulfilment of God's plan for his life], I have retained the doctrine [not 'I have kept the faith'. And it refers to perception and application of doctrine resulting in the construction of the edification complex structure]. In the future [reference to the judgment seat of Christ] a crown (wreath) of righteousness is reserved for me, which crown the Lord, the righteous evaluator, will award me on that day the crown of righteousness is awarded to the believer who executes the plan of God during the Church Age. and not only to me, but also to all those who have loved his appearance [the appearance of Christ at the Rapture]." Paul received tremendous personal suffering as a part of his supergrace rewards. All Roman wreaths were accompanied with a stipend. Some of the wealthiest Romans had won many crowns or decorations.
- 5) The Bravo cross, which is related to undeserved suffering. The second crown is the crown of life, the one which is mentioned in Revelation 2:10. This crown is related to momentum testing. Momentum testing is only for those believers who are advancing, those believers who are taking in doctrine. The believer who faces momentum testing inside the divine dynasphere accelerates his advance to gate eight. There are two biblical references made to this second crown, James 1:12 which says Happy is the individual who perseveres under testing: for he will receive the crown of life, which God has promised to those who consistently love him [referring to our life inside the divine dynasphere]. The second reference is found in Revelation 2:10. So the crown of life is actually a martyrs decoration and reward and also an eternal decoration for those believers who remain in the divine dynasphere under the greatest pressures of life, and advance to maturity in times of historical disaster or historical downtrend. Revelation 2:10 Do not fear those things which you are about to suffer [undeserved suffering]. Behold, the devil is about to cast some of you into prison that you might be tested. Also, you will have pressure and affliction ten days. Become faithful unto death [the imputation of martyrdom as the highest honor that God can give to the believer in time]. Become faithful unto death, and I will give you the wreath of life.
- 6) Note that both the crown of righteousness and the crown of life are preceded by some form of dying grace, and that includes martyrdom. Therefore both crowns or decorations awarded to believers in eternity and believers whose priorities are so linked with Bible doctrine that in time of disaster, pressure or heartache of any kind, doctrine is more real to them than the actual suffering which they endure. And they do not compromise their doctrine or their stand or their love of the Lord because of some pressure.

- 7) The third crown is the crown of glory; it is the ultra-cross. This eternal decoration is given to pastors who not only reach maturity through their own personal residence and function inside the divine dynasphere, but who through faithful teaching of the Word lead others to spiritual maturity. The crown of glory belongs primarily to the pastor; firstly the apostles, and to the evangelists and prophets who taught the Word of God before the canon was completed, and afterward to the pastors. No pastor can lead his congregation, however, beyond his own stage of growth. In other words, as they would say in Rome "No man can transfer to others rights more extensive than that which he possesses." Therefore it behooves the pastor to get cracking and get to maturity as rapidly as possible in order to lead the way; not by example, but by content of doctrine. Bob knows all about you; I know where you sit when you come alone; I know where you sit when you are with your husband. I know those who come on a trade-out; etc. I feel sorry for you people because nothing is going to seep into you. The best you can do is develop a little poise. Grimly hang on until it is all over. After you come for awhile and you become desired ones. That does not mean that I want to get to know you. We will go in a much simpler, more practical direction in Romans 12. Paul calls these people, my happiness. He calls these people his victory crown. He will have the pleasure of seeing them assigned fantastic sections of space and things. The happiness is now; the blessing is then. Keep on being stabilized, the ones worthy of love. Jesus loves you, but not because you are sweet and nice. A lot of you are. A lot of you are things who think you impress God with what impresses your friends. All believers are worthy of love; we are sweet and we take notes and God will give us one city for every page of notes. When Bob first believed in Jesus Christ, he received God's righteousness and with that goes God's love. Let me tell you, Jesus is not your old pal; and He is not the man upstairs either. We are loved because we have the righteousness of God. We do not reduce Jesus to our level. Remember that our blessing will come from the blessing of God. Be stabilized by the Lord, ones worthy of love. 1Thessalonians 2:19–20 For who is our hope [our confident assurance]; is it not even you, mature believer, Judgment Seat of Christ, receiving the ultra cross. For you are our glory and happiness. 1Peter 5:4 And when the Chief Shepherd appears, you will receive the unfading wreath of glory.
11. Human good is rejected at the Judgment Seat of Christ. 1Corinthians 3:14 If anyone's work which he has built remains, he shall receive reward; if his work is burned, he will suffer loss; but he himself will be saved yet so as through fire. Tithing, witnessing, hustling for God, joining Christian service organizations. The justice of God is the source of all blessing. So you have an encapsulation by the grace pipeline. These human works are burned and destroyed.

A winner trained for the Judgment Seat of Christ. A winner trains. The winner works hard. You do not just luck out in life. This is how people think in life. Losers always think in terms of lucking out in life. An athletic analogy to the judgment seat of Christ. 2Timothy 2:5 - "Now if anyone really competes in the athletic games he does not receive a winner's wreath unless he trains according to the rules." You have to enter and register in the state gym; which is on much acreage and it had high walls. The Roman empire, in copying the Greek games, copied the whole system, including the rules, and the athlete couldn't compete unless he trained according to the rules. There were two types of athletes who existed in the Roman empire. The first group were called aqletai and were the people who entered state gymnasiums in order to train and compete in the games. There was also another category of athlete called a)gonistai and were the muscle or body builders who did not enter the games and train under the rules. He was not qualified for the games. So we have a)qletai and a)gonistai, two categories of athletes. And we have two kinds of believers, those who are in the divine dynasphere [comparable to the a)qletai] and those in the cosmic system [comparable to the a)gonistai]. We have the cosmic believer who doesn't train according to the rules and we have the believer in the divine dynasphere who does. Not only did the Roman athlete live inside the gymnasium for ten months but he followed a set of very strict rules which constantly tested his motivation, his decisions, and his momentum. This was a part of the system. The concept of perception of doctrine in the divine dynasphere is analogous. Once the athletes went back to their home town they received rewards which are comparable to the judgment seat of Christ. No matter what the weather or how he felt, he must answer all the trumpet calls for exercise. He wore only oil when outside. Nothing else. The athlete must exercise under the direction of the exercise master. Everyone went through the same exercise regimen. Consistent positive volition. The athlete could not have any contact with the opposite sex for 10 months. "I think that illustrates many things" (laughter) "And I was about to call you, dearly beloved." There are people absent from this congregation tonite because they reject Bible doctrine and were influenced away by a loved one. Believers must avoid distractions. Part of the training was dietary, like avoiding rich foods, wine and beers. That was #6. They were allowed to eat meat, lean meat, fish, figs, and something else. This is being objective. 7th authority in hands of the gym head, called a gymnasiarc, the governor of the gym. He wore a purple robe and white sandals. A wonderful job that paid high wages. Either discipline yourself or God will do it for you. Rule #8 once you have finished 10 months training, then you could compete. The winner of each event received a wreath, which was made up of whatever foliage was in the region. The 9th concept. The athlete returned home, where he receive his reward. Fantastic rewards. Eternal blessing imputed. A hole in the wall was cut open for him to walk in. The wall was then repaired and a plaque was put there. He received a monetary award, a lifetime pass to the games, a statue was erected to him, a poet wrote a poem to him, he was exempted from all income tax in life; and children educated on state expense. This was Paul's subject, then, in 1Corinthians 9:24-27: "Do you not know that those who run in a race all run [analogous to the games in the Roman empire and the function of gate four, the perception and application of doctrine necessary for momentum in the Christian life], but one receives the prize [in each event]?" analogous to the attainment of spiritual maturity or advance from gate four to gate eight in the divine dynasphere. "Run in such a way that you may win," a command for residence and function in the divine dynasphere ; "And everyone who competes in the games exercises self-discipline in all things. They [the athletes] do it to receive a perishable wreath [or crown]; but we [mature believers] an imperishable crown. Therefore [Paul's application] I do not run like a person without an objective; I do not fight like a person beating the air [cosmic believers are shadow boxers]: Instead I discipline my body, and keep it in training [residence and function in the divine dynasphere]: lest having preached [communicated doctrine] to others, I myself should be disqualified" [disqualification from both temporal blessing in time and eternal reward at the judgment seat of Christ].

13. Philippians 4:1 Therefore, my brethren, loved [impersonal love] and deeply desired ones [positive believers living in the divine dynasphere], my happiness and my crown ..." Paul recognizes those listening to him and advancing to maturity as his crown, the crown of glory; "in this way [residence in the divine dynasphere] keep on being stabilized by the Lord ..."
14. 1Thessalonians 2:19,20 For who is our hope [confidence], or happiness, or crown of boasting? Is it not you [mature believers] in the presence of our Lord Jesus Christ [the judgment seat of Christ] at his coming? For you are our glory ..."
15. 1Peter 5:4 And when the chief Shepherd appears [the Rapture of the Church], you will receive the unfading crown of glory .." In the context he is talking to pastors.
16. There are certain rewards mentioned in the scripture that do not belong to the royal family of God. They actually belong to believers of other dispensations. For example, the reward of cities in Luke 19:12-26, or Abraham's special city, the new Jerusalem, which is mentioned as a reward in Hebrews 11:9,10,13,16 and Revelation 21:2,10,11. There is the harvest analogy in Matthew 13:3-9, 18-33, for Old Testament believers.
17. There is another type of reward called "ruling with God," referring to believers of this dispensation, the Church. We are royal family of God, we are designed to rule. We are designed to rule in eternity, we are designed by logistical grace to rule. There are a number of approaches to ruling:
 - 1) There is a sarcastic approach, 1Corinthians 4:8. Paul says to the Corinthian Christians who are in the cosmic system: "You are already filled, you already have become rich, you have become kings without us: [and then he adds sarcastically] how I wish you really had become kings, so that we also might rule with you." Now the truth of the matter of that sarcasm is very simple. The Corinthians, on the course they had already charted, were going to have no rulership in heaven, whereas Paul is going to be one of the greatest of rulers.
 - 2) There is the approach from the standpoint of eternal security, 2Timothy 2:12: "If we endure [residence and function in the divine dynasphere] we shall also rule [has to do with reward at the judgment seat of Christ]."
 - 3) From the standpoint of Rapture hymnology, Revelation 5:10 And you have made them a kingdom, even priests to our God, and they will rule on earth."

18. In addition to this there are rewards related to historical trends for those who had maximum impact to historical uptrends in their life in the divine dynasphere and the resultant momentum. We have just noted the crown of life in Revelation 2:10 which is a reward related to historical trends. Momentum testing is related to historical trends in the client nation. As a result of passing persecution testing mature believers prepared the way for one of the greatest missionary movements in all of history.

We will go back to the previous lesson to complete the Judgment Seat of Christ. Bob reviews the $X + Y + Z =$ the plan of God. Every “+” indicates a promise replaced by the reality. Then a review of the translation

Lesson #336

336 02/14/1978 Romans 8:32 Doctrine of imputation (pt. 9–13): equation, potential and doctrine produces Hope

Reading vv. 28–32; $X+Y+Z =$ plan of God = the all things of Romans 8:32

The Doctrine of Imputations is back in lesson #125.

Romans 8:32 For He who spared not the own Son, but gave Him up for us all, how will He not also, with Him, grant us all things? (BLB)

Romans 8:32 The God who did not even spare his own Son, but on behalf of all of us he delivered him over to judgment, how shall he not also with him give to us the all things.

This “all things” refers to the blessings imputed. We have noted that $X + Y + Z$ is the “all things” of Romans 8:28. X starts out with life and takes us all of the way to eternity. $X + Y + Z =$ the glory of God, the good. Now, there is another “all things,” and that is extrapolated from radical Z. Z has the imputation of eternal life at salvation + blessing in time. Blessing is divine blessing imputed to +R. That is where we are at this point—“give to us the all things,” the six categories of blessing.

Principle

1. “The all things” is the less in the first a fortiori of blessing. The less refers to degree of effort.
2. It is much easier for the justice of God to provide blessing for the mature believer than to impute our personal sins to Christ for judgment.
3. If the justice of God has provided the greater at salvation through the judicial imputation of divine righteousness it follows a fortiori that the justice of God will not withhold the less through the real imputation of divine blessing.

Principle

1. Prosperity is a real imputation from the justice of God to the believer at maturity. It becomes the great issue in the Christian way of life. It is the only reason for remaining in this life after salvation.
2. Prosperity as an imputation[19] from the justice of God is the objective of the plan of God for the believer’s life after salvation.
3. If you understand the command to rightly divide the Word of truth you will realize that command this applies not only to things like dispensations, but to all kinds of doctrine.

Lesson #337

337 02/15/1978 Romans 8:33 Privacy of the royal priesthood; judging cf. legitimate evaluation; divine prerogative re judgment

The all things of v. 28 are described by the equation. The first hope is the confident assurance of salvation.

We are moving into application. The challenge of judging in v. 33.

Romans 8:33 Who will bring an accusation against the elect of God? God is the One justifying. (BLB)

Verse 33 – the third challenge is judging (this and the next verse). “Who shall lay anything to the charge of God’s elect?” The nominative singular interrogative pronoun tís (τίς) [pronounced tihç], “who.” Then the future active indicative of the verb egkaléō (ἐγκαλέω) [pronounced eng-kal-EH-oh] which means to bring charges against, to accuse, to institute judicial proceedings. “Who will bring a charge against” or “Who will accuse.” The future tense is a deliberative future in which a question of uncertainty or a rhetorical question is stated in the future indicative. It is used to make a statement of doctrine without using direct assertion. The active voice: there are two erroneous sources of accusation, and these produce the action of the verb.

We must begin as condemned by God before God can save or bless us. The plan of God calls for the justice of God to function.

The first erroneous source is Satan—Job 1:6-11; Zechariah 3:1,2; Revelation 12:9,10. Satan is judging believers constantly. His name means accuser.

The second source of unauthorized judging and maligning is the believer—Matthew 7:1,2; Romans 14:4,10. In the plan of God there is no provision for either or Satan or another believer judging or condemning another believer. The indicative mood is the interrogative indicative assuming that there is an actual fact which may be stated in answer to the question. Then a prepositional phrase, kata plus the genitive plural from the adjective eklektós (ἐκλεκτός) [pronounced ek-lek-TOSS] which means an elected one or chosen one, and it refers to the royal family of God, being in the divine decrees. Then the possessive genitive singular from theos (θεός) [pronounced theh-OSS]—“of God.”

Only the reality is found in the predetermined plan of God. That we are in the plan of God, God has a plan for us called predestination. These are simultaneous factors which describe God’s determination.

First Principle: Who Will Bring a Charge Against the Elect of God?

1. Every believer has a right to his own privacy. Royal family means right of privacy.
2. Every believer must live his life as unto the Lord and not to please men.
3. We were pre-designed to be God-pleasers and not man-pleasers. A parent can judge his own children; a boss can evaluate his employees; etc. This does not mean that you are to be snotty to people.
4. The justice of God is man’s point of reference.
5. The justice of God + the omniscience of God + the foreknowledge of God has all of the facts for judging. If you are in a position of leadership, gather all of the facts first before making a judgment call.
6. Either you adjust to the justice of God or the justice of God will adjust to you.
7. God does not require our help to judge or punish other believers. God did not need our help in order to condemn us. We were in Adam and God used that fact to judge us. God has never made our personal sins in order to judge and condemn us. He does not need our help here.
8. Leave discipline in the hands of the Lord. He is the best and only judge.

Justice on one end and righteousness of God on the other end encapsulates the pipeline of blessing from God to us. Maligning, gossiping or judging destroys the privacy of the priesthood. No doubt, we have been on the receiving end of some malicious gossip. There is terrible discipline that comes to that person. Often God keeps these people alive for years to test believers.

If you are around believers who are running down someone else, you are in dangerous company. Every believer will fail; there are no exceptions.

People have the right to live and let live. People think that freedom is the ability to hang and raise hell. But without authority and privacy, freedom does not truly exist.

Sometimes parents can have great zeal for their children. Parents may try to ram teaching down their throats. If the training has been right, sometime maybe in the late teens, privacy is given to the child. Parents too often keep putting their nose into the business of their children.

Sometimes, the parent warns their children using Bob as a scarecrow.

No public confession is needed for salvation.

The criminal does not have any right to privacy. But he is innocent until proven guilty.

In any congregation, there are those who have appointed themselves as the judges of that which others do or wear. You can wear anything or nothing. You can walk down the aisle some night wearing nothing but a raisin in your naval. You are still a Christian. We do not encourage that, of course. You can smoke and be a Christian. You can be a fallen woman or a whore, and you still have your privacy. You may be pinched at the door (I mean, arrested).

Principle

1. When a believer judges another believer he is guilty of a sin, but he is also guilty of subtle and blasphemous legalism, spiritual bullying.
2. Every believer is responsible to God, and the point of reference, the justice of God, for his own life and his own actions.
3. Maligning, judging, gossiping, condemning, is blasphemy against the justice of God.
4. In effect, such judging, gossiping and condemning suggests that the guilty believer is more capable of exercising justice than God is. By gossiping and judging is meant discussing people in terms of sin—alleged (someone claimed that they sinned), real (you watched them sin), or imagined (you have assumed that they sinned).
5. The justice of God does not need help. The only time a believer is authorized to evaluate another believer is for the purpose of separation, recommendation, or evaluation as one in authority (a supervisor).
6. When one has authority over others he must evaluate any believer, or anyone else, under his command or authority in according with the principles of evaluation authorized for that command or that office.
7. In the Christian way of life, however, there is no authorization for judging, gossiping maligning, accusations or revenge tactics.
8. God has not seen fit to ask our advice or solicit our help. Furthermore, even when Satan brings accusation against us as believers God the Father has assigned us a defence attorney, the Lord Jesus Christ—1John 2:1,2. Jesus is our advocate.

When you walk away from something, then don't even think about it. The worst thing you can do is sour grapes about anything that you walked away from. When you walk away from something, walk away.

"It is God that justifieth" – the nominative singular subject theos (θεός) [pronounced theh-OSS] minus the definite article. An anarthrous construction emphasizes the high quality of the noun, here the attributes of God. Then the articular present active participle from the verb dikaioō (δικαιόω) [pronounced dik-ah-YOH-oh], meaning to justify. The definite article is used as an intensive pronoun to emphasize the identity of God in the function of justice. The present tense is a static present for a condition which perpetually exists. The active voice: only the justice of God can produce the action of the verb. This is a circumstantial participle translated, "God is the one who vindicates."

Principle

1. The integrity of God meets the challenge of human gossip or maligning or judging, and in effect tells the believer to mind his own business. Live and let live.
2. The one who justifies us at salvation will continue to handle all discipline and blessing without our help.
3. It is blasphemous and presumptuous to try to do the work of God.
4. God is perfectly equipped to do His Own work.
5. The one who has the power to impute both human and eternal life, the one who has the power to impute divine righteousness, obviously does not have to call on us for help in judging others.

Romans 8:33 Who will bring accusation against the elect of God? God is the one who justifies [vindicates].

Principle

1. The integrity of God [righteousness and justice] will either judge or bless the believer in time as well as in eternity.
2. Only God has the facts. Only God has the ability to either bless or condemn from His perfect justice.
3. Hence, there is no place for the believer to judge or bring accusation against another believer. This is the work of the justice of God.
4. The responsibility of the believer is simple. Either you adjust to the justice of God or the justice of God will adjust to you.
5. This verse presupposes, i.e., requires an antecedent logical condition for salvation adjustment to the justice of God through faith in Jesus Christ and, at that moment, the imputation of divine righteousness—justification. God is the one who justifies.
6. So the issue here is the responsibility of the believer with regard to the remaining adjustments to the justice of God—like rebound, when necessary.
7. Hence, the daily function of GAP resulting in maturity adjustment to the justice of God is the objective for time. Maturity adjustment to the justice of God results in glorifying Jesus Christ in time as well as glorifying Jesus Christ in eternity.

338 02/16/1978 Romans 8:34 "You can't be a Christian and do that"; doctrine of ascension and session (review); Jesus Christ our defense attorney

Romans 8:34 Who is the one condemning? For it is Christ Jesus, the one having died, now rather having been raised up, who is also at the right hand of God, and who is interceding for us.

Verse 34 – “Who is he that condemneth?” begins with the interrogative pronoun τίς (τις) [pronounced tihç] in the nominative case for the subject, “who.” There is no verb, it is implied in an elliptical sentence such as this. There is a nominative singular definite article used as an intensive pronoun to emphasize the gossip, the maligner, the believer who sets himself up as judge—“the one.” Then the present active participle from the compound verb katakrinō (κατακρίνω) [pronounced kaht-ak-REE-noh] [kata = against; krinō (κρίνω) [pronounced KREE-no] = judge] which means to judge against and therefore to condemn. “Who is the one who condemns?” The aoristic present tense is used for punctiliar action in present time, the time when someone maligns or judges or sets himself up as a judge through gossip of someone who is also a believer. The active voice: the carnal or the reversionistic believer produces the action of the verb. The participle is circumstantial, indicating that this occurs throughout the Church Age.

Principle

1. This for of maligning or judging is actually an advance on the previous verse in that it adds to malicious gossip, maligning or judgement, the statement that the victim could not be a Christian and do such a thing. In reality all Christians are human and in the circumstances of reversionism there is nothing a Christian cannot do.
2. The plan of God is greater than the legalistic opinion of some ignorant or carnal or reversionistic believer.
3. The act of declaring a believer not saved is a challenge to the plan of God, and obviously a challenge to the grace of God.
4. It should be noted immediately that our salvation does not depend upon human opinions or observations of any legalist, any spiritual bully, any gossip or maligner.
5. Our salvation does depend upon the working of God.

“It is Christ that died” – the Greek says Christos (χριστός) [pronounced krees-TOHSS] Iêsous (Ἰησοῦς) [pronounced ee-ay-SOOCE] ho apothnêskō (ἀποθνήσκω) [pronounced op-ohth-NACE-koh]. In other words, we have “Christ Jesus” rather than “It is Christ.” This is a nominative subject, Christos (χριστός) [pronounced krees-TOHSS] Iêsous (Ἰησοῦς) [pronounced ee-ay-SOOCE], and so it should be translated literally, “Christ Jesus.” This is not a predicate nominative, it is a subject. It is elliptical and the subject precedes the implied present active indicative of eimi (εἰμί) [pronounced eye-ME], “is.” Then the aorist active participle of the verb apothnêskō (ἀποθνήσκω) [pronounced op-ohth-NACE-koh], used for the work of Christ on the cross, His spiritual death, receiving the imputation of our sins and being judged for them. The definite article is used as an intensive pronoun to emphasize the identity of Christ as the object of the first judicial imputation. "Christ Jesus is the one who died." The aorist tense is a constative aorist when gathered up into one entirety the imputation of all personal sins to Christ on the cross, and their judgment by the justice of the Father. The active voice: Jesus Christ produces the action of the verb by receiving the imputation of our sins and by being judged. The circumstantial participle points to the cross, with the aorist, and only to the cross and nowhere else. It doesn't refer to the physical death of Christ; only to His spiritual death. "Who is the one who condemns? Christ Jesus is the one who died." A lot of believers take it upon themselves to condemn others, and not only to condemn what other believers are allegedly doing or really doing, but then adding that you cannot do such a thing and be a Christian. So here is the answer to that.

Principle

1. Since Christ Jesus was the one condemned for our sins no one else has the right to condemn us.
2. Personal sin is not an issue in condemnation from the justice of God; Adam's original sin is the only issue. As goes Adam, so goes the human race.
3. Original sin is the issue by real imputation at birth.
4. Personal sin is not the issue in salvation because Christ who received the judicial imputation of our sins on the cross is the issue.
5. Therefore when you make an issue out of someone else's personal sins you are in a state of blasphemy, as well as being sinful in the area of gossip, maligning, judging.

Principle

1. Maligning or judging or gossiping is an advance on the previous verse because of the added implication, i.e. you cannot be born again and commit certain sins. That is a false conclusion of legalism.
2. This condemnation of pronouncing some believer not saved because of some specific sin, alleged or real, challenges the plan of God in that it implies that the work of Jesus Christ on the cross was not efficacious.
3. However, our salvation does not depend on human opinion. It depends upon the Lord Jesus Christ being judged for our sins.
4. Since all personal sins in human history were judged at the cross there is no sin a believer can commit and cancel his salvation.
5. To imply or to state that a believer can lose his salvation because of some sin is the quintessence of legalism and arrogance—arrogance because it is setting one's self up as a judge; legalism because it is depending upon works for gaining salvation and keeping it.
6. The plan of God is greater than the worst sin ever committed by a believer.
7. The sins of the believer are subject to divine punishment and discipline, but this does not include loss of salvation.

8. The saving work of Christ on the cross is greater than any sin, any good, and evil which the carnal or reversionistic believer is capable of performing.
9. This legalistic condemnation of others also ignores the entire structure of imputation from the justice of God.
10. It further ignores the fact that the point of reference for the human race is the justice of God, not the love of God.

“ye rather, that is risen again” – the comparative adverb malla [from mallwn] which means “more” or “rather.” Combined with the conjunctive particle divine establishment it introduces a thought or a doctrine which is supplemental—“Yes rather.” Plus the aorist passive participle of the verb egeirō (ἐγείρω) [pronounced ehg-ī-row], used for resurrection, translated “who has been raised,” and the implication “from the dead.” This is a culminative aorist tense, it views the resurrection of Christ from the dead in its entirety but regards it from the viewpoint existing results: the ascension and session by which the royal family is formed. The passive voice: Christ was raised from the dead through the agency of God the Father as well as God the Holy Spirit—Colossians 2:12; 1Thessalonians 1:10; 1Peter 1:21; Acts 2:24; Romans 1:4; 8:11; 1Peter 3:18. This is a circumstantial participle for the resurrection of the Lord Jesus Christ, making Him the firstfruits of them that slept. The fact that Christ has been resurrected also indicates that He will evaluate, and He will judge, all believers of the Church Age at the judgment seat of Christ. This also anticipates Romans 14:10.

“who is even at the right hand of God” –nominative singular relative pronoun hos whose antecedent is Christ Jesus from the previous phrase. Then the verb to be, the present active indicative of eimi (εἰμί) [pronounced eye-ME]. The present tense is a descriptive present for what is now going on. It can also be a retroactive progressive present denoting what has begun in the past and continues into ascension and session of the Lord Jesus Christ. The active voice: Jesus Christ actually produces the action of the verb. It is the Lord Jesus Christ who after His resurrection was ascended and seated at the right hand of the Father. The indicative mood is declarative for a dogmatic statement of doctrine. This is the very basis for the interruption of the Jewish age and the beginning of the Church Age. The Church Age is the dispensation for calling out the royal family of God, and ever believer in the Church Age is absolutely unique compared to believers in past dispensations and believers in the future after the Rapture. Plus a prepositional phrase, en (ἐν) [pronounced en] plus the locative of dexios (δεξιός) [pronounced dex-ee-OSS] —“on the right hand,” and then the descriptive genitive singular from theos (θεός) [pronounced theh-OSS]—“of God.” This is the present place of the Lord Jesus Christ.[20] Every believer in the Church Age is in union with Christ. The acceptance of Christ in heaven after the resurrection also indicates the acceptance of every Church Age believer in heaven as the royal family of God. So regardless of earthly criticism and judgment from any person, every believer has been accepted in heaven—Ephesians 1:6.

The Doctrine of Ascension and Session

1. Definition.

- a. The ascension is that doctrine of Christology pertaining to the change of residence of Jesus Christ after the resurrection when He went from earth to heaven in resurrection body.
 - b. The session is that doctrine of Christology pertaining to the glorification of Jesus Christ in hypostatic union being seated at the right hand of the Father.
 - c. These doctrines are closely related to and based on the resurrection of Jesus Christ from the dead.
 - d. Both ascension and session were accomplished in resurrection body.
 - e. These two doctrines form the climax of the strategic victory of Jesus Christ in the angelic conflict.
2. The capabilities of the resurrection body. The resurrection body of Christ was capable of horizontal and vertical travel. In horizontal travel He could go through walls or open doors. The atomic structure of the resurrection body is of such a nature that it passes through walls or closed doors without any trouble. Vertically the resurrection body has unlimited ability to travel anywhere in the universe without any damage to body at all. Our Lord Jesus Christ travelled through the outer atmosphere, the stellar universe, and then entered the third heaven, the throne room of the Father, the abode of God.
 3. The historical account of the ascension - Acts 1:9-11.
 4. The significance of the session of Christ.
 - a. The first significance has to do with the prophecy of the session. It was so important that it was prophesied in the Old Testament as an integral part of the angelic conflict. The prophesy is found in Psalm 110:1 - "The Lord said unto my Lord," - the first use of Lord is for deity, the second use of Lord is for deity - "Sit down at my right hand, until I make thine enemies thy footstool." This particular prophecy indicates the strategic victory of angelic conflict, so the session is related to that.
 - b. The session and the authority of Jesus Christ - Romans 8:34, "Who is the one who condemns? Christ Jesus is he who died, yes rather, who was raised from the dead, who is at the right hand of God, who also intercedes for us." The Lord Jesus Christ seated at the right hand of the Father is the only one who has the ability to condemn. We stand or fall through Jesus Christ. He has appointed the scripture as the means of giving us standards whereby as believer priests, members of the royal family of God, we can condemn ourselves, which is what we do every time we use the rebound technique.
 - c. The session and the ministry of the Holy Spirit - Ephesians 1:20, "Which power [of the Holy Spirit] has been operational in Jesus Christ" - Jesus Christ was indwelt by God the Holy Spirit in His humanity during the first advent, during the time of His hypostatic union on earth - "the Father having raised him from the dead, and having seated him at his own right hand in the heavenlies." The ministry of God the Holy Spirit is related to the death, burial, resurrection and session of the Lord Jesus Christ. Therefore, since God the Holy Spirit sustained the humanity of Christ during all of these things there is a relationship between the session of Christ and the ministry of God the Holy Spirit. In fact it sets the pattern for the royal family in relationship to the Holy Spirit in the dispensation of the Church.

- d. The session and mental attitude - Colossians 3:1,2, "If, therefore, you have been raised in Christ, keep on desiring to possess and endeavouring to obtain the above things" - referring to doctrine - "where Christ is sitting at the right hand of the Father. Keep thinking about above things [doctrine], not things on the earth." Due to the fact that Jesus Christ is seated at the right hand of the Father we have the privilege of mental attitude dynamics divine viewpoint, and this of course is related to doctrine.
- e. The session and the celebrityship of Jesus Christ - Hebrews 1:3, "Who being the radiance, the flashing forth of the glory, and the exact image of his essence, also sustaining all things by the verbal expression of his power, having himself accomplished purification of sins, was caused to sit down at the right hand of the majesty in high places." In other words, the Lord Jesus Christ is portrayed during the period of His hypostatic union the manifestation of the members of the Godhead, He was deity, He was the exact image of His essence, He sustained all things by His verbal expressions. While He was on earth he held the universe together, He accomplished eternal salvation at the cross, finally entering into the heavens and the very presence of God, and was seated. All of this is related to His celebrityship.
- f. The session and the angelic conflict - Hebrews 1:13, "But to which of the angels has he said at any time, Sit down at my right hand until I appoint your enemies the footstool for your feet?" No angel was ever told to be seated at the right hand of the Father, once again the significance of the doctrine of session. Jesus Christ was seated at the right hand of the Father as a man and the moment He was He became superior in His humanity to all angels. As deity He is infinitely superior to all of the angelic creatures, and as humanity He was raised to that high station and at that point He became superior forever to the angelic hosts. Because of this we are members of the royal family of God and in our resurrection bodies we will be superior to angels also. At the present time we are inferior creatures to the angelic hosts but all of that is going to change in resurrection.
- g. The session and the priesthood - Hebrews 8:1, "Now the main point on what is being communicated is this: We have such a category of high priest who is sat down at the right hand of the throne of the majesty in the heavens." In that particular passage Jesus Christ is pointed out to be superior to all Levitical priests of the past and all high priests. They dealt with shadows; He dealt with the reality. They could only offer animal sacrifices; He offered Himself. They never sat down in the tabernacle, and therefore Jesus Christ by sitting down is pointed out to be infinitely superior to all. So the session is used to show the superiority of Jesus Christ as our high priest.
- h. The session and the sacrifice - Hebrews 10:12, "But this one [Jesus Christ], when he had offered a unique sacrifice on behalf of sins for all time, sat down on the right hand of God." To indicate that the sacrifice of Christ was totally efficacious and that it is the only way of eternal salvation the Lord Jesus Christ was seated at the right hand of the Father. This demonstrates the principle "it is finished," and indicates the fact that what was finished was totally and completely efficacious, so that anyone at any time in any part of the world who believes in the Lord Jesus Christ immediately enters into the palace forever. The baptism of the Holy Spirit makes every believer a member of the royal family of God forever.

- i. The session and occupation of Christ - Hebrews 12:2.
 - j. The session and strategic victory - 1Peter 3:22, "Jesus Christ who is at the right hand of god, having gone into heaven after the angels and authorities and powers had been subordinated to him." All angelic forces, evil type, all types of demons, have been subordinated to Him. The Lord Jesus Christ is infinitely superior and has dominion over all creatures. This is demonstrated by the session.
5. The session, therefore, confirms the celebrityship of Jesus Christ. The ascension and session of Jesus Christ completed His glorification and the second person of the Trinity in hypostatic union has received the maximum glory - Acts 2:33, "Therefore, having been exalted to the right hand of God." Acts 5:31, "He is the one exalted at his right hand the Prince and saviour." Philippians 2:9, "Therefore also, the God has highly exalted him and given him a name which is above every name." As eternal God Jesus Christ is pre-eminent. As the God-Man at the right hand of the Father Jesus Christ is unique, overwhelming. He has the distinction of highest nobility and the most illustrious of all celebrityships. His eminence and prominence defy hyperbole.
6. The strategic victory of the angelic conflict. The ascension and session of Christ form the basis for strategic victory of the angelic conflict. Hebrews chapter one teaches this principle. Furthermore, the ascension and session of Jesus Christ begin a new sphere of the angelic conflict - Ephesians 1:20-22, "Which power has been operational in Christ, the Father having raised him from the dead, and having seated him at his own right hand in the heavenlies, over and above all principality [the super demons], and authority [the commissioned demon], and power [the gifted demons], and lordship [the ruling demon]," - in other words, Jesus Christ is superior and over all of these categories of demons - "and every name that is named [rank and file demons], not only in this age but also in the one to come; and he has subordinated all demons under his feet, and has given absolute sovereignty over all the royal family of God with reference to the Church." And there lies the intensification of the angelic conflict, the demons who have been strategically defeated and are still tactically resisting, and the Church, the royal family of God. The same concept is amplified in Ephesians 4:7-10. This means that the Church Age is the dispensation of the intensified stage of the angelic conflict. The royal family of God is therefore subjected to the most unusual types of pressures throughout this dispensation.
7. The ascension and the royal family of God.
- a. Jesus Christ is a resurrection body is seated alone at the right hand of the Father.

- b. It is not good that the last Adam should be alone. This is what was said about the first Adam.
 - c. Therefore the Age of Israel is interrupted and a new dispensation is inserted or intercalated.
 - d. The Church Age is destined to call out the royal family of God so that in eternity the last Adam will not be alone. And the royal family is the basis for providing a bride for the last Adam.
 - e. In eternity the palace of heaven will be filled with royal family and/or the Church Age believers.
 - f. The royal family is formed by means of the baptism of the Holy Spirit, as mentioned by Jesus Christ in Acts 1:5.
 - g. For the first time in history, then, God the Holy Spirit actually takes up His residence in the body of every believer. That is because we are royal family of God - 1 Corinthians 6:19-20.
 - h. This could not occur until Christ was glorified - John 7:37-39.
8. The ascension and the new priesthood.
- a. The ascension and session of Christ abrogates the Levitical priesthood. The Levitical priesthood was a specialised priesthood, they had special holy days related to this priesthood, a lot of special activity, but they did not have the effectiveness that we have today.
 - b. The Levitical priesthood is replaced by the royal priesthood of the Church Age - 1 Peter 2:9, "You are a chosen race [a race of election], you are a royal priesthood, you are a holy nation, a people of God's own possession, that you may proclaim the excellencies of him who has called you out of darkness into his marvellous light " Cf. Revelation 1:6; 5:10; 20:6. Therefore the Lord Jesus Christ at the right hand of the Father is the new high priest - Hebrews 10:1-10 - and our high priest even makes intercession for us - Hebrews 7:25.
9. The ascension verifies the efficacy of the sacrifice of Christ on the cross - Hebrews 9:23, 24, "Of necessity, therefore, on the one hand that the copies [or models] of things in heaven be cleansed with shadows; but on the other hand the heavenly realities themselves with better sacrifices than these" - the work of Christ on the cross is superior to animal blood on the altar - "For Christ has not entered into a holy of holies made with hands [the tabernacle], a model of the reality [heaven], but into heaven itself to appear in the presence of God on behalf of us." The Levitical priesthood dealt with shadows; our priesthood deals with realities. However, these realities are not realities apart from Bible doctrine resident in the soul.
10. The ascension and the ultimate defeat of Satan. The ascension and session of Christ begin operation footstool, according to Psalm 110:1, quoted in Luke 2:42 and 43, and quoted again in Acts 2:33,34 and Hebrews 1:13. The quotation of the prophecy in those three passages indicates the fact that operation footstool began with the session of Christ. The second advent terminates operation footstool. Christ will supersede Satan as the ruler of the world at that time - Daniel 7:14 describes that, "And to him was given dominion, glory and sovereignty, that all peoples, nations and languages might serve him; his dominion is an everlasting dominion which will not pass away, furthermore his kingdom is one which shall not be destroyed." Zechariah 13:2, "And it will come to pass in that day, saith the Lord of armies, that I will cut off the names of the idols from the land, and they will no longer be remembered; furthermore I will also remove the false prophets and demons from the land." The removal of demons means that they are bumped off the earth as it confirmed by Revelation 20:1-3. Colossians 2:15 describes the same thing, "Having disarmed demon archons . he made a public display of them, having celebrated a triumphal procession over them by means of him [His victory]."

There is a rumor that there are many believers in Russia, secretly meeting. If that were true, Russia would change.

“who also maketh intercession for us” – the nominative singular of the relative pronoun hos which is the subject, it has as its antecedent “Christ Jesus.” Plus the adjunctive use of the conjunction kai, introducing a fact which is related but also a part of the subject. The present active indicative of entugchanō (ἐντυγχάνω) [pronounced en-toong-KHAN-oh] is the word for “intercession.” It means to make intercession, to petition, to approach someone with a complaint, as in Acts 15:24; Romans 11:2. This is the intercessory ministry of our Lord Jesus Christ, cf. Hebrews 7:25. The present tense is retroactive progressive present denoting what has begun in the past and continues into the present time. When Christ sat down at the right hand of the Father He began a ministry which has continued for 2000 years. The active voice: Jesus Christ, the great high priest, produces the action. The declarative indicative mood is for the reality of the fact that Jesus Christ prays constantly for us. Entugchanō (ἐντυγχάνω) [pronounced en-toong-KHAN-oh] also means to approach, to appeal to someone, to petition—all functions, by the way, of a lawyer—to approach the bench. This is compatible with our Lord’s function in 1John 2:1. So this means not only intercession, but it also means that Jesus Christ as a lawyer approaches the bench on our behalf—“who also petitions.” Then hupér (ὑπέρ) [pronounced hoop-AIR] plus the genitive plural of the pronoun egó (ἐγώ) [pronounced ehg-OH]—“on behalf of us.”

If Jesus Christ is our defence attorney in heaven, what right does any believer have to judge us? That is the point. The intercessory principle is not really found here as such, this is the function of a lawyer who approaches the bench on behalf of His erring clients, who petitions on behalf of His clients. Jesus Christ approaches the throne of God as a defence attorney. He is retained as our attorney. Every time we sin Satan is going to accuse us, and He approaches the bench on our behalf.

Romans 8:34 Who is the one who condemns? Christ Jesus is the one having died, yes rather, having been raised, who is on the right hand of God, who petitions for us.

Lesson #339

339 02/17/1978 Romans 8:34–35a Challenge 3: Judging; privacy; Jesus Christ, our advocate; doctrine of the function of the Royal High Priest; love

vv. 17–34 are read.

Who will accuse the elect of God? Every believer must live his life unto the Lord. We are to be God-pleasers, not men-pleasers. Bob continues reviewing v. 34.

Many of you are too dependent upon someone else's advice or guidance. You must not use someone else as a crutch. You must get the answers from your own self. Bob regrets every minute that he spent counseling others. The worst thing is a marriage dispute and they want the pastor to act as a referee. The worst thing a pastor can do is counseling. He turns his entire congregation into weak sisters. Most of you are strangers to one another; and keep your mouth shut about your own business. If you are foolish enough to expose your privacy to others, don't come to Bob and complain.

Who is the one who condemns? A person draws his own conclusions, like, so-and-so cannot be a Christian and do that. Too many believers are saying that because someone's lifestyle is different and they cannot be considered spiritual or mature or whatever in the Christian life. We are all royal priests. If you resent someone's lifestyle, you are not loving the brethren. Loving the brethren means you can look across the room and see someone who is completely different from them, but not be angry, or judging, etc. We all have the right to live our own life before the Lord.

Jesus petitions on our behalf, as our defense attorney. This brings us to the function of the royal High Priest. This is in the realm of Christology.

Doctrine of the Royal High Priest

1. Jesus Christ was born a royal High Priest. He was born in the line of David, which is the kingly line. But He was born after the likeness of Melchizedek, making Him a royal High Priest. Jesus Christ was born a royal priest in the pattern of Melchizedek, who was a king-priest. Christ is a royal priest, since He is in the royal line of David.
2. As the royal high priest, Jesus Christ is the minister of spiritual things, Hebrews 5:1. This priesthood began with His sacrifice for sin.
3. Christ offered Himself as a sacrifice for sin as our royal high priest, Heb 9:26-27, 10:10, 14.
4. Christ makes intercession for the believer as the royal high priest, Hebrews 7:25.
5. Christ as our high priest is our advocate.
 - a. Satan in heaven makes accusation against believers. He sees or has demons observing your failures. So why should we judge each other when Satan goes straight to God with our failures? Job 1:6-11; Zech 3:1-2; Revelation 12:9-10. Satan is far smarter than you and I are; and he actually sees sins being committed; and he brings this to God. Why should I talk about you, when Satan does a much better job. Satan goes right into heaven with these reports. He is the original tattletale. Diabolos is the Greek word for accuser. Satan also means an accuser, a maligner, a judger.
 - b. Whenever Satan accuses us, Christ is our defense attorney. The basis of our Lord's defense is the fact that all our personal sins were imputed to Him and judged, 1Peter 2:24; 2Corinthians 5:21; 1John 2:2.

- c. We have the same basis of defense offered up by the Lord. God the Father, who imputed our sins to Christ and judged them, Psalm 22:1-6, will not judge them again. The law of double jeopardy is our Lord's defense. Our personal sins were already judged once, Romans 6:10.
- d. The test case for this principle in Scripture is Joshua the high priest in the days of Zechariah, Zech 3:1-2.
- e. However, once the case has been thrown out of court, the sin becomes a family matter, in which the Father disciplines us for the sin unless we also have pleaded our case, using rebound. We plead our case the same way as Christ does, i.e., we simply name the sin to God, citing Christ's work on our behalf.
- f. Once the case has been thrown out of court, then the sin becomes a family matter, which the Father disciplines us for the unconfessed sins. We don't try to fool God the Father; He already knows the facts.

Principle

1. The last phrase who petitions for us or makes intercession for us eliminates the right of any believer to judge another believer. Even Satan, with all the facts, has his cases thrown out of court. How do you think God will respond to you or me gossiping about another believer?
2. Jesus Christ has the right, but there are only several areas of delegation of that right.
3. Christian parents can judge and punish their own children.
4. Christian management can judge and evaluate those working for him.
5. Christian pastors have the right to judge to protect the congregation from bullying and gossiping. But the primary duty of the pastor-teacher is teaching.
6. The last phrase, those who petition or make intercession for us a royal High Priest. A High Priest was the last found in the Sanhedrin.

Romans 8:34 Who is the one who condemns? Christ Jesus is the one having died, yes rather, having been raised, who is on the right hand of God, who petitions for us.

Closing Points

1. What Christ has done or is doing is not subject to criticism.
2. Jesus Christ is perfect.
3. At present, Christ is our advocate and intercessor. He prays for our weakness and He defends our sinfulness.

4. This work of Christ is not subject to criticism. God alone has the right to judge believers and this was given to the Son.
5. If the Father does not judge believers, what makes you think that you can get away with such arrogance and presumption?
6. Why God cannot even take away the salvation of the worst believer who ever lived; so what right do you have to judge another believer or to conclude someone is not saved who is saved.
7. The royal priesthood demands, live and let live.
8. Or every believer must live his own life as unto the Lord.
9. Every believer has the right of the privacy of his own priesthood.

The Four Challenges

1. Opposition in v. 31.
2. A fortiori blessing in v. 32.
3. Judging, maligning other believers. Vv. 33–34
4. The fourth challenge is suffering. Vv. 35–37

Romans 8:35 Who will separate us from the love of Christ? Will tribulation, or distress, or persecution, or famine, or nakedness, or danger, or sword? (BLB)

Verse 35 – the fourth challenge (verses 35-37): suffering. Many people lose sight of the plan of God when they begin to hurt too much. “Who shall separate us from the love of Christ?” The nominative singular of the interrogative pronoun τίς (τις) [pronounced tihç], plus the future active indicative of the verb chôrizô (χωρίζω) [pronounced kho-RIHD-zoh] which means to divide or to separate. This is a deliberative future tense used for a rhetorical question taking the place of a direct assertion of doctrine. The active voice: seven categories of suffering listed in this verse produce the action of the verb. The indicative mood is the interrogative indicative, assuming that there is the point of doctrine which may be stated in answer to this question.

The direct object is the accusative plural from egó (ἐγώ) [pronounced ehg-OH], “us.” “Who shall separate us?” Then the prepositional phrase, από (ἀπό) [pronounced aw-PO] plus the ablative of agápē (ἀγάπη) [pronounced ag-AH-pay], referring to God the Son’s love for the mature believer. All believers are under the love of God because of the imputation of salvation. The object of divine love must always be perfect. God’s righteousness is perfect; God loves His righteousness. God’s righteousness is imputed to us without destroying this perfection. God therefore loves us. That is what is in view at this point: “Who shall separate us from the love of Christ?” the subjective genitive from Christos (χριστός) [pronounced krees-TOHSS], with the definite article to denote a previous reference in context. The subjective genitive is used when a noun in the genitive produces the action of the verb. Separation from the Lord Jesus Christ and His love for us is impossible. Once we believe in Christ we have God’s righteousness plus the love of each member of the Trinity; in this case, the Lord Jesus Christ who loves us because we possess His righteousness. He loves

His righteousness wherever it is located and nothing can interdict. Nothing can come in between God's love and the believer because the believer possesses divine righteousness.

Who Can Separate us from the Love of Christ?

1. Nothing can separate us from the love of Christ for us any more than anything can separate Jesus Christ from His perfect integrity.
2. Remember we have a piece of God's integrity from salvation and therefore we have a place in God's love.
3. Since God's perfect integrity resides in us God loves us, and always will. He cannot dislike or reject His integrity, wherever He finds it.
4. Just as God the Son cannot reject His own integrity, so the mature believer cannot be separated from the love of God. (It just so happens that we are talking about the mature believer here. We could be talking about the reversionist and the same principle would apply)
5. Just as God the Son cannot reject His Own integrity, so the believer cannot be separated from the love of God.
6. Like all attributes of God love belongs to the being of God.
7. God is love regardless of having any object of love.
8. As far as objects are concerned, because God is perfect He can only love a perfect object.
9. Therefore the love of God objectively is directed toward other members of the Godhead.
10. Subjectively God's love is directed toward His own integrity. God loves His righteousness which is the principle of His integrity; God loves His justice which is the function of His integrity.
11. Since we possess the righteousness of God imputed judicially, and since we possess the righteousness of Christ through union with Christ, we are the objects of the love of Christ in this passage and the objects of the love of God the Father in Romans 8:39.
12. Because of the permanence of imputation nothing can separate us from the love of Christ, and furthermore nothing can separate us from the love of God the Father. Therefore, while the love of the Father and the love of the Son does not provide blessing for us it does frame the relationship we have with God forever. God will deal with us right up to the judgment seat of Christ, always with His justice. The last time the justice of God will be the frame of reference is the judgment seat of Christ.

340 02/19/1978 Romans 8:35b–36 Challenge to the plan of God 4,5: undeserved suffering; martyrdom; de-capitalization; life of Nero

Romans 8 is all about the imputations which describe the overall plan of God. Life is imputed to the human soul; Adam's original sin is imputed to the sin nature; this gives us the first hope, which is salvation.

[Y] is the judicial imputation of our sins to Jesus Christ and His righteousness to us. Instead of imputing our sins to us, the natural recipients of our sins, they are imputed to Jesus Christ. The imputations of these blessings glorify Jesus Christ. We cannot do anything to receive blessings from God—witnessing or giving or tithing or working around a church. No system of works can penetrate the encapsulated blessing pipe.

Category #5 is the imputation of undeserved suffering; and #6 is dying grace.

Romans 8:28–34 are read and reviewed.

Romans 8:35 Who will separate us from the love of Christ? Will tribulation, or distress, or persecution, or famine, or nakedness, or danger, or sword? (BLB)

God does not love the world; this is an anthropopathism. The Members of the Godhead love One Another. Love from God cannot go in the direction of an imperfect creature. God also loves His Own justice and righteousness.

Twelve points from previous lesson are reviewed.

Then we have the list: “shall tribulation” – the nominative singular of thlipsis (θλίψις) [pronounced THLIP-siss] which means pressure, affliction, oppression. This would be extreme pressure, distressing circumstances, and therefore we might call it tribulation or circumstantial pressure such as historical disaster and catastrophe.

“or distress” – nominative singular from the noun stenochōría (στενοχωρία) [pronounced sten-okh-oh-REE-ah] which is a reference to oppression, or sometimes even anguish or mental pressure. There is mental pressure for the immature believer, but this is often divine discipline. There is also tribulation or circumstantial pressure for the immature believer as divine discipline. But they are being used here only in the absolute sense of undeserved suffering for the mature believer.

“or persecution” – the nominative singular of diōgmós (διωγμός) [pronounced dee-ogue-MOSS], meaning persecution. This refers to legitimate persecution because you are a mature believer, not persecution because of stupidity.

“or famine” – the nominative singular of limos (λιμός) [pronounced lee-MOSS] which means being deprived of food and is called “famine.”

“or nakedness” – nominative singular of gumnótēs (γυμνότης) [pronounced goom-NOT-ace], which means to be deprived of clothing. This is not nakedness self-induced, it is nakedness being deprived. It means to have no clothes when the temperature gets down, nothing to warm the body.

“or peril” – the nominative singular of kίνδυνος (κίνδυνος) [pronounced KIHN-doo-noss] which means “danger.”

“or sword” – the nominative singular of máchaira (μάχαιρα) [pronounced MAHKH-ahēe-rah], “sword,” referring to military suffering. It is also used for crime of violence. This is the Roman short sword.

Romans 8:35 Who will separate us from the love of Christ? Will tribulation, or distress, or persecution, or famine, or nakedness, or danger, or sword? (BLB)

Romans 8:35 Who shall separate us from the love of Christ? Shall tribulation [circumstantial pressure, historical disaster], or anguish [mental pressure], or persecution, or famine, or nakedness [deprived from necessities], or danger [physical or natural catastrophe], or sword [crime, violence, military disaster]?

Principle

1. No catastrophe or disaster of life is greater than the person of God or the plan of God.
2. For the mature believer every catastrophe of undeserved suffering is added blessing.
3. We may fail God in adversity but God never fails us in adversity.
4. In the midst of the greatest sufferings of life the mature believer still possesses the righteousness of God, and still receives blessing as a real imputation from the justice of God.
5. Between the justice of God and the righteousness of God all pressures and adversities of life are diminished to a state of nothingness.

What our President has been doing, along with our Senate and House and the Supreme Court, has been evil.

Romans 8:36 As it has been written: “For Your sake we face death all the day; we were regarded as sheep of slaughter.” (BLB)

Verse 36 – the prophecy of the imputation of dying blessing or martyrdom. Technically, martyrdom is the death of a mature believer through undeserved suffering. “As it is written” is to introduce a quotation. The adverb kathōs (καθώς) [pronounced kahth-OCE] plus the perfect passive indicative of graphō (γράφω) [pronounced GRAWF-oh] for and Old Testament quotation. Psalm 44:22 is quoted as the prophecy of dying grace to the writer of the Romans. The perfect tense of graphō (γράφω) [pronounced GRAWF-oh] is a dramatic perfect, a rhetorical application of the intensive perfect which means that Paul recognizes the Old Testament canon as being a part of the Word of God, and he takes a verse out of the Psalms and quotes it in Romans, recognizing that what he is writing is the Word of God and that all of it together is the canon of Scripture. The passive voice: the canon of Scripture receives the action of the verb. The indicative mood is declarative for the reality of the fact that Psalm 44:22, as found in the Old Testament, is a part of the Word of God. And as it is quoted it is still a part of the Word of God. Then a conjunction follows, hōti (ὅτι) [pronounced HOH-tee], which is simply quotation marks. It is sometimes translated “that” when it is used in indirect discourse, or used to introduce a subordinate clause, but here it is simply used as quotation marks. Psalm 44:22 is quoted as it is found in the Septuagint, however, not as found in the Hebrew.

“For thy sake we are killed all the day long” – the Hebrew translation is: “Know indeed, for thy sake we are slain continually; we are counted as sheep for the slaughter.”

This psalm actually contains a description of what the Jews had to suffer for the Lord’s sake, and therefore it is quoted by Paul to interpret comparable sufferings of the Church Age believer. The quotation begins with an improper preposition, i.e. an adverb which becomes a preposition. The adverb is heneka/heneken/heineken (ἐνεκα/ἐνεκεν/εἵνεκεν) [pronounced HEN-ek-ah, HEN-ek-en, HI-nek-en], and is used with the genitive singular of the personal pronoun su—“for your sake.”

Plus the present passive indicative of the verb thanatōō (θανατώω) [pronounced thahn-aht-OH-oh] which means “we are being put to death.” The present tense is a descriptive present, it describes what is now going on in the reign of Nero. The passive voice is for any great believer who receives the action of the verb. The indicative mood is declarative representing the verbal action from the viewpoint of reality. Plus the accusative singular direct object from the adjective holos (ὅλος, η, ον) [pronounced HOH-loss], which means “entire.” Followed by the noun it modifies, hēmera (ἡμέρα) [pronounced hay-MEH-raw], used here to mean the whole day or all day long, and it means more than just a day, it refers to the historical era in which Paul wrote.

Paul’s Statement

1. This is a prophetic statement by Paul to describe contemporary history under the rule of Nero. Agrapino married Claudius; and he adopted Nero.
2. The year in which Paul wrote this line was A.D. 58. Just four years before Paul wrote this, A.D. 54, Nero came to the throne because his mother poisoned his step father, Claudius. She fed him mushrooms and inserted into the lunch a popular poison. She wanted her son to inherit the throne.
3. The phrase, “during the whole day,” is the whole day of the reign of Nero which would terminate just a few weeks after Nero executed Paul.
4. From Swatonius and the 12 Caesars. Much of this was Latin pornography. During his reign, many abuses were severely applied.

What kind of a man was Nero?

Bob Learned 10 Things about Nero in College

1. A young boy about 14, called very beautiful. Nero castrated the boy made him a woman and married him.
2. He wrote in a carrier with his mother and he raped her constantly.
3. He married a freed slave named Doryforus; a male, and also castrated him and married him.

4. He would go down the street in a bear (?) Covering and when he came upon a couple, he would beat the man and rape the woman.
5. He murdered Britannicus, the son of Claudius.
6. He murdered his mother; he murdered his aunt, who took him in (Drusilla or Abilia, as she was called).
7. He murdered his first wife, Octavia, daughter of Claudius.
8. He murdered his second wife, Pompaya. When she was pregnant, he took a sword and cut the baby out.
9. He murdered Burriss, the prefect of the guard, who helped to put him on the throne.
10. He used Christians for torches at his garden parties. He tied them to stakes and poured pitch on them, and when it was time to light up the party, he would set fire to them. He gave the signal, and they would be lit up. So he was not a very nice person.

“we are accounted as sheep for the slaughter” – aorist passive indicative of logizomai (λογίζομαι) [pronounced log-IHD-zohm-ai] does not mean to account here, that is a related meaning. This is an accounting term but it means here to calculate or to impute: “we have been imputed.” The aorist tense is a constative aorist and it is used here for a succession of events of martyrdom which extend over a period of Nero’s reign. In reality, any martyrdom in the Church Age is included. The passive voice: dying grace was a real imputation to certain mature believers like the apostle Paul. The indicative mood is declarative for the historical reality of the imputation of dying blessing to mature and great believers through martyrdom.

The French revolutionists by guillotining the ruling class, this was the easiest death a person could have.

Many mature believers died with glory and painlessly by this method.

A comparative particle follows the verb, hōs (ὡς) [pronounced hohç], and then the accusative plural direct object from próbaton (πρόβατον) [pronounced PROHB-at-ohn] —“as sheep.” The sheep connotation is one of great helplessness. Then the objective genitive singular of sphagê (σφαγή) [pronounced sfrag-AY] which means “slaughter.”

Romans 8:36 As it stands written, For your sake we are being put to death the whole day [the reign of Nero], we have been imputed as sheep for slaughter.

This prophecy goes for the Church Age.

Romans 8:36 As it stands written [in Psalm 44:22], For your sake we are being put to death the whole day [the reign of Nero], we have been imputed as sheep for slaughter.

Paul and Nero were born and lived parallel lives and their paths crossed twice.

Lesson #341

341 02/19/1978 Romans 8:37–39 Six adversities; angelic hierarchy; confidence in the security of the believer in divine love

Romans 8:37 But in all these things, we more than conquer through the One having loved us. (BLB)

”Verse 37 – “Nay, in all these things.” The adversative conjunction allá (ἀλλά) [pronounced ahl-LAH] means here, “Nevertheless.” It is followed by a prepositional phrase, en (ἐν) [pronounced en] plus the locative plural of pás (πάς) [pronounced pahs] and houtos (οὗτος) [pronounced HOO-tos]—“in all these things.” The locative plural from the demonstrative houtos (οὗτος) [pronounced HOO-tos] refers to the sufferings of the previous verse. It is a reference to the real imputation of dying blessing to the mature believer in martyrdom.

“we are more than conquerors” – present active indicative from the compound verb hupernikáō (ὑπερνικάω) [pronounced hoop-er-nik-AH-oh] [hupér (ὑπέρ) [pronounced hoop-AIR] and above = over; nikáō (νικάω) [pronounced nihk-AH-oh] – to conquer or to be victorious] means to be abundantly victorious, to overwhelmingly conquer, to overpower in victory. Here it simply refers to supreme victory. “Nevertheless, in all of these things we win the supreme victory.” The customary present tense is for what habitually occurs when the justice of God imputes dying blessing to the mature believer through the process of martyrdom. This, along with undeserved suffering imputed is the supreme victory of the Christian life and is the intensification of the focus of the third hope. The active voice: the mature believer receiving the real imputation of undeserved suffering, or receiving the imputation of martyrdom, produces the action of the verb. The indicative mood is declarative for the reality of the fact that two of the greatest blessings of life—undeserved suffering, or the great imputation of martyrdom—are the greatest things that can happen to any believer in time.

“through him that loved us” – the prepositional phrase dia plus the genitive of the definite article as a part of the articular aorist active participle of agapaō (ἀγαπάω) [pronounced ahg-ahp-AH-oh]. The definite article is used as a personal pronoun for God the Father, whose love is described in verse 39. The gnomic aorist of the participle is for a fact or a doctrine so fixed in its certainty as to be axiomatic, so axiomatic in its character that it is described in the aorist tense just as though it was an actual occurrence. The English idiom is translated by the present tense, therefore it should be translated “who loves us.” God the Father produces the action of the verb as a result of the judicial imputation of divine righteousness at salvation. The participle is circumstantial. It is followed by the accusative plural direct object from the personal pronoun egó (ἐγώ) [pronounced ehg-OH], referring to all believers without exception.

Romans 8:37 Nevertheless, in all these things we win the supreme victory through Him [God the Father] Who loves us.

A Summary of the Final Section of Romans 8: the Challenges to the New Life

1. Opposition V. 21
2. A fortiori blessing v. 32
3. Accusation and judgment on the part of the others vv. 33–34
4. Undeserved suffering and martyrdom
5. Security vv. 38–39

Romans 8:38 For I am persuaded that neither death, nor life, nor angels, nor principalities, nor things present, nor things to come, nor powers, (BLB)

Verse 38 – the fifth challenge: security (verses 38-39). One thing that characterizes the royal family in its thought, in its function, and in its life is the complete and total sense of security; a sense of security about everything provided by God. The life of the believer is encapsulated by the sense of security. All of this is provided by the justice of God.

“For I am persuaded” – the postpositive conjunctive particle gar is used in its inferential sense and translated “So.” Then the perfect passive indicative of the verb peithō (πείθω) [pronounced PIE-thoh] means here to be convinced, or to stand convinced. It has the connotation of confidence. “So I stand convinced.” As a result of studying the activities and principles and functions and thoughts of the mature believer in Romans 8—for every bit of Romans 8 is for the mature believer—the conclusion: “So I stand convinced.” The intensive perfect emphasizes the existing results. When special attention is directed to the results of the verb emphasis on the existing fact is intensified. This is the emphatic way in the Greek for presenting a fact which will always stand. It is a strong way of saying that a thing is, and always will be. The passive voice: the mature believer receives the action of the verb through maximum doctrine resident in the soul, as well as in the human spirit. The indicative mood is declarative for a dogmatic statement of doctrine: confidence belongs to every mature believer. For believers who are positive, confidence is one of the things that is being built up in their life. There is testing to develop that confidence: adversity, uncertainty of circumstances, the daily presentation of Bible doctrine. All of these things combine to give a tremendous sense of security and confidence in life.

There is a great section on this in Romans 12. There is no difficulty or no disaster which is too great for this confidence.

Principle

1. This confidence recognizes that there is no circumstance in life, no situation, too great for the plan of God. Nor is there any circumstance too great for the provision of God.
2. Always understand that the plan of God for this life is greater than any problem in life. No adversity or difficulty.

10 challenges which are set apart in couplets.

Nothing in life is as great as God, and nothing in life is as great as the plan of God. So we now find ten challenges presented by six categories in this passage. They are presented in categories composed of couplets. There are four couplets, and at the end there are two singles. All are separated by the use of negative adverbs, οὔτε (οὔτε) [pronounced OO-teh], οὔτε (οὔτε) [pronounced OO-teh], generally translated here, “neither, nor.”

This series is introduced by the conjunction ὅτι (ὅτι) [pronounced HOH-tee], used in an exegetical way, used as a substantive for the infinitive after verbs of perception. The conjunction ὅτι (ὅτι) [pronounced HOH-tee] indicates that this is the conclusion of the great eighth chapter of Romans. The six categories now are listed in these two verses as follows:

The Six Categories

1. The first category deals with human events in history, and we use the words “death” and “life.”
2. The second category is angelic intrusion into the Christian life.
3. The third category is time: things present; things to come.”
4. The fourth category is human organization: “powers.”
5. The fifth category is space: height and depth.
6. The sixth category is human beings: “any other creature.”

Every challenge of life is defeated by the integrity of God. The believer has a total sense of confidence without arrogance. We find people confidence with arrogance. People have then when it comes to their wealth or their confidence in life.

“neither death nor life” – the nominative singular subject of thanatos (θάνατος) [pronounced THAH-nah-toss]. There is no way a mature believer can die, no situation related to death, that will shake his poise or in any way destroy his confidence or complete sense of security. The mature believer goes through whatever process of dying God has for him with complete and total confidence and security. Then the nominative singular subject zôê (ζωή) [pronounced dzoh-AY], which has to do with everything in life. Neither the events of life nor the cause of dying is a cause of fear or concern to the mature believer. Therefore the mature believer has the greatest possible confidence in the midst of unfolding historical events as they relate to his own person, whether they relate to his living or to his dying. The plan of God is much greater than anything that we experience.

“neither angels, nor principalities” – the nominative singular subject in the plural aggelos (ἄγγελος) [pronounced AHN-geh-loss] obviously refers to opposition angels. This refers to the fallen angels, the demons. The nominative plural subject archê (ἀρχή) [pronounced ar-KHAY] refers to demon generals, highest authority or rank wherever it is found. This would include Satan and the entire structure of angelic hierarchy, cf. Ephesians 6:12.

Athens placed the legislative branch of their government below their military.

“nor things present, nor things to come” – the nominative plural neuter perfect active participle enistêmi (ἐνίστημι) [pronounced en-IHS-tay-mee]. It means to stand in, to be present, or to be imminent. This is the ascriptive use of an adjective participle. However, when the participle is not accompanied by a noun it functions as a substantive. So it actually means “present things”—“neither present things.” Present thing in history cannot in any way destroy the mature believer’s confidence in relationship to the plan of God. Plus the present active participle mellô (μέλλω) [pronounced MEHL-low], also used as a substantive. It is the ascriptive use of the adjective or participle, meaning future things—“nor future things.” This phrase summarizes the total realm of suffering, both current and anticipated. The fervent imagination is overcome by Bible doctrine resident in the soul so that there is complete and total confidence. Smart people with a great imagination show great bravery because they can imagine all of the negative things which might take place. There is a great book called The Four Feathers; and this is all about how someone had great imagination and great courage. Beautifully written.

The fourth couplet: human organization: “nor powers” is the nominative plural of dúnamis (δύναμις) [pronounced DOO-nahm-iss]. It stands by itself because inevitably bureaucracy is evil; it demands evil. Smart people may be in charge, but they are brought low by the stupidity of the bureaucracy. Power wielded by the stupid, blinded by the implications of good. Because they get caught up in human good they become, inevitably, stupid. But they wield great power. So it is used here for power in human life, power for organization, for people with power and authority over life and death. God’s plan and God’s provision is greater than all the hostile powers of mankind. God’s power is greater than OSHA; it is greater than communism; it is greater than any conspiracy to rob us of our freedoms.

Romans 8:38 So I stand convinced that neither death nor life, neither angels nor rulers of angels, neither present things nor future things, neither powers.

Romans 8:39 nor height, nor depth, nor any other created thing, will be able to separate us from the love of God in Christ Jesus our Lord. (BLB)

Verse 39 – Category five: space. “Nor height nor depth” – the nominative singular of hupsōma (ὑψωμα) [pronounced HOOP-so-mah]. It is used in the astronomical connotation and also is a synonym for pride and arrogance. But it is used here for anything residing in stellar space. Therefore we translate instead of height, “heaven.” Then the nominative singular from bathos (βάθος) [pronounced BATH-oss] used for extreme depth, or poverty. Here it is used for depth in the sense of hell or the under world. Nothing in heaven or hell can remove us from the plan of God. The plan of God and the provision of God is greater than anything by way of influential creatures in heaven or in hell. Even God Himself cannot remove us from His own plan.

Category six: human beings. “nor any other creature” – the nominative singular from the indefinite pronoun tís (τις) [pronounced tihç], used here to represent a category by itself. This is the adjective use of the indefinite pronoun which is translated “any.” The nominative singular of héteros (ἕτερος) [pronounced HEH-ter-os] means creatures different from yourselves: other people who are not in the royal family. Plus the nominative singular noun ktisis (κτίσις) [pronounced KTEES-iss] which means “created thing.” It is a reference to Roman emperors, like Nero, in the time of Paul. But it refers to anyone with influence over anyone else.

“shall be able to separate us” – the future passive indicative of dunamai (δύναμαι) [pronounced DOO-nam-ahee], which really is not translated in the passage. “Shall be able” is a part of it, but it is a little stronger than that. It has the connotation of a power greater than you facing you. Therefore it can’t be translated by anything but the word “ability.” The future tense is a gnomic future for a statement of fact or doctrine rightfully expected under conditions of being a believer with the imputation of divine righteousness and eternal life. The passive voice: this is a deponent verb, passive in form but active in meaning.

No other category of human creatures plus the nine systems of power produce the action of the verb here. All ten in the nomenclature of six categories produce the action here. The indicative mood is declarative, this is a dogmatic statement of fact which is the basis of the confidence, the assurance, of the mature believer—“shall be able.”

Plus the aorist active infinitive from chōrizō (χωρίζω) [pronounced kho-RIHD-zoh]. This is a gnomic aorist for a doctrine so fixed in its certainty as to be axiomatic. This idiom is translated by the English present. The ten categories produce the action of the verb. We have an infinitive of actual result.

The accusative plural direct object from the personal pronoun egó (ἐγώ) [pronounced ehg-OH] which follows refers one category of believers, mature believers, who are conscious of this principle. So this passage refers to the mature believer only, even though the principle has a broader scope for all believers.

Next is the prepositional phrase, apó (ἀπό) [pronounced aw-PO] plus the ablative of agápē (ἀγάπη) [pronounced ag-AH-pay]—“from the love.” Plus the possessive genitive from theos (θεός) [pronounced theh-OSS], used for God the Father who is the author of the divine plan.

“which is in Christ Jesus our Lord” – this love of God the Father is said to be in Christ Jesus. Not found in the original is the verb to be. But there is a prepositional phrase, “in Christ Jesus our Lord.” So we include the verb as being the basis for understand this—positional truth. We are in union with Christ, and it should be translated “nor any other created thing shall be able to separate us from the love of the God [the Father], which is in Christ Jesus our Lord.” Since God the Father loves the Son with an eternal love, He also loves those who are in union with God the Son.

Romans 8:39 Nor heaven nor hell [nor height nor depth]; nor any other created thing be able to separate us from the love of God [the Father] which is in Christ Jesus.

We have an honor code defined in Romans 12. What is okay for the average human being is not alright for us. This Royal Family Honor Code, which is dramatically different from what we would imagine the Christian life to be.

At this point, the 1977 Romans series jumps to Romans 12. Romans 9–11 is parenthetical and about Israel. Apparently, Bob will first cover Romans 12–16 and then he will go back to pick up the missing chapters. When I personally exegete the book of Romans, I think that I will keep the Romans chapters in the correct order. However, after some back and forth in my own mind, I have decided to keep the lessons in order as Bob gave them, and take up the book of Romans to conform to that.

342 02/20/1978 Romans 12:1a Interim life; honor code of the royal family; devil's triangle; privacy; blessing and motivation

Chapter 12

Title of Romans 12: "The Interim Life." Though actually most of the material is the formation of the royal family of God honor code.

The big mistake of fundamentalism is that you work for your blessing. These things are compatible with the spiritual life. Most people are trying to propagandize you into some form of action; but what counts in this life is not action but honor. We need to understand the honor code has nothing about witnessing, giving, etc. These things are not going to provide you with any more blessing. Romans 12 is going to communicate a great deal to us.

If you are working and hustling to impress God and to receive blessing, you are not living under the honor code. If you are gossiping or judging or maligning someone else, you are not under the honor code.

Two principles: respect the righteousness in others. That solves all kinds of problems. All commands to production come to us as an ambassador. God provides opportunity to witness, to pray, etc. The failure to recognize the honor code, and that ruined the Catholic Church. The whole concept of a priest hearing the confession of another believer violates the honor code. Only God the Father should hear the confession of sin. Everything that is wrong with the Catholic Church goes back to Romans 12.

People have been thrown out of Berachah Church for dishonoring the honor code. You never talk about other people or what you are doing for God. You never walk up to someone and say, "I've been praying for you." You don't tell someone how to dress unless it is your own children.

It is going to take a long time to sweat legalism out of you. Some of you are stiff-necked.

Interim Life

1. The interim life is that Christian experience of the believer between salvation and maturity.
2. However, the interim life is only lived by those believers who are positive toward doctrine and advancing toward the objective of maturity.
3. The reversionistic believer who is negative toward doctrine and rejects the function of the rebound technique does not live the interim life. Instead, he lives the life under divine discipline, the disciplinary life. So attitude toward doctrine determines whether you live the interim life or the disciplinary life.
4. In other words, the interim life is the status of those believers who are adjusting to the justice of God.

5. Either you adjust to the justice of God or the justice of God will adjust to you.
6. In the interim life the believer is adjusting to the justice of God through the filling of the Spirit and consistent intake of doctrine.

The Royal Family Honor Code

1. We have become a nation of peasants in our thinking, we have no aristocracy. The aristocracy of thinking has disappeared, and because it has disappeared it has a direct effect upon fundamentalist Christianity. Christians who think like peasants cannot advance.
2. The mental attitude of aristocracy is bound up in an honor code. All systems of aristocracy have their own honor code and the aristocracy of the spiritual world in the Church Age is the believer, the body of Christ.
3. You cannot advance to maturity without understanding the honor code because without the honor code the believer is distracted from Bible doctrine.
4. The royal family of God has an honor code, and basically it has two concepts: a) the privacy of the royal priest; b) advance comes from doctrine. All legitimate production is the result of advance, but not the means. We can do nothing to advance to maturity, it is accomplished for us in the whole framework of logistical grace. We do things because we have reached a certain stage but we cannot do anything to reach that stage of growth. The royal family honor code guarantees the privacy of the believer to live his life before the Lord and provides a system of thoughtfulness and good manners toward all.
5. The honor code of the royal family of God demands that the believer function in compatibility with the grace policy of the justice of God.
6. Every believer has honor on the basis of the judicial imputation of divine righteousness at salvation.
7. The object of the honor code is the believer's advance to maturity so that the believer in maturity can function on the basis of integrity.
8. Therefore the royal family honor code excludes all forms of Christ works, production, talent, and sacrifice for obtaining blessing. Nothing the believer can do, legitimate or legalistic, can elicit blessing from the justice of God. Blessing from God is an imputation at maturity and thereafter.
9. The royal family honor code demands total dependence on the integrity of God, both His righteousness and His justice.
10. The honor code has a motto: Right thinking; right function.
11. Just as code aristocrat has existed in time past, so there has always existed an honor code for the royal family of God.

The royal family of God must have an honor code in order to advance to maturity. Since the only way to advance to maturity is to learn Bible Doctrine, and since you cannot learn Bible doctrine apart from privacy, you must when you assemble in the local church, have your privacy to do so. You must have an objective viewpoint toward the teaching of the Word and the only way you can have it is for your sins to never be an issue for you to assemble. They are an issue as far as rebound and your life before the Lord is concerned, and divine discipline; but they are not an issue in listening to the teaching of the Word. The royal family honor code demands that you respect the privacy of other believers.

The Devil's Triangle

The objective in the believer's life is to apply doctrine you know to your life. If you are negative toward doctrine then you live in the devil's triangle, i.e. under the old sin nature. It may be in the area of sin but it is generally in the area of good and evil.

1. The devil's triangle is the sphere of function for the reversionistic believer.
2. The objective of the Christian way of life is the fusion or amalgamation of two areas of reality for the royal family of God: doctrine and the circumstances of life.
3. These two areas of reality include the circumstances of life and Bible doctrine.
4. The circumstances of life are the reality of our temporal life, while Bible doctrine is the reality of our relationship with God or spiritual life.
5. The objective of the Christian way of life on earth is the insertion of doctrinal reality into circumstantial reality. This is accomplished through the daily function of GAP.
6. The separating factor is the devil's triangle.

Final point of introduction:

Outline of the Chapter

1. The techniques of the interim life, verses 1-2.
2. The function of the interim life, verses 3-8.
3. The production of the interim life, verses 9-21.

A Living Sacrifice

Romans 12:1 Therefore I exhort you, brothers, through the compassions of God, to present your bodies as a living sacrifice, holy to God, well-pleasing, which is your reasonable service. (BLB)

Verse 1 – rebound and resultant filling of the Spirit. “I beseech you therefore, brethren.” The inferential conjunction oun (οὖν) [pronounced oon] denotes what it introduces as an inference from what has preceded. What has preceded is Romans chapter eight. Chapters 9-11 is a parenthesis explaining why the Jewish dispensation has been halted and why the unconditional covenants have not yet been fulfilled, and will not be fulfilled until the second advent. So this inferential conjunction reaches back to Romans chapter eight where maturity is described. Chapter eight is for the mature believer; chapter 12 is how to reach there under the royal family of God honor code. The subject changes in chapter 12 from maturity to the interim life and how the interim life functions under the honor code of the royal family of God.

Next is a verb, the present active indicative of the verb parakaleō (παρακαλέω) [pronounced pahr-ahk-ahl-EH-oh]. The word means to call, to beseech, to exhort and to comfort. All of these meanings go back to the formation of the compound [para = beside; kaleō (καλέω) [pronounced kal-EH-oh] = to call] which means to call someone to your side and talk to them through the mouth. This is why it means to exhort or beseech. It also means to call someone to your side to comfort them. This verb does not mean to call upon someone, that would be epikaleō (ἐπικαλέω) [pronounced ehp-ee-kal-EH-oh].

The verb used here is used in a military sense. Parakaleō (παρακαλέω) [pronounced pahr-ahk-ahl-EH-oh] was used to encourage soldiers, or exhorting them. It was also used in the technical sense of the commander's word of encouragement or the commanding officer's admonition just before the battle begins. Plato uses the verb for winning over to plan of revenge, hence in the sense of persuading. Paul speaks with the authority of a commanding general. He is an apostle, hence he is in a sense the military commander of the early church. He encourages us before the battle. He exhorts us to advance to maturity in the following manner—Romans 12. He seeks to persuade us how to function in that advance. The question, then, is how to translate this word. The best would be “I encourage” or “I urge.” The present tense is a pictorial present, it presents to the mind the picture of a military commander before battle, urging or encouraging his troops to advance to the objective. Hence, the events here pictured are in the process of occurrence. That means that the pictorial present says that everything in this chapter is a part of that exhortation to advance to maturity. The active voice: Paul as the human writer produces the action of the verb. This is the cohortative indicative mood and it is used here to express a command.

The verb is followed by the accusative plural direct object from the personal pronoun su, plus the vocative adelphos (ἀδελφός) [pronounced ad-el-FOSS]—“brethren.” This is a family matter. The royal family of God has an honor code; it is a family code; it is your attitude toward other believers, namely the respecting of the privacy of the priesthood.

“by the mercies of God” – dia plus the ablative plural of oiktirmós (οἰκτιρμός) [pronounced oyk-tir-MOSS] which means mercy or compassion, but it is different from eleos (ἔλεος) [pronounced EHL-eh-os], the ordinary word for mercy which connotes emotion or compassion of sympathy. In other words, eleos (ἔλεος) [pronounced EHL-eh-os] is emotional. You cannot inject emotion into the honor code of the royal family of God, there is no place for it. Oiktirmós (οἰκτιρμός) [pronounced oyk-tir-MOSS] means that this is a rational approach rather than an emotional approach. God's approach to us is never emotional. Oiktirmós (οἰκτιρμός) [pronounced oyk-tir-MOSS] means compassion, sympathy, mercy, but on a rational basis without one shred of emotion involved. The anthropopathism emphasizes the function of divine justice in grace blessing. The ablative here is used, and the ablative is not the regular case for expressing means, but whenever the source is expressed in the means then the ablative is used instead of the instrumental. That is the implication here, the origin or the source of mercy is God. But it is a rational source. Then come the ablative of source, theos (θεός) [pronounced theh-OSS]. “I urge you, therefore, brethren, by the mercies from the [justice of] God.” (Romans 12:1a)

The definite article which precedes theos (θεός) [pronounced theh-OSS] is used to point out a particular object, a certain aspect of God, the aspect with which we have contact. The justice of God is the source of our divine blessing because it is our point of reference. Therefore oiktirmós (οἰκτιρμός) [pronounced oyk-tir-MOSS] refers to those blessings in time which are imputed at the point of maturity. Here these blessings are used in Paul's appeal as motivation for advancing to the point of blessing. In other words, Paul is the commanding officer at the foot of the hill. He is urging the royal family to advance to the high ground of maturity. He says, "Up there are blessings; go get them!" When blessing from God is used as motivation it is a legitimate motivation. This is because blessing from God is the only way that we can glorify God in the angel conflict. "The mercies [grace blessings]" – the definite article is put in, not to go with God, God is unique, but to specify the attribute of God that provides the blessing.

Principle

1. The real imputation of divine blessing in time occurs at maturity adjustment to the justice of God.
2. Therefore the urgent appeal to the believer to advance in the interim life whose objective is maturity. But you cannot advance without honor, you must advance under the honor code. Otherwise you will be distracted and never get there. You will be distracted from the thing that cause you to advance—doctrine. You give everyone around you a fair shake to grow at their own rate.
3. Maturity is the status where the believer has capacity for blessing from the justice of God. It is the status where the believer functioning under the honor code begins to function with integrity.
4. Maturity is the place where the justice of God, without any emotion attached, imputes to you and to me the great divine blessings.

Tomorrow will not be a dedication service (as often so follows Romans 12:1).

1977 Romans

Lesson #343

343 02/21/1978 Romans 12:1b Decline of aristocracy; honor code of the royal family of God; peasant thinking; worship

History is definitely repetitious. There are those who develop integrity, and often that family rises to the forefront. These sometimes become kings. Charles Martell. The family eventually declined. They became greedy and ambitious and they fell from history. Bourbon in France, Hollenauzers in Prussia. Eventually, they fall into sin, good or evil. What allows such a family to last for a long time is the development of an honor code.

Wherever a revolution occurs, there is good and evil.

The Russian revolution. We have foolishly supported this revolution by sending them wheat and foodstuffs.

200 years before the Roman republic official died, it was falling apart. All of the things that were great about the republic were gone and all that was awful remained.

Christianity was designed to have stability. Romans 12 teaches us that honor code. For a long time, we have known how to harness atomic energy and we should have thousands of atomic plants. In that case, we would be advancing.

We are about to destroy divine establishment in South Africa and Rhodesia.

Royal Family Honor Code excludes all forms of Christian works and talent. There are commands for Christian production. But there are no commands which tell us that if we do something, we will be blessed by God.

Hopes and realities which replace the hopes.

A Living Sacrifice

Romans 12:1 Therefore I exhort you, brothers, through the compassions of God, to present your bodies as a living sacrifice, holy to God, well-pleasing, which is your reasonable service. (BLB)

“that ye present your bodies a living sacrifice” – aorist active infinitive of the verb paristēmi/paristanō (παρίστημι/παριστάνω) [pronounced par-IHS-tay-mee/par-is-TAHN-oh]. This word also has a military meaning. Originally it meant to place beside, to put one’s self under orders to, the place one’s self at God’s disposal (from which the translation “yield” is derived, and is often a mistranslation). The best way to approach paristēmi/paristanō (παρίστημι/παριστάνω) [pronounced par-IHS-tay-mee/par-is-TAHN-oh] is to go back to its original use in the Greek language. It was used to set cavalry, to be on hand, to stand by. But in the New Testament it has two connotations, transitive and intransitive. As a transitive verb it means to be at the disposal of someone; as an intransitive verb it means to approach. Here it has the military connotation from the transitive verb, and so we put it: “place your body under orders as a holy sacrifice.” The aorist tense is a constative aorist for a succession of events gathered up into a single whole. The aorist contemplates the action of the verb in its entirety as rebound and the filling of the Spirit. The active voice: the positive believers advancing to maturity in the interim life are commanded to produce the action of the verb. This is an imperative infinitive which relates this verb to Romans 6:13 where the same verb was used in the present active imperative. This is fulfilled in Romans 6:17.

The word “body” is the accusative plural direct object with the infinitive of sōma (σῶμα) [pronounced SOH-mah], “your body.” Why the body? Why not the brain? Why not the soul? The body of the believer is the temple of the Holy Spirit. It is also the residence of the old sin nature. These two are in residence, mutually antagonistic—Galatians 5:16. When the old sin nature controls through sin, good, or evil the only solution becomes the rebound technique because if the old sin nature controls the body where it resides it overflows into the soul. If the Holy Spirit controls, then this overflows into the soul. The residence is simply a place to control the soul. It is an attack upon the soul by the old sin nature; it is the filling of the Spirit when the Spirit controls the soul. The soul is the issue, what you think is the issue, and the whole process of the function of the soul. When it says here that you place your body under orders it is referring to rebound and the filling of the Spirit, the two basic techniques of the Christian life.

With this is the accusative singular from the noun thusia (θυσία) [pronounced thoo-SEE-ah], the word for sacrifice. The sacrifice is describes in two ways. First by a present active participle of zaō (ζάω) [pronounced DZAH-oh] which is used as an adjective, translated “living.” The second adjective is also an accusative singular from hagios (ἅγιος) [pronounced HA-gee-oss] which means set apart; it means royalty—“as a living, holy sacrifice.” This verse implies that rebound^[1] and the resultant filling of the Spirit are the sacrifices of the royal priesthood in view here. This is the normal function of the Christian way of life.

“acceptable unto God” – the predicate nominative singular from the adjective euárestos (εὐάρεστος) [pronounced yoō-AR-es-toss] which means well-pleasing or acceptable. Since this is a predicate nominative it should be preceded by a present active indicative from eimi (εἰμί) [pronounced eye-ME] and should be translated “this is acceptable/well-pleasing. Then the dative singular indirect object with the definite article, the noun theos (θεός) [pronounced theh-OSS]. The definite article is used as a possessive pronoun to emphasize our relationship with God the Father—“this is acceptable to our God.”

“which is your reasonable service” – the accusative absolute without the participle used as an anacoluthon. The accusative of the adjective logikós (λογικός) [pronounced log-ik-OSS] has a dual meaning. It means rational, and it also means spiritual. All spiritual function is rational, says logikós (λογικός) [pronounced log-ik-OSS]. The irrationality of the tongues apostates and the emotional crowd is obviously not worship. Then the accusative of the noun latreia (λατρεία) [pronounced lat-RĪ-ah] which means “worship.” With it is a descriptive genitive plural from the pronoun su and it should be translated “your rational and spiritual worship.” In other words, there is no worship on the part of the believer apart from rebound and the filling of the Spirit.

Romans 12:1 I urge you therefore, brethren, by the grace blessings [from the justice of God], that you place your bodies under orders as a living, holy sacrifice. This is well-pleasing to our God—your rational and spiritual worship.

Making Decisions in the Christian Life

1. All worship must be rational, and this is only possible by relating it to Bible doctrine.
2. All worship must be spiritual, therefore related to the filling of the Spirit. This is summarized in John 4:24. Philippians 3:3
3. To place your bodies under orders as a living, holy sacrifice does not require a one-shot decision, a so-called dedication decision. In reality it is a series of decisions, daily decisions which involve rebound when necessary, therefore maintaining the filling of the Spirit, and the consistent intake of Bible doctrine, the means of establishing the honor code of the royal family in your life.
4. The pattern of the Christian life is never guided by one decision. It takes one decision to become a Christian; after that there is no one-decision panacea. Always it is a series of decisions. God gives us a day at a time and we must make decisions each day. These decisions must be related to spiritual things such as Bible doctrine, and the temporal things.

5. Salvation, then, is a one-shot decision, but the spiritual life which follows salvation is a series of decision. You place yourself under orders to God for daily commands, daily decisions, daily function.

Worship

1. Spiritual Worship Is Rational Worship. Therefore the Emotionalism of Tongues and other forms of emotional revolt are excluded.
2. Basically, worship includes certain functions: singing, praying, giving, the intake of doctrine (gap), plus the communion service. Each facet of worship demands two things: the filling of the Holy Spirit and the residence of Bible doctrine in the soul. Always, it is doctrine and the Spirit.
3. Therefore singing must be related to doctrine and executed in the filling of the Spirit.
4. Therefore prayer must conform to doctrine and be executed in the filling of the Spirit.
5. Therefore giving must be motivated from doctrine resident in the soul and fulfilled in the filling of the Spirit.^[2]
6. Therefore perception of doctrine, the most important and basic facet of worship, demands the filling of the Spirit for inculcation.
7. Therefore the communion service is a ritual which has no meaning apart from doctrine resident in the soul. Hence, a worship function which is impossible apart from the filling of the Spirit.
8. The persistence of worship produces that capacity which is the prerequisite for the imputation of divine blessing from the justice of God.

Lesson #344

344 02/22/1978 Romans 12:2a Verse 1 principles; doctrine of rebound (review); worldliness and molded to good and evil.

The Doctrine of Rebound

1. Rebound is a technical term for the believer's restoration to fellowship and recovery of the filling of the Spirit. This recovery can only occur by rebound.
2. The concept of rebound.
 - a. Rebound must be understood in the light of relationship with God - Jeremiah 3:13. Rebound has to do with temporal relationship with God.
 - b. Rebound must be correlated with positional truth by the royal family of God - Romans 8:1.
 - c. The frame of reference for rebound is the efficacious death of Christ on the cross being judged for our sins. The spiritual death of the Lord Jesus Christ solves the problem of the old sin nature's area of weakness which produces sins. These sins were poured out on Christ and judged. When a believer commits a sin he either knows it was a sin or he does not in the case of an unknown sin. But whether he knows it is a sin or not he still does it from his volition, and that sin was poured out upon Christ on the cross and judged. When the believer commits a known sin he names that sin to God. That sin was judged on the cross, he is forgiven immediately. He also at the same time is forgiven the unknown sins. 1John 1:9; 1Peter 2:24; 1John 1:7; 2Corinthians 5:21.

- d. Rebound means restoration to fellowship with God plus the recovery of the filling of the Spirit. When we are in fellowship we are controlled by the Spirit. How effective the filling of the Spirit is depends upon the stage of our spiritual growth. Proverbs 1:23; Ephesians 5:14 cf. 5:18.
 - e. Eternal security is a prerequisite to understanding the rebound technique - Romans 8:38,39. The believer sins after salvation but such sin is carnality, not loss of salvation - 1Corinthians 3:1-3; 1John 1:8,10.
3. The mechanics of rebound.
- a. You confess a sin to God - 1John 1:9. The Greek word for confess is homologeō (ὁμολογέω) [pronounced hoh-moh-loh-GEH-oh] and it means to cite or to name, it does not mean to feel sorry for. It has no emotional connotation.
 - b. Isolation of sin - Hebrews 12:15.
4. The alternative to rebound. This is simple. If you do not want to name your sins to God and be forgiven the alternative is twofold: carnality and/or reversionism. They are the results of rejecting the rebound technique - 1Corinthians 11:31. Hebrews 12:6 is the inevitable result of failure or neglect of rebound.
5. There is also a discouragement to rebound. Legalism is the enemy of rebound. Luke 15:11-32; 2Corinthians 2:5-11.
6. The technique belonged to the Old Testament saints as well as to the royal family of God in the Church Age - Psalm 32:5; 38:18; 51:3,4; Proverbs 28:13.
7. Some biblical synonyms for rebound. Confess or name it - 1John 1:9; Judge self - 1Corinthians 11:31; "Yield" in the aorist tense - Romans 6:13; 12:1; Lay aside every weight - Hebrews 12:1; Be in subjection to the Father - Hebrews 12:9; Lift up the hands that hang down - Hebrews 12:12; Make straight paths - Matthew 3:3; Hebrews 12:13; Arise from the dead - Ephesians 5:14; Put off the old man - Ephesians 4:22; Acknowledge thine iniquity - Jeremiah 3:13.
8. There is a principle of helping others to rebound - Galatians 6:1. There must be an accompanying mental attitude - Matthew 18:23-35. Grace orientation must always be applied - Colossians 3:13. There is a reward for helping other members of the royal family to rebound or to use the technique - James 5:19,20.

Romans 12:2 And do not be conformed to this age, but be transformed by the renewing of the mind, for you to prove what is the good and well-pleasing and perfect will of God.
(BLB)

Verse 2 – the function of GAP and divine guidance. “And be not conformed to this world” – the conjunction kai is used in the adjunctive sense, therefore it is used as an adverb and should be translated “also.” The verb is the present passive imperative of suschēmātizō (συσχηματίζω) [pronounced soos-khay-mat-IHD-zo] which means to be molded after something, to be conformed to something, or to be guided. Plus the negative mê (μή) [pronounced may]. “Also stop being conformed [molded].” This is your thinking being molded under the influence of good and evil. The present tense is a descriptive present for what is now going on in the Roman church, back when Paul wrote. The passive voice: the reversionistic believers receive the action of the verb. The imperative mood is the imperative of prohibition with the negative mê (μή) [pronounced may].

Then the dative singular indirect object from the noun aiōn (αἰών) [pronounced ī-OHN] used for a segment of time. With it is a dative singular indirect object from the immediate demonstrative houtos (οὗτος) [pronounced HOO-tos], translated “this”—“this age.” The word “age” is used instead of “world” because the thinking that is 180 degrees off-course from Bible doctrine varies in every age, but it still comes from the same source: the ruler of this world. So “age” is the correct translation because “age” is a period of time. Good and evil as the policy of Satan is expressed one way, and in the next age it is expressed another way. We only have to deal with the good and evil as it is expressed in our day. This is actually a command to stay out of the devil’s triangle, the place where the function of good and evil separates us from doctrine and causes us to resist or be distracted from doctrine. When you think good and evil and hear correct doctrine you reject the doctrine. For example, you are absolutely sold on the fact that the welfare state is the only answer, that everyone is going to be equal, etc. That is thinking in the devil’s triangle. That is conforming to the age in which you live. Living in the devil’s triangle is a distraction to doctrine. Bible doctrine resident in the soul is not only the means of spiritual advance, but it gets your thinking straight. It lines it up with the plan of God so you can be guided by God.

If you are a liberal, you are worldly; if you favor OSHA and unions, you are worldly. You see a Christian coming out of a bar, and someone calls you worldly, say, “No, I believe in the military and I go to Berachah Church.”

You are not worldly if you smoke cigarettes or a pipe; or if you play cards; or drink a beer. Worldliness is something that you think; not something that you do. Worldliness is thinking 180° out of synch with Bible doctrine.

1977 Romans

Lesson #345

345 02/23/1978 Romans 12:2b Bible doctrine reveals the will of God; privacy vs. counseling; renovation of thought by doctrine

Romans 12:2a warns us to get out of the devil’s triangle and to stay out.

Romans 12:2 And do not be conformed to this age, but be transformed by the renewing of the mind, for you to prove what is the good and well-pleasing and perfect will of God. (BLB)

“but be ye transformed by the renewing of your mind” – the adversative conjunction allá (ἀλλά) [pronounced ahl-LAH] sets up a contrast with the previous negative command. The negative command implies that the Roman believers to whom Paul wrote were already deeply involved in the devil’s triangle. This is the contrasting command at this point. The present passive imperative of the verb metamorphóō (μεταμορφόω) [pronounced met-am-or-FOE-oh] means to undergo a spiritual transformation, but it is used here for an external as well as internal transformation. When used for external transformation it generally means to be transfigured. Here the inner transformation of your thinking is involved. Being transformed refers to the change in thinking that comes from getting out of the devil’s triangle. The present tense is a customary present, it denotes what habitually occurs when the believer is constantly positive toward Bible doctrine and transfers that doctrine from the page of the Word into the soul and the human spirit. The passive voice: the believer receives the action of the verb when he constantly learns doctrine under the ministry of whoever is his right pastor. The imperative mood is a command, the positive command for the daily function of GAP, emphasizing the result of the daily function of GAP—a change in thinking. Metamorphóō (μεταμορφόω) [pronounced met-am-or-FOE-oh] means to be transformed in thought, to change your thinking from human viewpoint to divine viewpoint.

Then the means of transformation is stated by the instrumental singular from the noun anakainōsis (ἀνακαίνωσις) [pronounced an-ak-AH-ee-noh-sis], translated “renewal,” but it also means “renovation.” It is renewal in the sense of renovation, not in the sense of dedication. This is the method of expressing impersonal means. Hupó (ὑπό) [pronounced hoop-OH] plus the ablative expresses personal agent; this expresses impersonal agent. In other words, this is not a person changing your thinking but a process of thought, i.e. Bible doctrine. Plus the objective genitive singular from the noun noús (νοῦς) [pronounced noose], used here in the sense of understanding of the conscious mind, or a thought—“by the renewal of your thought pattern.” The thought pattern is renovated or renewed through maximum doctrine resident in the soul. The whole purpose of staying alive on this earth is to learn Bible doctrine. The daily function of GAP is not only the means of advancing to maturity but it is the only way of actually learning the will of God, understanding the plan of God, and staying out of the devil’s triangle. So as doctrine replaces human viewpoint a new mental attitude is formed in the mind. You have to have a change of thinking to survive in the devil’s world. You cannot survive in the devil’s world as a believer by thinking the devil’s thoughts, you can only survive by thinking God’s thoughts. The devil isn’t doing anything for you, only God is. Therefore you have to have a complete renovation of your thinking.

The Indians were not the great conservationists. They would ruin an area and move elsewhere.

“that ye may prove what is that good, and acceptable, and perfect, will of God” – this begins with a purpose clause, a prepositional phrase, eis (εἰς) [pronounced ICE] plus the present active infinitive of dokimázō (δοκιμάζω) [pronounced dohk-ihm-AHD-zoh] which means to test for the purpose of approval. The accusative singular of the definite article plus the preposition eis (εἰς) [pronounced ICE] introduces the purpose clause. The infinitive is in the present tense, it is called a perfect infinitive in the present. It denotes the continuation of existing results but it emphasizes those results in present time, therefore a perfective present tense. The active voice: the believer who is positive toward Bible doctrine produces the action. This is an infinitive of purpose.

Most people judge you on the basis of your external appearance; but the real you is what is in your thinking. If you think divine viewpoint, then you can do with will of God.

With this is an accusative of general reference in the plural from the personal pronoun su, plus a nominative neuter singular from the interrogative pronoun τίς (τις) [pronounced tihç], which is translated “what.” Then the possessive genitive singular of theos (θεός) [pronounced theh-OSS] to go with the noun thelêma (θέλημα) [pronounced THEHL-ay-mah]—“the will of God.” This verse is really about the will of God.

Many people want to renovate you. They don’t like some of the things that you do, like drink, or smoke or whatever. It can be good to be curious, unless you are curious about the lives of others and how to fix them.

Now, people might open up their privacy to you, and you can avoid them based upon what they have proposed. They speak well of tongues, ask you if you want to take drugs or to commit a crime, and you can avoid them.

You need privacy in order to take in doctrine.

We have a wall of privacy around us known as the priesthood. God is not going to come down and talk to us verbally. God is not speaking to any of us personally.

You have money to invest. But you don’t go to Bob to find out where to invest it. There are good people in this business and charlatans.

Doctrine allows you to develop and use common sense. Common sense tells you that you investigate any investment. Doctrine is our confidence in this world, not gold.

Non-capitalistic Russia still plays capitalistic games.

When someone suggests to invest money with them, investigate them and their investment strategy.

We have to make our own decisions based upon the doctrine that we have. We are all vulnerable to the thoughts and suggestions of those who are attractive to us.

After this last phrase, “that you may prove what the will of God is,” there are three appositional accusatives. First is the accusative singular of agathos (ἀγαθός) [pronounced ag-ath-OSS], for intrinsic good. The will of God is always intrinsic good. Whatever is the will of God is in contrast to human good. It is perfect good. The second accusative is euárestos (εὐάρεστος) [pronounced yoo-AR-es-toss] which means “well-pleasing.” The will of God is always pleasing to God. The third accusative is τέλειος (τέλειος) [pronounced TEHL-i-os] which means having attained the end or purpose, hence complete. It refers to having attained the object, which is maturity. The will of God for the believer in time is maturity adjustment to the justice of God. After you are saved that is the will of God.

Romans 12:2 Also stop being molded to this age, but be transformed by the renovation of your thoughts, that you may prove what the will of God is, namely the good, well-pleasing and complete.

Rebound, constant perception of doctrine, and the attainment of spiritual maturity having combined these two things. The believer with these things avoids the devil’s triangle.

The transformation of the Christian life is not what happens on the outside, but the inside. The internal function of self-discipline.

Production has a place in the plan of God, but there is more to spiritual maturity than that.

God is perfect and His attributes are perfect; and His will is perfect.

Principle

1. The destiny for the believer in time is maturity adjustment to the justice of God.
2. The objective is not external production but internal growth through maximum doctrine resident in the soul.
3. Therefore the will of God for the believer cannot be divorced from Bible doctrine and its perception.^[3]
4. God has preserved the canon of Scripture as the source of Bible doctrine, but the work of the saints He has not preserved. It is doctrine that is preserved for every generation, not the works of believers in past generations.

Doctrine is preserved for every generation; not the great things that people have done in their lives. There is a conflict between works and doctrine.

Doctrine has to be applied from your thinking; doctrine in the Word does not do us much good.

1977 Romans

Lesson #346

346 02/24/1978 Romans 12:2 (Principles) Aristocracy; honor code of the royal family; doctrine of divine guidance, will and the sovereignty of God

Romans 8:28 is one of the pivot areas regarding the understanding of the plan of God. The good of Romans 8:28 links with good in Romans 12:2. A potential is simply potential. X+Y+Z = plan of God

Romans 12:1 begins with an immature but advancing believer. But v. 21 says, do not be overcome by evil but overcome evil with good. This is the same good.

Anything imputed by God is secure.

Romans 12:2 Also stop being molded to this age, but be transformed by the renovation of your thoughts, that you may prove what the will of God is, namely the good, well-pleasing and complete.

The will of God is that good spoken of here.

Technically speaking there is no additional blessing for us between salvation and maturity, apart from logistical grace. There are no blessings until you break the maturity barrier. The ultimate in good is being well-pleasing to God. It is not what we do for God that counts but what He does for us.

The key is the renovation of our thinking. In order for the justice of God to give anything to man, it must be done without compromise of God's attributes. Therefore, we have the encapsulation of God's blessings from His justice to His righteousness. God is not going to bless your self-righteousness. There are many things that you can do with are legalistic; and none of those things impress God. Some of these things may be connected to your ambassadorship, but not which result in blessing.

The glory of God + grace = good. We should get into this in order to understand our passage.

Aristocracy always has some sort of code of honor. Integrity is more important than almost anything else. We are royal family of God. No two of us are equal, except by position. Every aristocracy that ever has lived started out as peasants or lower.

Dueling either with guns or with swords. This was done in an honorable way; that the duel would be the end of it. The idea was to keep this from becoming a Hatfield and McCoy feud where many die. Dueling was a great thing. Once it took place, one aristocrat died.

When they become corrupted, they fail to observe their own honor code.

Antithetical in the Royal Family Honor Code, when someone does something wrong to you, there is no vengeance, no dueling. Our honor code is antithetical to all aristocratic codes in the past. Many of these go back to the knights.

Aristocrats would duel and shot one another; but that ended it. The Hatfields and McCoy's were real jerks and stupid. The quarrel was never contained.

A part of our honor code is leaving everything up to the Lord when it comes to vengeance.

No work for blessing in the Royal Family Honor Code. No revenge; no retaliation. Not in the Royal Family Honor Code. No gossiping, maligning, etc.

God looks to bring Bible doctrine into your life.

The tree of the knowledge of good and evil has become the devil's triangle. We are commanded to stay out of the devil's triangle.

Also stop being molded to this age, but be transformed by the renovation of your thinking.

Works will not get you blessing. The privacy of the royal priesthood. Only by having privacy can we grow in grace. When we die with the 6th imputation, then we die knowing that we have the 7th.

The Doctrine of Divine Guidance is placed earlier in this study. Portions of this are covered in the last 30 minutes of this lesson.

We think like Marxists. Ever since FDR tried to pack the court.

Principle: The destiny of man is not to work for God, but for God to work for him. The ultimate is the real imputation of divine blessing to the mature believer. In this the work of God for man reaches its peak of grace which glorifies the Lord Jesus Christ.

The specialized function of the interim life, verses 3-8.

1977 Romans

Lesson #347

347 02/26/1978 Romans 12:3 Exegesis; subordinate subjectivity of mental attitude arrogance to the objectivity of Bible doctrine common sense

The doctrine of the imputations describes the plan of God; and the Royal Family Honor Code gives us the modus vivendi of the Christian life.

The word good and we are to overcome evil with good in Romans 12:21 (compare to Romans 8:28), we have Royal Family Honor Code. There is the privacy of the priesthood. There is no freedom without authority and privacy. This doctrine is summarized by live and let live.

The local church is not a lonely hearts club. If you make friends in church, that is incidental to the purpose of the church. What you are being taught is essential and this must be taken in privacy.

Christian works will not bring us blessing. You cannot tithe your way to blessing. Works manifest an advance in the spiritual life, but they are not the means of blessing.

Romans 12:1–2 read and briefly explained.

Gifts of Grace

Romans 12:3 For through the grace having been given to me, I say to everyone being among you, not to be high-minded above what it behooves you to think, but to think so as to be sober-minded, as God has allotted to each a measure of faith. (BLB)

Verse 3 – “For I say, through the grace given unto me.” These particles are very important to understanding the information found in Scripture. The illative use of the postpositive conjunctive particle gar introduces a reason for advancing to maturity, a reason why we should take in doctrine every day.

Plus the present active indicative of the verb légō (λέγω) [pronounced LEH-goh] which means here to say or to speak. It always means to communicate. This is an aoristic present tense for punctiliar action in present time. Paul was speaking at this moment about something which was pertinent to the Romans. It is just as pertinent now, and therefore we live under the same aoristic present for this particular verse. The active voice: the apostle Paul under the ministry of God the Holy Spirit communicates doctrine in permanent form as a part of the canon of Scripture. The indicative mood is declarative for the reality of the canon of Scripture being formed from what Paul has to say here.

Then the prepositional phrase, dia plus the genitive singular of charis (χάρις) [pronounced KHAHR-iç]—“through the grace.” Grace is the policy of the justice of God in providing blessing and prosperity for the believer. But grace is also the policy of God with regard to mankind in general.

Even life is a grace gift from God. We were not a nice butterfly in a previous life, which allowed us to be born in the United States. Anyone who knew all the facts today, would be appreciative of living in the United States. Even those who came here as slaves have it better off. We live under great circumstances, which we take for granted.

Plus the aorist passive participle of the verb didōmi (δίδωμι) [pronounced dihd-OH-mee]. The dramatic aorist tense states a present reality with the certitude of a past event. The idiom here is a device for emphasis, it states the result of what has been accomplished and therefore it translated not as a present tense but as an aorist tense. This means that everything that God has provided in X + Y + Z equals grace. The passive voice: the mature believer receives the action of the verb. The circumstantial participle indicates that just being a member of the human race is grace in itself. Then the dative singular indirect object from the personal pronoun egō (ἐγώ) [pronounced ehg-OH]. The dative is used as the object of the verb because it always indicates a principle: the one in whose interest grace has been given. Paul had been a recipient of common grace, efficacious grace, saving grace, logistical grace, and since maturity, super-grace. Paul has the advantage of communicating, then, from maturity adjustment to the justice of God. This anticipates what will be given in verses 4-8. Spiritual gifts are designed to function in the maturity status.

They may function in a limited way until then but the maximum utilization of spiritual gifts in the royal family of God demands maturity.

“to every man that is among you” – dative singular indirect object from pás (πάς) [pronounced pahs], translated “everyone.” It is a reference to all believers of the church age, to each one as royal family of God. Paul alerts all believers with regard to the great distraction with regard to functioning in the royal family—arrogance. Arrogance is lack of grace orientation. Plus the articular present active participle eimi (εἰμί) [pronounced eye-ME], translated “who is.” Then the prepositional phrase en (ἐν) [pronounced en] plus the locative plural of su—“among you.”

Now comes the principle that subjective mental attitude [arrogance] should be subordinated to objective Bible doctrine. All forms of pride and arrogance are inevitably related to subjectivity, and often the extent to which you are subjective is the extent to which you practice arrogance. The objective perspective of grace must replace subjective arrogance through maximum doctrine resident in the soul.

“not to think of himself more highly than he ought to think” – immediately arrogance is defined as what you think about yourself in relationship to yourself, to others, and to God. The negative mê (μή) [pronounced may] is used with an infinitive. It sets up a command, an imperative of prohibition. The negative mê (μή) [pronounced may] is used with the infinitive, the optative or subjunctive or the participle. The negative ou, ouk goes with the indicative. The Koine Greek was the primary language of the Roman empire. It is a language of great distinction.

The verb is the present active infinitive from hyperphronéō (ὑπερφρονέω) [pronounced hoop-er-fron-EH-oh] [phroneō (φρονέω) [pronounced fron-EH-oh] = to think; hupér (ὑπέρ) [pronounced hoop-AIR] = over]. It means to over-think or to think above yourself. It comes to mean to think too highly of yourself, therefore to be arrogant in your thinking. Arrogance is a thought prior to being an action—not to “think of self in terms of arrogance.” Therefore, “stop thinking of self in terms of arrogance.” Arrogance never condemns oneself; but it always condemns others.

The present tense is a progressive present for an action of a state of persistence. The active voice: the believer produces the action of the verb. The infinitive is the imperative infinitive plus the negative. Then the preposition para plus the accusative neuter singular from the relative pronoun hos (ὅς) [pronounced hohç]—“beyond what.” Plus the present active of the impersonal verb deí (δεῖ) [pronounced digh], the word for “ought,” and the present active infinitive of the verb phroneō (φρονέω) [pronounced fron-EH-oh], objective thinking; it is not subjective, over-thinking (huper+phroneō).

Bob occasionally gets calls from psychiatrists to admit that whatever he is teaching is helping out a patient who is attending Berachah.

The present tense is a tendencial present, used for an action which is the objective of the Christian way of life—to think objectively. All capacity for life is based upon objective thinking. The active voice: the believer should produce the action. The infinitive is the infinitive of intended result when the result is indicated as fulfilling a deliberate aim or objective. It is the blending of purpose and result.

“For I say through the grace which has been given to me, to everyone who is among you, Stop thinking of self in terms of arrogance beyond what he ought to think.”

“but to think soberly” – incorrect translation. The adversative conjunction ἀλλά (ἀλλά) [pronounced ahl-LAH] sets up a contrast between what we should not do and what we should do. The present active infinitive from phroneō (φρονέω) [pronounced fron-EH-oh] means objective thinking. This is a perfective present to denote the continuation of existing results from maximum doctrine resident in the soul. The active voice: the believer should produce the action of the verb. This is the imperative infinitive: “but think.” Then the prepositional phrase, eis (εἰς) [pronounced ICE] plus the accusative of the definite article, with the present active infinitive of sōphroneō (σωφρονέω) [pronounced soh-fron-EH-oh] which means to be in one’s right mind, to be sane, to be reasonable: “but think for the purpose of being rational without illusion.” The present tense is a customary present, it denotes what habitually occurs or may be reasonably expected to occur when the believer is consistently positive toward doctrine. The active voice: the positive believer produces this sane and rational thinking. This is the infinitive of purpose.

There is a paronomasia here, over-thinking and rationally thinking.

Principle

1. Doctrine in the soul is designed to eliminate the goofy thinking and the arrogant dreaming which is so prevalent among believers today.
2. Doctrine causes the believer to think in terms of common sense, rational and sane divine viewpoint, which inserts doctrine into the daily life and avoids living in the devil’s triangle.

“according as God hath dealt to every man the measure of faith” – a conjunction of comparison hōs (ὡς) [pronounced hohç], “as.” The nominative subject is ho theos (θεός) [pronounced theh-OSS]—“the God.” The definite article specifies someone previously mentioned in context who is well-known to the readers. The aorist active indicative of merizō (μερίζω) [pronounced mehr-ihd-ZOH]. Merizō (μερίζω) [pronounced mehr-ihd-ZOH] does not mean to deal, it means to divide, to distribute, to assign: “as the God has assigned.” This is a constative aorist for a fact of doctrine extended over the course of human history. The active voice: God the Father, the author of the divine plan, produces the action of the verb, of assigning something. The indicative mood is declarative for a fact that God the Father has assigned a standard of thinking from Bible doctrine.

God’s plan is personal: dative singular direct object from hekastos (ἕκαστος) [pronounced HEHK-as-toss]—“to each one.” God regards us as individuals. “The measure of faith” is incorrect. It is the accusative singular direct object from metron (μέτρον) [pronounced MET-ron], which means not a measure as such but a standard—of thinking. Plus the ablative of source from the noun pistis (πίστις) [pronounced PIHS-tihs] which has three different meanings: a) trust or confidence or faith, a non-meritorious system of perception; b) an attribute: faithfulness or reliability; c) a system of doctrine, that which is believed. It is this third meaning which is pertinent here. It should be translated, “as the God has assigned to each one a standard of thinking from doctrine.” The ablative of source implies that the original situation, doctrine, contributes to the advance to maturity and the dynamics of thinking.^[4]

Romans 12:3 For I say through the grace which has been given to me, to everyone who is among you, stop thinking of self in terms of arrogance beyond what you ought to think; but think in terms of sanity for the purpose of being rational without illusion, as the God has assigned to each one a standard of thinking from doctrine.

Lesson #348

348 02/26/1978 Romans 12:3 Principles; doctrine of mental attitude – renovation of thought; personality and inner beauty

A review of the translation of Romans 12:1–3.

Romans 12:3 For I say through the grace which has been given to me, to everyone who is among you, stop thinking of self in terms of arrogance beyond what you ought to think; but think in terms of sanity for the purpose of being rational without illusion, as the God has assigned to each one a standard of thinking from doctrine.

We need an accurate translation in order to move forward in the understanding of this passage. The Doctrine of Mental Attitude is already found in Lesson #279.

A Woman’s Inner Beauty Demands Respect

1. This goes back to the fact that we have become a nation of peasants in our thinking. We think like peasants so we act like peasants.
2. Today, woman demand their rights.
3. They have ignored the aristocracy is a mental attitude.
4. Respect for womanhood is automatic in a society where the women have inner beauty. They are inspiring; they are a pleasure to be around, when they have divine viewpoint. The company women is far superior to the company of men. Without the mental attitude, they are petty, vindictive, vicious with their tongues. Doctrine is the secret. This could only happen to a believer. The incentive for the woman is great.

Lesson #349

349 02/27/1978 Romans 12:3 Military justice, Vietnam POW; doctrine of pride (1–3): terminology, fall of Satan and results of human arrogance

We are considering the two goods in Romans 8:32 and 12:21.

Horrendous torture of a soldier by the North Vietnamese. 7 years.

Romans 12:3 For I say through the grace which has been given to me, to everyone who is among you, stop thinking of self in terms of arrogance beyond what you ought to think; but think in terms of sanity for the purpose of being rational without illusion, as the God has assigned to each one a standard of thinking from doctrine.

What we will study is, ...stop thinking of self in terms of arrogance beyond what you ought to think;...

Ego is being aware of your own existence. Ego is normal. It is not a synonym for pride or arrogance. Egocentric is involving everything in terms of self. Egoism means excessive love or thought of self. That is arrogance. Egotism has a connotation of arrogance. Over thinking over much about oneself. Conceit. Pride, not used for a family of lions; excessive delight in one's achievements, etc. of oneself, real or imagined. We will use arrogance for all of these words. The Doctrine of Pride seems to be increased by a notch.

Doctrine of Pride (Revised)

2/27/78 (See the Doctrine of Cosmic One) nb2

A. Definition

1. Pride is the basic mental attitude sin. It is the quality of exaggerated self-esteem, conceit, subjective thinking, and arrogance.
2. It is lofty self respect. It is high esteem of oneself whether real or imagined.
3. Vanity is empty pride. Pride which has no attainments or possessions, but has excessive desire for attention, approval, and praise from others.
4. Words used for pride include conceit, egotism, haughtiness, vanity, arrogance, vain glory, superciliousness, megalomania, and pomposity. Arrogance is maximum pride.
5. Bad manners are a manifestation of arrogance.

B. Pride was both the original sin of Satan and the motivation for his fall, Isaiah 14:12-14.

1. "I will be like the Most High God." Satan was the greatest creature ever to come from the hand of God. He had the greatest beauty, personality, and intelligence. He assumed he was as great as God. All arrogance assumes divine prerogatives. When you judge someone else, you assume the mental attitude of Satan. The desire to be well-thought of by others is subjective arrogant thinking.
2. Satan thought he could overthrow God. In his arrogance he didn't understand the attributes of God. Ezekiel 28:14-17 emphasizes Satan's pride and approbation lust. There never was equality in the angelic realm. Satan was the personal aid to Jesus Christ. You were the anointed cherub furthermore, I placed you there. You were complete in your ways from they day that you were created until revolution was found in you. By the abundance of your commerce, your inner life was filled with evil and you sinned. Therefore, I have cast you are profane from the mountain of God and I have destroyed you from the middle of the strones of fire your right lobe was lifted up because of your beauty. You have corrupted your beauty with your splendor.

3. Satan was arrogant because of his beauty. Human arrogance is offset by the ability to think and to relate yourself to life. The soul is designed by God to offset arrogance. You have the ability to think and look at yourself without a thought about how good or bad you look.
4. Self-consciousness is not arrogance. Arrogance is subjective thinking related to self-consciousness of the soul. Satan corrupted his wisdom. We are all given a certain amount of wisdom or objectivity. It is destroyed by arrogance. Satan's subjectivity destroyed his wisdom. Arrogance destroys outer beauty. This doesn't mean ugly people aren't arrogant.

C. Pride is a human sin.

1. Pride is the basic mental attitude sin, and as such, it attracts other mental sins. For example, the arrogant person always sees someone who has more of what makes the arrogant person arrogant, e.g., beauty, personality, or ability. This causes jealousy. These two mental sins always travel together. All arrogant people are jealous. Pressure put on arrogance causes jealousy to pop up.
2. Inevitably, this person will be petty in the area of his jealousy. If the arrogant person is petty, he also becomes vindictive. If vindictive, he becomes implacable. Arrogance, jealousy, pettiness, vindictiveness, and implacability go together. Arrogance never travels alone.
3. Arrogance demands total attention from everyone in the periphery. All arrogant people are totally different under pressure. They are weak people. Other mental attitude sins come up under pressure. Pride is the only disease which makes everyone sick except the one who has it.
4. In 1Timothy 3:6, the neophyte has blind arrogance. He is proud of his self-righteous virtuous life.
5. 1Timothy 6:3-4 teaches that those who reject doctrine are arrogant, and intrude with false doctrine.
6. 2Timothy 3:2 says that rejection of authority is a part of arrogance.
7. According to 1John 2:15-16, to love the world means living in Satan's cosmic system. Arrogance of life is love of the world or worldliness. If you think human good and evil, then you are worldly. You cannot have arrogance and function inside the divine dynasphere.

D. Pride is related to personal reversionism, Psalm 10:2-4. In pride, the pursues the

1. Spiritual bullying comes from arrogance. You assume that your norms and standards should be superimposed over others.
2. Pride in males is more obvious than in females. Women use their emotions, nagging, and crying to gain control of others. This comes from some of the sweetest females of all. In reality, authority is their best protection. Arrogance is much more dominant in the female of the species. They will incite compassion in order to get their way.

3. Prov 16:18, "Pride precedes destruction, and before a fall, arrogance of spirit prevails."
4. Arrogance will lead to a combination of punitive actions from God, along with much self-induced discipline. We make our own misery when we carry arrogance around.
5. Unbeliever reversionism related to pride is found in Romans 1:30.
6. Childhood arrogance comes from parents wanting to win the affection of their children rather than establishing their authority. They create monsters in their children. Many arrogant people had permissive parents. All self-centeredness is related to arrogance.
7. James 4:4-7, "God makes war against the arrogant." Arrogance makes the believer the enemy of God. Humility is grace orientation. The arrogant person appoints himself God's enemy. 8. 1Peter 5:5-6. Arrogant believers seek to control others through pseudo-norms, taboos, being critical, maligning, etc.

E. Arrogance is related to national reversionism.

1. Pride is mentioned as the characteristic of national reversionism. Leviticus 26:19, "I will break down your pride of power." The economy is destroyed to stop arrogance.
2. In 2Chronicles 32:26, Hezekiah humbled the pride of his right lobe so that the wrath of Jehovah did not come on the Jews.
3. The Jews were destroyed because of national arrogance, Isaiah 9:9.
4. National pride is related to the fall of Moab, Isaiah 16:6.
5. Arrogance leads to a manifestation in boasting, Isaiah 28. Therefore, arrogance divorces the individual from reality. Discipline is the only way to bring that person or nation back to reality.
 - a. An example of this would be the woman who assumes that every male who smiles at her is in love with her. She begins to hallucinate that she is in love with someone. It becomes so real to her that she thinks it has actually happened. She is totally arrogant and divorced from reality.
 - b. The male just thinks everyone is in love with him. Even if he is rejected, he thinks the woman is only fighting her real feelings of love for him. He feeds his own ego on the compliments of others.
 - c. These kind of people become troublemakers in a local church because of their hallucinations.
6. Arrogance brings down the worst discipline from God and causes the greatest self-induced misery. Arrogant people can never get to reality.
7. Isaiah 28:1-3 describes the national pride of the Northern Kingdom prior to the fifth cycle of discipline. People drink to maintain their disassociation from reality. Arrogance produces divorcement from reality which is strengthened by a lot of drinking. When the Assyrians came along, they weren't real to the Jews of the Northern Kingdom.

8. Arrogance results in hallucinating. Drugs can be used to maintain the hallucinations. God punishes this type of arrogance by bringing the person back to reality. The reality is too much for them psychologically.
9. In Ezekiel 7:10 Behold the day (the 5th cycle of discipline) is coming has your doom has come forth the rod of discipline has sprouted because arrogance sprouted. The Jews were divorced from reality and not prepared to meet the enemy. Conceit breeds defeat. Arrogance makes people unprepared for battle.
10. Hosea 7:10-14. Thought the arrogance of has testified against them, then have not returned to Jehovah their God, nor have they sought Him in spite of warning discipline. So Ephraim (the northern kingdom) has become like a silly woman without sense. They call to Egypt for help; they go to Assyria. When they go, I will spread a net over them; I will bring them down like birds from the sky. I will punish them according to doctrinal teaching. Woe to them for they have strayed from Me. Destruction (the 5th cycle of discipline) is theirs. They have revolted against Me when I would have redeemed them. Then they speak lies against Me and they do not cry out to Me from their right lobe although they kept screaming on their beds, for the sake of grain and new wine, they have assembled for worship [they only went to church to get God to prosper their crops]. They have revolted against Me and therefore they have been destroyed. People always run to someone else when they are about to be destroyed. The Jews were like fickle silly women. They only went to church to get God to prosper them economically. When they revolted against God, they were destroyed.

F. Pride related to God.

1. 1Samuel 2:3 says that when you judge, that's arrogance. It is arrogance directed toward God, because only God has the prerogative of judgment. The same thing is true when you try to punish other believers. Arrogance toward God is blasphemy. Do not boast any more with arrogance; arrogance will come out of your mouth, for Jehovah, the God of omniscience, and by Him, actions are examined. God is the Judge and Jury over all of us, so that when we gossip and malign and criticize, you have assumed the prerogatives of God. When you try to punish others, you are assuming the prerogative of God.
2. Hannah was arrogant and beautiful. She became jealous of the other wife. She was disciplined from her jealousy. She recovered and became the mother of Samuel. She was determined to stay with the cure, Bible doctrine. Jealousy was a manifestation of her arrogance. But she recovered.
3. Pride rejects the principle that Jesus Christ controls history. When you start to fall apart, panic, or get upset because of historical catastrophe, this is a demonstration of arrogance because you are saying that Jesus Christ does not control history. You have to remember everyday that the Lord controls history, including all coming catastrophe. When you give up, you are saying that you control history; but Jesus Christ does. Arrogance makes you forget this, Daniel 4:37. Now, I, Nebuchadnezzar, praise (honor and exalt) the Lord of heaven (the Lord Jesus Christ) for all His works are doctrine and His ways are justice; furthermore, He is able to humble those who walk in arrogance. It took him seven years to recover. He is able to humble those who walk in pride.

4. The principle of pride related to Jesus Christ is found in the dissertation on blind arrogance, Mt 19:27-20:34.

G. Positive volition to doctrine insulates the soul from pride and at the same time roots out pride.

1. Not all arrogance is easy to spot or well-defined. What people often never see is, the source of their sins is arrogance. Arrogance is the cause of disease called pride. The manifestations of this disease are other mental attitude sins and verbal sins.
2. Only learning pertinent doctrine can make us aware of deep-seated pride. When you learn doctrine directed toward yourself, you react and resist if you are subjective. You must be objective about yourself when Bible doctrine is your focus.
3. Job 33:16-17 says that Bible doctrine is the only way to deal with the source of the disease. Then he opens the ears of men (gap) and He seals their instruction that He may turn aside from His discipline and protect that man from the pride complex.
4. Prov 8:13 An arrogant person can easily say untrue things about someone else because he is divorced from reality, and someone equally stupid will always believe him. People believe it because they don't like the person who is being maligned, whether it is true or not. You believe what you want to believe. The respect for the Lord (occupation with Christ) is to hate evil, pride and arrogance, and the evil ways. A mouth of distorted things do I hate. People can stand up and say things that are not true about someone else, from the source of their arrogance and people believe it because they are disposed to believe it.
5. Prov 11:2, When pride comes, then comes dishonor, but with the humble is wisdom. You cannot function under integrity and be arrogant. Someone once said, "The Sicilian tyrants never devised a greater punishment than jealousy related to arrogance."

H. Pride and Psychology. The Bible deals with psychology thousands of years before the science of psychology developed.

1. Flaws can be real as failures of character, or pseudo flaws, in which a person's flair is mistaken for either arrogance or a flaw. MacArthur and Patton were both accused of arrogance, but they were often criticize. Others mistook flare for arrogance.
2. Hangups are an obstacle in the normal function of life related to arrogance. A hangup results in becoming snagged in some form of subjectivity or abnormal thinking. All hangups are related to or are manifestations of pride.

Arrogance under pressure by thought or circumstance cause the hangups or real flaws to appear in the life.

3. Real flaws or hangups are the result of arrogance. Arrogance is a character weakness as well as a sin.
 4. Two kinds of hangups exist as a manifestation of pride.
 - a. Blind hangups or blind arrogance.
 - b. Known or perceptive arrogance.
 5. The symptoms of these hangups are called syndromes. Syndromes are symptoms typical of a condition. Syndromes are manifestations of pressure on some particular arrogance.
 6. Hangups are a hindrance to learning Bible doctrine. Arrogance rejects the authority of the pastor. Men with hangups feel belittled by authoritative doctrinal teaching. Pride refuses to remain under the ministry of one's right pastor. Arrogant people react to the message. Because they may have grown up in legalistic homes, they suffer from legalistic syndromes. They resent grace teaching.
 7. The guilt syndrome is another symptom of the disease of pride. You react with guilt when something taught by doctrine applies especially to you. Your guilt complex surfaces because of your arrogance. All guilt is based on pride. No one has a guilt reaction without having arrogance somewhere in the soul.
 8. The emotional syndrome is manifest by holy-rollers. They are arrogant and hallucinate.
 9. The inadequacy syndrome, the socialist syndrome, the liberal syndrome, the anti-semitic syndrome, and the anti-establishment syndrome are other symptoms of arrogance or pride.
- I. The Anti-establishment Syndrome: Pride and the Laws of Divine Establishment, Romans 13:1-7.
1. In Matthew 24:12 the term lawlessness refers to anti-establishment function. This is the arrogance which rejects authority in any phase of the laws of divine establishment. Rejection of any phase of establishment becomes a matter of arrogance. Because of lawlessness (or, anti-establishment reversionism), shall increase, the love of many believers shall be extinguished (believers will lack the spiritual maturity to be occupation with Christ).
 2. Tyranny is born from pride. Bureaucrats tyrannize with arrogance.
 3. Anti-establishment arrogance is manifest by women's liberation, refusing military service, social welfare, socialism of any kind, communism, or willful violation of a known law of establishment. Those who are against the establishment never have anything better with which to replace the establishment.
- J. Arrogance becomes a trigger mechanism for the function of evil.
1. Arrogance is often in a dormant form, becoming evident only when the individual is under pressure. Pressure on pride forces it to expand, suddenly releasing a chain reaction which creates a monster in the soul.

2. Since arrogance is an expanded opinion of self, it sits in the soul, content with the expanded image it has created. When pride is injured it contracts, forcing pressure to increase until there is a detonation of pride. Anything which compresses pride creates pressure that must explode.
3. Pride creates a maximum hypersensitivity in certain areas of the soul. Everyone's sense of hypersensitivity is different.
4. A hangup is an obstacle in the normal function of life related to arrogance. A hangup is becoming snagged in some form of subjectivity or abnormality of the soul. Hangups are the hypersensitive areas of life, the highly vulnerable spots.
5. Syndromes are symptoms of hangups. For example, the liberal syndrome is often a symptom of the hangup of guilt because a person has more wealth than another person. Therefore, the liberal person who arrogantly feels guilty seeks to help those who are less fortunate, but only in order to ease his guilt.
6. Blind arrogance occurs in people who have arrogance which never shows until pressure is put on their area of hypersensitivity. Ultra-hypersensitivity tries to overthrow the authority of the pastor.
7. Pride can undergo a pressure activity which sets up the trigger mechanism, detonating the other mental attitude sins.
8. Hangups are areas where an individual's pride is very vulnerable to attack, causing arrogance to start. If pride is attacked, it causes the trigger mechanism to detonate arrogance. Philippians 1:15 states an example of this, "Certain ones on the one hand are making known the Christ, even because of jealousy and discord."
9. Frustrated pride releases itself in mental attitude sins like jealousy, false motivation, the desire to hurt some authority, the function of evil, and the attempt to set up a system of discord. Paul faced this constantly with the Judaizers.
10. Dormant vulnerability is not a sin. These areas of hypersensitivity in the soul are only erased when the believer reaches maturity. Hypersensitivity is part of the human makeup. It merely triggers arrogance in the soul. If you are thoughtful, kind, and considerate, you will have some area of hypersensitivity. This is normal.
11. The abnormality comes when hypersensitivity reacts to some authority, some system of authority, some principle, or something said which offends him. The reaction always carries the sin of arrogance. For example, a woman scorned has just had an arrogant reaction to the hypersensitivity of all females. She reacts immediately. Her pride is compressed when the man who loves her rejects her. This causes the expansion of her pride and arrogance, which takes over her soul. Others do not see the pride, only the reaction of damaged arrogance. Therefore, they see bitterness, vindictiveness, implacability, and vengeance.
12. Injured pride is like nuclear fission. Jealousy and other mental attitude sins are released, causing believers to become monsters. This is why people are motivated to retaliation and vengeance, why reversionists are motivated to do good deeds, why people change jobs, and why people want to "show" someone else. The life of all people is like an iceberg; most of what is going on is hidden below the surface.

13. This pattern brings about self-induced misery, destroys capacity for life and sex, and causes lack of appreciation for others. There is no deliverance apart from advance to maturity for the believer, and recognition of establishment authority for the unbeliever.
14. If this pattern continues, a psychopathic personality will result.

K. Pride and the Psychopathic Personality.

1. Psychopathology is a disease of the emotions. We call it emotional revolt of the soul. The normal mature person controls his emotional life by his intellect. Normally the right lobe of the soul controls the emotions. In this way the emotional life blends perfectly with the intellectual life.
2. In the psychopathic personality, the normal subordination of the emotions to the right lobe of the soul is not present. This deficiency becomes the trigger mechanism of hypersensitivity, the arrogant reaction which produces mental, verbal, or overt sins. In neurosis, the emotions also control the soul.
3. There are three characteristics of the psychopathic personality.
 - a. Imbalance is operation overthink or subjectivity.
 - b. Instability in thinking.
 - c. Arrogance. We have Bible doctrine to control our emotional life. The action of regulating the emotions and keeping them under control demands something of great strength in the right lobe. This is where the believer with Bible doctrine has a great advantage.
4. The psychopath lacks the ability to evaluate what is real and what is not. He is totally divorced from reality. He lacks the ability to realistically evaluate the object of his/her emotional reactions. This drive toward a false object becomes so intense that reason no longer governs the actions of the individual.
5. The psychopath loses all objectivity and all ability to reason. He pursues a false object with pseudo-love fanaticism. The person with this hypersensitivity assumes the wildest things and thinks they are real. This is the imbalance with leads to instability. He becomes an emotional wreck. Then he does something to communicate this to the object of his hallucination. When he does, the object, being caught by surprise, often reacts in anger, or indignation, or rejection.
6. The psychopath now has a hypersensitive reaction which leads to double unreality. This is when the psychopathic personality really begins and when spiritual attention will no longer help. Now the person needs medical attention. These people become vicious, evil people without really intending to be. (Normal daydreaming is not psychopathic hallucination.)
7. When the intellect controls the emotions, it gives stability to the life. But the psychopathic person, in pursuit of his false object by his purely emotional thinking, can change from a violent love response to a person with unreasonable hatred. This especially describes women pursuing someone in their hallucinating.

8. Psychopaths aren't capable of taking in doctrine. They need medical help before they have the ability to even listen to doctrine. One minute they are all for you, and the next minute they hate you.
 9. The psychopath with his incapacity for true love becomes preoccupied with self-gratification, auto-hedonism, and anything related to emotional stimulation. He loses all reason and has no restraint of any kind. Sexual criminals are an example of this.
 10. The true psychopath relates everything to himself. When he loves, it is for his own sake. It lasts only as long as it is to his advantage and there is no reaction in any of his areas of hypersensitivity.
 11. A psychopath can be extremely pious, but his right lobe is closed by emotional revolt of the soul. He can parrot doctrine back to you, but it is all gnosis doctrine that has not been transferred. His spiritual life is really determined by his emotional desires related to lust.
 12. There are five types of psychopathic personalities.
 - a. Hysterical psychopath, e.g., holy rollers.
 - b. Pathological liar.
 - c. An amoral psychopath loves everyone and is a "grace" person.
 - d. Sexual psychopath, e.g., rapist.
 - e. A fanatical psychopath is very ascetic and legalistic.
- L. The Arrogant and the Inadequate.
1. This is a mutual admiration society. X equals the arrogant person; Y equals the inadequate person; Z equals the object which pulls them together.
 2. Y is a reactor. He has reacted to something because of his arrogance. X is an aggressor with his pride. They are antithetical personalities which both despise Z.
 3. Therefore, X and Y form a mutual admiration society to get rid of or to get even with Z. They only come to the surface when acting in the field of vindictiveness.
 4. When the society of a nation is subjective, most social life is based on mutual admiration societies getting together. Mutual admiration societies are always the source of conspiracy against systems of authority. Their common antagonisms keep them together.
 5. X flatters all the Ys who are inadequate and susceptible to flattery. X keeps them under control while trying to get rid of Z, the authority.

The Doctrine of Pride is the lesson above. This class was mostly on that doctrine.

We have divorced ourselves from reality, not pursuing nuclear power.

Romans 12:3 For I say through the grace which has been given to me, to everyone who is among you, stop thinking of self in terms of arrogance beyond what you ought to think; but think in terms of sanity for the purpose of being rational without illusion, as the God has assigned to each one a standard of thinking from doctrine.

Romans 12:3 For I say through the grace which has been given to me, to everyone who is among you, stop thinking of self in terms of arrogance beyond what you ought to think; but think in terms of sanity for the purpose of being rational without illusion, as the God has assigned to each one a standard of thinking from doctrine.

Lesson #352

352 03/02/1978 Romans 12:4a Doctrines of the royal family of God (review) and the difference among believers; equality and standards

Verses 4 & 5, the structure of the royal family of God.^[5] The Doctrine of the Royal Family of God is found back in Lesson #10.

Romans 12:4 For just as in one body we have many members, and not all the members have the same function, (BLB)

Verse 4 – “For we have many members in one body” begins with the explanatory use of the postpositive conjunctive particle gar. This means that everything we have had so far demands an explanation. The passage will deal with spiritual gifts, and these demand some explanation. Next is a compound conjunction, katháper (καθάπερ) [pronounced kath-AP-er], correctly translated “just as”—“For just as.” Then the present active indicative from the verb echô (ἔχω) [pronounced EHKH-oh] which means to have, to have and to hold, “For just as we [royal family of God] have.” This is a retroactive progressive present denoting what has begun in the past, when the dispensation of the Church began, and continues into the present time, i.e. as the Church Age progresses and moves toward its conclusion with the Rapture. This will always be true, we will always have this. The active voice: the royal family of God produces the action of the verb. The indicative mood is declarative for a dogmatic principle of doctrine.

With this verb is the accusative plural direct object from both the adjective pás (πάς) [pronounced pahs] and the noun mélos (μέλος) [pronounced MEL-oss]—“many members.” Then a prepositional phrase, en (ἐν) [pronounced en] plus the locative singular of the numeral adjective heís, mia, hen (εἷς, μία, ἓν) [pronounced hice, Mee-ah, ehn] plus the noun sōma (σῶμα) [pronounced SOH-mah]—“in one body.” This explains why in the each of the first three verses there is a reference to the dynamics of divine viewpoint thinking: rational and spiritual worship, renovation of thought, rational orientation to life. “For just as we have many members in one body,” or “many parts in one body.” Each one who is a believer in Jesus Christ is a member or a part of the body. We are all in the same organization, called here “body,” but it refers to the royal family of God, an aristocracy which will last forever. The analogy to the human body with its various parts emphasizes a doctrine—the doctrine of the difference of all believers.^[6]

Doctrine of the Differences among Believers

A. Definition and Description.

1. No two people are born equal. They have different talents, ability, mentality, circumstances, genes, and environment.
2. After the new birth, we still have different gifts or spiritual status. Therefore, all of us are still different.
3. It is impossible to make people equal. We have equal rights to advance under freedom as far as we can go. But there will always be someone who is prettier, stronger, smarter, etc.
4. The only basis for equality is to have everyone be zombies. The worst thing a society does is lower itself to the lowest common denominator, so as not to make the weirdos feel weird. Christian weirdos call this Christian love.
5. You are to stay within your own standards. Never depart from your personal standards to make someone else feel better. You can come into Berachah will all the different standards you want. Bob wore jeans to ride horses and to shovel the stuff they don't need.
6. There is no law of love where standards are concerned. We must have different standards and are entitled to our different standards as long as we don't violate the law.
7. You are not inferior because your standards aren't as high as someone else's. Being inferior or superior is not the issue.
8. The differences between us as provided by the Lord are spiritual gifts. The pastor has authority but isn't better than anyone else.
9. All healthy nations have different people with different standards. This means competition, prosperity, influence, and a lot of normal things in life.

10. Stamping everyone from the same mold is anti-God, and is what fundamentalist Christians are doing today. Some believers are closer to maturity than others; therefore, we cannot all be or act alike.

11. A Houston pastors organization wanted to do an exchange of teachers once a month. Bob would fight such a person to the death to keep them from teaching at Berachah.

12. Only arrogant people want to be equal. If you are free from arrogance you don't care if there are people better than you; you're delighted for them. And you don't gloat over those who are inferior to you. You don't need to prove you are inferior or superior to anyone else.

B. Differences in Spiritual Status.

1. The absolute status says that you are either in fellowship or out of fellowship. Believers are different because some use rebound and some do not. Some sin more frequently than others.

2. The relative status says that no two believers have the same stage of spiritual growth. Positive or negative volition to Bible doctrine determines these differences.

C. Differences in the Function of the Old Sin Nature. Believers have different areas of weakness or strength in the trends of their old sin nature. There are different kinds of human good trends. There are different areas of overt sinning. We are different, yet we are told to "love" one another. You do this by starting with a relaxed mental attitude toward all. We are so different that it is amazing that we can all sit together for an hour and a quarter without getting up and slugging one another.

D. Differences in Spiritual Gifts. At salvation each believer has a spiritual gift, but the spiritual gifts are all different. Certain gifts no longer exist, such as tongues, healing, and miracles. The gift we have determines how much authority we have or lack of it. Your spiritual gift automatically functions at a certain point in your spiritual growth. It doesn't function if you're not growing spiritually. If we are positive toward doctrine, God will provide the doctrine. No equality even in dying blessing.

E. Differences in the Imputation of Blessings for Time and Eternity.

1. The imputation of divine blessing in time depends on maximum Bible doctrine in the soul. So it depends on your attitude toward doctrine.

2. We all have equal opportunity, because we have the imputation of God's perfect righteousness and logistical grace.

3. There are six categories of blessings (see the Doctrine of Escrow Blessings), and variations exist in each of these. They are tailor-made for each individual. Spiritual blessings are uniform, but the others vary greatly. All mature believers get dying grace in different ways.

4. As long as our relationship with the Lord is right, we don't have to worry about what our temporal blessings are going to be. Because the Lord will give us the best blessings compatible with our perfect happiness. You may be poor all your life in maturity because God blesses you with different things.

5. There is no such thing as equality. Two people can be occupied with Christ and still not be equal. Yet God knows best how to bless each one.

6. There are greater differences among believers than there are among unbelievers. This is the basis for being content and getting adjusted to reality. Differences are always there, so you simply adjust to the reality of the situation and don't crack up because others are better off.

F. Other Differences.

1. No two believers have the same set of circumstances in life. You should be able to look at anyone else's life and say, "I have what God wants for me and I am delighted with it."

2. Never envy other believers because their circumstances appear to be better. God assigns circumstances. Don't fight it. It will make you subjective all of your life.

3. Never be discontent. Jealousy is a vicious counterpart to arrogance.

4. You are allowed to improve your own barnyard and to maintain your momentum. This will keep you objective all through your life.

5. People are constantly motivated by envy and think, "I should have more than they do." Be content with what you have!

6. No two believers have the same amount of time between salvation and death. God gives you enough time regardless of how healthy or unhealthy you try to stay.

Lesson #353

353 03/03/1978 Romans 12:4b–6a Believers = many parts of the body; doctrine of spiritual gifts (1–4): definition, Scripture, source and purpose

Romans 12:4 For just as in one body we have many members, and not all the members have the same function, (BLB)

The Good; all the things work together for good. Bob mentions that he knows what a radical looks like. We will see how the good overcomes evil in the end.

Many people try to work for blessing; but we cannot be blessed by God by working at anytime. Righteousness can only demand blessing from the justice of God when we crack the maturity barrier. This excludes all human works. Exclusion of tithing, morality, exercise of any human talent, witnessing, fasting, etc.

Just as a body has many parts, so the body of Christ has many gifts.

“and all members have not the same office” – the connective conjunctive particle de is used as a transitional conjunction, connecting two clauses without indicating any contrast. Then the nominative plural subject from the adjective pás (πάς) [pronounced pahs] plus the noun mélos (μέλος) [pronounced MEL-oss]—“and all the parts.” Then the negative ou (οὐ) [pronounced oo] plus the present active indicative of echô (ἔχω) [pronounced EKKH-oh]—“do not have.” The present tense is a customary present denoting what habitually occurs in the function of the royal family of God on earth. The active voice: the royal family of God under the function of its honor code produces the action of the verb. The declarative indicative mood is for a dogmatic statement of doctrine, the viewpoint of reality with regard to the spiritual life. The attributive use of the intensive pronoun autós (αὐτὸς) [pronounced ow-TOSS] in the accusative singular is the direct object, and then the accusative singular direct object from praxis (πρᾶξις) [pronounced PRAX-ihhs] which means function (not office).

Romans 12:4 For just as we have many parts in one body, and all the parts do not have the same function.

Romans 12:5 so we, the many, are one body in Christ; and individually members one of another. (BLB)

Verse 5 – “So we.” The adverb houtos (οὗτος) [pronounced HOO-tos] refers to what precedes and is correctly translated “so,” and with the nominative plural from polus, polos (πολύς, πολλός) [pronounced poll-OOS] and the definite article, “So we, the many.” This is a reference to believers in Christ, the royal family of God. Plus the present active indicative of eimi (εἰμί) [pronounced eye-ME], the verb to be. The perfective present refers to a fact which has come to be in the past, i.e. the beginning of the Church Age, but is emphasized now as a reality. Then active voice: the believer produces the action. The declarative indicative is for the reality of the royal family of God having a purpose right now on this earth. The accusative neuter direct object from the adjective numeral heís, mia, hen (εἷς, μία, ἓν) [pronounced hice, Mee-ah, ehn]—“one,” referring to the fact that we do have certain things in common. What we have in common is in the accusative singular direct object from sōma (σῶμα) [pronounced SOH-mah], used for the body of Christ. Then the prepositional phrase en (ἐν) [pronounced en] plus Christos (χριστός) [pronounced krees-TOHSS]—“So we, the many, are one body in Christ.” We are many parts but we are all in the same royal family.

“and every one members of another – the postpositive conjunctive particle de again, and then the preposition kata used as an adverb, meaning “individually.” This is a late Koine idiom. Plus the nominative plural from mélos (μέλος) [pronounced MEL-oss]—“and individually parts one of another.”

Romans 12:5 So we, the many, are one body in Christ, and individually parts one of another.

Verse 6-8, the function of spiritual gifts.

Romans 12:6 And we are having different gifts according to the grace having been given to us: if prophecy, according to the proportion of the faith;...

Verse 6 – “Having then gifts differing according to the grace that is given to us.” The present active participle of the verb echô (ἔχω) [pronounced EKKH-oh], connoting possession. The present tense is a descriptive present for what is now going on. The active voice: the believer produces the action under the function of his own peculiar spiritual gift, sovereignly bestowed by the Holy Spirit at salvation. The participle is a causal participle, “Since we have.” Plus the accusative plural direct object from charisma (χάρισμα) [pronounced KHAHR-ees-mah], which means “benefit”—“gifts,” technical for spiritual gifts.^[7] This doctrine will be continued for several lessons.

This doctrine of spiritual gifts has sections which are nearly the same as the notes given by Bob in Romans; but these do not match up very well. Lessons #354–356 add to this doctrine; and all of the notices are kept here in Lesson #353.

Doctrine of Spiritual Gifts

- A. The Source of Spiritual Gifts.
1. All three members of the Trinity are the source of spiritual gifts.
 2. God the Father as the source is documented in Heb 2:4. "God [Father] also bearing witness with them, both by signs and wonders, and by various works of power, and by various distributions [of spiritual gifts] from the Holy Spirit in accordance with His will."
 - a. God the Father uses the ministry of God the Holy Spirit for giving spiritual gifts.
 - b. Distribution of spiritual gifts are made as a witness to the strategic victory of our Lord Jesus Christ during the dispensation of the Hypostatic Union.
 - c. God the Father is also the author of our portfolio of invisible assets. The primary assets include escrow and computer (election and predestination) assets. The secondary assets include volition, production, Christian service, undeserved suffering, and the invisible impact of the invisible hero. The personal assets include both temporary and permanent spiritual gifts.
 3. God the Son as the source of spiritual gifts is documented in Ephesians 4:7. "To each one of us, this grace has been given according to the measure of the spiritual gift from Christ. Therefore, it [Old Testament Scriptures] says, `When He ascended into heaven, He led a host of captives in a triumphal procession from a state of captivity, and He gave spiritual gifts to men.'"
 - a. There were two results of our Lord's ascension.
 - (1) The transfer of Old Testament saints from Paradise in Hades to heaven.
 - (2) Spiritual gifts were distributed.

- b. God the Son is involved in the initial distribution of spiritual gifts which were temporary gifts, no longer extant. Today, it is God the Holy Spirit who gives permanent spiritual gifts to us at salvation. 4. God the Holy Spirit gives to each of us at salvation a spiritual gift as He wills, 1Corinthians 12:11.

B. Definition and Description.

1. The Greek noun CHARISMA for spiritual gifts is based on the word CHARIS, or grace. All spiritual gifts are a matter of grace! No gift is given based on God's foreknown merit of the believer. CHARISMA is primarily a Pauline expression, though it occurs once in 1Peter 4:10. The basis of this word is grace.
2. Spiritual gifts are sovereignly given by the Holy Spirit to each believer at the point of salvation. Therefore, a spiritual gift is never earned, deserved, or developed through any form of emotional experience.
3. The gift given represents the wisdom of the Holy Spirit; remember that when you object to your own or to someone else's .Your spirituality has nothing to do with your spiritual life as such; i.e., you're not given a more spectacular or visible gift if it's anticipated that you'll be more spiritual, and you're not given a more "invisible" gift if it's anticipated that you won't turn out to be much anyhow.
4. The initial distribution of spiritual gifts, from the day of Pentecost for about twenty years, came from the Lord Jesus Christ and God the Holy Spirit. He made the first distribution on the day of Pentecost, ten days after His ascension, according to Ephesians 4:7-8. But since that time, the Holy Spirit makes the distribution of all spiritual gifts, according to Heb 2:4 and 1Corinthians 12:11. In several passages, spiritual gifts are ascribed to God without distinguishing which member of the Holy Trinity is the giver. But today the Holy Spirit is the giver. 1Corinthians 12:11 But one and the same Spirit works all these things, distributing to each one individually just as He wills. This is one of the few New Testament references to the sovereignty of the Holy Spirit.
5. Spiritual gifts are not earned, not deserved, not developed, and not acquired through emotional experience. Your spiritual gift becomes operational through normal spiritual growth.
6. From the standpoint of the Word of God, all believers have equal privilege and equal opportunity from their computer assets. This means that the distinction between believers in the eyes of God is never related to appearance, personality, or any form of human or alleged spiritual achievement.
7. The only distinction between believers can be categorized under two concepts.
 - a. Spiritual growth. Some believers use their equal privilege and equal opportunity and achieve phenomenal growth. Distinction among believers on the basis of their spiritual growth is a result of their motivation, volition, and priorities.

b. Spiritual gifts. The distinction among believers in spiritual gifts has its source in the sovereign wisdom of the Holy Spirit.

8. God the Holy Spirit in His sovereign wisdom has provided different spiritual gifts, so that some difference in modus operandi exists in the body of Christ, just as different functions are assigned to different parts of the human body.

9. The effectiveness of the spiritual gift depends upon two factors.

a. The filling of the Holy Spirit is the absolute concept of experiential Christianity.

b. The degree of spiritual growth is the relative concept of experiential Christianity. If you are growing spiritually, your gift will function. Communication gifts can function to some degree even when a believer is out of fellowship, because God honors the gift and His Word, which you might quote correctly and explain correctly. But this only applies to communication gifts, and is not a desirable situation.

10. Therefore, spiritual gifts only function inside the divine dynasphere under the enabling power of the Holy Spirit and momentum from metabolized doctrine, totally apart from emotion. Emotion neither characterizes the filling of the Spirit nor the function of spiritual gifts. As you have momentum from doctrine, your spiritual gift will function, even without your cognition. But you will find yourself becoming involved in things where your spiritual gift is functioning.

11. Spiritual gifts are the Father's witness to the saving work of Christ, and to the strategic victory of our Lord in the angelic conflict. They are distributed today by God the Holy Spirit under that concept according to Heb 2:4 and Ephesians 4:8, though they were initially distributed by the Lord Jesus Christ as a result of His ascension.

C. There are two categories of spiritual gifts.

1. Temporary spiritual gifts were operational during the pre-canon period of the Church Age, i.e., from circa A.D. 30, the day of Pentecost when the Church Age began, to A.D. 96, the pre-canon period of the Church Age.

2. Permanent spiritual gifts function from the completion of the New Testament in 96 A.D. until the Rapture of the Church, whenever that occurs.

3. Temporary spiritual gifts only functioned during the pre-canon period. On the day the Church Age began, there was no New Testament. So temporary spiritual gifts were designed to take up the slack in the Church Age until the New Testament Canon was completed and circulated, and the mystery doctrine of the Church Age was reduced to writing.

a. Not one principle of the Christian way of life was ever taught in the Old Testament. All mystery doctrine was taught in the New Testament; none of it was ever taught in the Old Testament.

b. So the temporary spiritual gifts were designed to function in place of the New Testament, and many of them were spectacular in nature.

4. On the other hand, permanent spiritual gifts function throughout the Church Age, but are emphasized from the time of the completion of the Canon.

D. Distinctions and Spiritual Gifts.

1. The temporary gifts of the apostolic age became the source of abuse under two concepts.
 - a. While operative, there were some abuses.
 - b. Since they have been discontinued, people still claim to have them. This is an abuse since they no longer exist. The Corinthian Church was involved in some of these abuses.
 - c. The Corinthians emphasized and exalted spectacular gifts, and related them to spirituality. Spectacular gifts are not spirituality, any more than less spectacular gifts. Spirituality is not based upon spiritual gifts; spirituality is based on the filling of the Holy Spirit.
2. Every believer has a spiritual gift in his portfolio of invisible assets; this gift is given to him at salvation.
3. No matter how insignificant a spiritual gift may appear to you or to others, it is essential for the function of the body of Christ; just as every position on a team is important for the function of that team.
4. One principle has always been true: spiritual gifts, like any other human activity, function under authority. No divine institution can function without authority. Authority doesn't always exist in the person who is most capable, or who is the best leader. Nothing in life is effective without authority. Orientation to authority is the beginning of virtue.
5. Spiritual gifts have their highest function in spiritual adulthood. When a person has mastered the functions of virtue-love at gates #5 and #6 of the divine dynasphere, then his gift will function to the maximum. Virtue-love includes personal love for God the Father at gate #5, impersonal love for all mankind at gate #6, and occupation with the person of Jesus Christ. Your spiritual gift will not function to the maximum before you reach spiritual maturity, for its maximum function comes in spiritual adulthood.
6. Spiritual gifts are said to differ in value, as we'll note in 1Corinthians 12:28. While we have equal privilege and equal opportunity under our computer assets, there are differences of modus operandi among believers in the utilization of their spiritual gifts.
7. Spectacular spiritual gifts do not imply spiritual growth, superior Christian experience, or Christian greatness. Greatness comes by advancing to spiritual maturity and becoming an invisible hero. You can be an invisible hero with a relatively unknown or apparently insignificant gift and be just as great as a mature believer with a more visible gift.

E. Temporary Spiritual Gifts. The temporary gifts were operational during the pre-canon period of the Church Age, circa A.D. 30 - A.D. 96. Temporary gifts were designed to take up the slack for the beginning of the Church Age until the New Testament was completed and circulated, and until the mystery doctrine was reduced to writing. A list of the temporary spiritual gifts follows in order of merit.

1. The gift of apostleship. (See the Doctrine of Apostleship.)

The gift of prophecy was not a national leader like that of the Old Testament prophets. This gift was second in order of merit, and is so listed in 1Corinthians 12:28. It is also mentioned in Romans 12:6; 1Corinthians 12:10, and 14:1-40 where it is presented in contrast to the gift of tongues.

- a. Old Testament prophets were national leaders, especially in times of crisis. In times of prosperity, he was the final authority on Bible doctrine. However, this gift is not related to national leadership. Many of the Old Testament prophets were great national leaders, e.g., Elijah. Isaiah dictated the correct foreign policy that saved Israel. But those with the gift of prophecy in the Church Age were not national leaders; they only functioned within the realm of the Church.
- b. The gift of prophecy included a message of divine guidance or a warning of judgment, or a prediction about the immediate future. In Acts 11, Agabus the prophet predicted the famine and depression to come. In Acts 21:10-11, he warned Paul not to go back to Jerusalem.
- c. Prophets had a limited teaching ministry related to contemporary events; that's why they are called "prophets and teachers" in Acts 13:1.
- d. Males with the gift of prophecy recorded in Scripture.
 - (1) Agabus, Acts 11:27-28, 21:10-11.
 - (2) Others included Barnabas, Simeon, Lucius, Manaen, and even Paul, according to Acts 13:1. Judas and Silas had the gift, Acts 13:32.
- e. Acts 21:9 presents a problem, because the four daughters of Philip the evangelist are said to "be prophesying" in the present active participle. However, they did not have a spiritual gift. So we must distinguish between people permitted by God to prophesy, and those who had the spiritual gift of prophecy. No record of their prophecies is ever given, and obviously they did not have the spiritual gift of prophecy.
- f. In exercising the temporary spiritual gift of prophecy, the prophet must receive his message from God, or he must declare God's will to someone in terms of prophecy, i.e., in terms of future events. The prophecy must be doctrinally accurate.
- g. Because of the tremendous amount of eschatology in the New Testament epistles, it is quite obvious that the writers who were apostles also had the gift of prophecy.
- h. The gift of prophecy warned about judgment on sin, indicated the will of God regarding current events, and predicted future events during the apostolic age. But the gift did not extend into the post-canon period because of the doctrine of historical trends. Every function of the gift of prophecy during the pre-canon period is fulfilled by the doctrine of historical trends during the post-canon period. By metabolizing doctrine, you become your own prophet.

- i. With the completion of the canon of Scripture in A.D. 96 and its gradual circulation, temporary gifts of communication ceased to exist; they were replaced by the permanent communication gifts of evangelism and pastor-teacher.

- 3. The gift of miracles is found in 1Corinthians 12:28; 2Corinthians 12:12.
 - a. This temporary spiritual gift was designed to authenticate and certify communication gifts during the apostolic age. This gift was used by an apostle, a prophet, a pastor-teacher, or an evangelist as a credit card to certify that he had that communication gift. The person who had a communication gift could perform a miracle at will. This was the sign that he was from God.
 - b. Today, no one has the gift of miracles, since the completion of the canon of Scripture. The greatest miracle in all of history is the power of Bible doctrine in the life of the positive believer who makes doctrine his #1 priority.
 - c. People tended to lean on miracles during the apostolic age, resulting in terrible apostasy. Whenever someone had a problem, instead of using and applying Bible doctrine, they just waited around for a miracle. So that miracles became the basis for leading many into apostasy, even though it was legitimate at that time.
 - d. While no believer today has the gift of miracles, God still performs miracles if He chooses to do so. But they are not performed by any human through a spiritual gift.
 - e. Of course, Satan has a clever system for duplicating miracles. But there is no such thing as an intermediary between you and God for the performance of miracles. There is no ceremony; there is no system of prayer for miracles. Believers who practice this today insult God, regarding Him as a genie.
 - f. The easiest thing God can do for a human being is to perform a miracle. This is because it does not require any cooperation or positive volition from a person; it only requires a decision from the sovereignty of God and the use of His omnipotence.
 - g. The greatest demonstration of God's power toward mankind today is the fulfillment of His protocol plan through the believer's consistent residence inside the divine dynasphere, under the enabling power of the Spirit, and momentum from metabolized doctrine, utilizing his very own portfolio of invisible assets.
 - h. God never designed miracles to alleviate suffering. Otherwise, our Lord would have been remiss in not healing everyone when He was on earth. Miracles were designed to focus attention on the power of God and the Word of God, to focus attention on the man (or Messiah) with the message. The fact that miracles often alleviate suffering is incidental to the point; it is an after-the-fact result. The greatest thing in life is not a miracle, but Bible doctrine resident in your soul.

- i. Miracles are sovereign and personal, never in the hands of a human being during the post-canon period of the Church Age.
 - j. Paul performed miracles, indicating that he had the gift of apostleship; therefore he was given a hearing. Whenever our Lord performed a miracle, it was always in relationship to His message. The message of doctrine is infinitely more important than any miracle that has ever occurred. Paul possessed every temporary spiritual gift.
 - k. All the hocus-pocus in the false function of miracles today is designed to call attention to man. It's an ego trip. It is an arrogant person trying to control and influence a lot of dumb sheep. Miracles are not the issue today. The very fact that people want, ask, and pray for miracles means they do not begin to understand the true greatness of God's power, the greatness of His plan and the portfolio of invisible assets. No one in the Church Age has the power to heal you via a miracle
4. The gift of healing is mentioned in 1Corinthians 12:9, 28, 30.
- a. Just as miracles was designed to authenticate the person, so healing was designed to focus attention on the message of apostles, prophets, pastors, and evangelists before the New Testament was completed and circulated.
 - b. Miracles authenticated the person; healing certified the message. So they were different, though they both had the same connotation in that they dealt with supernatural phenomena. A man with the gift of miracles could perform a miracle at will, anytime he chose to do so, and he could heal as well. In fact, people could just touch Paul and they were instantly healed.
 - c. Healing as a spiritual gift does not exist today, for it ceased with the completion of the Canon. Any healing today must come directly from God, and not through any delegated human authority or intermediary. Normally, healing is performed through medicine or even a tranquil mental attitude so that the body can heal itself.
 - d. Healing is not a question of God's power. Healing is not even a matter of someone's faith. It is the wisdom of God's sovereign will in individual situations. God heals today only in special cases in which He has a special purpose, such as extending your life so that you can learn doctrine. But no person has the right to take any credit, should such healing occur. The credit lies with the wisdom and sovereignty of God.
 - e. Paul had the gift of healing. It was used as a credit card to establish his apostleship, since he murdered more Christians in the first century than anyone else before the great persecutions began. Acts 19:11-12 tells of the spectacular nature of his healing gift, for a person only had to touch Paul to be healed instantly.
 - f. But once Paul's apostleship and message was established and generally accepted, God withdrew the gift of healing from him since it was no longer needed. We know this because Paul could not heal two of his closest friends. He solicited prayer on their behalf, but he could not heal them. One was Epaphroditus in Philippians 2:27, the other was Trophimus in 2 Timothy 4:20; Paul had to leave Trophimus behind because he could not heal him.

- g. There is true healing that occurs when a demon-possessed person experiences the demon leaving his body; such a person is then "cured." This method is used by Satan to establish false teachers.
5. The gift of tongues. (See the doctrine of Tongues.)
 - a. The gift of tongues was designed to warn the Jews of the coming of the fifth cycle of discipline by evangelizing them in Gentile languages, cf. Isaiah 28.
 - b. Tongues was the first of the temporary gifts to be removed - 70 A.D.
 6. The interpretation of tongues is in 1 Corinthians 12:10, 30, 14:26-28.
 - a. When anyone stood up in a church and spoke in tongues, presenting the Gospel to Jewish unbelievers who were present (Jews whose native tongue was a Gentile language), the rest of the congregation could not understand what was said. They thought the man speaking in tongues had gone off his rocker; he didn't even know what he was saying.
 - b. So the one with the gift of interpretation of tongues stood up and explained what was said by the one who had just spoken in tongues. This gift was designed for the rest of the congregation so they would know the one with the gift of tongues was not crazy.
 - c. The gift of tongues never functioned without the gift of interpretation of tongues also functioning. The gift of interpretation of tongues was the ability to translate the message of the one speaking in tongues.
 - d. Today any alleged speaking in tongues or interpretation of tongues is either a psychological malady of an emotional reject or demon activity. The EGGASTRAMUTHOS demon who possesses an unbeliever controls that person's vocal cords, causing him to "speak in tongues."
 7. The gift of knowledge is found in 1 Corinthians 12:8, 13:8. With this gift, you had instant cognition of mystery doctrine. This was a spiritual gift whereby you knew a Church Age doctrine without studying it, for there was as yet no New Testament canon in writing to study. This knowledge was provided directly by God the Holy Spirit who inserted previously unknown doctrinal information into a person's right lobe as epignosis. In other words, the gift of knowledge functioned totally apart from the function of operation Z.
 8. The gift of wisdom is found in 1 Corinthians 12:8. This gift accompanied the gift of knowledge, as the ability to explain and apply the mystery doctrine taught by the gift of knowledge. So some taught the mystery doctrine; others taught the application of that doctrine. Today, wisdom comes with spiritual adulthood only. No believer before reaching spiritual self-esteem has wisdom.
 9. The gift of exhortation is found in Romans 12:8.

- a. Before the canon of Scripture was completed and circulated, the spiritual gift of exhortation was necessary. This was the temporary gift of counseling, comforting, warning, and advising.
 - b. The Greek word used for this gift was PARAKLESIS which means comforter. But today, the Holy Spirit is the PARAKLESIS. We have the permanent indwelling of the Spirit, the filling of the Spirit, the ministry of the Spirit in teaching, metabolizing, and applying doctrine. Hence, with the completion of the New Testament, this temporary gift was no longer necessary.
 - c. Today you can do these things for yourself in spiritual adulthood. Beginning with spiritual self-esteem, you counsel yourself; you comfort yourself; you warn yourself; you advise yourself. However, there is still a place for these things in the ministry of the pastor-teacher.
 - d. Of course, we can always learn from people. Anyone who is honest with you is your friend.
10. The gift of discerning spirits is found in 1Corinthians 12:10. This was the spiritual gift for the detection of false doctrine. With the completion of the canon of Scripture, this gift was no longer necessary, since the New Testament contains true doctrine and thereby exposes false doctrine.
11. The gift of faith is found in 1Corinthians 12:9. This must be distinguished from the faith-rest drill.
- a. This was a special spiritual gift before the New Testament was completed, whereby a believer demonstrated faith in a group which was being persecuted or was under some special pressure. Everyone would be moaning and groaning and complaining about some circumstance, and this believer would exercise great faith in deliverance or in confidence in God, and encourage that group to depend upon the Lord.
 - b. This person would exercise his gift of faith on behalf of the group, either to comfort them with promises and doctrine, or to announce that a deliverance was about to come. If a group of believers were about to go to the lions, and one of them stood up with the gift of faith and said, "I'm trusting the Lord that we'll all be delivered," they would all be delivered and none of them would go to the lions.
 - c. The New Testament didn't exist, so there were no promises to claim and no doctrine to apply. This gift was provided in lieu of having New Testament promises and doctrines, so that the faith-rest drill could function.
12. 1Corinthians 13:8-10 explains the temporary function of certain spiritual gifts, "Virtue-love is never phased out; but if the gift of prophecies, it will be cancelled out; if the gift of tongues, it will be discontinued; if the gift of knowledge, it will be cancelled. For we know in part [gift of knowledge], and we prophesy in part [gift of prophecy], but when the completed has come

[New Testament Canon], what is temporary [the temporary spiritual gifts] will be cancelled [abolished, phased out, withdrawn]."

F. Permanent Spiritual Gifts.

1. Introduction and Identification.

- a. Permanent spiritual gifts function in the body of Christ throughout the entire Church Age, but they are emphasized as functioning from the time of the completion of the New Testament until the Rapture. Permanent spiritual gifts were operational before the completion of the Canon in most cases, and they will continue to function until the Rapture of the Church.
- b. While temporary spiritual gifts were phased out with the completion and circulation of the New Testament, permanent spiritual gifts will function in the body of Christ until the end of the Church Age.
- c. If you have personally believed in Jesus Christ and received Him as your personal Savior, you have a permanent spiritual gift. The question is: what is your spiritual gift? There are no exceptions; every believer is given a spiritual gift at salvation.
- d. The initial distribution of spiritual gifts was made by the Lord Jesus Christ after His ascension and session, according to Ephesians 4:7-11.
- e. Thereafter, at salvation, God the Holy Spirit sovereignly distributes spiritual gifts according to His perfect, eternal, and infinite wisdom. One of the forty things you received at salvation, and one of the seven ministries of the Holy Spirit at salvation was His sovereign act in giving you at least one spiritual gift. This is taught in 1Corinthians 12:7, 11, 18 and 28. These gifts are given in balance. There must be mathematical correct proportions.
- f. The category of spiritual gift which you possess is not a sign of spiritual superiority, growth, or inferiority. Spiritual gifts are a matter of the sovereign wisdom of God the Holy Spirit. You are not better or worse than anyone else by virtue of your spiritual gift.
- g. The effectiveness of your spiritual gift depends upon two categories of experiential sanctification.
 - (1) The absolute concept, which is the filling of the Spirit or life in the divine dynasphere.
 - (2) The relative concept, which is a matter of your spiritual growth or lack of it.
- h. A distinction must be recognized between natural abilities or talents and spiritual gifts. Your natural abilities are related to your physical birth and genetics; spiritual gifts are related to regeneration.

2. There are three categories of permanent spiritual gifts. These are categorized according to the means of their identification.

- a. Communication gifts must be identified because they demand maximum preparation. There are two permanent communication gifts:

the gift of pastor-teacher and the gift of evangelism, and any combination thereof related to missionary function. "Missionary" is not a spiritual gift; it is a function of the body of Christ. The communication gifts used out in the field are pastor-teacher and evangelism; non-communication gifts are used in the field as well.

- (1) The communication gifts are given to male believers only, and they are given totally apart from human merit.
- (2) From His wisdom related to His omniscience, God the Holy Spirit always over supplies. There are always more men with the gift of pastor-teacher than there are men who will actually use it.
- (3) These two communication gifts must be recognized as soon as possible, because it takes a tremendous amount of preparation to function effectively under the wisdom of God. This preparation requires many different things, e.g., military service and extensive academic training (to include five to eight graduate years).
- (4) Identification is not simple, because it demands persistence in the perception of doctrine. It is not connected with emotion. No feeling should lead or guide you; you have to know from doctrine, and have confidence from that knowledge. If you identify your gift too late for proper preparation, don't be concerned because God uses that gift in many other ways.
- (5) After the individual male recognizes his spiritual gift and prepares for it, then the Bible demands that some local church recognize his spiritual gift through the ritual of ordination. Eventually, some local church will recognize him by calling him to be their pastor.

b. There are spiritual gifts that the pastor of a local church must identify among members in his congregation, i.e., the gifts of administrative leadership, which must be possessed by church officers and some deacons, especially the chairmen of standing committees.

- (1) Half of the responsibility of this spiritual gift is specified in 1Corinthians 12:28 by the noun KUBERNESIS, which means administration. The ability to administer in the local church is not necessarily the same as the ability to administer in business, in the military, or in bureaucracy.
- (2) The other half of the responsibility of this spiritual gift is found in Romans 12:8. The present middle participle of PROISTEMI, which means leadership.
- (3) The two words together, KUBERNESIS and PROISTEMI, means administrative leadership.
- (4) Although the prevalent tradition is for the congregation to vote for deacons and church officers, it is really the job of the pastor to identify these gifts among men in the congregation and to appoint them as church officers. These men are responsible for the function and administration of a local church. No local church can function without deacons. The gifts of administrative leadership definitely carry authority.

- (5) The local church is the only way of spiritual growth for most believers.
- (6) Each local church is an entity to itself.
- c. There are permanent spiritual gifts which function automatically without spiritual growth, and they can function without identification by the possessor. In other words, you can have a spiritual gift which will function without your cognizance of exactly what it is.
 - (1) Like all spiritual gifts, these are also sovereignly bestowed by God the Holy Spirit at salvation. They depend upon the filling of the Spirit plus spiritual growth for their function.
 - (2) Once the believer reaches a certain stage of spiritual growth, his gift functions automatically without identification.
 - (3) These spiritual gifts function with maximum efficiency when the believer attains spiritual adulthood. These do not have to be identified, although with spiritual growth from this doctrine, many may come to recognize their spiritual gift.
 - (4) These spiritual gifts are the most necessary part of the body of Christ. They include: the gift of service/ministry, the gift of helps, the gift of mercy, and the gift of giving.
3. Permanent spiritual gifts include the following. It is not implied that this list is exhaustive; however, it is categorical. Therefore, this list represents the entire concept of permanent spiritual gifts.
 - a. First in order of merit: the gift of pastor-teacher, Romans 12:7; 1Corinthians 12:8; Ephesians 3:7-13, 4:11-16. This is the highest communication gift extent in the Church Age today. There is no higher spiritual gift. It is given to male believers only and is designed to function primarily inside the local church. (See the Doctrine of Pastor-Teacher.)
 - (1) The pastor is not an administrator; he is a policy maker. One of his titles, as found in Ephesians 4:11, says he has the responsibility of seeing that the policy of administration lines up with the Word of God, that it is a policy that fulfills the concepts of the New Testament. But he himself does not involve himself in administration.
 - (2) No pastor should ever have anything to do with the money in the church nor with the building and how it functions. Administration is not the pastor's responsibility.
 - b. The gift of evangelism is also a communication gift, Ephesians 4:11.

- (1) While the gift of pastor-teacher communicates the whole realm of doctrine inside the local church, the gift of evangelism is designed to communicate the Gospel outside the local church.
- (2) The male believer with the gift of evangelism has the God-given ability to communicate the Gospel in a manner that holds the unbeliever's attention. This is the spiritual gift by which people will gather or assemble to listen to the presentation of the Gospel. These unbelievers will give attention and listen to the evangelist, where they would not listen to anyone else.
- (3) While listening to something "religious," the unbeliever has a tendency to be on his guard and resentful. But all of this is overcome by the spiritual gift of evangelism while communicating the Gospel.
- (4) The evangelist exercises his spiritual gift in a group of unbelievers. His gift is designed to reach the unreachable with the Gospel message.
- (5) The gift of evangelism has the ability to teach and express the Gospel so that unbelievers will listen and have a clear understanding of the issue of salvation; i.e., that faith in Christ means eternal life, and that rejection of Christ means eternal condemnation.
- (6) Often an evangelist will have a speaking talent that goes with his gift, but it is actually the gift that provides hearing from the unbeliever. When this spiritual gift functions, the unbeliever will listen to the Gospel almost by compulsion.
- (7) The man with this gift is sensational in his communication of the Gospel to the unbeliever. He is a sensational speaker with a sensational personality; this is necessary in order to get a hearing from unbelievers. Such a person can hold the attention of unbelievers.
- (8) Pastors do not have this gift, but they are mandated to do the work of an evangelist in 2Timothy 4:5, "Do the work of an evangelist."
- (9) (9) All believers are mandated to evangelize in 2Corinthians 5:19. This is because, as a royal ambassador, every believer represents God before the human race. Therefore, it is necessary to personally witness for Christ and give the message of reconciliation as opportunity presents. So the gift of evangelism must be distinguished from personal witnessing, which is the responsibility of every believer.
- (10) Therefore, three categories of believers are mandated to communicate the Gospel.

- (a) The function of the spiritual gift of evangelism is the sensational approach.
 - (b) The function of the spiritual gift of pastor- teacher is merely an accurate communication of the Gospel under the ministry of God the Holy Spirit, 2Timothy 4:5.
 - (c) The function of every believer, 2Corinthians 5:19.
- (11) Every evangelist must learn doctrine from his own pastor-teacher.
- c. The gift of administrative leadership, sometimes called the gift of governments, is found in Romans 12:8 and in 1Corinthians 12:28.
- (1) This is the gift of administrative leadership, because it has delegated authority from the pastor. Romans 12:8, "He who leads must do so with diligence." 1Corinthians 12:28 also mentions this gift under the word "governments" or "administrations." The two Greek words from these two verses, KUBERNESIS and PROISTEMI, describe the two parts of this gift. It entails both authority and leadership and the function of administration.
 - (2) This spiritual gift is held by deacons, those who fulfill administrative responsibilities on missionary boards; leaders of Christian service organizations; those who lead and administer the training of children in the local church; church officers and chairmen of standing committees or other organizations within the local church. Apparently, this gift is given to men only.
 - (3) Men with this administrative leadership spiritual gift must chair the various committees in the local church; such as the church office committee, finance committee, membership committee, missionary committee, nursery committee, prep school committee, property committee, and ushers committee. (Those who serve on committees must have the gift of ministry or service.)
 - (4) So there are two kinds of deacons: those with the administrative leadership gift and those with the service administrative gift, called the gift of ministry or the gift of service.
 - (5) It is the responsibility of the pastor to identify men who have this gift and appoint them into the appropriate slot. The pastor who fails to do this eventually becomes the loser himself. The very existence of this gift emphasizes the fact that the primary responsibility of the pastor is not administration.
 - (6) The gift of administration, then, is linked to the function of the local church. One important distinction must be made. A person can be great in administrating some business or organization, but that does not necessarily mean he has this spiritual gift.

(7) The gift of administration calls for more than simply effective administrative function. It is a spiritual gift which is sensitive to the needs of the local church and how they are best administered.

d. The gift of ministry or service is found in Romans 12:7. The Greek noun diakonia (διακονία) [pronounced dee-ak-on-EE-ah] is translated "ministry" in the KJV; or "service" in better modern translations. (Some confusion arises because diakonia (διακονία) [pronounced dee-ak-on-EE-ah] resembles diakonos, which though transliterated "deacon," actually refers to the gift of administrative leadership.)

(1) diakonia (διακονία) [pronounced dee-ak-on-EE-ah] is a spiritual gift of service given to both men and women. Diakonos is an office in the local church, held by a man serving on the deacon board. The kubernesis is the one with administrative leadership over the board.

(2) This gift (diakonia (διακονία) [pronounced dee-ak-on-EE-ah]) functions in the administration of the local church. It means ministry or service; it does not refer to the office of deacon in the local church. This gift is given to men and women.

(3) Those who have this spiritual gift should serve on committees and in specific administrative functions in the local church, on mission boards, in Christian service organizations. The deacon, who is the chairman of the committee, has the gift of administration. Those who serve on the committee have the gift of ministry or service. This makes for effective, administrative function in the local church.

(4) This spiritual gift is strictly administrative without the leadership function provided by the Holy Spirit.

(5) Rom 12:7, "If service, then serve within the framework of the gift of service."

(6) The spiritual gift of service or ministry is one of the more common spiritual gifts among men; it also includes some ladies. It is from this gift that so many things are done in the local church.

(7) Although women cannot have the first three spiritual gifts, they can have this spiritual gift. This explains the feminine form, "deaconess," in Timothy. No woman has the gift of pastor-teacher, the gift of evangelism, or the gift of administration. But this shouldn't keep ladies from teaching children, from personal witnessing, or from functioning in the administration of the church if they have the gift of service.

e. The gift of helps is found in 1Corinthians 12:28. Possessed by thousands of believers, this gift is very important. It is this gift that makes the royal family tick. It is the most sustaining gift, and it provides the real stability in a local church.

(1) This spiritual gift functions by helping and ministering to the sick, the afflicted, the handicapped, and the helpless. It is held by men and women.

(2) This gift is a marvelous thing to behold. It is this gift which functions by visiting the sick and those in hospitals. It is not the pastor's responsibility to call on the sick. But for those who have the spiritual gift of helps, this is their great and magnificent function. This is the spiritual gift that really undergirds all the other spiritual gifts.

(3) This gift is synonymous with the gift of "giving aid," as it's translated correctly in Romans 12:8. It can be extended inside or outside the church; it can function to both believers and unbelievers.

(4) Possibly one difference between the gift of ministry or service and the gift of helps is that ministry or service functions within the church, whereas the gift of helps functions both inside and outside the local church.

f. The gift of showing mercy is found in Romans 12:8. Showing mercy is a virtue under grace, but the gift of showing mercy is quite different. God uses these types to provide for the needs of others in other disasters and difficulties.

(1) Rom 12:8, "He who shows mercy must always do so with cheerfulness." This implies that if you have the gift of mercy, you will automatically show mercy, but you won't necessarily like it without virtue. So this verse commands that virtue accompany the function of this spiritual gift. People often show mercy under the virtue of grace. But this is actually a spiritual gift.

(2) This gift might be synonymous with helps, except that it extends primarily to the afflicted, to the persecuted, and to those who are victims of tyranny among believers and even unbelievers. Therefore, it is perhaps more dramatic than the gift of helps.

(3) In the time of the writing of Romans 12:8, it was dangerous to help Christians who were imprisoned or under persecution. Hence, this spiritual gift is always related to courageous acts of mercy.

g. The gift of giving must be distinguished from the individual believer's responsibility in giving.

(1) Rom 12:8, "He who gives with generosity."

(2) This is a special spiritual gift given to both rich and poor for the extravagant use of their earthly possessions in providing for the needs of both believers and Christian institutions, such as the local church, missions, Christian service organizations, to the destitute and needy, and to those who are financially helpless.

(3) A very false doctrine prevalent today is that you must give all your money through or to the local church. In other words, if you give to any people in need, but not by means of the local church, it really isn't true giving. That is a lie from the pit of hell! You have a right to give your money directly to any number of organizations or people in need, and it is legitimate Christian giving.

(4) Tithing commanded in the Old Testament was taxation.

(5) Spiritual giving in both the Old and New Testament never has any percentage attached to it. Spiritual giving is first of all a mental attitude, one you can have though impoverished.

(6) You can still have this mental attitude even if you're not able to give because of the superseding mandate from the Scripture: to provide for you family. Before you give to the local church, you have a responsibility to provide for your family! If a person has the spiritual gift of giving and he has a family, he is limited in how he can use his spiritual gift.

(7) A person with the spiritual gift of giving will give sacrificially. There are two types of believers who have this gift: rich and poor. If they have this gift, they will give sacrificially. For the gift will function when they reach a certain stage of spiritual growth, even though they may not know they have the gift. But remember, by and large with most of the spiritual gifts, you don't have to identify the gift; you simply have to grow in grace and it will function automatically.

(8) Those who are single, and those who are wealthy and have already provided beautifully for their family, have no problem in giving sacrificially. This gift of giving is giving sacrificially.

(9) If you have the gift, God will provide for the poor and for the rich to give sacrificially. But this is a spiritual gift which relatively few seem to have. If you do not have this gift, then God only requires that you have the mental attitude of a desire to give whether you are able to give or not.

h. These are a few of the spiritual gifts extant today. This does not imply that these are all of them. So where do you fit in? How do you read yourself into the picture? The answer is very simple. Unless you have the gift of pastor-teacher or evangelism, you do not have to know what your gift is. In fact, you may not ever discover your gift until there is momentum and spiritual growth in your life.

- i. You will know your spiritual gift by the time you reach spiritual adulthood, because by that time it should be functioning and operational. Without spiritual growth, your gift will not function; you're just a dead battery.

G. The Function of Spiritual Gifts, Romans 12:4-8. This passage tells us how the gifts should function, using an analogy to the human body.

1. Verse 4, "For just as we have many parts [many spiritual gifts] in one body [royal family of God], and all parts do not have the same function." All believers do not have the same spiritual gifts. The Holy Spirit distributes different spiritual gifts to each of us at salvation, just as a coach might assign players to different positions on a team.
2. Verse 5, "so we, who are many are one body in Christ, and each part [every spiritual gift in the body] belongs to all the others."
 - a. While we all have equal privilege and equal opportunity as members of the royal family, the Holy Spirit assigns different spiritual gifts to us. The one with the gift of pastor-teacher belongs to all of you. You all have many different gifts which belong to him. We all belong to each other. We cannot separate from each other and be effective. We are all members of the same team!
 - b. Spiritual gifts are the basis for the team concept in the royal family. Your spiritual gift determines what position you play on the team. No matter how inconspicuous or insignificant your gift may seem to be, you are on the team and your gift is just as necessary as any other gift. Your insignificant gift is needed just as much as a spectacular gift.
 - c. Don't ever have a bad mental attitude about your less spectacular spiritual gift, because you are resenting the wisdom of God the Holy Spirit. All gifts function under the enabling power of the Spirit inside the divine dynasphere only. Effectiveness of function is determined by your spiritual growth.
 - d. So how should your spiritual gift function, once you've gained some momentum, and once it begins to function with or without your consent?
3. Verse 6, "We have different gifts according to the grace given to us. If the believer's gift is prophecy, let him prophesy in proportion to his doctrine." This was a temporary gift. There was no sense in trying to use the gift of prophecy unless you had doctrine so that your prophecies were accurate.
4. Verse 7, "If his gift is the gift of ministry [or service], let him function in the sphere of his service. If his gift is the gift of teaching [pastor-teacher], let him teach." In other words, don't try to be something you're not. You're great in functioning within your own spiritual gift. If you try to do something else, you fall flat on your face. Scripture doesn't say the pastor-teacher is to run absolutely everything; that's ridiculous. He is to oversee that the policies line up with the Scripture; he should know that much. But he delegates everything. The pastor who doesn't delegate cannot study and teach.

5. Verse 8, "If it is the gift of exhortation, then let him counsel and comfort. If it is the gift of giving, let him give generously. If it is the gift of governments [administration], let him govern with diligence. If it is the gift of showing mercy, let him do it cheerfully."

- a. In other words, stick with your gift! Don't get ambitious and try to be something you're not. God the Holy Spirit gave you your gift. His wisdom is perfect; therefore, stay with your gift.
- b. If you have the gift of giving, though God will provide the means to give, your giving is sacrificial. This is different from all believers giving as a part of the privacy of their priesthood. If you have the gift of giving, then as you grow spiritually you'll find yourself being unusually generous and perhaps sacrificial. But you don't have to give to the local church; you can give to Christian service organizations or to missionaries.
- c. The gift of governments or administration is not necessarily the ability to administer in business or be a good executive in business. The person with this spiritual gift is able to function as an executive or to function as an administrator in a local church. He is sensitive to the needs of that local church, whereas in a business, he would not necessarily do well.
- d. Those who need mercy are generally the unattractive people in life, and especially unattractive to the one giving the gift of mercy. Therefore, this is an obscure gift, because it is being nice, kind, thoughtful, and loving toward someone with whom you have a natural antagonism. Doing it "cheerfully" means without any rancor, without any thought that "this person is a jerk and brought this on himself."

H. The Team Concept of Spiritual Gifts, 1Corinthians 12:1-14.

1. Just as every team has certain positions, so the body of Christ has spiritual gifts. Every operational spiritual gift is necessary for the advance of the body of Christ.
2. These gifts must be assigned in balanced proportions. That is, if you have so many believers in a geographical location, then there must be enough pastor-teachers to service those believers (along with enough believers with the gifts of helps and administrations); so that the pastor-teacher in each church is not overwhelmed with all of the responsibilities of keeping a church open.
3. 1Corinthians 12:1, "Now concerning spiritual gifts brethren, I do not want you to be ignorant." This emphasizes the importance of epistemological rehabilitation.
4. 1Corinthians 12:4, "There are a variety of spiritual gifts, but the same Holy Spirit."
 - a. The source of spiritual gifts is the sovereignty of God the Holy Spirit, who gives the believer his gift at salvation on the basis of HIS decision, not ours. Our spiritual gift is a matter of the wisdom of the Holy Spirit; it is not a matter of any personal merit. We do not acquire, attain, earn, or deserve our spiritual gift. In fact, we would not even know what to order if we had a choice. Our lifestyle or our good and bad points do not enter into the equation.

- b. All spiritual gifts depend upon two factors for their effective function.
 - (1) The filling of the Spirit, or residence inside your very own palace, the divine dynasphere.
 - (2) Momentum, or spiritual growth, from perception, metabolization, and application of Bible doctrine. This is called epistemological rehabilitation or cognition of doctrine.
5. 1Corinthians 12:5, "There are a variety of ministries [services], but the same Lord." There are many different kinds of Christian service, and many opportunities for Christian service. All believers are serving the same Lord, but all believers do not serve in the same way.
6. 1Corinthians 12:6-7, "There are different kinds of activities [or impact or effects], but the same God works all of them in all persons. Furthermore, to each of us is given the manifestation of the Spirit for the common good [team, body of Christ]." The manifestation of the Spirit in view here is in perception, in virtue, and in spiritual gifts. Every spiritual gift contributes to the common good of the body of Christ. The common good is not socialism or Marxism. No one gift is more important than another.
7. 1Corinthians 12:8-10, "To one there is given through the Spirit the gift of wisdom, to another the gift of knowledge by the same Spirit, to another the gift of faith by the same Spirit, to another the gifts of healing by means of the same Spirit, to another the gift of miracles, to another prophecy, to another discerning spirits, to another the gift of tongues, to another interpretation of tongues." The spiritual gifts listed are all temporary. They were mentioned because many had been abused in the local church at Corinth.
8. There is inequality of believers and of the gifts that they have.
9. 1Corinthians 12:11, "All these spiritual gifts are the work of one and the same Spirit; He gives them to each believer just as He determines."
10. The concept of one body, 1Corinthians 12:12, "For even as the body is one [one royal family] and has many parts [spiritual gifts], and all the parts of the body, though they are many, are one body, so also is the Christ."
 - a. Certain parts of the human body are prominent; others are hidden. So it is with spiritual gifts; some are obscure, others are obvious.
 - b. The baptism of the Spirit at salvation entered every believer in union with Christ, and made us all members of the royal family of God.
11. How did we become royal family? 1Corinthians 12:13, "For by means of one Spirit we were all baptized [baptism of the Holy Spirit] into one body, whether Jews or Greeks [no racial discrimination], whether slaves or free [no social distinctions], and all were made [caused] to drink one Spirit."
 - a. There are no human viewpoint distinctions. There is no racial discrimination or social distinctions. Once you believe in Jesus Christ, you must regard yourself as a person, having no superiority or inferiority complex. You are a member of the royal family with equal privilege and equal opportunity. You are arrogant, if you are preoccupied with yourself in terms of inferiority or superiority.

- b. Drinking illustrates faith in Christ at salvation, the time when the baptism of the Spirit occurs. All kinds of people can drink, but the drinking process is the same for all. Drinking is a non-meritorious procedure which everyone can do. So also, faith is common to all members of the human race as a non-meritorious system of perception.
 - c. "Drinking of One Spirit" is the fulfillment of our Lord's invitation on the last day of the Feast of Tabernacles in John 7:37-39, "Now on the last day, the great day of the feast [Tabernacles], Jesus stood up and shouted saying, 'If any person is thirsty, let him come to me and drink. He who believes in Me, as the Scripture has said, "Streams of living water shall flow from within him.'" But this He spoke about the Spirit, whom those who believed in Him were later to receive. For the Spirit was not yet given, because Christ was not yet glorified."
 - d. So in a passage about spiritual gifts, it is fitting that drinking should be used as analogous to faith in our Lord Jesus Christ, in which moment we receive our spiritual gift.
12. 1Corinthians 12:14, "Now the body [royal family] is made up not of one part, but of many parts [spiritual gifts]." The body is a unity but it has many parts.
- I. The Abuse of Spiritual Gifts, 1Corinthians 12:15-21.
- 1. There are two abuses of spiritual gifts.
 - a. The attempt to perpetuate temporary gifts of the pre-Canon period into the post-Canon era. Many times people have tried to perpetuate into the post-Canon period some temporary spiritual gift, like healing, miracles, tongues, or the interpretation of tongues. That's an abuse of spiritual gifts.
 - b. The second problem is that of arrogance or inferiority. Many believers are arrogant because their spiritual gift is more obvious in its function. Others are in a terrible state of inferiority, thinking that because their spiritual gift is not obvious and doesn't function in front of people, they are second-class Christians. But there's no such thing as a second-class Christian.
 - 2. 1Corinthians 12:15-21 describes this abuse. This is a part of the dissertation on the body of Christ, the royal family of God, in which distinctions are made only where our spiritual gifts are concerned. Remember that when it comes to our privileges and opportunities, we all have equal privileges and equal opportunities from our portfolio of invisible assets.
 - 3. 1Corinthians 12:15, "If the foot should say, 'Because I am not the hand, I do not belong to the body,' it would not, for that reason, cease to be a part of the body would it?"

- a. Brother foot had an inconspicuous gift. Brother hand had a conspicuous, spectacular gift. The foot is hidden; the hand is out in the open and seen by all.
- b. Brother hand may disparage brother foot, and tell him that he is not really living the Christian life unless he has the same gift or gifts as brother hand has.
- c. Some people have an inferiority complex because their spiritual gift isn't spectacular. Some who have spectacular spiritual gifts suggest and imply that they are greater believers because they have this gift. Behind all this is the erroneous assumption that you earn, deserve, or merit your spiritual gift. In reality, it is the wisdom of God the Holy Spirit.
- d. Spiritual gifts are not issued on the basis of spiritual growth or spiritual advance. Those with less spectacular gifts are not spiritually inferior to those with an ostentatious gift.
- e. This passage was to correct the abuse resulting from Corinthian arrogance which said, in effect, "you're not really saved until you speak in tongues." Or, "you're not really saved until you exercise some spectacular and emotional function in life."
- f. The royal family of God, when it comes to spiritual gifts, is a team. Each part is necessary. So whether you are a lady or a gentleman, you are important in the royal family of God. Your spiritual gift is your position on the team. It was sovereignly bestowed to you by God the Holy Spirit at salvation, and your spiritual gift is just as important as anyone else's.
- g. The different spiritual gifts generally fall into just these two categories, foot or hand. The foot represents the gifts not so obvious, the behind-the-scenes gifts, like the gift of helps or service. The hand represents the spectacular gifts. Among the temporary gifts, these would have been tongues, the interpretation of tongues, healing, and miracles. These were prominent, dominant, and well-known, along with the gifts of apostleship and prophecy. But the many behind-the-scenes gifts are just as important for the modus operandi of the royal family.
- h. If you as a believer have an inferiority complex, there is either something vitally wrong with your understanding of doctrine or with your function in your experience. There is no place for an inferiority complex!
- i. On the other "hand," those with spectacular gifts are no better than those with hidden gifts. You're not more spiritual because you have a spectacular gift. An evangelist, especially one well-known, is often thought to be deeply spiritual and far greater than others. But this is not necessarily true. The same is true of a pastor-teacher. Neither the pastor or evangelist is necessarily any better as a Christian than anyone else. What differentiates them is simply that their spiritual gifts are exercised in public, while other believers' spiritual gifts are exercised in private. The actual spiritual advance of any believer really belongs to the privacy of his priesthood; it is really no one else's business. Every believer must live his own life as unto the Lord and before the Lord.

- j. So the only differences among believers are determined by their spiritual gift. Spiritual gifts have nothing to do with the natural inferiorities or superiorities that are assigned to race, to social, business, professional, or academic life, to athletic ability, to personality, or to human attractiveness or ugliness.
 - k. Conclusion: you are just as much a part of the body of Christ if your spiritual gift is exercised in private!
4. Verse 16 brings in two other factors to repeat the idea, going from parts of the body to parts of the face. "And if the ear should say, 'Because I am not the eye, I do not belong to the body,' it would not, for that reason, cease to be a part of the body would it?" The whole Julio-Claudia line had ears sticking out from the head; they were very unattractive. The eyes, on the other hand, were generally very beautiful or attractive.
- a. The ear refers to the congregational gifts, in contrast to the communication gifts. The use of the ear is very appropriate as a reference to the congregation. For no one ever grows spiritually without listening to Bible teaching.
 - b. Since the ear is generally unnoticed, it refers to the various unseen congregational gifts, like the gift of helps or the gift of mercy. These hidden gifts are very important.
 - c. The eye represents the communication gifts, like pastor- teacher or evangelist. While speaking, the communicator must look you in the eye. Again, the use of the eye is very appropriate. For by looking, the communicator can easily gauge the response to his message.
 - d. The point is that many believers develop an inferiority complex and arrogant dissatisfaction because they do not have a communication gift. Timothy even faced this problem with certain women in his congregation.
 - e. Spiritual gifts do not determine the status of experiential sanctification. Experiential sanctification, or the spiritual life, has two concepts, absolute and relative.
 - (1) The absolute concept is being filled with the Spirit or life in the divine dynasphere, versus being carnal in cosmic one or two.
 - (2) The relative concept is the stage of your spiritual growth or retrogression.
 - f. Those believers with communication gifts are not superior to those believers with non-communication gifts. Those with communication gifts do have superior authority which is built into the gift. But their superior authority does not imply a superior spiritual life.

g. The superior spiritual life results from consistent residence inside the divine dynasphere, under the enabling power of the Spirit, and momentum from metabolized doctrine.

5. Verse 17, "If the whole body were an eye, where would the hearing be? If the whole body were an ear, where would the sense of smell be?"

a. In other words, if everyone had communication gifts, believers could not listen and learn doctrine. Hence, the royal family of God would be composed of spiritual morons.

b. Furthermore, if everyone had communication gifts, the royal family would be in a state of inordinate competition. There would be no authority for teaching Bible doctrine, and therefore no function of operation Z at gate #4 of the divine dynasphere.

c. The sense of smell refers to the non-spectacular action gifts, such as service, helps, mercy, and giving, which in their function are almost evanescent. But these are just as important as the spectacular gifts.

d. Equality is never an issue with God and the human race. God made us with differences to sustain each other.

e. "If we were all males, where would we be?" It is a wonderful thing for there to be males and females.

f. Mismatches do not change the authority. Even if a woman is smarter than her husband, he still has the authority.

g. Inequalities were designed with a purpose; but not for abuse. There is nothing degrading about being a servant or a waiter. There is nothing wrong with some people being servants and some being masters. Equality is a disaster. What if we were all millionaires? We would produce nothing because everyone is retired; and there is no one to hire to get stuff done.

h. In reality, we need to have people with different skills and different interests; and this applies in the spiritual realm.

i. Each one of us have a place in life and we can enjoy happiness in our lives, in whatever state we find ourselves.

6. Verse 18, "But in fact, God has arranged the parts of the body [distribution of spiritual gifts], every one of them, just as He willed." God has a purpose for all of these parts.

a. Spiritual gifts are distributed according to the sovereignty of God, not according to the merit of any particular believer.

b. There is no excuse for a superiority complex because you have an ostentatious spiritual gift. In fact, a spectacular spiritual gift does not in any way indicate a superior spiritual status.

c. There is no excuse for an inferiority complex because you have an obscure spiritual gift. In fact, an obscure spiritual gift, like helps or mercy, does not indicate an inferior spiritual status.

d. Whatever spiritual gift we have is a matter of the sovereignty of God. Therefore, we cannot complain about our spiritual gift. It is the will of God, not ours. We did not earn it, deserve it, or work for it. It is strictly the function of the sovereignty of God.

7. The principle of spiritual gifts.
 - a. All spiritual gifts are necessary for the function of the body of Christ, and they require faithfulness in the execution of the protocol plan of God for their proper function.
 - b. Some spiritual gifts have to be recognized by the possessor, that is, the communication gifts, because they require extensive training and preparation.
 - c. Other spiritual gifts, however, do not have to be recognized or identified, since they function automatically under spiritual growth.
 - d. All spiritual gifts function in maximum effectiveness under spiritual adulthood, beginning at spiritual self-esteem.
 - e. Regardless of spiritual growth, no spiritual gift can function apart from the filling of the Holy Spirit. Therefore, we have the mandates of Ephesians 5:18 and Gal 5:16.
 - f. There are two categories of arrogance related to spiritual gifts.
 - (1) The superiority complex because of the possession of a spectacular gift.
 - (2) The inferiority complex because of the possession of an obscure spiritual gift.
 - g. Since the Holy Spirit assigned these spiritual gifts at salvation, there is no place for human merit, or assigning any greatness or arrogance to your spiritual gift.
 - h. Under computer assets, every believer still has equal privilege and equal opportunity for the fulfillment of the protocol plan of God and the distribution of his escrow blessings for both time and eternity regardless of whatever spiritual gift he may possess.
8. Verse 19, "In fact, if they were all one part, where would the body be?" All spiritual gifts are necessary for the function of the body of Christ as the royal family of God.
9. Verse 20, "Now there are many parts [spiritual gifts], but one body." Regardless of spiritual gift, every believer is royal family of God with equal privileges and equal opportunities under his portfolio of invisible assets. The only differences are personnel differences, the third category of assets in the portfolio of invisible assets.
10. Verse 21 takes up the case of brother eye with the gift of pastor-teacher and brother hand, who has some obvious gift such as administrative leadership. "The eye cannot say to the hand, 'I do not need you!' And the head [Jesus Christ] cannot say to the feet, 'I do not need you!'"
 - a. In other words, no pastor is an island to himself. No pastor can function effectively in the communication of Bible doctrine without the function of administrative gifts.

b. The last half of verse 21 is really something. The head refers to our Lord Jesus Christ, as in Ephesians 1:22, 4:15, 5:23, and Colossians 1:18.

c. The feet here refers to the invisible or non-spectacular gifts, such as the gifts of service, helps, giving, showing mercy. Even Jesus Christ cannot say to the least of all spiritual gifts "I do not need you!" He cannot say to any part of the body, "I do not need you!" Therefore, every spiritual gift has significance in the body of Christ.

d. God has a purpose for each one of us.

11. 1Corinthians 12:22-25 teaches the importance of obscure spiritual gifts. Verse 26-27 teaches the importance of teamwork in spiritual gifts. Verse 28-30 teaches the perspective of spiritual gifts. Verse 31 is a transitional verse into the doctrine of Virtue-Love, as the answer to any apparent inequalities in spiritual gifts.

J. Questions About Spiritual Gifts.

1. What happens to the male believer who has the gift of pastor- teacher and does not identify it or recognize it? Surely there are more men who have this gift than are functioning in churches or on the mission field or in some Bible teaching situation. Answer: This believer functions without a spiritual gift. If he doesn't recognize his gift of pastor-teacher in his own life, that means there is no other spiritual gift under which he can function. God replaces him with another male believer who has not only identified his gift, but has spent the necessary years in preparation for the function of this communication gift.

2. What happens to the carnal Christian? Obviously his spiritual gift does not function. Answer: The carnal Christian loses the blessing and the production associated with that gift. He spends a lifetime in self-induced misery related to the law of volitional responsibility, plus he suffers under the three categories of divine discipline: warning, intensive, and dying discipline.

3. When does the spiritual gift begin to function? Answer: When the believer has momentum in the protocol plan of God. Maximum function occurs in spiritual adulthood. It requires the filling of the Spirit and spiritual growth from the perception of Bible doctrine. The communication and administrative gifts require identification. But the obscure gifts, by and large, function without identification.

4. What happens when the believer does not function under his spiritual gift? Answer: He is replaced by a believer who has the same or a similar spiritual gift.

Lesson #354

354 03/05/1978 Romans 12:6 Doctrine of spiritual gifts (pts. 5–7); perspective, function and abuse of spiritual gifts

Most of the notes will be in the previous lesson under the doctrine of spiritual gifts.

It all began back in v. 8:28 which is for mature believers only. This good is broken down into the [X]+[Y]+[Z] = Good Condemnation must precede salvation. Hope is not ignorant anticipation of a possible good future event, but it is a confident expectation. Between Romans 8:28 we have a parenthesis. Romans 9–11 is going to be all about Israel. We have skipped over those chapters.

We have no right to tell Rhodesia or South Africa how to run their business; and we do not tell Israel how to run their own business either. We are functioning under good and evil when we try to interfere with other nations.

Texas was coerced into adhering to federal speed limit laws by withholding federal funds.

When groups develop a bloc, this ends up being an attack on human freedom.

Romans 12:6 And we are having different gifts according to the grace having been given to us: if prophecy, according to the proportion of the faith;...

Lesson #355

355 03/05/1978 Romans 12:6 Doctrine of spiritual gifts (pt. 8a): temporary; doctrine of the gift of tongues (pt. 1–5)

A small amount of time was spent on the Doctrine of spiritual gifts, two lessons back.

Bob will cover the gift of tongues and then he will return to the doctrine of spiritual gifts.

There is no reason for denominations. It is not legitimized by the New Testament. The Roman church does not believe in privacy. They reject the privacy of the priesthood.

Bob dated a Catholic girl; and his father told him that he needed to watch his actions, because she would talk about it to her priest. That is when Bob first learned about there being no privacy among Catholics.

The gift of Tongues is covered by Bob in a different manner than is found in either doctrine from NB1 (no doctrine given in NB2).

Tongues were used to evangelize Jews who spoke different languages than Hebrew. People who did not speak the language of some of those in his audience would speak that language and give them the gospel message. This was a temporary gift.

Emotion has no relationship to the function of the Holy Spirit in the function of the believer in the Church Age. The Holy Spirit is related to rational cosmic system; and doctrinal perception. It is your rational and spiritual worship.

This was prophesied back in Isaiah. People had a lot of extra time on their hands and they became drunks. Their drunken speech was used to tell the people a message. The people would fall into decline, meaning the nation would be destroyed, the gift of tongues would become a warning, when people warned them of judgment but speaking to them in gentile languages.

Isaiah 28 was quoted in 1Corinthians 14:21ff. I will speak to this people with strange tongues, but even so, they will not listen to me. This was a system to evangelize Jews who no longer believed in the Revealed God.

The fulfillment of the prophecy takes place in Acts 2. When Jews came back to Jerusalem, they had a difficult time getting meals and places to stay, as they no longer spoke Hebrew. They spoke other languages. They heard the Galileans speak their languages and this surprised them.

There were also those there who did not recognize the other languages being spoken, so they thought that the disciples might be drunk, but why so early in the morning?

There is no emotionalism in Acts 2.

There was a gentile Pentecost in Acts 10. The Jewish believers who came with Peter were amazed that this gift of the Holy Spirit had been poured out on gentiles as well.

Acts 19 is about believers from the ministry of John. They were brought into the Church Age through the Holy Spirit.

1Corinthians 13:8, 10 the gift of tongues was withdrawn. There are two different verbs. The temporary gifts would end in A.D. 96; but tongues would end prior to that. The completed thing would be the canon of Scripture. Tongues is a very minor gift; a side-gift. Not as important as the other gifts.

1977 Romans

Lesson #356

356 03/06/1978 Romans 12:6b Book: "How to Cure Yourself of Positive Thinking" (by Donald G. Smith); doctrines of tongues (6–9) and spiritual gifts (8b): permanent

Bob begins with the book above and reading passages from it. Positive thinking has come to accept virtually everything, promising so much and delivering virtually nothing. First chapter is called Good is the Opposite of Bad.

The gift of tongues will be continued here. The spiritual gifts will look back to Lesson #353.

Tongues are not a sign of spirituality, tongues are not an indication of the baptism of the Spirit. It is the least of all spiritual gifts. 1Corinthians 14 demands that it be strictly regulated. It is the most inferior gift. 2Thessalonians 2:10 for the mystery of lawlessness is already at work, only He that restrains will do so until He is taken out of the way.

Romans 12:6 And we are having different gifts according to the grace having been given to us: if prophecy, according to the proportion of the faith;...

The adjective diaphoros (διάφορος) [pronounced dee-AF-or-oss] actually means “that differ,” and it indicates two things: a) we have different spiritual gifts; b) we have differences within the framework of common spiritual gifts. No two pastors have exactly the same gift, no two evangelists, no two administrators. We have different gifts as to categories and we have differences within a specific category. Then kata plus the accusative singular of charis (χάρις) [pronounced KHAHR-ic]. In other words, whatever gift we have and to what degree of function, and to what degree it is the total picture of a gift, that gift is still grace. We didn’t earn it; we didn’t deserve it; we didn’t work for it.

The grace is the key. God the Holy Spirit knows what He is doing; and He provides this gift, on the basis of grace. No one can claim any superiority because they have this gift, and others do not.

Next is the aorist passive participle from didōmi (δίδωμι) [pronounced dihd-OH-mee]—“has been given,” but because this is a gnomic aorist tense it is translated simply “given.” The gnomic aorist is used for a doctrine which is so fixed in its certainty, so axiomatic in its character, that it is described in the aorist as though it were an actual occurrence. This is an idiom and it is translated by the English present tense. The passive voice: the believer receives the action of the verb at salvation. The participle is circumstantial. With this is the dative plural indirect object from the personal pronoun egó (ἐγώ) [pronounced ehg-OH]—“to us.” This is also a dative of advantage. It is to the advantage of the entire body of Christ to have these specific gifts. “And since we have gifts that differ according to the grace given to us.” (Romans 12:6a-b)

This phrase has three factors related to its interpretation: a) Every believer has a spiritual gift; b) Every believer has a different spiritual gift; c) All spiritual gifts have the same source.

357 03/07/1978 Romans 12:6c Three factors re spiritual gifts; inferiority, race, middle class and freedom; gift of prophecy

Only God the Holy Spirit knows how many believers are located here or there on the earth; and in any geographical location. Every local church ordained of God has in that church balance of spiritual gifts. There is never an over-balance. There are not too many generals or non-coms, etc. For every authority gift, it takes many in support to make the gift function (like blockers for a quarterback). When the Holy Spirit makes a judgment call, we are never to make a disparaging evaluation of this. There is no such thing as an unnecessary spiritual gift; nor is there any inferiority to be inferred by the distribution of spiritual gifts. This sort of evaluation comes from the tongues crowd. We are prepared for this because we have studied the doctrine of differences between believers.

There is no such thing as racial inferiority or racial superiority. There is no such thing as a pure race. The Welsh and the Scots claim to be Celtic, but they are only partially Celtic. The Celtic peoples were strewn out throughout the ancient world. The Galatians and Scots and Welsh of the ancient world were Celtic. There is no such thing as a pure racial strain in the world today. Being a part of a superior or inferior race has no meaning today. Now the Marxists often try to use race in order to break countries apart (especially like the United States). Freedom guarantees rights; but these rights must be earned. Most revolutions are started by generally responsible people. France revolution was started by the middle class. The Bourgeois simply wanted their rights; but the very principle of resorting to violence destroyed them. Another group eventually took over. If there is just one act of violence, this destroys their cause. Then, a greater tyranny took over than the existing tyranny.

The Russian revolution uses the middle class capitalist system; and they seek to destroy the middle class wherever freedom exists. In England, the middle class has almost been destroyed. Labor has just about destroyed their government. Voting out Churchill was the great mistake.

Middle class in west Germany is still strong. Communism destroys the middle class. The system of free enterprise comes from the middle class. Freedom without free enterprise is not freedom.

There is no inferiority of race or job function or social function that is, in any way, a handicap to us. As we approach the present subject of spiritual gifts; there is a possibility that you may sit down in Berachah Church and think, "My spiritual gift implies inferiority. I don't have a gift with any authority." Do not be uncomfortable. Some of you may never know your spiritual gift until you reach a certain stage of advance. A spiritual gift sometimes requires preparation, like the gift of pastor-teacher.

Advance to maturity is always key. People are often arrogant about this or that; but arrogance is a dangerous thing. They assume themselves to be superior to other believers. In reality, they have reduced themselves to being inferiority. There are many gifts; and there are variations within the gifts of the same kind.

Some of you have an inferiority complex and you need to lose that. Every believer must function within the realm of his own spiritual gift and not in any other. A pastor who really has the gift of helps should not be a pastor-teacher. An evangelist should not be a pastor-teacher. Some women could teach a few children much better than the pastor-teacher. If Bob was to teach a few children in prep school, he would be completely out of his depth.

Destructive to capitalism are a lack of good servants. Many people who are working and laboring right now dream of a home; but when you destroy natural human distinctions, you destroy the opportunity for freedom. When you reduce everything to a concrete jungle, you destroy freedom and advancement.

We do not function in the gift that we admire, but in the sphere of the gift which we have received.

Blessing comes from maturity; not from the use of your spiritual gift.

The larger the church, the greater opportunity for the function of the many spiritual gifts in that locality.

The third proposition is, all spiritual gifts have the same source. The principle is that the gift is given by the Holy Spirit on the basis of grace. Spiritual gifts do not indicate one's spiritual status.

Bob is going to select the gift of prophecy.

Romans 12:6 And we are having different gifts according to the grace having been given to us: if prophecy, according to the proportion of the faith;... (BLB)

“whether prophecy” – εἴτε (εἴτε) [pronounced I-teh], which combines the conditional particle εἰ (εἰ) [pronounced I] with the enclitic particle τε, and it is used to connect the parts of sentences which are closely related. We translate it “if prophecy” – the accusative singular of προφητεία (προφητεία) [pronounced prof-ay-TIE-ah]. This is an accusative of general reference, without the infinitive. There is the subject of the infinitive but not the infinitive, a new type of ellipsis which demands the aorist active infinitive from the verb prophēteúō (προφητεύω) [pronounced pro-fay-TWO-oh] to go with the accusative singular of general reference προφητεία (προφητεία) [pronounced prof-ay-TIE-ah]. The missing aorist active infinitive from prophēteúō (προφητεύω) [pronounced pro-fay-TWO-oh] is used as the imperative infinitive and therefore is translated “if prophecy, prophecy.” If the gift exists, use it. This imperative demands spiritual advance, the filling of the Spirit and the daily function of GAP.

The gift of prophecy mentioned here was a temporary gift which had two connotations: foretelling (accurate dealing with the future) and forthtelling (accurate communication of doctrine). Before the canon of Scripture was completed certain male believers under this gift received messages from God which were compatible with doctrine not yet written. In other words, how did believers in the early church know the content of Revelation before it was written. They knew it from the gift of prophecy. It not only predicted future events such as the Tribulation but it also told about things that had not yet been written in the canon of Scripture, and that is forthtelling. Foretelling is predicting; forthtelling is preaching. The gift was two-fold in this sense. This gift was second in importance only to apostleship. In 1 Corinthians 14, this gift was contrasted with tongues. Agabus was one who warned Paul not to go to Jerusalem. He was outside the will of God. This gift was open to even ladies. They could not teach; but they could foretell the future. Prophets could fail like other human beings, but when their gift functioned, they were infallible. The gift would be completely and totally accurate.

Let's say that someone has the gift of helps, but you are aware of sins they have committed. If they offer you help, then you accept that help, even if they are known to be flawed. Do not associate one's spiritual gift with one's flaws and failings. Evangelists are often subject to judgment and rejection.

In the New Testament, those with the gift of prophecy, never taught error. This was listed high of the spiritual gifts, because God was still giving revelation.

1977 Romans

Lesson #358

358 03/08/1978 Romans 12:6d–7 Spiritual gifts of service and pastor–teacher: acquisition, purpose, function and authority; volition

Romans 12:6 And we are having different gifts according to the grace having been given to us: if prophecy, according to the proportion of the faith;... (BLB)

“let us prophecy according to the proportion of faith” – the prepositional phrase kata plus the accusative of analogía (ἀναλογία) [pronounced an-al-og-EE-ah] which means “right relationship [or, proportion],” and it is correctly translated “in agreement with.” “In agreement with” connotes the correspondence of a right relationship, hence the function of the gift of prophecy must stand in right relationship with Bible doctrine, which is the objective content of the Word of God. Plus the descriptive genitive singular from pistis (πίστις) [pronounced PIHS-tihz] with the generic use of the definite article tís (τίς) [pronounced tihç]—“in agreement with the doctrine.”

Romans 12:6 And since we have gifts that differ according to the grace given to us, if prophecy, then prophecy in agreement with the doctrine...

Principle: No spiritual gift was ever designed to function apart from Bible doctrine, or in denial or rejection of doctrine.

Romans 12:7 ...or service, in the service; or teaching, in the teaching;...

Verse 7 – other gifts specified: “or ministry, on ministering.” The Greek particle eíte (εἴτε) [pronounced I-teh] is used to connect parts of a sentence which are closely related. With it is the accusative singular of the noun diakonia (διακονία) [pronounced dee-ak-on-EE-ah], referring here to a spiritual gift of service, aid, support, charity. It is also used for the office of deacon but not the gifts that are necessary for that office. Its original use was for a waiter waiting on tables, but it also includes spiritual service. Hence, it refers to the spiritual gift of service or helping in this context. There are many variations and distinctions within the framework of this particular gift. The elliptical nature of this sentence requires the aorist active infinitive of diakoneô (διακονέω) [pronounced dee-ak-on-EH-oh] since we have an accusative of general reference. The infinitive is used as the imperative, and so the correct translation: “If service, then serve.” Then a prepositional phrase, en (ἐν) [pronounced en] plus the locative of the definite article plus the locative singular of diakonia (διακονία) [pronounced dee-ak-on-EE-ah], this time the object of the preposition and should be translated “in the gift of service”—“If service, then service in the gift of service.” If that is your spiritual gift, then use it.” Every believer should function within the framework of his spiritual gift and this is accomplished through the filling of the Spirit and through the function of Bible doctrine. All spiritual gifts function best at maturity and obviously this one is no exception.

“or he that teacheth, on teaching” – the articular present active participle from didaskō (διδάσκω) [pronounced did-AS-koh], used for a spiritual gift, it means to teach and is a reference here to the gift of pastor-teacher if the gift is teaching. The present active participle is used here as a noun and this is not unusual in the Koine Greek. Then en (ἐν) [pronounced en] plus the locative of didaskalia (διδασκαλία) [pronounced dee-dask-ah-LEE-ah/did-as-kal-EE-ah], and it means to function within the sphere of your spiritual gift.

Romans 12:7 ...if service, then serve in the gift of service; if teaching, then teach in the gift of teaching.

Bob provides an excellent chat on the gift of pastor-teacher; and the concepts of authority and freedom. It is excellent.

Bob seemed about to teach the doctrine of pastor-teacher. There are a few doctrines on the pastor-teacher, but I am not sure exactly which one Bob is using here.

Bob recounts his father's reaction to him becoming a Christian. Worse for Bob and his father when his sister became a Christian. Then his mother believed in Christ. Bob's father must have had a really bad experience, because he did not get over his negative volition until the final week of his life.

It is Bob's job to teach the Word of God accurately. It is up to us to show up or not; and to listen or not, and to believe or not.

The gift of pastor-teacher is bestowed by the Holy Spirit, apart from any merit.

There are several words for pastor-teacher, and Bob will skip that.

It is good for the pastor to know his job; and for the congregation. Counseling is not the job of a pastor-teacher. Bob could even fix some of Berachah's weirdos.

Because doctrine is in the Jesus. I think Ephesians 3:22?

1Peter 5:2 feeding the flock of God is the pastor's main job. There must be enthusiasm toward the Word.

There is no such thing as the pastoral personality.

1977 Romans

Lesson #359

359 03/09/1978 Romans 12:8 Spiritual gifts of counseling, giving and acts of mercy; doctrine of giving; eight principles of gifts

Romans 12:8 ...or exhorting, in the exhortation; giving, in generosity; leading, in diligence; showing mercy, in cheerfulness. (BLB)

Verse 8 – “Or he that exhorteth, on exhortation” is an incorrect translation for this passage, not that the word does not mean exhortation but it has other meanings that are much more pertinent to the context. We are still dealing with spiritual gifts and exhortation is a spiritual gift. The conjunction εἴτε (εἴτε) [pronounced I-teh] introduces a subordinate clause, but in Classical Greek because of ellipsis it also used to indicate a finite verb where a finite verb does not exist. This is the Classical Greek use here, it has the connotation of introducing a verb that is not written down.

The articular present active participle of parakaleō (παρακαλέω) [pronounced pahr-ahk-ahl-EH-oh] introduces the spiritual gift. It means to call to one’s side for the purpose of comfort, of encouragement. Therefore it is used here for the gift of counseling rather than what has been commonly designated as the gift of exhortation. In reality there is no gift of exhortation. Exhortation is a part of the gift of pastor-teacher, there is no separate gift of exhortation. It should be translated. “If counseling.” The word for “counseling” here means comfort and encouragement, and this is a spiritual gift. Then the prepositional phrase ἐν (ἐν) [pronounced eh] plus the locative singular of the definite article used to designate the gift, plus the locative singular of paraklêsis (παράκλησις) [pronounced par-AK-lay-sis]. “If counseling, then counsel in the sphere of counseling.” This gift belongs to a very limited number of believers by comparison to others. A counselor has free time and the patience.

“he that giveth, let him do it with simplicity” – this is not about the giving of the congregation as a whole, it is about the gift of giving. The articular present active participle from metadidōmi (μεταδίδωμι) [pronounced met-ad-IHD-oh-mee] [meta = intensifies the verb; didōmi (δίδωμι) [pronounced dihd-OH-mee] = to give]. Sometimes it means “share” because meta also means “with,” but it means to impart, to share, to give a share. It means here that you are not responsible as an individual to support a local church by yourself, you are only one of those sharing in that responsibility. When it is used of a spiritual gift then the intensive use is the meaning here and it means the gift of giving which belongs to a few, but not a lot. They may be rich or they may be poor, or somewhere between rich and poor. This does not apply to those who give to the church with the idea that they ought to have some say in matters.

The retroactive progressive present denotes what has begun in the past and continues into the present time under the function of the gift of giving. The active voice: believers with the gift of giving produce the action of the verb. This gift must be distinguished from the personal responsibility of every believer who gives as a commemoration of grace in the function of worship, who is expressing his priesthood in worship. This is not a solicitation to worship but merely an explanation of the spiritual gift. The participle is a circumstantial participle. Then the prepositional phrase which indicates the sphere, en (ἐν) [pronounced en] plus the instrumental of haplótēs (ἀπλότης) [pronounced hap-LOT-ace] which means generosity—“with generosity.”

Spiritual Gift of Giving

1. The function of spiritual giving must be distinguished from ordinary giving in a congregation, or even extraordinary giving in a congregation. The gift is sovereignly bestowed by the Holy Spirit at salvation without regard to financial status. It functions under the filling of the Holy Spirit plus maximum doctrine resident in the soul.
2. The more the believer advances in the spiritual life the greater the function of his spiritual gift, whatever it is, and the greater blessing he is to the royal family of God for all spiritual gifts are necessary for the function of the body of Christ.
3. The money necessary for the operation of the local church does not all come from this gift, for giving is an expression of worship, a commemoration of grace, and indicative of the mental attitude motivation of individual members of the royal family.
4. In this context the subject is not the giving of the royal family but the function of the special spiritual gift—the gift of giving which belongs to some believers but not all believers.
5. The doctrine of giving therefore must always be distinguished from the gift of giving. The doctrine of giving belongs to all believers; the gift of giving belongs to some believers.
6. In the doctrine of giving for all believers the object is giving for the local church as an expression of worship.
7. The gift of giving means not only giving to a local church but sharing with needy persons and charitable organizations.
8. The doctrine of giving refers to the individual believer functioning as a royal priest in giving to his specific local church.
9. There is no tithing for the Church Age. That was income tax.
10. The Old Testament principle of giving is not tithing. Giving when one has been blessed.

“he that ruleth with diligence” – the articular present middle participle from proístēmi (προϊστήμι) [pronounced pro-IHS-tay-mee] means to stand in the front, to be at the head, to direct, or to manage. It means to manage administration in this verse. The present tense is a perfective present, it denotes a continuation of existing results. This refers to the fact that at salvation certain believers were given the gift of administrative management which is now emphasized as a present reality in a local church. The middle voice is the indirect middle, emphasizing the agent—a deacon ordinarily—as an administrative manager in a local church as producing the action of the verb. The circumstantial participle means that God provides this gift in enough quantity to supply every local church which is functioning legitimately as a local church. Then the prepositional phrase en (ἐν) [pronounced en] plus the instrumental from spoudê (σπουδή) [pronounced spoo-DAY]—“with diligence.” This spiritual gift not only functions on the board of deacons but in every administrative operation of the local church.

“he that sheweth mercy, with cheerfulness” – the articular present active participle from ēleeō (ἐλέεω) [pronounced ehl-eh-EH-oh] means to perform an act of mercy. It is a spiritual gift. The present tense is the perfective present denoting the continuation of existing results. This gift will always be operative during the Church Age. The active voice: the believer with this spiritual gift produces the action of the verb. With this is the prepositional phrase, en (ἐν) [pronounced en] plus the instrumental from hilarótēs (ἡλαρότης) [pronounced hil-ar-OT-ace], meaning cheerfulness, gladness or graciousness. This implies that the gift of performing acts of mercy demands some spiritual advance for its correct and proper function. This gift connotes operation apart from graciousness. Graciousness can be an attribute of any believer who advanced to a certain point. Graciousness is an attribute; this is a gift, although it includes graciousness. These gifts could be associated with arrogance; and these are with graciousness.

Romans 12:8 If counseling, then counsel in the gift of counseling; he who gives, with generosity; he who manages administration, with diligence; he who performs acts of mercy, with graciousness.

Spiritual advance is rewarded in time. Functioning in one’s own spiritual gift is not rewarded.

Principle

1. This passage does not attempt to enumerate spiritual gifts but rather to emphasize function within one’s sphere of spiritual gift. The emphasis is on function, and the command to function means the advance to maturity. For again, all spiritual gifts function best in maturity.
2. To attempt to cultivate activity in the sphere of someone else’s spiritual gift is to question the wisdom and the judgment of God the Holy Spirit. For example, to assume the responsibility of pastor-teacher without the gift. Everyone has his own spiritual gift.
3. Every believer normally functions in the sphere of his own spiritual gift when he advances to maturity through maximum doctrine resident in the soul.
4. Here is the desirability of maturity adjustment to the justice of God, namely every believer functioning in the sphere of his own spiritual gift, and so functioning as to sustain the body of Christ to the maximum in that generation.
5. This passage also anticipates the abuse of spiritual gifts such as tongues, miracles, healing. This passage applies to these gifts back then; but these gifts no longer exist.
6. Through the distribution of spiritual gifts each believer at salvation is assigned a sphere of influence and operation.

7. The assignment is made by God the Holy Spirit and cannot be cultivated or acquired through human talent, ability, works, changes in personality, or systems of morality.
8. The assignment of spiritual gifts at salvation is just another argument from the Scripture that God intends for every believer to attain spiritual maturity from the perception of Bible doctrine. The whole thrust of teaching spiritual gifts is not so that you can recognize and identify your gift, but to advance to maturity where your gift becomes operational.

Lesson #360

360 03/10/1978 Romans 12:9 Love the brethren; technical vocabulary; despise evil and adhere to good; royal family honor code

Marks of the True Christian

Romans 12:9 Let love be unfeigned: abhorring evil, cleaving to good,... (BLB)

This love is our overall attitude toward life and other believers.

Verse 9 – “Let love be without dissimulation.” The nominative singular subject agápē (ἀγάπη) [pronounced ag-AH-pay], with the definite article used as a possessive pronoun.

We have all had a negative attitude toward other people and other believers. We slow down here, because this is going to be all about practical application.

Being nice to a large bunch of dummies that you do not like; and we are called to love such without being a hypocrite. We need to have love with no hangups and with no hypocrisy.

Bob has an astounding list of things that make women mad; and Bob has it under a file marked top secret.

Love and the capacity for love requires not just a large vocabulary but a thinking vocabulary. You may have thousands of dollars invested in cameras; and yet you are upset with some who buys golf clubs.

The elliptical nature of this passage omits the verb here, but several verbs could be inserted to clarify the English translation—like, “should be” or “must function.” The predicate nominative is from the compound adjective [pronounced an-oo-POK-ree-toss] [a = a negative; hupocritos = to be an actor or a hypocrite] which means non-hypocritical or without hypocrisy. Love which puts on the facade of hypocrisy has no real mental attitude—no capacity for love, no relaxed mental attitude. In other words, to be able to face people, talk to people, be with people and be relaxed; no hang-ups. In love it is not what you do but what you think, and therefore love is one of the great things in life when you put the cart after the horse: think, then do. Love is a system of thought and lack of love is lack of thought. Doing is a reflection of thinking when no hypocrisy is involved. To pretend to be friendly and to have a mental attitude of jealousy or hatred, etc. is sheer hypocrisy. Love from the filling of the Spirit becomes the motivator in the Christian way of life. “Let your love be without hypocrisy” is not talking here about specific people, it is talking about love as a general status quo. This means that you are a relaxed person, and objective person in your thinking, and you do not have any hang-ups, bitterness, antagonism, or jealousy toward another member of the human race.

Some of your most difficult periods of time come from people who say, “I love you.”

Pseudo love is hypocrisy and inordinate affection.

“Abhor that which is evil” – the nominative masculine plural present active participle from the compound verb apostugéō (ἀποστυγέω) [pronounced ap-os-toog-EH-oh] [ἀπό (ἀπό) [pronounced aw-PO] = from; stugeō = to hate] which means to hate from the original source, therefore to detest, to loathe, to shrink from something with hatred, to avoid something because you hate it. The present tense is a perfective present, it denotes the continuation of existing results. It refers to a fact which has come to be in the past [perception of evil] but emphasizes it as a present reality, therefore detesting evil. The active voice: the believer must produce the action of the verb. The participle is used as an imperative—a peculiarity of the Koine Greek. The object of our hatred, abhorrence, is the accusative singular direct object from ponēros (πονηρός) [pronounced pon-ay-ROS] which along with kakós (κακός) [pronounced kak-OSS] is used for “evil.” Plus the generic use of the definite article representing evil as a category separate from all other categories—“Detest the evil.” Evil is the policy of Satan as the ruler of this world; evil is the function of the old sin nature as the ruler of life.

“cleave to that which is good” – present middle participle from the verb kollaō (κολλάω) [pronounced kohl-LAH-oh]. The word means to glue, to weld together, to unite, to copulate. In 1 Corinthians 6:16 it means to associate in intimate terms with someone so that you cling to them. In the New Testament this verb is not found in the active voice, only in the middle and passive voice. The verb is used for sexual intercourse, as in Ephesians 5:31. But this is not talking about sex here in this verse, it is talking about a principle. When the object of kollaō (κολλάω) [pronounced kohl-LAH-oh] is a person it refers to sex, but if the object of the verb is a principle it means to adhere. The present tense is a retroactive progressive present. It denotes here what happened in the past with positive volition toward doctrine and continues into the present time with that same positive volition toward Bible doctrine. The middle voice is the indirect middle in which the agent, the positive believer toward doctrine, produces the action of the verb rather than participating in the results of the action. This is, again, the imperative participle.

The object is the dative singular indirect object from the adjective agathos (ἀγαθός) [pronounced ag-ath-OSS], used for good of intrinsic value: “adhere to the good.”

Romans 12:9 You love must be non-hypocritical. Despise the evil; adhere to the good.

“The good” is used three ways in the context. It refers to the advance to maturity through the daily function of GAP, and therefore it refers first of all to Bible doctrine. It refers not only to doctrine but what doctrine produces; it refers to the royal family honor code. It refers to the plan of God, $X + Y + Z = \text{good}$.

In Romans 12:2, good was used for the Royal Family Honor Code.

Principle

1. The last command, “Adhere to the good,” refers here to the advance to maturity through the daily function of GAP and resultant Bible doctrine resident in the soul. Actually, the good here blends the royal family honor code with the equation of imputation.
2. The good of this part of Romans refers to three things: Bible doctrine, the royal family honor code, the equation of imputation.
3. The command to adhere to the good refers to giving Bible doctrine # 1 priority in the life: the first common sense application of the Christian life. This is the only way to survive distractions to doctrine.
4. Adhere to the good refers to the function of the royal family of God honor code, which includes three basic factors: privacy of the priesthood as the basis of spiritual freedom—live and let live; compatibility with the grace policy of the justice of God; total dependence upon the integrity of God.

Our love for other believers is based upon the fact that God’s righteousness is in the soul of that cluck that you cannot stand. God respects the righteousness in them and in you; and you must respect it as well.

Believers are to live their own lives without interference. Christian sensitivity due to the righteousness which was imputed to each believer.

Divine blessing from the justice of God is measured in terms of the amount of Bible doctrine found in your soul. Without that doctrine in your soul, you have no capacity for blessing. All forms of Christian production, whether legitimate or stuff that believers dreamed up, production does not bring blessing from God. Human giving, human morality etc. does not bring divine blessing to you. This blessing comes to the believer when that believer has capacity to appreciate it.

All of your production is set aside. Those are production functions which are done in the name of your ambassadorship. By giving #1 priority to Bible doctrine, you eventually adhere to the good.

5. The Royal Family Honor Code keeps the believer from running down other believers.
6. We are to avoid mental attitude sins toward others and verbal sins.
7. Adhere to the good is the function of gap.

8. Adhere to the good is the attainment of the 6th imputation in time and the 7th imputation in eternity. Despise the evil = adhering to the good. The advance to maturity is the only thing by which we are blessed. Love without hypocrisy is freedom from arrogance and jealousy and hatred and bitterness or any other antagonistic thought pattern. Freedom from verbal sins as well.

You cannot be in attendance and take in doctrine if you are snarling at someone three rows down.

1977 Romans

Lesson #361

361 03/12/1978 Romans 12:10 Basis of brotherly love: +R, privacy, relaxed mental attitude and production; doctrine of ambassadorship (revised)

Romans 12:10 ...devoted to one another in brotherly love, esteeming one another in honor,... (BLB)

Verse 10 – “Be kindly affectioned one to another with brotherly love.” The Greek sentence begins with the word “brotherly love,” the dative of reference singular from philadelphía (φιλαδελφία) [pronounced fil-ad-el-FEE-ah]. The verse actually begins with the phrase, “With reference to your brotherly love.” The definite article used as a personal pronoun precedes it. This brotherly love is simply a relaxed mental attitude toward those of the royal family of God, the attitude which excludes any mental attitude sins toward others and adds to that the principle of the privacy of the other believer. There is no verb in this sentence and therefore the present active imperative of the verb to be is inserted, eimi (εἶμι) [pronounced eye-ME]—“be.” Then the predicate nominative plural from the compound adjective philóstorgos (φιλόστοργος) [pronounced fil-OSS-tor-goss] [philos (φίλος) [pronounced FEE-loss] = love; storgê (στογη) [pronounced STOHR-ghay] = natural affection] which means here “devoted.” This is in the sense of family affection. Plus the prepositional phrase indicating that this is a relationship with other believers: eis (εἰς) [pronounced ICE] plus the accusative plural from the reciprocal pronoun allêlôn (ἀλλήλων) [pronounced al-LAY-lohn]—“to each other.”

Principle: Brotherly love in the royal family of God is not demonstrative, not emotional, not friendly. It is a recognition of two things: the imputation of divine righteousness at salvation and respect for that righteousness as a part of the application. And it is recognition of the privacy of the royal priesthood, therefore the fulfilling of the royal family honor code. This is not hypocrisy, instead it is a relaxed mental attitude toward other believers.

“in honor preferring one another” – the dative singular of reference from timê (τιμή, ἥς, ἡ) [pronounced tih-MAY or tee-MAY], and should be translated “with reference to honor.” Every believer has honor because of imputed righteousness. The royal family honor code has many principles. This is the principle of live and let live. Then a present middle participle from the verb proëgéomai (προηγέομαι) [pronounced pro-ay-GEH-om-ahee] [pro = before; hêgeomai (ἡγέομαι) [pronounced hayg-EH-ohm-ahee] = to lead, to take the lead] means to esteem, to esteem someone more highly than yourself or to simply esteem highly—“let each one esteem others more highly than self.” The present tense is a retroactive progressive present, it denotes what has happened in the past when the believer begins to understand the royal family honor code and to function under it in the ministry of the Spirit. The middle voice: this is a deponent verb, middle in form and active in meaning. The believers as royal family produces the action of the verb in the function of the honor code.

A friendly church often invades your privacy. Having brotherly love allows you function in privacy in the church. And there is no authorization to break up into little cells. Adult Sunday School classes are unnecessary. There is no authorization for most of the things which take place in the local church. We do not attend a local church so that everyone knows our business. Live and let live is brotherly love.

The only thing that we have in common is, we have God’s indwelling righteousness of God. We all have personalities and sometimes, those personalities rub others the wrong way.

Bob has nothing to with the private lives of T&P; and it works right because management deals with them without interfering with their privacy.

God loves us and nothing is hidden from Him. God loves His righteousness; and His righteousness is inside of us. We love other believers because we respect the righteousness of God wherever it is found.

You do not have to be nice to someone a few rows down. Brotherly love is not being nice to everyone.

The participle is the imperative use of the participle, it is an order. With this is the accusative plural direct object from the reciprocal pronoun allêlôn (ἀλλήλων) [pronounced al-LAY-lohn] meaning other members of the royal family of God. This is the antithesis of inordinate competition.

Romans 12:10 With reference to your brotherly love be devoted to each other; with reference to your honor esteem others more highly than yourself.

The imperative use of the participle is an idiom and it means to make it a matter of honor to give precedence to others.

Principle

1. The royal family honor code demands that each believer avoids maligning, judging, nitpicking, implacable criticism, trying to put down another member of the royal family of God.
2. There is no place for either mental attitude or verbal sins directed toward other believers.
3. Therefore each believer is honor bound by the code of the royal family to avoid gossip, maligning, judging, malicious criticism of another believer.

4. This excludes authority relationship such as parents to children, Christian management to labour, pastor to congregation.
5. Vengeance or getting even is prohibited by the royal family honor code.
6. There is no place for pettiness in the function of the honor code, no place for inordinate competition, no place for expression of hang-ups.
7. The very status of the royal family in the Church Age demands the honor code. In effect, the honor code is a super morality. It is a code in which deference and precedence is converted into the privacy of the royal priesthood.
8. The practical application of judicial imputation #2 is, then, the royal family honor code in which each believer respects the residence of God's righteousness in other believers by avoiding mental and verbal sins and therefore living and letting live.

The unbeliever is required to have morality. But we are under higher requirements.

Principle

1. No production in the Christian life is designed to obtain blessing from God.
2. All production is the function of the royal ambassadorship of the believer.
3. Therefore production in the Christian life is a manifestation of God's appointment of each believer in the status of royal ambassador.
4. All blessing from God is imputed from the attribute of justice to the attribute of divine righteousness.
5. Therefore, any form of production as a means of blessing is excluded.
6. The imputation of blessing in time occurs when the believer has the capacity for such blessing through the attainment of maturity adjustment to the justice of God.
7. Advance to maturity occurs only through grace perception of Bible doctrine.
8. Maximum accumulation of doctrine in the soul plus resident doctrine in the human spirit—this results in the construction of the ECS—produces the prerequisite for divine blessing as an imputation from the justice of God to the righteousness of God.
9. The royal family honor code excludes all forms of Christian works or production from being a source of divine blessing.
10. Nothing the believer does, legitimate or legalistic, can bring one blessing from God; for divine blessing is an imputation from God's perfect justice to God's perfect righteousness. Therefore such imputation glorifies God.
11. There are many Biblical commands to service and production, but these commands are related to the function of ambassadorship and not the means of blessing the believer.
12. It is therefore imperative to understand the believer's royal ambassadorship as a means of production and full time Christian service.
13. Christian production is not motivated for blessing from God, but Christian works and service are the result of the normal function of the believer's ambassadorship.
14. This means that all who are born again are in full time Christian service.

15. Full time Christian service, then, is not the decision of the believer but the appointment of God.
16. This appointment occurs at salvation and functions through the progress of the spiritual life.
17. Christian service and production is a sign of advance in the Christian life but not the means of advance.
18. Only Bible doctrine resident in the soul can advance the believer. Therefore to appreciate and understand the meaning of this verse 11 it is necessary to learn something about the ambassadorship of the believer.^[8]

Doctrine of Ambassadorship

Ephesians #1391 4/3/91; Ephesians #104 9/1/85; Romans #361 03/12/1978

A. Definition and Description.

1. An ambassador is a high ranking minister of state or a member of royalty sent to another state to represent his sovereign or country. By analogy we are spiritual aristocracy as members of the royal family of God, and Christ is the King who has sent us into a foreign country, the cosmic world.
2. At salvation, every believer enters the royal family of God through the baptism of the Holy Spirit, and at the same time he becomes a representative of the Lord Jesus Christ on earth. Ambassadorship stems from being in union with Christ, caused by the baptism of the Spirit.
3. Each Church Age believer is royal family of God representing the King of kings and Lord of lords during his tenure on this earth.
4. Therefore, two commissions are given the believer at salvation: the royal priesthood, which is a part of the equal privilege of election; and the royal ambassadorship, which is a part of the equal privilege of predestination. We represent ourselves before God and we represent God before men.
5. Ambassadorship emphasizes that every believer is in fulltime Christian service. However, there are different services.
6. Differences of function depends on differences of spiritual gifts, stages of spiritual growth, historical circumstances (prevalence of positive or negative volition), and environment at any given moment.
7. Common functions and services are all commanded by the Scripture, so there is no confusion between what your spiritual gift demands and those functions which are common to all believers, such as witnessing, prayer, and perception of doctrine. Ambassadorship is the fulfillment of the imperatives of production in the Bible.
8. In addition to the mandates of Scripture, there are many avenues of expressing your ambassadorship, such as utilizing the faith-rest drill and virtue-love as a problem solving device with emphasis on spiritual self-esteem. Spiritual self-esteem becomes the maximum expression of ambassadorship, a result of consistent residence in the divine dynasphere under the enabling power of the Holy Spirit and momentum from metabolized doctrine.

B. The Profile of the Ambassador.

1. An ambassador does not appoint himself. We are appointed by God Himself at the moment we believe in Jesus Christ. God also gives use the power and ability to handle the job.
2. The ambassador does not support himself. The Church Age believer, as an ambassador for Christ, is provided by logistical grace.
3. The ambassador's instructions are always in written form, so he has no doubt as to what he should do. We have the policies, problem solving devices, instructions, principles, doctrines, and concepts in written form in the Scripture.
4. The ambassador does not belong to the country to which he is sent. Our citizenship and home is in heaven. We are also citizens of a client nation to God.
5. The ambassador does not live in the foreign country for his own personal interest. We live here on earth solely to serve in the interest of our Lord. Therefore, we subordinate all personal interest to the function of our ambassadorship, which includes the attainment and function of the spiritual skills-filling of the Spirit, cognition of Bible doctrine, and execution of the protocol plan of God. Our production skills, which include our ambassadorship, are in place as of the moment of salvation, but are not effective until we develop spiritual skills.
6. The ambassador does not treat any insult to himself as personal. This is the royal ambassador's function in both spiritual self-esteem and impersonal love for all mankind. We tolerate others and hold no grudges. When you are insulted, treated unfairly, or ridiculed, you have tremendous problem solving devices. You have to have the spiritual strength to use these problem solving devices to leave the matter in the Lord's hands.
7. When an ambassador is recalled, his recall is tantamount to a declaration of war. This is analogous to the Rapture of the Church. The Tribulation is analogous to the period of war. When we are recalled from the earth, war will break out on the earth.

C. The royal ambassadorship is specialized and intensified in the gift of pastor-teacher.

1. All communication gifts (evangelists, apostles, pastor-teachers) become critical and specialized functions of the royal ambassadorship because they communicate spiritual truth. This is why Paul said in Ephesians 6:20, ...on behave of which [gospel] I am an ambassador in chains, that in this [proclaiming the mystery doctrine], I might communicate with confidence as I ought to speak.

2. 2Corinthians 5:20 Therefore, we are ambassadors to Christ, as though God were entreating through us, we beg you on behalf of Christ, be reconciled to God.

3. There is a special need for those who communicate doctrine to do so with confidence. That confidence cannot exist unless they are occupied with the person of Christ and have spiritual self-esteem, because they will be faced with constant negative volition from indifferent people. But with spiritual self-esteem the communicator speaks with confidence no matter what the attitude of his listeners.

4. Push button warfare will never destroy this world. Only God can destroy this planet.

D. The Royal Ambassadorship Related to Evangelism,

1. 2Corinthians 5:20 Therefore, we are ambassadors for Christ as though God were making His appeal through us. We invite you on behalf of Christ: become reconciled to God.

2. This is the function of every believer who witnesses and is the special function of the believer with the gift of evangelism. We are to witness through verbal communication of the Gospel of the Word of God. We are not to witness only through our lifestyle. That's cowardice.

E. The royal ambassadorship mandates the function of spiritual self-esteem and impersonal love, Philemon 9 Yet for love's sake, I rather appeal to you, since I am such a person as Paul, the ambassador, and now a prisoner of Jesus Christ.

1. Virtue-love is the greatest of all problem-solving devices. When your momentum takes you to personal love for God, you now have spiritual self-esteem. With this spiritual self-esteem comes impersonal love for all mankind. This is the giant step in the Christian life.

2. While personal love for God is the function of our royal priesthood, spiritual self-esteem and impersonal love for man are the function of our ambassadorship.

3. Everything the believer does in life becomes a part of his modus operandi as a royal ambassador. Every believer, therefore, makes a pulpit out of his circumstances in every area of life.

4. Your ambassadorship is basically made up of two factors: how you live, and what you say as a result of what you think. In private, you function under your priesthood; in public, you function under your ambassadorship.

5. Wherever we are, that is where we are ambassadors to Christ. Social problems can become a distraction for the Christian life.

F. The royal ambassadorship is related to the angelic conflict.

1. The Church Age believer is not only an ambassador to human creatures but to angels as well. You are a royal ambassador being watched right now. Angels observed our Lord, 1Timothy 3:16. They observe and rejoice over the conversion of one person, Luke 15:7-10. Fallen angels are organized to resist and oppose your ambassadorship and your growth in grace, Job 1:6, 2:1-3; Ephesians 6:12.

2. The fact that angels are watching you as an ambassador is found in 1Corinthians 4:9. "For I think God has exhibited us apostles last of all as men condemned to death [last ones into the Colosseum], for we have become an amphitheater to the world, both to angels and to men."
3. Ephesians 3:10, "In order that the manifold wisdom of God might be made known through the church to rulers and authorities in the heavenlies [angels]."
4. 1Timothy 5:21, "I solemnly charge you in the presence of God and of Christ Jesus and of His elect angels to maintain these doctrines without bias; do nothing on the basis of partisan strife."
5. 1Peter 1:12, "things into which angels are watching intently."

G. The Concept of the Believer-Ambassador.

1. While the priesthood of the believer emphasizes the daily function of GAP and advance to spiritual maturity, the ambassadorship of the believer emphasizes the production of the Christian way of life. Each has a different source. As you learn to distinguish between your priesthood and ambassadorship, you will learn to distinguish between the functions of each. The priesthood is the means by which you advance to maturity; the ambassadorship is for the purpose of production and it is not for blessing.
2. This ambassador service can be a function of one's spiritual gift or obedience to a command of the service-function as taught in the Word.
3. Since maximum production involves spiritual maturity, it is obvious that the attainment of spiritual maturity results in maximum effectiveness in the area of your royal ambassadorship.
4. The filling of the Spirit is an absolute necessity in the function of the ambassador.
5. Any Christian service or works apart from the filling of the Spirit is human good, the enemy of the modus operandi of the royal ambassador.
6. Everything the believer does in life becomes a part of his ambassadorship, for in effect the believer makes a pulpit out of his circumstances. Every believer is in full-time service; this is a decision God made at the moment of salvation, not one that you make.
7. The Lord uses ambassadors in business, professions, homes, academic life, and in local churches. Your circumstances are your full-time Christian service whether you work in the military, in labor, or in management.
8. In the Roman Empire, many believers fulfilled their ambassadorship as slaves. They were not to break out of this situation. In application, you don't straighten out society; you serve the Lord. It is not up to us to change society. We do not function in conspiracies or revolutions against our nation.
9. Therefore, believers as ambassadors are the personal representatives of the Lord Jesus Christ.
10. Every believer is in the plan of God and lives his life under the principle of full-time Christian service.

11. The vocation of every believer is representing Christ as a royal ambassador. The avocation of every believer is making a living as per Philemon.

12. Paul was as much an ambassador in prison as when he was a traveling missionary. You always represent Christ.

H. The Concept of the Weeping Ambassador.

1. The weeping ambassador expresses the regrets of wrong thinking and the failure of the believer to orient to history. Disorientation to history means distraction from the Christian way of life. Isaiah 33:6-7 And He [Lord Jesus Christ] will be the stability of your times, a wealth of salvation, wisdom, and knowledge. Behold their brave men [army of Israel] cry in the streets, the ambassadors of peace weep bitterly.

a. In this passage, the ambassadors of Israel had made a deal with the Assyrians and assumed they were safe. When the Assyrians prepared to attack, the ambassadors of peace who cut back the military wept bitterly.

b. The ambassadors of peace are doves who despise preparation for war.

c. The ambassadors were anti-military. They were doves; they did not recognize the importance of the military.

d. These ambassadors fail to understand the doctrine that all freedom comes through military victory.

e. Such a person fails to believe that all freedom is purchased on battlefields, not through the empty words of politicians.

f. To maintain that freedom, there must be universal military training, plus the constant development and maintenance of the profession of the military. Luger, Maxim and someone else were all Americans who developed great weapons of war, but are associated with Europe. There must be an officer corps with high standards, an honor code, and higher patriotic motivation.

g. The invader in Isaiah 33 had found the nation Israel unprepared. The ambassadors told the Assyrians they were setting the pace for disarmament.

h. The doves then are ambassadors to the invading nation. They had depended on peace treaties and had announced disarmament rather than military preparation.

i. They had failed to evaluate history in the light of the Word of God and had failed to apply doctrine to history even though they were believers.

j. Therefore, the weeping ambassador represents the failure of believers to think divine viewpoint in the interpretation of history.

2. Prov 13:16-17 Every wise believer acts with knowledge of doctrine, but a fool [believer] spreads foolishness. An evil messenger falls into adversity [the law of volitional responsibility], but a faithful ambassador brings healing. The faithful ambassador is the effective witness for Christ.

- I. The Prerequisites for the Function of the Royal Ambassadorship.
1. The person must be saved. Salvation appoints the individual to the status of royal ambassador.
 2. There is no appointment to such ambassadorship until the person has believed in Christ. At that point, you are commissioned as an ambassador.
 3. Therefore, at salvation the believer becomes a member of the royal family of God and a royal ambassador through the baptism of the Spirit.
 4. Ambassadorship automatically enters the believer into full-time Christian service. Romans 12:11 says there are two prerequisites for service of the ambassador: he cannot be negligent in applying doctrine and he must be zealous with reference to the Holy Spirit when serving.
 5. The royal ambassador must be fulfilled in the filling of the Spirit. This means alertness with regard to the rebound technique, the grace means of soul control by the Holy Spirit. Only doctrine perceived can be applied to the ambassadorship.
 6. So the third prerequisite is the daily function of GAP whereby doctrine is stored in the human spirit and soul.
 7. In summary, royal ambassadorship demands salvation, the filling of the Spirit, and the residency of doctrine. Thus, experiential sanctification is its prerequisite.
 8. On the negative side, the royal ambassadorship can't function when the believer is in the devil's triangle of sin, human good and evil. All service in the devil's triangle is human good and evil. If we fail to apply doctrine we are in the devil's triangle.

1977 Romans

362 03/12/1978 Romans 12:11 Doctrine of ambassadorship (pts. 3–7); disarming; believer's Christian service cf. priesthood

Notes for the Doctrine of Ambassadorship are placed above.

Romans 12:11 ...not lagging in diligence, being fervent in spirit, serving the Lord,...

Verse 11 – the modus operandi of the royal ambassadorship.

“Not slothful in business” – the dative of reference singular from the noun spoudê (σπουδή) [pronounced spoo-DAY], which in the Attic Greek means haste, speed or zeal. But in the Koine it means that which must be done. Herodotus used it for a rapid military manoeuvre. It comes to mean application, diligence. It is translated “With reference to application” – of doctrine to the circumstances of life. Then the negative ou (οὐ) [pronounced oo] which denies the fact, used with the indicative mood, plus the present active imperative of eimi (εἶμι) [pronounced eye-ME]—“do not.”

The predicate nominative from the adjective oknēros (ὀκνηρός) [pronounced ok-nay-ROSS] follows, it means indolence, idle, lazy. It connotes hesitation through weariness, sloth, fear, and sometimes even bashfulness. Here it means negligent, “do not be negligent.” “With reference to application of doctrine, do not be negligent.” You cannot apply doctrine unless you store doctrine, so if you are negative toward doctrine then you are negligent in application.

Principle

1. Since the royal ambassadorship emphasizes production in the Christian way of life, and since doctrine resident in the soul is the means of that production, the negative command is necessary not only to avoid the devil’s triangle but to have legitimate production in royal ambassadorship.
2. Application of doctrine is impossible without cognizance of doctrine.
3. Therefore knowledge of doctrine must precede any production in the Christian way of life.
4. Production minus the filling of the Spirit and cognizance of doctrine is human good.

“fervent in spirit” – the dative singular of reference from pneuma (πνεῦμα) [pronounced PNYOO-mah], referring to God the Holy Spirit, plus the generic use of the definite article emphasizing the fact that this is God the Holy Spirit who is unique as eternal God. Then the present active participle of zéō (ζέω) [pronounced DZEH-oh] which means to boil—“with reference to the Spirit, boil.” It also means to be zealous, to be ardent. Actually, it is nothing more or less than a command to be filled with the Spirit. The word zéō (ζέω) [pronounced DZEH-oh] is used twice in the New Testament for the filling of the Spirit, cf. Acts 18:25. This is the customary present tense which denotes what habitually occurs when the believer is consistent with the rebound technique. The active voice: the believer produces the action of the verb when he rebounds. The participle is used here for the imperative—“with reference to the Spirit be zealous.”

“serving the Lord” – the function of the ambassadorship, not the function of the priesthood. The function of the priesthood: advance to maturity; function of ambassadorship: serve the Lord. This is the dative singular indirect object from kurios (κύριος) [pronounced KOO-ree-oss], used for deity. With it is the generic use of the definite article to emphasize the uniqueness of the Lord Jesus Christ. He is the God-Man, the unique person of the universe. The dative of indirect object indicates the one in whose interest all ambassadorship service is conducted. So we have, “when serving the Lord,” for we have a temporal present active participle from douleúō (δουλεύω) [pronounced dool-YOO-oh] which means to serve. Notice that the temporal participle says when serving the Lord, which means you are not serving the Lord every minute. Therefore the temporal participle demands sanity when living the Christian way of life—sanity, balance and stability. Don’t be a screwball! The iterative present describes what recurs at successive intervals in the life of the royal ambassador. The active voice: the believer as the royal ambassador produces the action of the verb. The participle is temporal.

Romans 12:11 With reference to application of doctrine do not be negligent with reference to the Holy Spirit; be zealous when serving the Lord.

Serving the Lord is only a part of full time Christian service; it includes many other things. You have to take in doctrine, which is not serving the Lord; it is preparing to serve the Lord when service occurs.

We are ambassadors and we are priests. These are two hats worn by all believers. Get coordinated; learn when you use your left hand or your right hand; figure out when you are an ambassador or operating in your priesthood.

You only serve the Lord when you act as an ambassador. These are figurative hats; no hats in Berachah Church.

1977 Romans

Lesson #363

363 03/16/1978 Romans 12:12a Weirdo movies; Army promotion list; doctrine of hope (revised, 1–3a) and confident assurance. The doctrine of hope goes back to Lesson #134.

People think in terms of nuclear holocaust, and this is shown in some of the movies that we have. We are building a concrete jungle in our souls.

There is no romance anymore. Boys and still chasing girls and vice versa, but there is no honor or romance.

At conferences, people will come up to Bob in between messages and some will look around and then say, “What do you think about UFOs?” Bob said to one of them, “Take me to your leader.”

What about all these other things, the crab monster; the rabbits that grow to a monstrous size. There are people who take this seriously.

Romans 12:12 ...rejoicing in hope, being patient in tribulation, being constant in prayer... (BLB)

Verse 12 – “Rejoicing in hope.” This is our life, our capacity for life, our way of life. The first word in the Greek is the definite article ho, hê, to (ὁ, ἡ, τό) [pronounced hoe, hay, toe], a dative singular of reference. The generic use indicates that we have something special here. The dative of reference is simply translated “With reference to the.”

The next word is the dative of reference singular from the noun elpís (ἐλπίς) [pronounced el-PIS]—“With reference to the hope.” There are three possibilities. The first hope is confident anticipation that when you believe in Christ you have eternal life, but that is not the hope here. We have passed that hope. Hope is always replaced by the reality. When the reality comes the hope is over. When we crack the maturity barrier we lose our second hope because we now have the reality rather than the confident anticipation of blessing.

Reality means you must now have a new hope, and in life you can only have three hopes: #1, confident anticipation of salvation through faith in Christ; #2, confident anticipation of blessing in time at the point of maturity and thereafter; #3, confident anticipation of blessing and reward at the judgment seat of Christ. The third hope is the one in view for mature believers and is the one this verse is dealing with. So elpís (ἐλπίς) [pronounced el-PIS] here means hope in the sense of expectation or prospect of the future. It does not mean uncertainty. Hope in the Bible, elpís (ἐλπίς) [pronounced el-PIS], never means uncertainty.

Next comes the present active participle of chairô (χαίρω) [pronounced KHAI-row] which means to rejoice or to be happy. The progressive present tense signifies action in progress or in a state of persistence in present time—linear aktionsart. The active voice: the mature believer produces the action of the verb by having the third hope.^[9] This was written from the viewpoint of the mature believer. “With reference to the hope, be rejoicing.” This is the imperative use of the participle here and is peculiar to the Koine Greek and to the papyri.

There were some notes here which I moved to Lesson #369. I don't know if Bob taught them twice or if I am setting things right. This doctrine is revisited and updated in Lessons #473, #474, #475 and #489:

The Doctrine of Hope begun. All notes will be kept here. It occurred previously; and those notes will be removed. This doctrine supercedes the teaching in the Romans series.

Doctrine of Hope

A. Definition and Description.

1. The Greek word elpís (ἐλπίς) [pronounced el-PIS] originated with Socrates in the fifth century B.C. He founded a university called "The Academy." One of Socrates best students was Plato (429-347 B.C.), who further developed the concept of hope in the Greek.
 - a. Socrates and Plato tried to develop a technical vocabulary to define the essence and definition of virtue. Hope was one the words he used for virtue. They had give technical meanings to words. He established a principle that it was better to know one's ignorance than to be wrong.
 - b. There was a great controversy in Plato's academy between the hedonists and anti-hedonists. The hedonists said the real thing in life was the stimulation of your emotions. The intellectual group of students said it was the stimulation of your thinking. In response to this controversy Plato wrote the Philebos. In the Philebos Plato said that Socrates taught that the best life always emphasizes thought over emotion as the criterion of life, and that the greatest thing that can happen is to be able to think and then to be able to express your thinking to others.
 - c. Plato concluded that the best of life emphasizes thought over emotion as a criterion for life. To Plato the supreme virtue was knowledge which produces virtue in the soul. Plato said that no one can be virtuous without knowledge and human existence is determined not merely by intellectual perception (which he called aísthēsis (αἴσθησις) [pronounced AH-ee-sthay-sis] and is equivalent to epignōsis (ἐπίγνωσις) [pronounced ehp-IHG-noh-sis]), but by the ability to recall intellectual perception when you need it. This he called MNEME or the recall of doctrine when you need it. Plato added two words in his study of definitions. The first word was the Greek word elpís (ἐλπίς) [pronounced el-PIS], which should be translated hope. The second word was the Greek word prosdokía (προσδοκία) [pronounced prohs-dohk-EE-ah], which means, "expectation, confidence."

- d. In the Philebos Plato equates recall of the past with hope or expectation of the future. He does it with the same technique that is used in the word of God. You have to have a philosophy that looks forward to something better in eternity.
2. We have an eschatology that looks forward to dying and death, because we know that God has provided dying grace for those who go through the door of hope. You must have a personal sense of destiny about the future. You have learned that God decides the time, the manner, and the place of your death, and at the moment of your death you remain in a place of no more sorrow, no more tears, no more pain, and you will stay in the presence of God forever. In your thinking you go forward to the fantastic future that you have and bring it back into time with great strength and power to overcome your present problems. That is the mechanic of hope as a problem solving device.
 - a. Man's own being determines what he hopes and how he hopes.
 - b. Expectation and hopes are man's own projection into the future. If you have good expectation, it is because you know your future as a believer, and that projection gives you a fantastic edge on problem solving.
 - c. It is the nature of man to have good or bad expectations of the future. Therefore it is the nature of man to have either good or bad hope. Hope projects its own view of the future with confidence.
 - d. Hence, you have confident expectation as the biblical definition of the first category of hope. When you go through the door of hope it becomes absolute expectation.
 - e. The first door of hope is confident expectation about your eternal life. The second door of hope is confident expectation about your destiny, that is, your personal sense of destiny. This is one of the greatest problem solving devices of the spiritual life.
 - f. Walter Bauer defines the Greek word elpís (ἐλπίς) [pronounced el-PIS] (page 252) as "hope, expectation, prospect." Merrill Unger defines hope in his Bible Dictionary (page 498) that "God is the source of all expectation of the future." Kittel, Volume II, page 519, says that "that man either does or can hope is a comfort for him in a difficult present."

- g. When you have any kind of sorrow, you project into the future all the fantastic things you have. This takes you into a realm of thinking in your consciousness that brings you back into the present with confidence and strength.

3. Hope must be defined in two categories: confident expectation and absolute expectation with regard to the future. The difference between confident expectation and absolute expectation is your spiritual status. If you have walked through the door of hope (a personal sense of destiny) with God's agenda, then you have converted confident expectation into absolute expectation.
- a. Hope is confident expectation parlayed into absolute expectation about the future, when you begin to use the problem solving devices.
 - b. Hope as confident expectation is perception and metabolization of Bible doctrine through the filling of the Holy Spirit (life in the orientation envelope-grace orientation and doctrinal orientation).
 - c. Hope as absolute expectation is entering the door of hope on God's agenda and fulfilling the adult spiritual life through the advanced problem solving devices.
 - d. There are three doors of hope.
 - (1) The Old Testament door of hope.
 - (2) The Church Age door of hope. Both of these doors of hope are the dividing line between spiritual childhood and spiritual adulthood. Both of these doors of hope depend on the volition of the believer in his attitude toward Bible doctrine. You cannot enter the door of hope without going through on God's agenda.
 - (3) The third door of hope is your personal eschatology, your entrance into the eternal state.
4. The source of hope is perception of doctrine. Hope is not ignorance, uncertainty, or oscillation. Hope becomes the key to the function of the plan of God. Hope never means guesswork; it is never any sort of insecurity.
5. Without understanding hope, your doctrinal motivation and momentum is completely destroyed. The unbeliever has no hope. It is the monopoly of the believer. Ephesians 2:12, "having no hope and without God in the world."
6. Hope is the monopoly of the believer who is positive to Bible doctrine. 1Thessalonians 4:13, "that you may not grieve with the rest who have no hope."
7. All definitions of hope in the Bible include the word expectation, because hope is always projected into the future. Expectation means looking forward, bringing the future into your life under the principle of living in the light of eternity. Hope is confidence in the immediate and/or distant future.
- a. In the Hebrew, MIDBAT means confident expectation; bāṭach (בָּטַח) [pronounced baw-TAHKH] means faith or hope in the Lord, slamming your problems on the Lord; keṣel (כֶּסֶל) [pronounced KEH-seh] means confidence, hope, having hope from the content of your thinking.

- b. In the Greek, elpís (ἐλπίς) [pronounced el-PIS] and elpizô (ἐλπίζω) [pronounced el-PID-zoh] means to hope, to have confident expectation.

8. Hope is absolute security about the future; therefore, it acts as a motivator.
9. Hope at salvation is found in Titus 1:1a-2, "...and epignôsis (ἐπίγνωσις) [pronounced ehp-IHG-noh-sis] knowledge of truth compatible with the spiritual life because of hope of eternal life, which God, who cannot lie, promised before times eternal."
- a. Anyone who believes in Christ shall never perish but have eternal life. Eternal life is imputed to the human spirit and you cannot lose that eternal life. Hope is the assurance that at the moment of salvation you have eternal life. This is permanent and absolute. The basis for hope is the fact you have eternal life.
- b. The absolute solutions belong to God and the understanding of these absolutes depends on hope in your soul. Hope is confidence of eternal life. We believe in Christ with confident expectation, and as a result of learning doctrine we have absolute expectation. Confident expectation includes the assurance of eternal security, the cognition of dying grace, and the reality of resurrection.
- c. Expectation means living in the light of the future. Expectation related to hope means confidence about the future. Expectation is the dynamic mental attitude when believers enter the door of hope with God's agenda. Hence, expectation is a personal sense of destiny, the first tactical objective of the spiritual life.
- d. The reality of the glorious future of the Church Age believer is based on inculcation and metabolization of Bible doctrine. There is no understanding of our glorious future apart from Bible doctrine. Cognition and application of this glorious future while on earth is optional, based on your personal attitude toward Bible doctrine. The option includes mastery of the mechanics of the spiritual life. You become aware that you have a personal eschatology which includes your dying grace, death, resurrection, and eternal life.
- e. Hope as a problem solving device functions in present stress and adversity through recall of Bible doctrine pertinent to your future, so that the recall of your future comfort, tranquility, perspective, and solution to the present problem.
10. In the word of God there is no neutral concept of expectation. Your expectation is either good or bad. If it is nothing, you are in serious trouble as a believer. Good expectation originates from metabolized doctrine circulating in the stream of consciousness. Bad expectation is the result of the four horsemen of apostasy: emotional revolt of the soul, locked in negative volition, blackout of the soul, and scar tissue of the soul taking over control of the soul. There is nothing more awful in suffering in life than to look at your life at the point of dying and have nothing but regrets.

- a. Going forward means looking forward. You do not go forward looking backward.
- b. If you are going forward, you go forward on God's agenda. If you are looking backward, you look backward on your own agenda-the arrogance skills of self-justification, lying to yourself in self-deception, and self-absorption. This becomes the base of operation for your miserable life.
- c. Post salvation hope is parlaying confident expectation of eternal life and blessings into absolute expectation of eternal life and blessings. Confident expectation is developed in the orientation envelop of grace orientation and doctrinal orientation. This brings us to the door of hope-a personal sense of destiny or spiritual self-esteem, the first tactical objective of the spiritual life. We must walk through this door of hope with God's agenda for our life in order to enter the integrity envelop of personal love for God and impersonal love for all mankind. God's agenda includes faith, hope, joy, and peace.
- d. God's agenda is defined in part in Romans 5:1-2,5, "Therefore having been justified by faith, we have peace (reconciliation) with God through our Lord Jesus Christ, through Whom also we have obtained our introduction by faith into this grace in which we stand [the orientation envelop] in the hope of the glory of God [moving from the orientation envelop through the open door of a personal sense of destiny on God's agenda and arriving at personal love for God the Father]. and hope does not disappoint us because the love of God has been poured out in our hearts through the agency of the Holy Spirit who has been given to us." Romans 15:13, "Now may the God of absolute confidence fill you with all happiness and peace (prosperity, tranquility, harmony) in believing (faith-perception) that you may abound in confidence by the power of the Holy Spirit."
- e. This door of hope is the first tactical objective of the spiritual life. It is the dividing line between spiritual childhood and spiritual adulthood. It is the first stage of the adult spiritual life. Behind this door is God giving to us exceedingly abundantly beyond all we could ask or be imagining. Beyond this door are five categories of the adult spiritual life, i.e., five categories of the greatest treasure that has ever existed in the history of the human race.
- (1) The stages of the adult spiritual life is the first category: spiritual self-esteem, spiritual autonomy, spiritual maturity.
 - (2) The second category is metabolized doctrine circulating in the stream of consciousness under the filling of the Holy Spirit. There are three stages of the second category: cognitive self-confidence, cognitive independence, and cognitive invincibility.
 - (3) The third category is virtue-love, the inventory of God's treasure house in problem solving devices: personal love for God, impersonal love for all mankind, and occupation with Christ.

- (4) The fourth category is momentum testing-suffering for blessing: providential preventive suffering, momentum testing (people, thought, system, adversity testing), and evidence testing.
- (5) The fifth category is the promotion status quo. When you go through the door of hope, you are in the status quo of being promoted by God: spiritual autonomy, spiritual maturity, maximum glorification of God.

B. God is the author or originator of hope.

1. Colossians 1:27 (Church Age believers) to whom God willed to make known what is the riches of the glory of this mystery among the Gentiles, which is Christ indwelling you, the absolute confidence of glory. The fact that Jesus Christ indwells you is the basis and origin of hope two and hope three.
2. God is the author of our first hope. Titus 1:2, in the hope of eternal life which God, who cannot lie, promised before times eternal.
3. God made a promise and is the origin of His own plan. Hope one is confidence that when you believe in Christ you have eternal life. Once you believe, you have the reality, shed hope one, and receive a new hope, hope two.
4. Doctrine always stands between the potential of having something and the hope or confidence that you will have it. Once you learn the doctrine, you have the hope.
 - a. For example, once you learn the pertinent doctrine, eternal life is no longer a hope but a reality.
 - b. Now you have a new hope, that of receiving blessings at the point of spiritual maturity. This hope is only a potential until you learn enough doctrine to make the hope real to you. Once you have learned enough doctrine, then the potential of blessings from God becomes a confident hope that He will bless you at the point of spiritual maturity.
 - c. When you reach spiritual maturity and are blessed, then this hope becomes a reality, and once again you must have a new hope. The new hope is hope three, the confidence of eternal rewards and blessings at the Judgment Seat of Christ.
5. The mature believer dies with absolute confidence of receiving reward in eternity.

C. Hope anticipates the function of the integrity of God on our behalf.

1. 1Thessalonians 1:3 ...constantly bearing in mind your work of doctrine, and labor of love [impersonal love from the royal family honor code], and courage under pressure from hope in our Lord Jesus Christ in the presence of God the Father.
2. Hope is cultivated through the intake of doctrine. Bible doctrine in the soul gives you confidence in the future and enjoyment of what God provides for you now.

3. Job 4:6 Is not your respect for God your confidence? And is not your hope the integrity of your ways? We have failure, but are related to the integrity of God. Your integrity comes from this hope, which comes from your respect for God.

4. Hope motivates function in the royal family honor code. Psalm 71:5 For you are my hope, O Lord God, my confidence from my youth. David had failures; he made mistakes. He had a sin nature. However, David had doctrine parlayed into a structured system of confidence called hope.

5. Jer 17:7 Happinesses to the man who puts his trust in the Lord and whose hope is in the Lord. Faith-rest in the mature believer is a structured system of confidence called hope.

6. Romans 14:18 ...who beyond the hope of sexual prosperity believed in hope, in order that he might become the father of many nations. Abraham's hope was a perfect example of hope as absolute confidence in a future expectation. Chapter 4 or 14?

7. Three stages in the Christian life; three stages of confidence. Every idiot who has ever stood up to give a testimony says, God has a plan for my life. And everyone giving the testimony, and they all have a different view of what that plan is. None of that rot is the plan of God.

8. Sarah was past the menopause and Abraham was no longer capable of having sexual relations. At age 100, he was dead. No hope of copulation. Who beyond hope believed in hope (the integrity of God) in order that he might become the father of many nations...so shall your seed exist.

D. While God is the author of hope, doctrine is the source of that hope.

1. Romans 15:4 For as many doctrines as have been written before, for our instruction they were written, in order that through perseverance and encouragement from the Scriptures we might have hope.

2. Hebrews 11:1 In fact, doctrine is the reality from which we receive hope, the proof of matters not being seen. The reality of blessing for time and eternity is found in hope, which is confidence in the soul from metabolized doctrine.

E. The Working Equation of the Plan of God: $X + Y + Z$.

1. $X [I/HL + I/AOS = P1 + D = H1] + (I/ETERNAL LIFE)$

a. This is God's plan for all unbelievers. X radical contains God's will for the unbeliever.

b. Human life begins at birth; biological life in the womb is not human life. Human life can never be separated from the soul. Nothing can remove life from the soul. We are born with life security. We never can separate these things. There is no sin or evil that you can do that will separate human life from the soul.

c. Eternal life is also eternally secure.

d. Being born again is God creating a human spirit for the believer and then imputing eternal life to the human spirit. You cannot lose it.

e. The imputation of human life plus the imputation of Adam's original sin to the old sin nature, both occurring simultaneously at birth equals the first potential: that being condemned we have the potential of salvation.

- f. This means we are born in a totally helpless condition. We are under total depravity, totally helpless to have a relationship with God, and totally helpless to do anything about it. However, whenever we are in a hopeless situation, that is always a potential for divine solution.
 - g. This potential plus the pertinent doctrine, i.e., the gospel, equals the first hope: absolute confidence that once we believe in Christ, we will have eternal life.
 - h. The plus outside of the bracket represents the moment you believe in Jesus Christ, having faith and faith alone, adding nothing. That is the moment when God the Father imputes eternal life to the human spirit, which is created by God the Holy Spirit, called regeneration.
 - i. Matthew 12:21 John 5:16
 - j. In salvation, we do not have to change our personalities. We do not have to change our pastimes or activities. We do not help God with salvation.
 - k. We are not saved by being good or by being better than others.
 - l. God never leaves us without a hope.
2. $Y [J1 + J2 = P2 + D = H2] + (I/BT)$
- a. This is God's plan for all immature believers. Y radical is God's plan for the believer to receive the six categories of blessings in time which glorify God.
 - b. Judicial imputation number one is the imputation of all the personal sins of the human race to Christ on the cross and His substitutionary spiritual death.
 - c. Judicial imputation number two is the imputation of God's perfect divine righteousness to the believer at salvation. This is the basis for justification, for logistical grace support, and for becoming the recipients of God's personal love.
 - d. The sum of these two judicial imputations equals the second potential: to execute God's protocol plan for the Church Age and become an invisible hero.
 - e. This potential plus the pertinent doctrine, the mystery doctrine of the Church Age, equals the second hope: absolute confidence that at the moment I advance to spiritual maturity, I am manufactured into an invisible hero and I become a member of the pivot. Then I will receive escrow blessings beyond my wildest imaginations from the justice of God, which glorify God.
 - f. After birth, there are no more judicial imputations.
 - g. The plus outside of the bracket is the point of the execution of the protocol plan of God, when you reach spiritual maturity, become an invisible hero, a winner, and the recipient of your escrow blessings.

h. All thrust or forward movement in the Christian life is based upon these hopes.

3. $Z [I/EL + I/BT = P3 + D = H3] = \text{Plan of God.}$

- a. Z radical contains God's plan for the mature believer. It combines the two pluses in the above two brackets.
- b. The imputation of eternal life (the plus at the end of X radical) plus the imputation of escrow blessings in time (the third at the end of Y radical) equals the third potential: to receive escrow blessings for eternity at the Judgment Seat of Christ.
- c. It is here that the believer gets his efficiency rating.
- d. This potential plus the pertinent doctrine, eschatological doctrine and specifically that which teaches about the Rapture, the Judgment Seat of Christ, and the distribution of escrow blessings for the eternal state, adds up to the third hope: the absolute confidence of the invisible hero that he will receive the most fantastic eternal rewards and blessings above and beyond the resurrection body at the Judgment Seat of Christ.
- e. All three radicals, $X + Y + Z$, equal the protocol plan of God for the human race. These hopes are the anchors for momentum in the Christian life. These hopes, when acquired, give great confidence toward the present and the future.

F. Imputation is the basis for each of these hopes.

1. Hope is confident anticipation of reality before that reality occurs.
2. Once the reality occurs, the hope is replaced by that reality. Romans 8:24 Now when a hope is seen, it is no longer a hope. So who hopes for what he sees? Once you are saved, you shed that hope like a snake sheds its skin.
 - a. All reversionistic believers are without hope. Only the positive believer who has hope 2 or hope 3.
 - b. The person advancing in the plan of God has a new hope to replace the hope already attained.
3. The hope of blessings for time is replaced by the reality of blessings in time received at the point of spiritual maturity.
4. The hope of blessings for eternity is replaced by the reality of receiving rewards and blessings at the Judgment Seat of Christ.
5. In each stage of the plan of God, there are two imputations which provide both the potential and the hope. The difference between the potential and the hope is perception of doctrine.
6. Doctrine resident in the soul through the function of GAP makes the difference between the potential and the hope. The potential doesn't advance you. The reversionist has the potential of blessing, yet he does not have the hope of being blessed.
7. In X radical, the two imputations at physical birth result in condemnation, providing the first potential and making possible the first hope. You must hear the gospel to make the first potential become a hope.

8. In Y radical, the two judicial imputations provide both the potential and the hope for the imputation of blessing in time.

9. In Z radical, the two imputations provide both the potential and the hope for blessing and reward at the Judgment Seat of Christ.

10. The 3rd potential and the 3rd hope is confident expectation at the Judgment Seat of Christ.

11. Each new reality replaces the existing hope; and a new hope is placed in the future.

G. When hope is replaced by reality, the believer advances in the plan of God.

1. Whenever a hope is replaced by the reality, the believer advances in the plan of God so that another set of imputations can set up another thrust in the plan of God.

2. The reality of salvation through faith in Christ replaces the hope of salvation, so that new imputations become pertinent in the gathering momentum of the plan of God.

3. The reality of spiritual maturity through maximum doctrine resident in the soul replaces the hope of the sixth imputation (blessings in time) with the reality of that imputation. Two more imputations then become pertinent to form the third hope.

4. The replacement of the third hope with reality awaits the resurrection of the Church. By putting these concepts together in logical order, you can conclude the reality of resurrection, future blessing, and eternity. Blessings and rewards for all eternity then become a reality without the use of illustration.

5. If one hope becomes a reality, that means the next hope can become a reality. All of these are hopes or areas of confidences. We are able as we advance in doctrine and able to put together the doctrines; and we can know that we will have a resurrection body and that we will stand at the Judgment Seat of Christ and we will be evaluated on our attitude toward doctrine.

6. Hope is the momentum factor in the plan of God.

7. Hope always looks forward; never backwards.

8. The unbeliever has no hope in this world.

H. Hope, the Momentum Factor.

1. Hope is the momentum factor in the plan of God. This is because hope gives you confidence about a future thing. Doctrine gives you confidence about near and distant future things.

2. Hope is a confidence that keeps driving. Therefore, it is a dynamic of life.

3. Hope is unique to the believer only. Unbelievers have no hope.

4. Romans 15:13 Now may the God of hope fill you with all happiness and prosperity by believing, that you may superabound in hope [3] by the power of the Holy Spirit. This is a superabounding hope for supergrace believers.

I. The First Hope: Eternal Life.

1. Condemnation must precede salvation. Therefore, the first potential, salvation, is converted into the hope of salvation by learning and understanding the gospel.
2. The Holy Spirit teaches the gospel and makes it a reality in the soul of the person who hears the presentation of the gospel.
3. Hope one is knowing that by believing in Christ you have eternal life. Romans 8:24 states the principle: For with reference to that hope we have been saved. When a person expresses positive volition at God consciousness, God provides the gospel. Gospel hearing converts the potential into the hope of salvation. And that hope is knowing that when you believe in Christ, you have eternal life.
4. Therefore when you believe, that is the first momentum in the plan of God. Common grace becomes efficacious grace when you believe, just as the reality of salvation replaces the hope of salvation.
5. Job 5:16 the hopeless have hope. Unbelievers are helpless to save themselves, but gospel hearing merits hope.
6. In Hebrews 7:19, the first hope is called "a better hope."
7. Hope one is related to the divine decrees in Titus 1:2, "in hope of eternal life."
8. Efficacious grace converts the reality of hope into the reality of salvation at the moment you believe. Titus 3:7 being justified by His grace, made heirs according to the hope of eternal life.
9. In seminary, there were only two people who understood common and efficacious grace, Bob and his professor.
10. There is no confusion in the Christian way of life. Arrogant people will approach Bob and ask him to relieve them of their confusion right there.

J. The Second Hope: Blessings in Time.

1. The second potential is the potential of the imputation of blessings in time, resulting in the glorification of God in time.
2. This is blessing which you never need to worry about losing. This is the potential for the greatest relationship with the Lord and total capacity for life.
3. Once we persevere in doctrine and grow to the point of personal love for God and spiritual self-esteem, then we have confidence of attaining spiritual maturity.
4. Y radical is where the believer advances in the Christian life from salvation to spiritual maturity. Because of the two judicial imputations, spiritual maturity is a potential for every believer.
5. Hope two is based on the imputation of divine righteousness. When God's perfect righteousness was imputed to us, this became a standing order for us to advance to spiritual maturity.
6. Blessing is anticipated through hope. You also have security with your blessing. Once you receive it, you cannot lose it. This gives you the freedom to devote your attention to the Lord, the source of your blessing, and to other things you find meaningful.

7. Lamentations 3:20-25 Surely my soul remembers and is humbled within me. This I recall to mind, therefore I have hope. The Lord's gracious functions never cease, for His compassions never fail; they are new every morning; great is Your faithfulness. 'The Lord is my portion,' says my soul, 'therefore, I have hope in Him.' The Lord is good to those who wait for Him, to the one who seeks Him.
8. 2Corinthians 10:15 ...not boasting beyond our measure in other men's labors, but with the hope that as your doctrine increases, we shall be within our sphere enlarged even more by you. Hope comes from doctrine.
9. Galatians 5:5 For we through the Spirit from doctrine are waiting for the hope [2] of righteousness Imputed divine righteousness demands fulfillment through the imputation of divine blessing at spiritual maturity and thereafter. The grace of God is exploited to the maximum at spiritual maturity. Once we crack the maturity barrier, we are just barely there. In ultra supergrace, we get to the point where David says, "My cup runs over."
10. Divine justice can only bless divine righteousness. Since you have a double portion of divine righteousness, you will have a double portion of blessing as a Church Age believer. Divine righteousness is the principle of divine integrity; divine justice is the function of divine integrity. So righteousness guards the justice of God, and justice guards the other divine attributes. What righteousness demands, justice executes.
11. Why do the wicked prosper? Many times, this is because of blessing by association.
12. God never removes blessing unless you lose the capacity through ignoring doctrine. Otherwise, the blessing God gives is secure. You are miserable with everything without capacity for life from doctrine. If you lose capacity you may lose the blessing. So God never gives unless you have capacity. God doesn't give haphazardly or impulsively.
13. If you receive or give blessing by association, it will bring misery if there is no capacity. Blessing brings happiness and security.
14. The second hope is the next best thing to having the blessing.
15. The second hope is motivation to press on to that divine blessing waiting for you since eternity past, so that Jesus Christ can be glorified.
16. Romans 5:1, "Therefore, having been justified by faith, let us have prosperity." That is a command!
17. 1Peter 3:15 But set apart Christ as Lord of your right lobe, always being ready to give a reason to everyone who asks you to give an account for the hope that is in you.
18. Matthew 6:33 But seek first his righteousness and all things will be added to you. This refers to the second hope, as does Romans 5:17, "they who receive in life this surplus from grace [the fulfillment of hope two]."
19. The second hope is described in Lamentations 3:21–23. In God, there are no flaws. God does not make any mistakes. God can give us anything; and He could drop money on us; or a rm/rw, all of this is easy for God to do. But if you have no capacity for it. What good is your right woman, if you are a thorough-going bastard? Or what is a right man to you women, if you are a thorough-going bitch? There is only one way to get capacity, and that is Bible doctrine.

K. The Third Hope: Eternal Reward.

1. The third potential is that of great blessing and reward at the Judgment Seat of Christ. Hope three is absolute confidence of receiving blessing and reward at the Judgment Seat of Christ because you already have the reality of the blessings of hope two, plus the necessary doctrine to produce hope three.
2. Hope three is always related to undeserved suffering, so that you are always blessed in undeserved suffering.
3. Hope three is the greatest structural and dynamic thinking which can exist in the soul of the believer. For example, in Hebrews 11, Abraham died in a tent, but he knew he had a home in heaven.
4. The believer who is cut off by the Rapture before attaining spiritual maturity will still receive eternal blessing because the omniscience of God knows what would have happened had the Rapture not taken place. No one ever loses blessing with the justice of God.
5. Hope three is part of the second a fortiori of Romans 5:12-17.
6. Resurrection is part of the confident anticipation of hope three, since blessing is imputed to the resurrection body.
7. Acts 23:6 I am on trial for the hope, even the resurrection from the dead. Acts 24:15, 26:6.
8. The third hope is the source of great happiness to the mature believer, since it makes eternity a reality, Romans 12:12.
9. Hope two and 3 are both found in Ephesians 1:18-19. That the eyes of your right lobe might be opened....
10. There is no equality in heaven just as there is no equality on earth.
11. Hope three is reserved in heaven for the mature believer. Colossians 1:5 because of the hope laid up for you in heaven, of which you previously heard in the word of truth.
12. The mature believer anticipates this hope, Titus 2:13. The third hope is never an issue to the immature believer. No one really understands the third hope as a system of doctrine in the soul until he reaches spiritual maturity. Looking for that blessed hope.
13. The mature believer constantly possesses this hope, Hebrews 6:18-20 In order that by two immutable things [God's oath and God's promise] in which it is impossible for God to lie, we may have strong encouragement (or hope) we have fled for refuge in doctrine for the purpose of attaining the hope set before us; which hope (the third hope), we have an anchor of the soul and this anchor is both secure and dependable and one which enters into the room behind the curtain, where Jesus, the advance guard, has entered on behalf of us, having become a high priest forever, assigned to the order of Melchizedek. The two immutable things are God's promise and God's person. We are like a ship on a strong sea; and, therefore, we use an anchor. Our anchor is in the 3rd heaven.

14. Jesus Christ is the advance guard because He has received a resurrection body. We will receive the spoils of His victory, 1Peter 1:3,13,21. Blessed by the God, even the Lord Jesus Christ, Who, according to His great mercy, has caused us to be born again to a living hope through the resurrection of Jesus Christ from the dead. Therefore, gird your minds for action, being constantly stabilized and oriented. Fix your hope on the grace being brought to you at the appearing of Jesus Christ. Who through Him, are believers in God, Who raised Him from the dead, so that your faith and your confidence are in God.
 15. Thessalonians For who is our hope or joy or crown
 16. The third hope in the soul of the believer purifies his motivation and perpetuates his spiritual momentum, 1John 3:2-3. Beloved, now we are the sons of God and it has not yet appeared with we will be; however, we know that if He should appear, we should be exactly like Him because we should see Him as He is. And everyone who has this hope in himself purifies himself, just as He, Christ, is pure. The glory of Jesus Christ is far greater than anything else we could possibly value in time.
- L. Undeserved suffering provides impetus and stimulation for hope three, thus increasing momentum.
1. Undeserved suffering gives us concentration on hope three. Adversity is often designed for blessing. To the believer, adversity is often a blessing in disguise. Romans 5:2-5.
 2. The third hope is defined in terms of confident anticipation, and is related to undeserved suffering in Romans 8:23-25.
 3. Undeserved suffering stimulates hope three, Romans 8:35-37.
 4. Undeserved suffering reshuffles one's priorities. In his soul, eternity is more important than life.
 5. It is not a reality until you arrive. It does not matter whether you have adversity or blessing, these are equated in life. It makes no difference to you. It is the most fantastic mental attitude that has ever existed. This is always reserved for [Z]. When you are here, you are on the short end of your life span. Once you have the reshuffling of your priorities. You are not the short span of your life, but you don't really care.
- M. Hope Three is the highest motivation in life. Romans 12:12 With reference to hope [3], be rejoicing; with reference to the pressures of undeserved suffering, stand fast. This is the highest point in the life of any believer, because he is able to face the worst of reality with the greatest of blessing, confidence, and dynamic thinking.
1. The third hope doesn't come easy.
 2. The completion of the edification complex.
 3. The absorption of the entire system of doctrine. Sometimes, it is an individual or perhaps a dozen or so. It is a long haul to get to the 3rd hope, but your entire perspective changes.

N.

Hope as a Problem Solving Device in the Great Power Experiment of the Church Age.

1. Romans 15:13, "Now may the God of hope [confidence] fill you with all happiness [+H] and prosperity in believing, that you may abound in confidence by the power of the Holy Spirit."
2. Ephesians 1:18-19 combines the great power experiment of the Church Age with confidence. "That the eyes of your right lobe may be enlightened [post-salvation epistemological rehabilitation] so that you may know what is the hope of His calling [confidence of our election], what are the riches of His glory [divine capitalization by our portfolio of invisible assets] of His inheritance for the saints, what is the surpassing greatness of His power to us who have believed for the working of His superior power."
 - a. The execution of the protocol plan of God results in the glorification of God through the distribution of our escrow blessings. The first thing God ever did for us is the means of glorifying Him. The first thing He did in eternity past was to deposit into escrow greater blessings for you.
 - b. Because the Church Age is the extension of the great power experiment of the hypostatic union, the divine omnipotence of the Father, Son, and Spirit are available to each of us.
 - (1) We have the omnipotence of God the Father through our portfolio of invisible assets. His power comes into function in our lives as we learn and utilize these assets.
 - (2) We have the omnipotence of Jesus Christ through the preservation of history, giving us a day at a time. His power comes into operation in our lives by keeping us alive.
 - (3) We have the omnipotence of God the Holy Spirit as we reside inside the divine dynasphere.
 - c. The working of His superior power is seen when we become what we were designed to be: invisible heroes, Colossians 1:10-12.
3. Romans 5:2-3, "Through whom also we have obtained that access by means of faith into this grace in which we stand; and so let us demonstrate the happiness of God in the hope [confidence] of the glory of God. And not only this, but also let us demonstrate God's perfect happiness in adversities, knowing that such adversity brings about courage. And courage [perseverance] under pressure brings about proven character [spiritual adulthood], and proven character brings about hope [confidence]; and confidence never disappoints, because the love for God [spiritual self-esteem] has been poured out in our right lobes by the Holy Spirit who was given to us."
 - a. Once you have the full use of +H in spiritual adulthood, understanding it in full and using it, then you direct it in confidence toward the glory of God.

- b. As the great power experiment of the Church Age, this dispensation is our opportunity to demonstrate the known truth of Bible doctrine.
 - c. You cannot have capacity for life without courage. Fear is the mental attitude of worry, anxiety, and compromise. The more things you fear, the greater expands your fear until it destroys your mental attitude.
 - d. So as a result of this confidence, you have a mental attitude that cannot be broken by anything in life. Instead, it is the most magnificent attitude toward life.
4. Therefore hope or confidence is a problem solving device. It is constantly related to +H as a problem solving device. Therefore, Romans 12:12: "With reference to confidence, be rejoicing [+H]; with reference to adversity, be persevering, persist in prayer." Again Romans 15:13.
 5. Bible doctrine is the source of hope or confidence. Romans 15:4, "For as many doctrines have been written before for our instruction, they were written in order that through perseverance and encouragement from the Scriptures, we might have confidence."
 6. Hope or confidence begins to function at spiritual self-esteem. 1Peter 3:15 But set apart Jesus Christ as Lord in your right lobes, always ready to give a reason to everyone who asks you, to give an account for the confidence that is in you. You must have that confidence before you can give an account. This is a part of the dynamics of witnessing for Jesus Christ.
 7. Philippians 1:20–21 I have absolute hope (or confidence) that in nothing shall I be disgraced. As always, Christ shall be exalted in my person, whether by life or by death. For me, then, living is Christ and dying is great profit. It is great profit when you die, because you have all of these blessings in life; and in eternity, you are blessed with far greater things.
 8. The great power experiment of the Church Age has a better confidence or hope than the dispensation of Israel which functioned under the Mosaic Law. Every Church Age believer is given the necessary portfolio in order to become an invisible hero and have historical impact. Hebrews 7:18-19 For on the one hand, there is a setting aside of the former commandment [Mosaic Law] because of its weakness and uselessness (the Law made nothing perfect), but on the other hand, there is the bringing in of a better confidence through which we draw near to [have fellowship with] God.
 9. While in the Old Testament there was a form of hope, the termination of the great power experiment of the Church Age is also related to hope. 1John 3:2-3 Beloved [royal family of God], we are now students of God, and what we will be has not yet been revealed. However, we know that when He should appear, we shall be like Him [in resurrection bodies], because we shall see Him as He is. And everyone who keeps on having this confidence in Him purifies himself even as He is pure. There is the great purity of absolute confidence.
 10. Titus 2:13 looking for the blessed hope [confidence], even the appearing of the glory of our great God and Savior, Jesus Christ.

11. The Rapture is now a confidence for us; in the future it will be a reality. Our enjoyment of our future is based upon the confidence we possess in the present. But that confidence comes from Bible doctrine. That confidence comes from fulfilling Moses' writing of Psalm 90:12 So teach us to organize our days that we might attain a right lobe of wisdom.

O. The Function of Hope in Historical Disaster.

1. The hope of a nation in crisis is related to the pivot of mature believers. The pivot is the hope of the nation in every historical disaster, Ezra 10:2. The pivot of mature believers is key.
2. If the pivot is too small and the spinoff of reversionists too great, then Ezekiel 37:11 applies: "Our hope has perished; we are completely cut off."
3. Therefore, the hope of the reversionist is useless and powerless. Job 8:13-14 So are the paths of all who forget God. Therefore the hope of the godless will perish, whose confidence is fragile and whose trust is a spider's web. Job 11:20 But the eyes of the reversionist will fail and there will be no escape for them; and their hope is in the expiring of their soul.
4. Some people never orient to life. Their problem is always the same; they cannot accept authority. Authority is the basis of all true freedom. People think they reach some point where they are the smartest around. A woman who cannot accept the authority of her husband will be miserable much of her life. She rejects his authority; and she will reject all other authorities in life. The man who rejects the authority of his boss; and becomes disoriented to life. We are a nation which has no understanding or appreciation of authority.
5. Violence in society leads to greater violence. We do not even allow criminals to take out other criminals.
6. Jeremiah could not enjoy his rw, his wealth, etc., because the nation was under historical disaster. Historical disaster is always a reminder to the reversionist that he has rejected doctrine, and therefore has rejected the only true confidence in life. Social life was shut down. Lamentations 3:17-18 My soul has been rejected from prosperity; I have forgotten the good. So I saw, my strength has perished and so has my hope from the Lord. It is a tragedy for the believer to live on the earth without carrying around in his soul that fantastic third hope.
7. The unbeliever has no hope because he has no relationship with the integrity of God. 1Thessalonians 4:13 But we do not want you to be ignorant, brothers, about those who are asleep, in order that you may not grieve like the rest who have no hope.

P. Principles of Hope for the Client Nation.

1. You cannot buy hope. Hope is not for sale. You cannot peddle hope as a politician. No politician has a right to give you hope. Hope comes from God, not from politicians.
2. You cannot legislate hope. You cannot pass laws to give people hope. That is a misuse of law. Therefore, no government can give you hope.

3. Hope is the monopoly of the word of God. Hope is a system of absolute confidence. The only hope for deliverance in historical crisis depends on the invisible heroes or pivot of mature believers.
4. Hope in the nation depends on attitude toward Bible doctrine. As goes the Church Age believer, so goes the client nation to God.
5. Only those believers who execute the protocol plan of God and become invisible heroes can be a source of deliverance of the client nation from the five cycles of divine discipline.
6. Therefore, the only hope for the client nation is related to the three categories of hope in the protocol plan of God. (See point 5.)
 - a. Hope one is absolute confidence that when you believe in Christ you have eternal life.
 - b. Hope two is absolute confidence that when you reach maturity you will receive your escrow blessings for time.
 - c. Hope three is absolute confidence that at the Judgment Seat of Christ you will receive your escrow blessings for eternity.
7. Therefore, hope is a technical monopoly belonging only to the royal family of God.
8. The pivot of invisible heroes always support freedom institutions, e.g., military establishment, law enforcement, marriage and family life, government, evangelism, Bible teaching from prepared pastors, and missionary activity. Whether these institutions succeed or not depend upon the invisible impact of invisible heroes.
9. False hope permeates the nation where Christian degeneracy predominates.

Q. Jeremiah's Absolute Hope.

1. The generals and princes of the Land hated Jeremiah because he had been warning the people about the coming of the fifth cycle of discipline. The generals and princes thought they could off set the fifth cycle of discipline by going down to Egypt for help. Zedekiah, the king of Israel, liked Jeremiah but was afraid of his generals and princes. The people generally rejected his ministry, just as they had done with Moses. Jeremiah was put in prison to try and shut him up. When that did not work, they put him in the sewage system of Jerusalem. Jeremiah had hoped that the people would respond to his message. But people came to hear him only so they could hate him more.
2. Hope is confident expectation parlayed into absolute expectation. You will never have any true happiness in life unless you hit the door of hope on God's agenda. The door of hope is your personal sense of destiny, your spiritual self-esteem. When you go through that door of hope on God's agenda, you have absolute confidence about the future. Hope is the personal eschatology you have when you deploy a personal sense of destiny on the FLOT line of your soul. Hope takes you to your personal eschatology as a problem solving device so you can meet present problems with tranquility.

3. Jeremiah's absolute hope is found in Lam 3:20-26, "Surely my soul remembers and is humbled within me. This I recall to mind, therefore I have hope. The unfailing mercies of the Lord never cease, for His compassions never fail; they are new every morning; great is Your faithfulness. My soul says, 'The Lord is my portion, therefore I have absolute confidence in Him.' The Lord is good to those who endure in the absolute confidence of hope for Him, to the soul who seeks Him. Good it is to wait and to be silent for the deliverance of the Lord."

- a. You do not learn doctrine through arrogance, but only through humility. God the Holy Spirit only controls the life of the humble believer.
- b. Jeremiah remembers because God ordered him to remember in verse 19.
- c. The believer who puts both his personal injustices and national disaster in the hands of the supreme court of heaven will not be distracted from walking through the door of hope under God's agenda.
- d. The testimony of some of Jeremiah's Bible class students is given in the following passages.
 - (1) Psalm 119:116, "Sustain me according to your word that I may live and do not let me be ashamed of my hope."
 - (2) Psalm 119:49-50, "Remember the word to your servant in which You caused me to hope. This is my comfort in stress that Your promise keeps me alive."
 - (3) Psalm 119:81, "My soul faints for Your deliverance. I hope in Your word."
 - (4) Psalm 119:13-14, "I hate double minded men. But I love Your word. You are my hiding place and my shield. I hope in Your word." (5) Psalm 119:147, "I anticipate the dawn and cry for help. I hope in Your doctrine."
- e. Jer 31:17, "And there is hope for your future. And your children will return to your own county."

R. The Other Side of the Door of Hope.

1. On the other side of the door of hope is the most fantastic spiritual life.
 - a. This spiritual life includes personal love for God the Father, God the Son, and God the Holy Spirit.
 - (1) This kind of love demands a tremendous virtue. On the other side of the door is the spiritual virtue of the adult believer. On the other side of the door is the tremendous capacity needed to truly love God. This capacity is part of the agenda by which we go through the door of hope.
 - (2) Invisible God can only be truly loved by a capacity for love which is in the soul. That capacity comes when you have passed through the door of hope and entered into the unique advanced spiritual life.

- (3) The love of the believer for God is the highest love that can exist and is quite different for the man and the woman. Spiritual virtue of the adult believer has the highest love for God. This love is without emotion.
 - b. This spiritual life on the other side of the door of hope also includes impersonal love for all mankind, sharing the happiness of God, and occupation with Christ.
2. This believer is a winner believer. He understands what Jesus Christ did in His hypostatic union with His spiritual life. He has executed the unique spiritual life of the Church Age. He has maximum spiritual virtue. He understands that the same spiritual life our Lord had in His hypostatic union has been given to him. He has spiritual self-esteem, cognitive self-confidence, the advanced problem solving devices. He has a happiness that does not depend on the circumstances of life and is, therefore, ready for momentum testing.
 - S. Hope is the solution to historical disaster. Ezra and Jeremiah; the valley of the dry bones.
 - T. The hope of the reversionist is useless and powerless.

Lesson #367

367 03/20/1978 Romans 12 Doctrine of hope (10–11): undeserved suffering; solution to historical disaster; "dry bones"

Hope is total confidence about future things. The doctrine is continued several lessons back. We cannot receive blessing from God no matter what we do; even the fulfillment of your spiritual gift. The blessings we receive in life are a down payment of what we will receive in eternity. To keep us from getting too far off, we get undeserved suffering.

All mature believers carry confidence.

Believers in government are destroying everything in the United States. If we get many more fundies in reversionism, our spinoff of believers, our nation will be destroyed. This could happen to us at any time.

368 03/21/1978 Romans 12 Doctrine of hope (12–13): re the reversionist and unbeliever; results of rejection of authority; human cf. eternal life

Romans 12:12 ...rejoicing in hope, being patient in tribulation, being constant in prayer,... (BLB)

With Reference to the Hope, the Rejoicing

1. This is a reference to the first hope. This is confident anticipation of blessing at the Judgment Seat of Christ. Paul is writing as a mature believer. This is the 3rd hope.
2. Justice of God...to the resurrection body.
3. The believer receives God's happiness as a part of his blessing in time. Therefore, Paul can command, rejoice.
4. Sharing the happiness of God.
5. The doctrine resident in the soul produces happiness.
6. Undeserved suffering focuses us on the final hope.

We don't use eternal life until we die. You cannot live in heaven without the proper life. This is why those who do not make it to maturity. You will not be rewarded at the Judgment Seat of Christ. You will end up with a resurrection body and a bonfire. How can you live on my plantation forever and it is heaven? We won't be sorry in heaven and we won't even be weirdos in heaven. If you are the biggest failure in heaven, you won't be the least bit upset. No equality in heaven. Even if you are the worst believer in time, you will have no regrets and you will be happy. The worst cluck who was saved will have capacity for life in heaven. Yet, even those who did nothing will have no regrets and they will not be jealous of Paul. We are only using our human life capacities now; but we will have eternal life capacities in the future.

Here, we have regrets from time to time; here we make mistakes. But no regrets in heaven. There will be no reforming or fixing our lives.

Setting goals for achievement is legitimate, as long as your motivation is not I'll show them! One of the achievers went through Rangers twice. He was enthusiastic about it.

369 03/22/1978 Romans 12:12b UN resolution and Rhodesia; undeserved suffering; doctrine of prayer and distortion of promises

We will study every concept of divine establishment in Romans 13. We are spot on by our Constitution; but not by our UN. We are taking orders from all kinds of people. We are being destroyed as a nation very rapidly.

Undeserved suffering refocuses us on eternal things.

Romans 12:12 ...rejoicing in hope, being patient in tribulation, being constant in prayer,...

Some of the words I believe had already been examined back right before the Doctrine of Hope. This is faith-resting the third hope.

What follows is 3 paragraphs and a short doctrine which may belong with Lesson #369.

“patient in tribulation” – undeserved suffering is a part of the imputation of blessing in time. More than that, undeserved suffering gives us the eternal perspective in a period of prosperity. Undeserved suffering refocuses to the perspective of the future in a time of great blessing and prosperity. This equals the third hope: absolute confidence that when we stand in a resurrection body at the judgment seat of Christ we will receive great blessing and reward which is the seventh imputation, the means of glorifying God forever. The phrase begins with the dative of reference singular from the noun thlipsis (θλίψις) [pronounced THLIP-siss] which means pressure, undeserved suffering in this case. Plus the present active participle from the compound verb hupomenō (ὑπομένω) [pronounced hoop-om-EHN-oh] which means to remain, to stay behind, to remain instead of fleeing, to wait for someone, to stand still, to stand fast, to stand firm against a hostile attack. Translation: “with reference to the pressure of undeserved suffering, stand fast.” The present tense is an aoristic present for punctiliar action in present time. Here the undeserved suffering is anticipated in the present time as a part of the imputation of divine blessing at maturity. The active voice: the mature believer produces the action of the verb in time of undeserved suffering.

Principle

1. Standing fast in undeserved suffering involves faith-resting the 3rd hope, the utilization of the confidence found in the 3rd hope. That hope is absolute confidence about a future thing, something that has not yet occurred. The believer who has cracked the maturity barrier from time to time is going to receive undeserved suffering as a part of his blessing. This undeserved suffering merely stimulates his confidence in the future, knowing that at the resurrection he will stand to receive his great rewards.
2. Undeserved suffering is imputed as blessing from the justice of God. Therefore it requires an entirely different attitude. There is no redress of grievance when the justice of God provides undeserved suffering to the mature believer. Undeserved suffering from the justice of God demands that the mature believer stand fast. Hence, undeserved suffering acts as a stimulus to the third hope as a laser beam penetrating into eternity, penetrating beyond the barriers of time.
3. The mature believer in the midst of prosperity may lose his focus with regard to eternal reward and blessing, therefore the justice of God provides undeserved suffering designed to refocus on eternity. This acts as an ignition switch to crank up confidence in eternal reward.

“continuing instant in prayer” – present active participle from the compound verb proskarteréō (προσκαρτερέω) [pronounced pros-kar-ter-EH-oh] [πρός (πρός) [pronounced pross] = face to face with; karteréō (καρτερέω) [pronounced kar-ter-EH-oh] = endure] which means persist. In time of undeserved suffering you can't run around and complain but you do have one thing open to you: prayer. Then the locative singular of sphere from the noun proseuchê (προσευχή) [pronounced pros-yoo-KHAY] which means prayer. The principle is that maximum exploitation of prayer is the prerogative of the mature believer. This exploitation reaches its peak when you are standing fast in a period of undeserved suffering. Prayer is a grace instrument of great power in the hands of a mature believer.

New believers do not need someone to tell them what to do. They do not know how to do anything. They cannot prayer. Bobby was at least 7 years old before firing his first .45 or shotgun. What a new believer needs is Bible doctrine.

Prayer requires concentration. You need to get to a point where you can concentrate for 25 minutes in Bible class.

With all the weapons we have, the infantry does the job. The larger the better.

The greatest weapon today, which is 6000 years old, is prayer.

Basic Prayer Instructions

1. Do not pray to the Holy Spirit or to Jesus. All prayer is directed to God the Father by the power of the Holy Spirit standing upon the work of Jesus Christ. Matthew. 6:9 1Peter 1:17
2. We pray to God as our own priest; we are royal priests. We pray privately for the most part.
3. You do not need to use 15th century pronouns in prayer.
4. As a royal priest, we have a right to prayer and God is anxious to answer our prayers.
5. Safeties on prayer:
 - a. Prayer effectiveness is dependent upon doctrine in the soul.
 - b. Prayer is an extension of the faith-rest technique.
 - c. Prayer demands cognizance of the will of God.
 - d. Prayer must be offered in a spiritual status.
 - e. Mental attitude sins resulting from carnality and reversionism destroy effectiveness in prayer. Psalm 66:18
 - f. You need to be grace oriented.
6. Four stages:
 - a. Be prepared to pray. Are you in fellowship?
 - b. Warm up the weapon properly; engage in thanksgiving.
 - c. Intercession; pray for others.
 - d. Pray for whatever was on your mind in the first place.
7. Why prayers are not answered:

- a. Some prayers are rejected because they are just to satisfy a person's lusts.
- b. Malfunction of the faith-rest technique.
- c. Lack of subordination to divine authority and to delegated authority.
- d. Disobeying clear mandates of God.
- e. Lack of domestic tranquility.
- f. Lack of compassion and grace orientation.

Bob gave more points than I recorded here.

Bob when he shoots, does not want to be next to someone who has never shot a .45 before. Know your range manners; don't try to clear your gun, pointing it all over.

Our bulletin is a prayer list; who's dying, who is about to die, etc.; military types, police officers.

Women asking for a man. Or men, think about the things that you have prayed for.

Like a .45, prayer as a weapon has many safeties associated with it.

Romans 12:12 With reference to hope [the 3rd hope], be rejoicing; with reference to the pressure of undeserved suffering, stand fast; persist in prayer.

Lesson #370

370 03/23/1978 Romans 12:13 Fellowship of the royal family of God; doctrine of refreshment (from doctrine) and psychotic Saul

We assemble not for fellowship; but to grow spiritually. Not all believers are honest or are honorable; that should never discourage you. Too many churches are a lonely hearts club; they are a brotherhood; and that is not the purpose of a church.

There are some in the congregation that Bob would not trust; he'd shoot them first in order to feel safe. A large church absorbs your stupidity; a small church reveals it. Bob started with 70 people and it went down to 35.

Romans 12:13 ...contributing to the needs of the saints, pursuing hospitality. (BLB)

Verse 13 – the fellowship of the royal family of God. “Distributing to the necessity of saints” – the present active participle from the verb koinōnēō (κοινωνέω) [pronounced koy-no-NEH-oh] which means to share, to have a share, and also to contribute. The present tense is a perfective present, it denotes the continuation of existing results in the mature believer related to blessing by association. The progressive present says “Contribute.” The active voice: the mature believer produces the action of the verb. The participle is the imperative participle, used exclusively in the Koine and the papyri type Greek. It is translated “Contribute to.” It emphasizes the fact that mature believers have something to contribute to other believers in their periphery. The pivot of the local church is made up of its mature believers and their very presence in the local church is a means of blessing. They are not any particular category in the local church, they are found in all categories. They are simply people who have cracked the maturity barrier. Some might not be seen to be doing anything, but their very presence becomes the basis of blessing by association.

Then the dative plural indirect object from chreia (χρεία) [pronounced KHRI-ah]. It indicates the ones in whose interest the blessing by association is performed. All believers are blessed if there is any mature believer in their periphery. The dative plural indirect object means the needs. “Contribute to the needs.” At first this may seem to indicate giving money to people. It does not exclude that but it is much greater than that. It means basically you contribute to the needs of others by reaching maturity yourself. Your greatest contribution to other people is to take in doctrine on a daily basis until you have cracked the maturity barrier. A mature believer will be prospered in so many ways that he is now in a position to be gracious and generous and helpful to others.

Next is a descriptive genitive plural from hagios (ἅγιος) [pronounced HA-gee-oss] referring to believers in general. It is translated “saints” but that means royal family.

1. This is obeyed by your intake of doctrine, reaching maturity yourself.

2. It is obeyed after you reach maturity by the sharing of whatever blessing God has provided for you, when the occasion arises. This also relates to your spiritual gift as well.

“given to hospitality” – the present active participle of diôkô (διώκω) [pronounced Dee-OH-koh], which means to pursue, to aspire to. It is translated “be pursuing.” The progressive present is linear aktionsart—“keep on pursuing.” The active voice: the mature believer produces the action of the verb. This doesn’t mean that you can’t be hospitable until you reach maturity, far from it. The participle is an imperative participle. It is an order. The accusative singular direct object is philonexía (φιλονεξία) [pronounced fil-on-ex-EE-ah]—“hospitality”—“be pursuing the hospitality.”

Romans 12:13 Contribute to the needs of the saints; be pursuing the hospitality.

Doctrine of Refreshment

A. Definition.

1. While refreshment in the English connotes having food and drink, in the Bible it means to restore the strength of the soul, to revive the divine viewpoint in the function of a soul, and to do so apart from the pastor's function of Bible teaching.
2. It means to provide stimulation and blessing for the soul of an individual without teaching doctrine.
3. It also means to supply what is necessary for spiritual blessing in time of adversity or disaster.

4. The Greek verb anapsuchō (ἀναψύχω) [pronounced an-aps-OO-khoh] means to breath again and again, or to revive the soul. Your life should be a source of blessing to others, true sentimental friendship.
 5. You have the basis through Bible doctrine to communicate warmth, friendship, stability, and encouragement. You should be able to find refreshment from the friendship of others. Your true friends will be those taking in doctrine.
 6. Refreshment is a relaxed mental attitude, forgiveness of others, and being a blessing by association.
 7. Refreshment connotes a temporary solution or interlude of enjoyment. Doctrine is both a permanent solution and a temporary refreshment.
- B. The Alleviation of Saul's Psychosis.
1. When Saul became jealous of David, he temporarily went psychotic. David played a stringed instrument to refresh Saul's soul, 1Samuel 16:23. David's musical therapy reached Saul's soul and calmed his fits.
 2. Refreshment, then, is used for soul recovery and blessing. In this case it was temporary alleviation but did not solve the problem.
 3. People can be refreshing to you; but that friendship does not necessarily solve your problems in life. You do not take a psychotic woman to a party. This is because social life does not solve any psychosis.
 4. The phrase "evil spirit from God" refers to God's permissive control of history. God permitted Satan to have a demon torment Saul.
- C. The Tristich of Doctrinal Refreshment, Prov 25:13.
1. A tristich is a three-line poem. The first line is the illustration of the next two lines. Proverbs 25:13 Like the cold of snow in the time of harvest [a hot day] is a faithful messenger [pastor-teacher] to those who send for him. He refreshes the soul of his masters.
 2. Refreshment is a temporary solution. You can have ice water on a cold day, but you will still be thirsty again.
 3. Refreshment that comes to believers comes through the one who is faithful in communication of doctrine. The personality of the messenger is not the issue, but the refreshing message he brings. The point of total refreshment is maturity. The mature believer is then a refreshment to those associated with him.
 4. Sometimes you come into the auditorium and you are exhausted or upset; and the teaching might pick you up; and give you refreshment. Sometimes, there are certain topics which you find to be refreshing.
- D. The rejection of refreshment means national discipline, Isaiah 28:8-14 cf Acts 3:19.
1. "Times of refreshing" is the revival of Bible doctrine in the soul of believers resulting in doctrine, which gives you capacity for life and periods of national prosperity.
 2. The Northern Kingdom was so negative to doctrine that they wouldn't even listen to refreshing Bible doctrine.

3. Acts 3:19 says that if you change your mind about Bible doctrine and go back and listen to all of the doctrine that hurts and cuts you down to size, then you will find doctrine that will bring refreshment to your soul.

E. Response to the Word of God is called refreshment, Romans 15:32; 2Corinthians 7:13. The Corinthian's response to doctrine refreshed Titus, so that Paul desired to enjoy the same refreshment with them. All spiritual growth is related to the amount of doctrine in your right lobe. Sometimes you are stimulated by what is being taught; and sometimes you are not.

1. You never compare yourself to others. You compare your own self to the standards of the Word of God.
2. 2Corinthians 7:13 For this reason we have been comforted and beside our comfort we rejoice even more for the happiness of Titus, because his spirit has been refreshed by all of you.
3. The refreshment that comes when a congregation responds to the teaching of a pastor-teacher.

F. All mature believers have a ministry of refreshment as part of their blessing by association.

1. 1Corinthians 16:17-18 lists three men who were loyal friends and a source of blessing and refreshment to Paul. I rejoice at the coming of Stephanas and Fortunatus and Achaicus, because they have supplied what was lacking on your part, for they refreshed my spirit as well as yours. Therefore, acknowledge such men.
2. In Phile 7 and 20, Philemon had been a refreshment to other believers in the past, and now Paul asks Philemon to be a refreshment to him. Philemon 7 For I have derived much happiness and encouragement by your love, my brother, because the hearts of the royal family have been refreshed through you. Philemon 20 Very well, brother, let me have benefit from you in the Lord. Refresh my deep affections in Christ.
3. In 2Timothy 1:16, Onesiphorus refreshed Paul. He was one of Paul's greatest friends. The Lord give mercy to the family of Onesiphorus [who has died] because many times he has refreshed me and was not ashamed of my chains.

Lesson #371

371 03/24/1978 Romans 12 Doctrines of refreshment (pts. 5–6) and blessing by association (pts. 1–7); service organizations

The points for the doctrine of refreshment are place with the previous lesson.

Romans 12:13 Contribute to the needs of the saints; be pursuing the hospitality.

Principle

1. In verse 13 are two imperatives. These are imperative participles and they emphasize a command to mature believers, a command which is related to the principle of blessing by association.^[10] Refreshment is a part of the principle.^[11]
2. Blessing by association is category #3 in the imputation of divine blessing to the mature believer.
3. Blessing by association is the overflow of divine blessing to those in the periphery of the mature believer.
4. Blessing by association belongs to the believer who has attained spiritual maturity.
5. Spiritual maturity is the time of the 6th imputation blessing. Inasmuch as all spiritual maturity is attained through maximum doctrine resident in the soul this begins, then, with the gift of pastor-teacher. No one can exceed the spiritual growth of his own pastor, hence it all begins with the pastoral periphery.

All blessing goes from the righteousness of God to the justice of God.

Blessing by Association

- A. Definition. Blessing by association is the overflow of divine blessing imparted to the mature believer. It is one of the categories of blessing which go through the grace pipeline to the mature believer. Every mature believer has people associated with him, believers or unbelievers, who receive blessing as a result of their association with him. This is one of the reasons why the wicked prosper.
- B. The Source of Blessing by Association.
 1. Direct blessing from God goes to the person in association with the mature believer.
 2. Indirect blessing from God occurs because the mature believer provides the blessing from his own prosperity. In fulfillment of Romans 12:13, he "contributes to the needs of the saints." The mature believer gives of his time, wealth, success, love, personality, and whatever the category of his prosperity might be.
- C. The Peripheries of Blessing by Association.
 1. The spiritual periphery is the local church.
 - a. A local church can make or break you. If the pastor is a jackass, you've had it. Local churches and Christian service organizations are destroying the objective of the Christian way of life, and have done more to distract believers than anything else.
 - b. Programs are distractions and do not cause spiritual growth. You are blessed by Bible doctrine communicated from the pastor. You are also blessed by association with someone else in the congregation.

c. When you get sucked into "improving the world," "social action," or "getting involved," then you lose out on being a blessing by association to others. Stay away from reform movements. You only save the country by taking in doctrine and reaching maturity.

2. Loved ones are a periphery of blessing, to include your husband or wife, children, mother or father. One mature family member blesses the entire family. You coast uphill when someone in your periphery cracks the maturity barrier. Any relative in your family can be blessed by your advance to maturity.
 3. Professional life periphery includes your school system, coaches, teachers, students, administrators; hospital system; business associates; military organization; or any service organization.
 4. Business association periphery includes a partnership, corporation, an investor, labor, or management.
 5. Social periphery includes friends. However, be careful that you don't run around with the wrong crowd and get led astray. You will find your friends among like-minded believers. Stick with them. Watch out; don't run with unbelievers, because they are going in a different direction.
 6. Geographical periphery includes your neighborhood, city, county, state, or nation.
- D. The Heritage Aspect of Blessing by Association. When the mature believer dies, he is still a blessing by association to those left behind after his death. Those left behind are taken care of throughout their lifetime by God, even if they are antagonistic to Bible doctrine or are unbelievers. God continues to bless the bereaved loved ones, friends, and relatives.
- E. Blessing by association overflows into historical impact. See the doctrine of the Pivot.
- F. Blessing by association overflows into objectivity of the Christian life. Romans 12:14, "Keep on speaking well of those who persecute you and do not curse them."
- G. Blessing by association is related to the rapport of the royal family of God, Romans 12:15.

1977 Romans

Lesson #372

372 03/26/1978 Romans 12:14 (Easter) Seven imputations; poise and objectivity under persecution; legitimate purpose of hazing

That God has a plan for your life is true; but what exactly this entails is not understood. Some people who tell you that God has a plan for your life, they are looking for funds or to fulfill their own particular bend.

The intrinsic good equation and imputations.

Romans 12:14 Bless those persecuting you. Bless and do not curse;...

Verse 14 – “Bless them which persecute you” begins with the present active imperative of the verb eulogeō (εὐλογέω) [pronounced you-lohg-EH-oh], and it does not mean to bless. It ordinarily means to speak well of someone. The present tense is a descriptive present, sometimes called a pictorial present because it presents to the mind a picture of events in the process of occurrence—being under great pressure of persecution and speaking well of the persecutor. The active voice: the mature believer produces the action of the verb as a part of his objectivity and poise. To be objective where your enemies are concerned is certainly the test of objectivity. Poise and presence under persecution always leaves the matter in the Lord’s hands so that the justice of God can deal directly with the matter. Next is the accusative plural direct object from the definite article used as a near demonstrative, and it should be translated “Speak well of those.”

Plus the present active participle of the verb diōkō (διώκω) [pronounced Dee-OH-koh]. In the previous verse this word meant to pursue in a good sense, but here in a bad sense—persecute. While you pursue hospitality you are being pursued by those who follow the Satanic policy of good and evil. There are always do-gooders, those who feel that their job in life is to mind everyone else’s business, who persecute in the sense of telling you how to live your life, how to dress, what to do, etc. There is no personal pronoun in the Greek, though it is implied—“you.” “Speak well of those who persecute you” does not mean that every time someone runs you down you have to say something nice about it, it merely indicates the application of pressure of your life. The pressure does not reach your soul; the self-consciousness is not damaged by the pressure; your mentality understands it. Some of the worst persecution comes from those who have no authority in life at all: believers in local churches.

“bless and curse not” – present active imperative of the same verb. The verb is repeated because this is the application of the relaxed mental attitude of poise and objectivity in the soul. This time it is the retroactive progressive present denoting what begins at maturity and continues throughout one’s life when undeserved suffering occurs. The active voice: the mature believer produces the action of the verb. The imperative is the imperative of command, “keep on speaking well.” It doesn’t mean that you always speak, but speaking covers two factors. Always it covers what you think, then what you say. What you think is indicated by what you say. In the worst pressures of life you must think. You cannot become one who emotes. Next comes the connective kai, “and,” plus the final command, the negative mê (μή) [pronounced may] with kataraomai (καταράομαι) [pronounced kat-ar-AH-om-ah-ee] which means to curse, to implicate, to wish evil. It is an antagonistic attitude. You cannot become antagonistic in pressure situations and still think. And think you must under pressure. This is an aoristic present for reaction, reaction under pressure; punctiliar action in present time. It means you react in a way which indicates that you have no function of the mentality under pressure. The middle voice: this is a deponent verb, it is middle in form but active in meaning. Only the mature believer can do this because he has enough doctrine to do it. The imperative is the imperative of prohibition.

Romans 12:14 Speak well of those that persecute you, and do not curse them.

Principle

1. There is no greater test of poise and objectivity than when under fire of antagonism and persecution, or when you are in a situation where people are observing you and expect the best for you and where you have a hang-up of arrogance.
2. For the believer this objectivity keeps the matter in the Lord's hands, recognizing the function of the justice of God as far more capable of dealing with the matter.
3. Furthermore, such hostility and persecution is for the mature believer undeserved suffering designed to stimulate the function of hope for the future blessings which are far greater.
4. Undeserved suffering is that laser beam which penetrates the barriers of time into the eternal future as it ignites and stimulates the third hope. Inevitably the whole matter brings the believer around to the principle of occupation with Christ.

1977 Romans

Lesson #373

373 03/26/1978 Romans 12:15 Doctrine of the royal family honor code; aristocratic thought; tabooism; true rapport

Bob calls religious celebrations as a blasphemous celebration of nothing. Easter is over.

Reviewing the honor code (which is found many times in Romans 12). The next chapter and a half is all about the Royal Family Honor Code.

The Royal Family Honor Code (a review/summary)

1. Bob is talking about a person who respects those of the royal priesthood. Right thinking leads to right function. The honor code of the believer is based upon the fact that every believer has received God's righteousness. This centers on the fact that the possession of God's righteousness, means that you have God's integrity. The honor code means that the believer should function within the grace code of the honor code. The principle of privacy, the true system of production, the priorities of the Word of God are emphasized.
2. The privacy of the royal priesthood is fundamental. No one has the right to interfere with you, with some exceptions. The management can set up standards; parents can set standards for their children. Standards are required in business and in certain professions. When you are in a Christian school, you follow their standards. If you have to do with certain things, that is their business. Live and let live. That is our right in Berachah Church until we abuse our freedom. Abuses of gossip, taking advantage of other Christians. Everyone has standards. When we see others violating our standards. Once they see our frown, they will certainly want to improve. That violates the royal priesthood. We have a right to grow in Berachah Church, without anyone knowing our name phone or address. Loving the brethren does not mean that we have to speak to them. This privacy means that you can grow without interacting with others. Someone called up Bob and gave her name and she was sure that Bob knew all about her. He knew nothing about her.

3. We need to have no mental attitude sins toward others.
4. The honor code recognizes the privacy of others.
5. The honor code respects integrity; but is not immortal. Morality is the means of compliance to the laws of divine establishment. The filling of the Spirit is not necessary to fulfill the standards of morality. Integrity is totally beyond the unbeliever. The honor code demands something higher than the honor code. Morality is designed for the fulfillment of divine establishment. Grace oriented people do not advocates for antinomianism.
6. The honor code excludes Christian production as the means of blessing from the justice of God. Any form of Christian works, production, talent and self-sacrifice. are excluded from the reception of blessing. The attainment of maturity is the only source of divine blessing.
7. Total dependence upon the integrity of God is called hope. $X+Y+Z = \text{plan of God}$
8. Therefore, the honor code is related to divine imputation. 2 imputations in every radical.
9. Summary of the honor code:
 - a. Honor code is related to God, nation and people.
 - b. Morality of establishment with emphasis on live and let live, is included; but the integrity of the believer surpasses this.
 - c. The privacy of the royal priesthood includes live and let live as unto the Lord.
 - d. Understand the objectives delineated by hope 1, 2 and 3; legitimate production and legalism are excluded from blessing. We are ambassadors. Rightly dividing the word of truth goes beyond dispensationalism.
 - e. The divine plan of God is related to the function.
 - f. Both cognizance and dependence on the integrity of God. We depend upon His integrity and righteousness. The filling of the Spirit is necessary.

Romans 12:15 ...to rejoice with the rejoicing, to weep with the weeping;...

Verse 15 – rapport in the royal family of God. Rapport means relationship; a relationship of harmony, conformity, accord, and affinity. It does not mean to cater—to self-pity, to introversion. It does mean to share the same capacity for life, mental attitude, integrity and esprit décor. Rapport depends on the filling of the Spirit, and it becomes an extension of the honor code. There is no rapport without mutual positive volition toward doctrine. Doctrine is the basis for true rapport.

“Rejoice with them who rejoice” – present active infinitive of chairô (χαίρω) [pronounced KHAI-row], the word for rejoice. It also means to be glad, to be delighted, to be happy; plus it is used as a greeting in the second person singular present active imperative. The present tense is a progressive present which denotes a state of persistence or linear aktionsart. The active voice: the believer produces the action of the verb, especially the advancing or mature believer. The infinitive is used as the imperative, as per Classical Greek. Then the prepositional phrase meta plus the genitive plural of the present active participle of chairô (χαίρω) [pronounced KHAI-row]—“with those who rejoice.” The present tense is an aoristic present, meaning they aren’t going to rejoice very long but while they are happy, be happy with them. Rapport must be compatibility with the mood of the moment. Translation: “Rejoice with those who rejoice.” Rapport is sharing the enthusiasms of others, but also rapport is being aware of the moods of others. This is a passage of rapport, not copying, not aping someone else.

Rapport is sharing the enthusiasms of a group. All mental attitude sins make you self-centered and insensitive to the feelings of others. Never a reason to be boorish to others. You malign others to build up yourself in your own eyes. This is the same insensitivity. Remember to live your life in the Royal Family Honor Code. You talk down someone else because you want someone to like you more. If you cannot enter into a relationship with someone on the basis of your own person and not on the basis of destroying the character of someone else, then you are not fit for Christian society. Bob resents the destruction of some adjectives, like using gay to describe a party. That is rejoicing with those who rejoice. This is a passage of rapport, not copying someone else.

The word “and” is not found in the original. This is merely the other side of rapport. There is the present active infinitive of klaiô (κλαίω) [pronounced KLAH-yoh] which doesn’t mean simply to cry but to be expressing an unhappy situation: bad news, disaster, whatever it is. The progressive present denotes a state of persistence. The active voice: the believer is producing the action. The infinitive is again the imperative infinitive. Plus the preposition meta, the genitive plural present active participle of klaiô (κλαίω) [pronounced KLAH-yoh] again—“weep with those who weep.” Weeping is used in the sense of hurting for some reason.

Romans 12:15 Rejoice with those who rejoice, weep with those who weep.

Rapport with those who are suffering or in agony requires even more doctrine than the first command, so really it is an advance. If people are sad, disturbed, upset because they are in suffering for some reason, and you walk in, you cannot have rapport with them unless you have some depth to you. This doesn’t mean to work up a cry, it has to do with the person who has depth from the honor code, depth from doctrine, to enter into the same mood, to slip in and be a part of the picture without being stupid. This is simply harmony and rapport for believers in their time of trouble. It is rapport of sympathy which does not include any emotional binge in which self-pity is encouraged so that one feels sorry for himself even more than before.

Lesson #374

374 03/27/1978 Romans 12:16a Teutonic and Celtic behavior; transformed by thought (Bible doctrine); authority; mental attitude

When the Ostragoths, the Visagoths, the Franks, etc. began to move into the Roman world. They were a wild and undisciplined people. They were in the process of destroying themselves. Undisciplined Teutonic peoples. The Mongols began to put pressure on them.

Northern Spain became one of the most stabilized countries. Only thought stabilizes a free people. Thought refers to divine establishment. The Romans had a great nation of 1000 years. They were a disciplined people; they oriented to authority. Freedom is not the secret to the greatness of a people, but discipline and orientation to authority. Freedom depends upon authority.

Napoleon took a rabble and turned them into a great army. Napoleon was much better oriented to life than anyone of those the write about him. Since Cæsar, Napoleon did more to shape history. Authority in itself is meaningless if

The biggest, the toughest, the meanest require authority and guidance. They survive by agreeing to the authority.

Thinking is necessary for a republic to do well. Thinking people are not taken in by a lot of soap selling. The weakness is to extend the franchise to the emotionally impressionable. Thought has left us. Only a few think in terms of Bible doctrine; or think in terms of divine establishment.

Christianity does not sponsor any form of government; Christianity functions under any form of government. Christians are the stability of any form of government.

Even under slavery, Christianity can exist and there can be mature believers living there. Authority must be recognized wherever it is.

The birth of western civilization is Bible doctrine, not Greek philosophy.

Systems of doctrine is what changes history.

What about modern history?

In Communism, authority is strongly enforced; they don't fool around. And they have said, "The world is ours; we have the system." The only thing that will overtake them is Christianity. Before we can interpret one line of v. 16, we must come to where a thought is. Even good muscle is built up on a system of authority.

The word France is a German word. Most of the people of western Europe are of German origin, except for certain Celtic areas.

Huguenots in Prussia established a great army; and they took an obedience oath to the land and to Jesus Christ.

Prussia became Germany in 1870. The balance of power in Europe has never been solved in that region. Marxism v. others.

Our own system worked for a relatively short time. Only responsible people should be a part of the franchise. When foreigners come into the United States, they do not think like we think; and they do not understand our government.

We have become the melting pot of thought in the United States. Our responsibility in the United States as believers is greater today than it was 200 years ago.

When you become a believer and have moved out of the [X] you must come to some thoughts about other people. Not vengeful thoughts or how you can prove you are better than them, not subjective thinking, but objective thinking. From the point on, we have the honor code in focus and the fact that no man lives alone on this earth.

Romans 12:16 ...minding the same thing toward one another, not minding the things haughty, but going along with the lowly. Do not be wise in yourselves,... (BLB)

Verse 16 – “Be of the same mind one toward another.” The present active participle of the verb phroneō (φρονέω) [pronounced fron-EH-oh] means to think. This verse does not mean that your thinking should form into a cookie cutter and that you should think exactly the same as someone else thinks. This word means to think, and it also means to hold an opinion. The present tense is a progressive present, it indicates action in a state of persistence. The active voice: the believer produces the action of the verb in obedience to the divine command. The participle is the imperative use peculiar to Koine Greek, this is a command—“Keep thinking.”

Rome brought the Celtic peoples and the Latin peoples all under Roman rule. Client nations were developed from these many little nations.

Then the accusative neuter singular direct object from the attributive use of the intensive pronoun autós (αὐτός) [pronounced ow-TOSS], translated “the same.” The attributive intensive pronoun is comparable to an adjective, and adjective without a noun, an adjective not qualifying a noun for the noun has to be implied by the passage. So we must put in something which is comparable. “Be thinking the same mental attitude.” Not the same things, not the same thoughts, but be thinking in the sphere of the same mental attitude. Believers are required to have the same mental attitude. Doctrine turns Barbarians into great nations of consequence.

This thinking falls into categories. First there is thinking toward God, then there is thinking toward self—the analyzing of your own life in the light of the standards of Bible doctrine. Then there is thinking about others. Then comes a prepositional phrase, eis (εἰς) [pronounced ICE] plus the accusative plural from the reciprocal pronoun allélōn (ἀλλήλων) [pronounced al-LAY-lohn]—“toward one another.” Whatever your thoughts about another believer may be, your thinking must enshroud that person in privacy.

If you are ashamed of your home, your clothing, your job; there is something wrong with you. You have failed to see the number of your assets from Bible doctrine.

375 03/28/1978 Romans 12:16b Communist objectives; Wedemeyer; Stalin's 6-point program; Picasso; mental attitude of the honor code

Certain groups of people were changed when they heard the gospel message. They were changed and became western European civilization. This is the rise of Christianity.

Frederick Holenzowen was not a typical Teutonic type. Short, not tall; dark, not blonde. His father was a giant Teutonic type. His father decided that Prussia could become central Europe. His son did not pick up on any of these things.

He had a thought and he turned over everything. One thought and everything is changed.

The US developed a magnificent fighting force. Many of them had a different attitude; they suffered from a loss of thought and became manifest in another war in a very strange way.

The communists conquer by violence and they are also clever animals. They respect violence and use it to the maximum and they are the greatest system of tyranny than the world has ever known.

A buffalo is one of the dangerous animals, as he is smart or powerful. Communists are very much like them. Communists know that they can be resisted by those who carry a thought. The thought that resists communism.

Edward Hunter spoke to the House of Un-American Activities. The object of modern warfare is to capture intact the minds of the American people and their things.

"War has changed its form," Mr. Hunter declared. "The Communists have discovered that a man killed by a bullet is useless. He can dig no coal. They have discovered that a demolished city is useless. Its mills produce no cloth. The objective of Communist warfare is to capture intact the minds of the people and their possessions, so they can be put to use. This is the modern conception of slavery, that puts all others in the kindergarten age.

2 BRAINWASHING

"The United States is the main battlefield in this Red war. I mean specifically the people and the soil and the resources of the United States.

"It should be obvious to anyone who has observed the so-called cold war that the United States is its principal target. We need only read what the Communists themselves say, but we refuse to do so, exactly as we could not believe that Hitler meant what he said in Mein Kampf."

"The first battles in this total war have already been won by the forces of international communism in the United States. These victories are identical to those they have won in every country which they have ultimately taken over. -• They have succeeded in softening up a large element of the American population, particularly among those to whom we look for guidance, our so-called intellectuals and our so-called liberal circles. They have succeeded in making the United States think and talk of a coexistence period as if that were an end in itself; while in other parts of the world, as in India, the Reds frankly explain that this coexistence is merely intended to give the Americans an easy way to choose their road toward communism.

"This is strategy. The Kremlin is merely giving the United States a choice of surrendering by voluntary change of attitude, to avoid more destructive ways of surrender. Unfortunately, in the United States, large elements, mainly among our non-Communist population, have been softened up into believing that if we can just stall on this situation, it will take care of itself. The Reds have succeeded in inducing business communities to look to Soviet trade as a means of restoring prosperity. Large business elements, with all their financial and other resources, are now being used to help the Communist objective of softening up America for recognition and acceptance of Red China, for instance."

Bob learned a lot from a General Albert Wedemeyer. The soviet union are attaining their objectives without weapons.

What did these two men see that we don't? They could tell that Americans stopped thinking like Americans and that we thought like central European liberals. We look like refugees from Bohemia, even more true today.

They began with the concept of communism, that man is an animal without a soul. His intent is to dominate the rest of the animals. Thesis + antithesis = synthesis.

"War to the hilt between communism and the United States is inevitable."

Every advance that the communists have made was given to them from the United States. Their trucks and armor and weapons systems all from the United States. Unheard of peace overtures. The communists know the way to conquer the United States is to take over their thinking. To remove their thinking and make them animals or slaves. The United States will rejoice to participate in our own destruction.

A double-think policy. So that no blood will be shed, we kill, kill, kill.

It began when Joe Stalin began studying the illuminati. Reason must become the religion of man. The abolition of inheritance. Our socialized state is destroying the principle of inheritance. The abolition of family life. The abolition of religion. Totally anti-establishment.

Stalin set forth a plan to destroy the United States without ever firing a shot. A 6 point platform.

Six Point

1. Furtherance of atheism, discredit Christian creeds and doctrine. People who think with doctrine will resist.
2. There must be the destruction of marriage. The family is replaced by the state. Children are removed from their homes by ages 6 or 7 or earlier.
3. In the realm of the aesthetic cultivate the ugly and perverted. Libro Nero translated an interview with Pablo Picasso. Most people cannot expect to receive consolation and ...from the arts. I have fed the critics all the ridiculous ideas that passed through my head. I am rich and I am only a public clown. I have exploited the greed of my contemporaries.
4. Create unrest suspicion among the classes. Promote class warfare.
5. Set up the idea of thinking internationally. Ridicule nationalism and patriotism. International friendship and disarmament. Never relaxing our own efforts in build up our own military.

They were to seek out churches and to set up communistic thinking. This helps to explain what has taken place in the United States.

Bob will later teach what happened in the 1950s. We have lost the thing that made us a nation. Bob will teach this later.

Romans 12:16 ...minding the same thing toward one another, not minding the things haughty, but going along with the lowly. Do not be wise in yourselves,...

Be thinking the same mental attitude toward one another. This does not mean to have the same thoughts but to have the same mental attitude. The relationship with other believers does not require you to exchange words or to socialize.

We are robbed of thought and we have accepted the whole Satanic system of good and evil.

As believers, we are going to have different ideas as to what we should eat and drink; and there are all of these differences based upon superficial differences. These are the things which divide believers.

You judge others because they do not meet your own superficial standards. You judge people based upon what you see.

The closest that we have ever come to an honor code was the United States army. It was a great system of integrity developed for West Point. The idea is, there are collections of men with completely different personalities. It is basic, it is fundamental and you cannot function apart from it.

Believers with different personalities should be able to have a rapport without getting into all of these petty disputes. It all begins with being able to have a thought.

You require the filling of the Spirit and the doctrine of the Word of God.

We have brought our system of competition into Christianity and this is arrogance. Rejoice with those who rejoice and weep with those who weep. This is take people, some of whom are opposites. Opposites do not attract. Opposites never attract. This is why some married couples do not have the same set of friends over any amount of time, because they are difficult to be around.

The Christian honor code means that you might be around other believers who are different from you as day is from night. You will never stand up in this church and say “I love you.” That may take place outside in the parking lot, but that was not sponsored by this church.

You need to let a thought through, even if it is like having a hemorrhoid-ectomy.

“Mind not high things” – the present active participle of phroneō (φρονέω) [pronounced fron-EH-oh] which brings us back to thought, this time with the negative mê (μή) [pronounced may] used with the participle to indicate that this is an imperative participle. This is an imperative of prohibition. It is a descriptive present tense plus the negative indicating what should not be going on. The active voice: the believer produces the action as a member of the royal family of God becoming cognizant of the honor code.

The accusative neuter plural direct object from the adjective hupsēlos (ύψηλός) [pronounced hoop-say-LOSS] means high, lofty elevation. It speaks here of arrogance, high things referring to arrogant ambition. “Do not be thinking in terms of arrogance.” Arrogance is the great enemy to the royal family honor code, to living the Christian life.

Romans 12:16a Be thinking the same toward each other. Do not be thinking in terms of arrogance,...

“but condescend to men of low degree” – the adversative conjunction allá (ἀλλά) [pronounced ahl-LAH] sets up a contrast that eliminates arrogance, “but.” Plus the present middle participle from sunapágō (συναπάγω) [pronounced soon-ap-AHG-oh] [sun = with; apagw = to lead away] which means to seduce; in the passive voice it means to be carried off. In the middle voice it means to associate—“but associate.” The present tense is a progressive present, it indicates action in a state of persistence. The middle voice is an indirect middle in which the agent, the royal family under the honor code produces the action rather than participating in the results. This is the imperative participle.

Then the dative of association plural tapeinos (ταπεινός) [pronounced tap-ī-NOSS], which means not just humble folk but people who in your estimation are humble folk, people you would not associate with if you were trying to advance yourself. These are people you do not want to be seen with these people. This is a typical human attitude.

We often judge people by their attractiveness or lack thereof. Many people advance themselves by the names which they can drop. We become friends with people that we think can be of some use to us.

This does not to be condescending. Like Mary Antoinette. We do not see ourselves as great believers, and we occasionally condescend to speaking to some low-class Christians (in our opinion).

There is no race, no ugly or beautiful, no high class and low class in the realm of Christianity. There must be a destruction of the Satanic system of admiring people who are famous or personable or complementary to you, or they stimulate your arrogance. The honor code recognizes royal priesthood. It does not recognize human standards. The honor code is ordained of God. And if we do not comply with it, the originator of this honor code will crush us.

Lesson #376

376 03/29/1978 Romans 12:16c Whitaker Chambers; Communist evaluation of American POW's; arrogance; royal family honor code

Whitaker Chambers The Witness talking about what happened to the United States after WWII. The rest of the world is unable to hold conviction and to act upon it. The communist vision is a vision of man without God. Man's liberated mind by its sole force of...the vision is a challenge, but it carries a threat. Man is to prove that he is in charge of the world. It threatens, if man's mind is not up to the task, that he will reduce himself to savagery. History is littered with nations who have left God.

Communism's materialistic vision is life without God.

Communism has stolen thought from this nation.

The French were defeated because they lost a thought; they were defeated in their minds.

In 1950 in the Korean War, we found that a new generation of Americans were not the same people as they had been 5 years previous. We met great disaster in the Korean War. We had good leadership; we did not have all the material. MacArthur showed great strategy, but this was not supported by the administration.

Bob has covered this material on several occasions. It is found here:

<http://place.asburyseminary.edu/limiteddigitalresources/12/> and I have ordered in Juno this full article. I will post it somewhere.

The Chicoms had 7000 American prisoners and learned so much about them. No one escaped. They learned that Americans were not the same as they were in War2. There was something missing, and the communists picked it out. About 4000 returned out of that 7000. English-speaking radio stations. In the Pentagon the hush-hush was unbelievable.

There was confusion in high command. Confusion in the state department. People could not believe that such men would end up broadcasting communist propaganda. They assumed that he had been tortured or subjected to drugs. The name Johnny Jones is given, which could be this person's real name.

These people could not handle the smallest pressures of prison camp.

Some high ranking officials were captured and there were papers about the prison camps and what had been done.

Based on our observations of American soldiers captured in this war for liberation of Korea from capitalist imperialist aggression, the following facts are evident: the American soldier has weak loyalties to his family, to his community, to his country, to his religion and to his fellow soldiers...by himself he feels weak and insecure.

When you take a thought away from a person, you no longer have a person but an animal. It does not matter what his racial or national background is. He can be and will be an animal.

Americans had died by curling up and going to sleep. One particular survivor, and he was knocked down and stood up again. They classified him as a reactionary; they isolated him from the rest, and he became a problem. He returned home. He resisted. He came back in great health. His background. He believed in Jesus Christ; a fundamentalist and exposed to Bible doctrine. Properly motivated and they could not do anything with him.

There were literally hundreds of traitors, robbed of thought. Not one segment of society; they were not educated or uneducated; they were a perfect cross section of Americana.

26 Americans refused to be repatriated and they remained in Communist China. They liked the whole deal. They bought into it. Some liked it and came back as propagandists.

The closed mind Christians were isolated from the rest.

We are commanded to love the rest of the believers, but this is not category 1,2 or 3 love. Maybe this would be Category #4 love. It is required for us to be relaxed about them. It is possible that something like the Korean prison camps might. So we would need to have relationships with other believers.

The one thing that communists could not stand up against is a thought.

This is the application of Bible doctrine.

God does not tolerate us to be antagonistic toward other believers. God does not appreciate it when we flare up with our own antagonisms. What hinders us? We think our opinions are more important than anyone else.

Romans 12:16 ...minding the same thing toward one another, not minding the things haughty, but going along with the lowly. Do not be wise in yourselves,... (BLB)

“Be not wise in your own conceits” – the present active imperative of gínomai (γίνομαι) [pronounced GIN-oh-my], plus the negative mê (μή) [pronounced may] which is used because we have in this case an imperative mood (If it was the negative ou (οὐ) [pronounced oo] it would be the indicative) – “Stop becoming.” The present tense is a pictorial present for events in the process of occurrence. The active voice: the royal family of God is prohibited from producing the action of the verb as a part of the honor code.

Plus the predicate nominative plural from phronimos (φρόνιμος) [pronounced FROHN-ee-moss] which means to have a thought that entrances you, that makes you think that because you have that thought you are great. In other words, it is pseudo wisdom. “Stop being wise” means that you must learn to distinguish between what is Bible doctrine and what is your own opinion. Then the preposition para plus the locative plural from the reflexive pronoun heautou (ἑαυτοῦ) [pronounced heh-ow-TOO] – an idiom meaning “in your own estimation.” You cannot function under the honor code and be arrogant.

Someone puts an opinion together, and thinks that he is smarter than anyone else; and then tries to get a few others to agree with him. Entire denominations begin with a clergyman who are wise in their own opinion.

Don't become arrogant for having a thought.

Romans 12:16 Be thinking the same toward each other. Do not be thinking in terms of arrogance, but associate with humble people. Stop being wise in your own estimation.

Principle

1. To assume what you are not is to be what you cannot be.
2. To be what you cannot be is to hinder being what God wants you to be.
3. Arrogance and resultant snobbishness keeps the believer off-balance and disoriented to the plan of God.
4. To be or not to be is not the question! Rather, not to be so as to be is the issue.
5. By not being arrogant and conceited the believer has removed the barrier to be what God wants us to be as royal family under the honor code.
6. The arrogance is inordinately ambitious. Inordinately ambitious believers are incapable of genuine affection, a relaxed mental attitude, and cannot fulfil the honor code.
7. Inordinate ambition is either trying to prove something or gain something.
8. Arrogant people are poor lovers, poor achievers, and disoriented people.
9. The grace mental attitude from maximum doctrine resident in the soul avoids the pitfalls of arrogance and disassociation from reality.
10. Capacity for life demands cognizance of the imperatives of this verse. Capacity for life is related to the royal family honor code.

11. The prerequisite for thinking of the interrelationship with people demands right thinking toward God.
12. Right thinking toward God is impossible apart from Bible doctrine resident in the soul. This means that the natural trend toward arrogance must be displaced by doctrine and replaced by the function of the honor code.

Arrogance and the honor code are completely incompatible.

1977 Romans

Lesson #377

377 03/30/1978 Romans 12:17 Communist brainwashing of American POW's; U.S. military code; retaliation blasphemes God

The Chicoms entered into the Korean War. They began to experiment in many fields. These experiments when prisoners were taken to a collection point. Many men were lost when wounded. The Americans had not sense of discipline. If someone fell out, they were bayoneted. No one would help one man wounded in the quadriceps; and he asked for help, but no one would help him. He fell out and was killed. A Turk had the same sort of wound. He was in the same situation. An officer ordered a man to pick him up and carry him. The Turk recovered in prison camp.

Psychological activity occurred at the collection point. A speech was made by an officer in a plain uniform. A sample speech is given. You cooperate with us and don't get any idea about being our enemy. In return for this, no slave labor. We just ask for a chance for you to hear the truth as we see it.

Americans have been clever for escape tactics in the past; and extra battalions were required to keep them under control.

There was an informing system. The weak sisters were approached to bribe for information. One of ten became an informer. Some of them became hardcore communists. By the time of the big exchange, one in six was an informant.

If one did not cooperate, all of them would miss a meal. Once a day, there would be a session where each man would talk about himself. They would start out by being funny. The Chicom instructor let them get away with it. When you do this for day after day, sooner or later, you run out of lies. If you listen to the same man every day, you know each man which reach a point where he only speaks the truth. Many, after speaking the truth, were so ashamed, they could not look at one another. When they were later rescued, they no longer talked to one another. Some were allowed to call home or anywhere, and none of them did. They would have nothing to do with the POWs and we shipped our best psychiatrists to examine them.

Mail was delivered uncensored; no lines crossed out. One woman sent a letter every day, but only 4 were delivered. Anytime when there were bad news, a dear John letter, etc.

This isolated everyone from home. Any letter emotionally or spiritually sustaining was destroyed.

There were history lessons, very negative about the US past. This was distorted. The men were excellent lecturers. Every abuse and corruption, etc. was taught. Everything used to break a person from his American system. The people were ashamed to be Americans, based upon their history. Bob criticizes America, but would live nowhere else.

They had to memorize the UN charter; and they had to memorize the reasons that China should be accepted into the UN. The UN is the greatest spy system the world has ever known. The UN is one of the most anti-American thing to ever occur.

They learned about the downtrodden masses and how the US exploits various races.

There was singing and acting; and all of the stuff was either pro-communist or anti-American. First prize was to an American who did a picture of Truman dropping people into a cauldron. The prize was a chocolate bar.

No one escaped; no one tried to escape. Americans had lost the ability to think; the ability to live under pressure.

The same system was tried on the 229 Turks. They were all reactionary.

The worst and the best is found in Christianity. The worst people in the world are reversionistic believers.

Romans 12:17 ...repaying to no one evil for evil, providing right before all men;... (BLB)

Verse 17 – “Recompense to no man evil for evil” begins with the present active participle of the verb apodidōmi (ἀποδίδωμι) [pronounced ap-od-EED-o-mee] [ἀπό (ἀπό) [pronounced aw-PO] = from; didōmi (δίδωμι) [pronounced dihd-OH-mee] = to give] which means to give back, to restore, to pay back, refund. Here it means to pay back in the sense of revenge.

Plus the locative of time mêdeis (μηδέις) [pronounced may-DICE], never or in no way—“Never pay back.” The present tense is a customary present, it denotes what habitually occurs in the function of the mature believer in the field of his integrity. The active voice: the mature believer customarily produces the action of the verb in regard to the royal family honor code. The participle is the imperative use of the participle, peculiar to the Koine Greek. Plus the accusative singular direct object from kakós (κακός) [pronounced kak-OSS], the word for evil used here for the modus operandi of the reversionist. By paying back evil for evil you lower yourself to the standards of the one you despise; you are no better; you abandon the royal family honor code. The prepositional phrase is anti plus the ablative singular from kakós (κακός) [pronounced kak-OSS] is a substitutionary preposition meaning “instead of,” but it also means against. Here it becomes an idiom for evil.

Principle of not paying back evil for evil

1. Revenge and retaliation is a major violation of the royal family honor code.
2. First, it causes the positive or mature believer to abandon his own standards, the royal family honor code, by violating the privacy of another's priesthood.
3. Secondly, it results in the mature believer lowering his own standards to that of the reversionist.
4. To lower one's self to someone else's standards by taking revenge is tantamount to blasphemy: failure to trust the justice of God to do the job.
5. Furthermore, this becomes a distraction to perception of doctrine which hinders the possibility of the believer advancing to maturity and keeps the mature believer from progressing from one stage of maturity to the next.
6. Further, it brings down divine discipline on the believer who tries to seek revenge, to retaliate.
7. Evil is the standard and the function of the reversionistic believer. Therefore evil must be avoided at all times.
8. Revenge and retaliation abandons the royal family honor code in favour of the function of evil.
9. Retaliation brings down compound discipline from the justice of God for interfering with the function of divine justice.
10. But above all retaliation and revenge is arrogance. It is a way of saying you can do a better job of righting wrongs than God can.

“Provide things honest in the sight of all men” – the present middle participle of phroneô (φρονέω) [pronounced fron-EH-oh] [pro = before; noéô (νοέω) [pronounced noh-EH-oh] = think] which means to think of beforehand, to apply one's self to a thing, to strive to exhibit, the perceive in advance, to think in advance. It finally comes to mean “have regard for” or “respect.” Here it means to respect. The customary present tense denotes what habitually occurs in the function of the mature believer's integrity. This is an indirect middle voice in which the positive or mature believer produces the action of the verb rather than participating in the result.

Plus the accusative neuter plural direct object from the adjective kalos (καλός) [pronounced kal-OSS]. Because it is in the neuter gender and because it is in the plural it means honorable—“Respect what is honorable.” Then the improper preposition enupnion (ἐνύπνιον) [pronounced en-OOP-nee-on] plus pás (πάς) [pronounced pahs], plus anthrôpos (ἄνθρωπος) [pronounced ANTH-row-pos]—“in the sight of all men.” This means respect for the laws of divine establishment. It means that part of the royal family honor code is respect for all principles of authority. This means respect for the military and for that service. This is respect for womanhood; respect for free enterprise. Respect for authority. Children should respect their parents. Respect the police officer. This is the most difficult day for the police officers today.

Romans 12:17 Never pay back evil for evil. Respect what is honorable in the sight of all men (mankind).

The next chapter will choose three honorable things and expand on them.

1977 Romans

Lesson #378

378 03/31/1978 Romans 12:18–19a Live in harmony with your periphery; royal family honor code vs. retaliation

Everyone in Christianity thinks that they are experts on Christianity; and they want to run your life, which is a rejection of the honor code, which includes the privacy of the priesthood.

Divine righteousness has been imputed to every believer. The worst cluck of a believer has divine righteousness. Therefore a believer cannot interfere with the life of another believer (exception is parents over children).

Divine blessing in time is an imputation from the righteousness of God to the justice of God.

It can be discouraging to have the capacity for blessing and no one to share it with.

We are not blessed by Christian production; not now and not ever.

Verses 18-20, the function of the royal family honor code.

Romans 12:18 ...if possible of you, living at peace with all men;... (BLB)

The miracles were for the Old Testament crowd. God has given us the inner residency of power, inasmuch as it lies in you.

Verse 18 – “If it be possible, as much as lieth in you.” All of the possibilities of life lie within you. There is no such thing as a miracle as far as the spiritual life is concerned, it is strictly a matter of capacity. This begins with the conditional conjunction ei (εἰ) [pronounced /j—“If.”] Whenever it includes the indicative in a verb, or an implied indicative, it is called the protasis of a first class condition, which means “if and it is true.” Plus the nominative neuter plural from dunatos (δυνατός) [pronounced doo-nat-OSS], a word for power used here as a predicate nominative, implying that we have no verb at this point. It is translated with the verb to be, “If it is possible [and it is].”

All of the potentialities and the possibilities of life are possible but they are impossible to the extent that you are ignorant of doctrine, for it is knowledge of doctrine that gives capacity for life, capacity for happiness, capacity for blessing, capacity for everything that is worthwhile. Without capacity everything in life is meaningless, even if you have it. The function of the royal family honor code combines with the filling of the Spirit with the perception of doctrine making everything possible.

The word “possible” in this passage is a synonym for capacity. The next phrase in the Greek is literally, “the from you part” – to ex (ἐξ) [pronounced ehks] humôn (ὕμῶν) [pronounced hoo-MONE]. This is the accusative of general reference from the definite article to, then the preposition ek (ἐκ) [pronounced ehk] plus the ablative from su. This is an idiom and it means “as much as it depends on you.” This means that the believer has to live his own life. No one can drive for you in the Christian life, so stop depending on others to be you chauffeur.

“live peaceably with all men” – the present active participle of eirēneúō (εἰρηνεύω) [pronounced i-rane-YOO-oh]. It means to be at peace but it also means to live in harmony, to reconcile, to live in peace, to keep the peace. Living in harmony means that you have to be very thoughtful of others. You have to have the honor code sensitivity about other people. You have to get away from being selfish and self-centered. It refers here to living in harmony or living in peace with all men. The customary present denotes what habitually occurs or may be reasonably expected to occur in the life of a mature believer. The active voice: the believer who is positive toward doctrine and/or the mature believer produces the action of the verb. This is an imperative participle. Then another prepositional phrase, meta plus the genitive plural of páς (πάς) [pronounced pahs] and anthrōpos (ἄνθρωπος) [pronounced ANTH-row-pos]—“with all mankind.” This means harmony, it is based on the principle of live and let live. Harmony demands as its basic fundamental that you recognize the privacy of other people. Privacy is the key to freedom.

The destruction of privacy is the destruction of harmony.

Romans 12:18 If it is possible [and it is], as much as it depends on you, live in harmony with all men.

Principle

1. It is not always possible to live in harmony with all people because they do not live under the royal family honor code. Therefore, when it is impossible to live in harmony with others then other principles must apply, ranging from separation to excommunication.
2. To do your part, to obey the command of the apodosis, it is necessary to rebound, to be filled with the Spirit, and to take in doctrine consistently.
3. This results in living under the honor code of “love the brethren,” which means a relaxed mental attitude toward all believers. Freedom from mental attitude sins and verbal sins. Living in harmony with other believers is loving the other royal family.

Romans 12:19 ...never avenging yourselves, beloved; instead give place to wrath, for it has been written: “Vengeance is Mine, I will repay, says the Lord.” (BLB)

Verse 19 – non-retaliation when tempted. “Dearly beloved” is the vocative plural of agapêtos (ἀγαπητός) [pronounced ag-ap-ay-TOSS], and adjective used as a substantive meaning “beloved ones.” It refers strictly to God’s attitude toward you. This is a reference to the fact that God loves every believer because every believer has His righteousness.

“avenge not yourselves” – the negative mê (μή) [pronounced may] with the present active participle of ekdikéō (ἐκδικέω) [pronounced ek-dik-EH-oh] which means to punish, to procure justice for someone, to take vengeance on someone—“never avenge yourselves” or “never take your own revenge.” The best translation is “stop avenging yourselves.” This is a descriptive present for what is now going on at the time of writing in the Roman church. The Roman believers were taking matters into their own hands rather than leaving them to the justice of God. This is an imperative participle plus the negative and it means stop doing this terrible thing. Plus the accusative plural direct object from the reflexive pronoun heautou (ἑαυτοῦ) [pronounced heh-ow-TOO]—“yourselves.”

Seeking revenge is blasphemous and it violates the Royal Family Honor Code.

“give place unto wrath” – the adversative conjunction allá (ἀλλά) [pronounced ahl-LAH] sets up a contrast between the failure of the Roman believers and what is required, the standard of the royal family honor code. Then the aorist active imperative of the verb didōmi (δίδωμι) [pronounced dihd-OH-mee] which means to give. The aorist tense is a constative aorist, it contemplates the action of the verb in its entirety. The active voice: the royal family honor code demands that the believer leave retaliation in the hands of the justice of God. This is the imperative mood of entreaty which does not convey the finality of a command but has the force of an urgency or a request. In other words, volition must be involved. It should be translated “instead give.”

Then the accusative singular direct object from topos (τόπος) [pronounced TOP-oss], “place,” plus the dative singular indirect object from the definite article to denote a previous reference to the wrath of God, plus the dative singular indirect object from the noun orgê (ὀργή) [pronounced ohr-GAY]—anger or wrath (this goes back to Romans 1:18). It also means punishment: “instead give place to the punishment of the justice of God.” Always defer to the justice of God when you are tempted to take vengeance.

Principle

1. By leaving the matter in the Lord’s hands perfect justice will be administered by perfect God.
2. When the believer takes personal retaliation he takes the matter out of the Lord’s hands. He superimposes his own wrath and vengeance for the perfect justice of God.
3. The royal family honor code demands that the matter be placed in the Lord’s hands for satisfaction. Personal satisfaction is no satisfaction.
4. Satisfaction means the administration of punitive action from the justice of God.
5. Most honor codes of aristocracy demand satisfaction through duelling, but the honor code of the royal family demands that satisfaction be administered by the justice of God.
6. The justice of God possesses all the facts and never makes an error in judgment.
7. All royal family squabbles demand the action of the justice of God rather than revenge or retaliatory tactics of imperfect human beings.

8. Two wrongs do not make a right. Retaliation is the prerogative of divine justice, therefore to add wrong to wrong brings down divine wrath and punitive action on your own head rather than divine discipline on the one who wronged you.
9. The royal family honor code demands that all retaliation and all revenge be left to the function of the justice of God.

Lesson #379

379 04/02/1978 Romans 12:19b 20a Inspiration of Scripture; royal family honor code demands grace function toward personal enemies

First verses reviewed; points above reviewed.

Romans 12:19 ...never avenging yourselves, beloved; instead give place to wrath, for it has been written: "Vengeance is Mine, I will repay, says the Lord." (BLB)

"for it is written" – the conjunction gar is used to express a cause or reason. This means that we have documentation for this stage of the honor code. Then the perfect passive indicative of the verb graphō (γράφω) [pronounced GRAWF-oh]. It means to write and in the perfect tense it is correctly translated "for it stands written." The perfect tense is an intensive perfect, it emphasizes the existing results of a finished product, namely the Old Testament canon having been completed at this time. This is the perfect tense of existing state. The Old Testament Scriptures are recognized here by the apostle Paul as canonical. The passive voice: we have the mechanics of inspiration which receive the action of the verb in documentation. Paul is quoting from Deuteronomy 32:35.

"Vengeance is mine; I will repay, saith the Lord" – in quoting this from the Hebrew to the Greek the apostle Paul selects for the word "vengeance" the nominative singular from the noun ekdikēsis (ἐκδίκησις) [pronounced ek-DIHK-ay-sis], and it means punishment rather than vengeance. The word "vengeance" is used in a negative sense for someone who is retaliating, but it is used here in a positive sense for the administration of punishment from the justice of God.

In the idiom which follows, the dative singular indirect object from the personal pronoun egó (ἐγώ) [pronounced ehg-OH], which is literally "punishment to me," is an idiom: "punishment belongs to me." The punishment belongs to the justice of God. Then comes a second use of the nominative singular personal pronoun egó (ἐγώ) [pronounced ehg-OH]—"I," plus the future active indicative from the compound verb antapodídōmi (ἀνταποδίδωμι) [pronounced an-tap-ohd-EE-doh-mee] [anti = against; apodidōmi (ἀποδίδωμι) [pronounced ap-od-EED-o-mee] = to discharge an obligation, to pay back] which means "will repay." The future tense is a predictive future, it predicts an event which is expected to occur in future time, after you have been wronged. This is an aoristic future for punctiliar action in future time—the function of divine justice in discharging the obligation of punishment when you have been wronged. You must leave the punishment in the hands of the Lord. The active voice: the justice of God produces the action of the verb. The indicative mood is declarative for a dogmatic statement of fact.

“saith the Lord” – the present active indicative of légō (λέγω) [pronounced LEH-goh] is used simply as a verb of communication. In the futuristic present is denoted an event which has not yet occurred but is regarded as so certain in thought that it will occur in the future from the justice of God. The active voice: the justice of God produces the action. The indicative mood is declarative for an unqualified assertion of fact, it represents the verbal idea from the viewpoint of reality.

Romans 12:19 Stop avenging yourselves, beloved; instead give place to the punishment from the justice of God; for it stands written, Punishment belongs to me; I will repay, says the Lord.

Deuteronomy 32:35 – Retaliation [vengeance] belongs to me, and retribution; in due time their foot will slip. For the day of their calamity is near, and the impending things of judgment are hastened upon them. Verse 36 – “For the Lord will vindicate his own . . .”

Psalm 94:1,2 – O Lord God of vengeance; the God of vengeance has shown forth. Rise up O judge of the earth; render recompense to the arrogant.

Isaiah 33:22 The Lord is our judge, the Lord is our lawgiver, the Lord is our king; he will deliver us.

Hebrews 10:30 For we know him who said, Vengeance is mine, I will repay. And again, the Lord will judge his people.

Principle

1. Justice belongs to the God of justice. God has the monopoly on justice and does not need our help in the function of retaliation and punishment.
2. Therefore it is part of the royal family honor code and an extension of the faith-rest technique to leave punishment in the hands of perfect God who administers perfect justice.
3. The royal family honor code emphasizes the privacy of the believer to live his own life as unto the Lord. This includes punishment and discipline.
4. By taking the matter into one's own hands means interference with the justice of God and violation of the privacy of the royal priesthood.
5. Revenge or retaliation is therefore a direct violation of the royal family honor code. When you violate the honor code, you are punished by God.
6. Under the honor code you cannot work for blessing, nor retaliate for revenge.
7. The justice of God has monopoly on both blessing and cursing.
8. Either you adjust to the justice of God or the justice of God will adjust to you.
9. Revenge is maladjustment to the justice of God, punishable by extreme discipline.

Romans 12:20 On the contrary, “If your enemy should hunger, feed him; if he should thirst, give him to drink; for doing this, you will heap coals of fire upon his head.” (BLB)

Verse 20 – this is Christian sarcasm. You feed your enemies so that they will be nice and healthy when God lowers the boom! “Therefore if thine enemy hunger, feed him.” This is not your bleeding heart liberal do-gooder, this is the epitome of Christian sophistication. When you feed your enemy you have fulfilled one of the greatest pieces of sarcasm without retaliating.

This begins with the adversative particle allá (ἀλλά) [pronounced ahl-LAH] which is usually translated “but.” However, it is translated here when whole clauses are compared to indicate a transition to something. This is a transition to sarcasm; it is not inference. The word is “Nevertheless.” This is for those who not only have enough doctrine to turn the matter over to the Lord for punishment, but to enjoy a little sanctified sarcasm on the side. The conditional conjunction ei (εἰ) [pronounced ɪ] is used with the subjunctive mood. It introduces a third class condition of sarcasm. The sarcasm: he may not live long enough to be hungry or thirsty. But should God be keeping him alive for some other purpose—to test a few other believers to see if they can pass the test—feed him. So the third class condition says, If he lives long enough, feed him.

Bob describes exactly how to beat someone up.

Next comes the nominative singular subject echthros (ἐχθρός) [pronounced ehkh-THROSS] which means someone who is hostile to you, not necessarily an enemy. This is an adjective meaning hated or hostile, it is translated in the KJV as a substantive for a personal enemy but with the definite article it should be translated, “Nevertheless if the one hostile.” Then a dative singular of possession, a Greek idiom for the personal pronoun su. The dative of possession is a dative of personal interest which particularises the point of ownership. Plus the present active subjunctive peinaō (πείνάω) [pronounced pi-NAH-oh] which means to be hungry. This is a pictorial present tense whose distinctive force is to present to the mind a picture of an event in the process of occurrence. The active voice: the positive/mature believer produces the action of the verb as a part of the royal family honor code. The subjunctive mood is a potential subjunctive, it implies a future reference and is qualified by the element of contingency. The one who is hostile or an enemy may have been removed from this life by divine discipline prior to fulfilling this principle of the honor code.

Why are we told to feed this person? It has nothing to do with socialism. This has to do with someone who is personally antagonistic toward you. It means that the royal family honor code has a system of function which is far greater than any morality than any that has ever been put down on paper, including the ten commandments. The RFHC expects more from the believer than any system of reality. Only the believer with maximum doctrine in his soul can feed his enemy. This is far beyond what the laws of divine establishment demand of all of us. This is a command, the present active imperative from psômízō (ψομίζω) [pronounced pso-MEED-zoh]. It doesn't necessarily mean to feed him by getting to sit down to dinner with you, though that is one way of doing it. It can be accomplished by giving him food or supplying him food. The present tense is an aoristic present for punctiliar action in present time. The active voice: the believer functions under the royal family honor code to produce this action and not under any system of morality. The imperative mood: this is the imperative of a direct command. Plus the accusative singular direct object from the intensive pronoun αὐτόν (autón) [pronounced ow-TOSS], used here as the third person pronoun.

Principle

1. The modus operandi of the foyal family honor code demands grace function. This is grace function.
2. By feeding a hungry enemy the positive/mature believer leaves all hostility in the hands of the Lord.
3. This dependence on the integrity of God to deal with your enemies rather than revenge tactics and retaliation.
4. Your attitude of grace in feeding your enemy does not depend on who and what your enemy is, it depends on who and what you are.
5. The honor code never commands the believer to stoop to the level of the vindictive and implacable enemy.
6. The benefits of grace demand the function of grace.
7. Retaliation interferes with the justice of God in punishing another.
8. Retaliation lowers the believer to the standard of his enemy.
9. Never reduce yourself to the level of what you despise in others.
10. Revenge and retaliation lowers your norms and standards to the level of evil, pettiness, implacability, vindictiveness, etc.
11. Never stoop to the level of evil for the honor code demands the high standards of grace.
12. Grace demands that you leave all matters of enmity and hostility in the hands of God.

1977 Romans

Lesson #380

380 04/02/1978 Romans 12:20b Authority and consistency; sustaining life cf. lowering self to the standard of the antagonist

The points above are reviewed.

Proverbs 25:21–22 If the one who hates you is hungry, give him food to eat; furthermore, if he is thirsty, give him water to drink; for you will heap burning coals on his head, and the Lord will reward you. The burning coals is punishment from the justice of God; divine reward is not from feeding your enemy but because you have a status of maturity which demands such blessing.

Romans 12:20 On the contrary, "If your enemy should hunger, feed him; if he should thirst, give him to drink; for doing this, you will heap coals of fire upon his head. (BLB)

“if he thirst, give him to drink” – the conditional conjunction eán (ἐάν) [pronounced eh-AHN] introduces the protasis of a third class condition. Then the present active subjunctive of dipsáō (διψάω) [pronounced dip-SAH-oh] which means to be thirsty in the sense of being dehydrated. This is to find someone who is hostile toward you in a critical situation where you have then opportunity of saving their life. In the case of thirst it is a matter of being close to death and in this case you actually preserve the life of the individual. Why? Because of who and what you are, not because of who and what they are. God often tests the believer by placing his enemies under the power of the believer. How the believer handles that power determines how his life will function thereafter. If he is the kind of a person who abuses such a power then he will never see it again; he will be disciplined. But if he can take authority and use it in the manner of objectivity then that authority will be a future blessing. This is the aoristic present tense for punctiliar action in present time, it take the potential moment of an enemy dying from thirst and isolates it in the light of the honor code. The active voice: the believer produces the action of the verb under the royal honor code. The subjunctive mood is potential, it imply a future reference and is qualified by the element of contingency. Maybe the believer will do this and maybe he won't.

Next is the present active imperative from potízō (ποτίζω) [pronounced poh-TEED-zoh], meaning here to give a drink, plus the accusative singular direct object from the intensive pronoun autós (αὐτὸς) [pronounced ow-TOSS]. The present tense means always do the same thing, always be consistent, when you have authority. This is an authority test and when authority is an issue you treat everyone the same way. You must be objective and free of any antagonisms.

Some people gain authority and use this authority to grind their enemies into the dust. The believer is not allowed to do that (not without facing discipline and/or demotion). Bob has observed more honor among thieves than with people who have left his church. The believer does not meet antagonism with antagonism.

Bob berates emotional Russian literature. Tolstoy was a Christian; a reversionist.

Both food and water are necessary to sustain life. It would be easy to see your enemy dying from lack of food or lack of water. It would be easy to dismiss your responsibility to the honor code by simply turning around and walking away, pretending that you never heard the cry for help. This is failure because it means that while you go through the motions of Christianity you really don't have what it takes in your soul, you have never really applied doctrine properly. Only the justice of God has the right to take life or permit life to be taken. Never contribute to the discomfort of your enemies, only the justice of God can deal properly with hostility against you. Why is the enemy's life preserved? So that the Lord can heap coals of fire upon his head.

“for in so doing thou shalt heap coals of fire on his head” – the explanatory use of the postpositive conjunction gar, followed by the present active participle of poieō (ποιέω) [pronounced poi-EH-oh]—“for by doing.” The customary present tense denotes what habitually occurs when a believer is positive toward doctrine and following the honor code of the royal family. The active voice: either a believer positive toward doctrine or a mature believer produces the action of the verb in observation of the royal family honor code. The participle is instrumental, it indicates the means by which the action of the main verb is accomplished. Then the accusative neuter singular direct object from the immediate demonstrative pronoun houtos (οὗτος) [pronounced HOO-tos]—“this.”

Plus the future active indicative of the verb sōreúō (σωρεύω) [pronounced sore-YOO-oh] which means to pile up. The future tense is a gnomic future for a statement of fact that may be expected under conditions specified in the context. The active voice: when the believer functions under the royal family honor code and love for other believers he produces the action of the verb. The indicative mood is declarative for an unqualified assertion of a fact—the justice of God now intervenes. The accusative plural direct object from anthrax (ἄνθραξ) [pronounced ANTH-rax] —“burning coals.” Plus the descriptive genitive singular from pûr (πῦρ) [pronounced purr], the word for fire. This is a reference to divine judgment from the justice of God in contrast to human retaliation and revenge tactics. Next is epí (ἐπί) [pronounced eh-PEE] plus the accusative of kephalê (κεφαλή) [pronounced kehf-ahl-AY] and a possessive genitive, “his head.”

You have strengthened yourself and given your enemy a grace opportunity. Grace precedes judgement. You have given him the opportunity to recover. The coals do not mean that he will suffer. He may recover. Many times, your worst enemies will become great believers. When you see someone that you do not like, suffering, you do not gloat or rub it in. The royal family honor code rejects that.

The entire matter has been left in the hands of God. Burning coals of fire means that he is going to live and hurt, and from hurting he will either recover and be the better for it, or he will become worse and God will take him out under the sin unto death. By leaving animosity and antagonisms to the justice of God, and by following an application of the privacy of the royal priesthood, you have strengthened yourself on the one hand and prepared the way for the justice of God to deal with the individual on the other.

Romans 12:20 Nevertheless if your enemy is hungry, feed him; if he is thirsty, give him a drink; for by doing this you will pile up coals of fire on his head.

Shield of Freedom Special, Lessons #381–392

1977 Romans

Lesson #381

381 04/03/1978 Romans 12:21 [SHIELD OF FREEDOM SPECIAL, lessons 381–392]
Government service; principles of the doctrine of evil; the believer is to support the legal system though it be distorted

H. L. Richardson in service to the government. Great article. Pumped filled with Marxian ideas without them ever being called that. The religion that they preach is statist. None have ever had to earn a dollar in the free market. They understand how elections are won and lost. By their 30s, they have become bureaucrats. The smartest and best of the socialists are succeeding in government.

The subject that we are studying is evil; even though this is practiced by do-gooders. The president is surrounded by Marxist-socialists. It is destroying our nation. These things are learned in college and practiced as human good.

Romans 12:21 Do not be overcome by evil, but overcome evil with good. (BLB)

Verse 21 – “Be not overcome with evil” begins with the negative mê (μή) [pronounced may] with the present passive imperative of the verb nikáō (νικάω) [pronounced nihk-AH-oh]. Literally, “Stop being conquered.” The present tense is a descriptive present for what is now going on, or a pictorial present which presents to the mind a picture of events in the process of occurrence. This was happening in Rome at the time that Paul wrote. The believers were supporting this type of thing because they thought it was good. They misunderstood human good. Human good is an enemy. The passive voice: the believer receives the action of the verb because of apathy toward doctrine, distraction from doctrine, and resultant complete indifference to what is going on, or failure to discern from doctrine what is going on. The participle is an imperative participle. With the negative mê (μή) [pronounced may] this is tantamount to an imperative of prohibition.

Then the prepositional phrase hupó (ὑπό) [pronounced hoop-OH] plus the ablative singular kakós (κακός) [pronounced kak-OSS] for “evil.” There is also the generic use of the definite article. Evil should be very familiar in this context and the generic use of the article, which does not have to be translated, sets evil apart as a category. “Stop being conquered by evil.”

Principle

1. This is a reference to the reversionistic believer who has neglected doctrine, has become negative or apathetic to Bible teaching, and who has no concept of discipline in life, much less the spiritual academic discipline for perception of Bible doctrine.
2. Such a believer lives in the devil’s triangle under the rulership of evil which is the policy of Satan as the ruler of this world and the function of the old sin nature as the sovereign of life. You start being conquered by evil when you reject doctrine and when you jump on the bandwagon for some form of human good. The objective of the Christian way of life is not good, not social reform; the objective of the Christian way of life is renovation of thought (Romans 12:2), or the standard of thinking of doctrine (Romans 12:3).
3. Too many Christians are trying to fix the devil’s world. They enter into the devil’s triangle. When you are involved in social improvement. We do not look to change the government or society. The key is the renovation of the mind of the believer. Romans 12:2–3
4. To the extent that you have accepted some form of human good, to that extent you have been compromised.
5. The believer first gets involved with human good and then with evil. Bible doctrine must be superimposed on the circumstances of your life.

Divine blessing is never imputed on the basis of any form of good, even doing things which are right and good.

The communists are responsible for allowing millions to starve. They are vicious evil people; and they are the enemy of this country and the enemy of Jesus Christ.

The state of California is way ahead of the rest of the states when it comes to socialism. Living in California is like living in communism. They've gone crazy out there. They have the goofiest laws you have ever heard. The weirdest system of education. They are crazy out there.

“but overcome evil with good” – the adversative conjunction allá (ἀλλά) [pronounced ah-LAH] to give us the positive part sets up a contrast between the two commands. The present active imperative of nikáō (νικάω) [pronounced nihk-AH-oh] means to conquer. This is a customary present tense, it denotes what habitually occurs when the believer is positive toward doctrine. When you insert doctrine from the pages of the Word of God into your life you completely avoid the devil's triangle. Good versus evil is the great issue in the devil's triangle. The accusative singular direct object of kakós (κακός) [pronounced kak-OSS] again—“evil,” and again the generic use of the definite article, not translated because it is used to designate evil as a category. The prepositional phrase this time is different, it is en (ἐν) [pronounced en] plus the instrumental of agathos (ἀγαθός) [pronounced ag-ath-OSS]. Again a definite article, this time denoting a previous reference to Romans 8:28—“but conquer evil by means of the good.”

Romans 12:21 Stop being conquered by evil, but conquer evil by means of the good.

$X + Y + Z = \text{agathos (ἀγαθός)}$ [pronounced ag-ath-OSS], the good. There is only one way to conquer evil^[12] and that is to advance one step at a time in the plan of God through perception of Bible doctrine. There is no other way to advance in the plan of God.

Principle

1. Evil is conquered by means of the good. The good is the advance in the plan of God as portrayed in the equation.
2. The predetermined plan of God for the believer calls for six imputations in time resulting in the seventh imputation in eternity. It is the attainment of the 6th imputation in time, plus confidence of the 7th imputation in eternity, that defeats evil.
3. The 6th imputation of divine blessing in time to the mature believer glorifies Christ in time, and it is the only way to glorify Christ in time. God is glorified when the justice of God imputes to you personal blessings in the devil's world.
4. The 7th imputation of divine blessing and rewards at the judgment seat of Christ glorifies God forever. This is the only way that we as believers can glorify God forever.
5. Note the role of doctrine in conquering evil, then. The right side of the equation emphasizes doctrine perceived, converting potential into hope and hope into reality.

6. This verse emphasizes the fact that the believer who is positive toward doctrine conquers evil and stays out of the devil's triangle.
7. But the believer who is negative toward doctrine is conquered by evil and lives his life in the devil's triangle, fulfilling all of the concepts of sincerity and stupidity which are completely and totally destructive to him as an individual.

This is the end of Romans 12 except for the doctrine of evil.

Even when the system does not work, you do not revolt against it.

Sabatini's novel, "Captain Blood" about Peter Blood. The Black Muslims in Washington D.C. intimidating the Supreme Court and the police.

We do not march for rights. Good and evil have intruded into the system. No one wants a raw deal before the law or our sons killed in Vietnam. The justice of God is our life. We may be a raw deal from the system; but that does not mean that the system is wrong. Jesus got a raw deal from the system, but He did not get His disciples to march in protest.

1977 Romans

Lesson #382

382 04/07/1978 Romans 13 Intro. Doctrine of divine establishment (1-2b): definition, freedom, privacy, volition and marriage

There is a lot of introductory material to chapter 13.

Christianity can live under any form of government other than democracy. The United States is a republic and not a democracy. There is a vast difference between the two.

The notes below are quite accurate and reflect what Bob taught for four classes:

Doctrine of Divine Establishment by R. B. Thieme, Jr.

4/7/78; 4/28/80; Revelation 3:13 1/2/83

A. Definition and Description.

1. God has ordained certain laws for the survival and freedom of the human race during the course of human history. Anarchy exists when segments of nations ignore these laws. The laws of divine establishment provide the freedom to fulfill the divine plan as ordained in the divine decrees under many types of government. Christianity works with nearly every form of government but democracy.
2. The laws of divine establishment are designed and directed toward both believer and unbeliever.
3. They operate from the fall of man to the Second Advent, as well as in the Millennium with some modifications in compatibility with perfect environment.
4. These laws directly affect freedom, civilization, authority, evangelism, spiritual growth, and perpetuation of the human race. They are as important to us as members of the human race as is the law of gravity.
5. The laws of divine establishment define freedom in terms of privacy, property and authority. There is no such thing as blessing, happiness, the enjoyment of life or freedom without authority. All systems of freedom function under authority. We all are free to drive, with a variety of competency levels. Authority allows for this.
6. Both the privacy of the individual and the function of legitimate authority are necessary for the function of human freedom.
7. Therefore, the four divine institutions, volition, marriage, family, and nationalism are the basis for the laws of divine establishment.
8. God also has divine laws for angels and nature. All these laws are designed to resolve the angelic conflict using an inferior creature, man.

B. Establishment and the Divine Institutions.

1. Volition.
 - a. The soul is prepared for us by God. It is the house for human life. The body is the house for the soul. The justice of God imputes human life to the soul; human life resides in the soul forever. No one can remove human life from the soul. This is the doctrine of human security.
 - b. We have two sets of laws, establishment and the royal family honor code under which we are required to function. With both functioning in the believer's life, he has great capacity for life, integrity, and enough doctrine to reach maturity.
 - c. The soul is made up of self-consciousness, mentality, emotion, and volition as the authority of the soul.
 - d. Human volition must have freedom and privacy for proper function. Your soul has privacy since it is hidden in the skull. We must have privacy if we are to exercise our volition. We must have privacy for freedom.

e. Divine establishment provides freedom and privacy for those who do not violate criminal law. Criminals should have no freedom or privacy. They have forfeited their right of privacy.

f. While people are not born equal or live in equality, they must have freedom of choice and the right to live in a free society pursuing a course of action compatible with their own aspirations or lack of the same. You have a right to go as far as your abilities and motivations will take you. No government has a right to destroy your motivation by saying you are greater than you are, or by providing everything for you.

g. Variation in human ability, both inherent and acquired, does not preclude freedom and freedom of decision in adult persons.

h. All normal persons have the option of positive or negative volition at God-consciousness, plus the freedom to accept or reject Jesus Christ at Gospel hearing.

i. Freedom is the basis for true evangelism. Follow up is not authorized for those who attend church or visit a church. Friends who approach you after walking down an aisle is a violation of your privacy.

j. Freedom of speech and worship are necessary for advance to maturity.

k. Freedom is the normal sphere of function for the volition of the soul.

l. Freedom cannot exist without privacy and authority. Therefore, the importance of establishment in human history is emphasized. Exceptions exist, such as slavery in the Roman Empire, where a slave was free to come and go. It is possible to live under slavery, be evangelized, and advance to maturity. After salvation, slaves were to remain slaves; and free remained free. There were such excellent laws of divine establishment in Rome that slaves could move about freely.

2. Marriage.

a. Monogamy, a permanent relationship between one man and one woman, is ordained of God to remind mankind that He has from the beginning a design called right man - right woman, Genesis 1:26:27, 5:1-2, 2:18-25; 1Corinthians 7:2-4.

b. When Jesus Christ created Adam He said, "not good that man should be alone." Therefore God provided the female. Jesus Christ constructed Adam's right woman. Their relationship, established in the garden, was continued after the fall. It has never been cancelled in any generation.

c. Marriage is the most basic and fundamental organization in the human race. Even the unbeliever, whose life is a total failure, can have great temporary happiness by marrying the right woman, no homosexuality Ecclesiastes 9:9.

- d. The analogy to the monogamous relationship and our relationship to Christ is found in Ephesians 5:26-33.
- e. Under the authority of the laws of divine establishment, the right man - right woman relationship becomes the normal, legitimate expression of category two love, 1Corinthians 7:9; 1Timothy 5:14; Ephesians 5:22, 23, 28, 33; Hebrews 13:4.
- f. Marriage is the beginning of authority in life for adults. The husband has all the authority; there are no exceptions or rationalizations. Violations of a principle do not change the principle. For example, God continues to use the local church no matter how badly it fails. We cannot deny the principle of marriage just because we've made a bad marriage. Violations of a principle does not change the principle.
- g. Marriage is one of the greatest areas of mistakes in life because of emotion and authority. You have to be rational in both response and function.
- h. Marriage is the basis for stability in society and for the formation of civilization.
- i. Marriage rejects the theory of revolution, anarchy, promiscuousness, or communal living. It is the protection for the home where the parents exercise authority over the children.

3. Family.

- a. Physical birth and the imputation of human life, plus the imputation of Adam's original sin, finds the human baby both helpless and hopeless. Condemnation from God occurs immediately. Therefore, our personal sins do not condemn us and are free to be imputed to our Lord on the cross.
- b. When we believe in Christ, God's perfect righteousness is imputed to us and we now have a purpose in life: the imputation of blessing to that perfect righteousness, which glorifies God. The laws of divine establishment give freedom to exercise our positive volition toward doctrine so that we can develop the capacity for these blessings.
- c. God has provided certain divine laws, such as the authority of parents, to protect, care, nourish, provide, train, and discipline children to prepare them for life.
- d. Parental authority is the way of preparing children for a normal life. Permissiveness destroys this. There must be recognition of authority and orientation to certain principles in life.
- e. The highest expression of parental love is to inculcate through the forms of discipline. Children must be trained to respect the privacy, property, and rights of others, not to abuse freedom, and to have respect for authority.
- f. Adjustment to life and orientation to circumstances demand authority training. Parents must teach poise, objectivity, respect for police, patriotism, and willingness to serve to protect freedom.

- g. Christian parents must also evangelize and provide predoctrinal training for their children, Deuteronomy 6:6-9, 7:9.
- h. It is the responsibility of parents to instill respect for the Word of God, the teaching of Bible doctrine, plus recognition of authority of the pastor-teacher. This is a spiritual responsibility over and above their establishment responsibility.

4. Nationalism.

- a. If the entire human race were under one rule prior to the Millennium, it would self-destruct. Internationalism is outlawed as being evil by the Word of God.
- b. To perpetuate the human race and bring history to its logical conclusion, God has designed the nation to protect the freedom and rights of X-number of people on this planet. We call this nationalism. Only one language should be recognized in a nation.
- c. With the divine judgment of the original united nations at the tower of Babel, the human race was then divided into nations. This division was originally based on racial, geographical and linguistic norms.
- d. As the human race continued in history, true racial distinctions were obliterated in the rise of civilization. Thus, racial purity is a myth except in pristine areas. Race is used by politicians to create false issues.
- e. The formation of the Jewish nation set up the perfect standard of what a national entity should be.
- f. The Biblical proof that nationalism is authorized by God is found in Genesis 10:5; Deut 32:8; Acts 17:26-28.
- g. All nations who follow the norms and standards of divine establishment possess the following characteristics.
 - (1) Interior protection of freedom is provided through a proper system of law enforcement, jurisprudence, and a system of law whereby a person is innocent until proved guilty, where only proper testimony is allowed and no hearsay is permitted, and where double jeopardy does not exist.
 - (2) The exterior protection of freedom comes through a strong, well-prepared military. All the freedom that we have ever possessed has come through the military.
 - (3) A government of whatever category must protect the freedoms and rights of its citizens without interfering with those rights by the illegal use of power.
 - (4) An economy must be based on free enterprize and capitalism. Labor has no right to dictate the policy of management. Smart management always takes good care of its workers. Government, labor, or criminals do not have the right to superimpose their policy on management. The separation of business and state is an important distinction.

(5) There must be a system of common law which prohibits crime and thereby protects the freedom, rights, life, and property of individuals. It must be a system of law which does not overstep the law by using the law to try to solve social problems. Law, therefore, must always be objective. Subjective distortion of the law uses legislation to invade individual rights, to steal personal property, and to erode human freedom; all in the name of the common good.

(6) There must be a common culture which reflects the spiritual life, morality, esprit de corp, nobility, patriotism, and integrity of a nation through its literature, art, music, and drama. People who come to America from Europe usually want to live and dress like Americans.

(7) There should be a system of government which functions under its power without abusing its power to destroy freedom and establishment. The government should encourage freedom. There should be an administrative body to represent the functions of taxation, law enforcement, honorable jurisprudence, maintenance of the military, and enforcement of law and order without the destruction of human freedom.

(8) All of this is designed by God so He can always have a client nation.

C. Establishment and Evangelism.

1. None of these things would be meaningful without the principle that establishment is designed to evangelize where positive volition exists, and to protect where negative volition exists.
2. A system of mutual authority which protects individual self-determination must have separation of church and state. A state religion always destroys freedom.
3. As long as a government allows religious freedom and self-determination, such a government fulfills its establishment norms. Therefore, the separation of church and state becomes a basic standard for human freedom.
4. Divine institutions and the laws of divine establishment are designed to protect human freedoms for the purpose of true evangelism.
5. Freedom to accept or reject Jesus Christ without pressure put on by anyone should exist. Unbelievers must be free to accept or reject the Gospel without coercion or punishment.
6. The state must never adopt an official religion supported by taxpayer's money. All religion should be free from taxation and never be supported by taxes.
7. A person's relationship with God or lack of it should be a matter of privacy and personal choice.

D. Establishment and Christianity. This relationship is found in Romans 13:1-7. By fulfilling your function as a believer, you do more for your country than anyone else.

1. Matt 21:22, "Render to Caesar the things that are Caesar's [laws of divine establishment], and to God, the things that are God's [royal family honor code]."
2. 1Peter 2:13-14, "Subordinate yourselves.. to every human institution." You became an establishment person the day you believed in Christ. You should be a true conservative.

E. Establishment and National Discipline.

1. This includes the concept of the pivot, which when large enough, means that mature believers (those in Z radical) having maximum influence on their nation under historical impact and blessing by association. It also includes the concept of the five cycles of discipline, which occur when the pivot shrinks and becomes too small. There are spinoffs in a client nation; and these are in reaction against Bible doctrine. He may be involved in some frantic search for happiness. This can be involvement in a service organization. He is following the various types of false doctrine related to these organizations. However, the spinoff will end up in heaven.
2. When divine judgment falls, it always comes in the form of historical disaster. Idiomatic government policy tells you the end is near. When a nation goes completely mad, God destroys that nation, which protects the rest of the world.
3. If the pivot is large enough, the nation will be delivered. If it is too small, the nation is destroyed. Every nation has its relationship with the justice of God through the laws of divine establishment.
4. Religion is the greatest enemy of a nation, because in the name of good, it produces more evil than sins ever could.
5. Historical disaster separates the pivot from the spin-off (those in apostasy and reversionism), but the pivot is preserved, Isaiah 28:5-6; Jer. A nation which has gone mad is destroyed so that history and the human race can be perpetuated.
6. If the nation is preserved, there always follows a great period of prosperity. An example is Judah in B.C. 701. When the spin-off is reduced, this is the basis for that prosperity. The spin-off is destroyed during the crisis so the nation can have prosperity. If a nation doesn't cleanse itself under the laws of divine establishment, then the justice of God cleanses that nation.
7. Historical catastrophe is designed to destroy the infection of apostasy and degeneracy so that a nation can be preserved.
8. Historical disaster as the cleansing of a nation is taught under the concept of the five cycles of discipline in Leviticus 26:14-38.
9. The postulates of integrity in history.
 - a. Personal.
 - (1) There are no advantages to the advantages (blessings) without the Advantage (relationship with the integrity of God).
 - (2) If you have the Advantage, you have the advantages.
 - (3) Without the Advantage, there are no advantages.

b. National.

- (1) No nation can have the advantages without the Advantage.
- (2) A nation without the Advantage loses the advantages.
- (3) No nation can recover its advantages without the Advantage.
- (4) Loss of both the Advantage and the advantages removes a nation from history.

F. Establishment and Authority.

1. People can't survive until they understand authority. Authority is the legal power delegated by God under the laws of divine establishment whereby a certain number of the human race have jurisdiction and responsibility for other members of the human race. The laws of divine establishment define this authority.
2. While authority exists in both spiritual and temporal realms, only temporal authority is related to the laws of divine establishment. Spiritual authority is related to the royal family honor code.
3. Authority is necessary for the function of the laws of divine establishment. We must differentiate between the person and the delegated authority from God.
4. Establishment authority is for both the believer and unbeliever. When we believe in Jesus Christ, we are not exceptions to the rule; and we are still under establishment authority. It includes the authority of husband over wife, parents over children, teachers over students, coaches over athletes, management over labor, senior rank over junior rank, and police officers over public.
5. In addition, there are divine laws of establishment over nature, so that nature also obeys the authority of God, Mt 8:27; Mk 4:41; Luke 8:25. A friend ignored these laws in the chem lab and blew himself up and the lab. Only a few pipes survived.
6. In the spiritual realm, the pastor-teacher is the authority over the congregation, 1Corinthians 16:15-16; 2Corinthians 10:8; 1Thessalonians 5:12; Hebrews 13:7,17.
7. In the realm of establishment, the husband has the authority over the wife. The wife consents to the marriage, even if the wife is smarter than your husband; and therefore is under his authority until death, Ephesians 5:22; Colossians 3:18. Complaining, whining women have no excuse. All males are unreasonable.
8. Authority in the business world stabilizes the economy. Management and investment has all the authority, never labor, Ephesians 6:5; Colossians 3:22.
9. Freedom through military victory is based on authority in military establishment, Neh 4:13-15.

G. Establishment and the Military.

1. Failure of the military on the battlefield indicates lack of training, lack of self-discipline, poor equipment, but mostly lack of respect for authority and no spiritual motivation or incentive to fight. Bob is constantly amazed by the ability of the Americans, the men cut off from all high authorities during the Battle of the Bulge.

2. Failure of the military means loss of freedom.
3. Therefore, freedom is always related to authority. Freedom without authority is anarchy; authority without freedom is tyranny.
4. The military establishment is an index to national character. Successful armies maintain freedom. This is why universal military training is an axiom in the laws of divine establishment, Num 1:2-3, 31:3-5; Deut 24:5; Judges 3:1-2; 2Samuel 22:35; Psalm 18:34, 144:1.
5. Military training is useless when the men of a nation are reversionistic, apostate, and degenerate.
6. Antagonism toward authority destroys the function of the military as the instrument of freedom.
7. Military victory is the means of maintaining peace, not the modus operandi of politicians, Josh 11:23; Psalm 46:7-9.
8. Politicians generally are divorced from reality, saying "'Peace, Peace,' when there is no peace," Jeremiah 6:13-14, 8:11.
9. Draft dodgers, slackers, and deserters are sinful in the eyes of God, Numbers 32:6,7,14 Numbers 20-23. Universal military training is an axiom under the laws of divine establishment. Being a deserter, a slacker, a draft dodger or a conscientious objector is the sin spoken of where we read, "Your sin will find you out."

H. Establishment and Human Freedom.

1. Freedom is the heritage of birth with the imputation of human life to the soul. Because God imputed human life to the soul, that is the basis for freedom.
2. Freedom therefore is an extension of the various functions of the soul, i.e., our volition, mentality, emotion, conscience, and self-consciousness.
3. Freedom exists in two areas of life, both as an extension of the imputation of human life at birth, and as an extension of regeneration, the imputation of eternal life to the human spirit.
4. The laws of divine establishment deal with the first area of human freedom, while the principles of Bible doctrine in the royal family honor code deal with the second area of human freedom.
5. Since man was created to resolve the angelic conflict, freedom is an extension of that conflict into human history.
6. The laws of divine establishment are designed to protect human freedom so that evangelism and spiritual advance can occur in every generation of history.
7. The laws of divine establishment protect the privacy, property, freedom, and volition of mankind. The decalogue (ten commandments) is part of the laws of divine establishment designed to protect human freedom and human rights.

8. There are Biblical statements to the believer about freedom are numerous:
 - a. Gal 5:1 In the sphere of freedom, Christ has freed us; stand firm, therefore, and stop being enmeshed by the yoke of slavery [to good and evil].
 - b. John 8:32 And you shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free. God's truth gives you spiritual freedom regardless of your human circumstances.
 - c. Rom 8:21, "...into the freedom of glory with reference to the children of God." This refers to our future freedom.
 - d. 2Corinthians 3:17 And where the Spirit of the Lord is, there is freedom.
 - e. Psalm 119:45 And I will walk in freedom for I seek your doctrines.
9. But the freedom in the spiritual realm, which belongs only to the believer, must be distinguished from establishment freedom, which is the heritage of all people in a national entity.
10. The existence and perpetuation of freedom demands respect for establishment authority. Military victory is the means of maintaining national freedom and the laws of divine establishment. Self-discipline is necessary.
11. Under the laws of divine establishment, freedom places demands upon both the believer and unbeliever. However, in Romans 13:1-7, the responsibility for freedom under establishment principles of authority is limited to the believer only.
12. Part of the royal family honor code is to render to Caesar (human government) the things that are Caesar's, and to God the things that are God's. Therefore, no Christian can ignore military service, obeying the law, or paying taxes.
- I. Establishment and the Ten Commandments.
 1. The decalogue is found in Ex 20:1-17.
 2. As these commandments are written in Old English they are prefaced by the phrase, "Thou shalt not," which is the imperfect tense in Hebrew used as the imperative. The phrase indicates the believer's responsibility in protecting human freedom through compliance with the laws of divine establishment. The decalogue doesn't deal with the subject of sin but with the subject of human freedom. It just so happens that certain sins are an attack on human freedom. Therefore, the two subjects come together in the decalogue.
 3. The ten commandments define human freedom in terms of attitude toward God, people, and property.
 - a. Peoples' property is sacred. It belongs to them. There is nothing wrong with being wealthy, or successful. It is not anti-Christian. People should be wealthy under free enterprise.
 - b. You must have respect for people by giving them their privacy.
 4. The first commandment is not only a prohibition of idolatry, but national recognition that Jesus Christ controls history.

5. While the first commandment prohibits mental or soul idolatry, the second prohibits overt idolatry, which is said to be contact with demons, Zech 10:2; 1Corinthians 10:19-21.
6. Demonism destroys human freedom, while overt idolatry destroys a nation, Isaiah 2:8, 18-20, 21:9, 36:18-20, 37:12-19; Jer 3:6-11; Ezekiel 6:4-6.
7. The third commandment prohibits the use of the name of the Lord God for vain and unworthy objects, including gossip, false testimony, and covering a lie.
 - a. Using God's name as an expletive is taking the Lord's name in vain, but is not what this passage deals with. This passage means to use God as a front for your lying, cheating, stealing, or perjury.
 - b. God's name is used properly in worship, prayer, praise, thanksgiving, the expression of personal love for God, and doctrinal communication.
 - c. God's name should not be used to persuade people into a false position. "You shall not use the name of the Lord your God for evil." God's name is not to be used for human projects which allege the will of God.
8. The fourth commandment relates the volition of man to time. The importance of the Sabbath is in the fact that it is a memorial to the grace of God. It is a reminder that God rested on the seventh day from all He had provided, Isaiah 58:11-14.
 - a. The Sabbath also recognizes an establishment principle in the function of the economy, i.e., that people who work for a living have to have time to rest. People need to rest to get ready for the next week. This is rest as related to divine establishment. Even Hammurabi did not come up with this idea.
 - b. Doing nothing is a reminder of grace. Just as the body needs rest for function, so man needs rest for freedom. Man with no rest becomes a slave. He has no opportunity to exercise his freedom and personal volition in relationship to time.
9. The fifth commandment establishes the principle of authority under the laws of divine establishment. The first authority in life is that of parents. "Respect your father and mother that your days may be prolonged in the land which the Lord your God gives to you." Recognition of authority is the basic principle of orientation to life. Recognition of authority is the secret to a long healthy life.
10. The sixth commandment emphasizes the establishment principle of live and let live. "You shall not murder."
 - a. Killing is authorized for capital punishment and for those in the military fighting for freedom. You will kill without emotion. You will kill by correctly using your weapons and your skills.
 - b. Murder is the basic violation of human freedom. It is also a sin. The right to live under God is removed when a person is murdered. If you intrude on God's right to take life in His timing, you violate the laws of divine establishment and commit the worst overt sin.

11. The seventh commandment protects the freedom of right man - right woman. "You shall not commit adultery." Adultery is both a sin and an attack on human freedom. Capacity for love and life is distorted and ruined, so that adultery not only abuses freedom, but destroys the possibility for happiness in life. A woman should be one man's property. The command is directed to men; it assumes the woman is not smart enough to tell a man from a boy.
 12. The eighth commandment emphasizes the right of private property under the laws of divine establishment. "You shall not steal."
 - a. Stealing is a sin, a crime, and a violation of the laws of divine establishment. The command demands the government protect both the lives and property of those in the nation.
 - b. Stealing is a basic disorientation to life. People who have accumulated things in life have a right to those things. You shouldn't even steal to stay alive. Stealing is complete disorientation to life. It is as low a thing as could occur. Stealing is short-cutting the function of advancing under authority.
 - c. When oriented to life, you never have to steal. You must recognize people have the right to their property. When you are tempted to steal, that is a warning you are not oriented to life and to the laws of divine establishment.
 - d. Governments steal through high taxes. Governments make criminals out of law-abiding citizens.
 - e. A thief is the lowest person in the world to Bob.
 - f. People have a right to private property.
 - g. We have an immoral, dishonest government who steal from corporations under the socialist principle, the greatest good for the greatest number.
 13. The ninth commandment emphasizes the protection of human freedom through objectivity in the function of the law. Laws of evidence demand truth in courtroom testimony. This verbal sin is sinful and anti-establishment.
 - a. Hearsay is not admissible as testimony. You can't live and let live and gossip at the same time.
 - b. Law cannot function objectively with perjury; society cannot live objectively where gossip and maligning goes unchecked.
 14. The tenth commandment demands restraint on the lust pattern of the old sin nature. This command was the basis for Paul's discovery of the old sin nature, Romans 7:7.
- J. Establishment and Morality.
1. The ten commandments define morality in terms of establishment. Morality is the observation of the laws of divine establishment. Therefore, it is for both the believer and unbeliever.

2. Since sin is an attack on establishment, morality is the antidote and is commanded for both believer and unbeliever.
3. Therefore, morality is not Christianity, but is the human race functioning under the laws of divine establishment.
4. Morality is not the monopoly of Christianity. Christians in civil responsibility have moral responsibility. Anything an unbeliever can do is not the Christian way of life. Believers have great responsibility to their nation to obey the laws of divine establishment.
5. Morality is defined as right conduct and excellence in the function of the laws of divine establishment.
6. Morality is conformity to the laws of divine establishment, which has as its basic tenet: live and let live. This overlaps with the royal family honor code.
7. While Christianity is not morality but a relationship with God through Jesus Christ, Christianity demands morality from the royal family of God. We are not exempt from certain civic responsibilities.
8. Therefore, the advancing believer is never anti-establishment or immoral. No mature believer is a socialist. Mature believers cannot be anti-establishment. Naziism is socialism. Fascism is socialism. These are synonyms; not antonyms.
9. The laws of divine establishment demand morality from both believer and unbeliever alike.
10. Morality is the result of spiritual growth, but it is not living the Christian life. Living the Christian life is compliance with the royal family honor code.
11. Living the Christian life is the filling of the Holy Spirit, maximum doctrine in the soul, positive volition to doctrine, maturity adjustment to the justice of God. None of these can be accomplished by the unbeliever. Christianity is not morality, but this doesn't mean you can be immoral.
12. Morality as an establishment factor protects human freedom, but it does not provide eternal salvation, Gal 2:16; Titus 3:5; Romans 3:20.
13. Morality can and does protect human freedom. Immorality leads to anarchy, i.e., no recognition of authority. Christian dynamics includes morality but at the same time exceeds morality. Morality is the environment in which Christianity functions.

K. Christian Responsibility to Establishment.

1. Matt 21:22, "Render unto Caesar..." The Lord delineates the Christian responsibility in the civil area and in the spiritual area.
2. Christianity functions under two standards: the laws of divine establishment which is our civil responsibility, and the royal family honor code which is our spiritual responsibility.
 - a. When you fulfill your responsibility to God through advancement to spiritual maturity, you demonstrate the true solution to problems in the nation.

b. Violence does not solve problems, it only intensifies problems. Violence destroys the impetus of the laws of divine establishment, which is civilization.

3. 1Timothy 2:13 Pray on behalf of kings and all who are in authority, that we may lead undisturbed and tranquil lives in all godliness and integrity. Compare 1Peter 2:13-14 Subordinate yourselves to every human institution, whether to a king as one in authority, or to a governor sent by him; for the punishment for those who do evil for the recognition of those who do good.

Lesson #383

383 04/09/1978 Romans 13 Book on U.S. changes; doctrine of the laws of divine establishment (2c–3): family, nationalism and evangelism

Notes for divine establishment placed with previous lesson.

Warner and Swasey, a large corporation, put out a book called “What has really changed?”

They do not keep feeding you cheese after the trap has sprung.

The bigger the government, the smaller the people. Americans are being drowned in laws they do not understand. Every time we ask government instead of doing it ourselves, we surrender more freedom.

What does Washington want? Your money.

WARNER & SWASEY CO., THE, 1776 - 1976, What Has REALLY Changed? American Business Principles Are Still Basic to Our Way of Life. 91 eloquent advertisements of The Warner & Swasey Co., a selection of many more, 96pp, booklet of Dec 15, 1976, ads from 1941 - 1975, in PP 1137.

Review of points from the previous lesson. A continuation of the laws of divine establishment, all notes in the previous lesson.

1977 Romans

Lesson #384

384 04/09/1978 Romans 13 "Majority Rule" in Africa; doctrine of the laws of divine establishment: discipline, authority and military (points 4–7)

Establishment and Christianity. Bob reads a corrected translation to vv. 1–7.

There are some “conservatives” only insofar as the laws of divine establishment benefit them personally.

Some points on the laws of divine establishment are placed two lessons back.

Our country is filled with quislings who want us to go communist.

Some female called and wanted to speak to brother Thieme, so Bob knew she was not apart of Berachah. “What if I was dying and about to go to hell.” Bob knew that she was a reversionist. Bob could tell that this was a woman accustomed to getting her own way. It was a race to tell who was going to hand up on who first. “There are no shades of grey when dealing with a woman.”

“Your husband may be unreasonable; but I have news for you—all of us males are unreasonable.”

1977 Romans

Lesson #385

385 04/10/1978 Romans 13 Gun control; doctrine of the laws of divine establishment (8–9): freedom; Ten Commandments; envy; U.S. Coat of Arms; theft

This seems to be a time of good and evil.

The Russians lust after Thom McCann. They cannot make decent shoes there. They don't own anything over there. There emotion is all they have. “You have better wake up and realize that this is the greatest country in the world.”

The coat of arms for the army is related to the first commandment. Bob has not met an officer who knows what it means. The blue background is divine royalty or justice. The 13 stars are within the clouds, within the glory. The eagle represents freedom.

Divine establishment notes will be placed with the doctrine back in lesson #382.

1977 Romans

Lesson #386

386 04/11/1978 Romans 13:1a Book: "Clichés of Socialism"; property rights; doctrine of the laws of divine establishment (10–11); morality; Naziism; violence; police; government authority.

Book anthology called Cliches of Socialism. Things which are said every day in the United States which are socialistic and false.

These sayings are Marxists tools to steal money from people.

Human rights are superior to property rights. Men have three great rights. Right to his life, the right to his liberty and the right to his property. To give a man his life, but no liberty, gives him no reason to enjoy life. To remove his property rights is equally problematic.

Tricky phrases regarding human rights. Like the idea that there are human rights in opposition to property rights. But there is no such distinction. The term property has no rights; these are rights to property.

Although the Scriptures say that a bishop is not a striker of persons; it does not say anything about counter punching.

Divine establishment notes will be placed with the doctrine back in lesson #382. This doctrine is completed with this lesson.

Chapter 13 Outline: Christian Responsibility.

1. Christian responsibility to government, verses 1-7.
2. Christian responsibility to others, verses 8-10.
3. Christian responsibility to self, verses 11-14.

Submission to the Authorities

Romans 13:1 Let every soul be subject to the authorities being above him. For there is no authority except by God; but those existing are having been instituted by God. (BLB)

Verse 1 – Christian recognition of establishment.^[1] “Let every soul be subject unto the higher powers” is incorrect. It begins with the vocative feminine singular from the adjective pás (πάς) [pronounced pahs] which means all. Also a vocative feminine singular subject psuchê (ψυχή) [pronounced psoo-KHAY] which has three meanings. It means soul, but it also means life since the soul is the residence of human life forever. And it has a third meaning. When God imputes life to the human soul at birth you have a human being, and that is what it means here—“All human beings.”

Then the present middle imperative of the verb hupotassô (ὑποτάσσω) [pronounced hoop-ot-AS-so], a military word, the most basic orientation to life. It means to subordinate yourself to authority, and it is translated “be subordinating yourself.” You cannot have freedom, use freedom, enjoy freedom until you recognize the authority that enforces freedom/provides freedom. All freedom depends upon authority. There is no freedom where there is no duly constituted authority. The progressive present indicates a state of persistence, linear aktionsart. The middle voice is the direct middle, it refers the action directly to the agent with reflexive force. It emphasizes self-discipline, that you must have cognizance of establishment and of your own free will live under its authority. The imperative mood: this is a command for the entire human race.

Next is the dative plural indirect object from the present active participle, used as an adjective, huperéchō (ὑπερέχω) [pronounced hoop-er-EHKH-oh], and it means “governing.” It refers to duly constituted authority under divine institution #4. Plus the dative plural indirect object from exousia (ἐξουσία) [pronounced ex-oo-SEE-ah] —“authority.” It is in the plural so it means “authorities.”

Jews were incorrectly citing Deuteronomy 17:15 (reversed?) to say that they did not have to obey the Roman rulers.

Romans 13:1a All human beings be subordinating yourselves to governing authorities.

1977 Romans

Lesson #387

387 04/12/1978 Romans 13:1b Welfare state; subordinate self to the office of authority; anarchy of the Jews; revolution

Another cliché of socialism. The welfare state is the best defense/security against communism. A similar excuse was used to finance socialistic governments overseas. Now we have a government which turns us into zombies. And they are telling us that they know better how to spend our money. They have oppressed us right into the ground today.

The will of man is not slaughtered, but softened and guided. It does not tyrannize, but it oppresses and tyrannizes the people.

We do not use violence to gain power; but the gangster will slip right in there and use his violence to secure something worse.

Romans 13:1a All human beings subordinate yourselves to the governing authorities...

Summary

1. Being a Christian does not exclude the believer from the responsibility to authority under the laws of divine establishment.
2. Neither anarchy nor revolution is ever condoned or sanctioned by the Word of God.
3. In A.D. 51 the Emperor Claudius banished Jews from Rome because of their distortion of the Messianic eschatology. It had been distorted into rejection of the fundamental authority in the Roman empire. The governmental authority had provided protection for the Jews. They were free in their homeland to function under their laws and customs. They were free to travel throughout the Roman empire and pursue any course of action which would bring them profit or whatever they wanted in their way of life. It was the Roman empire who sponsored them and protected them. However, they distorted Biblical theology and eschatology. For Messiah was truly coming—and had come, actually—but they were saying that because of the messianic implications of eschatology they had no responsibility to the government which provided them freedom. Therefore they rejected Roman government and even criticized it as non-participants.

- a. Even though our taxes are confiscatory, we pay our taxes. It is unfair, wrong, and evil; but we still pay it.
 - b. We have certain privileges and rights, but we are exploited by the welfare system.
 - c. So many new movies and programs on Naziism; to get us to think that socialism/communism is the opposite from Naziism. The socialists persecuted the Jews long before the Jews.
 - d. Our money has been given away by the billions to support communism throughout the world.
 - e. Hitler was not a conservative.
4. These Jews assumed that each succeeding Caesar was the Antichrist. They justified their revolt against Claudius, then Nero, this authority which gave them their freedom and protection.
 5. This same distortion of Judaism would eventuate in the Jewish revolution of 66 A.D. during the reign of Nero. It resulted in the administration of the 5th cycle of discipline to the southern kingdom of Judea. The Jews resorted to violence and they died by violence.
 6. In the meantime (prior to A.D. 66) the spirit of revolution was abroad in Judaism, and their rejection of Roman authority placed them on a disaster course.
 7. When Paul wrote the words of Romans 13 a degenerate ruler by the name of Nero sat on the throne. Yet, in Romans 13, Paul does not advocate revolution against Nero who would be the instrument for the administration of his own martyrdom.
 8. In other words, revolutionary fanaticism is forbidden by the Word of God. What doctrine cannot solve is not solvable!
 9. Even slaves in the Roman empire were commanded not to revolt because the gospel and doctrine provided the freedom necessary to live out their lives to the glory of Jesus Christ. God's plan for Christian slaves in the Roman empire was not hindered by their status of slavery.
 10. Another application is obvious. Assassination of a ruler or the violent overthrow of government is not the prerogative of the believer in Jesus Christ. Christianity should never be involved in such activity.
 11. As with individuals, so with nations. Leave judgment, punitive action, discipline to the Lord.
 12. Revolution is just as much an intrusion on the prerogative of the justice of God as is gossip, maligning, judging, backbiting, etc.
 13. There is one difference, however. Revolution is collective presumption, collective blasphemy; gossip, maligning and judging is personal presumption, personal blasphemy.
 14. Today many believers understanding and discerning the current imbecility of bureaucratic government are tempted to enter into conspiracy against it. Such believers have lost many freedoms in the name of common good, but they have not lost their freedom to worship, to take in doctrine, to gather to honor the Lord. Their freedom to express positive volition toward doctrine is intact.

15. While many of the tenets of Marxist communism have been accepted by a nations leadership the believer is still under the authority of God, the Word of God, and specifically this command in Romans 13:1—“All human beings be subordinating yourselves to governing authorities.”
16. Civil government is necessary under the laws of divine establishment, while revolt and anarchy is both anti-God, inhuman and devilish.
17. The principle respects the authority and the office but never the person or the personality.
18. Like everything else in life where authority is an issue neither the personality nor the character of that authority can simultaneously be the issue.
19. The personality and character of the husband is not the issue, for his authority resides in the fact that he is the husband. The husband is not always right. He still has the legitimate authority.
20. The personality and character of the parents is not the issue [children], for their authority resides in the fact that they are your parents.
21. The personality and character of the boss is not the issue, for his authority resides in the fact that he is the boss.
22. The personality and character of the coach is not the issue, for his authority resides in the fact that he is coach.
23. The personality and character of the pastor is not the issue, for his authority resides in the fact that he has the gift of pastor-teacher.
24. The personality of the leader of a country is not the issue, for his authority resides in the fact that he is the leader.
25. The personality and character of the tax collector is not the issue, for his authority resides in the fact that he is the tax collector.
26. The personality and character of the police officer is not the issue, for his authority resides in the fact that he is a police officer. When a police officer brought Bob home and the police officer was automatically right.

Submission to the Authorities

Romans 13:1 Let every soul be subject to the authorities being above him. For there is no authority except by God; but those existing are having been instituted by God. (BLB)

“For there is no power but of God” – the explanatory use of the postpositive conjunctive particle gar, plus the present active indicative of eimi (εἰμί) [pronounced eye-ME] and the negative ou (οὐ) [pronounced oo]. The present tense is a static present, it represents a condition which is assumed as perpetually existing under the laws of divine establishment. The active voice: divine authority is delegated under the laws of establishment and produces the action of the verb. The indicative mood is declarative for a dogmatic statement of doctrine. Then the predicate nominative exousia (ἐξουσία) [pronounced ex-oo-SEE-ah] which means authority, and specifically delegated authority from God—“For there is no authority.” Plus ei (εἰ) [pronounced I] mê (μή) [pronounced may] which form an idiom, and it means “except.” The prepositional phrase is hupó (ὑπό) [pronounced hoop-

OH] plus the ablative of theos (θεός) [pronounced theh-OSS]. When hupó (ὑπό) [pronounced hoop-OH] takes the ablative case it indicates origin or source—“except delegated by God.” God is the origin and source of the laws of divine establishment.

1977 Romans

Lesson #388

388 04/13/1978 Romans 13:1c Socialism, strikes; source and purpose of civil authority; separation of church and state

People have developed prejudices. The more complex the society, the more government we need, is the false statement; but the idea is, we need less government.

The government should do for the people what the people are unable to do for themselves. And the idea that people are going to starve to death unless you help them. One professor stood up and said he had seen 10 people starve, and the question came, “Why didn’t you help them?”

The right of unions to strike. The idea that people make the same amount of money, even though one person is better at that job than the other.

Submission to the Authorities

Romans 13:1 Let every soul be subject to the authorities being above him. For there is no authority except by God; but those existing are having been instituted by God. (BLB)

“the powers that be are ordained of God” – the transitional use of the conjunction de is used to insert an explanation, and the translation should be, “that is.”

Then the nominative feminine plural from the articular present active participle of the verb eimi (εἰμί) [pronounced eye-ME], the verb to be which here means to exist. The nominative plural definite article is used to denote a previous reference to the authority. Hence, it is used as an immediate demonstrative pronoun and is translated “those authorities”—“those authorities which exist.” The present tense of eimi (εἰμί) [pronounced eye-ME] is a historical when the past function of divine establishment is used as a present occurrence. The active voice: delegated authority from God under the laws of divine establishment produces the action of the verb. The participle is circumstantial.

There is a periphrastic here composed of a present active indicative with the previous present active participle. Then the verb eimi (εἰμί) [pronounced eye-ME] again, present active indicative. The present tense is a progressive present for action in the state of persistence. The active voice: delegated authority produces the action. The indicative mood is declarative for a dogmatic statement of fact, i.e. “those which exist are.” This participle, “are,” is a part of the perfect periphrastic, the rest of it being a perfect passive participle from the verb tassō (τάσσω) [pronounced TAS-soh], which means here to put someone in charge, to delegate authority, to delegate responsibility—“have been delegated.” The intensive perfect tense emphasizes the existing results in the function of the laws of divine establishment in human history. The passive voice: the delegated authority under establishment receives the action of the verb. The participle is a part of the perfect periphrastic.

Then the last two words: hupó (ὑπό) [pronounced hoop-OH] plus the ablative of theos (θεός) [pronounced theh-OSS]—"by God." The ablative of means is used when origin is implied in the means. God is the origin of the laws of divine establishment for the entire human race.

Romans 13:1 All human beings subordinate yourselves to governing authorities. For there is no authority except delegated by God; that is, those which do exist have been delegated by God.

Principle

1. Governmental authority does not derive its power from the people. The power is derived from God.
2. Whether hereditary kings or rulers in a republic their authority has been one source: the justice of God.
3. What God has ordained the believer has no right to contradict.
4. All rulers at all levels are responsible to God for any abuse of their authority.
5. This is why God permitted the Russian revolution of 1917—because the Romanov rulers abused their God-given authority. Some of them were stupid about their power.
6. God does not sponsor revolution, but God permits revolution as the natural historical result where authority is abused without check. The only reason revolution does not occur is because there is a pivot large enough to offset such a catastrophe.
 - a. The first war for American independence was not a revolutionary war. Bob was asked this and he was shocked to hear such a question. Since the people of the colonies were taxed, they had a right to have seats in the House of Commons. George II could not even speak English.
 - b. When a person is taxed, they should have a say in their government. But extra seats in parliament were not given to them. They demanded redress.
 - c. The purpose of the war was originally to get a redress of grievances.
 - d. This was not a revolutionary war.
 - e. Our second war for independence was between the north and the south. Lincoln called up 50,000 troops to force his vision on the south. This was a violation of the Constitution. This was to solve a social problem by violence. Slavery was receding in the south at this time.
 - f. Delaware was the first state to solve its own problem in this realm.
7. The rise of Adolf Hitler combines an abuse of authority in Germany plus the false usurpation of authority and a false use of authority in the part of the League of Nations.

8. However, when civil power contradicts the Word of God it subverts and denies the very source of its own authority. One of the most difficult things in the world is to have authority on any level; because that authority is then under the authority of God and there will be an accounting for the abuse of authority. The most dangerous place to be in life is a person with authority because he is responsible to God.
9. Human arrogance and rejection of authority leads to anarchy. Human power in anarchy leads to despotism and tyranny. Christian obedience to the defacto authority inevitably leads to true civil and spiritual freedom.
10. Civil freedom, including respect for authority, makes the individual truly free.
11. While military victory provides freedom, establishment authority in obedience to the laws of divine establishment maintains that freedom so that evangelization and spiritual growth is possible within the national entity.
12. The elevation of establishment and morality in compliance with the laws of divine establishment will accomplish more than revolution ever could, no matter how justifiable the revolution appears to be.
 - a. You can always find support for a revolution because people have sin natures.
 - b. Power corrupts arrogant people.

Calvin Coolidge was a great president; and the thrust of his presidency was to do nothing.

Communism and fascism are synonymous...both are systems of socialism; both are systems of violence and evil; and both are systems of arrogance. The issue today is not Naziism, but communism.

Principle

1. The actual existence of civil authority with delegated civil power is an ordinance of divine establishment. It is not a social contract and it is not designed to solve social problems. It is designed to enforce those laws which deal with freedom, privacy, property, prosperity. If you have earned money or goods, you can dispose of them in any legitimate way. Legislation is not designed to solve social problems; and neither is violence.
2. Vox populi, vox dei (The voice of the people is the voice of God) is a farce. The voice of the people is not the voice of God. The voice of the people is the sum total of the function of their old sin natures in the field of arrogance, self-centeredness and selfishness, plus that vicious evil called self-righteousness. "The people are a voice and nothing else."
3. Hence, the ideal form of government is the existence of civil power compatible with human freedom in the divine institutions, free also from social opposition of good and evil.
4. Power and authority must reside in the divine institutions and not seized by an administrator for personal aggrandizement.

5. The royal family honor code includes duty to state or nation, patriotism as opposed to internationalism.
6. Paul himself was protected by Roman authority from Jewish legalism.
7. Two erroneous extremes of Christianity: a) The state should be subordinated to the church. That is wrong, the state should not be subordinated to the church; b) The church should be subordinated to the state. That is wrong. The right principle as far as the Word is concerned is separation of church and state. Romanism and Erastianism.
8. However, the government's responsibility is to protect the church in its civil rights, while the church sustains the state by the formation of a pivot of mature believers.

The information put into a computer from gun dealers (about purchasers) will be used by the government for future confiscation...and once they are confiscated, then you are the slave of the state and the slave of lawlessness, for there will be two groups who still have guns: the government and the criminal.

Our founders made it clear that the government is the servant of the people and not their master.

"I would not be bussed one block to associate with some of you...and vice versa."

Separation of Church and State

1. Church and state must be kept separate, and the authorities of church and state must always be separated. If a pastor runs for an office and gets it, he needs to let go of his church.
2. The authority of state is found in the laws of divine establishment, while the authority of the church is delegated through spiritual gifts sovereignly bestowed by the Holy Spirit. So the very source of the authority for each group demands separation.
3. Christian duty toward the church can be summarized by the phrase "the daily function of GAP," while the Christian duty to the state can be summarized by obedience to civil authority, and military authority when the occasion arises.
4. Worldly power is designed for collective temporal peace, while spiritual power is designed for individual eternal peace/prosperity.
5. Separation of church and state is absolutely necessary for personal freedom. Some citizens are faced with false dichotomies.
6. Obedience to authority and payment of taxes protects the law-abiding citizen from loss of freedom from enemies within as well as enemies without.
7. Tax money should be used for law enforcement and military establishment but never for socialism and the welfare state. This does not preclude charity. The state can function in the realm of charity, but not to turn this help into the welfare state.
8. When a leader governs by the country's constitution and at the same time is governed by the laws of divine establishment he becomes a double blessing to that nation.

9. When a leader governs according to the Marxist theory of greater good, and at the same time is ruled by reversionism and evil, he is a double curse to the nation.

1977 Romans

Lesson #389

389 04/14/1978 Romans 13:2a Excess government + national debt; democracy is anti Christian; anti-laws of divine establishment of the reversionistic believer

Cliches of socialism. Too much government; just what would you cut out? This question is raised by the socialist and often it leaves the conservative speechless. Those who understand limited government solves this problem. Government defends all people equally. We have a right to life, freedom and property. The concept of government explained in the Declaration of Independence. Each individual is responsible for his own life and advancement. Personal accountability. Man's freedom is not derived from the state but from the Creator.

The size of the national debt does not matter because we owe it to ourselves. No point in a person borrowing from himself. If the government does not pay back to its creditors, then all property is lost. This becomes big government to cover up its failures.

Romans 13:2 Therefore the one rebelling against the authority has resisted the ordinance of God, and those having resisted will bring judgment upon themselves.

Verse 2 – “Whosoever therefore resisteth the power” begins with the conjunction hōste (ὥστε) [pronounced HOH-steh] which introduces an independent clause with an inference. It is translation with the inferential conjunction “therefore” – in view of what was studied in verse 1. Then the articular present active participle from antitássomai (ἀντιτάσσομαι) [pronounced an-tee-TASS-som-ah], a military term which means to form a battle line against the opposition. It is translated “resist” here and it connotes opposition to divine institution #4 specifically, but generally opposition to delegated authority in establishment. “Therefore those who resist.” The definite article is used as a demonstrative pronoun which emphasizes the believer in opposition to the laws of divine establishment. The present tense is a descriptive present denoting what was going on in the Roman church which was opposed to the Roman government. This is a customary present for what habitually occurs among reversionistic believers, i.e. the one who rejects establishment, the very basis by which he was evangelized and the only hope he has of advancing to maturity under the intake of Bible doctrine. The middle voice is used here, and while the active voice emphasizes the action the middle voice emphasizes the agent producing the action. Generally in the middle voice the agent acts with a view toward participating in the outcome. Here is the indirect middle in which the agent simply produces the action of the verb. The participle is circumstantial for the function of the reversionistic believer resisting establishment principles. Next comes the dative of indirect object from exousia (ἐξουσία) [pronounced ex-oo-SEE-ah] which means authority. It has a definite article, used here to make reference to its previous use as establishment authority in context—“the authority,” i.e. the laws of divine establishment.

“resisteth the ordinance of God” – the perfect active indicative of anthístēmi (ἀνθίστημι) [pronounced anth-IHS-tay-mee] means to oppose. This is slightly different from resisting. Resisting means that your soul is organized, you are making a decision on the basis of what you think, and it is opposed to establishment principles. Such a person makes decisions out of the organized part of his life. So when you are talking about the soul making wrong decisions you use antitássomai (ἀντιτάσσομαι) [pronounced an-tee-TASS-som-ahēe]—thinking. As a result of that thinking application is made, so anthístēmi (ἀνθίστημι) [pronounced anth-IHS-tay-mee] is used by God the Holy Spirit for application of wrong thinking. If your thinking is wrong the application is wrong. “Therefore those who resist the authority have opposed.” The consummative perfect tense emphasizes the completed action of the verb. Here it is not the existing state which is emphasized but a consummated process of opposition to establishment. The consummated perfect is not merely the rejection of authority denoted but a consummated process which implies the result of opposition to the laws of divine establishment. The active voice: the reversionistic believer produces the action of the verb living in the devil’s triangle. The dative singular from the noun diatagê (διαταγή) [pronounced dee-at-ag-AY] means a divine institution and ordinance. They have opposed the divine institution thereby neutralising the divine institution, therefore a dative of disadvantage to the people involved—“the ordinance.” Plus the possessive genitive from theos (θεός) [pronounced theh-OSS], “of God.” These are believers who are doing this because they are ignorant of doctrine.

Principle

1. Every believer should be a paladin for establishment.
2. This is why every believer with doctrine resident in his soul is politically a conservative.
3. A true conservative understands and champions the laws of divine establishment against all Satanic and apostate attacks of liberalism.
4. Anticipating the last phrase of this verse, all believers who oppose establishment ordinances and institutions of God receive two categories of divine discipline: direct discipline from God for reversionism and apostasy; and historical discipline from God as those who oppose authority and sponsor revolution, conspiracy and violent overthrow of government.
5. All apostate believers, both reversionistic and liberal, are in opposition to God.
6. In effect, they are the enemies of God who has saved them and has provided a perfect plan for their lives, but they are destroying the very principle upon which that plan operates—freedom, privacy, property.
7. The ingratitude of the reversionistic believer often exists from ignorance of doctrine.
8. God is not the author of confusion. There must be order and authority in the human race for its survival.
9. The survival of the human race is the basis for concluding the angelic conflict.
10. Divine institution #4, nationalism, protects the freedom of the human race and guarantees local evangelism plus strong missionary effort in other geographical areas.

1977 Romans

Lesson #390

390 04/16/1978 Romans 13:2b Technical and moral change; internationalism; believer: obey civil law or reap divine discipline

Bob had a movie on Saturday Night at the Movies that he had never seen before and would never see it again. It was terrible and bored him to death. The movie lampooned everything from Bob's past; "It was #2, if you know what I mean" was a line from the movie which described it. A good line here and a good line there; and a nice illustration.

Bob was taken in to think that this was going to be a good movie.

Communist cliché: You would take us back to the horse and buggy. This is a confusion of technology, morality and human principles. Socialists cannot handle this progress. It is easy for men to assume that all other aspects of society are bound to the change in technology. The Constitution was framed during the horse and buggy era. Doesn't this mean that the railroad age requires a change as well; and today, more change? This assumes that the growth of government must occur with an increase in technology. What change in morality or political philosophy to change is necessary after the invention of jets? The teachings of Jesus and Paul were out of an era are just as applicable today. Indoor plumbing has never improved the Ten Commandments. No matter how technology improves, the sin nature remains the same.

Technology has always moved ahead, but the morality of a nation goes up and down.

We have had a series of presidents who have been giving away our technology; and Russia uses these things against us. There is no religious freedom in Russia and there has not been since 1917.

As long as Russia is communist, there cannot be an good Russians. They are communists by definition. The communists cannot advance their own technology. They simply bully us into giving them our technological advances. They have no freedom, no creativity; so even their shoes are bad.

Middle Ages life span might be 26 or 30 if you were healthy. People who traveled recognized the slovenly nature of the peasants in France and elsewhere.

The human race is perpetuated by the laws of divine establishment; and not by technology.

Principle

1. Governmental authorities are seen here not from the standpoint of their individual personalities and character but as officers of divine institution with authority from God

2. Human government is a permanent divine institution as a guarantee of individual privacy, property and freedom, and as a safeguard against internationalism which is the tyranny of Satan to control the human race in the angelic conflict.
3. All internal organizations--such as communism in Russia or China, or Cuba, there is nothing but tyranny and anti-establishment—are political internationalism, along with the former League of Nations and the present United Nations.
4. There is also religious internationalism such as the World Council of Churches. The WCC today sponsors revolution and advocates violence to solve social problems. It is anti-Christian to the core.
5. All forms of internationalism expose Satanic conspiracy and they oppose the divine ordinance of nationalism.
6. Civil authority, law and order to protect human freedom, is an ordinance from God.
7. The Bible does not condone the Christian becoming involved in revolutionary movements. That is trying to solve problems by violence. Christian duty is to established power and authority, not to revolutionary power and authority.
8. Therefore Christian responsibility to the national entity includes obedience to the laws of the land: paying taxes even though they are confiscatory, participation in the military establishment, and whatever additional duties which may be assigned such as jury duty, voting, and even holding office.
9. This means that lawful means should always be employed in rescinding unlawful and unjust laws.

There are over 100 taxes applied to a single loaf of bread by the time it is sold.

Romans 13:2 Therefore the one rebelling against the authority has resisted the ordinance of God, and those having resisted will bring judgment upon themselves. (BLB)

“and they that resist shall receive to themselves damnation” – this begins with the postpositive conjunctive particle de which is used here as a transitional conjunction. It is used to insert an explanation, so it has to be translated “in fact.” Next is the nominative plural definite article used for the personal pronoun to describe apostate believers, reversionistic believers, anti-establishment believers, believers who are involved in what has been called “Christian socialism.” Plus the perfect active participle from the verb anthístēmi (ἀνθίστημι) [pronounced anth-IHS-tay-mee] which means to oppose—“in fact they who oppose.” The dramatic perfect tense is a rhetorical use of the intensive perfect, emphasizing the existing state of apostate individuals—believers. The active voice: the reversionistic believer, the liberal believer in his theology and in his politics, the revolutionary believer, the anti-establishment believer, produces the action of the verb. The participle is circumstantial.

With it is a future middle indicative of the verb lambánō (λαμβάνω) [pronounced lahm-BAHN-oh]—“shall receive.” The gnomic future is for a fact of judgment from God which can be expected in circumstances of being anti-establishment. The middle voice is a direct middle, it refers the results of the action directly to the agent with reflexive force. The indicative mood is declarative for a dogmatic statement of fact.

The word “themselves” is the dative plural of disadvantage from the reflexive pronoun heautou (ἑαυτοῦ) [pronounced heh-ow-TOO]. When the action expressed by the verb is referred back to its own subject the construction is called reflexive. The next word in the KJV is not quite correct. It is the accusative singular direct object from the noun krima (κρίμα) [pronounced KREE-mah] which is not judgment or “damnation” because that has the connotation of the eternal lake of fire. It means “punishment” or “punitive action” or “discipline.” So the corrected translation would read, “in fact they who oppose shall receive punishment.” The word “judgment” can be used if it is understood that it means discipline in time and not related to eternity.

This generally means that whatever divine punishment comes to those anti-establishment believers who are revolutionary, who are liberal, receive punishment in two categories. First, they receive individual discipline for their reversionism—including warning discipline, intensive discipline, and dying discipline. But they are also a part of the collective discipline which God metes out to a nation through various historical disasters and catastrophes, and results in the fourth and fifth cycles of discipline.

Believers involved in revolution, anti-authority can be punished in their lives and even die the sin unto death.

Principle

1. Antagonism to authority leads to anarchy.
2. It is the Christian duty to obtain by lawful means the rescinding or alteration of any unjust law, but never to resort to violence or revolution.
3. When tyranny destroys the freedom of religion, the freedom to evangelize, the freedom to assemble at a local church and learn doctrine, if the Lord does not destroy that tyranny opposition of other than peaceful means might be employed.
4. By ‘might be employed’ the word ‘might’ is very doubtful because even Paul persecuted by the Roman government did not waver on this principle of doctrine. He went to his death still submissive to the authority of Cæsar.
5. The extent of obedience is determined by the nature of doctrine.
6. There is relatively little authorization for the doctrine of passive obedience, e.g. the right of striking. It is active obedience which is commanded.
7. No matter how great the erosion of freedoms may be in a national entity, as long as you have freedom to witness for Christ, to evangelize and to take in doctrine, you have no right to oppose the authority of government.

Romans 13:2 Therefore those who resist the authority have opposed the ordinance of God; if fact, they who oppose shall receive discipline [judgment, (temporal) punishment] to themselves.

1977 Romans

Lesson #391

391 04/16/1978 Romans 13:3a Productivity of free enterprise vs. bureaucracy; capital punishment; fear cf. respect

Most of us were brought up in our youth to think in terms of socialism.

Our whole system is to turn us into socialist robots, unable to think for ourselves. What we are studying runs counter to what we have learned.

Romans 13:3 For rulers are not a terror to good works, but to evil. Now do you desire not to fear the authority? Do the good, and you will have praise from him. (BLB)

Verse 3 – “For rulers are not a terror to good works, but to the evil.” The explanatory use of the postpositive conjunctive particle gar is translated “For.” The nominative plural subject from the noun archôn (ἄρχων, ἄρχοντος, ὁ) [pronounced AHR-khohn], a word for “ruler” or “authority,” or someone who has received delegated responsibility from God to exercise governmental power—“For the governing authorities.” The nominative plural of the definite article here denotes a specific class of individual, i.e. those who have the responsibility and authority to enforce the principles of freedom, privacy and property within the national entity.

Then the present active indicative of the verb eimi (εἰμί) [pronounced eye-ME], plus the negative ou (οὐ) [pronounced oo]. The present tense is a present of duration for the principle of establishment begun in the past and continuing to the present time. The active voice: the legitimate state officials or government authorities produce the action of the verb. In this case it is negative action, due to the negative ou (οὐ) [pronounced oo]. This is a declarative indicative with the negative indicating that what government officials do not do under the laws of establishment. The predicate nominative of phobos (φόβος) [pronounced FOHB-oss] is in the singular—“fear.” This must be regarded in its context—free enterprise and the function of the laws of divine establishment. Under communism government authorities are a source of terror, a source of fear, no matter what your works are. But under the laws of divine establishment the purpose of having authority is to protect freedom, privacy, and property. They are all connected.

Then the dative of advantage from the adjective agathos (ἀγαθός) [pronounced ag-ath-OSS], good of intrinsic value, plus ergon (ἔργον) [pronounced EHR-gon]—“good works,” plus the generic use of the definite article, and it represents good in the sense of freedom, privacy, property; good in the sense of not violating these things. In other words, it is observance of the laws of divine establishment. We can use the word “function” for ergon (ἔργον) [pronounced EHR-gon], it means the deeds of men exhibiting a consistent moral character, work or occupation. It must be understood that ‘good’ or ‘moral’ here refers to the laws of divine establishment. Then we have “but,” the adversative conjunction allá (ἀλλά) [pronounced ahl-LAH] which sets up a contrast; “for evil” – the dative of disadvantage from the adjective kakós (κακός) [pronounced kak-OSS], a reference to crime. Crime is the violation of freedom, privacy and property.

Principle

1. The predicate nominative of phobos (φόβος) [pronounced FOHB-oss] refers to fear of punishment. We begin to see why establishment demands capital punishment.

The only restraint of the criminal mind is fear of reprisal. The communists are concerned and disturbed when there are arms buildup.

2. The Bible and the laws of divine establishment demand that punishment for anti-establishment violence should be death.
3. Therefore this passage teaches that very important principle: Restraint in society demands law enforcement.
4. In society are X number of OSNs, and some are restrained by respect; others have to be restrained by fear. Only fear can overcome the vile tendencies of the OSN in the function of crime, conspiracy, revolution, and the use of violence in anarchy.
5. This is why the bible advocates capital punishment as the means of controlling the criminal, the revolutionist, the anarchist, the communist. Genesis 9:6; Romans 13:4.
6. Capital punishment is the highest power in human government.
7. Only with capital punishment can human government function to guarantee the freedom, the privacy, and the property of its constituents.
8. Legislation and law enforcement are useless without teeth. The bite is capital punishment.
9. Fear of capital punishment is a basic principle in the orderly function of the laws of divine establishment.
10. Capital punishment is administered by the judicial authorities of the government, regardless of the form of government, whether monarchy or republic. It is a legitimate government as long as the sword of capital punishment is directed toward evil function and not the function of good.

Criminals need to fear the results of their lawbreaking. They only respect the law if this is a greater violence than they are willing to risk. If you require violence to restrain you, then you are a criminal in your thinking.

Criminals are smarter than the psychologists and make them think that they are rehabilitated.

Bob knew Chuck Holder, the judge in the Manson trial; they grew up together. He is squared away. He now carries a gun because of the threats made against him.

Bob's teaching at Prescott and we are going to think that we are in a Baptist church because we are only meeting on weekends.

392 04/21/1978 Romans 13:3a [SHIELD OF FREEDOM SPECIAL – end] Jeff Cooper and the .45 automatic; referees in divine establishment; un-Americanism; U.S. Coat of Arms

Eternal life must have a place to go.

Lincoln used federal funds to keep Indiana in the union; then he used 50,000 men to keep the south in the union. FDR and Woodrow Wilson were the 2nd and 3rd worst presidents.

Calvin Coolidge was our greatest president, who did nothing and did it well.

Bob reintroduces the US Coat of Arms. A constellation of 13 stars, the cloud and the glory. The cloud is the protection and blessing from God to a client nation. A client nation means freedom, privacy and property. Freedom to evangelize; freedom to assemble and learn doctrine. It also means giving Jews a haven. The glory breaking through the clouds is the responsibility of the client nation. This is all called the crest, everything above the eagle.

Hitler's national party was a socialist party. They are exactly like the communists. There is no difference between them. Socialism makes a people weak because it robs a people of their freedom, property and privacy. The eagle represents freedom, privacy and property.

The escutcheon below the eagle and it touches in 3 places. 3 branches of government. The color is blue for righteousness and justice. 13 bars are 13 colonies which have equal representation. Authority must be at grass roots level. Imputation of life.

The olive branch is not peace but prosperity; and the bundle of arrows is all about the national defense.

Big government means little people.

Lesson #393

393 04/23/1978 Romans 13:3b Russian hero on the U.S. cf. USSR; misapplication of eschatology; evangelism and the laws of divine establishment of Goths; police authority

Soviet War hero who was stripped of his citizenship while visiting the United States. He has said a few things in the United States that the communists took exception to.

Gregorenko: We plan and plan, but American does not planning, but a mass of goods. Russia with its plans is a nation of shortages. Russia virtually has no roads by comparison. The Soviet Union is an epic behind.

He was granted asylum in the US. Here the stores are filled; there we are constantly planning and nothing is done. He went and saw Congress, but if he wanted to view the soviet council, he would have seemed mad. No free travel throughout Russia; travel is simple and unregulated in the United States.

Wikipedia: Petro Grigorenko (16 October [O.S. 3 October] 1907 - 21 February 1987) was a high-ranking Soviet Army commander of Ukrainian descent, who in his fifties became a dissident and a writer, one of the founders of the human rights movement in the Soviet Union.

Huns and the Goths raiding caused a change in eschatology and people became so engrossed with history and disaster. Ambrose and Jerome and so many other great theologians who thought the world was coming to an end. They misapplied Scripture to their own era.

Carter banished the B1 bomber and limiting our warheads, all of which are deterrents to the USSR. We have our problems and we have not had one or two good depressions to get rid of the people who are the dregs of society.

We have relatively the same influences today as was found in the past which could destroy the United States. We have socialists and not Huns. Communists instead of Goths.

The Lord Jesus Christ controls history.

Many people thought that they would never see A.D. 400 because of the wars.

Our nation is protected by the encapsulation of blessings.

People who buy ranches out in the country; and they hide out there. But it is better to live in Houston. The believer should appreciate freedom and despise communism. God uses the laws of divine establishment to keep alive the reversionist so that he can be frightened and miserable.

A review of some historic trends of that early era. Review of points previously given.

Romans 13:3 For rulers are not a terror to good works, but to evil. Now do you desire not to fear the authority? Do the good, and you will have praise from him. (BLB)

“Wilt thou then not be afraid of the power?” The emphatic use of the postpositive conjunctive particle de can be translated one of two ways: “In fact,” but here there is a little bit of sanctified sarcasm involved and the best translation is “Really.” This is sarcasm because Paul under the ministry of the Holy Spirit is going to refer to your personal desires, the present active indicative of the verb thélō (θέλω) [pronounced THEH-loh]—“Really, do you desire?” This is a customary present tense for a normal mental attitude of a believer toward government. The active voice: the believer produces the action of the verb. The indicative mood is an interrogative indicative assuming that there is an actual fact which may be stated in answer to the question. This is the sarcastic interrogative.

Then the present middle infinitive from the verb phobeō (φοβέω) [pronounced fohb-EH-oh] plus the negative mê (μή) [pronounced may] which is used because of the infinitive. The present tense is a perfective present, it denotes the continuation of existing results. It refers to a fact which has come to be in the past but is emphasized as a present reality. The middle voice is the indirect middle in which the believer as the agent produces the action rather than participating in the results of the action. The infinitive is the intended result, fulfilling a deliberate objective, hence a blending of purpose and result. “Really, do you desire not to fear?” This is something that believers ought to desire. Respecting the police officer is respecting God, as he represents authority.

Next is the accusative singular direct object from exousia (ἐξουσία) [pronounced ex-oo-SEE-ah], plus the generic use of the definite article—“the authority.” This should be the desire of every normal believer. We learn to distinguish between the abuse of one’s authority and the concept of authority.

Lesson #394

394 04/23/1978 Romans 13:3c Gun registration; origin of "THIEME"; Teutons + biblical teachers stabilized Western Europe; laws of divine establishment encapsulated X+Y+Z

Throughout history, people put together neat little eschatological packages; and because these predictions did not pan out, the rapture was dropped from theology. Chiliasm became a movement; and Atilah the Hun or Alatheus the Goth, our only hope is, Jesus will come. They were basing doctrine in experience. Personal suffering does not mean that we are in the Tribulation.

We do not serve to grow; we grow to serve.

As long as we are alive; we are to grow spiritually. Some turned civilization around and the Roman empire became a Teutonic empire. It become an Austria empire; then an Austrian-Hungary empire. Vienna was a vigorous family with establishment principles.

Many of the founding fathers were Christian; and there has always been that pivot in the United States, resulting in great prosperity.

Bible doctrine is the key and the answer. You cannot miss it for a day. The mature believer is blessed and those associated with him are also blessed by association.

Romans 13:3 For rulers are not a terror to good works, but to evil. Now do you desire not to fear the authority? Do the good, and you will have praise from him. (BLB)

“do that which is good” – the present active imperative of the verb poieō (ποιέω) [pronounced poi-EH-oh]. This is a progressive present, present linear aktionsart, “keep on doing” or “keep doing.” The active voice: this passage is addressed to the believer. Our job is to advance spiritually. This is an imperative mood, a command to all believers. With it is the direct object of the verb, the accusative singular from agathos (ἀγαθός) [pronounced ag-ath-OSS] plus the generic use of the definite article. This is understanding and doing the plan of God. Agathos (ἀγαθός) [pronounced ag-ath-OSS] is Christian duty to God and country. The good is advancing to maturity; and the good is anything that comes from God. So the good can also mean the laws of divine establishment.

“and thou shalt have praise of the same” – the connective kai, “and.” The thought is not completed, it is continued. Plus the future active indicative of the verb echō (ἔχω) [pronounced EHH-oh], meaning to have—“and you will have.” The future tense is predictive, it denotes an idea in progress in future time. The active voice: the believer produces the action of the verb in the fulfilment of Christian duty to the state. The indicative mood is declarative viewing the action of the verb from the standpoint of reality. Then the accusative singular direct object from épainos (ἔπαινος) [pronounced EHP-ah-ee-noss], meaning legitimate praise. Perhaps the best translation would be “recognition.” It means praise, approval, recognition. With it is a prepositional phrase, ek (ἐκ) [pronounced ehk] plus the ablative singular of the intensive pronoun autós (αὐτῷ) [pronounced ow-TOSS]—“from it.” Autós (αὐτῷ) [pronounced ow-TOSS] is used here as a third person singular feminine pronoun. It is in the feminine gender because it is referring to the noun exousia (ἐξουσία) [pronounced ex-oo-SEE-ah] which means authority.

Romans 13:3 For governing authorities are not a cause of fear for moral function, but for evil function. Really, do you desire not to fear the authority? Keep on doing the good, and you will have recognition from it.

Lesson #395

395 04/28/1978 Romans 13:4a Complaining about your job; form of government and Christian anarchy; DIAKONOS of God = government authorities

Too often, we put too much thought into the machinations of man; Jesus Christ controls history. Bob on Chows and German Shepherds and Poodles. Bob also lists the windiest cities.

We are certainly under a lot of panic today. Given that the news is disseminated as soon as it occurs keeps some off balance.

Being critical of a figure of authority when you cannot do any better, that is an ego trip. Easy to do, unless you are there. Easy to stand back and to be critical. Our attitude to authority today is very close to anarchy. Impossible to do very much apart from some system of authority in place.

The key is, do we have the freedom to move toward spiritual maturity. We have no right to solve our problems through violence.

We advance in an encapsulated system.

The Apostle Paul lived in Z radical, but he did not criticize the Roman Empire.

This chapter was written after the rule of Caligula and Tiberius.

Keep on doing the good is advancing to spiritual maturity.

Romans 13:4 For he is God's servant to you for good. But if you do evil, be afraid, for he does not bear the sword in vain. For He is God's servant, an avenger for wrath to the one doing evil. (BLB)

Verse 4 – the principle of authority and punishment under the laws of divine establishment. “For he is the minister of God to thee for good.” The postpositive conjunctive particle gar—an explanation is needed, plus the present active indicative of the verb eimi (εἶμι) [pronounced eye-ME]—“For he is.” The customary present tense denotes what habitually occurs under the laws of divine establishment. The active voice: government officials, rulers, or anyone who has the authority under the laws of establishment produce the action of the verb. The indicative mood is declarative representing the verbal action from the viewpoint of reality. Then the word “minister,” the predicate nominative from diakonos (διάκονος) [pronounced dee-AK-on-oss]. It means a servant of someone, a helper. It is used for an administrative official in a local church, also for a pastor, and it always means a servant in the sense that the authority is delegated. It has a political connotation within the framework of the laws of divine establishment. Here is the minister of diakonos (διάκονος) [pronounced dee-AK-on-oss] as the ruler of state or the authorities in a national entity. It is an establishment connotation. They are the servants of God in the execution of the laws of divine establishment. God has delegated the responsibility of making them referees of freedom, but remember that freedom includes privacy and property. Government officials are the umpires, the referees with regard to freedom. With this is a genitive singular of relationship from the noun theos (θεός) [pronounced theh-OSS]—“of God.” This means first of all that authority resides in the word diakonos (διάκονος) [pronounced dee-AK-on-oss]. Government rulers, civil authorities, have responsibility to God to enforce establishment.

Lesson #396

396 04/30/1978 Romans 13:4b Systems of government; principles re the source of civil authorities and evil: obedience or punishment

Nero was ruling when Paul was writing Romans. He was unqualified; he was degenerate, he persecuted Christians; as a ruler, he failed in every way. Burrus and Seneca were under his command and they were reasonable. Paul does not write a single word in opposition to Nero. Evangelism continued at a rapid rate throughout the empire.

We have not had a good president since FDR (and including him). We have been on a disaster course since FDR began to practice socialism. It speaks well of capitalism, that we have survived so well.

Paul did not know the exact manner of his death. He would be executed by the ruler of the Roman empire. He will be tried in the highest court. Not once does he suggest overthrowing the government; any form of legislation, any form of rebellion. Paul died by decapitation, which is the easiest form of death. This did not upset him in any way, he knows that Jesus Christ controls history.

When the Christian emperors showed up on the scene, they were the worst emperors possible. There have been few nations which have done as well with establishment as the United States. There have been other client nations before us. Christians can live under any form of government other than democracy.

X+Y+Z = the whole plan of God for our lives.

Some of you have advocated violent overthrow of the government, or assassination; but no matter what, these things are wrong; and we are to continue under the established government here in client nation USA. We have no right to support revolution against our government. Obviously, we are going to lose some of the prosperity that we have enjoyed in the past; and obviously, we are on a downhill path. Nevertheless, we have no reason to panic. No matter that things appear to be out of hand, they are never out of hand, as Jesus Christ controls history.

Romans 13:4 For he is God's servant to you for good. But if you do evil, be afraid, for he does not bear the sword in vain. For He is God's servant, an avenger for wrath to the one doing evil. (BLB)

The minister or God or servant of God is an authority delegated by God. To you for good is the encapsulation of the prosperity and blessing from God. Paul had an unfair death and an unfair sentence. God chose the manner in which Paul would die. Paul accepted the authority of government and that Jesus Christ controlled history. Paul would die a completely quick and painless death because it was his time. The only pain in decapitation is the anticipation of the pain. Paul did not try to solve social problems. He did not advocate overthrowing the government; he did not try to end slavery.

“to thee for good” emphasizes encapsulation. We must remember that no matter how disastrous things appear to be in history, or really are, God still has a purpose for our life and historical catastrophe must not hinder our advance to maturity. God will continue to provide doctrine, the means of advance, even prosperity in times of catastrophe as an imputation, and He will provide the right death at the right time no matter how unjust it appears, as illustrated by the apostle Paul. We have here the dative of advantage plural from the personal pronoun su, referring to all believers. The Roman government of the empire was good for Christianity (it would have been stamped out under the republic). It was under the empire that the fullness of time occurred. We are not here to solve the social problems of life. We have no solutions for that. Our proper response is obedience to authority. This does not preclude loyal opposition. We oppose many of the holdouts in the socialist portions of our government.

Calvin Coolidge was our last great president, who did not try to do everything from his office.

We never advocate violent overthrow of the government; nor do we advocate assassination. We have the procedures to replace poor leaders.

The ruler of Panama is a narcotics gangster; and our president is going down to party with this evil man.

Then the prepositional phrase eis (εἰς) [pronounced ICE] plus the accusative singular of agathos (ἀγαθός) [pronounced ag-ath-OSS], a reference to Romans 8:28, plus the generic use of the definite article—“for the purpose of [the] good.” All things is $X+Y+Z = \text{the good}$. The purpose of good is the advance to maturity under plan of God.

Our freedoms are being taken from us every day. Nevertheless, we pursue the good.

Principle

1. Order in the human race through delegated authority and the function of the laws of divine establishment makes it possible for both evangelism and maturity adjustment to the justice of God.
2. Civil authority is the servant of God designed for the purpose of freedom, privacy, property, evangelism, spiritual advance to maturity as the tactical victory of the angelic conflict.
3. The issue in the political realm is not whether the authority is saved or unsaved, whether the authority is believer or unbeliever, but whether the individual follows the laws of divine establishment.
4. Many unbelievers understand freedom better than believers do, hence many unbelievers are better guardians of freedom than born again believers.
5. Reversionistic Christians are prone to be brainwashed by Marxist principles, such as ‘the greater good for the greater number’, principles of evil which erode and eventually destroy human freedom. Many of these born-again believers who support Marxist principles are deluded; they are blinded by scar tissue of the soul.
6. It is Christian duty and a part of the royal family honor code to respect civil authority and obey the ruler or rulers of the nation.
7. Christians, therefore, are no exception to the rule and are not excluded from this responsibility under the laws of divine establishment. Remember that the laws of divine establishment encapsulate the plan of God for the human race.

The president of the United States has no concept of freedom, despite being a believer. We do not need all of these bureaus. We do not need the Indian bureau or the Tobacco and Firearms bureau.

If we fired 5 million federal employees, this would improve productivity. If the government is in business, it is inefficient. Government people cannot compete in free enterprise. They could not compete in a free enterprise; they simply do not have it.

Cæsar is in hell today, but he was a man who understood establishment. Being a Christian does not qualify anyone to be a ruler.

Principle

1. Without civil authority the believer could not advance to maturity.
2. For just as the filling of the Spirit and Bible doctrine perceived are necessary for maturity adjustment to the justice of God, so also freedom is necessary for the function of GAP.
3. An attack on freedom in one place is an attack on freedom in every place.

Our bureaucracies are making policies that Congress could not pass. Big push against our possession of guns. If they succeed by May 31st, then they can control any type of personal property. If they attack personal property today, they will go after worship next.

“But if thou do that which is evil” – the postpositive conjunctive particle de is used to connect one clause with another where a contrast is contended. Here it is correctly translated “but.” This is addressed to believers, for it is believers who become involved in evil so readily without Bible doctrine to check them. The word “if” is the conditional conjunction eán (ἐάν) [pronounced eh-AHM] which introduces the protasis of a third class condition, a more probable future condition. The subjunctive mood in the verb is used in the protasis to imply uncertainty—maybe you will do evil and maybe you will not do evil, but if you do this is what you can expect. Then the present active subjunctive of the verb poieô (ποιέω) [pronounced poi-EH-oh] which means to do or to produce. The iterative present describes what is conceived of in successive periods. The active voice: Christian potentiality for the production of evil is so stated. The subjunctive mood is potential. If the believer is positive toward doctrine and is advancing toward maturity he will not produce evil. But if he is negative toward doctrine and in reversionism then he will produce evil. Next is the accusative singular direct object from kakós (κακός) [pronounced kak-OSS], which with the generic use of the definite article is used to indicate evil as a category—“but if you do the evil.” This is not referring to the unbeliever who obviously does evil, this is referring to the believer who does evil. Cf. Romans 12:21.

How can you do evil? If you advocate the violent overthrow of government; or you call yourself a conscientious objector, that is evil. If you cheat on your income taxes, that is evil. If you advocate communism, that is evil. If you advocate giving away our land. Evil is conspiratorial. If you seek to undermine the pastor of your church, that is evil. If you are opposed to the police officer, that is evil. Anti-military is evil. The evil are filled with trouble. Though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I will fear no evil.

Verses on evil: Psalm 97:10 119:101 Evil is distorted things; leaving the paths of righteousness; who delight in doing evil. Proverbs 3:7 19:23 5:13–14 I have not listened to the voices of my teachers (he attended Bible teaching but he did not take it in). Are you influenced by evil or are you influenced by doctrine. Proverbs 11:18–19 14:22 will they not go astray those who devise evil. Proverbs 15:3 God is the observer of every evil and good. By grace and doctrine, one recovers from reversionism. Knowledge of doctrine is the difference between a mature believer and evil. Proverbs 24:1–4 military action is not violence. Violence is revolution or assassination. By wisdom, a house is constructed; a home is built. By knowledge of doctrine, the rooms are filled with something stimulating.

Psalm 54:5 do not be conquered by evil; but conquer evil by good. Psalm 28:19–20 Those who repay evil for good. Psalm 53:1 1Corinthians 15:33 evil associations corrupts good morals. Psalm 36:1–4 there is no respect of God before his eyes. The words of his mouth are evil and deceit. He plans evil on his bed. He does not despise the evil. Isaiah 5:20 woe to them who call evil good and good evil. Suddenly they assassinate and they do not fear. They justify their own violence. They conspire to lay snares. Do not fret yourselves from evil-doers. Some people in Berachah spend their time worried about current events and what may take place.

The press apparently got involved on an ROTC level situation; and the news is participating in confusing us. Real disaster from the 4th estate. Yes, we are in catastrophe; but we are not to be adgitated about it. Do not envy the evil ones. All of these wicked men, their lamp will be put out.

Evil seeks to pay back evil for good.

The laws of divine establishment are designed to protect the human race from evil. There is no evil in God. Psalm 34:16 God judges evildoers. Isaiah 13:11 I will put an end to the arrogance of the proud. In spite of evil, Jesus Christ controls history. Proverbs 16:3

Is it evil in your eye that I do what I want with my own money. Free enterprise has the right to do what it wants to with its capital.

Evil must be distinguished between warfare and disease. Christian Science says that disease is evil (although it may have come about from evil). Evil is not sin.

Micah 1:12 has people mistaking evil for good. One of the worst things a judge can do is take a bribe.

Evil begins in the soul; and evil shortens the life (Amos 5:14). Hate evil, love doctrine. Most of us are sloppy in our thinking with regards to evil. We slip a little bit. There is a difference between a principle and the actual practice.

Having a Supreme Court as a check on Congress; and this is a good thing; even though the Supreme Court sometimes makes a mess of things.

1977 Romans

Lesson #397

397 04/30/1978 Romans 13:4c Advocating violence against the government is wrong; the criminal mind; capital punishment

Christians cannot make any spiritual advance without establishment principles in that area. Establishment can function under many forms of government.

What is the criminal mind? It is the thinking of any individual who seeks to gain his objectives in life by violence. It rejects the concept of freedom as taught in the Word of God—freedom, privacy and property. The criminal wants to commit crime by stealing someone else’s property, by invading someone else’s property, and if necessary by destroying someone else’s freedom through murder. He is only impressed with violence and instead of recognizing the authority of establishment he recognizes only the authority of violence. He can only be restrained by violence.

Romans 13:4 For he is God’s servant to you for good. But if you do evil, be afraid, for he does not bear the sword in vain. For He is God’s servant, an avenger for wrath to the one doing evil. (BLB)

“be afraid” – present middle imperative of the verb phobeō (φοβέω) [pronounced fohb-EH-oh]. The criminal mind only respects authority where they fear that authority. This is a progressive present signifying the action in a state of persistence or linear aktionsart: “keep on fearing.” This is a command to the believer and unbeliever who is of criminal thinking. The middle voice is the indirect middle in which the agent produces the action rather than participating in the results of the action. This could be called a dynamic middle to emphasize the part taken by the agent in the action of the verb. The agent is the person who thinks like a criminal, not that he has to commit a crime to do it, he thinks in terms of crime. The imperative mood is for a command. The greatest restraint under the laws of divine establishment is fear of punishment for violation of law through criminal activity. “But if you do evil, keep on being afraid.” This anticipates the fact that capital punishment is ordained of God to restrain the criminal and the evil tendencies of the old sin nature.

“for he beareth not the sword in vain” – a reference to capital punishment. This is the explanatory use of the conjunction gar, followed by the present active indicative phorēō (φορέω) [pronounced for-EH-oh] which has the connotation of authority, authority having the right to execute. It means to wear or to bear. With the negative we have “for he does not wear.” The customary present denotes what habitually occurs in the function of the laws of divine establishment under many forms of government. Wearing the sword denotes the authority of jurisprudence in that government, it represents the punitive action of capital punishment. The active voice: the government, the judicial authority, produces the action of the verb. The indicative mood is declarative representing the verbal action from the viewpoint of reality. The accusative singular direct object máchaira (μάχαιρα) [pronounced MAHKH-ahēe-rah] is the symbol for execution here. Then the adverb eikē (εἰκῆ) [pronounced i-KAY] which actually means “without a cause”—“for he does not wear the sword for nothing.” Capital punishment puts teeth into the law.

Capital Punishment

1. Capital punishment is the maximum use of jurisprudence under the laws of divine establishment. It must be preceded by a trial authorized from the judicial function of government using evidence of guilt.
2. In the Roman empire there were two forms of capital punishment practiced: for the non-citizen, crucifixion; for the citizen, decapitation.
3. This presents the principle of capital punishment as a part of the function of government under the laws of divine establishment.

4. The most fundamental principle of human government in a national entity is the possession of a common law and a common language, but not necessarily a common race. All trials should occur in that common language and should all be related to the laws of that land.
5. In its simplest form the divine institution of human government demands a police officer on the corner and a judge on the bench, plus capital punishment to put teeth into the law—Genesis 9:5,6.
6. Man's right to slaughter animals is stated in the same context—Genesis 9:3,4 does not give man the right to slaughter people as he slaughters animals.
7. The two exceptions to killing [murder] are capital punishment which is the function of legal justice, and killing in warfare as a representative of one's country. The military man should be a great killer. Joshua 6:21; 8:24.
8. In the context of Genesis 9:5 capital punishment also extends to animals who kill human beings, as well as human beings who murder human beings.
9. God has placed the sword in the hands of civil government. The laws of divine establishment prohibits anyone seeking revenge, but rather lays the foundation for judicial modus operandi.
10. The person is innocent under the law until proven guilty in a courtroom. But once proven guilty, such a person should be executed—Exodus 21:12.
11. Capital punishment of animals, without human culpability, is found in Exodus 21:28.
12. Capital punishment for animals with human culpability is also found—Exodus 21:29.
13. Capital punishment must be the result of a legal trial. No lynch mobs. Numbers 35:30, where the word "evidence" is used twice, referring to the laws of evidence, not hearsay.
14. Homicide must be punished by death—Numbers 35:16-18.
15. Leviticus 24:17. The national entity is a barrier against both crime and the supremacy of good and evil as the policy of Satan who is the ruler of this world at the present time.

Think of the cop on the beat, or the judge in the courtroom, as ministers of God; and they are fulfilling the principle of authority. Bob promises that if there are over 2700 people, he will wear his collar on backwards. I must admit, I thought Berachah was larger than that.

1977 Romans

Lesson #398

398 05/01/1978 Romans 13:4d U.S. Constitution; distinguish between the man and the office; prep school discussion; criticism of authority

Bob receives a magazine and there is an article on the Constitution. Thomas Jefferson wrote the Declaration of Independence. The primary ideal of the Constitution is that our government is the product of the people. The constitution answered the question of how can a nation be strong enough to protect itself from outside forces and yet not one that would take away the liberties of the people. All the power of government in England had fallen into the hands of one man. 3 branches of government meant that, if one branch of the government began to take too much power, the other branches would reel that person back in.

In the past 40 years, there has been a misinterpretation of the 14th amendment and the federal government controlling interstate commerce.

There was a farmer who did not grow the amount of wheat the government told him to grow, he grew more than that and he used it on his farm. The lower courts agreed with him, but the Supreme Court ruled against him, saying that some interstate commerce would have taken place if he had grown less wheat.

Thomas Jefferson anticipated the expansion of the powers of the court. He called it an irresponsible body until all government will be consolidated in Washington D.C.

We are moving toward tyranny; but we still have the freedoms of a client nation, the freedom to take in Bible doctrine.

The Bureau of Tobacco and Firearms is setting up to confiscate all firearms in the United States, if the Congress does nothing.

It is not necessary to express your opinion every time you hear anything you disagree with. There are times to keep your mouth shut. If you are at a dinner party, and you hear that something is wrong; and you know they are wrong. You keep your mouth shut.

Romans 13:4 For he is God's servant to you for good. But if you do evil, be afraid, for he does not bear the sword in vain. For He is God's servant, an avenger for wrath to the one doing evil. (BLB)

“for he is the minister of God” – the word “minister” is used for government in this particular case. The postpositive conjunctive particle gar expresses an inference in a self-evident conclusion. It is translated “for” but a much better translation is “certainly.” The present active indicative of eimi (εἰμί) [pronounced eye-ME] is linear aktionsart—“certainly he keeps on being.” This refers to authority in government. Then comes the predicate nominative from diakonos (διάκονος) [pronounced dee-AK-on-oss], the word “minister” used here for a civil servant, a person who has the authority delegated from God under the laws of divine establishment, plus the genitive singular of relationship from theos (θεός) [pronounced theh-OSS]—“minister of God.”

“a revenger to execute wrath upon him that doeth evil” – the nominative singular subject ékdikos (ἐκδικος) [pronounced EHK-dihk-oss], meaning a punisher. Authority punishes. Only authority has that right. Then the prepositional phrase, eis (εἰς) [pronounced ICE] plus the accusative singular of orgê (ὀργή) [pronounced ohr-GAY]—“for the purpose of divine wrath.” “Upon him” is the dative singular of disadvantage from the definite article used as a personal pronoun—“to him.”

The verb is the present active participle of prassô (πράσσω) [pronounced PRAS-so], meaning to do, to accomplish, to practice, to commit. Here it means to practice. The retroactive progressive present denotes a habitual criminal who has begun a life of crime in the past and continues into the present time. He is a criminal, not because of his acts but because of what he thinks. He thinks in terms of solving problems through acts of violence, by stealing, by raping, etc. The active voice: the criminal, the traitor, the revolutionist, produces the action of the verb. The participle is circumstantial. With this is the accusative singular direct object from kakós (κακός) [pronounced kak-OSS] with the generic use of the definite article, meaning that evil has been previously defined.

Romans 13:4 For he is the minister of God to you for the purpose of good. But if you do evil, keep on being afraid; for he does not wear the sword for nothing; for you see he is a minister of God for the purpose of divine wrath to him who practices evil.

Lesson #399

399 05/02/1978 Romans 13:4–5a Referee rules; pivot vs. evil government; be subordinate to government authority; drugs cf. alcohol

The translation read to this point.

Romans 13:4 For he is the minister of God to you for the purpose of good. But if you do evil, keep on being afraid; for he does not wear the sword for nothing; for you see he is a minister of God for the purpose of divine wrath to him who practices evil.

Principles for Romans 13:4

1. Where civil authority is evil revolution is not the answer. Neither is assassination or violent overthrow of the government.
2. For the believer in the Lord Jesus Christ the answer is found in Romans 12:21. This means that Jesus Christ controls history. We are not here to be upset or to be crusading about the circumstances of life, we are here to advance to maturity. This can only occur through the intake of doctrine. Establishment is designed to encapsulate our advance to maturity.
3. The answer to a bad government which does not fulfil the laws of divine establishment is for the believer to keep on taking in doctrine and advance to maturity.
4. Remember that Jesus Christ controls history. A large pivot of mature believers changes both internal and external history of a nation.
5. Again note that the apostle Paul did not try to assassinate Nero, nor did he advocate the overthrow of Nero's administration, nor the change in the form of government in the Roman empire. Paul had the ability to distinguish between the principle of authority and the person who exercised the authority.
6. Paul, the human writer, was not a revolutionist. He was not a conspirator. He is the perfect example that Christianity did not overthrow the Roman empire.

7. Getting rid of an evil administration through violence and revolution only paves the way for something worse.
8. Divinely-ordained civil government comes in several forms: absolute monarchy, limited monarchy, oligarchy, republic. Not democracy which is the veneer of anarchy, a dangerous form of government because it functions so closely to anarchy that anarchy is just around the corner.
9. Freedom always demands authority. Civil authority is ordained by God, not by the will of the people.
10. Civil power and authority is a divine ordinance of the will, the plan, the purpose of God so that the human race can survive in the angelic conflict and fulfil the purpose of the angelic conflict.
11. There are differences of political forms of government but one principle of establishment for all of these types of government. Christianity can function under any form of government except democracy.
12. That one principle of establishment demands that the one or ones possessing civil authority under the divine institutions fulfil the divinely ordained purpose of that power: to establish and guarantee freedom, privacy, property. This is all one concept, not three different things. They all go together.
13. In addition there must be a military establishment to defend the nation from its foreign enemies and encroachments, and to protect the national freedom from international busybodies and trouble-makers. Right now, the United States is an international busybody and trouble-maker.

Many believers understand that we are moving toward socialism and disaster. But we remain peaceful. You do not destroy the authority or the principle of authority.

You cannot live and let live with the destruction of authority. The French Revolution was started by Middle Class people, the bourgeoisie and they decided that they should be able to give their input to Louie XIV. They removed an aristocracy which represents authority.

We are approaching a society of anarchy and it is a disaster. The world's worst businessmen are government. People from the government have not the slightest clue how to make money.

When you try to solve problems with strikes or revolutions, you are trying use evil.

Some sin natures are only constrained by fear. Some are constrained by respect for authority.

Romans 13:5 Therefore it is necessary to be subject, not only on account of wrath, but also on account of the conscience. (BLB)

Verse 5 – “Wherefore ye must needs be subject, not only for wrath” begins with the conjunction dio (διό) [pronounced DEE-oh], denoting that the inference is self-evident. It is translated correctly, “For this reason.” Then a noun of compulsion, a noun of necessity, anakê (ἀνάγκη) [pronounced ahn-ahg-KAY], “it is necessary.” What is the necessity of life? If we are all going to live, follow our destiny, function under the plan of God, live and let live, enjoy freedom, fulfil ambitions, there must be authority for freedom to exist. No one can be oriented to life without being oriented to establishment authority. There is no freedom without privacy and there cannot be freedom and privacy without there being authority first.

The verb is the present middle infinitive of hupotassô (ὑποτάσσω) [pronounced hoop-ot-AS-so] which means to be subordinate to governing authorities. It means to recognize authority, to obey authority. The retroactive progressive present denotes what has begun in the past in subordination to governing authorities and continues into the present in the time of Nero. The middle voice is the direct middle in which the subject acts with a view toward participating in the outcome. When you subordinate yourself to authority it means that you participate in the outcome. The outcome is freedom, privacy, property, the pursuit of a course of life resulting often in great prosperity. The infinitive is intended result, it fulfils a deliberate objective; it blends purpose and result.

You cannot equate alcohol and drugs. People who drink still understand authority; but those on drugs do not.

Bob does not like the government right now; but we do not destroy our government. We have the only republic in history which is good with coping with old sin natures. No one in their right minds would want to change our government. Our government provides more freedoms than most can conceive of. But this can be destroyed by all kinds of unrestrained sin natures.

With this is the negative ou (οὐ) [pronounced oo] plus the adverb monon (μόνον) [pronounced MOHN-on]—“not only.” Plus the prepositional phrase, dia plus the accusative of orgê (ὀργή) [pronounced ohr-GAY], used here for divine wrath or punishment delegated from God to those in authority, plus the generic use of the definite article—“because of the wrath [punishment].”

Lesson #400

400 05/03/1978 Romans 13:5b Restraint by fear and conscience; doctrine of conscience (1–2); standards and privacy

Review of the translation:

Romans 13:5a For this reason it is necessary to be subordinate to governing authorities, because of the wrath (or punishment)...

Principle

1. Fear of punishment from the law is the primary restraint of crime. The old sin nature is restrained by fear of punishment.

2. Fear of punishment is one of the basic restraints in the function of the old sin nature—fear of punishment from God, fear of punishment from civil government, fear of reprisal.
3. The criminal mind is often given great credit for being smart. It is the wrong word. Criminals are often clever, but basically the criminal mind is so stupid and so prone to violence that he must be restrained by a greater threat of violence in order to be restrained from evil.
4. This principle also applies to nations. Communist nations, for example, are criminal nations. Every nation in Africa ruled by blacks is a criminal nation. These nations are only impressed by a greater violence capability than their own.
5. In this connection the military is ordained of God to meet violence with a greater violence, but always a professional violence. Ability to use your weapons professionally. Cool and accurate.
6. Maximum punishment from crime is capital punishment. Without capital punishment there is no greater threat of violence to the criminal and crime becomes unrestrained in society.
7. No society can survive without capital punishment as a maximum penalty for crime.
8. The criminal, by reason of the fact that he is unrestrained in homicide, rape, pillage, must forfeit his own life and his right to live in a free society.
9. Failure to punish the guilty, and failure to execute the habitual criminal, results in unrestrained crime which destroys not only the free society but civilization in general. It turns society and civilization into a jungle of anarchy and violence.

Romans 13:5 Therefore it is necessary to be subject, not only on account of wrath, but also on account of the conscience. (BLB)

“but also for conscience sake” – the adversative conjunction allá (ἀλλά) [pronounced ah-LAH] sets up a preferential principle for subordination to establishment authority ordained by God. It is translated “but” and with the kai that follows, “also.” The preposition dia plus the accusative from suneidêsis (συνείδησις) [pronounced soon-Ī-day-sis]—“because of the conscience.” The conscience is the residence for every norm and standard you have ever had or ever will have. It is the area of the soul by which you aggressively function in life.^[2] Without a conscience, you would not...

The Doctrine of the Conscience (which does not follow Bob’s doctrines).

The heart is where the conscience resides; and your conscience is the collection of your norms and standards. Other believers have the right to have their own norms and standards. People can be as positive as you are, and he might be operating on different norms and standards from their previous background. So that person is a vegetarian. You are going to look upon him with disdain? Under the privacy of the priesthood, you tolerate them. Let people hold whatever opinion that they want. If they want to be vegetarians, let them do it.

The example given is, you have two sets of people with different standards, both positive toward Bible doctrine. Some of you have weird ideas, but you have a right to them; and you have the right to privacy.

Bob's job is to teach and we are left to make our own decisions. You cannot build Christianity on top of your old values and concepts. Sooner or later, we will all be ripped apart by Scripture. God the Holy Spirit can work with us; and we give everyone else their freedom and privacy to grow as well.

We have the privacy to take in the Word of God without someone else setting standards for you. It is easy to write down points; but it is the application and the learning of doctrinal standards. As you learn doctrine, your norms and standards begin to change.

Be certain that your norms and standards have consolidated before you get married.

In couples counseling, all they want to do is be declared the person in the right. That is their purpose in going to get counseling.

Location of the conscience. They are the repository for the norms and standards in life. Romans 2:14 Gentiles, not having the law, follow the law by instinct. Titus 1:15 to the pure, all things are pure; but to those defiled, nothing is pure.

Lesson #401

401 05/04/1978 Romans 13:5 Essential Bible doctrines cf. non-essential application; tolerance; privacy; doctrine of conscience; negative volition

Romans 13:5 Therefore it is necessary to be subject, not only on account of wrath, but also on account of the conscience. (BLB)

There are believers at all stages of growth. There are essential doctrines, and if you do not accept them, you fall into the category of error and apostasy. Eternal security, atonement, reconciliation, redemption, pre-tribulation rapture, Deity of Christ, humanity of Jesus, etc.

Bob can give any of us the names of five pastors who tiptoe quietly through the Scriptures.

A person from a religious home may have certain ascetic applications that a mature believer would not dream of making. The attitude is total toleration. This is not a basis for rejecting someone, fellowship, etc.

We simply keep growing and tolerating others.

People have a right to their own taste in clothes and grooming. You can see their decisions and it is none of your business.

The is a relationship between your doctrinal intake and your spiritual growth.

Legalism has a false conscience.

Establishment guarantees authority. The immature believer should not judge the mature believer; and the mature believer should tolerate the immature believer who is just starting with the Christian life.

The immature believer knows about idols and so does not want to eat meat offered up to an idol. The mature believer knows that it is okay to eat that meat; but he ought not push the eating on the immature believer. We are not to superimpose our standards on others; this is how kids are sucked into crime; and this is how some homosexuals are started.

Romans 13:5 For this reason it is necessary to be subordinate to governing authorities, not only because of the punishment, but also because of the conscience.

Lesson #402

402 05/05/1978 Romans 13:6a Spiritual freedom; equality destroys freedom; French Revolution; pay your taxes

Everyone has standards, and they have come about from your previous life. You cannot lost life in the soul; and you cannot lose eternal life when the justice of God imputes it to the human spirit. The human spirit is the home for eternal life.

The immature believer has a right to his privacy and his own standards. If doctrine changes that person's norms and standards, that is alright. Other believers are not given the right to set the standards for other believers. Exception is parents and children.

We can have a lot of different ideas, except for doctrines which are inflexible. We stay out of each other's way; and we do not tell others what they can and cannot do.

Bob is going to read something that a very clear-thinking man wrote. John Van Till, at Grove City College in Pennsylvania. "The Idea of Equality in America."

Programs to provide free medical service to everyone and a guaranteed wage. FDR's New Deal and LBJ's great society.

Having privacy does not mean that we are equal. There is no such thing as equality.

He goes back to the Reformation. Equality and freedom destroy freedom. Socialism is an evil. Giving people something for nothing. Someone has to pick up the tab. Some of you will sell freedom in order to get something free or something secure.

Arrogance is no substitution for ability. Heaven will have the greatest inequalities forever. David, Abraham, Paul will have much greater blessings in heaven.

This next verse is about taxation. It is a spiritual subject.

In the Bible, taxation in tithing. That is income tax.

As long as you are free to pursue spiritual maturity, pay your taxes.

Romans 13:6 For because of this, you also pay taxes; for they are servants of God, attending continually upon this very thing. (BLB)

Verse 6 – “For this cause pay ye tribute also” begins with the inferential use of the postpositive conjunctive particle gar where a self-evident truth is concerned. It should be obvious to every believer that if he is free to take in doctrine on a daily basis, if he was free to be evangelized in the first place, no matter how terrible the system of taxation he still should pay. The word gar is translated here “so.” Then the prepositional phrase dia plus the accusative from the near demonstrative pronoun houtos (οὗτος) [pronounced HOO-tos]. It is translated literally, “Because of this,” but it is an idiom meaning, “For this reason.” This is a reference to verse 5. The adjunctive use of kai comes next, it is an adverb “also.”

Then the present active imperative of the verb teleō (τελέω) [pronounced tel-EH-oh], which ordinarily means to finish but means here to carry out, to put into full operation, hence to pay taxes with the plural of phoros (φόρος) [pronounced FOR-oss]. The present tense is a progressive present, it refers to linear aktionsart—“keep on paying taxes.” The active voice: this applies originally to the Jewish believers in Rome who are paying taxes to the Roman government, thereby recognizing the authority of the Roman administration. The imperative mood is a command, not only to the Christians in Rome but to all believers in all periods of time in the Church Age.

Taxes (Divine Viewpoint)

1. By paying taxes the Christian himself is participating in the laws of divine establishment. He is doing the will of God with regard to this matter.
2. He is supporting law and order as over against revolution, violence, anarchy; all of that which is evil.
3. He is supporting a system in which the highest sense of authority is the servant of government and the servant of God at the same time.
4. The believer with the use of national currency supports the authority which provides him privacy, property, profit, prosperity, and protection of government from crime.
5. Furthermore, he is paying for the administration of freedom which is necessary for both evangelism and the believer’s spiritual advance to maturity.
6. Both taxation here and prayer in 1Timothy 2:2 support the principle of establishment.
7. In the time of Paul there were certain Jews who were members of an organization called the Zealots, revolutionary terrorists who refused to pay taxes and were in opposition to the Roman government. So we have 1Peter 2:23,24, as well as this passage.

8. The principle was previously enucleated at a transitional point of history – going from the Age of Israel to the Age of the Church. The sponsorer was SPQR, the empire. Matthew 22:21.
9. Therefore the payment of taxes is a Christian duty to the national entity. They support and sustain the authority necessary for a specific freedom: the freedom to evangelize, the freedom to advance to maturity, the freedom to send out missionaries, and that freedom which provides a haven for the Jews who are scattered until the second advent under the fifth cycle of discipline.

1977 Romans

Lesson #403

403 05/07/1978 Romans 13:6b Basic of American cf. of French Revolution; inequality; taxes pay for public services; doctrine of taxation.

The thought that people were equal and if they weren't a revolution could fix that. They wanted to fix wealth or land redistribution. This sort of thing destroys freedom. This is killing the goose that lays the golden egg.

The founding fathers had a different concept. They believed in liberty, privacy and property; all of which are interrelated. This recognizes that no one is equal, from birth forward. Everyone ought to have the same opportunity. People should be free to advance as far as they can go, as per their own abilities and drive. It is a very vicious evil to take assorted people with different incomes and having them pay various percentages. That is inequality and lack of freedom. That is a real evil; and the Bible corrects this. Everyone ought to pay the same amount, which is 10%. If you do not subscribe to this, you are anti-Christian to the core.

When the man and woman were created, there was no equality then. One had the authority and the other did not.

In life, there is no such thing as equality. There is no equality in heaven.

God does love us the same amount because we all have God's imputed righteousness. Inequality ought to motivate us. You have the right to advance as far as you can in a country operating under the laws of divine establishment.

California has a state income tax and they have come to a point of degeneracy in that state. Our income tax is evil, because everyone is taxed a different percentage.

We have the freedom to evangelize and the freedom to teach Bible doctrine. That is establishment in the United States. We can all advance to maturity. We can send out missionaries. We also provide a haven for the Jews. These four factors have not been taken from us. Since we have not had these freedoms removed, we are under establishment.

A review of the principles of income tax from the previous class reviewed.

Our garbage is picked up as a part of the laws of divine establishment. It never occurs to you that these people are human beings. The reason that we have electricity and water; and that you are secure in your home; and all of this is a result of the ministers of God.

Romans 13:6 For because of this, you also pay taxes; for they are servants of God, attending continually upon this very thing. (BLB)

“for they are God’s ministers” – the explanatory use of the postpositive conjunctive particle gar, “for you see.” Plus the present active indicative of the verb eimi (εἰμί) [pronounced eye-ME]—“are.” The customary present tense denotes what habitually occurs under the laws of divine establishment. Then the predicate nominative plural of leitourgos (leitourgós) [pronounced li-toorg-OSS]. It means “minister” but it means more than that, it means a public servant—“for they are public servants.”

If you do not have the public servants of God, you aren’t nothing. There are those who do their job beautifully and a few who don’t. Maybe they did things perfectly 399 times, but once they screw up and you get upset.

There was a pole that needed to be straightened and no one would allow the repair people in their backyards. Bob told them to come on. They talked for a while and they saw Bob working out and they wondered what sort of work he did.

Plus the genitive singular of relationship from theos (θεός) [pronounced theh-OSS]—“of God.” Government is ordained of God to encapsulate human freedom, human privacy, human property. This means that the human race is protected and perpetuated through the laws of divine establishment. We were evangelized because of establishment; and we have moved to maturity because of divine establishment.

Freedom cannot exist without authority.

“attending continually upon this very things” – the present active participle of proskartereō (προσκατερέω) [pronounced pros-kar-ter-EH-oh] means to persist in something, to adhere to something, to spend full time in something. The progressive present tense is linear aktionsart, they do this day in and day out. The active voice: public officials make a career out of public service, and they are the ones who produce the action. The participle is a modal participle, it signifies the manner in which the action of the main verb is accomplished. This is followed by a prepositional phrase, eis (εἰς) [pronounced ICE] plus the accusative singular of the near demonstrative houtos (οὗτος) [pronounced HOO-tos]—“to this same.” Then with autós (αὐτός) [pronounced ow-TOSS] the intensive pronoun, “thing.” The function of the intensive pronoun is to identify the identity of public service as a legitimate function in life. Career public officials are necessary for effective national and governmental administration. This includes from mayor all of the way down to garbage man.

Romans 13:6 And so for this reason also keep on paying taxes; for they are public servants of God who make a career out of this same thing.

Doctrine of Taxation by R. B. Thieme, Jr.

5/7/78

1. Career people in public service should be supported by money collected from taxes, Romans 13:6-7.
2. This same principle applies to leadership and administrative function in the national entity, as well as public service; e.g., mayor, fireman, utility services, police, garbage man, etc.
3. The Biblical system of taxation is a straight percentage for every person of the state regardless of income. This is compatible with us all being equal before the law. This is equality before the law.
4. Tithes in the Mosaic Law referred to taxation of believer and unbeliever ordained by God for the function of the laws of divine establishment. Each person paid the same percentage, 10%. Each person thus participated in the laws of divine establishment. Ten percent is considered fair by God. Graduated income taxation is redistribution of wealth, which is evil and destroys the economy. Those who have ability to make wealth provide the jobs for those without this ability.
5. Tithes in the Mosaic Law were taxes ordained for the function of the nation.
6. Three types of taxes existed, each being a ten percent tax.
 - a. Ten percent for maintenance of the Levites, Numbers 18:21-24; Leviticus 27:30-33, was an annual tax. This was a spiritual contribution.
 - b. There was an annual 10% tax for the function of government, including the feasts and sacrifices, Deuteronomy 12:18, 14:22-24.
 - c. Every third year, a 10% tax was collected for the poor of the land and the handicapped people.
7. Offerings in the Mosaic Law referred to the spiritual giving of believers above and beyond these other taxes, Deuteronomy 18:1-5; Nehemiah 13:10. No percentage was attached to a offering.
8. The tithes of Malachi 3:7-10 are taxes, not spiritual giving. The "storehouse" is the treasury.
9. It is your Christian duty to pay taxes. In this way the believer renders to Caesar that which is Caesar's. There should be equal taxation based on the same percentage. Sales tax is the only fair tax we have. Taxes on businesses are immoral.

Lesson #404

404 05/07/1978 Romans 13:7-8 Employee not to complain; principle of obligation and indebtedness; debt of tolerance

Romans 13:7 Render to all their dues: tax to whom tax, revenue to whom revenue, respect to whom respect, honor to whom honor. (BLB)

Verse 7 – a general statement with regard to Christian responsibility to civil government. “Render therefore to all their dues” – the inferential conjunction oun (οὖν) [pronounced oon] denotes that what it introduces is an inference from what has preceded.[3] This is followed by the aorist active imperative from the verb apodidōmi (ἀποδίδωμι) [pronounced ap-od-EED-o-mee] which means to render or to discharge an obligation. Actually, it means to fulfil one’s duty to something or to someone, to give back in return. Here it means to discharge an obligation. The ingressive aorist tense denotes entrance into a state or condition. The ingressive aorist means that the ones to whom Paul was writing this epistle in Rome were not fulfilling their obligation to civil government. The active voice: believers are commanded to produce the action of the verb by complying with the laws of divine establishment as they relate to the national entity. The dative plural indirect object from the adjective pás (πάς) [pronounced pahs] used as a substantive is correctly translated “to all.” The dative of indirect object indicates the ones for whom the act is performed. This is any system of authority in your life, with special emphasis on authority in government.

“Therefore discharge an obligation” or “render the obligation to all.” The word for “obligation” is the accusative plural direct object from opheilê (οφειλή) [pronounced oh-fih-LAY], it means duty from obligation.

Four categories of obligation are listed as far as civil government is concerned. There are many others, these are merely representative and the start us thinking in terms of detail.

“tribute to whom tribute is due” – dative singular indirect object from the definite article used as a relative pronoun and translated “to whom.” Plus the accusative of direct object from the verb phoros (φόρος) [pronounced FOR-oss] repeated twice. It has been translated “tribute” but it actually means taxes, and this is simply to connect verse 7 with the previous verse where taxation was the specific obligation in view. Secondly, we have a slightly different word, “custom.” There is again the dative singular indirect object from the definite article used as a relative pronoun, plus the accusative of telos (τέλος) [pronounced TEHL-oss] repeated twice. Here it refers to indirect taxation in a nation and specifically to custom duty.

“fear to whom fear” – this goes from the specific of taxes. Again, the dative singular indirect object from the definite article, used as a relative pronoun. Plus the accusative of phobos (φόβος) [pronounced FOHB-oss]. Phobos (φόβος) [pronounced FOHB-oss] has two different meanings: the connotation of fear or respect. In this case it means respect. It has a double meaning here. It means respect for the law, but if you are a criminal you have no respect for the law and the only thing that restrains you is fear; therefore fear if you are a criminal but respect if you are a law-abiding citizen.

“honor to whom honor” – the dative singular indirect object from the definite article used as a relative pronoun, followed by the accusative singular from timê (τιμή, ἥς, ἡ) [pronounced tih-MAY or tee-MAY] which means honor.

Romans 13:7 Therefore discharge your obligations to all: to whom taxes, taxes; to whom indirect taxes, indirect taxes; to whom respect, respect; to whom honor, honor.

It is legitimate and commendable for believers with doctrine to hold public office.

The second paragraph in this chapter, verses 8-13, deals with Christian responsibility to others.

Fulfilling the Law Through Love

Romans 13:8 Owe nothing to anyone, except to love one another; for the one loving the other has fulfilled the Law. (BLB)

Verse 8 – the principle of obligation and indebtedness. “Owe no man anything, but to love one another.” The present active imperative of opheilô/opheileô (ὀφείλω/ὀφειλέω) [pronounced of-Ī-low, of-Ī-LEH-oh] which means to owe. The present tense is the aoristic present for punctiliar action in present time. The active voice: the believer produces the action as a part of the royal family honor code. The imperative is a command.

Then the accusative neuter singular direct object from mêdeis (μηδείς) [pronounced may-DICE]—“nothing.” “Owe nothing.” Next is the dative masculine singular indirect object from the same adjective mêdeis (μηδείς) [pronounced may-DICE] (but this time in the masculine gender), so the corrected translation is “Owe nothing to anyone.” Now there is nothing wrong with borrowing provided that you regard that as an obligation. In the time in which this was written Roman believers were incurring debts and not paying back the money they owed. Being a believer does not give one the right to waltz on an obligation. There must always be a sense of responsibility with regard to obligation. The royal family honor code includes human integrity, and human integrity means where obligation exists you fulfil that obligation.

Next comes the words ei (εἰ) [pronounced Ī] mê (μή) [pronounced may]—“except.” Literally, “if not.” But it is an idiom. Plus the present active infinitive of agapaô (ἀγαπάω) [pronounced ahg-ahp-AH-oh]—“to love.” What is your basic obligation to other believers? This is not love from your freedom toward God, category #1; or love toward a woman, category #2; or love toward friends, category #3. Those are not obligations; those are functions of freedom. This is an obligation to believers—all believers. This love is in the tendential present and it is used as the action which is the standard but is not actually taking place at the moment, at least in Rome. It represents the idea of what is intended. The active voice: the believer is commanded to produce the action of the verb because we have an infinitive of intended result when the result is indicated as fulfilling a deliberate objective. Hence, we have a blending of purpose and result. This also becomes the imperative infinitive as a command. There is also the accusative plural direct object from a reciprocal pronoun, allêlôn (ἀλλήλων) [pronounced al-LAY-lohn]. When a plural subject is represented as affected by interchange of action signified by the verb, it is simply called a reciprocal relationship. Allêlôn (ἀλλήλων) [pronounced al-LAY-lohn] is a reciprocal pronoun of same category. It means to love one another of the same kind and it is referring to loving the believer. Positively, love is respect for +R wherever it is found; it is respect for the privacy of the royal priesthood.

Principle

1. Love is the only perpetual debt in the Christian death—because we always have the means of paying: Bible doctrine, spiritual advance, the filling of the Spirit.
2. The debt of love denotes the duty of love. Love is a duty, a responsibility on the part of all the royal family of God.
3. Remember that love also includes a relaxed mental attitude: no arrogance directed toward another believer, no jealousy, bitterness, etc.
4. The privacy of the royal priesthood is absolutely necessary for every believer to live his life as unto the Lord without distraction or interference from others.
5. Hence, love is a freedom from mental attitude and verbal sins which destroy the privacy of the priesthood.
6. While the believer is to pay his monetary debts he is to perpetuate his obligation of love, which is respect for the righteousness of God resident in other believers.
7. This legitimate indebtedness recognizes every believer as a creditor.
8. Loving the believer is a debt, an obligation, a duty to all members of the royal family of God as a part of the royal family honor code related to privacy.
9. Love for the believer is a perpetual debt on which the believer is always paying instalments, but never retires the instalments until he retires from this life.

“for he that loveth another” – the explanatory use of the conjunctive particle gar (further explanation now needed), “for.” The articular present active participle of agapaō (ἀγαπάω) [pronounced ahg-ahp-AH-oh]. The definite article is used as a personal pronoun, indicating the fulfilment of this aspect of the honor code during phase two. The present tense is a progressive present, linear aktionsart. The active voice: the believer produces the action of the verb as the fulfilment of the royal family honor code. The participle is a temporal participle forming a temporal clause and should be translated “for when he loves.” Then the accusative singular definite article, plus the accusative singular direct object from hēteros (ἕτερος) [pronounced HEH-ter-os]. The adjective indicates another believer with a different personality, a different opinion. Love is toleration of those hundreds of non-essentials where we disagree; there is no reciprocal function with impersonal love. Love is toleration of the hundreds of nonessentials.

“hath fulfilled the law” – perfect active indicative of plēroō (πληρώω) [pronounced play-ROH-oh] which means here to fill up a deficiency. The law has a deficiency in that it is limited in its design and function. The law told what you could eat and could not eat, what was a crime and what was not a crime, etc. It was a specific; we are dealing with non-specifics. The law was an essential; we are dealing with non-essentials. The law forbids what intrudes on the freedom and privacy of others without specifically commanding live and let live; we are dealing with the issue of live and let live, the privacy of the royal priesthood.

“He has fulfilled” is the perfect tense of existing state in which past completion is dropped from the thought and the existing results are emphasized. Hence, the mature believer who functions under the royal family honor code by respecting the imputed righteousness of God in another, and who gives others believers their privacy and tolerates differences of opinion in non-essentials; this person has fulfilled en toto the Mosaic law which forbids certain functions in the area of human freedom. The indicative mood is declarative, viewing the action from the standpoint of reality. The accusative singular direct object nomos (νόμος) [pronounced NOHM-oss] refers to the Mosaic law where it sets up negative principles.

Law-keepers are ruthless, intolerant. They are only half-people.

Romans 13:8 Owe nothing to anyone, except to love one another of the same kind; for when he loves the other believer of a different personality he has fulfilled the law.

Lesson #405

405 05/08/1978 Romans 13:9a Adultery cf. fornication; David's crimes and punishment; murder; theft; perjury; lust

Many people can be self righteous, pompous, legalistic believers. They are like the rich young ruler, who keep the law perfectly (in their own eyes).

You can keep the law and come up with an alleged perfect score, and you come up with self-righteousness. But something is still missing; which is the 11th commandment, where you learn to respect the freedom, privacy and property of others.

This verse speaks of the Ten Commandments; and criminal activities. There is also the fulfillment of the Law under the concept of love. We are not talking about personal love; this is impersonal love. Personal love always emphasizes the object.

Romans 13:9 For, “You shall not commit adultery,” “You shall not murder,” “You shall not steal,” “You shall not covet,” and if there is any other commandment, it is summed up in this word, in, “You shall love your neighbor as yourself.” (BLB)

This is a rehash of v. 8.

Verse 9 – this is a criminal passage. There is a vast difference between fornication and adultery. Fornication (illicit sex) is a sin; adultery is also a sin, but it is also criminal activity because it is stealing. Adultery can only be committed by a male – when he steals the wife of another male. The object of adultery is always a married woman. This is stealing the property of another man. She is his property of her husband.

Cliches: behind every great man is a great woman; the hand that rocks the cradle rules the world. All of you women have been hearing incorrect teaching. The man is the woman's lord and master. This does not mean that he should be a brute.

Bob talks about his mother, as one of the most beautiful and wonderful woman. Bob places women on a pedestal.

The 5 prohibitions here are sins and crimes; the double for both. David committed adultery; but he started with a crime and continued in it, killing this woman's husband. How can a mature believer become a criminal? There is always the possibility of becoming a criminal. What keeps you from becoming a criminal? David was about to get away with murder; but there is a supreme court in heaven and no one ever gets away with anything. With God, not only will you not get away with crime, but you cannot get away even with sin. David had 17 years after his recovery. If David did not rebound, he would have died the sin unto death. David was clobbered by God for the crime. As a believer, God will forgive you your sins, but God will not let you get away with crime. That is all the restraint that Bob needs. That may not keep you from your hot temper.

Adultery and fornication need to be distinguished and Bob needs to redo his doctrine.

“For this” – the explanatory use of the postpositive conjunctive particle gar means here “For instance.” Then a nominative neuter singular from the definite article used as a demonstrative pronoun. In fact, the immediate demonstrative refers to that part of the Decalogue in the Mosaic law which is pertinent to crime—“For instance this.” Then we have the quotation of five out of the ten commandments in the Decalogue. Each one is a presentation of crime as an attack upon freedom.

Because we have a sin nature, we are tempted to sin and to commit a crime. The decalogue is the Magna Carta of freedom. You cannot divorce freedom, from privacy from property. These all stand or fall together. The authority that supports these is the laws of divine establishment.

“Thou shalt not commit adultery” – the future active indicative of moicheuô (μοιχεύω) [pronounced moy-KHYOO-oh] plus the negative ou (οὐ) [pronounced oo]. The future tense is the imperative future used to express a command. The active voice: the human race is commanded to cease and desist from this crime, so the human race produces the action. In this passage the emphasis is on a certain part of the human race, the born again believer. The cohortative indicative with the negative expresses a negative command.

The husband owns his wife; there is a property line drawn around her. No man is allowed to seduce her to take her. This crime of adultery only the man can commit.

“Thou shalt not kill” –this is not a correct translation. Again, the future active indicative of phoneuô (φονεύω) [pronounced fon-YOO-oh] which means to murder, not to kill. The negative ou (οὐ) [pronounced oo] indicates we have the indicative. “Thou shalt not murder” is the 6th commandment of Exodus 20:13. The order of presentation of the commandments does not follow the Old Testament order, but rather it follows the order found in both Luke 18:20 and James 2:11. The order is related to the subject which is both human freedom under establishment and the function of the honor code of the royal family of God. The imperative future is used to express a direct command. This idiom is not a Hebraism but is a carry over from Attic Greek. The active voice: this is a requirement for the entire human race under the laws of divine establishment; this is a believer functioning under the honor code.

Principle: Murder is the unlawful killing of another human being with malice of forethought expressed or implied. A person defending himself from a criminal may kill that criminal, but that is not murder, he has merely defended his life. Or, a soldier who kills the enemy is honorable in defence of human freedom.

Bob gave a number of points and scriptures; and I placed them in the doctrine which follows.

Murder: the Principle of the 6th Commandment

1. The sixth commandment of the Decalogue emphasizes the establishment principle of live and let live. Obviously, murder is a violation of that principle.
2. Satan is a murderer from the beginning. John 8:44 You are of your father the devil, and your will is to do your father's desires. He was a murderer from the beginning, and does not stand in the truth, because there is no truth in him. When he lies, he speaks out of his own character, for he is a liar and the father of lies.
3. The police officer acts as a restraint against criminal activity. He is a bulwark; a defense against the ruler of the world advancing his policy of good and evil. As an arch-criminal, Satan's policy is sin and evil.
4. The solution of mankind is never violence. This includes acts of revolution and of assassination.
5. Satan inspired the first murder in human history. Cain was jealous of his brother and he killed him with a sacrificial knife. This was the beginning of murder. Cain murdered Abel because Cain's deeds were evil and Abel's were justified.
6. Genesis 4:5–8
7. Jude 10 the criminal has some foggy thinking.
8. Note that the command is not to murder. The command "Thou shalt not kill" is wrong, it is "Thou shalt not murder."
9. Whenever you slander someone, that is verbal murder.
10. 1Peter 4:15 the believer is capable of murder.
11. The divine prohibition of murder protects human freedom under the laws of divine establishment, but is added here as a part of the royal family honor code.
12. Therefore Christian integrity, which is an advance over establishment morality, also includes the morality of establishment.
13. Grace believers are not antinomian. Therefore antinomianism is not grace function but a distortion of reversionism.
14. While morality is not the Christian way of life, morality is included in the Christian way of life as a part of the royal family honor code and the modus operandi of Christian integrity.
15. Not only is the quotation of the 6th commandment the prohibition of murder to the Christian but it also emphasizes another factor, namely character assassination.

“Thou shalt not steal” – this is the eighth commandment, Exodus 20:15. It is distinguished from the adultery commandment by the fact that there are two different kinds of property. There is property animate—a man’s wife; there is property inanimate. This is the future active indicative of the verb kléptō (κλέπτω) [pronounced KLEP-toe] and it takes us to inanimate property. Human freedom includes the right to own and possess inanimate property under the laws of divine establishment.

“Thou shalt not bear false witness” – the future active indicative of pseudomarturéō (ψευδομαρτυρέω) [pronounced psyoo-dom-ar-too-REH-oh] [pseûdos (ψεῦδος) [pronounced PSYOO-doss] = false; martureô (μαρτυρέω) [pronounced mar-too-REH-oh] = give testimony in court] which can be translated “Thou shalt not commit perjury” or “You will not give false testimony in a trial.” This is not found in all of the ancient manuscripts.

Lesson #406

406 05/09/1978 Romans 13:9a German soldiers; morality and Christian responsibility to the laws of divine establishment; evil espousal of causes Germans are portrayed as so easily led and open to control, never-thinking, always-obeying. This myth is easy to dispel. Some great innovation came from the German army in WWII. The Swiss and French have a greater military history than Germany does.

There are many factors and powers needful for warfare. However, these things must work together. An harmonious combination of powers; one or two of these things may predominate, but they cannot work against one another.

Adultery can only be committed by a man with a married woman. Adultery is sin and it is a crime and an intrusion upon freedom in the field of criminal activity. The man who uses his wife as a punching bag; and he is a moron. But someone else can still commit adultery with his wife.

To be a good husband, you need to have a balance of attributes.

Sometimes you learn something and you overemphasize it. Any learning process has its learning curve. In Bob’s class, people heard one or two things, and then they would totally overemphasize that, leaving other things behind.

Romans 13:9 For, “You shall not commit adultery,” “You shall not murder,” “You shall not steal,” “You shall not covet,” and if there is any other commandment, it is summed up in this word, in, “You shall love your neighbor as yourself.” (BLB)

“Thou shalt not covet” – this is motivation in crime. It should be translated, “You will not lust,” the future active indicative of epithumia (ἐπιθυμία) [pronounced ep-ee-thoo-MEE-ah]. This is the 10th commandment of Exodus 20:17 which protects human freedom from the lust pattern of the old sin nature.

Ten Commandments Principles

1. The ten commandments define morality in terms of the laws of divine establishment. Human morality is necessary for the function of human freedom. So the ten commandments define freedom in terms of sin and crime. There are certain sins and certain crimes which are a direct attack upon human freedom.
2. Morality (which is distilled from establishment function) is required from the entire human race.
3. The quotation of these five commandments has additional significance. It means that every born again believer functioning under grace is still obligated to the laws of establishment.
4. This verse reveals that antinomianism is a distortion of grace. Grace itself is for the law and the function of the law. Reversionism distorts grace into antinomianism. Since sin, good and evil are an attack upon establishment morality, obviously then establishment morality is the antidote for this attack.
5. While morality is not Christianity, morality is required of all believers.
6. All believers are required by God to observe the laws of divine establishment.
7. While Christianity is not a morality but a relationship with God through Christ, Christianity still observes morality.
8. Christianity commands morality for all believers in Christ as a part of the royal family honor code.
9. For evangelism and spiritual advance freedom is required. The source of freedom: the laws of divine establishment.
10. Morality protects human freedom, and the ten commandments is the magna carta of human freedom.
11. Christian dynamics, then, include morality, but at the same time exceed morality.
12. The objectives of the Christian life include the filling of the Holy Spirit. Obviously a moral unbeliever cannot be filled with the Spirit. The rich young ruler was moral as an unbeliever. So obviously as believers we can keep the morality of the law but we go beyond it with the filling of the Holy Spirit plus doctrine resident in the soul.
13. Spiritual maturity is the next objective after salvation. Therefore spiritual maturity is a part of the second hope. Keeping this in mind you never turn against the means by which you advance—freedom.
14. After spiritual maturity is achieved through maximum doctrine resident in the soul, and the 6th imputation (blessing in time), the second hope is replaced by the 3rd hope. Hope always is a concentration on a true doctrine rather than seeking to gain something by violence and crime.

Bob slugged someone and put him down at a Christian party; and this violence did no good. Even though he was right, he was wrong.

When you turn your back on establishment, then you have lost your cause. Organized labor has lost its cause by using violence.

407 05/10/1978 Romans 13:9b Marijuana; "doing good"; personal cf. impersonal love (based on own standard)

As Winston Churchill said, "Men occasionally stumble over the truth, but most of them pick themselves up and hurry off as if nothing had happened."

Someone questioned what Bob taught about alcohol v. marijuana. Someone called T&P and said it would be terrible for Bob to take away from his teaching by spreading false information about pot.

Bob quotes the Donner laboratory of medical research at UC Berkeley. Hardin B. Jones, a PhD, talks about the use of marijuana and gives a variety of reasons for people using it. No matter the reasons for using it, the deleterious effects are the same.

In a recent book called Sensual Drugs, Dr. Hardin B. Jones, Professor of Medical Physics at the University of California, describes how marijuana impacts on the synapses of the brain, throwing mental function and bodily responses out of kilter. He has collected and added to the mounting evidence that marijuana is one of our country's most serious public health problems.

Dr. Jones says that many marijuana users in executive offices and factories suffer chronically from an altered judgment that may affect the quality of their work. We would all be endangered if airline pilots, air traffic controllers, train motormen, firemen, policemen, surgeons, or automobile drivers use the drug. Marijuana is an unusual drug in that its active ingredient, tetra hydrocannabinol (THC), is retained in the body for long periods of time. A study conducted by Louis Lemberger of the Indiana University School of Medicine indicates that 30 percent of the THC is retained in the body at the end of the week, and this 30 percent is then eliminated more slowly than the first 70 percent.

This study was confirmed by Gabriel G. Nahas, a Columbia University anesthesiologist, who concluded that THC accumulates in the fatty tissues such as the liver, brain, bone marrow, and adrenal glands, and is not eliminated 8May 1978 Wall Street Journal "The Last Refuge of Scoundrels" Edmund Fuller reference to Thoreau. Doing good. The means have not produced the intended ends, but they have produced the inevitable ones. The evils in benevolent institutions.

The rise of social services and how they have taken from society. The arbitrary and extra-legal actions...much of what goes on amounts to a violation of the bill of rights. Government benevolence soon becomes social manipulation toward a dogmatic end and hardens into tyranny.

They have discovered the good often deteriorates into evil.

Romans 13:9 For, “You shall not commit adultery,” “You shall not murder,” “You shall not steal,” “You shall not covet,” and if there is any other commandment, it is summed up in this word, in, “You shall love your neighbor as yourself.” (BLB)

“and if there be any other commandment” There are hundreds of other commandments; so we have to take all of this in context. Those related to this context of the Ten Commandments. The key will be impersonal love. This does not mean that you have to like people nor do you have to be nice to others. – i.e. any other commandment pertinent to the subject of crime as a violation of human freedom. What command covers everything just considered in a negative way? What could we now have by way of a positive command to cover all of these five commands that are given? This is a positive law which is for believers (not for unbelievers).

This begins with the connective use of the conjunction kai, translated here “and.” Then the conditional particle ei (εἰ) [pronounced ī] which introduces the protasis of a first class condition—if and it is true that there is a commandment that covers all of the negatives. In other words, is there a nicer way of putting it? Next is a present active indicative of eimi (εἶμι) [pronounced eye-ME]—“and if there is.” This is the static present tense which means not only is there a positive command to cover this but this positive command has always existed and always will exist. That is the static present of eimi (εἶμι) [pronounced eye-ME]. Plus a predicate nominative tis (τις) [pronounced tihç], “any,” and the predicate nominative of héteros (ἕτερος) [pronounced HEH-ter-os] meaning something of a different kind—in other words, a positive command instead of a negative: “and if there is any other commandment,” i.e. some commandment which is different. To the unbeliever there is not such a command, he must go with the negative five. Those are the laws of divine establishment related to human freedom. But for the believer there is a positive approach: “and if there is any other commandment (and there is).”

“it is briefly comprehended in this saying” – the present passive indicative from the compound verb anakephalaíomai (ἀνακεφαλαίωμα) [pronounced an-ak-ef-al-AH-ee-om-ahēe]. It means to bring together several things under one head. Kephalos (κέφαλος) [pronounced KEHF-ah-loss] is the word for head. It means to reduce under one head. To sum up is what it finally means, to take a whole lot of different thoughts and put them into one head. In other words, to summarize what has been previously taught. The different thoughts are the five negative commandments. The aoristic present tense is for punctiliar action in present time. The passive voice: the positive commandment to a part of the royal family honor code receives the action of the verb. The indicative mood is potential because this is an obligation in the royal family honor code which you may or may not be aware of, which to may or may not be observing. Then come three words in a prepositional phrase, en (ἐν) [pronounced en] plus the locative of the demonstrative houtos (οὗτος) [pronounced HOO-tos] plus logos (λόγος, ου, ό) [pronounced LOHG-oss]. It should be translated “in this principle.”

“namely, Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself” – obviously everyone has a different standard of love toward himself. It may be conscious and it may be unconscious. If it is conscious it is usually arrogance; if it is unconscious it is usually the ability to take one’s self-consciousness of the soul and relate it to things in life. We call that composure. So that there is a wrong and a right thing, even in this. Obviously this does not mean that your standards for loving others is your standard for loving yourself, because if you hate yourself then the standard breaks down. God does not give us standards that break down by analogy. So what it appears to mean on the surface is exactly what it does not mean. The word “namely” is correct—en (ἐν) [pronounced en] plus the locative of the definite article is translated literally “in this,” but it is an idiom meaning “namely.” Then the future active indicative of the verb agapaō (ἀγαπάω) [pronounced ahg-ahp-AH-oh]. The future tense is the imperative future, it expresses a command which obviously involves the future. The active voice: the believer in the royal family functioning under the honor code produces the action. This is a cohortative indicative, it is used here to express a command with the future tense—“namely, Thou shalt love.”

The basic difference between personal and impersonal love: Personal love always has an object; impersonal love does not have an object. Impersonal love emphasizes your own inner character; it is what you are. Personal love is the object of your love.

Impersonal love has nothing to do with the object. You love your neighbor as yourself because it depends upon what you have in you. It is your personal inner standard that produces the attitude.

Parents can change the standards of their children and they must. A coach can require what he wants. Crewcut for everyone.

“thy neighbor as thyself” – accusative singular direct object from plêsion (πλησίον) [pronounced play-SEE-on], and adjective used as a substantive. It doesn’t really mean neighbor, it means someone near you. The genitive of relationship from the personal pronoun su means that we all have people around us and are associated with people here and there. A ‘neighbor’ is an old English word for someone near you. Then comes a comparative particle hōs (ὡς) [pronounced hohç] used as a comparative conjunction, plus seautou (σεαυτοῦ, ἡς) [pronounced seh-ow-TOO] which is a reflexive pronoun in the second person—“namely, Thou shalt love your neighbor as yourself,” i.e. on the basis of your standards. Impersonal love emphasizes the subject.

The reflexive pronoun which is used in the phrase, “your neighbor as yourself”: hōs (ὡς) [pronounced hohç] seauton (σεαυτόν) [pronounced seh-ow-TON], this is a composition of the personal pronoun plus the intensive pronoun and is in the accusative case. This is what is called an adverbial accusative of manner. It indicates that love of self is not the norm or standard, even in the comparison. This means, very simply then, that the norm here is not to love people as you have a love for yourself. If there is anything that is unstable it is love for self, lack of love for self, hatred of self, and all of the variations in between. God does not even in a comparative clause use an unstable norm or standard. To love your neighbor is to do so on the basis of your own standard and not their standards.

Romans 13:9 Points

1. Loving another means giving them their privacy and their freedom to respond to you, or not. Or t react to you.
2. This passage, then, speaks not only of impersonal love but impersonal love, strangely enough, becomes reciprocal love. We must tolerate each other. My neighbor and I must both do this.
3. Reciprocal love demands respect for the freedom, the privacy and the property of your neighbor.
4. You cannot smother with love another person and fulfil this passage.
5. You are commanded to have impersonal love for all believers; you are not commanded personal love. This means that you have royal family honor code for a believer.
6. Lack of doctrine means that norms and standards of the conscience are formed from background and environment rather than doctrine in the soul. If your standards are formed from your background you cannot love the brethren impersonally. So God has given us a collection of standards from one source only: Bible doctrine. Only Bible doctrine can do it.

Most women tend to rate men on a comparative system; and they decide that so-and-so is the best of the ones that she has dated.

The *thou shalt not*s have, at some point, kept us from ruining our own lives. In impersonal love, you associate your standards with yourself.

Lesson #408

408 05/11/1978 Romans 13:9b U.S. Army marksmanship; basis of "Love thy neighbor"; relaxed mental attitude, grudges and smother love

Article from American Rifleman (I think). The soldier who cannot shoot is unhelpful. 200,000 rounds in Vietnam in order to kill one enemy. It went up to 400,000 rounds. This is the argument made for

Romans 13:9 For, "You shall not commit adultery," "You shall not murder," "You shall not steal," "You shall not covet," and if there is any other commandment, it is summed up in this word, in, "You shall love your neighbor as yourself." (BLB)

Romans 13:9 For instance this: You will not commit adultery, You will not commit murder, You will not steal, You will not give false testimony in a court room, You will not lust; and if there is any other commandment, it is epitomized in this principle, that is, You shall love your neighbor as yourself.

You will love your neighbor as yourself; I am Y^ehowah.

You cannot leave your values and morality. Marriages require privacy; extremely important in all relationships in life. You cannot smother a person with love and fulfill love your neighbor as yourself. This means that this is based upon your norms and standards. No doctrine means that we operate like any unbeliever operates. The weak believer is filled with goofy opinions. The strong believer tolerates all of these opinions, as long as they are not critical doctrines. If we all agreed on everything, then one of us would be dead.

Mar 12:28 And one of the scribes came up and heard them disputing with one another, and seeing that he answered them well, asked him, "Which commandment is the most important of all?"

Mar 12:29 Jesus answered, "The most important is, 'Hear, O Israel: The Lord our God, the Lord is one.

Mar 12:30 And you shall love the Lord your God with all your heart and with all your soul and with all your mind and with all your strength.'

Mar 12:31 The second is this: 'You shall love your neighbor as yourself.' There is no other commandment greater than these."

Mar 12:32 And the scribe said to him, "You are right, Teacher. You have truly said that he is one, and there is no other besides him.

Mar 12:33 And to love him with all the heart and with all the understanding and with all the strength, and to love one's neighbor as oneself, is much more than all whole burnt offerings and sacrifices."

Mar 12:34 And when Jesus saw that he answered wisely, he said to him, "You are not far from the kingdom of God." And after that no one dared to ask him any more questions.

Galatians 5:14 For the whole law is fulfilled in one word: "You shall love your neighbor as yourself."

The rich young ruler obeyed the Ten Commandments.

James 2:8 If you really fulfill the royal law according to the Scripture, "You shall love your neighbor as yourself," you are doing well.

Lesson #409

409 05/12/1978 Romans 13 Doctrine of the royal family honor code (revised); aristocracy; relaxed mental attitude; personal cf. impersonal love

Bob is going to Portland. Read a UPI report in Portland. Firearms to be restricted which was to even include policemen. Bob knows hundreds of people there, but none of them democrats. When you lose your common sense in one area, you lose it in every area.

We are going to cover the royal family honor code, which did not really match up with the doctrine recorded in NB#2. Bob has come to use royal family as his favorite synonym for believers. Jesus is King of Kings and Lord of Lords; and the royal family is being called out for the King of Kings. Royal family is the body of Christ, the body of Christ, the church.

This term refers to us. What is expected of royalty? If you were invited to the Windsor castle, would you know exactly what to do? Most of you would be checking something in order to know what to do and where to go. Capacity to really enjoy yourself and to be completely relaxed at any party; the is the decorum of the royal family.

This is a system of thinking, a system of action, an awareness of others, a reciprocal action of Christians. We need to know how to interact with other members of the aristocracy, without there being antagonism. In the US, we have become a nation of peasants; and lack of thoughtfulness; peasants in dress, attitude and function.

It is clear that this doctrine does not match the one found in NB#2, so I will take a few notes directly. The royal family honor code appears to be worked and reworked again and again in Romans.

The objective of the royal family is to move toward spiritual maturity. We also must think like royal family. The honor code includes the principles of privacy, the true place of production, the understanding of hope, the advance to maturity; complete cognizance of what it means to have complete impersonal love for all.

The Royal Family Honor Code broken down into various individual doctrines.

The Honor Code Emphasizes Privacy

1. Three concepts: freedom, privacy, property. All must be involved.
2. The laws of divine establishment never divorce freedom from privacy and property.
3. The privacy of the royal priesthood guarantees that every believer can function without interference or distraction from others.
4. Related to the freedom principle, of live and let live. And also to respect the feelings and sensitivities of others. Live and let live; love and let love.
5. Every believer can learn Bible doctrine in the local church. The doctrinal teaching comes from the pastor. No one has the right to bully this person into any set of norms and standards. Exception is parents.
6. The believer can assemble without his personal life being made public or an issue.
7. Each believer must approach the Word of God with objectivity. The only ones who know are your friends. Confident when some passage condemns him, that this is between him and the Lord. The is the only way to be objective in your understanding of the Word.
8. The principle of privacy means the believer must avoid gossiping and judging.
9. The honor code also demands that toleration for nonessential opinions exists in the local congregation of the church.

The Royal Family Honor Code Demands Honoring the Brothers

1. You must know the difference between essential and non-essential opinions.
2. You must be able to distinguish between personal love and impersonal love. The former emphasizes the object; impersonal love always emphasizes the subject.

Categories 1, 2 and 3. Those who push with the arrogance and pull at the same time and shake the object to pieces. In personal love, you concentrate on someone else; you do not concentrate on yourself. Impersonal love the concentration is on the subject. You do not lower yourself to retaliation, to counter-gossip, to counter-malign. Never lower your standards to the weak believer.

3. All love is based upon one's own standards and capacities. We are commanded to love the brethren because it is possible to do so.
4. The essential difference between personal and impersonal love is how your standards are used.
5. The personal love the standards are used on the objects of love in all three categories. Friends, children, relatives, parents are all special people; and that is category #3 love.
 - a. Occupation with Christ.
 - b. Rm/rw.
 - c. Friends, relatives.
6. In impersonal love, the standards are applied to the subject. We love on the basis of our standards. Paul never lowered himself from the standards of ultra supergrace to blast Nero and to speak against him. You do not become arrogant, even if they are arrogant. You don't lower yourself to their level.
7. The object of impersonal love is the fellow believer, the neighbor, those that you have some sort of association with, believers and unbelievers.
8. In impersonal love, you treat believers on the basis of your integrity, your norms and standards, not theirs. The standards you despise you employ when you lower yourself to their level and judge and malign etc.
9. Impersonal love cannot be reduced to the level of dog eat dog. If someone judges you, you do not retaliate, you do not hold a grudge.
10. Loving the brethren begins with the attributes of God. Divine standards must be used in the command to love your neighbor as yourself.
11. We start with common ground. Every believer receives the righteousness of God at salvation. We all have +R.
12. Loving the brothers means that we respect the righteousness of God wherever it is found. Respect is always impersonal. You respect people because you have norms and standards in your soul. Someone meets those standards and you accept them. The woman who loves a man, even though he has abused her. She does not respect him, but she still loves him. God's righteousness is found in some of the weirdest people you can imagine.
13. Loving the brothers is a relaxed mental attitude which avoids revenge, grudge and retaliation; does not carry a personal grudge; has no mental attitude sins toward the other person.
14. Love the brothers is impersonal, a relaxed mental attitude. And Bob has been saying this for years.
15. Love is the filling of the Spirit

16. In love for the brothers, you function under your own standards, rather than to reciprocal response to flattery, attention, to affection or attractions.
17. The function of the royal family honor code involves the filling of the Spirit and knowledge of Bible doctrine.
18. The royal family honor code function produces respect for privacy and property of others.
19. Love of the brothers excludes all gossip, maligning, retaliation, grudge-bearing.

The Honor Code Recognizes the Common Objective of Every Believer

1. This is moving ahead based on one's own norms and standards transformed by doctrine.
2. An understanding of authority in the Christian life, the pastor-teacher and the Word of God.
3. Since the objective can only be obtained by Bible teaching, it becomes obvious that part of the honor code function is learned from the pastor-teacher without becoming involved in the personality of the pastor-teacher. Some of you don't know what I mean because you have only been in Berachah, but some pastors have a terrible personality. Former night club entertainment with a beautiful voice. He had certain afflictions like a tic in the face. A strong personality. Personality doesn't mean a thing. You concentrate on the message. You look for a message, not for a personality.
4. The pastor's authority extends to teaching doctrine and enforcing policy in the local church, to allow all of us to have our privacy; that we can get our norms and standards from Bible doctrine.
5. Therefore, it is not the function of the pastor to act as a referee between congregants and their squabbles.
6. Since the common objective is the perception of doctrine. Allow believers to advance to maturity and to glorify Jesus Christ.
7. Imputed righteousness must be respected and the privacy of the priesthood must be the order of the day. Relaxed mental attitude must extend even to the most obnoxious believers.

The Honor Code Builds Integrity but it Does Not Reject Morality

1. Morality is based upon the laws of divine establishment.
2. Morality is not rejected; a higher standard is expected.
3. This integrity has its source from the filling of the Spirit and maximum doctrine in the soul.
4. While Christianity is not a morality; it does not exclude morality.
5. Again, the honor code demands a higher than morality standard. We include morality but we exceed morality.

The Honor Code Excludes Christian Production as the Means God's Blessing

1. The royal family honor code excludes all forms of Christian works, production, talent, self-sacrifice as the means of blessing.
2. Blessing comes from grace and doctrine.
3. Asceticism, sacrificial giving, personality cannot be the source of our blessing.
4. The attainment of maturity through doctrine in the soul is the only means of blessing to the believer.
5. Divine blessing is a real imputation when we attain maturity. Learning doctrine is how we grow; not by doing works. In this way, the royal family honor code demands total dependence on the integrity of God.
6. Today dependence on the integrity of God is called hope; confident expectation or confident anticipation from the integrity of God.

As a mature believer we live in reward the blessing. The X + Y + Z plan of God.

Therefore the honor code is related to the divine imputations.

Summary of the Honor Code:

1. The honor code is related to God, nation, people. The principle of freedom, live and let live.
2. Includes and surpasses morality.
3. Privacy of the priesthood of the core of the honor code.
4. Understanding the objectives delineated by hopes 2 & 3 and relating them to Bible doctrine, legalism is rejected.
5. The honor code relates the divine plan of grace to the royal family.
6. Cognizance and dependence upon the royal family
7. Plus the application of

Lesson #410

410 05/14/1978 Romans 13:10 Love: personal, impersonal and relaxed mental attitude fulfills the law; essentials and non-essential standards; royal family honor code

Loving self would vary with the individual; and some think that self-love is an important factor. Divine viewpoint is, you do not think about yourself. But you do love on the basis of your own standards.

Royal Family Honor Code and Love

1. It is important to differentiate between personal and impersonal love. Various categories of love. Impersonal love is based upon the subject and the norms and standards of the subject.
2. Personal love emphasizes the object of love; and impersonal love emphasizes the subject.

3. All love, personal and impersonal, is based upon one's standards and capacities.
4. The essential difference is how this standards are use.
5. In impersonal love, these standards are applies to 3 categories of love.
6. There is a great area of essential and non-essential opinions.
 - a. Essentials are faith alone in Christ alone; and there should never be any dependence upon the
 - b. The field of nonessential opinions.

These points have already been covered in the previous lesson.

We can coexist even with different opinions and standards.

Romans 13:10 Love does not do evil to its neighbor; therefore love is the fulfillment of the Law.

Verse 10 – “Love worketh no ill to his neighbor.” The nominative singular subject from agápē (ἀγάπη) [pronounced ag-AH-pay], with is a relaxed mental attitude (mental attitude sins are not functioning), impersonal love. Literally we have “The love” because there is the generic use of the definite article, this is the love required by the royal family honor code—impersonal love. This is the love of the honor code which gives privacy to others, along with that relaxed mental attitude which tolerates their different opinions and erroneous conclusions, and at the same time respects the righteousness of God in the other believer. Next is the present middle indicative of the verb ergázomai (ἐργάζομαι) [pronounced er-GAHD-zohm-ahee] which means to practice, to work out, to produce, to accomplish, to do; plus the negative ou (οὐ) [pronounced oo] with the indicative: “The love does not produce.” The present tense is a customary present denoting what habitually occurs when the believer under the royal family honor code has doctrinal standards. The middle voice: this is a deponent verb, middle in form and active in meaning. The believer who is advancing to maturity through the intake of doctrine, the believer who is a mature believer, the believer who functions under the royal family honor code, produces the action of the verb. The indicative mood is declarative representing the reality of the situation.

Then the accusative singular direct object from kakós (κακός) [pronounced kak-OSS]. When kakós (κακός) [pronounced kak-OSS] teams up with sin this is generally an area of crime, but when it teams up with human good this is an area which is the most vicious. “The love does not produce evil.” In other words, “the love” comes from maximum doctrine resident in the soul. Your standards are based on doctrine, so you don't run around destroying someone's freedom in the name of human good. Evil is caused by the practice of sin and the function of human good. Hence. This phrase emphasizes giving privacy to others in order that they might function under establishment principles of freedom or the spiritual principles of the royal family honor code. This is the true function of freedom. This must always be related to two other principles. Freedom is not an entity in itself, it must be related to privacy and it must be related to property. Next, “to his neighbor” – the dative singular from the definite article used as a personal pronoun is translated “his.” Plus the dative singular indirect object from the adverb plêsion (πλησίον) [pronounced play-SEE- on], meaning “near,” and it is used as a substantive and means “neighbor” or those with whom you have contact, those in your periphery. “The love does not produce evil to his neighbor.”

Adultery is a crime; it includes both evil and sin.

Romans 13:10 The love does not produce evil to the one near him; therefore the love is a fulfilment of the law.

Lesson #411

411 05/14/1978 Romans 13:10–11a Basis for relaxed mental attitude love is doctrine in the soul; humor: overworked few; doctrine of sleep (pts.1–2)

Points on Neighbor

1. “You shall love the one near you [your neighbor] as yourself” does not imply that your love for yourself is the standard, but doctrine resident in your soul becomes both your capacity and your standard for this impersonal love.
2. It further means that you do not lower your standards to those who are antagonistic toward you by emulating them in a controversy or in strife or in personality conflict.
3. When you are the victim of gossip, maligning, judging, a grudge, retaliation, revenge, you do not reciprocate if you operate on your high standards. You do if you operate on the low standards of the antagonist.
4. Xxxx
5. This means you cannot lower your standards and still be a lover.
6. Every time you hold a grudge or retaliate, seek revenge, express hatred, vindictiveness, implacability, jealousy or arrogance in reprisal you have abandoned your standards of impersonal love for the lower, evil standards of your antagonist.
7. Retribution violates the royal family honor code.
8. You must, of course, distinguish between personal and impersonal love.
9. Personal love uses your standards and your capacity in the direction of an object—such as God, right man and right woman, friends and family.
10. Impersonal love emphasizes the subject rather than the object, and therefore the standards are applied to yourself rather than the object.
11. Impersonal love observes establishment principles in recognizing the freedom, privacy and property of the unbeliever, and observes the royal family honor code in recognizing the imputed righteousness, privacy of the priesthood, and non-essential opinions of other believers.

A scribe heard the rudeness, and he asked the question, what commandment is the most important of all. Jesus did not answer with any of the Ten Commandments.

Mar 12:28 And one of the scribes came up and heard them disputing with one another, and seeing that he answered them well, asked him, "Which commandment is the most important of all?"

Mar 12:29 Jesus answered, "The most important is, 'Hear, O Israel: The Lord our God, the Lord is one.

With reference to Israel, the Lord God, the Revealed God, is the true God of Israel.

Mar 12:30 And you shall love the Lord your God with all your heart and with all your soul and with all your mind and with all your strength.'

It takes energy to love; and some people are terrible lovers because they cannot expend the energy on another person.

Mar 12:31 The second is this: 'You shall love your neighbor as yourself.' There is no other commandment greater than these."

One command directed toward God; and the other directed to man.

Mar 12:32 And the scribe said to him, "You are right, Teacher. You have truly said that he is one, and there is no other besides him.

Romans 13:10 The love does not produce evil to the one near him; therefore the love is a fulfilment of the law.

Vv. 11–14 is the third and final paragraph of this chapter.

Are you tired; it is no wonder. There are not as many people working as you may have thought. Population of this country is 200 million. 72 million of 65 years of age. Then there are those employed by the federal government. Deduct those in city government; and take out the bums and vagrants. You may be interested that there are so many in jail, and that leaves just you and me, brother.

Romans 13:11 And do this knowing the time, that it is already the hour for you to awaken out of sleep; for our salvation is nearer now than when first we believed. (BLB)

Verse 11 – the Christian responsibility to learn doctrine. "And that, knowing the time." This begins with the adjunctive use of the conjunction kai, with the independent nominative singular from the immediate demonstrative pronoun houtos (οὗτος) [pronounced HOO-tos]. When an idea is conceived independent of any particular verbal relationship the expression of it may be left standing alone. It stands alone in the nominative case. Thus the nominative names an idea rather than an object. That is called an independent nominative in the Greek. This can also be called the parenthetic nominative or the nominative absolute. The correct translation, instead of "And that," is "This do also." That is the correct way to translate an idiom, which this is. "Also" means in addition to our responsibility to the government—laws of divine establishment, in addition to our responsibility to believers—royal family honor code. This “also” is covered in verses 11-14.

Next comes the nominative plural perfect active participle from oida (οἶδα) [pronounced OY-da], literally translated “having known.” The perfect tense is the intensive perfect, or the perfect of existing state, in which the past completed action is dropped from the thought and the attention is focused on an existing status quo. The existing state is knowledge of pertinent doctrine. The active voice: the believer produces the action of the verb by being himself personally and individually positive toward doctrine. The participle is the instrumental participle indicating the means by which the inserted main verb in the idiom (to do, aorist active imperative of poieô (ποιέω) [pronounced poi-EH-oh]) is accomplished. “This do also, by having known.” In this case we have something specific to know: “the time” – accusative singular direct object from kairos (καιρός) [pronounced kī-ROSS] which means a period of time, not the time on your watch (chronos (χρόνος) [pronounced CHRON-oss]), plus the generic use of the definite article referring to a specific period of time, not any period of time. It is a reference to the Church Age, the dispensation of the royal family of God.

“that now it is high time to awake out of sleep” – the conjunction hōti (ὅτι) [pronounced HOH-tee] which is used after verbs that denote perception to indicate what kind of perception. It is translated “that” to indicate the content of perception from oida (οἶδα) [pronounced OY-da]. Insert the present active indicative of eimi (εἰμί) [pronounced eye-ME], the verb to be, plus the temporal adverb êdê (ἤδη) [pronounced AY-day], meaning “already”—“that it is already.” The believer must orient doctrine he has learned to the time in which he lives.

Next is the predicate nominative singular from hôra (ώρα) [pronounced HO-rah], plus the accusative plural of general reference from the personal pronoun su—“from you.” The accusative is used with the infinitive. It is really not the subject of the infinitive but always translated as the subject of the infinitive because of a very fine point. It describes the person or persons connected with the action of the infinitive. Hence, we simply say subject of the infinitive. So we have “that it is already time for you.” Then comes the aorist passive infinitive of egeirô (ἐγείρω) [pronounced ehg-Ī-row], which means to wake up. The constative aorist gathers into one entirety the events necessary to orient to the reality of the Church Age. The passive voice: the believer receives the action of the verb through cognizance of pertinent doctrine. This is the infinitive of intended result in which the result fulfils a deliberate objective, the blending of purpose and result.

Then the prepositional phrase, ek (ἐκ) [pronounced ehk] plus the ablative of hupnos (ὑπνος) [pronounced HOOP-noss], “sleep.” We get the word hypnotic from this. This is the sleep of apathy, the sleep of ignorance, the sleep of indifference, of disorientation to history and the reality of contemporary events. It is generally a sleep associated with reversionism and apostasy. Therefore sleep becomes an analogy to apostasy or Christian reversionism in this passage. “This do also by having known the period of time, that is, it is already time for you to wake up from sleep.”^[4]

Doctrine of Sleep by R. B. Thieme, Jr.

5/14/78

A. Definition and Description.

1. Sleep is defined as a natural, temporary, and periodic diminution of sensation, feeling, and thought which can go from a state of heavy slumber to almost a complete cessation of conscious life.
2. It is used for being soporific, the state of lethargy or sleepiness; and for oscitant, the act of yawning or the state of being drowsy. Soporific.
3. The intransitive use of the word sleep includes the suspension of the voluntary exercise of bodily functions and the natural suspension, either complete or partial, of consciousness.
4. Sleep means to become numb through the stoppage of circulation through certain parts of the body, e.g., your arm goes to sleep.
5. In its transitive use, sleep is used with a cognate object, e.g., to sleep one's life away, to provide sleeping accommodations, to sleep off a hangover.
6. In English we use sleep for a state of inactivity, death, or to describe sexual activity (sleeping around; sleeping with someone).
7. The Bible uses sleep in a variety of ways, both literal and figurative: for death, indifference, lack of alertness, indolence, ignorance, and disorientation.

B. Literal Use of Sleep in the Bible.

1. Genesis 2:21, Adam was put to sleep for the creation of the woman.
2. Genesis 15:12, Abraham slept as a preliminary to divine revelation.
3. 1Samuel 26:12, Saul slept so David could infiltrate his bivouac and prove a point of grace.
4. In Psalm 4:8, sleep is used for a manifestation of faith-rest.
5. Sleep is used for divine revelation through dreams and visions prior to the completed Canon, Job 33:15.
6. Prosperity was related to sleep. Psalm 127:1-2, "Unless the Lord builds the house, the builders labor in vain. It is a vain thing to rise up early, to retire late, to eat the bread of hard work, for He gives to His beloved [mature believer], even his sleep." Proverbs 3:24.
7. Evil men are related to sleep, Proverbs 4:16. They are robbed of sleep unless they make someone stumble. Some cannot get a good night's sleep unless they have hurt or disturbed someone.
8. Sleep is related to divine protection, Psalm 3:5-6.

C. Sleep is used as an analogy.

1. Sleep is used as an analogy to laziness and lack of motivation, Proverbs 6:4-11, 10:5b, 19:15.
2. Proverbs 20:15, "Don't love sleep, lest you become poor," refers to a person who'd rather be on welfare than work.

3. In Ecclesiastes 5:12, sleep is used as an analogy to the conscience. Sleep is used for capacity for life; the full stomach is used for lack of capacity. The working man is tired, and therefore enjoys his sleep.
 4. In 1Thessalonians 5:6, sleep as an analogy to alertness. "Let us not sleep as others do, but let us be alert and self-disciplined." Sleep is lack of alertness and self-discipline.
 5. Sleep is an analogy to reversionism. Ephesians 5:14, "Wake up you sleeping ones." Rebound and perception of doctrine are the means of waking up. In Romans 13:11, waking up from sleep is learning and applying doctrine. Sleep can be a distraction in life.
- D. Sleep is used as an anthropopathism.
1. Psalm 34:23, "Why do you sleep, O Lord? Wake up, do not reject us forever." Here sleep is regarded as indifference when someone needs help.
 2. Psalm 78:65-66, "Then the Lord woke up as from a sleep. and He drove His enemies backward." The training of a soldier causes him to respond to the call to arms even though recovering from a drunken sleep. God is able to deliver us even though we have been awful.
 3. Psalm 121:4, "Behold, He who guards Israel will neither slumber or sleep." God is aware of our needs from eternity past.
- E. Sleep is used for Christian death in anticipation of resurrection.
1. Psalm 13:3b, "...enlighten my eyes, lest I sleep the sleep of death." In death, the body sleeps, but the soul and spirit remain alive with human life and eternal life.
 2. 1Corinthians 15:20, "...Christ the first fruits of those who are asleep."
 3. 1Corinthians 15:51, "We shall not all sleep." When the Rapture occurs, believers alive on the earth will not die.
 4. 1Thessalonians 4:14, "God will bring with Him those who have fallen asleep in Him." There is no such thing as soul sleep. Waking up is receiving a resurrection body.
 5. 1Thessalonians 5:10, "Whether we are awake or asleep we may live together with Him."
- F. Sleep is used for the sin unto death of the reversionist, 1Corinthians 11:30.
- G. Waking from sleep is used for perception and application of doctrine, Romans 13:11. "This do also by having known the period of time [Church Age], that is, it is already time for you to wake up from sleep [reversion recovery], for now our deliverance [rapture] is nearer than when we first believed."

412 05/19/1978 Romans 13:11b Doctrine of sleep (pts. 3–8): laziness, reversionism and other analogies; German innovators

Reading of vv. 1–11a

The other points of the Doctrine of Sleep will be placed in the previous lesson.

Principle

1. Sleep is the status of reversionism in this context.
2. Waking up from sleep here is not resurrection but perception of Bible doctrine, the daily function of GAP, reversion recovery. Romans 13:11; Ephesians 5:14.
3. Waking up or inculcation of doctrine is necessary because the time of the Rapture is imminent..
4. No one knows the time of the Rapture, but no unfulfilled Scripture exists. So that the Rapture is imminent. 1 Cor. 1:17; Titus 2:13.
5. The more we understand the doctrine of the Rapture the greater the motivation to learn doctrine today, tomorrow, the next day.
6. Each day is the opportunity to learn Bible doctrine and advance to maturity.

The need to set aside time for eating spiritual food. This is the concept for as far as we have gone.

Romans 13:11 And do this knowing the time, that it is already the hour for you to awaken out of sleep; for our salvation is nearer now than when first we believed. (BLB)

“for now is our salvation [deliverance: Rapture] nearer than when we believed.” This begins with the explanatory use of the postpositive conjunctive particle gar—“for you see.” Then the adverb of time nun (vûv) [pronounced noon], plus the nominative singular from the noun sôtêria (σωτηρία) [pronounced soh-tay-REE-ah], translated “salvation” in the KJV but it means “deliverance.” It is a reference to the Rapture of the Church.

Next is the possessive plural from the personal pronoun egó (ἐγώ) [pronounced ehg-OH]—“our deliverance.” The Rapture is the deliverance for the entire royal family. “For now our deliverance [Rapture of the Church] is nearer.” Then a comparative particle ê (ἤ) [pronounced ā], plus the temporal particle hóti (ὅτι) [pronounced HOH-tee] which is used as a conjunction, translated “when.” Plus the aorist active indicative of the verb pisteúô (πιστεύω) [pronounced pis-TOO-oh]. The aorist tense is a constative aorist, it refers to an instantaneous, momentary action—when you became born again. The active voice: the believers produced the action when he believed in Christ. The indicative mood is declarative representing the verbal action from the viewpoint of dogmatic reality, the only way of salvation is to believe in Christ.

Romans 13:11 This do also, by having known the period of time [Church Age], that it is already time for you to wake up from sleep; for now our deliverance is nearer than when we believed.

413 05/21/1978 Romans 13:12 Ike vs. Monty and the importance of Germany; imminence of death or the Rapture; priorities

There is an incident from the Battle of the Bulge which is not in any history book that Bob is aware of. General Eisenhower chose to give a large portion of Bradley's group to Montgomery. All of the generals wanted to attack the Germans; and Montgomery wanted to retreat and to tidy up lines. He was one of the worse British generals. Thanks to the Australians and other colonials who apparently helped give him a positive reputation that he did not deserve.

The British aristocracy was wiped out in the war. Montgomery did not get along with the American generals. Hitler drove a wedge between the British and the Americans. The British did not appreciate the American soldier, especially as an aggressive type person. When the great offensive took place starting in January of 1945, the attack upon the Reur Pocket, the realignment...Bradley and Eisenhower were upset the Montgomery took credit when the American troops deserved. There was a schism with Bradley and Ike on one side and Montgomery on the other.

Eisenhower planned to go to Berlin; and everyone was in position. The closest to Berlin was Montgomery's army. Ike was not going to let Montgomery to into Berlin. Eisenhower attacked the interior of Germany. He knew the Montgomery could not make much progress on his own.

Churchill did not want the Russian army to take anything else, particularly Berlin. This animosity kept the Brits from taking Berlin. Montgomery was responsible for many British disasters. He always spent too much time dilly dallying around.

Montgomery could never keep his arrogance under control. American troops should never serve under anyone other than an American general. American troops were committed to many places in Europe and they always had to serve under foreign officers.

We are by nature much more aggressive, must more fluid and much more adaptable. West Germany should never have been in Russian hands.

Germany had no natural fortification areas. To take away the army of Germany in 1919 was a disaster. We allowed the Russians to have the Balkans, the Hungarians; all were antagonistic to Russia; but we turned right around and allowed Russia to control these people. This is because of stupid American decisions. This has caused millions of European lives; and the Russians have stomped out Christianity. There is no religious freedom in Russia. The Russians persecute Christians and conservatives.

The only hope for Western Europe is German conservatism. The Belgians are tough and realistic; and there are a few good French divisions. NATO is just another way for American soldiers being controlled by foreign generals.

Doubtful disputations concern us with essentials and non-essentials. The essentials are Bible doctrine.

Romans 13:12 The night is nearly over, and the day has drawn near; therefore we should cast off the works of darkness and should put on the armor of light. (BLB)

Verse 12 – “The night is far spent.” The nominative singular subject from the noun nux (νύξ) [pronounced noox] with the generic use of the definite article used as a metaphor for the duration of the Church Age. The latter part of the Church Age is called “night” in contrast to day. It is a metaphor. How long the night exists is strictly up to the decision of the sovereignty of God. Night is used in the sense of non-alertness in contrast to alertness. So the noun refers to the life of the believer on earth in phase two as a part of the Christian way of life. The aorist active indicative of prokoptō (προκόπτω) [pronounced prok-OP-toe] means to cut a passage forward, to advance, to make progress. When it is used for time it means that the time is going. So “the night is far gone” refers not only to the progress of the Church Age but more than that it refers to our life on this earth. Doctrine gives us an alertness with regard to life. It is imperative, therefore, that we understand that we only have a limited amount of time in this life. The constative aorist is for a fact or action expended over a period of time. The constative aorist gathers up into one entirety the individual believer’s allotted time on this earth. The active voice: the Church Age and the believer’s time spent on this earth in the Church Age produces the action of the verb. The indicative mood is declarative for a dogmatic statement of the imminency of the Rapture or the imminency of death. As long as we are on this earth there is a purpose, and that purpose is the advance to maturity.

“the day is at hand” – The transitional use of the conjunctive particle de, instead of setting up a contrast as usual, is used here as a transitional particle. While it is transitional it does show mild antithesis, i.e. between night (life on this earth) and day (life in eternity). The subject is the nominative singular from hēmera (ἡμέρα) [pronounced hay-MEH-raw], used for your life in eternity. It is correctly translated “day” but is used here to represent either death or the Rapture, whichever occurs first in the life of the Church Age believer. We have only a short time on this earth and we ruin our short time by the wrong priorities. Next is the perfect active indicative of eggizō (ἐγγίζω) [pronounced eng-ID-zoh], meaning the approach [of time]. The intensive perfect emphasizes the existing results. When emphasis is directed to the results of the action stress on the existing fact is intensified. This is called the emphatic method in the Greek of presenting a fact or a condition. It is a strong way of stating that a thing is, and therefore it is often translated in the English by the present tense. The active voice: your death or resurrection produces the action of the verb as the subject. The day is approaching: phase three. The indicative mood is declarative for a basic fact of doctrine. The principle: God has assigned to each believer X number of days in the Church Age to fulfil the plan of X + Y + Z.

“The night is far gone, and the day is approaching.” This can mean that our death is soon due to the collapse of divine establishment in our nation.

It is obvious that this particular phrase is designed to alert us to the proper use of our time. It means that in our scale of values, in the norms and standards of our conscience, something is first; and that is the one that receives the most attention every day. The day is long enough for us to have time for sleep, time for work, time for pleasure; all of which eventually become meaningless unless we have doctrine and the norms and standards of doctrine in the soul. There's room for everything; but you do not appreciate it unless you take in Bible doctrine.

The night is far gone and the day is approaching—this alerts you to your priorities and that time is short.

“let us therefore cast off the works of darkness” – this doesn't say sin; it doesn't even imply sin. It begins with an inferential conjunction, oun (οὖν) [pronounced oon], and it means the previous statement demands a conclusion. It is an inference from the previous statement: aorist middle subjunctive of apotithēmi (ἀποτίθημι) [pronounced ap-ohT-EETH-ay-mee]. It means to cast off, but here it really means to put away, to lay aside something. It doesn't mean to reject it but to lay it aside. In other words, this is a priority principle. You are not commanded as a Christian to quit things, to stop having pleasures, to stop business, to stop whatever you are doing in life; but there must be something more important than what you are doing in life, i.e. Bible doctrine. So we are commanded to give first place to the most important thing. First things first is what it means here. This is the ingressive aorist in which the action is contemplated in its beginning, it denotes an entrance into a state of condition. The middle voice is the direct middle which describes the subject participating in the results of the action. You change your priorities to make doctrine first and you begin to notice some wonderful things in life. The subjunctive mood is the hortatory subjunctive which is tantamount to a command but different from the imperative mood in that it recognizes your human volition. Taking cognizance of human volition means that it is up to you. Next is the accusative plural direct object from ergon (ἔργον) [pronounced EHR-gon] which means works or production, but it does not refer to sin. Plus the descriptive genitive singular skotos (σκότος) [pronounced SKOH-toss] for darkness. What are the works of darkness? They are good and evil. Our involvement in these is what we are throwing off here. This is a reference to the function of good and evil in the devil's triangle.

“and let us put on the armour of light” – the postpositive conjunctive particle de is a transitional conjunction translated “and,” but it sets up a mild contrast, the contrast between the works of darkness and the function of the armour of light. This is not related to production, it is related to the intake of doctrine and the ministry of God the Holy Spirit. The aorist middle subjunctive of enduō (ἐνδύω) [pronounced ehn-DOO-oh] means to put on your armour. It refers actually to the conflicts of life in the analogy. Putting on armour is simply gearing the mentality of your soul to face the exigencies of life as well as the prosperity of life. So when it says “let us put on”, the constative aorist gathers up into one entirety the perception of doctrine which executes the command. The middle voice is the direct middle in which the believer participates in the results by attaining maturity, by having great capacity for life, great happiness in life, great prosperity in life—occupation with the person of Christ, historical impact, etc. This has us in the place good and evil; the policy of Satan using the sin nature as the sovereign of life. Example of Nader changing the automobile engine. Perceived as good, but it is really evil. The hortatory subjunctive, again, is tantamount to a command but differs from the imperative mood in that it takes cognizance of human volition.

The accusative plural direct object of hoplon (ὅπλον) [pronounced HOP-Ion] refers to the various parts of Roman armour. The word was originally used for Greek armour but in the time of writing it referred to Romans armour. The descriptive genitive singular of phôs (φῶς) [pronounced fohç] refers to light in darkness, and that means Bible doctrine. It is a reference by analogy to doctrine because it is not like daylight, it is light in darkness. We are in the night here: "the night is far gone."

Romans 13:12 The night is far gone, the day is approaching; therefore let us lay aside the works of darkness, and let us put on the armor of light.

The completion of putting on the armour of light is the point of reaching maturity adjustment to the justice of God through maximum doctrine resident in the soul.

Lesson #414

414 05/21/1978 Romans 13:13a Col. Henderson's "T. J. Jackson"; U.S. evils and immigration; doctrine of the royal family honor code

Thomas Jonathon Jackson a two volume biography of him by Colonel Henderson. Bettie Smith speaks highly of Jackson. He was Ike's former chief-of-staff. He describes Jackson as very simple in life, but a strong Christian. Jackson's individuality was far more striking and complete. He was admired of his piety and Christian notions.

American money in Africa is being used by dictators to build a larger castle/home and bring another wife into it.

As believers, we operate on a higher calling that simply patriotism. We are totally loyal opposition. We live under the royal family honor code. This is better than the Christian way of life, which is a bogus notion. We have a morality and integrity and standards that are higher than simple establishment standards and morality.

Romans 13:13 We should walk properly, as in daytime; not in reveling and drinking, not in sexual immorality and sensuality, not in dissension and jealousy. (BLB)

Verse 13 – "Let us walk honestly as in the day" is an incorrect translation. It begins with the aorist middle subjunctive of the verb peripateô (περιπατέω) [pronounced per-ee-paht-EH-oh] which means to walk in the sense of the royal family honor code. The culminative aorist views the function of establishment morality plus the royal family honor code in its entirety but emphasizes it from the standpoint of having to go from one to the other. The laws of divine establishment guarantee freedom for believer and believer, and the authority to guarantee that freedom. When that breaks down the Christian has the only answer to that, and that is found in the royal family honor code which also guarantees freedom, privacy and property. The middle voice is the direct middle describing the subject as participating in the results of the action. The subjunctive mood is hortatory, used for a command where personal volition is involved.

Next comes the adverb euschēmónōs (εὐσχημόνως) [pronounced yoo-skhay-MON-ose] which does not to be honest, it means honorably. This is higher than establishment; this is honor. It is a reference to the believer's function under the royal family honor code.^[5]

The Royal Family Honor Code

1. Definition and description of the honor code:
 - a. When we were born again, the human spirit was created and eternal life was imputed into that human spirit. We have a set of standards as a result.
 - b. The soul's thinking from this doctrine forms the royal family honor code. There is a relationship between spiritual maturity and our lives. Doctrine has to go into your right lobe. Some of you are too arrogant to take in a new thought.
 - c. No freedom can exist in human life or in the spiritual life without authority. The pastor-teacher is that authority.
 - d. Right thinking is necessary for right motivation.
 - e. The honor code establishes the privacy of the royal family. There is freedom, property and privacy. That is the whole concept of divine establishment. Friar Tuck and Uncle John were criminals. Some people are not motivated to produce. They see others pass them by and they lack self-discipline. They try to find legal ways to confiscate and to steal. The graduated income tax is confiscation.
 - f. The laws of divine establishment never divorce freedom from property and privacy.
 - g. Under the privacy of the priesthood, everyone has the right to gather and to grow spiritually.
2. Morality is a part of the honor code; but the honor code is much more.
3. There is no divine blessing for works in time. Even if you are sincere, God is not impressed by your sincerity. Nothing that the believers does results in blessing for the believer.
4. Under ambassadorship, e fulfill production mandates; as...we advance spiritually.
5. Summary—it is related to nation, to God and to self.

You become a conservative in two ways: (1) you accumulate a lot of property; (2) you grow from the intake of Bible doctrine.

Have you seen the government go out and drill a well? They understand nothing about free enterprise; they have no idea how to start a business.

Bob on the 4th estate: It is a conniving evil group of people. They are all completely and totally out of line.

You have no right to carry a grudge against another believer.

The command is accomplished through the filling of the Spirit and maximum doctrine resident in the soul. Then en (ἐν) [pronounced en] plus the locative of hēmera (ἡμέρα) [pronounced hay-MEH-raw]—“in daytime.” This simply means that we walk in the light of eternity and what God has dictated from eternity.

Lesson #415

415 05/22/1978 Romans 13:13b "T. J. Jackson": character and conduct; self-discipline; doctrine of the royal family honor code (3–9)

Because Jackson sometimes went his own way, he was often seen as eccentric. Hard work was more to his mind than amusement.

Points on the honor code placed in the previous chapter.

Romans 13:13 We should walk properly, as in daytime; not in reveling and drinking, not in sexual immorality and sensuality, not in dissension and jealousy. (BLB)

“not in rioting and drunkenness” – the honor code is not in these. The negative mē (μή) [pronounced may] is used here because of the subjunctive mood. With it is the locative plural of kōmos (κῶμος) [pronounced KOH-moss]. Kōmos (κῶμος) [pronounced KOH-moss] comes to mean a riot, a bunch of drunks in a procession where there is no authority. Freedom without authority is not freedom. You cannot be a Christian living under the honor code and reject authority. Rioting is rejection of authority—someone else’s authority.

God invented human love; and this is so that a man can have authority over the woman without be a dictator.

Plus méthē (μέθη) [pronounced MEHTH-ay] – “drunkenness.” People get drunk because they do not use their own volition as an authority. Rioting and drunkenness are both related to self-discipline and group discipline, failure to recognize one’s own authority and failure to recognize the authority that has been duly constituted by God in either establishment or in the spiritual realm.

“not in chambering and wantonness” – koitē (κοίτη) [pronounced KOY-tay] is illicit sex and this should be translated here “fornication.” It refers to several kinds, normal or abnormal are both included. This is a failure to use volition to regulate one’s own life. Then the word aselgeia (ἀσελγεία) [pronounced as-ELG-i-a] which is probably best translated licentiousness—“not in fornication and licentiousness.”

“not in strife and envying” – éris (ἔρις) [pronounced EHR-is] means discord and contention. What causes discord? When you reject the legitimate authority of life. Discord and contention comes from mental attitude sins. You cannot control your thinking, and when you cannot you are jealous, vindictive, petty, implacable. Plus the locative singular of zhloj —“jealousy.” If you are jealous of someone else it is lack of self-discipline. This lack of self-discipline producing this sin causes you to attack the object of your jealousy—instead of that object being the object of your impersonal love.

Romans 13:13 Let us walk honorably as in the daytime; not in rioting and drunkenness, not in fornication and licentiousness, not in strife and jealousy.

Lesson #416

416 05/23/1978 Romans 13:14 Henderson: causes for the U.S. Civil War; social action (lust); distractors (detractors?) from GAP

It is a very rare night that there are no uniforms in Berachah Church. Nothing more beautiful than our stars and stripes blowing in the wind.

Colonel Henderson of the Coldstream guards wrote a two-volume history of Thomas Jonathan Jackson. History classes today; more time is spent on Marilyn Monroe than on Douglas MacArthur.

The border states would have welcomed emancipation; but they questioned the end result. The whole system of capitalism would have been swept away in the south. Abolition meant ruin to the Negro. Honesty and morality were being gradually instilled in the Negro race. If all the rules were relaxed, they would have easily fallen back into their old vices and tribal disputes.

One abolitionist would go around and talk about abolition and he would carry a Constitution around with him that he would tear up at the end of his speech.

Henderson said that the Bible-thumpers did not realize that the Bible was not against slavery. Henderson seemed to favor the separation of the United States into two countries. Many circumstances seemed to divide the sets of states even more. The two sections knew little about one another. They deemed themselves equals.

We have the strong believer on one side and weak on the other. God allowed the south to lose in order to allow for manifest destiny. We needed to continue with evangelism.

But cannot believe our conversations and we are in the devil's world.

“You hare trying to straighten out us, and let me tell you, ‘I am incorrigible.’”

Bob can be delivering a gem and he was see them vibrate

We are not here to end slavery; or to start it up again; and whatever we are doing, we need to put on the Lord Jesus Christ.

Romans 13:14 But put on the Lord Jesus Christ, and make no provision for the desires of the flesh. (BLB)

Verse 14 – “But put ye on the Lord Jesus Christ.” The adversative conjunction allá (ἀλλά) [pronounced ahl-LAH], “But,” sets up a contrast between the negative command of the previous verse and the positive command here. Then the aorist middle imperative of enduô (ἐνδύω) [pronounced ehn-DOO-oh] —“put on.” Adam and Eve put on something but it was the wrong thing—fig leaves. They tried to solve their problem by getting dressed. They thought that by putting on fig leaves and being correctly and socially adjusted to each other, and getting acquainted all over again, that somehow this made them right with God and this justified their existence on planet earth after they had so miserably failed. But it didn’t, and it doesn’t. When you start to see life in its true reality as a believer, and when you begin to understand what life is all about, you put on the Lord Jesus Christ and that is why you are here. You are here to put on something that solves the problems of life, i.e. the Lord Jesus Christ. Don’t try to put on fig leaves; don’t try to adjust yourselves with other members of the human race; do not try to enter into a Millennial rapport with other people, that isn’t the issue. The issue is the Lord Jesus Christ. The aorist tense is a culminative aorist, it views the advance to maturity in its entirety, for that is what it means to put on the Lord Jesus Christ. It views the daily function of GAP, advancing to maturity today, tomorrow and the next day. The culminative aorist gathers into one entirety the function of GAP but emphasizes its results. You put on the Lord Jesus Christ by taking in doctrine. Doctrine is the issue. The middle voice is the direct middle in which the believer participates in the results of the action of the verb by attaining maturity adjustment to the justice of God. The imperative mood: this is a command which is an appeal to the will or volition of the individual believer to advance to maturity. Then the accusative singular three direct objects from kurios (κύριος) [pronounced KOO-ree-oss] Iêsous (Ἰησοῦς) [pronounced ee-ay-SOOCE] Christos (χριστός) [pronounced krees-TOHSS]. “But put on the Lord Jesus Christ.” This is not to be confused with the baptism of the Spirit which occurs at the moment of salvation. This is the command to the believer in phase two. We are never commanded to get the Holy Spirit. However, put on the Lord Jesus Christ is a command. Maturity is characterized by occupation with the person of Christ.

We live in the devil’s world and everyone has a sin nature; so there will always be problems in this world.

“and make not provision for the flesh” – the word flesh/sarx (σάρξ) [pronounced sarx] refers to the old sin nature. It doesn’t say eliminate the old sin nature but instead it means rebound, the filling of the Spirit. Plus the present middle imperative of poieô (ποιέω) [pronounced poi-EH-oh] which means to work, to manufacture, to produce, to act, to do, to function. Here it means making provision. The negative mê (μή) [pronounced may] with the imperative is translated, “and stop making provision for.”

The word “provision” is prônoia (πρόνοια) [pronounced PRON-oy-ah] which meant originally “foresight, forethought,” and that is why it comes to mean provision. The present tense is a descriptive present indicating what is now going on, the direct middle in which the believer participates in the results of the action in a negative way: by avoiding carnality and having the filling of the Spirit to advance to maturity. The imperative mood plus the negative mê (μή) [pronounced may] is the imperative of prohibition: stop doing this or you will never put on the Lord Jesus Christ. Plus the objective genitive singular from the noun sarx (σάρξ) [pronounced sarx], referring to the OSN. The definite article is used as a possessive pronoun and it should be translated “for your flesh” or “your old sin nature.”

“to fulfil the lusts thereof” – the prepositional phrase, eis (εἰς) [pronounced ICE] plus the accusative plural of epithumia (ἐπιθυμία) [pronounced ep-ee-thoo-MEE-ah]. It is in the plural because lusts here are simply your distractions from doctrine. Lusts can be a crusade, your desire to straighten out the world, the country, or whatever it is you are trying to straighten out. It can be a person, a business deal, or a lot of things in life; anything that would distract from doctrine when it is time for doctrine. This is making the world a better place for our children. So it should be translated “because of lusts.” All of us are tempted to be distracted.

Romans 13:14 But put on the Lord Jesus Christ, and stop making provision for your flesh [old sin nature], because of its lusts.

Example of you spending your entire life fixing the post office and making it more efficient; and there is a book written about you; and you will go on a tour from church to church and how you managed to get us to go back to a three-cent stamp. There is a lust. “I tried to pick something that was innocuous; that we could all agree on; and something that was impossible.”

The lusts are not simply sins, the lusts are good and evil. Christianity is adaptable to any human society, under all conditions of life. Christianity is not hostile to any specific form of government, therefore it does not sponsor or recommend any specific form of government. Christianity is opposed to all evil in government or society, since evil destroys freedom, privacy, authority, property, evangelism and spiritual growth. But we are not here to correct evil, we are here to grow in grace. Only the Lord can correct evil in any generation. Christianity teaches orientation to life through respect for authority ordained by God in either the laws of divine establishment or the modus operandi of the local church. A society saturated with turbulence and anarchy should welcome Christianity as the stabilizer of that society. In addition to the pivot of mature believers, Christianity introduces honor and integrity into the life blood of the nation. Christianity is the source of divine blessing and prosperity for a nation. Without Christianity there would be no client nation to provide missionaries and evangelists for those areas of heathenism where positive volition exists. Without the free function of the local church in society life would be a jungle of anarchy and destruction, for the believer is the salt of the land. The royal family honor code is inflexible in its doctrine but flexible in its adaptation and application to life.

Lesson #417

417 05/24/1978 Romans 14 Intro. R. E. Lee's letter on slavery; definition of weak and strong believer; moral courage; self-justification

Bob returns to the book on Stonewall Jackson.

The slaves could not simply be freed. They were not ready for this. Some were shipped to Liberia.

Chapter 14

The strong believer

The strong believer is defined as that member of the royal family of God who has attained maturity adjustment to the justice of God through maximum doctrine in his soul and spirit. The strong believer is a mature believer who not only has maximum doctrine resident in his soul but has constructed most of his norms and standards in his conscience on that doctrine. The strong believer is not functioning on a false system of modus operandi, he is functioning under the royal family honor code. From his ambassadorship he produces maximum production.

The weak believer

The weak believer must never be confused with the new believer. A new believer is not a weak believer, he is simply a baby spiritually. The new believer is ignorant of doctrine because he was recently saved, but being positive he learns. The weak believer, on the other hand, is weak because he has rejected doctrine, because he is indifferent to doctrine, because he is apathetic to doctrine, and he fails to distinguish between the functions of the royal priesthood and the royal ambassador. The weak believer is working for divine blessing, therefore he is either legalistic or antinomian. He is weak because he has not moral courage and no doctrinal standards. The weak believer has abused grace and distorted the plan of God into licence on the one hand or self-righteousness on the other hand, both of which are wrong.

There is a teacher in a nearby school who is maligning Berachah Church.

The key is don't get sidetracked from Bible doctrine.

Many people back off from physical violence; and it is not fear; it is common sense.

One believer can be on one side and one on the other, but the true choice is in the middle.

Lesson #418

418 05/25/1978 Romans 14:1 Henderson: secession of the South; weak vs. strong believer re essentials and opinions

Bob is still reading from Henderson's book. The south held that each state was a nation to itself; and the north had determined the, whatever the majority wanted, that is what they got. Secession was a protest against mob rule.

Stonewall Jackson was a great man, but he was a plodder, showing that he could do the works of genius (where he was not). The southerner was not easily moved. But they were not forced into sedition against their will.

So far, Virginia had not shown any sign of sympathy toward the southern states, but as the federal government had no jurisdiction within the states, the federal government had no right to put troops at Fort Sumpter.

Do Not Pass Judgment on One Another

Romans 14:1 Now receive the one being weak in the faith, not for passing judgment on reasonings. (BLB)

Verse 1 – “Him that is weak in the faith receive ye” begins with the postpositive conjunctive particle de, used here as a transitional particle. It indicates that the last verse in the last chapter is merely a transition to this particular subject. It is translated “now.” Next is the articular present active participle from astheneō (ἀσθενέω) [pronounced as-then-EH-oh] which means to be weak or to be deficient or to be powerless. Actually, it means here to be weak because one is deficient: deficient in accurate information, i.e. Bible doctrine. The definite article is used as a demonstrative pronoun and is translated “that one”—“Now that one who.” Then the present tense of the participle, retroactive progressive present, denoting something that is begun in the past [lack of doctrine] and continues into the present [negative volition toward doctrine], resulting in arrogance and being opinionated about the non-essentials. The active voice: the weak believer of the reversionist produces the action of the verb. The participle is circumstantial. “Now that one who is weak.”

Then the locative of sphere singular from the noun pistis (πίστις) [pronounced PIHS-tihs]. There are three categories of connotation: a) Pistis (πίστις) [pronounced PIHS-tihs] means non-meritorious perception, and as such in the active sense it means faith, trust, confidence; b) An attribute. Pistis (πίστις) [pronounced PIHS-tihs] often means as an attribute faithfulness and reliability; c) The one that is the most neglected but here is a case where it applies—and in many other places, like Hebrews 11—to doctrine, i.e. that which is believed, the body of belief. So we translate it “doctrine.” The locative of sphere helps us to understand who and what is the weak believer. Generally speaking the weak believer is negative toward doctrine, therefore minus doctrine, and he must not be confused with a growing believer. There is a definite article, generic use, also in the locative—“in the doctrine,” it regards Bible doctrine as representing a category distinct from all other categories.

Principle

1. The weak believer is an ignorant reversionist. He has rejected Bible doctrine and has accepted some background substitute. His norms and standards are not based on doctrine but on his background, his environment, his academic training, his system of static admiration. Whomever he admires, he has accepted their norms and standards.
2. In Rome there were two background substitutes. Some of the Roman believers had the background of Judaism and were therefore very legalistic. Others had come out of the heathenism of the Roman empire and they reacted to heathenism without being stabilized by doctrine resident in the soul. The weak Gentiles were therefore generally hypersensitive and had a tendency to set up taboos against anything related to heathenism. Their application was too far ahead of their doctrine so that they were inflexible in their taboos but very flexible about their doctrine, in fact indifferent.
3. Hence, many forms of controversy existed with regard to food, wine, and the observation of holy days.
4. Some emphasized taboos about eating and drinking and some had no scruples with regard to these taboos, so that there was a great deal of controversy in Rome over what in reality were the non-essentials.
5. Some emphasized strict observance of holy days. Others who had more doctrine made a different application, e.g. regarding every day alike.
6. These differences of opinion were not serious, except for lack of doctrine and pack of application of the royal family honor code.
7. Without doctrine differences of opinion produce strife and schism.
8. Weak believers were arrogantly sponsoring their opinions without regard for doctrine or the privacy of others who differ with them.
9. So great was the controversy in Rome that Paul must apply the royal family honor code to the solution. In solving their problem with the royal family honor code he solved problems among Christians in our own time.
10. The weak believers have made false issues of food and drink; and believers in Rome would be at odds with one another over things which are nonessential.

“receive ye” – present middle imperative from proslambánō (προσλαμβάνω) [pronounced pros-lam-BAHN-oh] which means to take to one’s self, to take as a companion and therefore to associate, to receive or accept into your society. The customary present denotes what is reasonably expected to occur when the royal family honor code is applied and in function. The middle voice is an indirect middle emphasizing the agent as producing the action rather than participating in the result. The imperative is imperative of command.

Since the definite article is in the accusative case it is the direct object, and it is translated “now accept that one who is weak [or, feeble] in the doctrine.”

Principle

1. The weak believer must not be confused with the new believer. A weak believer is both negative and ignorant of doctrine, though saved for years. His emphasis is on production or on some system of self-righteousness. He has no emphasis on doctrine and no toleration of people who are interested in doctrine.
2. The weak believer is a reversionist whose criterion is emotion. He lives by prejudice and ethics rather than doctrine, is strong in scruples but feeble in doctrine.
3. The weak believer is a consistent violator of the royal family honor code. His violations are simple: a) He rejects the privacy of the royal priesthood and sticks his nose in everyone else’s business; b) He tries to receive blessing from God and gain blessing from God through production, legitimate or legalistic; c) He does not know the difference between personal and impersonal love, therefore is totally ignorant of the whole concept of “love thy neighbor as thyself” or “love the brethren.”
4. The weak believer is both legalistic and critical of all who do not share his legalism. He is emotional, often mentally unstable, which makes it easier for him to become opinionated and dogmatic about the non-essentials.
5. Furthermore, the weak believer is ego-sensitive. He demands attention, is easily moved to self-pity, and is frustrated by lack of attention. He very easily moves into inordinate competition and inordinate ambition.
6. The weak believer is not interested in the teaching of doctrine but is arrogantly forceful about his personal opinions, experiences and prejudices; and through legalistic bullying he seeks to superimpose his false standards on other believers. This means he becomes prying, meddlesome, a troublemaker, having no respect for authority in the local church, for doctrine, and obviously no respect for the freedom of the believer which is associated with privacy and property.

Next is the negative mê (μή) [pronounced may], but no conjunction; there is no “but” here. There are two basic negative adverbs, mê (μή) [pronounced may] and ou (οὐ) [pronounced oo]. The latter is used with the indicative, the former is used with the subjunctive, the imperative, the infinitive, and sometimes with the participle. The negative ou (οὐ) [pronounced oo] denies the fact, the negative mê (μή) [pronounced may] denies the idea—“not.” Then a prepositional phrase, eis (εἰς) [pronounced ICE] plus the accusative plural of diakrisij, meaning differentiation or quarrel—“but not for the purpose of getting into quarrels.” Then a genitive of reference plural from a noun, dialogismos (διαλογισμός) [pronounced dee-al-og-is-MOSS], “opinions.” As a genitive of reference plural it is translated “about opinions.” In other words, the non-essentials.

Romans 14:1 Now receive that one who is weak [in the doctrine], but not for the purpose of getting into quarrels about opinions.

Principle

1. All believers enter into the Christian way of life with preconceived opinions which are not compatible with the standards set for them in Bible doctrine.
2. The strong believer is the mature believer. He is commanded to accept the weak believer who has opinions without doctrine, who emphasizes the non-essentials instead of the essentials and is very flexible about the essentials. So it is the strong believer who is commanded to accept the weak believer into the society of the royal family without making an issue out of his false opinions.
3. The weak believer is entitled to the same privacy as the strong believer.
4. Therefore do not make an issue of his erroneous opinions which will be corrected in due time by doctrine, if he is positive. If he is not the Lord will discipline him, not you.
5. While the weak believer must be accepted no issue should be made of his false doctrine, his legalism, under the royal family honor code principle of the privacy of the royal priesthood.
6. Privacy of the priesthood gives each believer with his own brand of sins, his false doctrines, his erroneous and inaccurate opinions, the same opportunity to learn doctrine and to be corrected from the Word as you have.
7. This means that there is no place for dialogue in teaching doctrine. It also means that quarrels and debates is excluded from Christian fellowship by the royal family honor code.
8. The weak believer is legalistic, self-righteous, opinionated, ignorant of doctrine. He must learn doctrine to have the standards which are compatible with the Word of God and the plan of God. The strong believer has maximum knowledge of doctrine and is often tempted to correct or to bicker with the weak believer instead of permitting the normal course of Bible teaching to correct the weak believer.
9. The weak believer will take doctrine taught from the pulpit and accept it in correcting his false opinions.
10. But for a strong believer to try to correct those opinions is an intrusion into the privacy of the weak believer and a violation of the honor code.
11. Strong believers are tempted to intrude on the privacy of the weak and quarrel with him about his silly views. This verse says in effect, Leave the driving to us." Doctrine must be taught from the pulpit for the benefit of all under the principle of the privacy of the priesthood. In this way the approach to doctrine is objective rather than subjective.
12. To debate your opinion against the opinion of another creates an atmosphere of subjectivity without authority, without discipline, and therefore no doctrine is learned. Instead, strife replaces spiritual growth in the body of Christ. The weak believer reacts to argumentation, even though the strong believer may be right. His reaction is two-fold. He becomes antagonistic toward the strong believer and since he can't meet his arguments with doctrine he tries to put him down by judging, maligning, by creating false issues, e.g. "You seem to know a lot of doctrine but your life stinks."

Strife and bickering destroys objectivity in the church.

Romans 14:1 Now receive that one who is weak [in the doctrine], but not for the purpose of getting into quarrels about opinions.

Principle

1. The weak are to be received, not for the purpose of judging their opinions but for the purpose of learning Bible doctrine.
2. The strong do not receive the weak for the purpose of bullying them or intruding on their privacy, nor do the weak reciprocate by judging the strong.
3. In the congregation of the local church both strong and weak believers live side by side in the congregation for the purpose of perception of doctrine which is the only way to glorify the Lord Jesus Christ.
4. Objectivity and academic discipline are destroyed by strife between the weak and the strong.
5. The weak and strong are at different stages of growth but all require doctrine. Somewhat different from the Corinthians and the Galatians the weak believers here are not so much reversionistic as ignorant of doctrine.
6. The weak do not seem to be negative toward doctrine, except as they are distracted or led astray by their background norms. Therefore they are ignorant and doctrine must be the issue.
7. Therefore the pastor must control the congregation rather than weak or strong believers dominating the congregation.
8. Not only must the pastor teach doctrine but he must enforce that part of the honor code dealing with the privacy of the royal priesthood.
9. All believers have strong opinions from background inculcation and under the privacy of the priesthood these opinions must not be forced on others.
10. The privacy of the priesthood demands the principle of live and let live.

We have a lot of opinions about various things like Yankees; but there are a lot of Yankees in Berachah Church. Bob describes Yankees saying, "YEH!" to their mothers; and they just need some doctrine.

Some people will have obnoxious habits for maybe 20 years, but you just get used to being next to them. People are at Berachah to get doctrine, and what they wear is their business.

Lesson #419

419 05/26/1978 Romans 14:2 Training; German General staff; flexibility; weak and strong believers re food and beverage taboos

Like soldiers in training, we are in training to go into spiritual battle. There are shades of grey to be found in flexible in application; and inflexibility when it comes to essentials. How dare any mature believer back off from a weak believer with food taboos who think it is wrong to eat meat or to sip wine offered to an idol.

You need to have an officer right with you; and that is doctrine in your soul. You might be right in principle, but wrong in application.

The other problem in the military is professionalism.

We need to be sensitive toward other believers; and not hypersensitive about our own feelings.

Romans 14:2 Indeed, one believes to eat all things; but the one being weak eats vegetables. (BLB)

Verse 2 – “For one believeth that he may eat all things.” In the Attic Greek structure we have affirmative correlative particles, men and de. Men = on the one hand; de = on the other hand. The affirmative particle men introduces the strong believer, in contrast to the affirmative particle de introducing the weak believer. A contrast is set up. There is no word for “for” – gar. Instead there is the nominative singular from the relative pronoun hos (ὅς) [pronounced hohç], used as a demonstrative pronoun referring to a special category of believer. Believers have to be categorized because no two believers are equal in their advance and in their growth. Mature believers with doctrine, believers who have enough doctrine resident in the soul to have advanced to maturity, are in view here. So we translate, “On the one hand one.”

When Paul became excited, he often defaults to Classical Greek.

Drinking alcoholic beverage was extremely common in the ancient world. Only the Nazarites did not drink alcohol. Also, they would not cut their hair until their vow had been met.

Example of a woman who would go and talk to men about smoking in the parking lot. She could have this position; but she cannot impose it on others.

Inflexibility in the wrong place is weakness; inflexibility in the right place is strength.

We allow everyone to take in doctrine. Whether your own standards are good or bad are not the issue.

The best food was the meat which has been offered to idols. But some just did not want to eat any of that because it had been offered to an idol. This issue is not your background; or the way that you were oriented to life. The issue is Bible doctrine.

The mature believer is inflexible in the essentials and he has maximum doctrine. But on the non-essentials he is flexible, and his flexibility is manifest by generalities. He believes that he may eat all things. Then the present active indicative of the verb pisteúō (πιστεύω) [pronounced pis-TOO-oh] which means to believe and also to be convinced of something. This is a customary present tense, it denotes what habitually occurs in application of doctrine in the life of the mature believer, or believers who positive volition toward doctrine has given them enough pertinent information for application to the food taboo problem. The active voice: either the mature believer or the positive and advancing believer produces the action of the verb. The indicative mood is declarative for the historical reality of making a correct application. Plus the aorist active infinitive of the verb phagô (φάγω) [pronounced FAG-oh] which means to eat and includes the connotation of drinking, even though there is a separate word when only drinking is in view. The separate verb is pinô/piô/poô (πίνω/πίω/πόω) [pronounced PEE-noh/PEE-oh/POH-oh], but it is not used here because we are talking about food and beverage together. The constative aorist is used for a fact or an action which extends over a period of time, i.e. spiritual advance to maturity through perception of doctrine. The constative aorist contemplates the action of the verb in its entirety—from the time that you reach maturity or learn this doctrine and for the rest of your life in the varying stages of maturity you believe that you may eat all things. The active voice: the mature believer/positive believer produces the action. This is the infinitive of conceived result, that which follows the nature of the case or is assumed as a consequence. Then the accusative neuter direct object from the adjective pás (πάς) [pronounced pahs] referring to food and beverage.

Bob cannot stand milk. “Down with milk; you offend me by drinking milk.”

This conviction is based on application learned in Bible class in a local church. It is the application of the believer who has become strong through consistent perception of doctrine. Hence, this is the view of the strong believer with regard to food and beverage taboos.

Some have been coming to Berachah Church to hear something from Bob that gives them permission to do something, and they can hardly wait to do it.

“another, who is weak, eateth herbs” – a classification of the weak believer, de is translated this time “on the other hand,” with the definite article and the articular present active participle from astheneô (ἀσθενέω) [pronounced as-then-EH-oh]. The definite article is used as a demonstrative pronoun designating the second category which is the weak believer. The weak believer is strong in his opinions, strong in his application—inflexible, in fact, but he is minus doctrine and full of his own self-importance. To him it is black or white in everything in life, and you do it his way or he puts all the pressure he can on you: he does everything he can to make you feel uncomfortable. “on the other hand, that one because of weakness.” The retroactive progressive present in the participle denotes what is begun in the past and continues into the present time. This believer has no doctrine in the past, resulting in weakness, and he lives by his background, the inculcation of his environment. Doctrine is not the basis for his application. The active voice: the weak believer produces the action of the verb, being weak through legalism. The participle is a causal participle, it denotes that which is the ground for the action of the main verb. Weakness is a lack of doctrine and resultant reversionism. The weak or reversionistic believer has strong opinions which run the gamut from totally erroneous to innocuous. Weakpeople always have strong opinions which not only violate the honor code but are totally incompatible with the plan of God. Then the present active indicative of esthiô (ἐσθίω) [pronounced es-THEE-oh]. The descriptive present indicates what is now going on, or it might be described as a pictorial present, bringing to the mind a picture of events in the process of occurrence. What is being eaten is from the accusative plural direct object of laxnon, which is mistranslated "herbs." It means vegetables. It is derived from the verb laxainw which means to dig in a garden. The active voice: the reversionistic believer with a trend toward legalism produces the action of the verb. He is weak because of insufficient doctrine, and the insufficiency of doctrine in his soul results from negative volition toward doctrine, apathy toward doctrine, indifference, hostility, whatever it may be. The declarative indicative is used for an accurate description of this weak believer and his legalism.

Romans 14:2 On the one hand the one category [mature believer] believers holds the opinion that he may eat all things; on the other hand, the weak believer [because of weakness] eats only vegetables.

Principle

1. Both ascetic and legalistic reversionism is characterized by self-righteousness. One derives a certain righteous stimulation from not eating meat offered to idols, or not eating those things forbidden by the Levitical code of the Mosaic law.
2. Without doctrine perceived and resident in the soul the weak believer is victimised by legalism and various food and beverage taboos.
3. Lack of doctrine in the soul means malfunction of the honor code and the superimposition of false standards on self and on others.
4. Superimposition is both bullying and a violation of the royal priesthood which is a basic tenet of the honor code.
5. In anticipation of the next verse, the weak believer or the reversionistic believer judges, maligns and criticises the believer who does not share his standards and his taboos.
6. The privacy of the royal priesthood is one of the basic tenets of the honor code.
7. But only the believer who is positive toward doctrine, advancing to maturity, or has attained maturity, actually fulfils the doctrine of the privacy of the priesthood and the accompanying imperative of the honor code which is love of the brethren. This verse establishes the fact that there is a great difference between the modus vivendi of the strong and weak believer based on adherence to or violation of the royal family honor code.

Lesson #420

420 05/28/1978 Romans 14:3 Intro. "Stonewall"; movie "Tunes of Glory"; moral cf. physical courage; military and business; taboos vs. privacy

This is one of Bob's favorite movies. Physical courage cannot replace moral courage. A man who cannot control himself cannot control his troops.

We tolerate the weak believer, who maligns us, who denigrates us; but we do not seek revenge. We tolerate this person; you give him his privacy, even though he tries to destroy your privacy.

Love your neighbor as yourself does not mean that you love him the same way that you love yourself. It means that you love him on the basis of Bible doctrine in your soul.

The weak believer is negative toward doctrine; he must rely upon human viewpoint thinking in order to develop his own standards. His standards are false and so are his applications. Troops cannot be controlled without inculcated discipline.

The confederate soldier did pretty much what he felt like doing rather than following the orders of their officers.

We only have the right to be professional in our realm of discipline. No doctor should be involved in pushing some political thing. Great scientists who have done so much in their profession, that they have the right to be critical in other areas.

Bob is changing his mind about Eisenhower and believes that he might have been the right person for the job.

Being a police officer today demands moral courage. The police officer today cannot shoot the criminal. He must restrain, he must think; he must be absolutely courageous. This is the most difficult profession to be in today; and second to that is to be an army officer.

Douglas MacArthur was more faithful to his oath than every other man. MacArthur was faced with more problems and more politics. Billy Mitchell was being tried; and the court marshal was not fair. It became an affair of the press, which introduced a new aspect. MacArthur was the only one to vote not guilty.

MacArthur is on an extremely high level; and those below do not understand it.

Bob thinks of Zumwald in the Navy, a man who was much maligned. He had great moral courage. His objectives were to hold the Navy together.

Antinomianism is just as bad as legalism. Both are on opposite sides.

Capitalism requires the maximum amount of moral courage.

There is no moral courage in unionism. If you don't like the situation, quite and let someone take your place. People in unions do not build great companies. To take a stand by not taking a stand is too difficult for the weak believer.

It was okay for someone to not eat meat offered to idols; but this would be an act for himself alone. Others were not to have this superimposed upon them.

Both opinions can be wrong. The strong and the weak believer together.

Principles Continued

1. The weak believer in refusing to eat meat has become a vegetarian on the basis of religious legalism and not dietary scruples. It is all right if he wants to be a vegetarian, but he wants to make all Christians vegetarians, and if they do not comply then he wants to persecute them.
2. To be a vegetarian for dietary reasons is not only permissible but there's nothing wrong, immoral or evil about it. But to be a vegetarian for the purpose of gaining divine approbation is ridiculous. If you try to impose that on other believers you are not only wrong but are morally weak.
3. The subjective, self-righteous, hypersensitive and arrogant conscience of the weak believer possesses legalistic and reversionistic standards which are not the issue in either relationship with the Lord or fellowship with another believer.
4. While Christian fellowship allows for both the privacy of the priesthood and differences of opinion, the weak believer becomes a bully seeking to impose his legalistic opinions on others.
5. Ascetic taboos and legalistic observation of diet and holy days is not necessary for Christian fellowship.
6. Agreement on life style or diet, or the observation of days, is not necessary for Christian fellowship and therefore the royal family honor code becomes essential in our association with other believers, as well as living one's life as unto the Lord.
7. Because is engendered by both strong and weak believer in their clash of opinions it becomes necessary to point out the mental attitude failure of the strong believer and the verbal failure of the weak believer who is critical and wrong in judging the strong believer.
8. Disagreement in non-essentials should never destroy Christian fellowship.
9. Non-essentials originate from either legalism or antinomianism. The strong believer has no right to react to either as he moves right down the right path.

Bob knows a preacher who superimposes his ideas about physical fitness over his small congregation in Texas. He has no academic standards. This pastor is one of the worst lying foreflusher that Bob has ever seen. Bullying people is a bad thing; lack of respect for ladies is also a distortion.

Mothers have a right to make their children eat vegetables.

We can have kinds of differences in application; and we can disagree about a lot of things in life.

There is no such thing as a perfect person; that is our starting point. None of us will be perfect in this life. In the meantime, we have to live together as family of God. Because we are not perfect, we have an honor code which holds us together.

1977 Romans

Lesson #421

421 05/28/1978 Romans 14:3a Predictions vs. Bible doctrine; Emory Upton, German general staff and Elihu Root; occupational hazards

A magazine by the name of Free Enterprise and an editor by the name of Patrick H. Gerrard. 14 predictions between 1978–1980. “Suppose you know someone who could predict things in the future? Let me tell you about the magazine Free Enterprise.” He offers some predictions: (1) the coming 6 months will be poka dot prosperity. (2) The economy turns sour beginning in 1978, inflation sores to double digit levels and Carter’s popularity fails. (3) Communist regimes. (5) $275 ounce gold. (6) Collapse of some banks; and third world nations collapsing. (7) Dow Jones below 600 and then 500. More predictions: Egyptian will sign an agreement with Israel and then later they will invade Kuwait. $1/gallon gas within two years. Hijack of nuclear weapon. Russia will be dominant power by the end of the decade. NYC will be declared legally bankrupt. Scores of government pension plans will run out of money.

People are aroused to great interest. When a pastor or an evangelist makes some predictions, there will be crowds of people who have developed a taste for these things. Even though the Bible is filled with prophecy, predicting the immediate future or the whenever. The Bible is designed to prepare us for the next day and the day after that. The Bible is designed to prepare us for disaster and for prosperity. Even if this man is 100% correct, what has he actually prepared you for? Even perfect environment will not make you happy or content. Prophecy is not for weirdos.

Bible allows you to appreciate today and prepare for whatever happens tomorrow.

There are occupational hazards for the weak believer and the strong believer.

Romans 14:3 The one eating, let him not despise the one not eating; and the one not eating, let him not judge the one eating, for God has received him. (BLB)

Verse 3 – how both opinions can become violations of the royal family honor code.

“Let not him that eateth despise him that eateth not” – this begins with the articular present active participle from the verb esthiô (ἐσθίω) [pronounced es-THÉE-oh]. The customary present tense denotes what habitually occurs with the strong/mature believer. The active voice: the strong/mature believer produces the action of the verb. He operates under the law of liberty, under the freedom which belongs to the privacy of the priesthood. Therefore he eats anything or everything, he is not hung up or hamstrung by the various taboos of the self-righteous legalist. Nor is he drawn out into antinomianism which is equally wrong. The participle is circumstantial.

The third person singular present active imperative follows, the verb is exoutheneô (ἐξουθενέω) [pronounced ex-oo-then-EH-oh] which means to despise, treat with contempt, reject with contempt. Plus the negative mê (μή) [pronounced may] which with the present imperative means to stop doing something that you are doing. Because of his maximum understanding of doctrine he has a tendency to treat with contempt the weak believer who is ignorant of doctrine, who is operating on the false norms and standards from his background, and therefore does not understand or appreciate the situation as it really exists. He is not oriented to true spiritual reality. “He who eats, let him stop treating with contempt.” The present tense denotes continuous action or linear aktionsart. The prohibition in the present imperative demands that the action which is in progress be discontinued. The active voice: the strong/mature believer is commanded to stop the action. The strong believer generally can distinguish between essential and non-essential. He understands that doctrine is the essential and that application of doctrine demands a certain amount of flexibility. He is inflexible about doctrine but he is flexible about the non-essential. The imperative mood is the imperative of prohibition, with the negative mê (μή) [pronounced may] meaning cease and desist.

The weak believer tends to violate the privacy of others; the strong believer tends to violate the love principle.

Then, “him that eateth not” is the accusative direct object, present active participle from esthiô (ἐσθίω) [pronounced es-THÉE-oh] plus the negative. It means the one who is weak has made erroneous application but it is not important. This is a person who is inflexible in application, and flexible in the essential—doctrine. The strong believer looks at this person and departs from his own norms and standards and lowers himself to be contemptuous and intolerant of the weak believer who has false norms and standards from his background. The strong believer has accurate norms and standards; but he departs from these norms and standards to be antagonistic with the weak believer. The very thing a person despises is that which the strong person adopts.

Robert E. Lee never did this. He maintained the highest possible norms and standards. He never succumbed to pettiness. He is the greatest of the general in the war except for one Yankee officer, possibly the greatest genius of the war. Most of us don't even know his name. Emory Upton graduated from West point in 1861 and assigned to the 4th something artillery; a major general by age 24. This no fluke, as it was with George Armstrong Custer. At 25, he handled a division with ease.

He was, after the war, put out in a place with little to do. He wrote 3 treatises while he was there. Had brain cancer and he ended his own life.

Elihu Root began to look through military papers. He came across Upton's treatises, and he finally got it through, after being held back. This was all about how to run a war. Institutionalized genius. The only person to even think about it was Upton. Generals must have great moral courage; and no longer demonstrate physical courage. Germans use their brains rather than their brawn. A general needs to have moral courage and his ability to control. Emory Upton anticipated future warfare. A lieutenant guides the fire; and he guides this from behind, not from in front. The Germans adopted this in 1914 and then again in 1940.

The mature believer is neither ahead of his time or behind his time. He is right on time for the angelic conflict. Sooner or later, it is not our physical strength that will carry us, it will be our spiritual strength that makes all of the difference. Doctrine gives you a different perspective in life; and you oil up the brains.

Bob had a meeting with a Pacific Coast pastor. It was over one-armed pushups. Bob used to do great feats of strength in the past; and those who were impressed by it are nowhere today. We all need to make a transition to doctrine. Many people can be carried by physical strength for awhile, but we need mental strength.

King Kong nickname for guy Bob knew; and he was fantastic in the service. But it never occurred to him to develop his soul. He could not get away from this narcissistic thing. His brute strength was unbelievable. He made his great body his #1 priority. The priority needs to be Bible doctrine. We understand that God is going to keep us alive no matter what, until our time is done. When God gives us a day, He intends for us to spend it on the right priorities. To the priorities which count.

Being spiritually snobbish is inflexibility failure. This happens to the mature believer.

The Weak and the Strong Believer Part I

1. The occupational hazard of the mature believer is arrogance related to his superior knowledge of doctrine. He looks down his nose at the weak believer.
2. He regards with contempt the weak believer who is saturated with legalistic taboos or antinomian hang-ups.
3. While the weak believer is the spiritual bully the strong believer in his arrogance regards with contempt his antagonist who is the weak believer.
4. The problem with both the strong and the weak believer in this verse is pride, but each has an arrogance in a different sphere.
5. The arrogance of the strong believer is his superior knowledge of doctrine which impels him to regard with contempt the reversionistic legalist. However, the arrogance of the weak believer is his legalism, pride of accomplishment in the field of taboos.
6. Therefore his arrogance motivates him to judge the strong believer.
7. The result is there is strife in the royal family of God.

Romans 14:3a He who eats [mature or strong believer], let him stop regarding with contempt that one who does not eat [the weak believer who regards the taboos];...

“and let not him that eateth not judge him that eateth” – there is no conjunction kai here. There is the postpositive conjunctive particle de which is used to mark the superaddition of a clause and is translated “furthermore.” Then the articular present active participle from esthiō (ἐσθίω) [pronounced es-THEE-oh]. The definite article is used as a personal pronoun. The present tense of the participle is a customary present, it denotes what habitually occurs with the legalistic weak believer. The active voice: the believer who is legalistic/reversionistic produces the action of the verb. Generally he is a reversionist, occasionally he is positive but has not advanced beyond the baby stage of his spiritual growth. The participle is circumstantial. Translation: “furthermore he who does not eat,” a reference to the weak believer involved in this food taboo in Rome at the time of writing. Then the negative mê (μή) [pronounced may] with the present active participle of krinō (κρίνω) [pronounced KREE-no] means “stop judging.” The present tense denotes linear aktionsart, continuous action which must cease and desist. The active voice: the weak or legalistic believer produces the action, he judges the mature believer. Plus the accusative singular direct object from the definite article used as a demonstrative pronoun and translated “that one”—emphasizing the category that is being judged: the mature believer. Then again, the present active participle of esthiô (ἐσθίω) [pronounced es-THEE-oh], “who keeps on eating.”

The Weak and the Strong Believer Part II

1. The occupational hazard and besetting sin of the weak believer is judging and bullying the mature believer.
2. The weak or legalistic believer is the worst bully in the world. He is self-righteous, arrogant, petty, implacable and inflexible. He majors in the petty things of life.
3. The weak believer judges, maligns and vindictively criticizes the mature believer who must not lower himself to the legalistic standards of the weak believer by his retaliation.
4. Arrogance and jealousy is the source of his implacability toward the mature believer.
5. The problem with both the strong and the weak believer is arrogance in this matter of contempt on the part of the strong and judging on the part of the weak. Each portrays and displays a certain type of arrogance.
6. Arrogance is different for each.
7. Arrogance motivates the weak believer to judge and bully the strong believer, while arrogance motivates the strong believer to regard with contempt and snobbishness his antagonist.

Romans 14:3a He who eats [mature or strong believer], let him stop regarding with contempt that one who does not eat [the weak believer who regards the taboos]; furthermore, he who does not eat, stop judging the one eating everything [the strong believer]...

1977 Romans

Lesson #422

422 05/29/1978 Romans 14:3b–4a "Friend of God"; error of strong and weak believers to each other; household servants (This appears to be a Monday morning class)

Romans 14:3 The one eating, let him not despise the one not eating; and the one not eating, let him not judge the one eating, for God has received him. (BLB)

The weak believer can be weak because of reversionism or because he is a new believer, without time to grow much. He has a set of norms and standards based upon non-essentials. Maybe he has been influenced by a legalistic believer or from an antinomian believer. He applies the norms and standards from them or from his personal background. However, application should only be made from Bible doctrine.

The weak believer judges and maligns from his arrogance. The strong believer is guilty of intolerance and having contempt.

“for God hath received him” – the explanatory use of the postpositive conjunctive particle gar, plus the nominative singular subject theos (θεός) [pronounced theh-OSS] with the generic use of the definite article—“for the God.” The generic use of the article comprehends a category as a single whole and sets it off in distinction to all other categories.

This is followed by the aorist middle indicative from the verb proslambánō (προσλαμβάνω) [pronounced pros-lam-BAHN-oh]—“for the God had admitted into friendship.” Notice the past tense: “had admitted.” Actually it is “him,” the accusative singular direct object from the intensive pronoun autós (αὐτός) [pronounced ow-TOSS]. There is no third person personal pronoun in the Koine Greek, so the intensive pronoun is used for a personal pronoun. So the corrected translation: “for the God hath admitted him into friendship.” The aorist tense of proslambánō (προσλαμβάνω) [pronounced pros-lam-BAHN-oh] is a constative aorist, it gathers into one entirety the action of the verb, and it refers to the fact that the mature believer is a friend of God. The weak believer in judging the strong believer is judging God’s friend. The weak believer is not a friend of God. The word “friend” is used for the mature believer and no one else. Abraham was the friend of God but that is because Abraham was a mature believer. He was designated the friend of God, says the Scripture. The middle voice: the indirect middle in which the agent, the God, produces the action rather than participating in the results of the action. The indicative mood is declarative for a dogmatic statement of doctrine, i.e. the strong believer/mature believer is the friend of God. A.T. Robertson: “God took both sides into His fellowship without requiring that they be vegetarians or meat-eaters.” Friendship is technical here, referring to a mature believer.

Romans 14:3 He who eats [mature or strong believer], let him stop regarding with contempt that one who does not eat [the weak believer who regards the taboos]; furthermore he who does not eat [weak believer], let him stop judging that one who keeps on eating everything; for the God has admitted him into friendship.

Weak and Strong Believers Principle #3

1. The weak believer from arrogance, through judging and maligning, becomes a spiritual bully destroying the privacy of the royal priesthood and thereby violating the royal family honor code.
2. The false standards of legalism are in total opposition to the privacy of the royal priesthood which is a major part of the royal family honor code.
3. God has not only received the strong believer but He has received him into friendship, a technical term for maturity. The strong believer is being maligned and persecuted by the weak believer.
4. The last phrase in this sentence, “for the God has admitted him into friendship,” is technical all the way, and it does not imply that Jesus is a friend of every believer. The reversionistic believer is said to be the enemy of the cross and the enemy of God. He is saved and in permanent relationship with God but he is still His enemy. Relationship is based on life. You have to be looking at life from the viewpoint of God, and if you are you are God’s friend.

5. Because the mature believer is the friend of God he looks with contempt on the weak believer who is usually legalistic or antinomian. The weak believer is not the friend of God; the weak believer is the enemy of God—Philippians 3:18; James 4:4.
6. However, the strong believer is the friend of God—2Chronicles 20:7; James 2:23; Exodus 33:11. We must have doctrine in our human spirit and in our souls. That is what makes us strong believers.
7. The weak believer is out of order, he is a violator of the royal family honor code, he intrudes upon the privacy of the priesthood by judging, maligning, criticizing the friends of God, the mature believers.

There is no kind of death which can remove human life from a person's soul.

What arrogance makes you think that you can do something to lose your salvation? The soul houses human life imputed at birth; the spirit houses eternal life imputed at the new birth. We are not commanded to get the Holy Spirit; we are only commanded to be filled for controlled by the Spirit. The left lobe is the receiving station. You can only apply Bible doctrine from your right lobe, called the heart in the Bible.

Friendship means that you share the thinking of Christ; you sit down to tea with God.

The weak believer says, "You cannot be the friend of God; you eat meat offered to idols; you violate the Sabbath."

Weak and Strong Believers Principle #4

1. The mature believer from his superior knowledge of doctrine often reacts to the legalistic bullying of the reversionist by regarding him with utter contempt.
2. The attitude of contempt is unnecessary in resisting the bullying of legalism. You can resist the bullying of the weak believer without the attitude of contempt.
3. The stupid legalist reacts against doctrine which is his only hope of advancing to spiritual maturity and glorifying the Lord in phase two.
4. The weak believer has no discernment in his blind arrogance and he fails to understand that even the mature believer is not perfect in this life.
5. His ignorance of the doctrine of hamartiology cause him to react against doctrine as if doctrine were responsible for our sins. If he had any sense he would know that the old sin nature is the source of sin, not doctrine.
6. Since doctrine is from God and God cannot sin, neither can God solicit to sin nor be the author of sin. Therefore doctrine is not the motivation for sinning. Doctrine restrains sin; but doctrine does not encourage sin. People sin because they have sin natures, not because they have doctrine.
7. So the failure of both categories in this passage (the weak and the strong believer) is not only arrogance but failure to live by the royal family honor code, which on the one hand demands the privacy of the priesthood and on the other hand demands impersonal love.

The weak believer, by direct statement or by implication, blames Bible doctrine for sinning or the motivation for sinning.

Romans 14:4 Who are you, judging another's servant? To the own master he stands or falls. And he will be upheld, for the Lord is able to uphold him. (BLB)

Verse 4 – the weak believer's honor code violation: judging in the brethren. "Who are you that judgest another man's servant?" The verse begins with the vocative singular of the personal pronoun su which is in the proleptic position. The proleptic personal pronoun should be translated "You there," it is addressing the weak believer. Then the nominative singular interrogative pronoun tís (τίς) [pronounced tihç], "You there, who are you." Plus the articular present active participle from the verb krinô (κρίνω) [pronounced KREE-no] which means to judge. The definite article is used as a relative pronoun. This is a descriptive present tense which denotes both linear aktionsart and indicates what is not occurring. The active voice: the weak or reversionistic believer produces the action of the verb. The participle is circumstantial.

Then a word which is incorrectly translated "another man's servant." This is the accusative singular direct object from the adjective allôtrios (ἄλλότριος) [pronounced al-LOT-ree-oss] which means belonging to another. But the word "servant" is a very bad translation, it is the accusative singular direct object from the noun oikétēs (οἰκέτης) [pronounced oy-KEHT-ace]. The word for slave is doulos (δούλος) [pronounced DEW-loss], but here we do not have this word, we have oikétēs (οἰκέτης) [pronounced oy-KEHT-ace] which means "a house slave." It is feminine, so it indicates primarily a female house slave and also has the implication that the female of the species just loves to judge the female of the species! Although, of course, it applies to the male as well.

Why does Paul use this word for the house slave? Because one of the worst breach of manners in the ancient world was for an outsider to be critical of someone else's house slave. A complaint about a slave was taken directly to the master, but never to the slave himself. It was considered to be ill-mannered to be critical of the house slave belonging to another person. In the Roman empire house slaves were Greeks who were equivalent of today's college professors. They taught the children in the household. There were several categories of house slaves.

Being a servant or being a waiter are great professions. It is not degrading to be a slave or to be a servant. Most of you are free, there is no way that Bob will ever be free. He is not our slave but he is the Lord's slave.

When the Bible was written, there was a system of manners which people adhered to. There was one thing a person was never to do--you never criticize the slave of a household where you lived permanently or temporarily. You could speak to the master or to the woman of the house about the slave; but you did not criticize the slave directly.

One thing you can count on is, the weak believer has poor manners. The weak believers maligned and criticizes and judges.

The doctrine below was barely begun in this lesson. So it will be viewed in total in the next.

1977 Romans

Lesson #423

423 05/29/1978 Romans 14 Equality; self-criticism; house slave; occupational hazard of weak and strong believers; doctrine of sins of the tongue

The Pacific Traffic magazine. "Freedom will perish with equality." These are comments from a speech, not from an American but one who understands Americana. He recommends that he hold onto freedom. Freedom perishes with equality, as has been shown in totalitarian countries.

Another topic of bewilderment is your excessive self-criticism. You have the greatest companies and unparalleled products. Self-criticism is one of the fundamental communist brainwashing techniques. This was used very successfully in the Korean War against the prisoners of war.

Even common sense teaches that this is destructive of morale.

The house slave was a great concept. The tutor was the highest slave. Most education was conducted in the privacy of the home. Children received this training at home. There would be a wine steward, butler, chefs, and the accountant. Many Romans had intricate estates; but slaves handled the financial affairs of the estates.

One of the things never to do, is to be critical of a house slave. You do not talk about that house slave to others; nor do you criticize the house slave directly.

Romans 14:4 Who are you, judging another's servant? To the own master he stands or falls. And he will be upheld, for the Lord is able to uphold him. (BLB)

House Slave Principles

1. It was considered ill-mannered to criticize house slaves belonging to another person. You never criticize the slave of someone else. This is the background for this verse. This is why we do not malign, judge or speak against other believers. Every believer is a domestic slave. We have been bought with a price. The master is the Lord Jesus Christ.
 - a. Exception: Parents have the right to judge their own children.
 - b. Exception: Employers have the right to evaluate their workers.
 - c. The pastor has the right to judge under certain circumstances. Sometimes people need to be thrown out of a church.
2. There were a variety of slaves:
 - a. Those who cooked.
 - b. Those who knew the wines.
 - c. Those who were tutors for the children.

3. Sometimes, the slaves were smarter than their masters.
4. Household servants are not second class citizens. In Beverly Hills, they were loved and cherished as a member of the family. They were always well-treated and many of them lived better than some of you.
5. In the antebellum south, they were cherished, protected and cared for.
6. (Actually point #2; as the previous points were covered in the previous lesson). No one punished another man's slaves. This was a breach of etiquette also and unprecedented poor manners. You could find yourself in court for disciplining another person's slave.
7. This custom of the ancient world is used by the apostle Paul under the ministry of the holy Spirit to illustrate the principle of this phrase. Every believer in this context is a house slave. This means that we do not have the right to malign, to gossip, to judge, to be vindictively critical of another believer.
 - a. The parallel is, you do not get to judge other believers; that is left up to God.
 - b. Two exceptions: Parents have the right to judge and discipline their children and to superimpose their own standards on their children.
 - c. And the pastor of the local church has the right to judge and to be critical of those who violate this principle, and to excommunicate them from the congregation so that privacy of the priesthood might be restored and objectivity toward Bible teaching might continue.
8. The legalistic reversionist is a spiritual bully seeking to impose his inferior and evil standards on the grace-oriented mature believer.
9. But the mature believer refuses to be bullied into legalism and tabooism, therefore the frustrated weak believer resorts to retaliation and revenge tactics which violate the royal family honor code.
10. The specific violation is rejection of the privacy of the royal priesthood under the principle of life: live and let live, which is both an establishment principle and a spiritual principle.
11. Every believer is the Lord's domestic slave. We are slaves in the household of the Lord forever.
12. As household slaves all believers are under the authority of the justice of God, and God has not delegated that authority to the weak or the legalistic believer. God has not delegated that authority to anyone.
13. Therefore the weak believer is presumptuous and blasphemous in his modus operandi of judging, maligning, and criticizing another believer, for that believer is not under his jurisdiction but the Lord's.
14. The weak believer can only gain strength by discrediting the strong or mature believer, or bringing the strong believer under his direct control through legalistic bullying. The mature believer must not succumb to the bullying of the weak believer, but at the same time he must not distract the weak believer from doctrine.
15. Through judging the weak believer the weak (strong?) believer weakens himself, and subjects himself to great discipline and punitive action from the justice of God.
16. In conclusion, the honor code demands that we lay off house slaves who belong to another. All believers are house slaves who belong to another.

If you have authority in a business, you must evaluate those who are below you. If you are in the military with any rank, you will must evaluate them as well. If you have any kind of authority, then you deal with them from your position of authority.

Being a believer does not give you any privileges in life or in a business or in the military.

Bob has had believers try to take advantage of him. You have policy, and if they violate your policy, you deal with them.

This is a problem. Many of you ladies have married a believer who is a jackass. He is still your lord and master. And your jackass husband picked up this point and that is the only point that he has picked up in a year. You can take your case before the throne of grace and you will get results. The Lord will answer that prayer and if this man is a monster, God will deal with him.

Principle #2

1. Under the tyranny of the weak everyone is weak.
2. Under the rulership of the justice of God everyone is strong.
3. The difference between the strong and weak is not only Bible doctrine resident in the soul and adherence to the royal family honor code through the filling of the Spirit, but recognizing that we can only be strong by means of each believer living his own life as unto the Lord and not to another. Strength comes from doctrine but you can only be strong by applying the doctrine that you know. You are never strong when you apply the doctrine someone else knows.
4. We have not been left behind after salvation to please men, we have been left behind to please the Lord.
5. Freedom is based on living under the freedom of the proper authority, i.e. the justice of God.
6. Essentially, love of the brethren is the recognition of the privacy of the priesthood whereby every believer is free to live his life as unto the Lord by the Lord's standards. That freedom does not give you the right to stick your nose into other people's business.
7. Love of the brethren, then, is a total freedom from mental attitude sins which motivates to judge other believers, seeking to place them under the tyranny of legalism, false standards and non-essential mores.
8. It is arrogance to presume divine authority and judge another believer in the family of God, a house slaves responsible to the justice of God and not to the whims of legalism.
9. Therefore, loving the brethren is not only freedom from mental attitude sins toward others but the resistance of temptation to judge, to malign, to criticize, to gossip about other believers.

10. Loving the brethren is the positive side of the honor code which in grace allows the privacy of the priesthood, adheres to the principle of live and let live, and respects God's righteousness in another believer.

There were some weak believers at Berachah bullying others (other weak believers) in the name of counseling. Do not ever let someone else apply the doctrine that they know to your situation.

Weirdos always like to tell others what to do; or set policy for the church. We tolerate them. What we like and dislike in this life are not issues at all.

Principle #3

1. It is noted from the previous verse that the nomenclature 'strong' is not unconditional praise and approbation. The word 'strong' in this context is not unconditional praise in approbation, nor is the word 'weak' unconditional reproach and condemnation.
2. Both strong and weak believers possess old sin natures and one way or another they will use them as long as they live.
3. Therefore the difference between strong and weak is time logged in the filling of the Spirit plus the amount of doctrine resident in the soul.
4. The difference between strong and weak is the difference between maturity and reversionism, or between maturity and ignorance of pertinent doctrine.
5. However, the strong and weak believer have different occupational hazards.
6. The one in question in this verse belongs to the weak believer, he seeks to superimpose his weakness on strong believers making them weak.
7. The weak believer tries to make his weak standards the rule for all believers. If the weak believer had his way all strong believers would be as weak as he is, and then you would have equality!
8. When the weak believer encounters opposition from the strong he assumes the role of judge and jury from his arrogant attitude that his taboos and his legalism are what God intends for all believers.
9. Rather than use doctrine to judge other believers we should use doctrine to tolerate other believers under the privacy of the royal priesthood and the principle of love under the royal family honor code. In other words, leave the judging to God.
10. The weak believer weakens his weakness by judging the strong believer. If the strong believer succumbs to his bullying he also weakens the strength of the strong believer.
11. If you have to judge, judge yourself under the rebound technique.^[1]

We must stop and review sins of the tongue.

See the Doctrine of the Sins of the Tongue back in lesson #34. In the final 6 minutes, Bob went to a point that was not in NB1, so I will put the doctrine from NB2 right here. The doctrine of the sins of the tongue was not nearly as extensive as the doctrine below, but there were many points found in the Romans lessons which are also found below (and not in the previous doctrines of the sins of the tongue). Some notes from Lesson #424 are found here as well (in order to keep the doctrine together in one place).

Doctrine of the Sins of the Tongue (3)

Jam 18ff, 62-63 3/21/90; 9/30/83 (NB2)

A. Definition and Classification.

1. Definition.

- a. Sin is a violation of the law or standards of God. These divine standards are revealed in the Word of God. Sin is also transgression against divine law.
- b. The Westminster Catechism's definition of sin: "Sin is any want of conformity unto or transgression of any law of God given as a rule to a reasonable creature."
- c. Dr. L. S. Chafer's definition of sin: "Sin is that which proves unlike the character of God."
- d. The sinfulness of sin lies in the fact that it is against God even when the wrong we do is to others or ourselves. The essence and law of God are perfectly harmonious. Therefore, since God's character and standards are perfect, anything that violates that has been defined in the Scripture as sin.
- e. Sin is an act of volition against God. Sin originates from Adam's violation of a direct mandate from God, so that when God gives soul-life at birth, He also imputes Adam's original sin to the genetically formed old sin nature. Sin preceded human good and evil. Adam could only sin in the Garden; he could not produce good or evil. Temptation comes from the old sin nature, but sin always comes from human volition.
- f. Sin is both a thought, a motive, an act of wrongdoing, plus a state of alienation from God. The source of sin is twofold.
 - (1) Spiritual death at birth. At the point of physical birth we are born physically alive and spiritually dead. Spiritual death means total depravity. Therefore, we are prone to sin. We are spiritually dead before we commit our first sin.
 - (a) We are totally helpless to do anything about our status of total depravity.
 - (b) We are totally helpless to understand spiritual phenomena because we are dichotomous, having a body and soul but no human spirit. God the Holy Spirit must act as a human spirit so that we can understand spiritual phenomena such as the gospel.
 - (2) The function of human volition. We start sinning because we are spiritually dead. No sins are forgiven the unbeliever in spiritual death until he believes in Jesus Christ. All sins prior to salvation are blotted out at the moment of salvation.

- g. Two categories of sin come from human volition.
 - (1) Sins of cognizance, in which a person, recognizing the temptation as a sin, wants to do it, and he does it. A known sin is a transgression involving human perception and/or cognizance. You know you are doing it. Temptation is not sin.
 - (2) Sins of ignorance, in which a person is not aware that the old sin nature is tempting him to sin; but he desires to do the sin, and he does it. An unknown sin is a violation in which the act is committed without human perception or cognizance.
- h. Because all sin is related to the function of human volition, the believer is responsible for both categories of sin in his life. In both categories you are equally guilty. God doesn't excuse you. It doesn't matter what you think about your sins, God isn't impressed. Volition is involved in both known and unknown sins, for volition is the issue in the angelic conflict.
 - (1) Jesus Christ was judged on the cross for both sins of ignorance and sins of cognizance.
 - (2) When the believer acknowledges or names a sin of cognizance in rebound, he is simultaneously forgiven the sins of ignorance committed during the time of being out of fellowship.
 - (3) The sins of cognizance and the sins of ignorance cause the believer to be out of fellowship because volition was used.
 - (4) With volitional involvement, ignorance is no excuse, because both the sin nature and human volition are involved in the sinful modus operandi.
 - (5) The source of temptation is the sin nature, which is perpetuated genetically through twenty-three male chromosomes which fertilize the female ovum. The male is the source of the sin nature.
- i. The essence of the sin nature. There are four categories to the sin nature.
 - (1) The area of weakness. This is the source of all temptation to sin. When linked with negative volition, the area of weakness results in personal sin. It is not sinful to be tempted; it is sinful to succumb to the temptation.
 - (2) The area of strength. This produces a negative type good called human good. This is also called "dead works" and "wood, hay, and stubble."
 - (3) The trends of the sin nature: legalism, which results in moral degeneracy; antinomianism, which results in immoral degeneracy.

(4) The lust pattern includes power lust, approbation lust, social lust, sexual lust, chemical lust, monetary lust, crusader lust, inordinate ambition resulting in inordinate competition, lust for revenge, criminal lust, and pleasure lust. There are six principles related to lust.

- (a) The lust pattern of the sin nature eliminates or destroys Bible doctrine as the number one priority in life.
- (b) Lust destroys the motivation of the believer to execute the protocol plan. He neglects the principle of post-salvation epistemological rehabilitation.
- (c) Lust is a distraction to the modus operandi of the Christian way of life.
- (d) Lust divorces the believer from reality, which nullifies the understanding and use of the problem solving devices of the protocol plan of God.
- (e) Lust turns the believer into a tricky and deceitful person.
- (f) Lust destroys the believer's motivation to glorify God, and turns the believer's motivation into self-promoting motivation.

j. Guilt is the same regardless of punitive action taken by God. God may give a lighter sentence to a sin of ignorance, but the person still has something coming by way of discipline.

2. There are four categories of personal sin.

a. Emotional sins. There are four categories of emotional sins.

(1) Sins related to fear, which includes worry and anxiety.

(2) Sins related to hatred, which includes anger, violence, and murder.

(3) Sins related to self-pity.

(4) Sins related to guilt.

b. Mental sins. These include arrogance, pride, jealousy, implacability, bitterness, vindictiveness, inordinate ambition and inordinate competition, all motivational sins, and sinful thoughts.

c. Verbal sins include gossip, maligning, slander, judging, lying, and verbal deception.

d. Overt sins include chemical sins, sexual sins, criminal sins.

3. The Source of Verbal Sins.

a. All verbal sins originate from mental attitude sins, which lead to motivational sins, which lead to the sins of the tongue, which are designed to destroy your target.

b. James 3:5-8 So also the tongue is a small part of the body, and yet it boasts of great things. See how such great a forest is set on fire by a very small spark! And the tongue is a fire, the wickedness of wrongdoing; the tongue is so placed in our anatomy so that it contaminates the entire body, therefore, setting on fire the cycle of existence, and being set on fire by the agency of hell. For every species of beasts and birds, of reptiles and creatures of the sea, is tamed, and has been tamed by mankind. But no one can tame [control] the tongue; it is a restless evil full of deadly poison.

- B. Out of the seven worst sins from God's viewpoint, three are related to the tongue as verbal sins, Prov 6:16-19. "There are six things which the Lord hates, in fact, seven are an abomination to Him: Arrogant eyes, a lying tongue, and hands that shed innocent blood, a right lobe that devises evil plans [anti-authority sins, conspiracy, and revolution], feet which run rapidly to evil [a trouble-maker], a false witness who utters lies [perjury], and a person who spreads strife among the brethren [gossip, slander, maligning, judging]."
- C. The double standard related to the sins of the tongue.
1. Ps 12:2, "They speak emptiness one to another with flattering lips; and with a double standard they speak."
 - a. The "emptiness" here is gossip, slander, maligning, judging from self-righteous arrogance; hence, the conversation of the believer involved in polarized legalism and immoral degeneracy.
 - b. They flatter the one who is listening to your maligning and slander of another.
 2. The legalism of self-righteous arrogance has rejected the grace standards of doctrine. Therefore, the double standard of the sins of the tongue. The tongue is used to flatter those you are trying to persuade with regard to your slander, while at the same time slandering someone else.
 3. Self-righteousness sets up a double standard of self-vindication on the one hand, while judging and maligning on the other hand. While justifying the sins of arrogance, these believers are guilty of the sins of the tongue. There are two sins of the tongue involved.
 - a. Flattery of a role-model followed by the feet-of-clay syndrome.
 - b. Role-model or iconoclastic arrogance destroys the role-model through slander.
 - (1) You cannot possess a double standard by creating a role-model out of any believer, and then try to destroy them through gossip and slander when you are disappointed in or by them. When we start setting up role-models, we are ignoring that our Lord Jesus Christ is the only perfect role-model for the Christian.
 - (2) It is inevitable that the carnal believer involved in moral degeneracy, whose trend is toward self-righteous arrogance, will create role-models. Legalism is always creating role-models out of people, just as legalism is always creating its own standards out of arrogance.

(3) The double standard means that in arrogance the carnal believer ignores his own sins, while slandering, maligning, and judging the sins of others.

(a) The carnal believer is distracted in two ways.

(b) Through subjective arrogance by creating a role-model and then destroying it through gossip, slander, maligning, and judging.

(c) He becomes a distraction to others through the function of legalism.

4. In the slander, maligning, and judging of another believer, the self-righteous arrogance does not vindicate self, but condemns self without knowing it.

5. A key word used by self-righteousness evil is "duty, or responsibility." The self-righteous Pharisees thought it was their duty to destroy the perfect Son of God. The legalistic Judaizers thought it was their duty to discredit the grace ministry of Paul and stone him.

D. The sins of the tongue are mentioned in several passages.

1. Rom 2:1, "Therefore, you are without excuse, every person who keeps on judging others; for in that you judge another person you actually condemn yourself, because you who are judging actually practice the same things."

a. The blindness of arrogance is that you are committing the worst of sins when you malign, slander, or judge someone else of committing some sin. The self-righteous arrogance of the evil believer assumes the prerogative of replacing our Lord Jesus Christ as the presiding judge of the supreme court of heaven. We are not responsible to self-righteous people who create false standards, and who are evil compared to the persons they are maligning.

b. Legalism judges the sins of other believers, real or imagined, which are different from his own sins. Respectability maligning others is one of the most evil functions in the Christian way of life. The legalistic judge not only blasphemes but ignores the fact that he is using his own sin nature to the maximum.

c. It is a double standard of arrogance to judge, slander, malign, condemn the sins of others, while at the same time being blind to or ignoring your own sins.

d. In the slander, maligning, and judging of other believers, the self-righteous arrogant believer is not vindicating himself, but he is actually condemning himself. Such self-vindication and self-righteousness regards it as their duty to gossip, slander, malign, and judge others.

e. It is neither the duty, responsibility or prerogative of the believer to assume the role and function of Jesus Christ as the supreme court judge. It is the responsibility of every believer to judge his own life in the light of Bible doctrine.

- f. It is the responsibility of believers to self-evaluate or judge our own lives in the light of the standards of Bible doctrine. Bible doctrine in the soul produces true standards of grace righteousness. Grace-righteousness and self-righteousness are mutually exclusive. Grace- righteousness avoids verbal sins.

2. Two verses are pertinent to the self-righteous arrogance of the legalistic believer.

- a. Rom 14:4, "You, who are you to judge the servant of another? To his own lord he stands or falls. And stand he will; for the Lord is able to make him stand."

- (1) All of us are the servants of our Lord Jesus Christ. We are members of the body of Christ, the royal family of God.
- (2) The evaluation of our lives is the responsibility of our Lord. In the case of criminality, that responsibility has been delegated by our Lord to government.

- b. Rom 14:10, "But you, why do you judge your fellow-believer? Or you again, why do you regard your fellow-believer with contempt? For we shall all stand before the judgment seat of Christ."

- (1) Regarding another believer with contempt indicates a tremendous function of arrogance in your life. Why? Because you do not know the exact stage of that believer's spiritual growth.
- (2) If you exercise contempt for another believer, it is inevitable that you will find some way to malign, slander, or judge them.
- (3) After the resurrection of the Church all believers will be evaluated by our Lord Jesus Christ. This evaluation will have two aspects.
 - (a) The condemnation of all of the wrong things we have done. This is the ashamedness which is described as related to the judgment seat of Christ.
 - (b) The rewards and blessing for all the things we have done to execute God's plan.
- (4) Resulting principles.
 - (a) It is the quintessence of human arrogance and the epitome of blasphemy to slander, gossip, malign, and judge other believers. You are assuming the prerogative of our Lord Jesus Christ as the God-man.
 - (b) It is not our duty to judge other believers. An exception is the evaluation a board of deacons and pastor must make of believers who are violating the privacy of others in a congregation. Under the privacy of the priesthood the principle is: live and let live. Therefore, we must conclude with the Scripture that the Lord doesn't need our help or council in evaluating the lives of others.

- c. Verbal sins are a sign of weakness, arrogance, blasphemy, and presumption.
 3. The Lord has not called on us to act as judges of our fellow believers. We would have to know all the facts, which is impossible. The Lord knows all the facts, therefore He says, "I'll do all the judging," Romans 11:33-34.
- E. The Sins of the Tongue as Taught in the Book of James.
1. James emphasizes the fact that verbal sins are always motivated by mental attitude sins in the arrogance or emotional complex of sins.
 2. Jam 3:14, "But if you have bitter jealousy and inordinate ambition in your right lobe [and you do], stop being arrogant, and stop lying against the truth." Gossip or slander, here, is called "lying against the truth."
 3. Jam 3:16, "For where jealousy and inordinate ambition exist, there is dissension and every evil [worthless] deed." The evil or worthless deeds include the sins of the tongue.
 4. Jam 4:5, "Or do you think that the Scripture speaks to no purpose against jealousy? The Spirit who dwells in us pursues us with love." Jealousy is a great motivator for lying, slander, maligning, and judging.
 5. Jam 4:11, "Brethren, stop slandering each other. He who slanders [maligns] a fellow-believer or judges a fellow-believer, slanders and judges Bible doctrine [the law of God]."
 6. Jam 5:9, "Brethren, do not complain against each other that you yourselves may not be judged. Behold, the Judge is standing at the door."
 - a. When you start judging others, the Judge (Jesus Christ) is standing at the door of your life. He does not come in because you are out of fellowship, just as in Revelation 2, "Behold, I stand at the door and knock."
 - b. This verse anticipates the function of our Lord in the judgment of those believers who slander, malign, and gossip.
- F. There is intensified divine discipline against the sins of the tongue.
1. Except for the maximum discipline of the sin unto death, there is no category of sins which bring such concentrated divine discipline as the believer involved in the sins of the tongue.
 2. The sins of the tongue include three categories.
 - a. The slander category. This is gossip, maligning, judging, complaining against others.
 - b. The falsehood category. This includes untruth, deception, misrepresentation, perjury, fabrication, pathological lying, distortion, equivocation, ambiguous and unclear expressions designed to mislead, verbal duplicity, hypocrisy.
 - c. The whining and complaining category. This category is complaining when you are blessed by God and are the beneficiary of His grace. It is disorientation to the grace of God. This is whimpering, grumbling, or complaining by the believer who has his very own portfolio of invisible assets. This is experientially contradictory to the protocol plan of God. However, there is a legitimate expression of pain which is not related to the sins of the tongue. This is the sniveling of arrogance.

3. The sins of the tongue carry liability for triple compound divine discipline.
 - a. Mt 7:1, "Stop judging, so that you will not be judged."
 - (1) Believers are ordered by God to stop slandering, maligning, or judging others.
 - (2) The sins of the tongue involve two categories of sinfulness related to Christian degeneracy: mental attitude sins which motivate the verbal sinning; and the actual verbal sins which result. No one ever slanders, maligns, judges, or gossips about another without the motivation of some mental attitude sin.
 - (3) Verbal sins are motivated by an oscillation between self-righteous arrogance and self-pity in emotion.
 - (4) Verbal sins involve verbal murder, which is character assassination of others, plus the blasphemy of assuming the prerogative of God in judging others.
 - (5) Matthew 7:1 is the first of two laws found in Matthew 7:1-2. This is the law of reversal of divine punitive action. The sins of the tongue carry three categories of liability for punitive action from God.
 - (a) Divine discipline for the mental attitudes that motivate sins of the tongue.
 - (b) Divine discipline for the verbal sin itself.
 - (c) Divine discipline for the sins that you mention.
 - (d) You name certain sins real or imagined, which you assign to another believer.
 - (e) The sins you name have penalties attached to them. If the person is guilty, his discipline is removed, because the judgment didn't come from heaven, and the punishment is transferred to the one who maligns. If the sins are imagined, then the victim gets blessing comparable to the intensity of the discipline, as long as he puts the matter in the Lord's hands and does not attempt to vindicate himself.
 - (f) The victim of your slander doesn't receive these penalties, but you do. You are mentioning sins which you didn't commit, but you assign them to your victim by slandering them. You get the punishment for the mental attitude sins which motivated the verbal sins, and for the sins which you named.

(g) While not committing those sins, you get judged for those sins as if you had committed them. This is the perfect justice of God in which he reminds you to mind your own business and live your own life as unto the Lord.

b. Matthew 7:2, "For with what judgment you judge, you will be judged. And by what measure you measure, it will be measured against you."

(1) The first sentence in this verse is the law of liability regarding verbal sins. There is no stronger law in the supreme court of heaven. Two categories of sins are involved in this liability: the mental attitude sins which motivates the verbal sins of judging and the verbal sins which result. But you are also liable for the content of the sins you name.

(2) The royal priesthood demands privacy to live your own life as unto the Lord, Colossians 3:17. Therefore the believer has no right to destroy this freedom by intruding on the privacy of others. No one ever gets away with anything.

(3) The second sentence is the law of reversal of punitive action restated. The believer who is guilty of verbal sins will always receive the reversal of divine punitive action. You will always receive the discipline for the other person's sins which you name, for your verbal sins, and for your sinful motivation in committing the verbal sin.

(a) The sins you name carry punitive liability from God.

(b) The victim of your slander and judging does not receive that punitive liability from God. Instead, God transfers it to you, the gossip, the slanderer, the judge.

(c) The judgment or penalty for sins verbalized in slander is transferred by God from the victim to the guilty believer.

(d) The victim you judge and slander is not punished for those sins, but you are, since God transfers the punishment from the victim to the believer who slanders.

(e) No believer has the right to destroy the privacy of the priesthood of another believer by the sins of the tongue.

(f) Verbal sins contradict the principle of live and let live.

(g) While you are not committing the sins that you mention in slandering someone else, the punishment of those sins is assigned to you.

(h) There are two categories of sins mentioned in gossip and slander: sins the believer did commit, and sins the believer did not commit. If a believer actually did commit the sins mentioned in slander, then the punishment is removed from him immediately. If a believer did not commit the sins, then there is great blessing given to him as a result of receiving unfair slander.

4. Triple compound discipline includes:
 - a. Divine discipline for the mental attitude sins that motivate the verbal sins.
 - b. Divine discipline for the actual verbal sins. There are at least five verbal sins for which there is discipline: gossip, slander, maligning, judging, and dishonest or distorted complaint against another person.
 - c. The law of the reversal of divine punitive action - divine discipline for the sins which are mentioned.
- G. There is great blessing in avoidance of sins of the tongue, Psalm 34:12-13. "Who is the person who desires long life, loves length of days that he may see prosperity? Keep your tongue from evil, and your lips from speaking slander."
- H. The Pattern and Punishment for the Sins of the Tongue. Psalm 52: 1-5, "Why do you boast of evil, O mighty man? The grace of God endures all day long. Your tongue devises destruction, like a sharp razor, O worker of deceit. You love evil more than good, falsehood more than speaking what is right. You love all words that destroy, O deceitful tongue. Consequently, God will break you down forever. He will snatch you up and tear you away from your tent [human body], and uproot you from the land of the living."
- I. Concepts of Verbal Sins and their Consequences.
 1. God protects believers from the sins of the tongue. Believers have deliverance from the sins of the tongue, Job 5:19–21 In six troubles He will deliver you. Even in seven, evil will not touch you. In economic disaster, He will deliver you from death, and in war He will redeem you from the power of the sword. You will be hidden from the scourge of the tongue. Neither will you be afraid of death when it comes.
 2. God protects the pastor from verbal sins, Isaiah 54:17 No weapon that is formed against you will prosper, and every tongue that accuses you in judgment, You [Jesus Christ] will condemn. This is the heritage of the servant of the Lord and their vindication is from Me," decrees the Lord.
 3. Therefore, the importance of recognizing the sins of the tongue and separating yourself from them. Romans 16:17-18, "Now I urge you, fellow Christians, keep your eyes on those who cause dissensions and occasions for stumbling contrary to doctrine which you have learned, and avoid them. For such types are not servants of our Lord Jesus Christ, but they are slaves to their own emotions. Furthermore, by their smooth and flattering speech, they will deceive the right lobes of the ignorant."
- J. Concluding Principles.
 1. The believer guilty of slandering, maligning, or judging others is a visible loser in the Christian way of life.
 2. You cannot be occupied with the sins and failure of others and at the same time advance in the protocol plan of God.

3. All believers sin after salvation, but each believer has the right to rebound in the privacy of his own priesthood without interference from slander, maligning, gossiping and judging.
 4. All believers sin after salvation, but all punishment related to those sins should be left to divine judgment and punitive action.
 5. Judging other believers interferes with the judgment and punitive action from God.
 6. When believers are judged by other believers, this becomes a source of discouragement and frustration to the victim. It often results in irritation and loss of motivation for the execution for God's plan, will, and purpose for their life. You will be judged for putting a stumbling block such as discouragement in the path of another believer.
 7. Therefore, in the Church Age, the sins and failures of other believers must be left in the hands of the Lord for judgment.
 8. To interfere with the function of Jesus Christ as the supreme court judge in heaven is to invite more disaster for yourself.
 9. When one believer condemns another believer, he is in a state of blasphemy for slander, maligning, gossiping, and judging, which is tantamount to superceding the Lord as the supreme court judge in heaven. The exceptions to this principle are the areas in which God has delegated authority, such as: parents over children, teachers over students, coaches over athletes, management over labor, senior officers over lower ranks, law enforcement and the function of juris prudence, pastors and deacons who have the right to evaluate people who come into a congregation and cause trouble or invade the privacy of others.
 10. If believers were more concerned about learning Bible doctrine, they would be less concerned about sticking their nose into other people's lives.
 11. 1Peter 3:8-12 To sum it all up, let us all [believers] live in harmony, sympathetic, love as fellow Christians, be compassionate, and humble, not returning evil for evil, insult for insult, but blessing; because to this you were called that you might inherit blessing. For `Whoever would love long life and see good days, let him refrain his tongue from evil and his lips from speaking deceit. And let him turn away from evil and produce [divine] good; let him seek prosperity and pursue it. For the eyes of the Lord are upon the righteous, and His ears listen to their prayers, but the face of the Lord is against those who do evil.
- K. Reversionism is related to the sins of the tongue. In Psalm 5:8-9, the soul of such a person is described as a grave, whereby everyone can smell the rotting corpse. The throat and tongue are the opening of the grave. The rotting corpse is that person's mental attitude sins. Decomposing flesh cannot vindicate itself.
- L. The Congregation and the Sins of the Tongue.
1. Control of the tongue plus avoidance of the sins of the tongue is a sign of spiritual maturity, James 3:2.
 2. Verbal sins can destroy an entire congregation, James 3:5-6.

3. Since the sins of the tongue can destroy a congregation, it is the solemn duty of the pastor to warn and guard against this evil, 2Timothy 2:14-17. Remind them [the congregation] of these things and be warning them in the presence of the God [the assembly] not to fight with words which is useless and leads to the ruin of the congregation. [Then to Timothy, Paul writes:] Be diligent to present yourself approved to God, an irreproachable producer, communicating doctrine from the Word without perversion or distortion. But avoid empty talk, useless argumentation, for they will grow worse toward more ungodly reversionism; and their talk [the sins of the tongue] will increase like cancer. Among these [guilty of the sins of the tongue] are Hymenaeus and Philetus [two reversionists mentioned in Timothy].

4. Trouble makers in any group are identified in any group by sins of the tongue. Psalm 52:1-5 Why do you boast of evil, O mighty man? The steadfast love of God endures all the day. Your tongue plots destruction, like a sharp razor, you worker of deceit. You love evil more than good, and lying more than speaking what is honorable. Selah You love all words that devour, O deceitful tongue. But God will break you down forever; he will snatch and tear you from your tent; he will uproot you from the land of the living [the sin unto death]. Selah

5. The pastor-teacher is to curtail any sins of the tongue. We come to the congregation as a private priest and we have the right to sit here without anyone maligning or judging us, so that you can approach to Word of God without anyone maligning you.

6. The issue is with your pastor-teacher is your ability to concentrate. Did not matter if you like or dislike him. There is no difference between the concept of authority-orientation whether in a church or a business or in the military. If you leave a church, did you get out quietly? Same concept when you are in business working for someone that you cannot stand. Most people try to buck the tiger.

M. The believer should identify and then separate from those guilty of the sins of the tongue. Romans 16:17-18 There is no profit ever having a social life with anyone guilty of the sins of the tongue.

N. What are mischief makers?

1. Job 15:35, "They conceive mischief and bring forth iniquity, therefore their mind prepares deception."

2. Mischief is defined as the conduct or action resulting in harm, trouble, or schism, especially against legitimate authority. A mischief maker is anti-legitimate authority.

3. Mischief makers in the local church use attractiveness and personality resources to acquire power and approbation. Then they use this power to attract others, to discriminate, to distract others, and to reject others and Bible doctrine. When good deeds are involved, it results in schism, control, manipulation of others.

4. The result is erosion of authority in three areas of the local church: husbands; parents; and pastors. Mischief makers stand between people who are attracted to them and the teaching of the Word of God from the pulpit.
5. Mischief makers are believers who use their abilities to stir up trouble and discord. They cause peer pressure, heartache, rejection in the local church, which inevitably undermines the authority of the pastor in the teaching of the Word of God.
6. Psalm 7:14, 16 "Behold, he [or she] is pregnant with evil, and he [or she] conceives mischief, and gives birth to disillusion. ...The mischief he causes recoils on himself, and his violence comes down on his own head."
 - a. The law of volitional responsibility becomes a factor when the performance of this activity occurs.
 - b. Under the law of volitional responsibility, the believer as a mischief maker inflicts on himself or herself unbearable suffering from bad decisions from a position of weakness.
 - c. Out of these bad decisions come the sins of the tongue.
7. Mischief makers hallucinate. They use doctrinal vocabulary to hallucinate about their own spiritual status. They believe that they are more spiritually advanced than they really are. By mischief making, they slip into the early stages of mental illness. Blind arrogance hallucinates. Through hallucination about their spiritual status they fail to use rebound, and so compound their problem.
8. The origin of mischief making is generally a believer suffering from environmental handicaps developed in childhood or adolescence.
 - a. They have a sincere desire to straighten out the world in the spheres in which they have personally been hurt. Mischief makers do not forget those things which are behind, and they want to right the wrongs of the world where they have personally been victims.
 - b. They start out by helping others, but genuine expressions of gratitude often stimulate their own desire to go farther and farther with straightening out the world.
 - c. There is a danger in helping others, if it creates in you approbation lust. Are you doing it as unto the Lord, or because of the gratitude of others? The secret to the gift of helps is to create dependency on God's Word. The gift of helps is never designed to create dependency on people, but on Bible doctrine.
 - d. The other danger is that people become dependent on you, and that is stimulating to the mischief maker. If dependencies are created, then the believer has to be strong enough from spiritual skills to avoid arrogance, power, and approbation lust.
9. The arrogance of mischief making is to begin telling others how to run their lives, to establish oneself as the authority in matters of spiritual and life-in-general things. In this way, mischief makers are always involved in the sins of the tongue. They are either judging others, or telling others how to run their lives.

10. Mischief making does judge others. One of the serious by-products of mischief making is related to two categories of the sins of the tongue.
 - a. Judging the life and production of others.
 - b. Bullying others into producing dead works. This bullying is accomplished through clever phrases which indicate that you are not doing enough for God.
 - (1) "You are hiding in doctrine."
 - (2) "We need less doctrine and more works."
 - (3) "Forget doctrine and get involved."
 - (4) "We need less preaching and more working."
 - c. This causes spiritually immature believers to become distracted from doctrine and involved in dead works.
11. Five categories of mischief making.
 - a. The sincere but ignorant believer who is both self-righteous and a crusader by nature. They become compulsive and obsessive in their desire to straighten out the lives of others. This is the interfering or bullying mischief maker.
 - b. Believers who establish themselves as role-models and experts on how others should live and what others should do are classified as control mischief makers. They superimpose their own personal judgment over Bible doctrine. They establish their own authority, while rejecting the authority of the pastor-teacher. They reject the right of self-determination in others. They are quick to chew out other people, but when they are chewed out themselves, they never face the issue, but switch on self-justification.
 - c. The motivational mischief maker combines self-righteous arrogance with crusader arrogance to promote legalism and dead works.
 - d. The flawed mischief maker is the one who bypasses the infrastructure of the local church, and forms a control group which erodes the authority of the pastor-teacher. Thus creating a church within a church.
 - e. The weak conscience mischief maker is inconsistent in exposure to Bible doctrine, or is so out of fellowship that the doctrinal norms and standards are ignored.
12. Hebrew vocabulary for the mischief maker.
 - a. The word AWWEN means mischief or trouble that moves to evil.
 - (1) Ps 36:4, "He plans mischief on his bed; he sets himself on a path that is not good, and he does not despise evil."
 - (2) Ezekiel 11:2, "Then He said to me, `Son of man, these are the men who devise mischief and give evil advise in the city.'"

- b. The word HAWWAH means mischief related to lust. Psalm 52:2, "Your tongue devises mischief like a sharp razor, O worker of deceit."
- c. The word ZIMMAH means mischief in the sense of arrogant thinking or motivation for evil planning. Psalm 26:10, "In whose hand is mischief and whose right hand is full of bribes."
- d. The word AMAL means mischief in the sense of causing pain or misery. Psalm 10:7, "His mouth is full of curses, deceit, and oppression; under his tongue is mischief and wickedness."
- e. The word RA means mischief in the sense of causing or producing evil. Prov 6:14, "The person who with persistence with what is wrong in his right lobe devises mischief continually, who therefore spreads strife."

1977 Romans

Lesson #424

424 05/30/1978 Romans 14:4b Soviet attack; military coup; authority orientation; doctrines of sins of the tongue (7–10), reversionism

Russian timetable for moving against Western Europe was halted this past year, which caused quite a shakeup. China has been saying for awhile that the United States and the Russians will go to war soon. There is a preponderance of well-trained troops in Russia. This is a time when young men from Berachah Church need to become, as never before authority-orientated. Some serve under fine Christian officers and some serve under men who Bob would not trust with his dog for five minutes. Without authority orientation, you will never make it. Too often, the rebel is glorified and not the authority oriented type.

Christianity did not destroy Rome, but the military rejected the authority of civil government. Under the laws of divine establishment, the military is an extension of civil government. Our forefathers feared a military coup de tat, but these do not exist except in Catholic countries (Mexico and all South America). The military has taken over many of these governments and this is a tragedy. This is the result of the combination of church and state. The countries to the south are either pro-communist or they lean that way. They can only think and see in terms of black and white. No in between to them. You are a Catholic or a communist. In our country, the church and state are separate.

Our colony was founded on principles, where this has never occurred. This could occur in this country even right now with some of the attitudes that Bob has heard. No one despises the policies of our federal government more than Bob does.

The other part of the problem is the fantastic incompetence of government and those who rise to the top of the military in peacetime. Good for young men to learn some lessons without which, you are not going to make it as a believer.

With the royal family honor code, you should be at home anywhere and everywhere. Nothing could be more important.

We go back to the sins of the tongue, which notes can be found in the doctrine below, placed in the previous lesson (#423).

Doctrine of the Sins of the Tongue \(3\)

We are going to be in v. 4 for several nights.

Romans 14:4 Who are you, judging another's servant? To the own master he stands or falls. And he will be upheld, for the Lord is able to uphold him. (BLB)

“to his own master he standeth or falleth” – present active indicative from stêkô (στήκω) [pronounced STAY-koh] which is an Hellenic construction, in contrast to Attic, and it is a construction taken from a Classical Greek verb histêmi (ἵστημι) [pronounced HIHS-tay-mee]. Stêkô (στήκω) [pronounced STAY-koh] is taken from the perfect tense of histêmi (ἵστημι) [pronounced HIHS-tay-mee], which is stêka or estêka. Typical of the use of the verb is found in 1Corinthians 16:13, “Be on the alert, stand fast in the doctrine, act like men, be strong.” The verb is used here for stability; it means to be stabilized. A similar use of stêkô (στήκω) [pronounced STAY-koh] is found in Philippians 4:1 – “stand firm” or “stand fast.” It is used in two military connotations: 1Corinthians where it means to stand fast, and Philippians 4:1 where it means to stand firm in advancing—defence and offence. A third use is found in Galatians 5:1, “. . . stand fast, therefore.”

The word is a favourite of Paul, a military word. It emphasizes in context the relationship with the Lord based on perception of doctrine. Doctrine is the means of standing firm, i.e. doctrine resident in the soul. So we translate, “to his own Lord [Jesus Christ] he stands firm.” The customary present tense is for what habitually occurs when the believer takes in doctrine on a daily basis. The difference between the weak and the strong believer is determined by attitude toward doctrine. The strong believer is inculcated with doctrine whereas the negative or weak believer has rejected doctrine, has become apathetic toward it, places it low in his priorities or misses it altogether. The active voice: the strong believer produces the action of the verb through the daily function of GAP and resultant advance in the plan of God.

“Or falleth” is the present active indicative of piptô (πίπτω) [pronounced PIHP-toh], used here in its military connotation where it means to become a casualty. It means to fall down or to become a casualty. Homer used this word to be slain in battle. This is a pictorial present tense which presents to the mind a picture of the believer becoming a casualty, falling in battle because of rejection of or indifference to Bible doctrine. It depicts reversionism in the process of occurrence. The active voice: the believer producing the action of the verb through reversionism or neglect of doctrine is the one who becomes the casualty. Because of the privacy of the priesthood the Lord determines who has become the casualty, not the weak believer. The indicative mood is declarative representing the verbal action from the viewpoint of reality.^[2]

We need to take a brief look at the doctrine of Reversionism. Although reversionism is mentioned a number of times in previous lessons, Bob has not made any attempt to present the full doctrine or a review of this doctrine.

We are not blessed in time for what we do. When we get to vv. 18–19, this will become clear. Under priesthood, our advance is based upon doctrine. The ambassador represents Christ. Our priesthood is directed toward God, and this is where we receive our rewards and blessings. In our ambassadorship, we interact with man.

Evil is the influence of reversionism.

Stages of Reversionism

1. Reaction and distraction. This may begin with mental attitude sins; there may be distractions which lure you from doctrine; distractions that keep you away from the assembly. They may be social or sexual or gossip or policy. Drug addiction, including marijuana. There are those in Berachah and doctrine seems to tranquilize them a bit; but their minds are messed up. These are acquired mental problems.
2. Frantic search for happiness. Sometimes legalism, sometimes works programs. Self-denial can become a focus in the frantic search for happiness. There is also drunkenness, debauchery, female nymphomania, homosexual acts.
3. Operation boomerang.
4. Emotional revolt of the soul. Emotion becomes a tyrant. This opens up a vacuum into the soul and all kinds of false concepts are sucked into the soul. The doctrine of demons is sucked into the soul. Ephesians 4:17–18
5. This takes us to scar tissue of the soul. John 14:20
6. Reverse process reversionism; a complete reversal of one's priorities.
7. Galatians 5:4

The Categories of Reversionism

1. Phallic reversionism - 2Corinthians 12:21; Ephesians 4:19; 5:5; Colossians 3:5; Revelation 2:14,20-23.
2. Legalistic reversionism. Galatians 5:4 Hebrews 5:11–16
3. Ritual reversionism, which is both legalistic and religious - Hebrews 5:11-6:6; Colossians 2:16-18.
4. Monetary reversionism - James 4:13,14; 5:1-6; Revelation 3:14-20; Ecclesiastes 5:10-16.
5. Drug addiction type of reversionism - Galatians 5:20. It also includes alcoholic reversionism - Isaiah 28:1-9.

6. Anti-establishment reversionism - Romans 1:18-32.
7. Mental attitude reversionism - James 4.
8. Verbal reversionism - James 5:9,12.
9. Psychotic reversionism or mental illness reversionism - 2Peter 2:15-19.

Reversionism is a contagious disease. A passage in Hebrews.

1977 Romans

Lesson #425

425 05/31/1978 Romans 14:4c Prep School staff and music; arrogant weak believer vs. strong believer; privacy

Bob met with Ken Wise and some others and they discussed the prep school. There is a prep school portfolio and it will be given to each prep school teacher.

Romans 14:4 Who are you, judging another's servant? To the own master he stands or falls. And he will be upheld, for the Lord is able to uphold him. (BLB)

These slaves were taken care of as well as anything provided today.

“for God is able to make him stand” – the explanatory use of the conjunctive particle gar, plus kurios (κύριος) [pronounced KOO-ree-oss] and the generic use of the definite article, “for the Lord.” Plus the present active indicative of dunatéō (δυνατέω) [pronounced doo-nat-EH-oh], meaning to be powerful—derived from the adjective dunatos (δυνατός) [pronounced doo-nat-OSS] meaning to have ability or power: “for the Lord has the power.” The perfect present denotes the continuation of existing results. The omnipotence of the Lord in the past is emphasized as a present result when it is translated into the honor code function of the strong believer. The active voice: Jesus Christ as kurios (κύριος) [pronounced KOO-ree-oss] produces the action through the communication of Bible doctrine. This is a declarative indicative viewing the verbal action from the viewpoint of reality. Then, once again, the military word: the aorist active infinitive of the verb stêkô (στήκω) [pronounced STAY-koh] which means to stand fast or to advance in rank at a steady continuous pace, not being deterred by anything the enemy does. Here it means to hold the ground in preparation for the advance. The constative aorist contemplates the action of the verb in its entirety. It gathers up into one entirety a succession of events relating to the advance of the believer. It views the believer as holding his ground as he advances or is advancing in rank. The infinitive of intended result combines both purpose and result in one connotation. Plus the accusative singular direct object from the intensive pronoun autos (αὐτός) [pronounced ow-TOSS]: “for the Lord has the power to make him stand fast.”

Weak Believer Versus the Strong Believer

1. In other words, the strong believer does not stand on the basis of criticism or legalism imposed by the weak believer.

2. No believer has the ability to cause another believer to hold his ground or to stand fast. You do not stand fast on the basis of other believers. If your Christian life depends on what other Christians think, then you are a weak sister. You go to other Christians for counsel instead of building up your own norms and standards and drawing from your own resources, which in this case would be doctrine translated into norms and standards in your own conscience.
3. If you need the counsel of someone else, you are weak. You cannot depend upon other believers to move forward. The ability to cause us to stand fast resides in Jesus Christ rather than the counsel or advice of another believer.
4. This emphasizes the royal family honor code of living one's life according to the Lord and not living to please mankind. Exception is the woman, who is the slave of her husband. Children, of course, depend upon their parents.
5. The taboo believer is weak. He seeks to superimpose his own weaknesses on all believers, making them weak. The weak believer is an evangelist for weakness. They try to convert all Christians into their cookie-cutter mold. In the example, they are trying to get others to eat vegetables. You might get healthier, but this is not a spiritual thing. You do not get blessing from doing works. "Do this and God will bless you." Being a vegetarian is not wrong; connecting it to spirituality is. We are not here just to eat and drink. We are here to fill our souls with doctrine. We are here to have the divine standards for the conscience of the soul.
6. The strong believer understands his freedom in grace and uses it to learn doctrine and to advance to maturity.
7. Live and let live gives each believer the opportunity of living his life as unto the Lord who has the power to make him hold his ground or stand fast.
8. The weak believer does not have this power. Therefore the weak believer violates the honor code by seeking to superimpose his weaknesses on the strong believer. This verse utterly denies the right of the weak believer to judge or to criticize any believer who does not conform to his pattern, whether the pattern is legalism or antinomianism.

No one adjusts to life without adjusting to authority.

Romans 14:4 You there, who are you, the one who keeps judging a house slave belonging to another? To his own Lord [the Lord Jesus Christ] he stands firm or becomes a casualty. In fact, he will hold his ground for the Lord has the power to make him stand.

Weak Believer Versus the Strong Believer (2)

1. The weak believer violates the royal family honor code for interfering with or intruding on the privacy of the strong believer. The weak believer does not observe the privacy of the priesthood, but through bullying (judging, gossiping, maligning, adverse criticism seeks to coerce the strong believer into a system of legalism.
2. Instead of Christian fellowship the weak believer simply desires social fellowship, compatibility of weakness. If he is arrogant he wants everyone to be like he is.

3. He superimposes his standards whether they are legalistic or antinomian. He superimposes his standards over the standards of doctrine and seeks to gain ascendancy for his taboos or his antinomianism in the Christian community. He only uses doctrine to 'prove' his point; therefore he selects doctrine.
4. In arrogance the weak believer wants his own way. He is not only maladjusted to life but he is maladjusted to the plan of God and the justice of God.
5. The observation of food taboos and asceticism in diet becomes substitute for Bible doctrine for the weak believer.
6. This means that the weak believer is arrogant and subjective. As an arrogant and weak person he assumes and alleges that his standards are God's standards. Therefore he seeks to superimpose his legalism on both God and the strong believer, but not in that order. He attacks the strong believer, and in attacking the strong believer seeks to superimpose also on God.
7. The weak believer always sets himself up as a judge, as the final authority.
8. Through spiritual bullying he seeks to establish himself as the leader, the judge, the evaluator of every Christian life.
9. The violation of privacy, the destruction of grace freedom, creates a monster out of the weak believer. He becomes the enemy of the cross while being saved through the cross.
10. It is the policy of the justice of God and Bible doctrine which sustains the strong believer (not judging and maligning, or bullying), and if these are not pushed and enforced by the authority of the pastor the result is disaster in the congregation. People can be removed by the pastor and those who gossip and malign others are subject to being removed. We should be able to come in, whatever our sins or failures. We are in church as private persons to take in doctrine. If you are not interested in friends, that is okay. We attend under the privacy of the priesthood. Your activities are not our business, so that you can grow in grace and develop the norms and standards to become mature.
11. Therefore the weak believer does not determine the status of the strong believer; the Lord determines his status.
12. The royal family honor code demands both the privacy of the priesthood and the freedom to live one's life as unto the Lord.
13. The weak believer is the worst of all bullies, seeking to lower every believer to his own erroneous standards of either legalism or antinomianism. Many of his applications may be correct but they are correct for his particular stage of growth and not correct for a higher stage of growth, and not even for a lower stage of growth. All of us as believers are assembled in different stages of growth. There must be something for everyone, but whatever there is for everyone must not confuse the other ones. So we must maintain the privacy of the priesthood.

V. 4 is the flip side of v. 10.

426 06/01/1978 Romans 14:5 the Doctrine of a Day at a Time; Attitudes of the weak and strong believers re special days; flexibility; self-righteousness

Essentially Bob gives the Doctrine of a Day at a Time in narrative form.

From the time that you receive Christ as Savior, we have a certain amount of capital, which is temporal. Each one of us is given a certain amount of time on this earth, divided up into days. This is 1 June, courtesy of Gaius Julius Cæsar, which brought us into line with the timetable of God. We utilize our capital right now for taking in Bible doctrine. We must never overlook time. The woman who says, "I wish this moment could go on forever." We can understand the little beauties saying this. Our reckoning the Christian way of life, we must be time conscious. Or where we are cognizant of the times of the season.

The believer who has lives everyday alike, as each day is from God. Every day is special. Only the believer has the ability to purchase that time, and grace is the capital available to purchase that time. Remember that each day provides whatever. Every day that we live as a believer in phase II is God's gracious gift. Any promotion, material gain, or influence; etc., each day is regarded in relation to God's logistical grace. Psalm 90:12 James 4:13-15 Lamentations 3:

The first principle is that the mature believer is regarded in our context as the strong believer, and as such he regards every day alike. Every day is a special gift from God and therefore there is the quite evident tendency on the part of the strong believer to assign each day the same importance the next day or the day before because it is from God. Secondly, only the believer has the grace provision to actually redeem that time or to purchase that time, according to Ephesians 5:15-18. The capital for the purchase of time is called grace—James 4:6, "more grace." This refers to the fact that God the Holy Spirit, in conjunction with the planning of God the Father, provides a basis to enjoy this particular day and to utilize it as God would have us to use it in the intake of doctrine, in working, in playing, in a variety of things which life has to offer. So a third concept emerges in the mature believer's attitude toward the day. Every day we live as a believer in phase two is God's gracious gift. It is just as much a gift as any blessing that may be imputed to the mature believer on a given day. Each day is regarded in the light of God's logistical support. The only time we actually possess to honor God in time are the number of days which He has graciously provided under logistical grace—Psalm 90:12; James 4:13-15. The fact that the believer lives another day on the earth is a sign of divine faithfulness and a manifestation of God's grace—Lamentations 3:22,23. Therefore from the standpoint of the mature believer God has provided soul capital in the form of Bible doctrine to make each day count in His plan, and ultimately to His glory—James 1:21, which in the Greek talks about the engrafted word—Bible doctrine resident in the soul through the daily function of GAP. Therefore the importance of acquiring doctrine is revealed in Jeremiah 15:16 and mentioned again in Matthew 4:4. Every day is a special day, and while certain days receive emphasis as far as our civilization or society is concerned each day is a special day to the mature believer—John 11:9-10. Each day is a part of God's plan for time, and the believer is each day is required to recognize that the day is a day to avoid mental attitude sins which produce the self-induced misery of Proverbs 27:1. The mental attitude sins which characterize reversionism must be avoided in order to avoid the blackout of the soul—1John 2:9, 11. There is no suffering in phase three, God can only demonstrate His grace provision for any situation or circumstance of pressure or suffering in the day that He gives today, and the day He provides tomorrow, and the next. But we are to live within the borders of one day.

This is merely academic to us until we crack the maturity barrier. The fact that we never look beyond today in the sense of enjoying God's faithfulness, God's provision, and in the sense that the physical food that we eat today is the energy of tomorrow, so the spiritual food that we had yesterday is the basis for meeting any circumstance in life today. God has structured His plan so that He will provide a situation to use the doctrine we learned yesterday, today. . . and so on and so on. So that God never puts on the positive believer more than he can bear, understand, or cope with. Therefore the doctrine we received today we can count on using tomorrow. This is a part of the plan of God and this is why a mature believer is a special person in His time orientation.

On the other hand the weak believer is ignorant of doctrine. This ignorance may be because he is reversionistic, as in this passage, where he has rejected doctrine. He has been indifferent to doctrine and as each day comes and goes doctrine is not in the picture, doctrine has no priority, and therefore there is no changing of the norms and standards of his conscience of the soul. Because there is no change and because he operates on the norms and standards which he had before salvation—norms and standards based upon his environment, his training, his academic life, those who have influenced him, etc.—he has no basis for appreciating the fact that each day is a special gift from the Lord, and that even though special associations exist in the minds of some, every day is Christmas or Easter, etc. Every day is a special day in itself. In this way we live out our lives a day at a time, neither rushing ahead nor falling behind, and we get the most out of each day—the greatest of blessing, the greatest opportunity for the application of doctrine. So that it is very, very difficult to look at the weak believer and see him making something special out of this day or that, and rising to a peak of emotion because of the day that exists and then falling of into despondency shortly thereafter because that day has gone and for one reason or another emotionally or physically he is hung over, and waiting for the next day to come along so he can climb another peak and have a great emotional experience. Such a person has an instability factor built into his schedule. This does not mean that we cannot celebrate Christmas or Easter, etc. Some churches or pastors don't allow an Easter Egg hunt.

Bob mentions a pastor who takes Bob's tapes. He teaches some extreme and out-of-focus information. And if people want to follow him, they have a right to follow him if they want to. People have some very strange ideas about days. This pastor is a sneak and a coward, because he won't come and look Bob in the eye. This is the tragedy described in this passage. He is the kind of a person who emphasizes the nonessentials. I told Bobby, "Look, you're looking at Santa Claus."

Just because people dorked around during these days, you have to be flexible in application. There are things which are nice about these days. All of it is very pleasant, so why not? Unbelievers look forward to Christian; why try to take this away from some unbelievers? Or take away the hope chest that a woman fills up? Why spoil that?

There is not big problem with observing a holiday (or not) as long as you are flexible. If you are in New Orleans during Marti Gras, then just join in.

Bob is inflexible with the fact that every day is given to us by God; but flexible with the application.

We first noticed the taboo of refusing to observe something. One is refraining and the other is doing.

Romans 14:5 For indeed one judges a day to be above another day, but one judges every day alike. Let each be fully assured in the own mind. (BLB)

Verse 5 – the holy day controversy. In this verse we get the weak believer’s viewpoint first of all. “One man esteemeth one day above another” – it begins with the explanatory use of the conjunctive particle gar which gives the connection of thought. The use of gar is one of the greatest ways in which to relate one system of thought to another throughout the New Testament. We know immediately that this is going to be an explanation in which two sides are presented, and we know this because we go back to Attic or Classical Greek in which we see the two correlating particles men and de—“on the one hand” and “on the other hand.”

Then the nominative singular from the relative pronoun hos used here for a demonstrative pronoun and should be translated “this one”—“For on the one hand this one,” a demonstrative referring to a category: the weak believer.

The first controversy was abstinence, abstaining from meat. We are here looking at observing something or doing something.

Next is the present active indicative of krinô (κρίνω) [pronounced KREE-no], meaning to reach a decision or to judge. The weak believer “considers.” The customary present tense is for what habitually occurs with the believer who has a Jewish background where he has trained to observe the Sabbath and such other holy days such as the Passover, etc., plus other patriotic ones. There is nothing wrong with observing a specific day as a special day. The problem is viewing the observation of a special day as a matter of spiritual superiority. The active voice: the weak believer produces the action of the verb. The indicative mood is declarative representing the verbal action from the viewpoint of what was occurring in Rome and what has subsequently occurred throughout history. Then hêmeran par hêmeran: the accusative singular direct object of the verb hêmera (ἡμέρα) [pronounced hay-MEH-raw], and para plus the accusative of hêmera (ἡμέρα) [pronounced hay-MEH-raw], and it means “one day greater than another day.” Para with the accusative singular here is used in the comparative sense of greater than. The weak believer has a right to observe these days as he wants to. So the weak believer in legalistic reversionism distinguishes one day from another and judges it as a holy day, which is his prerogative, but then he judges everyone else in relationship to his own prerogative. Judging by false standards is always the habit of the weak believer.

Now the strong believer: “another esteemeth every day alike” – the postpositive conjunctive particle de used correlatively with men means “on the other hand.” Plus the nominative singular from the relative pronoun hos used as a demonstrative pronoun for the mature believer with maximum doctrine resident in the soul. Then the present active indicative, again, of krinô (κρίνω) [pronounced KREE-no]. The customary present is for what habitually occurs with the believer who is strong, i.e. he is positive toward doctrine, his norms and standards are based upon Bible doctrine, he has already attained spiritual maturity through the daily function of GAP. The active voice: the strong believer produces the action of this viewpoint. The declarative indicative reveals the fact that this has always been a reality down through history: the strong believer has an antithetical view.

Plus the accusative singular direct object from the adjective pás (πάς) [pronounced pahs] and the noun hêmera (ἡμέρα) [pronounced hay-MEH-raw]—“every day.” This is an idiom meaning every day in the same connotation which we simply translate “every day is alike” as from the Lord. This does not mean that we exercise perfect uniformity in each and every day. It means every day in the same connotation: the connotation of grace, logistical support from God, a day to be utilized for the Lord whatever you are going to celebrate, or whatever you are going to do or not do. It is to be regarded as a grace gift from God.

Principle of Observation of Days

1. Obviously to the believer who is inculcated with doctrine every day is a gracious gift from the Lord—Ephesians 5:16-18.
2. The only opportunity for glorifying God in time is related to the number of days each one of us is given after salvation.
3. God provides the capital to make each day count through the principle of logistical grace—up to maturity, then after that God provides the capital on the basis of the 6th imputation of blessing.
4. So that to the mature believer there are no special days in the sense that you must observe them to be spiritual, to grow up, or to gain blessing from God.
5. While Sunday, the first day of the week, has been set aside as a special assembly day in the Church age, it is actually no holier than any other day which the Lord has given to the believer. Therefore a controversy over the observation of days obviously has existed and will exist all the way to the Rapture, but the controversy is not who is right and who is wrong but who is weak and who is strong. The strong believer bases everything upon doctrine. The weak believer does not know doctrine, so he can act flexible with regards to doctrine; but inflexible according to the way that he was raised.

Ignorance and Cognizance of Doctrine

1. The controversy exists between ignorance and cognizance.

2. Ignorance of doctrine makes the believer weak; knowledge of doctrine integrated into the norms of the conscience makes the believer strong.
3. The weak believer falls back on his own background, which in this case is the background of legalism.
4. The strong believer, whatever his former background, is fully briefed in the plan of God and regards each day in the context of the plan of God.
5. Consistency of doctrine means consistency of living.
6. Each day is to be lived as unto the Lord.

The weak believer is wrong in the controversy. He is wrong because he is inflexible in his application whereas the strong believer is right because of the flexibility of application related to the royal family honor code, i.e. privacy of the priesthood. Since the believer is wrong the controversy is resolved by congruence of doctrine.

“Let every man be fully persuaded in his own mind” brings us back to the solution which is the privacy of the priesthood. This begins with the adjective hekastos (ἕκαστος) [pronounced HEHK-as-toss] in the nominative singular, used as the subject: “each one.” This emphasizes the believer’s privacy, his individuality. It emphasizes the fact that you have the right to regard any day as a special day within the framework of your own life. But to try to superimpose that on everyone else is the problem.

Then the present passive imperative from the compound verb plêrophoreô (πληροφορέω) [pronounced play-rof-or-EH-oh] [plêrês = full; = to bear, to wear] means to be completely full, to convince fully. In the passive voice it means to be completely filled with the principle so as to be convinced by the principle which fills your soul—“Let each one be fully convinced.” The perfective present tense is used to denote the continuation of existing results of learning Bible doctrine. The passive voice: the strong believer here receives the action of the verb, even though a weak believer potentially has the same opportunity. The imperative mood is a command. This command is to get doctrine and to use doctrine.

Bob is amazed how these little epigrams are accepted as absolute truth. You don’t want a candle light when you are walking through a jungle in the middle of the night. Most believers do not possess enough light to know whether or not they are in the light or not.

Then the prepositional phrase which introduces again the concept of the privacy of the priesthood, en (ἐν) [pronounced en] plus the locative of ídios (ἴδιος) [pronounced IH-dee-os] and noús (νοῦς) [pronounced noose]—“in his own thought.” This does not mean a decision based on the little light that you have. This does mean confidence based upon full knowledge of doctrine and resultant common sense application of that doctrine to reality.

Romans 14:5 For on the one hand this one [the weak believer] considers one day greater than another day; on the other hand that one [the strong believer] considers every day alike [for the Lord]. Let each one be fully convinced in his own mind.

Principle

1. This is a command to learn Bible doctrine, to learn doctrine as a means of resolving all controversial issues in life.
2. This verse commands that the believer become spiritually self-sustaining through knowledge of doctrine.
3. Inevitably where believers gather there are different viewpoints over different things. Controversies over taboos and over legalistic matters cannot be resolved apart from knowledge of doctrine. Learn to do your own thinking.
4. No one can change the mind of a legalistic reversionist (In fact, no one should), doctrine has to do it.
5. Doctrine is the standard of the mature believer.
6. Because of varying stages of growth in the royal family, varying standards of application are permitted. These varying standards are applications relative to one's spiritual growth, one's cognizance of doctrine or ignorance of doctrine.
7. Growing up spiritually requires a lot of patience and tolerance so that doctrine remains the issue.
8. The weak believer cannot become strong through false standards, but only as his false standards are corrected by Bible doctrine which he has learned.
9. The norms and standards of the Christian life are not determined by legalistic taboos or the observation of holy days, but by the inculcation of doctrine through the daily function of GAP.

All Celtic societies are ruled by women.

We have ruined American with our self-righteousness. Only the communists are more self righteous. That is enforced, inculcated culture there. All children are wards of the state in a communist country. We have Naderism because Nader thinks that he is doing something for society; and he believes that whatever he thinks is good for America. Freedom is good for America.

We permit children to do certain things because they are children; but different standards for adults.

Within any local church, we have multifarious standards multiferous.

Lesson #427

427 06/02/1978 Romans 14:5 Ike vs. Monty: national objectives; privacy of the priesthood and norms from Bible doctrine vs. bullies

Charles McDonald history book. Principle of objective in warfare. This objective acts as a guide for the troops and their actions etc. The first objective is the neutralization of the enemy army. Secondly, to secure some land. To possess the localities that contribute to the national objectives. This is a secondary notion. Ike knew this well. He was under phenomenal pressures.

Four full armies would go to Berlin; and should Bradley protect his flank? Had Monty done his job, this would have been accomplished quickly. Ike, as a general officer, kept the destruction of the enemies armies always in mind.

Priesthood

1. We have impersonal love toward all of our neighbors
2. The soul of the believer is where this impersonal love resides. The area of the privacy is the mind of each believer. This means freedom of thought.
3. V. 5 takes cognizance of the royal family honor code. Live and let live.
- 4.
5. These false impressions must be affected by Bible doctrine.
6. These false impressions soul not be affected by spiritual bullying.

The legalist is the antithesis. Don't do this, don't do that.

Everyone has a pastor who communicates. Rapport is never the issue.

Every believer is a priest; and we have the privacy of the priesthood. We all begin as yardbird. It is all about being straightened out by Bible doctrine.

This is getting our ducks in a row to move forward on Sunday.

Lesson #428

428 06/04/1978 Romans 14:6a Doctrine of the royal family honor code (review); movie "The Big Country": moral courage and cowardice

Once we believe in Jesus Christ, we are provided with 3 assets. God keeps us alive; and through the grace pipeline, God sends to us six categories of spiritual blessings.

Jesus Christ is glorified by the thought content of the soul. In Christianity, everyone is doing his bag, his thing; making as ass out of himself; and because it is embarrassing, somehow, it must be good.

The strong believer is inflexible with regards to the truth of Bible doctrine. There is flexible application. We are flexible and we are tolerant of the personal lives of others. Love your neighbor as yourself, means that, as your soul has capacity.

Emotion has no thought, no standards, no norms and standards. Christianity orients you to a morality which allows us to live and let live. Christianity is beyond a morality.

Reviewing the concept of the royal family honor code. Definition and description. Right thinking results in right motivation and right function. We are taught that if we tithe, then we are blessed. All blessing comes from the justice of God down the pipeline to the righteousness of God. Nothing that we do can ever penetrate this screen. God cannot bless sinful man. If God blesses a single person for tithing, witnessing, whatever, that is not the basis of divine blessing. There is nothing that we can do which is legitimate or legalistic that will bless us.

The next doctrine is close to the 1975 Doctrine of Privacy.

The royal family honor code is based upon the imputation of righteousness to us at salvation. We are placed into union with Jesus Christ. We share the Lord's sonship and His royalty. As a believer, we can be one of the most miserable or one of the most happy of people. Our attitude toward doctrine is the deciding factor. We have been brought up with the understanding of the privacy of other believers. The innate right of people to remove himself and be alone. He can choose his own friends, own property, etc., without adversity caused by another.

The Ten Commandments primarily deal with the concept of privacy more than with sin.

We are a royal priest and we represent ourselves before God. All things that we do in word or deed, constantly giving thanks to the Lord your God.

Peter knew how he would die, and so he asks about John. But this is none of his business. Some of you are leading an undisciplined kind of life; we command such persons and exhort them in the name of the Lord Jesus to live in a quiet fashion and to eat his own bread. (A quote from 2Thessalonians).

The privacy of others is the important principle. Life, property and privacy are the things which must be respected.

1Peter 4:15 Let none of you live violating the privacy of others. Murder is an attack upon life; gossiping, maligning and judging attack the privacy of another.

Spiritual freedom must be defined as life, privacy and property. This is where the whole concept of free enterprise is Biblical. These things make freedom a blessing if the whole thing is protected. The laws of divine establishment never divorce these things from one another. The believer is to learn from Bible doctrine rather than to be bullied or coerced by a weak or a strong believer.

The person who makes it in the Christian life has moral courage. This is the greatest of concepts.

Bob references the movie from last night, The Big Country. He has moral courage. We learned a lot of doctrines in this movie.

Eisenhower had moral courage with his decision not to go to Berlin.

The bully is the weak believer. He does not even have physical courage. But when he faced the dude with a dueling pistol, he crawled away.

People with physical courage are obnoxious and they never learn moral courage. The bully always requires you to do various things to prove your courage.

Berachah is the friendliest church that you will ever find because no one will speak to you. No one will have you fill out a visitor's card and then call on you to invade your privacy. We are all sustained by Bible doctrine. Sympathy will not carry you; doctrine in the soul will carry you.

Second great principle of the royal family honor code is loving the brothers. You must be able to distinguish between personal love and impersonal love. It is all based upon your own personal stage of growth. You are relaxed toward them; you do not make an issue out of their stupidity and goofy ideas; relax and let doctrine straighten them out. You do not get into arguments or a debate with them. You do not try to bully people into a mode of dress or some sort of activity. If you manage to get them to do this or that, then they have not advanced; they are not going to be blessed.

There was a woman who came out into the parking lot and tried to get the men to stop smoking. She was out of line and we got rid of her. The weak believer has false norms and standards. They grew up in lovely Christian homes. If you retaliate as a mature believer, then you have lowered yourself to their standards and it is dog-eat-dog.

Loving the brothers is a relaxed mental attitude free of mental attitude sins; it is impersonal love under the filling of the Spirit. It is not overt friendliness or an effusive amount of attention.

The honor code excludes the production of divine good in order to gain blessing. These things are a part of the Christian life; and a function of growth.

Romans 14:5 For on the one hand this one [the weak believer] considers one day greater than another day; on the other hand that one [the strong believer] considers every day alike [for the Lord]. Let each one be fully convinced in his own mind.

This verse emphasizes the royal family honor code. This must be corrected by doctrine only and not by spiritual bullying. It is not our job to straighten out people. We give the doctrine and let them accept it or reject it.

Romans 14:6 The one regarding the day, regards it to the Lord; the one eating, eats to the Lord, for he gives thanks to God; and the one not eating, does not eat to the Lord and gives thanks to God. (BLB)

Verse 6 – “He that regardeth the day, regardeth it unto the Lord.” This begins with the present active participle from the verb phroneô (φρονέω) [pronounced fron-EH-oh] which means to think, and to be able to form an opinion from that thought. It means to have a thought or an attitude about something because of previous information. The verb phroneô (φρονέω) [pronounced fron-EH-oh] is used for practical application. It means to take the norms and standards of the conscience of the soul, put them into the frame of reference and memory centre, and then send them out to the launching pad in application to life. It means application as well as thought. So in this verse phroneô (φρονέω) [pronounced fron-EH-oh] is the practical application of the verb krinô (κρίνω) [pronounced KREE-no] which means to judge in the previous verse. As the adult person sets aside his immaturity, so the mature believer sets aside his childish thoughts of legalism. Doctrine formed in the soul resulting in a new conscience also causes him to have moral courage, no hang-ups, no arrogance.

God deals with their sins. We try to step in and fix them, and we get this discipline. People have ludicrous standards and ridiculous ideas; let them do this or that. Do not superimpose standards of weakness on others. Let them alone. Doctrine is the issue. What they do is mostly related to nonessentials. No need to worry about the nonessentials.

Every summer, we have the best looking girls and guys in church; and they claim to come down to Berachah for doctrine. Many of them do. We get an extra thousand every summer. They have a I just got up; where do I go from here? look.

The definite article is used as a personal pronoun for the believer in different stages of growth. Different believers are in different stages of spiritual growth and therefore have different convictions based upon knowledge or ignorance of doctrine. In this case the definite article is used for the mature believer. Each believer must be convinced in his own mind and avoid spiritual bullying of others, whether it is legalistic bullying or antinomian bullying. So with spiritual growth from perception of doctrine these opinions will change as divine standards fill the conscience. But they must be changed by doctrine and not by self-righteous and opinionated legalism, or distorting grace—antinomianism. They must be reciprocal recognition of the privacy of the priesthood in various stages of growth.

The present tense is a customary present, it denotes what habitually occurs or may be reasonably expected to occur with the mature believer regarding every day alike. The active voice: the mature or strong believer produces the action of the verb. The participle is circumstantial.

With this is the accusative singular direct object from hêmera (ἡμέρα) [pronounced hay-MEH-raw]. God gives us capital: one day at a time. He expects us to exercise our volition in the use of our priorities. “He who observes the day.” This is the one who observes the day as unto the Lord.

Then the present active indicative of the verb phroneô (φρονέω) [pronounced fron-EH-oh] again, meaning to think, to apply, to have information and be able to apply it, therefore to observe. The present tense is a retroactive progressive present denoting what has begun in the past at the point of maturity and continuing into the present as the function, the modus vivendi, of the strong believer. The active voice: the strong believer produces the action. The indicative mood is declarative representing the verbal idea from the viewpoint of unqualified assertion.

With it is the dative singular indirect object from the noun kurios (κύριος) [pronounced KOO-ree-oss], representing the Lord Jesus Christ as the prince ruler of the Church. The indicative mood is declarative giving the concept of the verbal idea from the viewpoint of reality. This is called the mood of unqualified assertion. With it must be an object or a direct object and the indirect object is kurios (κύριος) [pronounced KOO-ree-oss]. This is an anarthrous construction, i.e. there is no definite article in the Greek. We have to add a definite article for smooth English because the lack of a definite article in the Greek is comparable to the use of the definite article in English. It all adds up to the fact that “he who observes the day observes it to the Lord.”

The mature believer is the one in view, he observes every day in the perspective of Bible doctrine, i.e. just as the Lord provides food, shelter and clothing, and property as a means of acquiring these things; this is a part of logistical grace or being sustained, but it would be impossible to utilize these things unless you had something else from God in which to do it—and environment provided by God. The environment is temporal. He provides us 24 hours, and then after that He gives us another 24 hours, and then another. That day is just as important as all of the things that we utilize in that day—money, food, clothing, shelter, pleasure, or whatever we use money for. All of these things would be useless unless we had an environment in which to use them, and this is not planet earth as such, it is time in which planet earth is functioning. It is necessary to recognize this as a gift from God.

Lesson #429

429 06/04/1978 Romans 14:6b Greek definite article; priorities; work maintains sanity; Bible doctrine for Indians

Romans 14:6 The one regarding the day, regards it to the Lord; the one eating, eats to the Lord, for he gives thanks to God; and the one not eating, does not eat to the Lord and gives thanks to God. (BLB)

“and he that regardeth not the day, to the Lord he doth not regard it” – this phrase, while it occurs next in the KJV, is not found in the original Greek. Therefore we have to omit it at this point. The omission of this phrase indicates that to regard to certain days as holy and others as not holy is not what this passage is saying.

Two paragraphs from the Greek exegesis of the previous lesson are repeated.

Much of the New Testament is written in the idiom of the Greek; so it is not necessarily good to have a strictly literal translation.

Criticisms of the RSV; some were upset that a definite article was not translated. Scholarship is silenced before the dollar sign.

There can be no privacy without freedom and property. The Lord provides needs, which is logistical grace. The same thing is true when it comes to food. It takes property to stay alive. God has provided the means to attain and acquire property.

Our environment is not earth exactly; it is time. In that rotation of the earth, God provides us the necessary items for that day. We should recognize this as a gift from God. We show up for Bible class and we recognize that we need to assign some time to our #1 priority. Whatever we do in any given day, we need to insert some divine viewpoint.

God has provided work. Work is the basis for orientation to life and capacity for life. Behind the brow, we have the mentality.

We would not enjoy the weekend without the actual work. This allows us to get away from the office or the job; and you have some contrast set up. There are movements trying to see to it that we get an automatic income. What would this life be if we did not have a day at a time to earn some money.

Life is made up of contrasts. Work is related to time to keep the human race sane. Insanity exists wherever socialism exists; or where the welfare state exists.

One man from Texas kept trying Congress to abolish work and death.

Every twenty-four hours is a blessing from God. What is most important? Few would say work; but work provides sanity in life. Freedom without sanity is destroyed freedom. People even want to take guns away from the police and from the military.

All of our blessings in life and sanity is all related to time. Time has never failed. This goes on, day in and day out. Science has never discovered the reason for this, which is the faithfulness of God. Man in his failure to appreciate time. Cæsar in his genius restored accurate time to Rome.

How have you used your time? If you have used the time given you by God, what is important, after work?

The idea that you might partying day in and day out; and that becomes hard work. John Barrymore would get drunk and start up a Shakespear play, playing all the parts; and then passing out.

Because he human race produces good and evil; and we have too much time on our hands; and we are destroying freedom by trying to do good. And sin is parlayed into time. Work is the great stabilizer.

The pastor who does not study and teach, he has to come up with ideas for his congregation to do. That pastor is not working. No work means no sanity.

There is a change in the attitudes of people as time continues. Thieme's original people who came here worked hard and changed the environment for the good. They were very sane people.

The people who wrote the Constitution were sane people. They did not have time for a lot of goofy ideas. We have too much time and we are educated beyond our abilities. This just gives a person arrogance and ambition. People lose track of the principle of a day at a time. Because people do not work in college, they come out with a degree; but they are disorganized with regards to time. This is a woman who has no experience in life after a few months in a government job tries to shut down a plant.

In colonial days, there was a missionary to the Indians. He knew that the Indians needed evangelism and then doctrine. But they did not work enough. We have lost the knack of how to enjoy life because we are not working. We need to achieve something; and as a result, we are mentally stable. That is sanity.

And he that regardeth not the day, is not found in the original. Someone thought that they would help Paul and his genius.

We are observing this second together; and the next and the next.

Now we eat our meat raw or barely singed. We can do this; but do not suggest to others by saying, this gives me great blessing from God.

Lesson #430

430 06/09/1978 Romans 14 Flexibility in the military, Sir Claude Auchinleck; tolerance of the weak believer; heroes and norms

We must have human freedom, and property and privacy. The essentials in the doctrinal realm; we can be flexible with some things and inflexible with regards to others. We might say the weak believer is a sociopathic personality.

Some one that Bob met wanted to know more about the essential and nonessential; and said that there was a great deal of application to the military.

Review of the translation:

Sir Claude Auchinleck was very tall, very handsome. He went out to India and he found his niche. He was a man of great flexibility. He was inflexible about certain things in life; but very flexible about warfare. He did not agree that the British Indian army should have Indians moved up to officer rank.

He worked out combining armor and a mechanized infantry. He was often rejected in the approaches he wanted to do.

Churchill made some bad decisions. Rommel feared only Auchinleck. He was a brilliant general and there are so few men with this kind of brilliance. Montgomery is the greatest jackass; but there was also the one who led the first French army.

Auchinleck was the greatest man of WWII, and we don't even know his name.

The weak believers has weak norms and standards; and he does not have enough Bible doctrine to know where to be flexible and inflexible.

Bob cannot find any justification for baptism later in the Church Age. Bob can win debates hand over fist; but that won't win people over to doctrine.

"He that eateth, eateth to the Lord" – this is a continuation of the concept as related to the royal family honor code; "for he gives thanks to the God."

Bob talks about the stewardesses; and two had been unprofessional. A Black stewardess was very professional. Bob goes on about this thing for quite awhile.

Next Bob goes off on actors and actresses. They are the least interesting people in the world.

"It's pitiful the way that people think."

Lesson #431

431 06/11/1978 Romans 14:6c Ike and military doctrine; manners; application of the weak believer; keep the standard until Bible doctrine changes it

We need to be on the same ground when it comes to the weak and the strong believer. The strong believer is inflexible with regards to the essentials; totally flexible with regards to the nonessentials.

Ike is a good example of this. He is underrated, misunderstood. He shortened WWII by his decisions. He graduated at the head of his class. He was considered to be the best tactician and one of the better strategists. He had the ability to distinguish between the essentials and the nonessentials. He knew when to be flexible and when not to be.

There were many great military men who could be inflexible with regards to the doctrine that was in their souls.

Great advances in medicine occurred because they could recognize the difference between essential and nonessential. In every area of life, these principles hold true. God has given us a relatively short time and objectives. We are in the midst of studying these things.

The weak believer is flexible with regards to doctrine, but inflexible when it comes to his application of doctrine. The strong believer is flexible with the application of doctrine; but inflexible with regards to Bible doctrine. When a person says that only vegetarians are spiritual; that is a false norm and standard. He is inflexible due to arrogance. It is arrogance that we must observe certain holy days and in a certain way.

Arrogance in the soul is a great weakness. It always fails to recognize that none of us are going to be perfect in this life.

Translation reviewed.

The weak believers have norms and standards already in place, from many places; and they try to force these on others. Bob's father taught him all about manners. You never argue with a host or hostess; you do not argue with their honored guest. You do not discuss religion or politics. This is a lesson in flexibility in the nonessentials. Fundies are abominable when it comes to manners and their personal opinions. We tolerate things in children that you would never tolerate in adults. Bob does not know what was done before diapers, but it must have been awful. New believers are operating in diapers.

The strong believer must tolerate the weaker believer. It is an occupational hazard for the strong believer to judge or to straighten out the weak believer. This is why violence is so wrong to solve the driving problems of others; or violence is used for political goals. It is wrong for military types to use violence to gain their authority over others. This reflects poorly on the leader.

Privacy of the priesthood is necessary for determining the standards of doctrine.

We tolerate one another. We do not make an issue of how you dress or what you drive or how you groom yourself. By doing this, you can move forward with the essentials.

Then comes the application of the immature believer. This is not the weak believer reversionist, this is the weak believer immature. The weak immature believer is positive toward doctrine, he simply doesn't have enough yet to form norms and standards that are compatible with God's plan for his life. The reversionist weak believer is negative toward doctrine. Always remember the attitude toward the weak believer is toleration. The attitude toward the weak believer negative to doctrine is separation. In neither case is straightening him out the order of the day—trying to impose your views on him. Doctrine is always the issue in the spiritual life, therefore toleration toward the weak believer who is positive toward.

Principle

1. At this point we are dealing with an immature believer who is positive toward Bible doctrine and not involved in some form of reversionism. He just simply hasn't been exposed long enough yet to learn certain things which would change his mental attitude and change his norms and standards.

2. While the immature believer has enough doctrine to be grateful to the Lord to have thanksgiving, he does not understand that food is not in the issue of the spiritual life. He suffers from the food taboo problem. He thinks of God perhaps as a super-ascetic. He may be very sincere and he will only eat vegetables. If he is to change his eating habits, that is to come from learning Bible doctrine. This is not to come from ridicule or by social pressure.
3. This food principle also applies to wine and alcoholic beverage. While the Bible permits the drinking of alcoholic beverage, alcoholic beverage has several great problems. One of them is the person who has no self-discipline, no self-control, and has no authority orientation to life, and inevitably he becomes the town drunk. Many a wife has steered her husband away from salvation by nagging them about their drinking. There are things to be inflexible about, like marijuana and narcotics. You do not learn all of these things overnight. People want to be your conscience for you, they are wrong to do this.
4. The mature believer must not regard with contempt the standard of the immature believer who only drinks water and eats vegetables. Nor should the immature believer judge the mature believer who drinks wine and eats meat. There is room for different standards under the privacy of the priesthood which is the central part of the honor code. These things must be observed so that each believer can develop his norms and standards from the perception of Bible doctrine. So every royal priest has the right to privacy and conviction which is compatible with his personal stage of growth. One believer cannot adopt the standards of a more mature believer without doctrine first, but if he is simply copying someone else he is weak and in trouble. This person may emulate someone in asceticism or in legalism; and this is not the way to develop norms and standards.

Whatever your norms are, just stay with doctrine and adopt the norms and standards from Bible doctrine and not from people. The standards of the vegetarian cannot become the standards of the meat-eater.

Romans 14:6 The one regarding the day, regards it to the Lord; the one eating, eats to the Lord, for he gives thanks to God; and the one not eating, does not eat to the Lord and gives thanks to God. (BLB)

“and he that eateth not, to the Lord he eateth not” – the emphatic use of the conjunction kai is translated “in fact.” Then the articular present active participle from esthiô (ἐσθίω) [pronounced es-THEE-oh] plus the negative mê (μή) [pronounced may]. The definite article is used as a personal pronoun for the immature believer who is positive toward doctrine but does not have enough doctrine.

When you take away a person’s norms and standards, without doctrine taking up the slack, and that destroys him. This chapter is not simple; there is a lot of application.

Bob, when he came out of a free society in Beverly Hills tolerated his thinking, allowing doctrine to make the changes in him.

We are divided in Christianity because everyone is inflexible in the nonessentials. There is not too much doctrine being taught today.

The present tense is a customary present in this participle, it denotes what habitually occurs with regard to the immature believer and his trends toward asceticism. The active voice: the immature believer is positive toward doctrine but producing the action of the verb because he is still weak in doctrine and doesn't know any better. He doesn't need someone to jump all over him, he needs to be respected with regard to his privacy. In him is +R, and given a chance doctrine will straighten everything out. The participle is circumstantial for the modus operandi of the weak believer who is positive toward doctrine—"in fact, he who does not eat."

There are people in Berachah who think that South Africa and Rhodesia are terrible places. We just let them be.

Almost every great ecclesiastical body in the country criticizes Berachah Church policies.

Principle

1. The immature believer in the privacy of his priesthood, living his life as unto the Lord and observing certain food taboos which are related to his background and standards of conscience, is not going to be right many times. But then, when were any of us ever right all of the time. There is a little arrogance in everyone who has to straighten everyone out.
2. Here is an ascetic who refrains from drinking wine or eating meat, and he does this as unto the Lord. In other words, we have to say he is sincere in what he is doing. In his sincerity he associates it with the Lord. (We know, of course, that sincerity is not a virtue and that knowledge of doctrine is a virtue) He is sincere and he does think he is living his life as unto the Lord, and there is no reason for you to tell him he isn't. If you refrain from telling him he will hear doctrine along the way and make the proper applications, and be a stable person with stable normal growth, instead of being bullied into a course of action to which later he may react.
3. The problem really lies with the immature believer who is tempted to judge the freedom of the mature believer in eating meat and drinking wine offered to idols. God does not dislike vegetables. Obviously, there is nothing wrong with them. Obviously, God allows them to grow and they are sustaining and healthy. This believer is not doing anything wrong; so don't try to convert him to meat. Too many fundies are insensitive to what other people are thinking and doing.
4. Here is where the privacy of the priesthood as a basic tenet of the honor code must be applied in all cases.
5. Respect a person's privacy in public.
6. Both weak and strong believers have a right to the privacy of their priesthood. Their standards and modus vivendi are a part of their privacy.

7. Therefore the mature believer must tolerate, while the immature believer must avoid maligning, judgment, gossip. Live and let live is the standing order for the function of the royal family of God.

Bob ran into an old friend who was in really bad shape. He used to go all over and give his testimony; but all he had were legalistic standards. He had been bullied into a course of action; and there was no application that he could be flexible. Bob has found many people from these gung ho organizations had wiped out in their Christian lives.

We are not trying to determine do we eat meat or not; do we drink wine or not. Doctrine has to be the issue.

Romans 14:6 The one regarding the day, regards it to the Lord; the one eating, eats to the Lord, for he gives thanks to God; and the one not eating, does not eat to the Lord and gives thanks to God. (BLB)

“to the Lord he eateth not” – the dative of reference singular, kurios (κύριος) [pronounced KOO-ree-oss], which is also dative of advantage because it is to our advantage to do whatever we are doing as unto the Lord. It is to our advantage and the Lord’s advantage to have revealed Himself to us in His attributes, His plan, His policies, His functions which are a major part of doctrine. We translate this “with reference to the Lord.” Then the present active indicative of esthiō (ἐσθίω) [pronounced es-THEE-oh] and the negative ou (οὐ) [pronounced oo] because of the indicative mood. The retroactive progressive present denotes a standard in the past which is being applied to the present, the standard being asceticism. The active voice: the weak or the immature believer produces the action. The indicative mood is declarative representing the verbal action from the viewpoint of reality. This is what is happening: with reference to the Lord he does not eat.

“and giveth God thanks” – Then the connective kai plus the present active indicative of eucharisteō (εὐχαριστέω) [pronounced yew-khahr-ih-STEH-oh]. This is a customary present, it denotes what habitually occurs with the immature believer who is positive toward doctrine in contrast to the reversionistic believer. The active voice: the immature believer produces the action, he gives thanks. The indicative mood is declarative for the reality of the fact that this immature, weak believer is living his life as unto the Lord with what he has. He just doesn’t have much in the way of doctrine yet. With what he has he is doing the best he can, so why should he be handicapped by a lot of smart mature believers who use him as the butt of their jokes, ridicule him and make fun of him?

Under the principle of the function of the privacy of the priesthood certain functions demand both toleration and understanding on the part of the mature believer. The more doctrine you have the greater your responsibility to be sensitive to those in your periphery, believers and unbelievers. If you are a boss, you should be sensitive to those who are under you.

Each believer must live his life as unto the Lord. Believers are not required to meet the standards of other believers (exception, parents and children). Instead, these people must meet God's standards for that stage of growth. God is flexible and He has different standards for people at different points of growth.

Principle

1. As long as the weak believer does not assume that his observation of a taboo or ascetic function is spirituality or a means of blessing from God he is in no danger of reversionism. This is a personal problem that he must work out for himself.
2. For the weak believer to assume that any taboo or the observation of a holy day is spiritual or an advance to maturity is, of course, apostasy. While it is apostasy and incompatible with the Word it can be straightened out by doctrine if he will just continue in doctrine. Therefore while he is wrong he must be permitted to continue in doctrine without making an issue over this non-essential. Some people are doing jobs when church is in session. Or they have jobs that deal with things they resent (like a pastor who made those working in a brewery; or made a person quit who swept out a bar). It is none of business. We may have call girls who came over from Daddy's Money. Do not try to straighten people out.
3. The key in this verse is the giving of thanks to God. Both kinds do it. That means they are living their life as unto the Lord, even though they certainly don't have doctrine in one case and lots of it in the other. It indicates positive volition toward doctrine whether it is a weak or a strong believer. The key is giving thanks to God, whether being a weak or strong believer.

Parents can set any policy that they want for their children.

1977 Romans

Lesson #432

432 06/11/1978 Romans 14:6–7a Variance in spiritual growth re the royal family honor code; Patton; freedom guarantees inequality

Romans 14:6 He who observes the day [mature believer] observes it to the Lord. And he who eats [mature believer], eats to the Lord; for he gives thanks to God; in fact he who does not eat [weak or immature believer], with reference to the Lord he does not eat, and he gives thanks to God.

Principle

1. Variance in spiritual growth does not hinder either Christian fellowship or Christian relationship, sometimes called interaction.
2. The command to love the brethren includes not only respect for divine righteousness imputed and resident in another but tolerance, taking cognizance of spiritual growth. The first lesson in spiritual sensitivity is to realize that no two believers have attained the same stage of spiritual growth. No two believers have exactly the same amount of doctrine resident in the soul.
3. The privacy of the royal priesthood guarantees that immature believers can have erroneous standards through ignorance of doctrine and not be ostracized or regarded with contempt by those who are mature believers who have the correct doctrine and the correct application. It is important to remember that none of us in this life are perfect and none of us will ever be perfect in this life. Just as we are at different stages of growth we also have different failures and weaknesses, and the issue is not what failures or weaknesses that we have but the importance of taking in Bible doctrine no matter who you are.

4. The privacy of the priesthood allows for variation and application without hindering objectivity in perception and correction of false standards by continued perception of the Word. On other words, we are to be corrected, our standards are to be corrected, because we must become a by-product of the new birth rather than a product of our environment. The new birth cancels whatever handicaps environment presented to us in life. This can only be accomplished as Bible doctrine enters the soul and replaces the norms and standards that we have there.
5. The privacy of the priesthood permits the believer to continue to advance to maturity in spite of false norms and sins which are forgiven through the rebound technique.
6. While sins are forgiven through rebound and the believer is restored to fellowship and the filling of the Spirit, only perception of additional doctrine can correct the false norms and standards which characterize the weak believer. You can rebound and rebound and rebound, and you will always be forgiven, always restored to fellowship, always be filled with the Spirit once more; but, rebound does not change the standards in your soul, and in order to become a product of regeneration you must have standards based on doctrine.
7. The privacy of the priesthood guarantees that being in error does not preclude or hinder spiritual advance to maturity and glorification of our Lord Jesus Christ.

Romans 14:6 He who observes the day [mature believer] observes it to the Lord. And he who eats [mature believer], eats to the Lord; for he gives thanks to God; in fact he who does not eat [weak or immature believer], with reference to the Lord he does not eat, and he gives thanks to God.

Principle

1. The royal family honor code demands that every believer positive toward doctrine be tolerated within the framework of his maintained privacy so that he can objectively assimilate doctrine taught in the local church.
2. However, if such a believer is negative toward doctrine and destroys his own privacy by judging, maligning, gossiping about other believers, then this believer must be removed from the congregation where he can learn doctrine and grow. If a believer is positive toward doctrine and destroys his own privacy by judging, maligning and gossiping about other believers, then this believer must be removed from the congregation where his positive volition would carry him to maturity but his decisions to intrude upon the privacy of others forestalls the possibility, at least in that local church. These believers must learn heir lesson and move to some other local church where they can receive doctrine and grown in grace.

3. There is a difference between essential doctrine and non-essential application. When a believer rejects essential doctrine then he must be separated from the congregation of the orthodox believers or he will separate himself. By “he must be separated” is meant that his reversionism causes him to decide to separate himself or his reversionism motivates him to gossip, malign, and judge, and in so doing comes under the policy of being removed for that. How can a believer move forward in the Christian walk if he is being gossiped about and maligned and judged?
4. By essential doctrine is meant such things as the deity of Christ, the humanity of Christ, the hypostatic union, salvation through faith in Christ, the doctrine of eternal security, etc.
5. There can be no variation in the essential, doctrine, but there can exist many variations in the non-essentials—many applications that are inaccurate when you are mature but because of lack of doctrine they are accurate to you. Things that are actually wrong are tolerated simply because they are wrong with the person who doesn’t know better and who is positive toward doctrine, and who, given a chance, will grow up and from doctrine replace false norms with true norms.
6. Non-essential application is related to immaturity and lack of knowledge of pertinent doctrine.
7. To deny the validity of this distinction between essential and non-essential truths is to live in the realm of inflexible error or puritanical arrogance. Differences with regard to diet or holy days must not be the basis for denying a believer correct and accurate Bible teaching.

Romans 14:6 He who observes the day [mature believer] observes it to the Lord. And he who eats [mature believer], eats to the Lord; for he gives thanks to God; in fact he who does not eat [weak or immature believer], with reference to the Lord he does not eat, and he gives thanks to God.

Principle

1. It is essential that every believer lives his life as unto the Lord and not to please man—neither to please man nor to retaliate against man.
2. This is only possible through the constant intake of doctrine as a result of the constant function of GAP.
3. To observe a days as unto the Lord and to eat as unto the Lord, or to abstain from certain foods as unto the Lord, is the second key to this verse.
4. Spiritual freedom is the heritage of the royal priesthood.
5. Privacy is a part of that freedom but the decision as unto the Lord is another part of that freedom. If you do it as unto the Lord you may be incorrect or you may be correct, but which ever is the case privacy must be emphasized for objectivity in approaching the Word of God.
6. Each believer has the right and the freedom to determine application on the basis of the doctrine he possesses, not the doctrine someone else possesses.

7. Where doctrine is constantly and consistently taught and where perception of that doctrine is on a daily basis there is no problem. The problem occurs when either the believer is negative toward doctrine, the absolute criterion, or where doctrine is not available on a daily basis leaving the believer in spiritual limbo or in a state of spiritual anarchy.
8. Therefore this places the issue where it belongs—in the royal family of God. Acceptance with God is the true norm for the right to Christian fellowship.

The Concept of Verse 6

1. The royal family honor code binds the strong and the weak believer together in a mutual system of advancing to maturity. We are bound together in the body of Christ, another synonym for royal family. We are bound together in order to advance to maturity and to glorify the Lord Jesus Christ and in the mutual advance in the plan of God in such a manner as to overshadow the differences of opinions between us in the area of non-essentials. Non-essentials also includes the fact that many believers are ignorant of doctrine but they are positive toward doctrine, and therefore they are absolutely wrong in many of their applications to the Christian life. It is not our job to point out the fact that they are wrong, to straighten them up, but to make sure that the way is clear for them to learn doctrine so that they through their own perception of doctrine can establish the norms and standards for the Christian life. This means they are not to be subjected to either hero worship and emulation from it, or to be subjected to spiritual bullying and resultant legalism.
2. While toleration of application is a function of the royal family honor code, apathy or indifference to the distinction between doctrine and error is never tolerated. You can be wrong about doctrine but if you are indifferent to inaccurate doctrine then this cannot be tolerated. In other words, you aren't going to be tolerated if you are in the tongues movement.
3. There may be a difference of application of doctrine because of different stages of spiritual growth, but there is one body of essential doctrine where variance becomes error and misinterpretation becomes apostasy. This is the essential.
4. The honor code demands rigid inflexible adherence to the essential, doctrine taught from the Word of God. Without that rigid adherence to the essential one's norms and standards cannot be changed in one's own soul. Therefore there is no advance to maturity.
5. Variation in application does not permit or give consent to variation in essential doctrine.
6. Learn to distinguish between absolute doctrine and the variation of application.
7. Variations of growth and different stages of ignorance do not change the absolute truth of Bible doctrine.
8. This is illustrated by the two controversies in context: the food taboos and the observation of holy days. Principle: Two Christians can believe in the deity of Christ, which is an absolute, and yet differ in their attitude toward diet and holy days. Two Christians can accept the doctrine of the baptism of the Holy Spirit which unites them in the body of Christ, yet differ in their attitude toward food taboos and holy days. Two Christians can subscribe to the pre-Tribulational Rapture of the Church, yet differ in their attitude toward food taboos and holy days. Two Christians can understand and thoroughly accept the doctrine of the attributes of God and yet differ in their application with regard to food taboos and holy days. This is the difference between essential doctrine and non-essential application.

Luxemburg recognizes what the United States did to provide them with their freedom and independence.

Romans 14:7 For none of us lives to himself, and no one dies to himself. (BLB)

Verse 7 – gathering together everything that we have learned we understand immediately that in the body of Christ there is relationship, interaction, the opportunity to hear each other to know each other, to explain things in the presence of each other, and yet to maintain the high standards of the royal family honor code. In many ways and in many things we differ, and yet we are bound together not only by such doctrines as the baptism of the Spirit and the imputation of divine righteousness, but we are bound together in our differences of spiritual growth, in the difference of content of doctrine in the soul, by the royal family honor code. This demands that those who have grown up tolerate the weak and demand that the weak not judge the strong.

“For none of us liveth to himself” – the explanatory use of the postpositive conjunctive particle gar, “For.” Then the nominative singular subject, an adjective used as a substantive, oudeis (οὐδεὶς) [pronounced oo-DICE], meaning no one or not one. Here the corrected translation is “For not one.” Plus the genitive plural from the personal pronoun egó (ἐγώ) [pronounced ehg-OH], a descriptive genitive for the entire royal family of God—“us,” and the present active indicative of the verb zaô (ζάω) [pronounced DZAH-oh]—“lives.” The present tense is a pictorial present, it pictures phase two or the believer in time in the process of living. The active voice: the believer produces the action of the verb as a part of the plan of God. God has a plan for the life of every believer living and therefore life has meaning and purpose for each one of us. The believer must no longer live his life for his own personal interest or his own personal self-gratification as such, but he lives his life as unto the Lord. However it is impossible to live your life as unto the Lord unless you understand that you are connected with other people who are living their life as unto the Lord. The active voice: the believer no longer lives his life for his own personal interest, he lives his life as unto the Lord. Note from the previous verse that both the weak and the strong believer, the immature and the mature, both give thanks to God. Next is the dative of advantage or disadvantage, depending upon your status quo, from the reflexive pronoun heautou (ἑαυτοῦ) [pronounced heh-ow-TOO]—“for himself.” We have here “For not one of us lives for himself,” not “to himself.” When the action expressed by the verb is referred back to its own subject the word is called reflexive.

Principle

1. Because every believer is a royal ambassador the purpose of his life is changed so that he comes out ahead as if he were living for self. No matter how you think you have failed you are still ahead because you are an ambassador. We are not living for self in a selfish concept but we are now living as unto the Lord. He surpasses and exceeds living for self. The reversionist has these concepts and they are anti-normal and anti-Christian.

2. Because every believer is a royal priest he possesses a freedom and privacy to advance to the objectives of phase two: maturity adjustment to the justice of God and resultant blessing in time imputed. Equal opportunity means we are guaranteed inequality.
3. In other words, every believer is free to use his freedom to advance to inequality.
4. The pseudo sacrifice ideas of equality is the farce of socialism. Socialism is a system of thinking in terms of evil.
5. There is no equality among believers in either time or eternity.
6. All believers have freedom to advance to maturity but all believers do not use that freedom to follow the plan of God for such an advance. As soon as they do, they create inequality. If you are able to advance, then you will be unequal to others. We start out equal in salvation; but we use our freedom at that point to advance or to stay in the same place; or to retrogress.
7. There is neither equality in heaven nor in time because we have freedom. Freedom guarantees inequality.
8. Freedom does not guarantee or manufacture equality in the human race; freedom guarantees and manufactures inequality in the human race.
9. Therefore equality is a myth; freedom is a reality.
10. God starts all believers at the new birth as equals through the 36 things provided at salvation.
11. From that point on inequality must exist through the use of freedom.
12. Freedom does not guarantee equality, it guarantees inequality.
13. Some believers are mature; some believers are immature. This is inequality. Some believers are positive toward doctrine; some are negative. This is the basis for that inequality. But everyone is free to have the same chance. Attitude toward doctrine in the Christian life determines whether we move ahead or not.

People who sit around on the butts demand equality; or they pass laws in order to take positions of authority; and knock others out.

Inequality guarantees equality; and equality guarantees inequality.

If marriage was equal, then there would be no love. A woman is not going to be equal to her husband.

Pastors are not equal. Some study hard and move ahead. All pastors are free to study.

Grace demands inequality. That is why we have this passage to deal with inequalities. It is because we are not equal. Inequalities in those who are subjective produce hangups.

433 06/12/1978 Romans 14 Live life as unto the Lord; freedom guarantees inequality; toleration of different opinions

Translation review.

Romans 14:7a For not one of us lives for himself,...

Bob had a conference in Atlanta. Extremely well-run conferences. People from New Hampshire, Connecticut, everyone one of the confederate states, some from the west coast. 400–500 people there, even though the tape group there is 12–15.

Bob thinks that face to face is inferior to listening on tape.

Bob was offered television prime time; but he said no. He is unsure about video at this point. The objective is always to get the message out. Anyone who speaks publically has something which is distracting in his face or mannerisms.

Review of previous set of principles.

Taxation drives out incentive by over-taxing. They try to teach that corporate presidents are just scum and no better than anyone else; but they are.

Take two people who work toward the same goal, president of a company. Sometimes a person may lack the intelligence or the attractiveness to advance. Because of this, only Christianity has a plan. Advance in Christianity is not based upon human abilities. You can advance with any sort of human condition. You are always in a position where you are unlimited.

Principle

1. While this phrase emphasizes living one's life as unto the Lord it also applies to the principle of toleration of differences of opinion in the area of non-essential application.
 - a. God has a plan for your life; and that is an essential.
 - b. Bob is not sure about videotape. That is a non-essential. Churches have been split over much more asinine things than that.
2. There must be agreement on essentials such as Bible doctrine but there must be tolerance in the area of non-essentials—background and environmental applications from religious legalism or heathenism modus vivendi.
3. Only the mature believer can discern between essentials and non-essentials, therefore the mature believer is required to tolerate. The more you grow spiritually the greater your responsibility to the family of God: to be sensitive to the feelings of others, the opinions of others in the sense of toleration. This is impersonal love.
 - a. Telling every person that you love them is psychotic.

4. The immature believer has a tendency to judge and to persecute the nonessentials, therefore the immature or weak believer is commanded not to judge others.
5. Therefore the principle is epitomised from the previous verse where immature and mature, weak and strong, both give thanks to God. The weak believer thanks God for his vegetables; and the strong believer thanks God for all of the food he has.
6. Our purpose in this life is to live our lives as unto the Lord regardless of our stage of growth or our categories in Christianity. None of us lives for self, we live for the Lord.
7. God is the source of both life and blessing.
8. Two categories of life have been imputed at birth: human life to the soul, and at the new birth eternal life to the human spirit.
9. Regeneration is the Holy Spirit providing a human spirit as the home or the target for the imputation of eternal life. No exceptions: your race, your background, your attractiveness, your unattractiveness. We have freedom; freedom to resolve the angelic conflict.
10. This human spirit is the home or the residence for eternal life, just as the soul is the residence for human life.
11. The blessing is imputed at maturity adjustment to the justice of God as the means, the mechanics of glorifying God. It is the imputation of blessing in six categories that glorifies God.
12. Therefore we live our lives not to self but to God. For not one of us lives for self...
13. By living for self we never discover the meaning and purpose of life and we never enjoy the fullness of blessing from God as believers. But by living for God we discover the true meaning of life, we have capacity, we have blessing and reward in life from the justice of God. In having these things we glorify God.

Not one of us lives for himself... What does that mean? It is all about how we use our freedom. That freedom is what establishes our inequalities.

1977 Romans

Lesson #434

434 06/13/1978 Romans 14:7b William E. Simon: "Time for Truth", freedom cf. the USSR; dative of advantage (dying grace) or disadvantage (sin unto death)

William E. Simon was secretary of the treasury 1970–1974 (I may have gotten those dates wrong). Also, he was the assistant secretary of the treasury. He writes a book. He quotes Woodrow Wilson, saying something about government and freedom. Bob does not like the Soviet Union, does not want to travel there, and it has the dullest history Bob ever studied. Simon writes about being in the Soviet Union. The facades they wore masked all real feelings. All foreign travelers are in a cocoon and you never see anything that they do not want you to see. There is no religious freedom in Russia. We knew that outside the cocoon, there was the oppressed masses. Only the most pleasurable sights and sounds had been allowed to us to see. When the plane lifted off the ground, there was spontaneous applause.

Freedom guarantees inequality. We must understand freedom; and we must reject equality as a goal.

Bob never liked science fiction. He enjoyed romance; but not Buck Rogers.

Romans 14:7 For none of us lives to himself, and no one dies to himself. (BLB)

“and no man dieth to himself” – dealing with the final phase of our life on this earth: dying. The connective use of the conjunction kai indicates that there is sequence here—“and.” It means that death follows life. Then the nominative singular subject from the adjective oudeis (οὐδεὶς) [pronounced oo-DICE]—“not one,” refers to believers. All believers are in the plan of God for both living in time and dying in time. The exception will be the Rapture generation. In other words, God has a plan for our living, God has a plan for our dying; God has made provision for our living, God has provision for our dying. This means that those believers in reversionism who die the sin unto death are not in the will of God in their dying. God wants everyone to go out under dying grace which is the transitional glory. We glorify God by reaching maturity and the manifestation of that glorification in the imputation of blessing in time.

We do not know if anyone is Berachah is dead; we will know after the closing prayer.

The present active indicative of the verb apothnêskô (ἀποθνῄσκω) [pronounced op-ohth-NACE-koh] means to die—“and not one dies.” The futuristic present is one in which the present tense denotes an event which has not yet occurred, but it is regarded as so certain that in thought it is contemplated as already occurring. Death is future for all of us, but death is so real that we think of it as occurring now in order to understand the passage. The active voice: the believer produces the action of the verb, with the exception of the Rapture generation. The indicative mood is declarative for an unqualified statement of fact.

The verb is followed by the dative of advantage or disadvantage. Under the concept of dative of advantage the life and death of the believer are great blessings due to the fact that the believer has taken in doctrine every day consistently. The believer has been stabilized by transferring (by academic perception doctrine) from the page of the Word to the soul, not directly by reading the Bible but indirectly through the communication of a pastor-teacher. This is the means by which he grows and by which he fulfils the dative of advantage. If you are advancing life only gets better. It doesn't mean that you don't have problems or suffering but the blessings are greater and greater so that living is fantastic; dying is only better—the process of dying, not death. The advantage comes always from maximum doctrine resident in your own soul. It results in maturity adjustment to the justice of God and resultant glorification of the Lord Jesus Christ. There is only dative of disadvantage for the believer who rejects doctrine, who lives out his life in negative volition. The disadvantage occurs in the case of the reversionistic believer.

Romans 14:7 For not one of us lives for himself, and not one of us dies for himself.”

The frantic search for happiness then becomes operation boomerang. Your reaction is intensified. It is to our disadvantage to become negative toward doctrine; and to enter into the frantic search for happiness and then operational boomerang. Then you turn into an emotional wreck.

Lesson #435

435 06/14/1978 Romans 14:8a Simon: free enterprise; necessity for original language of Scripture; dative of advantage: doctrine of dying grace

Governments which do not protect our rights is illegitimate. It should leave producers and consumers free to produce and consume. Laissez faire, or leave people alone. Let things just take place. The whole motivation for profit is self interest, and that is legitimate. This is either William E. Simon or Adam Smith. Our founding fathers read the Wealth of Nations. Leave citizens free to seek their future. America was a natural laboratory for Locke and Smith. America, by its very foundation, was capitalistic. When men were left free, guided by self-interest, they produce that greatest system. Most people do not understand this. This is not a conscious organization or detailed plan. It is that absence of overall plan which accomplishes the miracle of wealth. The free market operates without supervision. Day in and day out, people act voluntarily and individually. People buy and sell in markets. Each consumer votes with his dollar, and this is translated into desired products and services. The free market is the sum of these individualistic decisions. It works with no conscious direction. Millions of buyers and sellers act in their own interest. 28% of the things produced are produced by 5% of the population. This has given America the highest standard of living. This is if man is left free to produce. 96% of homes have a telephone. Farmers export 60% of their wheat after feeding America. The US produces half of the world's wheat. Similar stats for other things produced in the US.

The flood of wealth emerges from the lack of any direction and the lack of government control, and lack of state imposed goals. This wealth is an explosion of individual liberty. Political and economic freedom are interrelated.

The totalitarian never announces that he is going to enslave the population; he offers up all other kinds of verbiage. The communists face the dilemma, to destroy the US or not. If we are destroyed, they will destroy themselves as well.

Datives of advantage and disadvantage as related to death.

We have dealt so much with the Christian life, that most of you are living the Christian life, dative of advantage or dative of disadvantage. Categories of death is first covered: I should have checked, as it has been covered before. The doctrine below is more than the doctrine given in class.

The Classification of Death (2)

1. Spiritual death - Ephesians 2:1; Romans 5:12; 6:23; 1Corinthians 15:22. Spiritual death is a judgement on the human race at the point of birth. It is being born into the devil's kingdom as citizens. We are born spiritually dead and related to the devil's kingdom and we continue that way until we believe in Jesus Christ at which point this thing is broken. This means that when grace found us we belonged to Satan's kingdom because we were born with spiritual death. Therefore the participle in verse is not only ascriptive but it is linear aktionsart. It is a status that continues and can only be broken by a new birth, and therefore the necessity for the new birth. The new birth breaks spiritual death. Spiritual death is not only separation from God but it is the penalty of sin, and it is totally the penalty of sin. Physical death is not the penalty of sin and it does not have anything to do with the penalty of sin. The only way that physical death is related to the penalty of sin is that since we are born spiritually dead it is inevitable that eventually we will all die. The first use of spiritual death in the Bible is in Genesis 2:17.
2. Physical death - Matthew 8:22; 2Corinthians 5:1-8; Romans 8:38,39; Philippians 1:21. Physical death is the separation of the soul from the body.
3. The second death is the perpetuation of spiritual death into eternity - Hebrews 9:27; Revelation 20:12-15. It refers to the final judgement of the unbeliever in which the unbeliever is cast into the lake of fire forever. So it follows the general concept of separation but it is the eternal lake of fire.
4. Operational death - James 2:26. "Faith without production is dead [non-operative]." This is a reference to the believer's failure to produce divine good, the failure of the believer to reach supergrace, the failure of the believer to GAP it consistently; it is the failure of the believer to get an accumulation of doctrine that leads to the ECS, occupation with Christ, supergrace capacity, supergrace blessing .
5. Positional death - Romans chapter 6 is the major passage of discussion. It is also found in Colossians 2:12, 20; 3:3. At salvation we are entered into union with Christ through the baptism of the Spirit. The baptism of the Spirit has two aspects. We are in union with Christ as Christ is seated at the right hand of the Father. We are also in union with Christ as Christ died on the cross - current and retroactive positional truth. Positional death is retroactive positional truth or identification with Christ in His death. We are identified with Christ in His death because at the cross Jesus Christ rejected human good. He bore our sins in His own body on the tree but He rejected human good. Retroactive positional truth is simply our rejection of human good through identification with Christ on the cross.
6. Temporal death - Romans 8:6,13; Ephesians 5:14; 1Timothy 5:6; James 1:15; Revelation 3:1; Luke 15:24,32. It refers to the believer out of fellowship through sin. It is simply carnality or the perpetuation of carnality in reversionism. Temporal death just means that death is used to show that when you and I sin we are out of fellowship, we are dead to God in the sense of being out of fellowship. The prodigal son was still a son but he was dead to his father - "This, my son, was dead but now is alive." He was out of fellowship, now he is back in fellowship.
7. Sexual death which is the inability to copulate - Romans 4:16-21; Hebrews 11:11,12.

Dative of advantage is dying grace; dative of disadvantage is the sin unto death. The next two doctrines could be added to one of the death doctrines.

Comments on Death

1. Death is associated with the end of a revolution. Example of Napoleon. Revolution begins in violence and it ends in death. It ends with the death of the revolutionaries. Preferably a very violent death.
2. Death is based upon the sovereignty of God. Psalm 68:17–20 when people die, that means that it is God's time for them.
3. Love is stronger than death. Usual mating and dating for this late Spring. Song of songs 8:6
4. God can and God does prolong life under certain circumstances. Psalm 102:23–24 118:18 Proverbs 14:27
5. The woman is the seasoning of human life and she makes life. Women are responders. As such, they often have problems that men could not understand. Men are designed to be an initiator. If man goes too long without trouble, then he will think of a way. Women often end up in trouble by being a responder. Women always blame us and that is because they are responders and they are not conditioned to think in terms of starting things. With regards to death, women have to be taught to face death of loved ones. The intensity of a response to death; so great is their grief, she must be trained. Jeremiah 29:20–25
6. When the Lord must use the sin unto death, God is always glorified. We have the time and freedom and option to glorify God by advancing; but God is glorified even if He must kill us. Isaiah 38:18
7. No person can face physical death without good norms and standards. Lamentations 1:19–20
8. Dying grace is a promotion.
9. God provides special promotion in dying grace. Amos 5:8
10. God delivers the believer from death. Job 5:20 Psalm 33:19 56:13 116:8

I found most of these points in Dying Grace

Definition of Dying Grace

1. In dying grace, there may be pain, but it is diluted by doctrinal factors.
2. If you are in great pain and suffering almost racked out of your mind, then that could be the sin unto death. This means that you have failed in life. You will have nothing in eternity. However, you will be there without regrets. Dying you will know you have failed before you die.
3. Dying grace is the death of the supergrace. Dying grace is the death of a mature/supergrace believer. This transfers the mature believer from time into eternity. The believer experiences maximum blessing in death. Soul stimulation during this process.
 - a. It is the means of transferring the supergrace believer into eternity.

b. Therefore dying grace is the experience of physical death under special blessing, the special provision of grace whereby dying is greater than living. This implies minimum pain, maximum happiness, maximum soul stimulation, maximum utilization of resident doctrine, and maximum blessing so that dying becomes better than anything you had in life. This is the ultimate in departure from this life.

4. Dying grace is the missing link. There is a relationship between supergrace blessings in time and surpassing grace blessings in eternity or SG3. Dying grace is the missing link between the two, it is the way in which the transfer is made. Dying grace is the missing link between the greater and the less in a fortiori. If God can provide us the greater of salvation; than He will not withhold the lesser after death. Hebrews 11:13 dying grace is better than supergrace.
5. Dying grace is for the supergrace believer - Psalm 33:18,19.
6. Dying grace removes fear from death - Psalm 23:4.
7. Dying grace, therefore, is a supergrace blessing - Psalm 116:15.
8. 2Timothy 4:7-8
9. Dying grace is the bridge between supergrace blessing and surpassing grace blessing - Hebrews 11:13.
10. The importance of seizing and holding the high ground of supergrace. In the first eight principles of dying grace we have seen how important it is to be in the supergrace status at the point of physical death. The importance of seizing and holding the high ground of supergrace is related to the plan of God in eternity past. In eternity past under the concept of the doctrine of divine decrees God knew about each one of us. He designed some special paragraphs of blessing to give us the maximum that time and eternity have to offer, but they are also designed to glorify God to the maximum. Maximum glory comes to God by way of the fulfilment of these paragraphs. The one who has SG2 glorifies God in time. Under SG2 the first category of blessing is spiritual blessing, and spiritual blessing means occupation with the person of Christ, sharing the happiness of God, the completion of and ECS, resident doctrine to meet every exigency of life. And then with that we have temporal blessings, and this often becomes a motivator to people but it is a false motivator - to take in doctrine so you can be promoted or very wealthy or successful, etc. All of these things are incidental and God is glorified by giving these things, and there is where the emphasis lies in the glorification of God Himself. Then the third category has to do with dying, so that dying grace is a blessing of supergrace, the greatest blessing in supergrace, the highest blessing of supergrace. But these special blessing are all designed to glorify God, and the link between these two paragraphs, the one that puts the two of them together, is dying grace. So dying grace is described as a bridge going from time to eternity. Therefore the key to everything is being able to seize and hold the supergrace life or to maintain the stability of spiritual maturity. They key there, of course, is continued positive volition toward Bible doctrine. Philippians 3:12-14 is the passage which goes with point 9. "I am apprehended of Christ Jesus." That refers to the doctrine of divine decrees. In eternity past we were seized and held by Christ Jesus, so that we have these special blessings paragraphs from millions of years ago.

11. The greatest thing in life is the maintenance of momentum. You might be interested in rm/rw; but you need other doctrines in order to grow. The non-interesting subjects require more self-discipline. Dying is better by keeping your momentum going.
12. The relationship between supergrace and surpassing grace, then, is found in dying grace. We live to reach supergrace, we die to get to surpassing grace. They saw before they had. Dying is where we leave all of our property and possessions behind. Hebrews 11:13.
13. The description of dying grace. Job 5:19-27 has a great deal to say about living and dying and dying grace. Job 5:19–21 In six troubles He will deliver you. Even in seven, evil will not touch you. In economic disaster, He will deliver you from death, and in war He will redeem you from the power of the sword. You will be hidden from the scourge of the tongue. Neither will you be afraid of violent death when it comes. Once God decides to take us home, there is no remaining here. You will come to your grave in a full age like a shock of corn in its season. God decides when the times has come to bring us home in His Presence. Behold this, the doctrine of dying grace, we have researched it and so it is; know it is for yourself. For not one of us lives for himself or dies for himself.

Bob has not had any trouble with Revelation; and John is the easiest Greek there is. John was a simple-minded person. He wasn't a genius. Of the eleven disciples, none of them were very bright. Peter was the apostolic Patton, but not as smart as Patton. Paul would have been the MacArthur of the crowd.

Romans 14:8 For both if we should live, we live to the Lord; and if we should die, we die to the Lord. Therefore both if we should live and if we should die, we are the Lord's. (BLB)

Verse 8 – “For whether we live, we live unto the Lord.” The explanatory use of the postpositive conjunction gar, plus the enclitic particle te used to connect parts of a sentence. It appears twice and it translated “just as, so also”—“For just as,” is the way it begins. Next in the Greek comes a conjunction, eán (ἐάν) [pronounced eh-AHN] plus the subjunctive for introducing the protasis of a third class condition—“if.” This with the subjunctive denotes what is expected to occur. eán (ἐάν) [pronounced eh-AHN] plus the subjunctive is a third class condition, more probably future condition. But in this context it is a rare idiom. Here we have gar te eán (ἐάν) [pronounced eh-AHN], and ordinarily it would be translated “For just as if.” But te eán (ἐάν) [pronounced eh-AHN] means hótan (ὅταν) [pronounced HOH-tan], and hótan (ὅταν) [pronounced HOH-tan] means “when.” So instead of translating it literally it is translated “For just as when.” This is because the particle te not only sets up a correlation—‘just as, so also’—but it changes eán (ἐάν) [pronounced eh-AHN] into hótan (ὅταν) [pronounced HOH-tan] which means “when.” This is a little principle that takes many years of Greek to get. This is a point of great importance when it comes interpreting the verse.

Then the present active subjunctive of zaô (ζάω) [pronounced DZAH-oh], to live: “For just as when we live.” This is the customary present for what habitually occurs after salvation. The active voice: the believer produces the action of the verb. The subjunctive mood is potential, used generally for a third class condition but here in an even more meaningful way for a special Greek idiom.

Plus the dative of reference from kurios (κύριος) [pronounced KOO-ree-oss] plus the generic use of the definite article: “For just as when we live, we live to the Lord.” Then the present active indicative of zaô (ζάω) [pronounced DZAH-oh] repeated, “to the Lord we live.” This time it is a historical present viewing the life of the positive believer from the past with the vividness of a present occurrence. The active voice: the positive or mature believer produces the action. The indicative mood is declarative representing the verbal idea from the viewpoint of reality.

Romans 14:8a For just as when we live, we live to the Lord.

Lesson #436

436 06/15/1978 Romans 14:8b Simon: USSR and capitalism; profit is legitimate motive; genius of Paul; efficiency; spirituality and appearance

A bookstore said it was not carrying Simon’s book because he was not a conservative for serving in Ford’s administration. He disagreed with Nixon over a balanced budget and Ford over federal involvement in energy.

The communist knows how to destroy freedom. He destroys economic freedom, which destroys freedom. He places the physical life at the mercy of the state. Their system does not work; but it depends upon American capitalism above all. Lenin abandoned pure communism and invited the capitalists to come in a restore their economy.

We provided steel plants, plants to build cars; a giant hydroelectric dam built. All of these things were achieved by western capitalism. 40% of the Germany equipment was stolen by the Russians. In a decade, Russia had leaped into the modern era. A major world power was suddenly born. During this time, the individual citizen had not advanced at all; he was in the same shape as under the czars. To this day, Bolshevik achievements are primarily dependent upon the western capitalism world. They are fully aware that they preside over a stagnant economy. Their problem is a lack of freedom.

To introduce incentives would destroy the communist state.

What would happen is one mixed these systems together? For an answer, we should examine Britain, France, Germany, etc. Welfare states, socialist states, but no actual good definition for what they are. When they decide something needs improvement, they turn toward social planning on the national scale.

There can never be a compromise between freedom and socialism. Just like doctrine in the strong believer and lack of doctrine in the weak believer.

True motivation in a free society is profit; it is honorable, legitimate and right. Men gamble with their dreams and concepts.

How can we get the true principles from this nation and our background. If it were not for profit, there would be no federal government or law and order.

Some of you for this entire year have worked from January to June and are still working for Uncle Sam. If we lived in Russia or China, we would have a low standard of living. There is a miasma of depression hanging on every side. People who have traveled in the Soviet Union all say the same thing.

You cannot have profit without efficiency and good leadership.

When Bob first walked into T&P he could not believe that it was so bad.

We have to know what the objectives are in God's plan. If you do not understand these things, then you have no true motivation.

Romans 14:8 For both if we should live, we live to the Lord; and if we should die, we die to the Lord. Therefore both if we should live and if we should die, we are the Lord's. (BLB)

The next phrase refers to dying grace as the final blessing for the mature believer: "and whether we die, we die unto the Lord." There is the second te, and it connects a relative clause and is translated "so also." Next is the conjunction eán (ἐάν) [pronounced eh-AHN], ordinarily introducing a 3rd class condition but always when use with te it has an Attic idiomatic meaning—"when." Then the present active subjunctive from apothnêskô (ἀποθνῆσκω) [pronounced op-ohth-NACE-koh], referring to dying grace. The perfective present tense denotes the continuation of existing results of living the Christian life all the way through the Z radical. The active voice: the mature believer produces the action. The subjunctive mood is potential; dying is potential, depending upon when the Rapture occurs. Then the present active indicative, repeating the verb apothnêskô (ἀποθνῆσκω) [pronounced op-ohth-NACE-koh]. It is a futuristic present denoting an event (dying grace) which has not yet occurred but is regarded so certain in thought that it is contemplated as already coming to pass in your thinking. The active voice: the mature believer produces the action. The declarative indicative mood is for reality.

When Paul gets excited, he falls into Attic Greek. When you have a common language and you break into the Attic, you realize that God the Holy Spirit is using one man to get into these great spiritual truths.

Bob because he came from a wealthy home, was regarded with suspicion. So many people criticize others who have wealth. They think that it is not God's will for others to have that much wealth. What causes that? Sour grapes. The same thing is true if you show any signs of intellect. God can use genius just as well as He uses stupid people; and God uses nicely dressed people just as well as He uses hippies. God uses all kinds of people. The churches that are over which are typed; and you just keep looking for a church with your type. We must be very inflexible about all of these nonessentials.

Romans 14:8 For just as when we live, we live to the Lord. So also when we die, we die to the Lord.

1977 Romans

Lesson #437

437 06/16/1978 Romans 14 Simon: Socialism and Western Europe; health practices, privacy and tolerance in non-essentials

Bob continues with William E. Simon, whom he calls one of the most brilliant conservatives of the day. He has shown that you cannot merge socialism and capitalism without destroying one or the other.

The postwar cure in some nations has been presented as centralized control and planning. "Nazism or Fascism is just a synonym for communism. Fascism is more communistic than communism is. When people call some conservative group fascist, it is obviously debater's technique. It is stupid people who do not know what they are saying. Hitler was a socialist; he was a socialist who hated communists." R. B. Thieme, Jr.

An advanced welfare state was developed in Sweden. The working class puts a strong emphasis on economic security and economic equality. The Swedes are drowning in bureaucracy. Swedish authorities can enter into various businesses without warning and inspect their books. Ingmar Bergman was hauled off a stage for not paying taxes and suffered a nervous break down. Nationalization of steel, gas, coal resulted in chaos and poverty (I think this is Britain). Churchill the socialist government has destroyed Britain. Let the people free and let them produce. Britain now confiscates 60% of all the income. Another group apparently taxed 98%. Brain drain takes place in all democratic socialist systems. The government must stay out of business completely so profit is the motivation. This makes Calvin Coolidge the greatest president.

The mistake that government can better regulate the marketplace as over against the people. We have learned nothing from the fall of these nations.

A translation review. Our personal views or attitudes are not to be corrected only by doctrine; and even doctrine provides great freedom with regards to food and beverage.

In the ancient world, drinking alcohol is common, as it is in other parts of the world.

If there is a reduction the church population, then they will sell the place and move to a quieter and smaller place.

Bob admits to having been slightly hardheaded before doctrine. T&P has an approved list of churches they can recommend.

Principles

1. The royal family honor code allows each mature or growing believer the privacy to make....
2. The variance of others is tolerated.
3. Therefore, loving the brethren including respecting the privacy, being neither intolerant or judgmental.
4. Many points in Christianity are nonessential things to Christian fellowship.
5. A weak believer may be in error on this or that point, but is still accepted into the fellowship of the local church. He just should not impose it on someone else. Let others make their own decisions. That is their privacy; that is their privilege. So that the smoker does not try to get others to smoke; and the nonsmoker should not try to get others not to smoke. You are free and you are entitled to your own opinions or modus operandi. If it is wrong, doctrine will change it. Change must be accomplished through Bible doctrine. Your norms and standards. Do not copy someone that you admire. You base changes on your doctrine and your obedience to doctrine. You may be dating a gal and you French kiss her and she has no norms and standard for that. That can confuse her.
6. The more doctrine we learn, the more we recognize the validity that we understand the difference between essential and nonessential truths.
7. It is mandatory for every believer to have the privacy to learn Bible doctrine without the intolerance and persecution of others.
8. None of us are perfect. This knocks the arrogance out of all of us. No believer can reject what God has received; and God has received anyone who has believed in Jesus Christ.
9. By occupation with Christ there is fellowship between the strong and the weak.
10. Union and fellowship between weak and strong in a congregation gives objectivity to the teaching of the Word of God. It is better to have all kinds of people in a single church. It is better to have smokers and nonsmokers, ascetics and non-ascetics. Churches can be sterilized by total agreement. If we agree on everything, we are sterilized zombies. The greater the variety in personality and viewpoint, the greater the objectivity.

1977 Romans

Lesson #438

438 06/18/1978 Romans 14:8c Simon: money to communists; personal and impersonal love; essentials and non-essentials (flexibility) re military leadership

We are learning to distinguish between the essentials and the nonessentials of life. Scientific achievement has not changed anyone's soul. The essentials always deal with Bible doctrine. The nonessentials are all about life. If someone wants to be a vegetarian, let them alone. Let them do that.

This has application to military doctrine. Bob has come to discover that Eisenhower was one of our great generals. The essentials were to destroy the German army with as little loss as possible. There was Montgomery arrogant to the utmost, inflexible; and claiming all of glory. He was a poor general and a jackass besides. Ike was inflexible with regards to American military doctrine. Our doctrine is to attack, attack, attack.

A great deal of the German army escaped Monty, as they did not close in on them.

No two believers have reached the same stage of growth. This is applicable to love. There is a time for being inflexible and time for being flexible.

Guests at a party know that the hosts can make any stupid statement they want; and we simply let them go. We do not challenge them.

Charles Reese. "Whenever you go to war, there is always the chance that you might lose, unless you go to war against Romania. $125 million sent to Romania. $62 million sent to Upper Volta and I don't even know where that is. There is no justification for any of this in the Constitution. Kuwait and South Africa and another one are the only nations who have paid back their loans." The essential is the Constitution and it is not being followed. We are insane and the communist objective is to destroy us; and we are arming them. We are giving them the technology they can use to destroy us.

God is glorified when His justice can bless our righteousness. Because of this, Christianity is not doing a lot of things for God. It is not tithing or witnessing. Everything that God blesses us with is an imputation.

Bob would like to see all unions dissolved if the company provides a better retirement than the union does.

We have lost track of the essential and the nonessential.

The Pirate and Love is a Many Splendored Thing were the two movies. Different as two movies could be.

In category #2 love, there are a great many nonessentials; and a few important essentials. Personal love demands that you are inflexible regarding the essentials.

We have true friends; and we have those to whom we are related.

Violence to solve problems is wrong. But defending yourself against criminals is not violence; killing in the military is not violence; execution is not violence.

Romans 14:8 For both if we should live, we live to the Lord; and if we should die, we die to the Lord. Therefore both if we should live and if we should die, we are the Lord's. (BLB)

The inferential conjunction oun (οὐν) [pronounced oon] denotes an inference from what precedes and is translated "so" because of the next particle, the enclitic particle te, an Attic Greek particle which changes so many words and gives a different connotation to an interpretation. So we have, “so not only.” Then the conditional conjunction eán (ἐάν) [pronounced eh-AHN] introducing the protasis of a 3rd class condition, which is more probable future. Plus the present active subjunctive from the verb zaô (ζάω) [pronounced DZAH-oh] which means to live. The descriptive present denotes what is now going on. The active voice: the mature believer produces the action of the verb. The subjunctive mood is a potential subjunctive depending upon the sovereignty of God—“so not only if we live,” means that there is a time in the plan of God when everything will be cancelled out by physical death or the Rapture, whichever occurs first. In the meantime we live, and living has a very important function; it is designed for the believer to be perfectly happy. We are here because as believers after salvation we are unfulfilled. Our fulfilment comes when we have the capacity for blessing. We are minus capacity, and this minus can only be a plus through doctrine in the soul. Therefore the most important thing we do in life is the perception of doctrine so that we can fulfil the concept for which we remain alive. God is glorified when the justice of God can impute blessing to the righteousness of God.

Living to the Lord demands one thing. It doesn't demand that we be moral or immoral, sweet and loving or unkind; it simply demands that we take in doctrine. God uses raw material. We can't help God, we can't improve the basic product. The basic product is called total depravity and it comes from the old sin nature with its trend toward sin, toward good, toward evil. It is doctrine with the use of the filling of the Spirit that changes the product.

“or die” – the present active subjunctive of apothnêskô (ἀποθνήσκω) [pronounced op-ohth-NACE-koh] which means to die. This is a customary present, it denotes what habitually occurs when a believer's life is completed. The active voice: the mature believer produces action in this context, though leeway is provided for the believer who is positive toward doctrine and advancing to maturity. The potential for the 3rd class condition is there, the potential which makes allowances for the Rapture of the church.

Living and dying are related.

Colonel Martinet gave his name to a whole set of people in the armed forces. He would be all over minor inspections; but he was very flexible with regards to the essentials. He is a failure; he lives by the book; and the book was written for dumb officers.

We have lost our ability to think. Great corporations can no longer be run because people do not know how to run them.

If a pastor is running around and seeing people, he has no time to study and teach. You want someone that you can teach. Occasionally you find a person with a good personality who is also smart.

The acid test of the Christian life is how you die. It should be a pleasant, marvelous blessing.

“we are the Lord’s” – present active indicative of eimi (εἰμί) [pronounced eye-ME], the verb to be. The static present is used for a condition which perpetually exists. The active voice: the believer produces the action. The indicative mood is declarative representing the verbal action from the viewpoint of reality, which is eternal security for all and blessing for some. The possessive genitive from kurios (κύριος) [pronounced KOO-ree-oss] with the generic use of the definite article is what is called a predicate genitive.

Romans 14:8 For just as when we live, we live to the Lord; so also when we die, we die to the Lord; so not only if we live, but also if we die, we are the Lord’s.

There is security for all; and blessing for some.

Only arrogance circumvents authority. It is either conscious or unconscious arrogance. For the person who is not authority-orientated, he can never appreciate his own privacy or anyone else’s. The greatest leaders for any profession and in life. The royal priest must live as unto the Lord. He avoids being a cuckoo clock. There was a time when fundies were much less weird than they are today. Live and let live is the order of the day. This gives us common occupation with Christ.

Lesson #439

439 06/18/1978 Romans 14:9–10a Crisis personality; Battle of the Bulge; Jesus Christ is Lord of all; occupational hazard of the weak believer

The crisis personality is the man who can differentiate between the essentials and the nonessentials. When we became flexible regarding our Constitution, we have had historical disasters of all types.

John Toland, Battle: The Story of the Bulge. A man deserted his outfit to find a group that was going to fight.

There will be great crises happening in the near future; and there is the crisis personality; the person who is truly great, the believer who goes it alone.

Romans 14:9 For unto this, Christ died and lived again that He might rule over both the dead and living. (BLB)

Verse 9 – “For to this end Christ both died, rose, and revived.” The prepositional phrase eis (εἰς) [pronounced ICE] plus the accusative neuter singular from the near demonstrative houtos (οὗτος) [pronounced HOO-tos] is translated “For this reason” or “For this purpose.” Then the postpositive explanatory use of the conjunction gar, translated “you see”—“You see, for this reason.” The subject is the nominative singular Christos (χριστός) [pronounced krees-TOHSS], referring to the Lord Jesus Christ. Jesus Christ is the believer’s Lord because of union with Him. The aorist active indicative of apothnêskō (ἀποθνήσκω) [pronounced op-ohth-NACE-koh]—“died.” In the original text there is no “both” or “and revived.” This is a constative aorist tense, it contemplates the action of the verb in its entirety. It takes the two deaths and burial of Christ and gathers them up into one entirety. The active voice: Jesus Christ produces the action. The indicative mood is declarative for an unqualified statement of doctrine.

The connective use of kai is followed by the phrase “and lived,” the aorist active indicative from zaō (ζάω) [pronounced DZAH-oh]. “You see, for this reason Christ died and lived.” This is a culminative aorist for zaō (ζάω) [pronounced DZAH-oh], which views the resurrection of Christ in its entirety but emphasizes the existing results, namely the ascension and session of Jesus Christ; for Jesus Christ was told by the Father to sit down at His right hand until His enemies were made His footstool. Now Christ is seated at the right hand of the Father. His title is Lord, expanded into King of kings and Lord of lords. But that title is shortened down to one word: Lord. Jesus Christ seated at the right hand of the Father is the victor of the angelic conflict and He carries the title “Lord.”

“that he might be the Lord both of the dead and living” – the conjunction hina (ἵνα) [pronounced HEE-na] introduces a purpose clause, a purpose related to the royal family of God in the Church Age. The conjunction kai, kai is translated “both, and”—“in order that he might be Lord over both dead and living.” The aorist active subjunctive of kurieúō (κυριεύω) [pronounced ko-ree-YOO-oh] which means to be Lord over. The ingressive aorist in which the action signified by the aorist is contemplated at its beginning and therefore connotes entrance into a state or condition. It denotes the fact that Christ became our Lord the moment we believed, retroactive positional truth (identification with Christ in His two deaths and burial), and current positional truth (identification with Christ seated at the right hand of the Father). This is the use of the ingressive aorist. The active voice: Jesus Christ is the subject producing the action. The subjunctive mood is not potential, but it simply goes with hina (ἵνα) [pronounced HEE-na] to show the purpose of our Lord’s death, burial and resurrection. Then the present active participle from nekróō (νεκρόω) [pronounced nek-ROW-oh]. Here the participle is used as an adjective turned into a substantive. Then a second present active participle from zaō (ζάω) [pronounced DZAH-oh], correctly translated as a substantive, “dead” and “living.”

In Romans 6 we are in union with Christ in His death, burial and resurrection. By being in union with Christ, we are not under the control of the sin nature (positionally)

Romans 14:9 You see, for this reason Christ died and lived, in order that he might be Lord over both dead and living.

Application

1. Every believer, living or dead, belongs to the Lord Jesus Christ. The crisis personality glorifies the Lord in time; but the personal failure does not glorify Jesus Christ.
2. Because of positional truth, retroactive and current, Christ is Lord of every believer from salvation to eternity.
3. Therefore the royal family honor code recognizes only one Lord, one absolute authority.

4. Since every believer belongs to the Lord he is not ever to superimpose his norms, his standards, his background, his environment, his personal prejudice on the Lord or those who belong to the Lord: other believers.
5. This anticipates the judging which occurs in the next verse. When you judge other believers by trying to superimpose your standards on them you are, in effect, judging the Lord.
6. Through Bible doctrine the Lord imposes on each royal priest certain standing orders which are to be obeyed. We are to learn His standards and to abandon our own.
7. The Lord, therefore, has delegated certain believers as pastor-teachers to communicate this doctrine, and in so delegating this authority He has given academic discipline to the royal family of God. Personality rapport is not a part of the Christian life.
8. The Lord has not called upon one believer to judge another believer, which is the invasion of the privacy of the priesthood and the blasphemous presumption against the Lordship of Christ.
9. Since ever believer belongs to the Lord the weak believer does not have the right or the prerogative to demand observation of certain holy days or to impose the dietary taboos of this passage.
10. Spiritual bullying of the weak believer is an attack upon the Lordship of Christ. Judging or bullying is not a part of the modus operandi of Christianity.
11. Since Christ is the Lord of the living it follows that believers have no right to superimpose their personal standards of legalism, taboos, pseudo spirituality, on other members of the royal family of God.
12. The honor code of the royal family demands the privacy of every believer to live his life as unto the Lord, and not to other believers. God has delegated the content of the Word of God, called doctrine, to the basis for living our lives as to the Lord.
13. No believer has the right to superimpose his own norms and standards as a substitute for doctrine in the application of doctrine.
14. The weak believer judges the strong believer, the strong believer despises the weak believer: both attitudes are wrong, they interfere with the privacy of the priesthood guaranteed by the honor code. Therefore the Lordship of Christ must be applied to the solution where reciprocal antagonism exists.

V. 10 is the great verse, the one which will straighten us all out. This is the application from the Judgment Seat of Christ.

Romans 14:10 But why do you judge your brother, or why also do you despise your brother? For we will all stand before the judgment seat of God. (BLB)

Verse 10 – in the first part of this verse is the occupational hazard which is pertinent to each category, the strong and the weak. First, the occupational hazard of the weak believer: “Why dost thou judge thy brother? The postpositive conjunctive particle de sets up a contrast between the Lordship of Christ and the attack upon the Lordship of Christ by the weak believer. Next is the proleptic use of the second person singular pronoun su. In its proleptic form it is often translated in modern English, “You there,” but we simply translate it “But you.” This is addressed to the weak believer, the immature believer. He is full of his own background. He may be positive toward doctrine, but he is not mature yet. There is also the weak believer who has no interest in Bible doctrine; and he also judges others.

Then the interrogative pronoun tís (τίς) [pronounced tihç] in the nominative neuter singular, therefore translated “why” instead of “who” (neuter gender). The present active indicative of the verb krinō (κρίνω) [pronounced KREE-no] is the occupational hazard of the weak believer, positive or negative toward doctrine. “But you, why do you judge?” The retroactive progressive present denotes what has happened in the past and continues into the present time—also known as the present tense of duration, and it means that this is an occupational hazard and that given an opportunity, a chance, this is always what the weak believer will do. The active voice: the weak and reversionistic believer produces the action of the verb in violation of the royal family honor code. The indicative mood is interrogative, it assumes that there is an actual fact that may be stated in answer to the question. The fact is apostasy, reversionism, or ignorance of doctrine, legalism, violation of the honor code, and failure to understand some of the simplest of principles about allowing people their privacy.

The accusative singular direct object from adelphos (ἄδελφός) [pronounced ad-el-FOSS] refers to other members of the royal family. With it is the genitive of relationship from the personal pronoun su—“your brother.” Those in one’s periphery.

The Weak Believer’s Weakness (which is Judging)

1. We are dealing with the occupational hazard of the weak believer who cannot distinguish between essential doctrine and non-essential opinions.
2. The weak believer in his arrogance sets himself up as an expert on everything.
3. Therefore he seeks to superimpose his own non-essentials on others through judging, which is tantamount to spiritual bullying.
4. This violate the RFHC: the part of the code that deals with the privacy of the priesthood; that part of the RFHC which deals with the law of freedom—live and let live.
5. No believer can live his life as unto the Lord with such interference from the weak believer. How do you live your life with someone always nipping at your heels with some legalistic or antinomian nonsense.
6. The word “brother” here is a fellow member of the royal family who is supposed to be living his life as unto the Lord through doctrine and not through bullying and intrusion into your privacy.
7. Judging another believer is arrogant superimposition of one’s own opinions and standards over God’s, and over God’s delegated thought which is Bible doctrine.
8. It is arrogance to presume divine authority and judge another believer in the family of God, especially since the believer is not responsible to you but to the justice of God.

9. In other words, the weak believer seeks to gain his strength by judging and discrediting the strong believer when in reality he should be gaining his strength by taking in doctrine. The weak believer is like the aboriginal who, if he admires another person from another tribe, he might cut open his chest and eat the heart to gain that man's courage. This is the cannibal weak believer; who "eats" the strong believer. He judges and discredits the strong believer. He thinks that gives him strength.
10. The believer advances through perception of doctrine, never through putting down another believer.

The next related principle:

- | Principle | |
|------------------|---|
| 1. | The occupational hazard and besetting of the weak believer is judging and bullying the mature believer. |
| 2. | The weak or legalistic believer is the worst bully in the world. He is a 1 st class persecutor of the grace-oriented Christian. |
| 3. | He judges, maligns, and vindictively criticizes, and sometimes persecutes the strong believer who does not succumb to the non-essential standards of the weak. |
| 4. | Arrogance, jealousy and implacability is the attitude and motivation behind the weak believer's occupational hazard. |
| 5. | Again note that the weak believer converts environmental influence and non-essential opinions into rigid orthodoxy. In other words, the weak believer takes the non-essentials and becomes inflexible about them. |
| 6. | The weak believer cannot distinguish between essential doctrine and non-essential opinions, and therefore his standards, his taboos, are a part of self-righteous paraphernalia. |
| 7. | We forget that God accepted us with a variety of erroneous and inaccurate opinions, misguided zeal and, above all, stupid sincerity. |
| 8. | God is not looking for perfect persons, but doctrinal persons who are grace-oriented and advancing in the plan of God. |
| 9. | Positive volition toward doctrine and resultant function of GAP will replace erroneous standards with correct Biblical standards, but doctrine must do it. |

1977 Romans

Lesson #440

440 06/19/1978 Romans 14:10b Contempt of the strong believer; crisis personality, orientated to reality; non-essentials and love; doctrine of the judgment seat of Christ

There are two athletes Mike Newland and Ted C. Ted has been a taper for about 4 years and he has been in Berachah for some face to face teaching. Mike's been coming to Berachah for about two years. He was asked who was his best coach; and he told the reporter, Colonel Thieme. He has learned more about basketball in Bible doctrine. He is one of the Berachah Rockets.

“We are now in the great verse, v. 10.”

“But you, why do you judge your brother [weak believer)?

The weak or legalistic believer is the greatest bully in the world.

Romans 14:10 But why do you judge your brother, or why also do you despise your brother? For we will all stand before the judgment seat of God. (BLB)

The occupational hazard of the strong believer: “or why dost thou set at nought thy brother” – the disjunctive particle ê (ἢ) [pronounced ā] separates opposites. In this case the opposites are the weak and the strong believer. This is correctly translated “or.”

The proleptic use of the personal pronoun su is addressed to the strong believer and is translated with the conjunction kai used and an adverb, adjunctive therefore, “or you also.” This emphasizes that the strong believer is not excluded from blame, for he also has an occupational hazard, and it is a reminder to all of us that none of us are ever perfect or ever will be in this life. We are not striving for perfection but are moving toward the objective of maturity. There is a vast difference between maturity and perfection.

The nominative neuter singular interrogative pronoun tís (τις) [pronounced tihç] is correctly translated “why.” With it is the present active indicative of the verb exoutheneō (ἐξουθενέω) [pronounced ex-oo-then-EH-oh] which means to despise, to treat with contempt, or even to regard as contemptible. We translate: “why do you regard with contempt.” The present tense is a customary present, it denotes the habitual attitude of the strong believer toward the weak believer—his occupational hazard. The active voice: the strong or the mature believer produces the action of the verb. This is an interrogative indicative which indicates that an actual fact may be stated in answer to the question. The fact is an attitude of the strong believer toward the weak. It must be remembered that the weak believer cannot distinguish between essential doctrine and non-essential opinion. Because of this he is not oriented to reality. The strong believer is oriented to reality.

The strong believer can distinguish between the essentials and the nonessentials. The weak and strong believer can both be affected by pride; and the pride of the strong believer is, he knows so much doctrine, that he knows the difference between the essential and nonessential. He spots the weakness of the weak believer and despises it. The weak believer believes that his strength is his weakness.

The strong believer loses his reality when he fails to recognize that God accept the weak believer. The weak believer does not know that the strong believer is strong; or he tries to remove that from him.

Next is the accusative singular direct object from adelphos (ἄδελφός) [pronounced ad-el-FOSS], meaning that this is interaction between believers, plus the genitive of relationship from the personal pronoun su referring to any member of the royal family. “For you also, strong believer, why do you regard with contempt your brother [weak believer].”

The Crisis Personality

1. The crisis personality is the mature believer who is totally oriented to reality.
2. Such orientation is the result of maximum doctrine resident in the soul through the daily function of GAP. Common sense is the ability to reason from the reality of a situation, the ability to think in the pressure of a situation.
3. The crisis personality, therefore, is the mature believer who is inflexible regarding the essentials and flexible regarding the non-essentials.
4. It is this flexibility regarding the non-essentials which provides orientation to life.
5. All high priorities are assigned to the essentials—which is the case of the believer related to Bible doctrine and utilizing that doctrine in his norms and standards of the conscience.
6. Therefore the crisis personality combines inflexibility regarding essentials with flexibility regarding non-essentials.
7. The crisis personality can cope with any disaster of life, personal or historical.
8. The crisis personality does not follow any set pattern or mold overtly but is always characterized by maximum doctrine resident in the soul.
9. The crisis personality, then, is a synonym for the strong or mature believer with emphasis on undeserved suffering.
10. The historical or personal crisis gives the strong believer the opportunity to apply doctrine to the reality of the situation, demonstrating the total adequacy of divine provision for the believer in life.
11. The imputation of divine blessing to the mature believer includes undeserved suffering which demonstrates the dynamics of Bible doctrine resident in the soul and labels the strong believer as the crisis personality.

The game is reality. By taking in doctrine all of these days, we prepare for the crisis. We can handle the pressures and circumstances in life.

Being a weirdo often means that they just can't help it. They will not have any reality apart from doctrine.

Loving Other Believers

1. Here again is the principle of distinguishing between the essential and the non-essential. Here it is a case of the essential and the non-essential in the function of Christian love, or what should be classified as impersonal love.
2. Remember that Christian love is impersonal in contrast to personal love which exists in three categories.
3. Personal love emphasizes the object of love while impersonal love emphasizes the norms, standards, integrity and honor of the one who does the loving.
4. By despising or regarding with contempt the weak believer the strong believer has lowered himself to the standards of the weak believer.
5. In impersonal love you treat believers on the basis of your integrity and standards, not on the basis of their norms and weaknesses.

6. The royal family honor code demands loving all believers, which means respect for their privacy, toleration of their non-essential opinions. This is the relaxed mental attitude love which is commanded to all believers and fulfilled not simply by the filling of the Spirit alone but through Bible doctrine resident in the soul.
7. In summary, respect for the imputed righteousness of God, respect for a relaxed mental attitude, observing the privacy and freedom of the royal priesthood, toleration of the non-essential opinions, treating people on the basis of your own standards and not theirs, is the basis for executing impersonal love for the brethren. This fulfills the phrase, love your neighbor as yourself.

When a woman appears to strike up with her right man; you put a fence around her. She is completely off limits to you. Do not accept it as a challenge. That is male arrogance. You do not lust for her; you do not want to take her, etc. That is category #2 love; and that is so personal that you are locked out.

Category #3 love. Good manners is how you learn that other people have feelings. When adult children love their parents, that is admirable. Loving your neighbor is loving them on the basis of your standards, not theirs.

But you, weak believer, why do you judge your bother? Or you also, strong believer, why do you regard with contempt your brother (the weak believer)?

Now comes the third part of the verse: the mutual application. “for we shall all stand before the judgment seat of Christ” – the explanatory use of the postpositive conjunction gar, plus the nominative masculine plural subject from the adjective pás (πάς) [pronounced pahs] which is a substantive meaning all believers—“for all [believers].”

Plus the future middle indicative of paristēmi/paristanō (παρίστημι/παριστάνω) [pronounced par-IHS-tay-mee/par-is-TAHN-oh] which means to place beside, to place one’s self at God’s disposal, from which the translation “yield” is derived. It means in the military sense (middle voice) to put yourself under orders to an authority. The middle voice is intransitive. It also means to be present or to stand by in a military sense. The future tense is obviously a predictive future, emphasizing a future event which occurs after the Rapture of the Church. The direct middle voice is one in which the agent, the believer, acts with a view toward participating in the outcome. The outcome is reward or loss of reward. The indicative mood is declarative representing the verbal action from the standpoint of dogmatic and unqualified assertion of fact. The future tense here not only refers to the Rapture but specifically to an event which occurs after the Rapture: the judgment seat of Christ.

Plus the dative singular indirect object from bēma (βῆμα) [pronounced BAY-ma], which means a seat for the judge, a judge throne or a tribunal. Then the possessive genitive singular from the noun theos (θεός) [pronounced theh-OSS], and with it the generic use of the definite article emphasizing not only the uniqueness of Christ but the fact that God the Father has turned over all judgment to God the Son—John 5:22. For not even the father judges anyone, but He has delegated all judgment to the Son.

Romans 14:10 But you [weak believer], why do you judge your brother? or you also [strong believer], why do you despise your brother? for all believers will be present at the tribunal of the God.

Here, this is the Judgment Seat of God, which is the Judgment Seat of Christ; and He is God and has all of the facts.

Principle

1. Do not try to evaluate the work or life or function of another believer. This is the prerogative of Jesus Christ both now and after the Rapture.
2. Each believer must live his own life as to the Lord and avoid meddling in the affairs of another believer.
3. The life of every believer will be evaluated by the Lord Jesus Christ for the purpose of destroying human good and rewarding the advance to maturity.
4. The judgment seat of Christ is the time of the seventh imputation for the mature believer and the time of the destruction of human good for the reversionist.
5. The judgment seat of Christ never implies loss of salvation but only evaluation of your life after salvation.^[3] this is the royal family efficiency report, from the moment of your new birth to the end.

Cicero: Not to know what happened before you were born is to remain a human child...to be woven into you those who have come before.

You need to know what has happened before you were born in order for there to be continuity in a nation. We have an anchor or roots in heaven. So we also look forward.

Judgment Seat of Christ (1985–1987, 1995)

This doctrine was covered in Lessons #440–444; all the notes were placed here in Lesson #440. This did not match up perfectly; some sections were close, many were not given.

This doctrine taken from Spiritual Dynamics 168 4/4/93; Ephesians 627 8/23/87, 477f 2/8/87; 234 3/9/86; 4/7/85 There is not an exact match up, so I added a few points from Romans #440–#441.

- A. The Seven Major Judgments from the Time of the Cross.
1. The judgment of Jesus Christ on the cross for all our personal sins is the first of seven major judgments in history from the cross until the end of time. Our Lord was sustained in His humanity on the cross while bearing our sins by the omnipotence of the Holy Spirit inside the Divine Dynasphere and by +H (God's happiness).
 2. The second major judgment is rebound which belongs to the royal family. This is the royal family's self-judgment to recover from the cosmic system. "If we would judge ourselves, we should not be judged." Because of our Lord's work on the cross, we simply name or cite our sins once committed which were already judged at the cross, 1John 1:9. This restores us to the divine dynasphere so that we are again filled with the Holy Spirit and restored to fellowship with God.

3. The Judgment Seat of Christ, the evaluation of all Church Age believers.
4. The judgment of living Tribulational unbeliever Gentiles at the Second Advent who are cast off the earth into the lake of fire, Matthew 25:31-46.
5. The judgment of the living Tribulational unbeliever Jews at the Second Advent, Ezekiel 20:32-38. Judgments #4 and #5 comprise the baptism of fire.
6. The judgment of all fallen angels at the end of the Millennium. Their sentence was passed before time began, but its execution is not carried out until the end of human history. For man was created in order to resolve the angelic conflict.
7. The second resurrection and judgment of all unbelievers from the beginning of time who are cast into the lake of fire. They are not judged for their sins, (for all their sins were judged at the cross), but they are judged on the basis of their human good and works, which are not good enough for the perfect righteousness of God, Revelation 20:7-10.

B. Definition, Description and Application.

1. "Judgment" can mean two things: condemnation and evaluation. In this context, it refers to evaluation. The Judgment Seat of Christ is a technical, theological term used to designate the evaluation of the royal family of God at the end of the Church Age after the rapture or resurrection of the Church. It is the evaluation of what use we made of logistical grace provision, the divine dynasphere, problem-solving devices, and divine power.
2. The Judgment Seat of Christ is the efficiency report of the believer in time.
3. The total time logged in the Spirit along with one's growth are the factors which determine how a believer is evaluated. Some believers are rewarded and some are not.
4. The reversionistic believer will not have eternal reward.
5. The evaluation is determined on the basis of the execution of the protocol plan of God or the failure to do so. The purpose of the evaluation is to determine gain or loss of escrow blessings (reward) for eternity. Gain comes from the exploitation, positive volition, and advance in the protocol plan of God. Loss comes from cosmic living, from failure to execute the Christian way of life as God's game plan for the Church Age. It also means your escrow blessings remain on deposit forever as a memorial to lost opportunity.
6. The Church Age terminates with the resurrection of the royal family of God
7. Immediately following the resurrection (rapture) of the Church, all believers of the Church Age in resurrection bodies are assembled to be evaluated with regard to their performance.
8. The evaluation is related to the believer's utilization of his very own portfolio of invisible assets.

9. Performance, not salvation, is the issue at the Judgment Seat of Christ. The protocol believer, the winner, will be rewarded at the Judgment Seat of Christ. The cosmic believer, the loser, will suffer temporary shame. He will lose his escrow blessings, but never his salvation.
10. One thing is obvious: because of the Judgment Seat of Christ, there is no equality in heaven among believers. Since God is perfect, the inequality is a perfect inequality. This inequality is not discrimination or unfairness, which we associate with inequality. Inequality exists in heaven because of lost opportunity under the equal privilege and equal opportunity every believer has under the protocol plan of God. While we have equal privilege and equal opportunity to fulfill God's plan on earth in time, there will be no equality in heaven. The greatest degree of inequality will be evident at the Judgment Seat of Christ.
11. Inequality in the eternal state means the neglect of freedom in time. For God in His grace has provided enough freedom with equal privileges and equal opportunities under the portfolio of invisible assets so that there is no excuse for any believer failing to execute God's plan. This freedom to exercise your options and make decisions for God's logistical grace provision is your responsibility as a believer. Freedom can always be measured by the amount of inequality that results. Societies and nations can be measured by this rule. God's plan provides the greatest freedom of all. The greater the freedom, the greater the inequality. Freedom equals inequality. It never leaves us the same.
 - a. Having winners and losers in the eternal state does not imply that there will be any unhappiness. But there are degrees of happiness based on the great inequalities among believers.
 - b. The distinctions and inequalities in eternity are so great that you should seriously reconsider your motivations and goals in life. You must live your life only as unto the Lord, only to please the Lord, only to be concerned with God's opinion of you. If you place doctrine first in your scale of values, the Lord will promote you. And if you are advancing in the protocol plan of God, you will be doing your job right and living your life right, which in itself will cause some indirect establishment blessing.
12. Regardless of the historical circumstances in which you live, whether under establishment freedom or tyranny, you have full spiritual freedom inside your very own palace, the divine dynasphere.
 - a. Jn 8:32, "You shall know the doctrine, and the doctrine will make you free." If you are positive, God will provide the doctrine no matter where you are.
 - b. Gal 5:1, "It is for freedom that Christ has set us free. Therefore keep on standing firm, and do not become entangled again in the yoke of slavery [cosmic system]."
 - c. James 1:25 But the one who looks intently into the perfect law [Word of God] that gives freedom and continues to do this, not forgetting what he has heard [from doctrine] but executing it, this believer will be happy in what he is doing. This believer will come to the end of his life with no regrets!

- d. James 2:12, "Keep communicating and so keep doing as those who are going to be judged by the law of freedom."
 - e. We prepare for the Judgment Seat of Christ through taking in Bible doctrine. 2Timothy 2:5 Now if anyone really competes in the athletic games he does not receive a winner's wreath unless he trains according to the rules. This is a great issue in the athletic games of the ancient world. You could not win in any of the games without being authority oriented. Some of the best athletes did not compete or win because they were not authority-orientated. You cannot learn doctrine apart from the pastor-teacher and being able to recognize that person's authority. You do not orient to authority by Christian feasts. Our schools are lacking in authority; and this is destroying our education. If you lack authority-orientation, then your hangups are multififerous. In a large system, there will be problems and breakdowns. But stay with the system, the system will work for you. There is a system called marriage, family, athletics, education; and these will work for you eventually. It is when you buck the system; when you buck authority. How many times has the authority been wrong and you have been right; but you buck the authority, and you become instantly wrong. Children who complain about their parents; athletes who complain about their coach; all the same principle. No recognition of authority in little league up to pro-ball. Different standards for the hotshots and for the victims and for the others. Rules exist to prepare you for life. This is for unbelievers; for the unfairness of life. The athletes there lived in a dorm; and it was one cubicle per athlete. When you are canned, you are canned (and this is true for Berachah Church as well).
 - f. This law of freedom says that God has provided a system for you to grow in grace and knowledge of our Lord and Savior. It is a freedom totally apart from any national or establishment freedom; it is a freedom inside the divine dynasphere. It is the freedom to advance from gate #4 to gate #8, having equal privilege and equal opportunity to do so.
 - g. Therefore, at the Judgment Seat of Christ, the first issue you will face in your new resurrection body is how you used this freedom!
13. So freedom means inequality both in time and in eternity. People are free to succeed or fail, free to stand on their own decisions and motives and actions.
- a. Freedom means individual responsibility and motivation.
 - b. Freedom means you must have your very own scale of values and priorities.
 - c. You are evaluated on how you used your freedom, because having freedom, you must take the responsibility for every decision you make, as well as for your thoughts, motivations and actions. Being free is the greatest responsibility the world has ever known.

- d. Freedom means some will take their volition and develop a system of priorities and stick to them, becoming organized in their minds. Others will depart from their priorities when they feel like it. You will answer for this use of your freedom to the Lord Jesus Christ Himself.
14. Inequality exists the moment freedom starts. Inequality is always the greatest monument to freedom.
 15. Believers who are constantly failing to execute the protocol plan of God lack four things:
 - a. They have no true standards. They cannot distinguish God's plan for life in general from Satan's cosmic system.
 - b. These believers have no effectiveness. Their life has neither meaning, purpose, nor definition. The cosmic believer cannot be distinguished from any unbeliever, moral or immoral. Ignorance is not bliss but blasphemy and disaster to his life. This is why God so often punishes and disciplines, because we have to be brought to the end of our resources before we realize what is important in life.
 - c. They have no coordination. Ignorance of doctrine means no orientation to the plan of God. Therefore, the believer makes decisions from a position of weakness; that is, from arrogance and from personal ambition. He has no control over his life and no personal sense of destiny.
 - d. They have no performance, no momentum in the divine dynasphere, no execution of the protocol plan of God, no virtue, no use of the problem-solving devices, no production, and no glorification of God. No performance means no rewards or decorations at the Judgment Seat of Christ.
 16. While the believer cannot lose his salvation, as a loser in the cosmic system, the privileges, rewards and decorations that are given to winners will never be his throughout all eternity.
 17. The Judgment Seat of Christ is the time of the seventh imputation from the justice of God.
 18. The evaluator of each believer is the prince ruler of the Church, the Lord Jesus Christ, John 5:22.
 19. Since the Son was judged for our sins on the cross, a series of judgments follow the judgment of the Cross, for example:.,
 - a. the self judgment of the believer in rebound,
 - b. the Judgment Seat of Christ,
 - c. the terminal judgments of the Tribulation,
 - d. and the terminal judgment at the end of the Millennium.
- C. The Time of the Judgment Seat of Christ.

1. The Rapture of the Church occurs at the end of the Church Age. All Church Age believers both alive and dead will join Christ in the air. No man knows the day or the hour of the Rapture. 1Thessalonians 4:13-18, "But we do not want you to be ignorant, brethren, concerning those who are asleep [dead Church Age believers] that you do not grieve like the rest [unbelievers] who have no hope [confidence]. For if we believe that Jesus died and rose again [and we do], so also God will bring with Him those who have fallen asleep [dead] in Jesus. For this doctrine in the Word of God we communicate to you, that we who are alive and remain until the coming of the Lord [Rapture] shall not precede those who have fallen asleep. For the Lord Himself will descend from heaven with a command, with the voice command of the archangel [for believers alive], also a command from the trumpet of God [for dead believers]; in fact, the dead in Christ shall rise first. Then we who are alive [in resurrection bodies] and remain on the earth shall be caught up together with them in the clouds for the purpose of meeting the Lord in the air [judgment seat of Christ], and so we shall always be with the Lord. Therefore, comfort one another with these doctrines."
 - a. You cannot afford to have ignorance about a doctrine as important as the Judgment Seat of Christ, because you are responsible for your ignorance. Your ignorance is never anyone else's fault. God will always provide pastors who teach the Truth. If you are ignorant, it is because you either do not expose yourself to the Truth by attendance, or though you attend, you do not listen but resent or reject the teaching.
 - b. Meeting the Lord in resurrection body will occur in the second Heaven, the stellar universe ("clouds").
 - c. Rev 22:12, "Behold, I am coming soon, and My reward is with Me to decorate each winner according to his accomplishments." "Soon" refers to the immanency of the Rapture, for there is no prophecy left to be fulfilled before the Rapture. This verse says that the winners will receive their escrow blessings for eternity at the Judgment Seat of Christ.
2. The Judgement Seat of Christ does not immediately follow the Rapture, but an unprecedented event of worship of Christ. Philippians 2:9-11, "Therefore also, God [Father] has exalted Him [Son] to the maximum, in fact, He has given Him a royal title which is superior to every royal title." The first royal title is Son of God, the patent of deity. The second royal title is Son of David, the patent of our Lord's Jewish humanity. The third royal title referred to here is King of kings, Lord of lords, the Bright Morning Star, the patent of our Lord's strategic victory in the angelic conflict. "That in the presence of the person of Christ, every knee in heaven shall bow, both the ones on earth [believers alive] and the ones under the earth [dead believers]. And every tongue will acknowledge that Jesus Christ is Lord to the glory of God the Father."
 - a. Jesus Christ becomes your Lord at salvation when you are entered into union with Him. But we do not come to recognize this unless we advance to spiritual maturity. Then we have full cognizance of the Lordship of Christ. During our lifetime, the Lordship of Christ is really a matter of our priorities. If Bible doctrine is #1 in your life, then Jesus Christ has highest priority as your Lord, for Bible doctrine is the thinking of Christ. If He is not first, then you're a loser and will not recognize Jesus Christ as Lord until you're in resurrection body.

- b. Phil 2:11, "And every tongue . . ." is the last time there will be any equality in the royal family of God. This event can be called the big genuflect in the sky. After that comes the Judgment Seat of Christ which will result in tremendous differences among believers in resurrection bodies.
 3. The Judgment Seat of Christ follows in heaven while the Tribulation occurs on earth.
 4. Then we return with Christ at His Second Advent to begin His millennial reign.
- D. Encouragement from the rapture:
1. Philippians 2:9-11, 3:20-21 For the seat of our citizenship exists in heaven; even from which place [heaven] we eagerly anticipate the Saviour, the Lord Jesus Christ; Who shall change the form of our body of our humiliation into conformity with the body of his glory [resurrection body], humble station [phase II] in conformity with the body of His glory [the glory of the resurrected Christ] according to the operational power from of this same one [Jesus Christ] also keeps on being able also to bring into subjection all these things to Himself. ; 1Corinthians 15:50-53 Now I communicate this doctrine to you, royal family, that flesh and blood cannot inherit the Kingdom of God; neither does corruption inherit incorruption. Behold, I tell you a mystery that we shall not all sleep but we shall all be changed, in a moment, in the blinking of an eye, at the last trumpet, for the trumpet shall sound and the dead shall be raised incorruptible and we shall be changed. For this corruptible must put on the incorruptible and this mortal must put on immortality [this is a reference to the rapture of the church]; 1John 3:1-2 Concentrate on how great a love the Father has given to us that we should be called the children of God [and we are]; therefore the world does not recognize us because it did not recognize Him. Beloved, now are we the children of God and it has not yet appeared what we shall be; but we know that if He should appear [the rapture of the church], we shall be an exact copy of Him because we shall see Him just as He is. This is the rapture of the church followed by the big genuflect, Philippians 2:9–11 Therefore, also, the God (God the Father) has exalted Him [Jehovah, to the maximum] and He has bestowed on Him the rank which is above every rank [battlefield royalty] in order that in the Presence of the Person of Jesus every knee of heaven shall bow both the ones on earth and the ones under the earth. Every tongue shall acknowledge the Jesus Christ is Lord resulting in God the Father. This is the great genuflect which occurs after we receive our resurrection bodies. The entire population recognizes Jesus Christ as the head of the family and they recognize this by the bowing before Him of God the Father. This is the great inerrim event between the rapture of the church and the Judgment Seat of Christ. The royal family efficiency report is given; and the rewards are bestowed in time.

2. 1Corinthians 15:58 Therefore, my brethren, be stabilized immovable, always abounding in the production of the Lord, knowing that your labor (your advance to maturity) is not empty in the Lord. Many times you may think that you are spinning your wheels, when in reality you are moving ahead in the plan of God.
3. The rapture takes the sting out of death. 1Corinthians 15:54–57 But when this corruption shall have put on incorruption and this mortal shall put on immortality, then will come to pass the saying that has been recorded, [Isaiah 25:8] death is swallowed up in victory; O death where is your victory; O death, where is your sting? The sting of death is sin and the power of death is the Law, but thanks be to God Who gives us the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ. The sting of death has been taken away from us by this great doctrine of the rapture.
4. The rapture also removes hysteria during bereavement. 1Thessalonians 4:13–14 However, we do not desire you to be ignorant, royal family, about those who are asleep [Christian death; the body is sleeping waiting for the resurrection while the soul and the spirit are in the presence of the Lord] in order that you might not grieve as the rest of the world who have no hope. For if we believe that Jesus died and rose again [and we do] so also the God will bring with him those who have fallen asleep in Jesus.
5. The rapture is a comfort to anyone standing at the gravesite of another believer. 1Thessalonians 4:15-18 For this doctrine in the Lord we communicate to you, that we who are alive who remain until the coming of the Lord [the rapture] shall not precede those who are asleep for the Lord Himself will descend from heaven with a command with the voice of the archangel, also with the trumpet of God, the dead in Christ shall rise first and then we who are alive who remain shall be caught up together with them in the clouds for the purpose of meeting the Lord in the air, and so we shall always be with the Lord. Therefore, comfort one another with these doctrines. This is how we are comforted when we are at the funerals of relatives and friends of long standing, where there are these wonderful memories; and the realization that we know we will see them again.
6. Philipians 1:6 For I have confidence in this same doctrine, that He Who began a good work in you will accomplish it until the day of Christ Jesus (being the rapture of the church); 1Peter 1:3 Blessed by the God, even the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, Who, according to His great mercy, has caused us to be born again to a living confidence through the resurrection of Jesus Christ from deaths.
7. The rewards and blessings glorify God forever and are to be enjoyed forever.
8. Hope is confidence in future events;

- a. Colossians 1:27 (Church Age believers) to whom God willed to make known what is the riches of the glory of this mystery among the Gentiles, which is Christ indwelling you, the absolute confidence of glory.
- b. Titus 1:2 in hope of eternal life in which God cannot lie....
- c. Job 4:6 Is not your awe of God your hope? Supergrace A and supergrace B; to ultra supergrace.
- d. Psalm 71:5 You are my hope, Lord God, my confidence from youth.

The Seven General Characteristics of the Judgment Seat of Christ

- D. The Purpose of the Judgment Seat of Christ. 2Corinthians 5:10, "For we must all appear before the Judgment Seat of Christ, that each one of us [royal family of God] may receive what is due him [rewards] for the things accomplished while in the body, whether good [of intrinsic value] or worthless [evil]."
1. This is the evaluation of the believer's performance in the protocol plan of God during his time on earth. Under our computer assets, each believer has equal privilege and equal opportunity under both election and predestination to execute the protocol plan of God.
 2. If the believer lives his life in the cosmic system, it is worthless (PHAULOS) or evil; he has failed to fulfill the protocol plan of God. If he lives in the divine dynasphere and fulfills the protocol plan of God, it is intrinsic good (AGATHOS) and he, the winner, receives rewards above and beyond the resurrection body.
 3. The loser is the one who loses these decorations and rewards. The winner is the one who fulfills the protocol plan of God and receives them.
 4. So the issue is that your life for all eternity is now in the making. Your day-by-day attitudes toward doctrine and priorities will determine completely what you will receive at the Judgment Seat of Christ. It takes only one decision for eternal life. It takes many, many decisions to receive the great decorations, honors, and rewards at the Judgment Seat of Christ.
 5. There are two Greek words which describe the plan of God for each of us. DUNAMIS means power; AGATHOS means good. The first word refers to the plan of God from the viewpoint of the divine dynasphere, His power system in which we are to function, so that we will be stronger than the cosmic system. You cannot make it on your own in life. You must have a power greater than your own power. Two kinds are offered: Satan's cosmic system, or God's divine dynasphere. The second word refers to the plan of God from the viewpoint of imputation, X+Y+Z equals the Good.
 6. The invisible and visible part of the Christian life which produces motivating and functional virtues are rewardable. In the cosmic system there is motivating evil, arrogance, and functional evil, the actual production of evil.
 7. The purpose of the Judgment Seat of Christ is the evaluation of each believer's life on earth between salvation and death (or the Rapture). What did you do with the tremendous invisible assets provided by God?

8. You will know how it will be at the Judgment Seat of Christ for you by how you die. If you don't have dying grace, you'll receive little or nothing at the Judgment Seat of Christ.

9. There is no distinction in heaven between those who fail or succeed as long as the Church Age continues. Therefore, those in an interim body all have equally fantastic happiness prior to the Judgment Seat of Christ.

E. The Application of the Judgment Seat of Christ: Virtue. Romans 14:10-13, "You there, why do you judge your fellow believer? Or you also, why do you regard your fellow believer with contempt? For we shall all stand before the judgment seat of God. For it stands written, [Isaiah 45:23] 'As I live,' says the Lord, 'every knee will bow to Me and every tongue will acknowledge to God.' Therefore, each one of us [Church age believers] shall give an account of himself to God. Therefore, let us no longer judge one another but rather determine this: not to place an obstacle or a distraction in front of a fellow believer."

1. Every believer is a royal priest and represents himself before God. You are to live your own life as unto the Lord. You first become spiritually independent at gate #5 with personal love for God, where you live under the privacy of your priesthood as unto the Lord.

2. When you become a spiritual adult, you stop interfering in and tampering with the lives of others. You cannot have control of your own life and interfere in the lives of others. You stop the arrogant characteristic of possessiveness.

3. Each one of us must stand before the Judgment Seat of Christ alone. Just as we have to learn how to live our own lives and how to die alone, so we will stand alone in resurrection body before the Lord Jesus Christ and give an account of ourselves to Him.

4. You have no right to judge others. That is the prerogative of Jesus Christ. Our only concern should be our own priesthood rather than minding others' business and telling them how to run their lives. When you regard others with contempt it is indicative of lack of virtue-love and having not attained spiritual maturity.

5. You are responsible for your own decisions. Ignorance is no excuse before the Judgment Seat of Christ. The only way you can avoid judging or distracting other believers is by tolerating them from the virtue developed through impersonal love in spiritual autonomy.

6. You must give account for your own thoughts, actions, decisions. You cannot blame anyone else at the Judgment Seat of Christ. What good does it do for you to be full of self-righteous arrogance and moral degeneracy and judge other people, when you yourself will be judged for it by Jesus Christ at His judgment seat? Ignorance and insanity will be no excuse, because volition still wanted to do it.

7. In context, the "obstacle" you place in front of other believers is judging or maligning them, trying to make them feel guilty, seeking revenge.

8. So how can you avoid becoming a distraction to other believers? By simply growing in grace and in the knowledge of our Lord and Savior, Jesus Christ.

The sooner you get to spiritual self-esteem and occupation with Christ, the better, for then you will have overcome this.

9. Stubborn people are divorced from reality. They have no flexibility. Doctrine and ductibility go together.
 10. Some people face reality but only when they are hurting. Then they get very emotional and ignore the reality. You can get emotional during your periods of prosperity.
 11. People in battle suddenly face reality and then they run to save themselves.
- F. The Fulfillment of the Protocol Plan of God.
1. Life in the divine dynasphere and the fulfillment of the protocol plan of God determines winners or losers at the Judgment Seat of Christ.
 2. 1John 2:28, "And now, dear children, keep residing in it [the divine dynasphere], that if He should appear [Rapture], we might have confidence and might not be put to shame in His presence." Note that there is a difference of attitude in resurrection bodies at the Judgment Seat of Christ. The winner will have confidence; the loser will be put to shame, though only temporarily, for there is no sorrow in the eternal state. The loser does not lose his salvation, only his eternal rewards.
 3. James 1:25, "But the one who looks intently into the perfect law that gives freedom [Bible doctrine] and continues to do this, not forgetting what he has heard but doing it, this believer will be blessed in what he is doing."
 4. James 2:12-13. Perception of doctrine in the divine dynasphere is the basis for our evaluation. The Judgment Seat of Christ is related to our many decisions to reside and function in the divine dynasphere.
- G. Winners will be rewarded at the Judgment Seat of Christ. Revelation 22:12, "Behold, I am coming soon [imminency of Rapture] and My reward is with Me to decorate each winner as his accomplishment is." Point 12 in this doctrine delineates the rewards given to the winner.
- H. Winners have confidence about the Judgment Seat of Christ.
1. 1John 2:21, "Beloved, if our right lobe does not condemn us [and it doesn't in the divine dynasphere], we keep on having confidence before God."
 2. 1John 4:17, "By this [living in divine dynasphere], virtue love has been achieved by us, that we might have confidence in the day of evaluation [Judgment Seat of Christ], because just as He is [during the great power experiment of the Hypostatic Union], so also we are in the world [great power experiment of the Church Age]."
 3. Our Lord lived in the prototype divine dynasphere; we live in the operational divine dynasphere. Consistent living in the divine dynasphere produces confidence before our Lord at His judgment seat. Just as Christ had confidence about His eternal rewards before His death, so we do also.
- I. Losers are ashamed at the Judgment Seat of Christ.
1. Shame is defined as painful feeling originating from the consciousness of something dishonorable or wrong or sinful or that causes terrible regret; hence, embarrassment regarding failure to fulfill God's plan under the principle of equal opportunity to do so. This is a very temporary shame; for there is no sorrow in the eternal state.

2. There are five passages which describe the shame of the loser at the Judgment Seat of Christ.
 - a. Philippians 3:18-19, "For many believers [losers] keep walking, concerning whom I have communicated to you many times and now continue communicating even though weeping, that they are the enemies of the cross whose end is destruction [the sin unto death], whose god is their emotion, whose glory [at Judgment Seat of Christ] is their shame, who keep thinking about earthly things."
 - (1) Paul was weeping from frustration because of the negative volition of believers who could care less about what the Word of God has to say even though he continued to teach faithfully and accurately. There never was a teacher or a believer like Paul. These believers had not been faithful in the perception, metabolization, and application of doctrine through the problem solving devices.
 - (2) All losers are enemies of the Cross; they die the sin unto death. This is the eschatology of every loser in the Church Age. Christian losers are believers who fail to execute the protocol plan of God in time. They have equal opportunity to do so. They must be self-motivated; no one can do it for you. They fail to glorify God in time through the function of the spiritual skills. Losers have no glory, no blessing at the Judgment Seat of Christ. On earth they had only wrong priorities and wrong scale of values. Christian losers are described under seven categories in the New Testament.
 - (a) The believer who has "drifted off course from grace," Gal 5:4.
 - (b) The believer who "comes short of the grace of God," Hebrews 12:15.
 - (c) The "lukewarm" believer of Revelation 3:15-16.
 - (d) The "shipwrecked" believer of 1 Timothy 1:19.
 - (e) The "psycho" or double-minded believer of James 1:8.
 - (f) The believer who fails to metabolize doctrine, James 1:22-24.
 - (g) The believer who is called "the enemy of the Cross," Philippians 3:18-19.
 - (3) 1 Corinthians 15:34, "Come to your senses righteously, and stop sinning; for some believers have no knowledge of God. I speak this to your shame."
 - b. Romans 5:5, "And confidence [at the Rapture] does not make us ashamed [at Judgment Seat of Christ]."

(1) The faith-rest drill is parlayed into a personal sense of destiny as we learn more doctrine. A personal sense of destiny separates the basic problem solving devices from the advanced problem solving devices.

(2) The Greek verb Elpizô (ἐλπίζω) [pronounced el-PID-zoh] means to have hope in the sense of expectation with the nuance of counting upon something. The noun ELPIS means to have absolute confidence. We have three absolute states of hope or confidence in the Christian life.

(a) We have absolute confidence that at the moment we believe in Christ, we become the possessor of eternal life.

(b) We have absolute confidence that at the moment we reach spiritual maturity, we receive our escrow blessings for time.

(c) We have absolute confidence that at the Judgment Seat of Christ as mature believers, we will receive our escrow blessings for eternity.

c. Philippians 1:20, "According to my earnest expectation and hope [3] that I shall not be put to shame in anything, but with all confidence, Christ shall even now [living in divine dynasphere] as always [before Judgment Seat of Christ in resurrection body] be glorified in my body, whether by life or by death." Living and dying, prosperity and adversity, are equated with +H.

d. 2Timothy 2:15, "A workman who does not need to be ashamed [at Judgment Seat of Christ], rightly dividing the Word of Truth." Learning the mechanics of the protocol plan of God (rightly dividing the Word of Truth) and executing this plan protects the believer from being ashamed. e. 1John 2:28, "...that we might have confidence and not be put to shame by Him in His presence [judgment seat of Christ]."

3. The use of the ten problem solving devices during your Christian life on earth is the means of avoiding shame at the Judgment Seat of Christ.

J. Loss of reward does not mean loss of salvation.

1. Loss of reward or blessing above and beyond the resurrection body is determined by your volition, your choice of dynasphere. 1Corinthians 3:13-15, "Each man's production will become manifest; for the day will show it, because it is to be revealed by fire. In fact the fire itself will test what quality each one's production is. If any one's production, which he has built on the foundation [salvation] remains, he shall receive a reward. If anyone's production is burned up, he shall suffer loss [of reward]. But he himself shall be saved [delivered] yet so as through fire."

2. There is great inequality in heaven based on the function of your free will in time. The foundation is eternal life in this passage. Bad decisions from the cosmic system produce the wood, hay and straw which is burned. A lot of hard working, sincere Christians will have big bonfires at the Judgment Seat of Christ.

3. Even though you can lose reward, you cannot lose your salvation. 2Timothy 2:11-13, "Faithful is the word. For if we have died with Him, we shall also live with Him. If we endure [in divine dynasphere], we shall also rule with Him. If we refuse [to function in the divine dynasphere], He will also refuse us [reward]. If we are unfaithful [in cosmic system], he remains faithful, for you see, He cannot deny Himself."

a. When God does something for you, it's permanent. Eternal security is a divine gift at salvation that not even God can take away.

b. While eternal security is permanent, confidence in God is temporary, depending on your residence in the divine dynasphere. Confidence in God can be gained or lost, but not so with eternal security.

c. Confidence in God is something we do for ourselves by learning doctrine. But eternal security is something God does for us. Eternal security depends on the integrity of God, while confidence in God depends on the integrity of the believer.

d. Confidence in God can be lost through the believer's residence in the cosmic system. But eternal security is permanent no matter what the believer does.

e. The principle of eternal security is found in John 10:28, "And I give to them eternal life, and they shall never perish, neither shall anyone pluck them out of My hand." Cf. 1Peter 1:3-5.

f. 1John 3:21 teaches the principle of confidence in God. In 1John 4:17, confidence is the issue at the Judgment Seat of Christ, not eternal security. The believer in the cosmic system has no confidence before God at the Judgment Seat of Christ.

K. Military and Athletic Analogies to Rewards, 2Timothy 2:4-5 "No soldier on active duty entangles himself in the affairs of everyday life [a person on active duty does not live a normal life], so that he may please the one who enlisted him as a soldier." Verse 5, "Furthermore, if anyone competes in the athletic games, he does not receive a winner's crown unless he trains according to the rules."

1. The athlete had to undergo ten months of strict training just to qualify to participate in the games. He had to enter a registered state gymnasium, analogous to living in the divine dynasphere. Every athlete went through identical training no matter what his event. This is analogous to every believer having the identical divine dynasphere as the place in which we train and compete. We must fulfill the training rules of the protocol plan of God. Only the protocol Christian is living the Christian way of life, therefore, is qualified to compete in the angelic conflict.

2. The ATHLETAI were the ones who trained under the rules of the national gymnasium for ten months. You were not allowed to leave the large walled area of the gymnasium for ten months, and had to exercise under the authority of the GUMNASIARCH, the ruler of the gym (analogous to the pastor). It was a very well-paying job. He had marshals under him who watched the athletes. He wore a purple robe with white sandals, and is analogous to the pastor. The marshals were comparable to the deacons.

3. Disqualification is analogous to function inside the cosmic system. They trained not only the body, but the mind as well. After the completion of the ten month course, the athlete was allowed to compete.
4. The athlete followed a set of very strict rules which constantly tested his motivation, decisions, and momentum. This is analogous to the concept of daily perception of doctrine and momentum testing. You could not leave for any reason.
5. Everyone did the same exercise under the same authority. There were eight to ten exercise periods during the day. Everyone received group exercise naked outdoors regardless of the weather (analogous to everyone getting the same doctrinal teaching). Daily trumpet calls had to be met at various times (if you missed one you were disqualified). Everyone had equal privilege and opportunity to compete. Each class was preceded by a warning trumpet during which time the athlete reported to his trainer, the ALEIPTEI, who rubbed him down with olive oil. This is analogous to rebound before perception of doctrine. The athlete wore no clothes, analogous to the filling of the Holy Spirit.
6. All the athletes ate the same food: wheat, cheese, figs, no wine, no sweets. This relates perception of doctrine to strict academic discipline. You were on a strict diet, which everyone ate (other foods being analogous to distractions of the cosmic system).
7. All earthly distractions were prohibited during the ten months, including contact with family, friends, no sex, no social life.
8. The AGONISTAI were people who just worked out to stay in shape, which is just sheer agony; analogous to the believer in the cosmic system. This is analogous to arrogance in the cosmic system, which is sheer agony.
9. 1Corinthians 9:24-27 illustrates how we compete to reach a reward which is imperishable. "Run in such a way that you may win." Verse 27, "but I discipline my body and keep it in training, lest possibly, having preached to others, I myself should be disqualified."
10. Each winner in the national games received a crown of ivy leaves, which represented the rewards he would receive when he returned home (analogous to us receiving eternal escrow blessing when we go home to heaven). He had a special entrance cut into the wall of the city through which he passed when he returned. A plaque was put up after the wall was sealed up again. He rode in the best chariot through the city in a parade; he received a lifetime pass to all future games; a great amount of money; an ode was written by a poet; a statue was put up in the public square; his children fed and educated at public expense; he was exempt from all income taxes for life.

L. The Rewards at the Judgment Seat of Christ.

1. Introduction.

- a. Two Greek words are used for crowns.
 - (1) Stephanos (στέφανος) [pronounced STEHF-ahn-oss], a reward in athletics and the military.
 - (2) Diadema (διάδημα) [pronounced dee-AD-ay-mah], a crown used for a king. Certain rewards for believers are called Stephanos (στέφανος) [pronounced STEHF-ahn-oss]. Diadema (διάδημα) [pronounced dee-AD-ay-mah] is not used for the believer's rewards in the Bible.
- b. Stephanos (στέφανος) [pronounced STEHF-ahn-oss] is the exact equivalent to the Latin word CORONA. The Stephanos (στέφανος) [pronounced STEHF-ahn-oss] is comparable to our medal of honor. There were six categories of such crowns given by the military. Each had a great monetary reward that went with it.
 - (1) CORONA OBSIDANALUS or CORONA GRAMANIA, a golden wreath woven of golden strands; also called golden grass. This guaranteed $150,000 tax-free income a year.
 - (2) CORONA CIVICA, wreath of golden oak leaves, given for the highest type of valor in battle or for unusual acts performed by a civilian.
 - (3) Corona Navalis, the medal of honor for the navy. It was given to the first sailor to board an enemy ship during battle.
 - (4) Corona Muralis, awarded to the first soldier to scale the wall of a besieged city or reach the enemy lines, similar to our Army Distinguished Service Cross. This was only given to enlisted men.
 - (5) Corona Castrensis, awarded to the first soldier to reach the enemy lines in a battle, or to any enlisted man who did unusual things in battle.
 - (6) Corona Triumphalis, awarded to a victorious army general who commanded a winning army, or men who did secondary things of valor, comparable to our Distinguished Service Cross.
- c. The most highly decorated soldier lived in the second century B.C. according to Livy. His name was Spurius Ligustanus. Four times he was the senior centurion for the legion as an award for bravery. He won 34 decorations, including six CORONA CIVICA, the second highest. So even while serving in the army, he was one of the wealthiest men in the Roman Empire.
- d. Paul used this concept as a metaphor to illustrate the decorations awarded to winners at the Judgment Seat of Christ. There are three categories of crowns for believers in the Word of God. The first two are available to all believers; the last is available to pastor-teachers only.
 - (1) The crown of righteousness.

(2) The crown of life.

(3) The crown of glory.

- e. The warning regarding crowns, Revelation 3:11, "Hang on to what you have, so that no one takes away your crown." cf 2 John 8.

2. The Crown of Righteousness.

- a. This crown is awarded at the Judgment Seat of Christ to the Church Age believer who fulfills the protocol plan of God by the advance to gate #8 or spiritual maturity. This believer has advanced from spiritual self-esteem plus providential preventative suffering to attain spiritual autonomy, and from spiritual autonomy plus momentum testing to attain spiritual maturity.
- b. This is given to mature believers with emphasis on their attainment of gate 8 in the divine dynasphere. It emphasizes functional virtue directed toward man and circumstances; i.e., the modus operandi of your royal ambassadorship and the fulfillment of the royal family honor code.
- c. The believer who wears the invisible uniform of honor (Eph 6) will receive the crown of righteousness. The function of impersonal love is the manifestation of the invisible uniform of honor. The crown of righteousness is given for your virtue, honor, integrity, passing momentum tests, and fulfillment of the royal family honor code.
- d. 2Timothy 4:7-8, "I have fought an honorable fight [advance to spiritual maturity]. I have completed the course [execution of the protocol plan of God]. I have guarded the doctrine [as #1 priority]. In the future there is reserved for me a crown of righteousness, which the Lord, the righteous judge, will award me in that day, and not only to me, but to all [winners] who have loved His appearing." He perpetuated spiritual self-esteem and spiritual maturity. As a mature believer, the perpetuation of spiritual maturity means to continue learning the Word of God daily.
- e. So the crown of righteousness is a decoration for the attainment, perpetuation, and activity of spiritual maturity. This crown is presented to those believers who advance through the three stages of spiritual adulthood.
- f. Accompanying the crown of righteousness is a tremendous amount of extra privileges, blessings, and opportunities in the eternal state.

3. The Crown of Life. See John 15.

- a. This crown of life is awarded to the Church Age believer who in spiritual maturity passes evidence testing. By passing evidence testing, the mature believer has glorified God to the maximum and so will receive the crown of life. Evidence testing is administered by Satan as an extension of the angelic conflict.
- b. Revelation 2:10, "Do not fear what you are about to suffer. Note that the devil is about to cast some of you in prison, that you may be tested and you will have special persecution ten times. Keep on being faithful even until death, and I will give you the crown of life."

- c. James 1:12, "Happy is that person who perseveres under testing, for once he has passed the [evidence] test, he will receive the crown of life which God has promised to those who love Him." This tells us that happiness is not confined to prosperity, to having things going your way. The happiness provided by Bible doctrine exists under the greatest categories of adversity.
 - d. The crown of life is awarded to all members of the royal family of God who utilize the problem-solving devices and advance to maturity and then use +H to pass evidence testing.
4. The Crown of Glory.
- a. This is awarded to pastors who faithfully study and teach Bible doctrine to their congregation, doctrine by which the pastor and positive members of the congregation will attain spiritual maturity. There are four categories of pastors in the Church Age.
 - (1) The cosmic pastor, who lives in cosmic one and two, is distracted by social action, crusader arrogance, and is totally disoriented to reality. He is very arrogant, self-righteous, and ignorant of doctrine.
 - (2) The baby pastor high profiles his own personality while low profiling the Word of God. He only evangelizes and gives moral lectures.
 - (3) The adolescent pastor teaches some truth but is distracted by various forms of high profile. He is selling his own personality (rather than teaching doctrine) by visiting the sick, calling on the congregation, conducting programs. He can be a pseudo-intellectual, a crusader, a bleeding heart, self-righteous, a pleasing personality, or arrogant. He appeals to those with negative volition toward Bible doctrine. He doesn't have the time to study.
 - (4) The mature pastor through personal study and teaching advances to gate 8 of the divine dynasphere and is leading his congregation there. He has fulfilled the concept of gate 5,6,7,& 8 and therefore has the crown of righteousness as well. He emphasizes doctrine and is a prepared person academically, knowing where he stands theologically. He focuses on the message, not his personality. Hebrews 6:10.
 - b. The motivation for the pastor is occupation with the Lord. 1Peter 5:4, "And when the Chief Shepherd [our Lord at Judgment Seat of Christ] appears [Rapture], you [faithful pastors] will receive the unfading crown of glory."
 - c. Philippians 4:1 personalizes this concept: "Therefore, my brethren, loved ones [congregation who is respected for their faithfulness], deeply desired ones, my happiness and my crown, keep on being stabilized [winners of the crown of righteousness]."

- d. 1Thessalonians 2:19-20, "For who is our hope or happiness or crown of boasting [glory]? Is it not you in the presence of our Lord Jesus Christ at His coming? [At the Judgment Seat of Christ, those who have attained spiritual maturity are the crown of glory for the pastor.] For you are our glory and our happiness."
 - e. The pastor's boasting or crown of glory is received because certain members of his congregation do two things by listening to the teaching of the Word: they take the giant step to spiritual self-esteem, and they take the victory step to spiritual maturity where they can receive evidence testing to glorify God to the maximum. So the happiness of the pastor comes from the positive response of those faithful to the teaching of the Word of God. The pastor's happiness is different from that of anyone else.
 - f. Protocol believers are the basis for the pastor receiving the crown of glory.
 - g. The danger to the pastor is given in 1Corinthians 9:24-27 Do you not know that those who run a race all run but one receives the prize? Run in such a way that you may win. And everyone who competes in the games exercises self-discipline in all things. They do not receive a perishable crown but an imperishable crown. Therefore, I do not run without a goal [or, an objective]. I do not box like a person beating the air [he hits his target]. Instead, I discipline my body and keep it in training, lest having communicated to others the word, I myself should be disqualified. As a believer, in order to run to win, we take in Bible doctrine. Disqualification is lack of doctrine. Lack of authority-orientation.
5. The Ultimate Decoration: the Order of the Morning Star.
- a. The winner who receives the above crowns not only has vast estates in the eternal state, but he receives this decoration and others that go with it. This decoration is taken from and named after our Lord's third royal patent, "King of kings, Lord of lords, the Bright Morning Star," mentioned specifically in Revelation 22:16 and 2Peter 1:19.
 - b. The Order of the Morning Star is given to winners as the highest of all decorations in escrow blessings given by God. It is a part of the new order of chivalry in the eternal state for the royal family. This decoration is awarded for the maintenance of spiritual maturity in what may be called an ultra supergrace status.
 - c. This decoration is mentioned as a part of escrow blessings for the eternal state in Revelation 2:26,28, "Furthermore, the winner, even he who keeps My assignments [execution of the protocol plan of God] until the end [perpetuation of spiritual maturity through evidence testing], to him I will give authority over the nations." Verse 28, "Furthermore I will give to him the order of the Morning Star." The mature believer will be a king over a Gentile nation and rule during the Millennium.

- d. Receiving this decoration is the highest manifestation of glorifying the Lord Jesus Christ in the Church Age. This same title was given to Him at the ascension and session and is related to both the strategic victory and tactical victory of the angelic conflict. Revelation 22:16 "I, Jesus, have sent My angel to declare these things to you for the churches; I am the root [Jesus Christ as eternal God], and the descendent of David [Jesus Christ in Hypostatic Union], the bright morning star [His title for the First and Second Advents]." In Numbers 24:17, His title is related to His strategic victory, "I see Him, but not now, I behold Him, but not near. Behold, a star [Christ as the morning star] shall come forth from Jacob [First Advent] and a scepter shall rise from Israel [Second Advent]."
- e. Matthew 2:2 is a reference to the morning star related to the First Advent. Bible doctrine is related to Christ as the morning star in 2Peter 1:19-21, "and the morning star has come up" (Second Advent).
- f. The Order of the Morning Star is named after our Lord's royal title and is given for historical impact in the Church Age. It authorizes the recipient to reign with Christ in the Millennium and hold the highest privileges for all eternity. These believers can eat from the tree of life in the paradise of God, located in the New Jerusalem.
- g. There are at least seven privileges that accompany the Order of the Morning Star.
 - (1) The uniform of honor, being invisible and worn in the soul, is exchanged at the Judgment Seat of Christ for the translucent uniform of glory worn over the resurrection body. It was first modeled by Jesus Christ on the Mount of Transfiguration, Matthew 17, "and His clothes became white as light." The uniform of glory is a monument to right decisions. The uniform of glory is given as a translucent light which covers the resurrection body. Revelation 3:4-5, "they will walk with Me in whites...".
 - (2) The name of the winner appears on the honors list, and he is presented in the court of heaven during the Tribulation on earth. Only those on the honors list are taken to heaven and presented to God the Father. The honors list is made up of those believers who make Bible doctrine their highest priority daily. Revelation 3:5, "Thus the winner shall be clothed in white garments and I will never blot out his title [the winner is knighted at the Judgment Seat of Christ] out of the book of life. In fact I will acknowledge his title in the presence of My Father and before His angels [a formal presentation]."

(3) A new order of knighthood and eternal order of chivalry will be added to the believer's name in the Lamb's Book of Life forever, Revelation 2:17 cf Colossians 3:4,6. The new knighthood is given to the winner, Revelation 2:17, "To the winner, I will give him blessing from the hidden manna [escrow blessing for time and eternity]; also I will give him a white pebble [the resurrection body, God's final vote of justification - they voted with colored pebbles in the ancient world], and on that white pebble has been inscribed a new title [your royal patent in the eternal heraldry] which no one knows [you are an anonymous hero during the Church Age]."

(4) The winner will rule with Christ during the Millennium. There are six different approaches with regard to ruling with Christ.

(a) The a fortiori approach, Romans 5:17, "For if by the transgression of one spiritual death ruled by that one, much more, they who receive in life this surplus from grace [escrow blessing] and the gift of righteousness, much more, they shall rule through that One Jesus Christ."

(b) The sarcastic approach, 1Corinthians 4:8, "You are already filled [with private sins]; you have already become rich [but not from escrow blessing]; you have become kings without us. How I wish you really had become kings, so that we might also rule with you."

(c) The eternal security approach, 2Timothy 2:12, "If we endure [perpetuation of life in the divine dynasphere], we shall also rule..."

(d) The parable approach, Luke 19:12ff especially v.17, 19 "take charge over ten cities" = rulership.

(e) The direct approach, Revelation 3:21, "The winner, I will give to him the reward of sitting with me on my throne, as I have won and sat down with My Father on His throne."

(f) The Morning Star approach, Revelation 2:26-28.

(5) The winner's name is recorded in the permanent historical record section because of his invisible historical impact during the Church Age, Revelation 3:12a. The impact of the winner is anonymous as far as the record of history is concerned, but not as far as God is concerned. The mature believer's historical record will be recorded forever in the heavenly temple. Each pillar will have the record of his life as a winner. Revelation 3:12, "The winner, I will make him a pillar in the temple of My God. Furthermore, he will never again vanish [go outside] from history. Also I will emblazon on him the title of My God, and the name of the city of My God [this will be his pass to enter the eternal city, the New Jerusalem, a satellite city suspended above the earth in the atmosphere or in space], the new Jerusalem, which shall descend from heaven from My God; also My new title [King of kings, Lord of lords, bright morning star]."

- (a) The temple of God is the eternal record center in the future. Example: the temple at Ephesus had the great deeds of people inscribed on the pillars.
 - (b) This temple of God will be the historical textbook of the true heroes of history. The mature believer as a part of the pivot is the true impact on history. In Gal 2:9 the mature believer is currently called a pillar of the church.
- (6) The winner receives his own coat of arms of glory, Revelation 3:12b.
- (7) The winner has special privileges related to the Tree of Life, the Gazebo of the Garden, called the Paradise of God. You are a member of a special club with special parties to which only you are invited; you're a member of the Paradise Club forever, Revelation 2:7,14. Revelation 2:7, "To the winner, I will give to him the privilege of eating from the tree of life which is in the paradise of God." Revelation 22:14, "Blessed are they [winners] who have washed their robes [rebound], that they may have the right to the tree of life, and may enter by the gates into the city [new Jerusalem]." The tree of life is the ultimate in eternal reward and blessing. _

Lesson #441

441 06/20/1978 Romans 14 Doctrine for the crisis; third world; doctrine of the judgment seat of Christ (2-4), time and efficiency rating

We have been given the freedom to take in doctrine in order to face any disaster or crisis. The times of prosperity are easy to understand. They result from the human race functioning under the laws of divine establishment; and believers advancing to spiritual maturity. Never a time in our history when it was more difficult to be an American. The challenge of being an American is only less difficult than being a Christian today.

The only true equality is when we receive the 36 things at the moment of salvation. However, the very freedom which we have at that point, guarantees inequality. The only preparation that counts is the continual intake of Bible doctrine. The old epigram, the best laid plans of mice and men. We can use our freedom to advance or to reject Bible doctrine. Historical crisis is always the great vacuum cleaner. God does that. He creates the crisis that destroys the scum of the earth. Sooner or later we will face the evils of communism. We have saved communist Russia and we have rearmed them. We have the greatest ingredients for any historical detonation and it is going to shake you down to your very toenails.

There is someone behind the glass whose head is down and he is not getting anything here. The storm is coming and the only way to batton down the hatches is to take advantage of every bit of doctrinal teaching that we can get.

When the crisis hits, this will be the greatest national shock...for we have not known anything of an invasion.

We will all have a resurrection body; and we will all have equality in the resurrection body.

The points for the Judgment Seat of Christ will be placed with the previous lesson.

Lesson #442

442 06/21/1978 Romans 14 Doctrine of judgment seat of Christ (pt.5-7); Rapture; flexibility of the great captains; hope

Bob almost immediately jumps right into the middle of the doctrine, the comfort of the rapture.

Chronology of the Rapture.

- A. The Rapture takes place, 1Corinthians 15:51-58; 1Thessalonians 4:13-18.
- B. The Big Genuflex occurs, Philippians 2:9-11. Emotion must follow doctrine; not vice versa.
- C. The Judgment Seat of Christ when we receive our efficiency rating, 2Corinthians 5:10; Romans 5:10.
- D. Bride returns with Christ at the Second Advent with our resurrection bodies, 1Thessalonians 3:13.
- E. The manifestation of the Bride, Romans 8:19; Colossians 2:15 3:4 On the occasion when Christ our life might be made manifest, also you shall become manifest together with Him in glory.
- F. Operation Footstool, Psalm 110:1; Zechariah 13:2; Colossians 2:15; 1Corinthians 15:24-25. The fallen angels are removed from the earth and incarcerated.

G. The Coronation of Christ, Revelation 19:6.

H. The Wedding Supper of the Lamb, Revelation 19:7-9

Romans 14:10 But you [weak believer], why do you judge your brother? or you also [strong believer], why do you despise your brother? for all believers will be present at the tribunal of the God.

The points for the Judgment Seat of Christ will be placed two lessons back.

Bob looked back on great captains. Hannibal kept Rome in a state of perpetual terror without any logistical support from home.

Gaius Julius Cæsar as never thought of him as a soldier up to age 40, as he had not gone through any formal military training. He has a genius that would touch earth. He knew when to be flexible and inflexible. He was totally oriented to reality.

Napoleon should be ranked as the most astute captain of modern times. The importance of knowing terrain and to be where your enemy does not expect you to be. When he sat down to write a civilian code for France and this was the only stabling factor that the French have had through empires the republics. He was always in touch with reality.

Frederick the Great was hardheaded. He believed in universal military training and in strict discipline. He believed that Bible doctrine should be the motivator of his kingdom. He was the first to discover the basics of the industrial revolution. He knew when to drop the book completely.

Napoleon was always known for being aggressive. Bob keeps saying Napoleon, but maybe he meant Frederick? He acted in front of the Russians; the noblemen of Russian figured that they had him trapped. If you expect to do well, you have to figure out when to follow the book and when to set it aside. The book is written for the average.

Bob grew up in extreme wealth. When he came to Berachah he could not believe his salary; and he changed his lifestyle completely; and it did not bother him a bit.

We have free will; and we are responsible for our decisions. The honor code application of doctrine is very much in the picture; and many things that we have ignored have become critical issues.

Lesson #443

443 06/22/1978 Romans 14 Complaining vs. professionalism; orientation to authority; athletic analogy; doctrine of the judgment seat of Christ (8–9); slights

The Army Times on the medal of honor; someone who believes that he deserves it.

We function under the royal family honor code. We will get due recognition at the Judgment Seat of Christ (or condemnation).

The points for the Judgment Seat of Christ will be placed three lessons back.

Inflexibility in the Nonessentials = a bureaucracy.

Sometimes, we get no credit; and this happens often in life. All of us will face this problem with its attendant temptations. You will be tempted to complain. Life will always be unfair in the devil's world to the believer. We all have some idea as to what our life should be and we will all see someone who is totally undeserving, a 1st class cluck and take our place to receive what is due to us. If God does not promote you, then you are not promoted. When you sit around and complain, you are blaspheming the plan of God.

You have learned a lot by being here. When I found you, you were a dummy. "I trained you and taught you." You don't learn doctrine by holding hands and standing in a circle. Some of you will not learn Bible doctrine because you are not authority oriented. Until you are authority oriented, you have had it. This is authority, whether you like it or not. You are not a winner until you reach maturity.

1977 Romans

Lesson #444

444 06/23/1978 Romans 14 French in Africa; doctrine of the judgment seat of Christ (10–12); German military decorations; crowns

The Houston Tribute is one of the better papers. Phyllis Schaffley is one of Bob's favorite authors. Andrew Young ignored the invasion of Zaire; but the French rapidly responded. This is Africa's third largest state. If Zaire would have fallen, the biggest problem to the Soviets would have been eliminated. Previously, it seemed that Belgium had the most influence over Zaire.

One gigantic army broke through Lee's rear; and Lee is fighting two battles against Yankees; and Longstreet is off getting food. Lee has his army go down an unknown road, and come around behind the Yanks. Lee and Jackson sat down at a fire that night and mapped this whole thing out.

Corrected translation of vv. 8–10:

The points for the Judgment Seat of Christ will be placed four lessons back. Last day on this doctrine.

1977 Romans

Lesson #445

445 06/25/1978 Romans 14:11 U.S. unprepared; application from and doctrine of the big genuflect (1–14); inspiration of Scripture

A Mr. Frisbee writing for Armed Forces or Air Force. Administration's decision to withdraw troops from South Korea, something about the Neutron bomb, and several other things. These decisions were made without speaking to military advisors. There were some strong words from the administration, soon followed by assurances to Russia that these were only for national consumption. Winston Churchill is mentioned and his history of WWII. Parallels are never exact. In our government, defense is never separated from politics.

Bob said that this is the first time that the Air Force magazine has said that we are in serious trouble. It is one of the greatest red flags that Bob has ever seen. Before this is all over, Ford is going to look like a genius. We are in troublesome times. In business, we go on as if there were no problems at all.

Bob was struck with the great tragedies of the movie last night, Gone with the Wind. We have the only answer and the only source. Some of you keep thinking that there is someone you can elect or some group that you can follow or finding something that you can do to turn it all around. Our objective has not changed since Moses, Abraham, Jeremiah, or during any disaster in history. We are to take in doctrine and take in doctrine, and be prepared to stand in the gap in whatever the Lord has for us. All of us have personal problems, heartaches and difficulties. We do not talk about our difficulties or personal problems or bad luck. We are preparing for something really big. No matter when the crisis hits, we know what is most important. We know about the ability to cope with life and its disasters. We have all developed a better life, a better social life; how easy it is to be content with what it is that we have. This is a time of capacity for life for appreciation of life.

Bob really liked the young men and women who attended the movie.

Some of you have reflected on your happiest moment in life. Finding in life something that has meaning and definition to us personally. But our happiest moments will be in the future in eternity.

Some have said, I wish this moment could be perpetuated forever. And this will be our state of mind in eternity future. We are going to take the doctrine and apply it to what is taking place today and the disaster which appears to be upon us.

This is the doctrine of the Big Genuflex.

Genuflection is a noun that refers to the act of genuflecting (i.e., touching one knee to the floor or ground as a sign of respect). "Genuflexion" is often used as a variant spelling of genuflection, due to the word's Latin origin.

Romans 14:11 For it has been written: "I live, says the Lord, that every knee will bow to Me, and every tongue will confess to God." (BLB)

Verse 11 – the application from the big genuflect. "For it is written" – the explanatory use of the conjunction gar, an important word explaining now an application that belongs to every generation of the royal family of God, plus the perfect passive indicative of the verb graphō (γράφω) [pronounced GRAWF-oh]. The intensive perfect tense emphasizes the existing results as a finished product—the Old Testament canon. This is a quotation from two verses in Isaiah which the prophet used in order to face the disasters which are now historical but which were future to the southern kingdom—Isaiah 45:23; 49:18. These are related to the great genuflect of Philippians 2:10,11. Therefore the permanent existing state of these Scriptures regarding the great genuflect is regarded by Paul, not only for the people of his day who were about to face the pressures of disaster, but for us right now. The passive voice deals with the mechanics of the inspiration of the Scripture. There is on the part of the human writer an inhale of divine information which in his soul is exhaled in writing. While the writers of Scripture had other messages which were given, only those which are recorded are actually a part of the canon of Scripture—2Samuel 23:2,3; Isaiah 59:21; Jer. 1:9. In the passive voice the subject (the pertinent Scripture quoted here) receives the action of the verb, being quoted by Paul to be recorded in the New Testament documentation. The declarative indicative of this verb is for the reality of the Old Testament canon and the equality of the New Testament as Scripture. The declarative indicative states, then, the plenary verbal inspiration as regards to doctrine.

“As I live, saith the Lord” – the phrase in the Hebrew of Isaiah 45:23 is literally, “By myself, I have sworn.” The Greek indicates that this is very obviously idiomatic: zō egō (ἐγώ) [pronounced ehg-OH] means, “As I live,” something entirely different than the Hebrew, but Paul is saying they are equivalent. “By myself, I have sworn,” says in effect, “I keep on living.” The present active indicative of zaō (ζάω) [pronounced DZAH-oh] [zō] is translated “I keep on living.” What is common between the two languages is the essence of God, the integrity of God: the righteousness of God, the principle of divine integrity; the justice of God, the function of divine integrity. The present tense of zaō (ζάω) [pronounced DZAH-oh] is a static present for a condition which has always existed, is perpetually existing. The active voice: God produces the action of the verb. The indicative mood is declarative for a dogmatic statement of fact. Then the present active indicative from légō (λέγω) [pronounced LEH-goh] which means to communicate. The retroactive progressive present tense denotes what has begun in the past and continues into the present time. In the past Isaiah mentioned it; now Paul mentions it so that it can be brought down to us in this moment. The active voice: this is a quotation from something the Lord originally said to Isaiah. So the Lord communicates. The indicative mood is declarative for an absolute statement of fact related to verbal plenary inspiration of the Scripture. Plus the nominative singular subject from kurios (κύριος) [pronounced KOO-ree-oss], in which Isaiah refers to God the Son in relationship to the regathering of Israel, but Paul quotes the passage for the Rapture of the Church and the big genuflect. Translation: “For it stands written, I keep on living, the Lord communicates.”

“every knee shall bow to me” – not translated, but a conjunction which is used in the Greek, is hōti (ὅτι) [pronounced HOH-tee]. It is used to introduce in a direct discourse and represented here by quotation marks. The nominative neuter singular from the adjective pás (πάς) [pronounced pahs] and the nominative singular subject gonu (γονύ) [pronounced gon-OO] —“every knee.” Then the future active indicative of the verb kámpō (κάμπτω) [pronounced KAMP-toh], which means to bend. The future tense is a predictive future for an event which has not yet occurred but will occur immediately after the Rapture of the Church. Every believer of the royal family of God will perform the action of the verb in a resurrection body. The indicative mood is declarative which in a sense describes the perfect happiness, the perfect rapport, the perfect circumstances, the beyond comprehension marvelous times we will have in space. The dative singular indirect object from the personal pronoun egó (ἐγώ) [pronounced ehg-OH] refers to the Lord Jesus Christ, He is the One in whose interest the big genuflect is performed—“every knee shall bow to me.” The order of the words follows the Greek order in the context.

Bob cannot bend his knees; but he will be able to in a resurrection body.

We will be out in space. Our bodies will be able to survive in space. We will be hovering in space in the kneeling position. Bob finds this to be rather amusing.

“and every tongue shall confess to God” – the connective use of the conjunction kai, plus the nominative feminine singular from pás (πάς) [pronounced pahs] —there will be no exceptions; all of us will be using our voices, glôssa (γλῶσσα) [pronounced GLOHS-sah], “tongues.” It should be, “and every language” (singular). The verb is the future middle indicative of exomologeô (ἐξομολογέω) [pronounced ex-o-mo-lo-GEH-oh], which in the active voice with the ek (ἐκ) [pronounced ehk] it means to promise, to consent. In the middle voice it means to admit or to confess. Here it is confess. Plus the dative singular indirect object from the generic use of the definite article with the noun theos (θεός) [pronounced theh-OSS] which refers to God the Father. This immediately precedes the judgment seat of Christ.

Romans 14:11 For it stands written, I keep on living, and by Myself I have sworn, Every knee shall genuflect to Me [Christ], and every tongue shall confess to God [the Father].

Doctrine of the Big Genuflex

A. Definition and Description.

1. The big genuflex is the interim event between the Rapture and the Judgment Seat of Christ. Therefore, it is both the glorification of the Father's plan and the recognition of our Lord's battlefield royalty which was bestowed at His session. This will be the happiest moment of a person's life.
2. At this time, the entire royal family is present, and they confess to the battlefield royalty of Jesus Christ. In opera, it is difficult to sing from a kneeling position; but this will be possible in a resurrection body.
3. This explains the phrase "every tongue shall confess to God. ." What is confessed is the fact that our Lord's royalty demands the resurrection of His royal family. We must have a resurrection body as He does because we are His family.
4. In resurrection body the entire royal family will identify the Head of the family, Jesus Christ, to the glory of the Father. In our moment of greatest happiness we will be talking about the Lord Jesus Christ. Our greatest moment of happiness will be thinking and talking about our Lord.

5. This explains the relationship between Romans 14:11 and Philippians 2:9-11. Therefore, also, the God the Father has exalted Him (Jesus Christ) to the maximum and He has bestowed upon Him the rank which is above every rank, in order that in the presence of Jesus (rapture of the church) every knee of heaven will bow, both the ones on earth (those who are raptured) and believers under the earth (those who died before the rapeture); and every tongue shall confess that Jesus Christ is Lord resulting in the glory of God the Father. The big genuflex is the moment of maximum +H which is perpetuated forever. It is followed by the Judgment Seat of Christ. We make that happiness meaningful by receiving our eternal rewards and decorations. However, you won't lose this fantastic happiness at the Judgment Seat of Christ even if you receive no reward, due to your failure in life. Our happiness is perpetuated forever. Imputation #7 is the reward, a blessing for the mature believer only.

6. Bob would love to be able to do something with this when you have all of the human good built up, and the human good will be burned. Bob would want us to suffer a bit if we wasted out time on human good; but then, he is not in charge.
7. The big genuflex occurs between the rapture and the Judgment Seat of Christ.
8. This bowing of the knee of everyone glorifies Jesus Christ.

B. Jesus Christ has three categories of royalty.

1. Divine royalty. He is coequal with the other members of the Trinity. His title is "Son of God."
2. Jewish royalty. Mary is descended from Nathan; Joseph from Solomon. His title is "Son of David."
3. Battlefield royalty. The first and second royalties combine to form a third royalty at the cross. At the cross, our Lord received the judicial imputation of our sins, which provided salvation for all mankind, and was the strategic victory of the angelic conflict. This victory plus His resurrection, ascension, and session is the basis for our Lord's battlefield royalty. This unique royalty establishes Christ as the ruler of both regenerate man and elect angels forever. His title is "King of kings and Lord of lords."
4. This new battlefield royalty explains several passages in Revelation where Christ returns with the bride to be acknowledged by all; e.g., Revelation 19:12. And His eyes are like a flame of fire and on His head are many crowns, having a royal title that no one understood but He Himself.
5. Our Lord's new royal title is revealed in Scripture, Revelation 19:16, And He has a royal title which has been written on His robes and on His thighs, King of Kings and Lord of Lords.

C. At the big genuflex, we will acknowledge Christ's battlefield royalty.

1. We can understand the confession of the royal family immediately following the Rapture based on the concept of Christ's battlefield royalty, for we will be in total awe of Him. We will have complete appreciation for the event.

Before the Judgment Seat of Christ, we genuflect to the Lord Jesus Christ. We relate this to our very existence.

2. After the big genuflex, we are given our efficiency rating.
3. This moment will be the fulfillment of all our doctrine, and the realization of the purpose of our new birth. We will each personally praise the strategic victory of the angelic conflict and relate it to our very purpose for living, Romans 14:11.
4. Acknowledgment of the strategic victory precedes acknowledgment of the tactical victory. Strategy always precedes tactics.
5. Our praise of our Lord's strategic victory is our recognition of what Christ accomplished from the cross to the session.
6. The tactical victory will then be recognized at the Judgment Seat of Christ by the imputation of eternal rewards to all mature believers who will glorify Christ forever, Isaiah 53:4,11-12. Blessing and rewards which glorify Christ fulfill prophecies in the Old Testament. Isaiah 53:12b, "Then He will distribute the spoil to the great ones."
7. Christ was willing to suffer on the cross that we might share in the plunder of His victory. The big genuflex, our acknowledgment of Christ in eternity, will be the greatest moment of worship in history, full of great singing.
8. In time, we acknowledge Christ by our daily intake of doctrine

Lesson #446

446 06/25/1978 Romans 14:12 U.S. crisis; doctrine of the big genuflect (15): eternal happiness real issues at the judgment seat of Christ; knowable, unknowable and God

An officer Aker and he saw the officers under him are a vanishing breed. He says that nothing is more important than reestablishing our military. The USSR are spending more on their military than us. They have a half million in uniform. Estimates that nuclear warfare would kill 100 million of us and only 10 million of them (they have huge numbers of underground shelters and other things).

Isaiah 53:4 Therefore He himself carried the guilt of our sinful afflictions [this is the imputation of our personal sins to Christ on the cross]; He carried like a heavy burden our guilt. Consequently, we evaluated Him the One being struck down by judgment, the one being judged by God the Father; the One being degraded.

Isaiah 53:11 From the sorrow of His soul [God the Father had to judge God the Son; this is an anthropathism referring God the Father imputing our sins to Jesus Christ and judging them] He shall see [that is, He will observe the imputation of judgment] and He will be satisfied [the doctrine of propitiation]; by His knowledge My righteous Servant [the Lord Jesus Christ] will vindicate the many [or justify the many, referring to believers] for He and only He shall bear their punishment for sin.

Isaiah 53:12 Therefore I [God the Father] will distribute the spoil [the plunder of victory] to Him [that is, to the Lord Jesus Christ] because of the many believers [which includes all believers who crack the maturity barrier]. Then He [the Lord Jesus Christ, as King of Kings and Lord of Lords] will distribute the spoil. I will distribute the spoil to the great ones [the mature believers] because He [Christ] has poured out His soul to death, because He Himself carried the sin of the many and about the offering for sin, the whole thing was caused to fall on Him.

Romans 14:11 For it stands written, I keep on living, and by Myself I have sworn, Every knee shall genuflect to Me [Christ], and every tongue shall confess to God [the Father].

This is the great moment of happiness prior to the distribution of spoils. Our Lord is in a resurrection body; and it is necessary for the royal family to be in a resurrection body in order to accompany the Lord. The rapture of the church requires us to have resurrection bodies. We must be prepared as the bride and we will receive the spoils; and those will be the ones who break the maturity barrier.

Bob likes Berachah's singing; and some people have been moved to write hymns for us to sing.

Suppose you are advancing as much as you can, but you get caught up in the rapture. What happens then? Your positive volition is taken into account; and God also knows the knowable, and He knows how far you would have gone; and He adds the knowable and unknowable together. Omniscience knows the knowable and the unknowable. God is just and He is fair; and everyone will get a fair shake on the plunder of victory.

We are on the same equal basis at the Great Genuflex. Each person will have the exact same equal resurrection body; we will be equal and happy. After the Judgment Seat of Christ, things will never be the same again.

The fact that we will stand before the Lord means that all of our problems add up to be very little. Doctrine should be our #1 priority. There is no end to the grace of God when it comes to spiritual growth.

Romans 14:12 So then, each of us will give account concerning himself to God. (BLB)

Verse 12 – the post-genuflect application. “So then every one of us shall give an account of himself to God.” The inferential illative particle ára (ἄρα) [pronounced AHR-ah] is translated correctly, “So.” The inferential transitional conjunction oun (οὐν) [pronounced oon] denotes an inference from what precedes—“So therefore.” Just as salvation has an issue—What think ye of Christ?—, so life after salvation has an issue—What think ye of doctrine? Then come two illative particles followed by a nominative singular adjective used as a substantive, hekastos (ἕκαστος) [pronounced HEHK-as-toss]—“each one.” God gives us enough time to advance. What is going on in history is not that important. You are on your own, there is no one there to help you. Christianity is personal. Each one of us must answer for himself. What are we doing now? Paul says we are judging others, looking with scorn upon others, ridiculing others, are jealous and vindictive, arrogant in our attitude and hang-ups about many things in life. But this is the moment of truth, the moment for which there is no way to evade, to compensate, to blame someone else. When it says “each one” it means you will have no excuses. Then to make sure we are dealing with the royal family there is a descriptive genitive plural from the personal pronoun egó (ἐγώ) [pronounced ehg-OH], translated “of us.”

Plus the future active indicative from the verb didōmi (δίδωμι) [pronounced dihd-OH-mee] which means to give. The future tense is a predictive future, it refers to the judgment seat of Christ. The active voice: every believer of the royal family of God produces the action of the verb. The indicative mood is declarative, representing the verbal idea from the viewpoint of reality. This is followed by the accusative singular direct object from logos (λόγος, ου, ό) [pronounced LOHG-oss]. We face the living Word, the Logos (λόγος, ου, ό) [pronounced LOHG-oss], Jesus Christ, to give a logos (λόγος, ου, ό) [pronounced LOHG-oss], a rendering of account, a statement of definite content, a settlement of account; “of himself” – peri plus the genitive singular from the reflexive pronoun heautou (ἐαυτοῦ) [pronounced heh-ow-TOO], “concerning himself.” The preposition peri excludes bringing anyone else in for your defense. Then the judge, the dative singular indirect object from theos (θεός) [pronounced theh-OSS] plus the generic use of the definite article. No one else is going to give a testimony on your behalf.

Romans 14:12 So therefore each one of us will give a word [or an account] to God concerning himself.

Principle

1. The conflict and strife over non-essential opinions is ridiculous. There are so many things in life that are not essential, and doctrine is essential. We should be inflexible not only about doctrine but about our intake of doctrine.
2. Paul in his dissertation neither condemns nor approves the food taboos and the observation of holy days, for to do so would create a false issue. To make an issue out of doctrine he does not take sides. A communicator of doctrine must always avoid taking sides. Paul does not allow himself to be sucked in to the dispute between eating meat and not eating meat. Doctrine is the essentially; eating meat or vegetables is a non-essential. One of the worst things that a coach, leader, boss to do is to take sides in a dispute. Lee overlooked the pettiness of his generals and refocused these men to fight against the Yankees.
3. The real issue is the fact that no two believers have achieved the same stage of spiritual growth and that the only way they can advance is through doctrine.

4. The ability to distinguish between essential and non-essential, and to function professionally as a member of the aristocracy of the royal family, is the issue. That requires doctrine.
5. To function professionally as believers requires also the filling of the Spirit. The filling of the Spirit gives the ability, then, to rightly divide the Word of truth, the ability to differentiate between personal and impersonal love.
6. Each stage of spiritual growth has its own occupational hazards. For the immature it may emphasize judging others; for the mature it may emphasize intolerance of others. Whatever it is, to resolve it you cannot take sides.
7. Therefore each believer is responsible for his own life before the Lord. He is not responsible for that of another, as illustrated by the judgment seat of Christ.
8. At the judgment seat of Christ the justice of God deals with each stage separately, based on what happened, the knowable; and what would have happened if you had lived out a full life, i.e. the unknowable.

1977 Romans

Lesson #447

447 06/26/1978 Romans 14:13 Royal family honor code application to controversy between weak and strong believer; hypocrisy of actors

It is inevitable that in any gathering of believers there will be many different personalities, there will be many different types of people who gather together. All as Believers in the Lord Jesus Christ have multifarious personalities and many and varied expressions of the individual personality. The Christian way of life does not command a personality change; in fact there is no such thing as the Christian personality. We are not in any way commanded to change our personality. All changes are related to doctrine resident in the soul and its application to the honor code. Therefore it is inevitable that someone in a congregation will be attractive to you, and someone will be very unattractive. The result is that personality conflict exists between people without ever uttering a word; the way they look, their carriage, their poise, their demeanor, their function simply irritates someone else. Irritation is not a part of the function of the royal family honor code. Strife is not acceptable in the body of Christ. Therefore the application of the honor code is very important. We have learned to distinguish between the essential and the non-essential and understand that we are to be inflexible with regard to the essentials but totally flexible with regard to the non-essentials. The non-essentials always outnumber the essentials. The reason for this is that each one of us is at a different stage of growth in our spiritual life. No two of us have reached the same point of spiritual growth and no two of us have attained the same stage of maturity or immaturity. Because of this, background, environment and influence are great factors in the soul which are constantly misapplied in the function of the Christian way of life. Too many times you judge someone by background norms and standards. You came from a background in which you had to fight for your very existence and in so doing you look at everyone in terms of being a fighter or a pushover. Therefore you have a tendency to bully those who you consider weak. Or you came out of some gutter situation where it never occurs to you that a man who is a gentleman might not only be tougher than you are but could mop up the earth with you. It has to do with your background. People who come from a certain background have had certain training, have learned certain deportment and a certain type of demeanor, and dress in a certain way. You come from another background and to you those things are weakness. And so we merge in the royal family of God with varying backgrounds. The farther you advance in your Christian life the less influence your background and your environment will have on your norms and standards of conscience and on your thinking. Eventually you will be able to appreciate people from every walk of life and in every situation in life. And you will begin to be so flexible with regard to personality idiosyncrasies, and so thoughtful and sensitive to others around you that you will fulfil the principle of unity. But this comes with a lot of doctrine, spiritual growth, and from replacing the norms and standards of your soul with the divine viewpoint standards of the royal family honor code. This is a very practical portion of the Word of God. We can see in many ways that we have failed to mind our own business. Too often we have stuck our nose into someone else's business. God's righteousness is imputed to every believer, the same righteousness that we have. We have intruded upon friendships and relationships of others. We have failed to utilize the royal family honor code.

We are going to study the weak and strong believer; but the emphasis will be on the weak believer, as they need the most guidance.

We could summarize the paragraph about the great genuflect, the sooner that we get to understand the respect the Word of God, the better off we will be when involved with other believers.

Do Not Cause Another to Stumble

Romans 14:13 No longer, therefore, should we judge one another; but rather determine this, not to put any stumbling block or snare before your brother.

Verse 13 – the honor code application to the weak and strong believer. “Let us therefore not judge one another any more.” The inferential conjunction oun (οὐν) [pronounced oon] denotes that we now have an inference from what precedes. The adverb mêketi (μηκέτι) [pronounced may-KEHT-ee] means “no longer” or “not from now on.” It implies that at least the original recipients of this passage were guilty of all of the violations of the honor code which have been studied so far in chapters 12, 13, 14. The weak believer is guilty because of ignorance of doctrine. Ignorance of doctrine always causes the individual to be inflexible with regard to the non-essentials, and once you are inflexible with regard to the non-essentials you are totally divorced from reality. Non-essentials become very important and you take a very strong stand on the non-essentials when you have no doctrine to change your scale of values.

Next comes the present active subjunctive from the verb krinô (κρίνω) [pronounced KREE-no]: “Therefore let us no longer judge.” The pictorial present tense denotes events in the process of occurrence which must be discontinued. The active voice: the weak believers in the Roman church produce the action of the verb and are now commanded to stop it. The subjunctive mood is hortatory, which with the negative adverb is the equivalent to the imperative mood except that volition is recognized as playing an important part. Paul is saying, I can't make you do it; you have to do it from your own motivation. You have to be motivated from your own soul, you cannot be motivated by inspiration from someone else. We are motivated by what is in our own souls.

Then comes the accusative plural direct object from a reciprocal pronoun, allêlôn (ἀλλήλων) [pronounced al-LAY-lohn], which means "each other." And this is the name of the game at this point: reciprocity in modus vivendi of the royal family of God. "Therefore let us no longer judge each other."

Principle

1. Judging is the occupational hazard of the weak believer who measures all believers by his own inadequacies and weaknesses.
2. The weak believer is ignorant of doctrine, therefore his norms and standards are formed from his background, his environment, training, and human influence (hero-worship: an actor is always being someone he isn't. He is playing the part of the person he portrays. He doesn't possess those. An actor is to appear as if he has the characteristics and good qualities of the person he pretends to be. Actors are the biggest phonies in the world. Never was there a group less qualified than to speak on any subject. They are all a bunch of ninnies; they lust for approbation; and they spend their lives being someone that they are not. Betty Davis had a way of holding a cigarette that many girls imitated; or people who try to talk out of the corner of their mouths like...).
3. With false or erroneous norms and standards it is impossible for the weak believer to be accurate or correct in his evaluation of anything.
4. But evaluation of others is not the issue. The real issue is the royal family honor code which demands that all believers be given the privacy of their priesthood and be loved (impersonal love) by you.
5. Judging is a violation of the privacy of the royal priesthood, and therefore judging is classified as arrogant presumption.
6. Judging combines mental attitude sins with sins of the tongue, and often overt sins as well. So that judging becomes a combination of all categories of sinfulness from the old sin nature.
7. Add to this the rationalization of judging as an act of human good. This is the one that is used as an excuse: "I'm just concerned for them." Judging is parlayed into a system of evil. The rationalization of judging becomes hypocrisy. The exception to all of this is parents over children.
8. Therefore judging also becomes good and evil which is the policy of Satan as the ruler of this world and the function of the old sin nature as the sovereign of human life.
9. Judging is totally incompatible with the plan of God for your life, and judging causes the believer to become the enemy of God.
10. God Himself has a monopoly on judging and has only delegated this option to Bible doctrine, the communicator of Bible doctrine [pastor-teacher who communicates the Word], and to the systems of authority under divine establishment—husband over the wife, parents over the children, teacher over students, coach over the team, the boss over labour, etc. These are systems of delegated authority.

We need to be able to enjoy something but draw the line between admiration for the histrionic abilities of these actors. We should not emulate them or admire them offstage. Most of them are liberal ninnies. How many girls read movie magazines? How many guys try to emulate this or that person from the movies? We try to adopt the mannerisms and thinking and standards from those who are the least able to have these things. Once these people take off their makeup and walk out into the world, they are still living in a dream world.

Bob has no intention of running around and explaining everything that he is doing. Bob will die before giving up on the essential of Bible doctrine.

Next is the application to the strong believer. “But judge this rather” – the adversative conjunction allá (ἀλλά) [pronounced ah-l-LAH] generally sets up a contrast of some sort. Here it is a contrast between the occupational hazard of the weak believer and the occupational hazard of the strong believer. And the conjunction reminds us that none of us are perfect. That is why we have Bible doctrine. Then comes the aorist active imperative of krinô (κρίνω) [pronounced KREE-no] which this time doesn’t mean judge. It goes back to its original meaning which means to separate, to distinguish, to select, to reach a decision, therefore to prefer—“but to prefer [or determine].” The constative aorist is for an action extended over a period of time. The active voice: the strong believer produces the action of the verb. The imperative mood is a direct command to the strong believer who has from doctrine resident in his soul the ability for instant obedience.

With this is the comparative adverb “rather”—mallon, and the accusative neuter singular direct object from the demonstrative pronoun houtos (οὗτος) [pronounced HOO-tos] which sets up a category—“but rather prefer/determine this.” The weak believer is denied his occupational hazard and by the same policy of the justice of God the strong believer is denied his occupational hazard as well.

“that no man put a stumbling block or an occasion to fall in his brother’s way” – the negative mê (μή) [pronounced may] plus the articular present active infinitive of tithêmi (τίθημι) [pronounced TIHTH-ā-mee] which means to place or to put, but with the negative it means not to place, not to put. The definite article in the accusative case is in apposition to the accusative from the demonstrative pronoun. The aoristic present tense is for punctiliar action in present time. This has to be instinctive, it will suddenly occur. Instinctively the mature believer should do the right things, he should make the right decisions. The mature believer has a far greater field of fire in the area of flexibility and therefore he can be instantly flexible about a lot of things which are inconsequential, whereas there is a very narrow field of fire for the weak believer who is always limited in his flexibility. Therefore the strong believer has a great responsibility to the weak believer, as to all Christians, a responsibility which is given to him under the honor code. The active voice: the strong believer produces the action of the infinitive, i.e. he is prohibited from doing the action of the infinitive with the negative. This is the imperative infinitive for a command, plus the accusative singular direct object from the noun próskomma (πρόσκομμα) [pronounced PROS-kom-mah], which means an obstacle rather than a stumbling block. This refers to an obstacle to the spiritual growth of the weak believer. The weak believer is limited in doctrine and therefore has that short range of fire; his flexibility is low. The next word is the accusative singular direct object of skandalon (σκάνδαλον) [pronounced SKAN-da-lon], which is a trap or a distraction. So literally, “but rather prefer/determine this, not to place an obstacle or distraction.” Then the next phrase, the locative singular of the definite article used as a personal pronoun, plus the locative of space from adelphos (ἄδελφός) [pronounced ad-el-FOSS]. Because the weak believer has his eyes on people it is very easy for a strong believer functioning in the sphere of grace to place an obstacle or distraction to doctrine in front of that weak believer.

Romans 14:13 Therefore let us no longer judge each other, but rather determine this, not to place an obstacle or distraction in front of his brother [weak believer].

1977 Romans

Lesson #448

448 06/27/1978 Romans 14 Greatness of Ike; varying responsibilities of weak and strong believers under the royal family honor code; thoughtfulness and flexibility

Ike's background is thought to have little to do with becoming a great military leader. He had great moral courage. He graduated from West Point in 1915. Ike was the first man in tanks and the first one to figure out how to use them. Ike had brains and moral courage.

Ike graduated in the middle of his class in West Point.

We continue with the weak and strong believer.

Romans 14:13 Therefore let us no longer judge each other, but rather determine this, not to place an obstacle or distraction in front of his brother [weak believer].

Principle

1. In this verse there are two different commands to two different categories of believers: the weak believer and the strong believer. The strong believer has been positive toward doctrine and has cracked the maturity barrier or is close to it; he has maximum doctrine resident in his soul. The weak believer can be either a new believer who is still ignorant of doctrine but positive or a person who is negative toward doctrine and reversionistic. The weak and the strong believer must both have the same opportunity in the sense of freedom to take in doctrine without distraction.
2. There is a second command to the strong believer in this verse: to be sensitive and thoughtful where others are concerned, to be aware that other people have feelings; to be sensitive to the situation and to the circumstances of the weak believer whose ignorance of doctrine results in numerous non-essential opinions and judgments.

As you begin to grow spiritually you become aware of the feelings of other people and you make their feelings much more important than your own. If you are growing you can swallow your pride almost on any occasion.

3. A weak believer must recognize the privacy of a strong believer, while the strong believer must demonstrate impersonal love and tolerance to the weak believer.
4. In this way both the weak and the strong believer conform to the royal family honor code.
5. The honor code application for the weak believer is respect for the privacy of the strong believer.
6. The honor code application for the strong believer is modus vivendi—impersonal love directed toward the weak believer, flexibility.
7. The honor code demands modus operandi and policy for all categories of believers in all stages of spiritual growth. The honor code has policy for all stages of growth so that in any stage we are not distracted from doctrine and we are given freedom and privacy, and therefore opportunity, to utilize doctrine in our own spiritual advance.
8. The honor code emphasizes the importance of occupation with Christ and highest priority is assigned to Bible doctrine.
9. The honor code demands that each believer avoid the subjectivities of life—such as eyes on self. It might be arrogance at one moment and self-pity the next. That is vacillation, not flexibility.
10. The honor code is designed for the living, and that means all living believers. The honor code in effect is the Christian way of life in every stage of spiritual growth.

Romans 14:13 Therefore let us no longer judge each other, but rather determine this, not to place an obstacle or distraction in front of his brother [weak believer].

Principle

1. To stop judging the weak believer must understand and apply an honor code principle: every believer has a right to his privacy. Every believer is a royal priest with the imputation of divine righteousness, and therefore you have no right to stick your nose into someone else's business.
2. To avoid placing an obstacle or distraction before the weak believer the strong believer must apply a different honor code principle: impersonal love.
3. The more you advance spiritually the greater becomes your responsibility under the honor code. Advance means increased responsibility. There will be times when the law of love supersedes the law of liberty. In evangelism the law of expediency sometimes supercedes the law of liberty.
4. While sincerity is not a Christian virtue but an emotional aberration, thoughtfulness of others and sensitivity to the feelings of others is not only a Christian virtue but a necessity. It is taking responsibility as you mature. Being responsible for those who have not reached maturity and not distracting them. Sometimes a person is right and you are irritated with them and you take the opposite side just because you don't like them being right. The Jews were called stiff-necked, meaning that they were bull-headed, intractable.

5. The more we advance in the Christian life the more inflexible we are about doctrine but the more flexible we are in its application. Strength comes flexible through doctrine.
6. Wisdom from doctrine and common sense from establishment provides inflexible standards of conscience, but at the same time pliable and tractable functions of application.
7. Life on this earth is composed of variable circumstances and fickle, unstable people. Therefore the challenge is to diversity of application.
8. Therefore inflexibility of doctrine but flexibility of application of that doctrine is the greatest function of the honor code.
9. Therefore good manners and thoughtfulness of others overflow from establishment in life to virtue in the royal family honor code. Therefore a new issue is raised: arrogance and self-centeredness versus sensitivity toward others and the true function of impersonal love.

1977 Romans

Lesson #449

449 06/28/1978 Romans 14:14a Ike's preparation and flexibility, North Africa; doctrine vs. food taboos and health

Some difficulties with committing U.S. troops to North Africa. The British thought that they could handle Ike. Ike had tremendous flexibility. He was criticized more than anyone else in the war. His dictum, I don't mind you calling someone a sunuvabitch, but I don't want anyone being called a British sunuvabitch or an American sunuvabitch.

Kasserine Pass mentioned several times as a mistake or problem. The Battle of Kasserine Pass took place from 18-24 February 1943 at Kasserine Pass, a 2-mile-wide gap in the Grand Dorsal chain of the Atlas Mountains in west central Tunisia. It was a part of the Tunisian campaign of World War II.

This set the stage for the German offensive known as the Battle of Kasserine Pass, which Field Marshal Erwin Rommel launched on February 14, 1943. Historians usually describe Kasserine as a major defeat of the inexperienced US ground forces in their first serious engagement with the Germans.

Ike had no experience but he had the brilliance.

Romans 14:13 Therefore let us no longer judge each other, but rather determine this, not to place an obstacle or distraction in front of his brother [weak believer].

This describes what most believers do and label it as Christian fellowship.

The German staff system was the greatest that the world had known. Ike worked under MacArthur for six years and had great academic training; but no combat experience. He did not have the usual hangups of others. He did not become a parade ground soldier. He was still in training when they hit the beach at Salerno.

Romans 14:14 I know and I am persuaded in the Lord Jesus that nothing is unclean of itself, except to him reckoning anything to be unclean—to that one it is unclean. (BLB)

Verse 14 – “I know, and am persuaded by the Lord Jesus.” The perfect active indicative of oida (ὶδῶ) [pronounced OY-da] is used as a present tense always for confidence in application of doctrine based on maximum perception of doctrine, confidence in one’s flexibility. Here is the strength of the strong believer in his flexibility with regard to non-essentials. Then the perfect passive indicative of the verb peithō (πειθῶ) [pronounced PIE-thoh] which refers to having confidence. However it is true confidence based on doctrine rather than false confidence based on human viewpoint. “I know and have received confidence.” This is the mature believer speaking. The intensive perfect tense refers to the existing state of doctrine in the soul as an application in flexibility. Doctrine has been received in the past; doctrine now resides in the conscience. From the application comes the flexibility with regard to the non-essentials. The passive voice: the mature believer receives the action of the verb—confidence from the absolutes of doctrinal norms, confidence in his flexibility of application. The indicative mood is declarative for an unqualified assertion of fact. Then the prepositional phrase, en (ἐν) [pronounced en] plus the locative of kurios (κύριος) [pronounced KOO-ree-oss] and Iêsous (Ἰησοῦς) [pronounced ee-ay-SOOCE]. The prepositional phrase describes the sphere of the plan of God. The plan of God for each one of us is in the Lord Jesus. This is a reference to the formation of the royal family of God through the baptism of the Spirit, resultant positional truth which is the status quo of each one of us.

“that there is nothing unclean of itself” – the conjunction hōti (ὅτι) [pronounced HOH-tee] after verbs of cognizance to show the application of that cognizance. Inserted is the present active indicative of eimi (εἰμί) [pronounced eye-ME] is legitimate here—“that there is.” Plus the predicate nominative neuter from the adjective oudeís (οὐδεῖς) [pronounced oo-DICE] which means “nothing.” Then dia plus the genitive from the reflexive pronoun heautou (ἑαυτοῦ) [pronounced heh-ow-TOO] which is the ablative of means. The instrumental is the regular case for expressing means but the ablative case is used when the means expressed also indicates origin—“by means of itself.” The word “unclean” is the predicate nominative neuter from the adjective koinos (κοινός) [pronounced koy-NOSS].

“I know and have received confidence in the Lord Jesus that there is nothing unclean by means of itself.” This is a statement of total flexibility in the non-essentials. Paul is a mature believer and he takes the position of a mature believer. Under the Mosaic law certain foods were taboo, therefore to eat them was to be ceremonially unclean. However, in the dispensation of the Church the norms and standards of the royal family from environment and background are replaced by doctrinal standards when one reaches maturity. The application of doctrinal standards make all foods clean. This applies to food, to holy days, to a lot of non-essentials; but in context we have two basic non-essentials: food and holy days. The application of doctrinal standards makes all food clean; any day is a holy day. So applying this phrase to the context the mature believer has no hang-ups about eating foods or drinking wine, because he knows that there is nothing unclean by means of itself. This means that the taboos of the Mosaic law have been superseded and the taboos of asceticism are not valid with regard to food and beverage. The mature believer has flexibility with regards to foods and holy days. The immature believer has all kinds of hangups and all kinds of holy days; and he sees these as a must.

You're arrogant and you think you can handle anything, but you can't.

There is a time and place. You don't invite the Baptists to go out for a beer after they have had a faggot service.

There is great strength in flexibility if you have doctrinal norms and standards.

Flexibility is the strength of the mature believer.

"I know and have received confidence in the Lord Jesus that there is nothing unclean by means of itself." This is for the mature believer; not for the immature believer or for the sophomore believer.

Principle

1. Food is not unclean by means of itself. It can become unclean while it is being prepared, it can become contaminated by improper storage. Food always have to have something added to it to contaminate it.
2. The strong believer with norms and standards based on Bible doctrine can therefore approach food and beverage apart from either the Levitical or the ascetical taboos.
3. Therefore the mature believer can eat beef because his norms and standards of conscience can make correct application from doctrine resident in his soul and functioning as norms of his conscience.
4. But the Hindu, on the other hand, would starve to death if all he had was beef cattle because under his system beef cattle are forbidden through religious taboo.
5. Bible doctrine resident in the soul changes the norms and standards of conscience. Therefore you never even violate your own taboos unless you have a doctrinal basis for doing so. Once you have a doctrinal basis in your conscience this changes the application so that you have more flexibility in the non-essentials. You do not have flexibility in the non-essentials until you have doctrine first.
6. Any kind of food and beverage can be unclean but it is never unclean by means of itself. The uncleanness may occur from contamination but by means of itself the food is not unclean, nor forbidden for any doctrinal reason. Clean and unclean food in this passage has to do with the thinking of the consumer.
7. So whether food has been forbidden by the Mosaic law, or food offered to idols becomes and ascetic taboo of religion, the food itself is not unclean for consumption unless it has been contaminated.

8. The strong or mature believer knows that by means of itself the food is not unclean, therefore the mature believer has a wide range of nourishing foods and beverages from which to choose. The weak believer, on the other hand, is both limited and stymied by a weak conscience and inflexibility about the non-essentials.

Bob loves raw oysters, but some places he would never eat them in certain places due to contamination possibilities.

If you have taboos, hang onto them. If you are a vegetarian, enjoy that. Don't push it on others and do not think that it is related to spirituality.

We have no right to impose our own taboos on others. The royal family honor code says live and let live; it says, privacy of the priesthood.

The strong believer must be careful not to run around and lead everyone astray; and the weak believer must be careful not to be led astray; to careful not to judge the mature believer.

1977 Romans

Lesson #450

450 06/29/1978 Romans 14:14b Ike vs. critics and Patton, Sicily; flexibility; legalism re food vs. doctrinal norms

Dwight David Eisenhower illustrates more than anyone else the flexibility. Few men have had the kind of pressures that Ike had. Ike had to deal with the bad attitudes of the Brits against the Americans. They attempted to put American soldiers on defense; Ike said that Americans were aggressors. Alexander and Montgomery were mouthing off against the American troops. This did not make for teamwork at all. Casablanca conference they began to talk about the invasion of Sicily, but Ike was cut out of these decisions entirely. The force that landed in Sicily was larger than the force on D-Day. Ike said this rocky island needed to be captured.

Patton slapped two men, and such a person would usually be disgraced and court marshaled. Patton was completely out of line; but the great flexibility of Ike, who make him publically apologize. Patton's loss of control was reason enough to dump him, but Ike, despite pressure from everyone, worked out a way to keep Patton. Ike saved his bacon; and Ike gave him a chance, which was a great thing. Ike was smarter than any officer he commanded including the limeys (with the exception of Brooks?).

Food is not unclean in itself; it acquires its uncleanness later. Eating certain types of food is a nonessential. To make an issue out of a nonessential is a sign of the weak believer. This passage is not dealing with food contamination. All known food contamination should be avoided. Flexibility relates to reality. Inflexibility dries up the thought processes and keeps you detached from reality.

We are buying friendship; and this is something that liberals are inflexible about.

Sometimes it is wrong to have peace. Inflexibility has destroyed the Baptist organizations, which are inflexible about tithing and about baptism.

The more hypersensitive you are about yourself, the more insensitive you are toward other people.

This is the 4th of July, and Bob did not stop to give a special. He just went forward with the Romans series. Bob has moved forward for the past 3 weeks to get to this point. Bob is not a one-shot ministry. It is one day after another.

False standard in the conscience change clean to unclean food. Some food has been offered to idols; some have not; some have been excluded by the Mosaic laws; some make diet decisions based upon other standards.

1Timothy 4:3–4 False teachers are ones who forbid marriage and advocate abstaining from foods, which God has created to be received with thanksgiving by those who believe and know doctrine For everything created by God is good and nothing is to be rejected if it is received with thanksgiving. And he who eats (the mature believer) eats to the Lord for he gives thanks to the God.

Romans 14:14 I know and I am persuaded in the Lord Jesus that nothing is unclean of itself, except to him reckoning anything to be unclean—to that one it is unclean. (BLB)

“but to him that esteemeth any thing to be unclean, to him it is unclean” – the phrase ei (εἰ) [pronounced /] mê (μή) [pronounced may] is literally, “if not” but the two words actually form an idiom: “except.” The exception to this principle is the weak believer whose lack of doctrine, whose legalism and self-righteousness, asceticism or religious background includes food and beverage taboos. Then comes the articular present middle participle from the verb logizomai (λογίζομαι) [pronounced log-IHD-zohm-ai], which means to impute, to account, to presume, to infer, to conclude. The generic use of the definite article is used to comprehend the weak believer as a category distinct from the strong believer. The present tense is a retroactive progressive present tense denoting a norm or standard of conscience begun in the past and continuing into the present time. The middle voice is the direct middle in which the subject acts with a view toward participating in the outcome. Hence, the direct middle implies that the weak believer assumes that by observation of a taboo God will bless him: “except to the one who presumes.” We have here a circumstantial participle, circumstantial for the false norms of the weak believer, a participle in the dative case. This is the indirect object.

The accusative neuter singular definite object from the indefinite pronoun tís (τις) [pronounced tihç] follows. An indefinite pronoun expresses a substantive idea in a general sense as representing a category. Also the subjective of the infinitive, and therefore it is translated regarding the category of weak believers. Weak believers are ignorant of doctrine, and are inflexible, therefore, with regard to non-essentials but very flexible with regard to the essentials of doctrine.

Next comes the present active infinitive of eimi (εἶμι) [pronounced eye-ME]. The present tense is a descriptive present for what is now going on among weak believers. The active voice: the weak believer produces the action of the verb in the sense of assuming that certain foods and beverages are taboo, and that if you observe this taboo God will bless you. He assumes that it is his job before the Lord to make sure that everyone observes these taboos with him. This is the infinitive of conceived result from a false assumption. Remember that the accusative neuter singular from the indefinite pronoun τίς (τις) [pronounced tihç] is both the direct object of the verb λογίζομαι (λογίζομαι) [pronounced log-IHD-zohm-ai] and the accusative of general reference subject of the infinitive eimi (εἶμι) [pronounced eye-ME]. It presumes something to be. Then finally, the predicate nominative from κοινός (κοινός) [pronounced koy-NOSS]—“presumes something to be unclean.”

The weak believer thinks that it is his duty to try to get others to adhere to his own personal group of taboos.

“to him it is unclean” – the dative singular indirect object from the remote demonstrative pronoun ἐκεῖνος (ἐκεῖνος) [pronounced ehk-Ī-noss] which here has the usage of referring back to and resuming a word immediately preceding—“to that one [the weak believer].” Then the insertion of eimi (εἶμι) [pronounced eye-ME] because this is elliptical, plus κοινός (κοινός) [pronounced koy-NOSS] again in the predicate nominative singular—“it is unclean.”

Romans 14:14 I know and have received confidence in the Lord Jesus, that there is nothing unclean by means of itself; except the one [weak believer] who presumes something to be unclean, to that one it is unclean.

Principle

1. The legalistic believer is weak because he has no doctrine in his conscience because he has either rejected doctrinal teaching or he is picky as to what he hears. He becomes selective; and comes and listens when he wants to. This is how some people come to Berachah for a long time and don't learn anything. You are trained to watch tv, and you turn off whatever does not interest you. You think that you are strong because you r bull-headed and implacable. But you are a weak believer. People are interested in rm/rw or in prophecy; but they reject many other things. When you join the military, your free will is integrated into a system of authority. When you get married, as a woman, your free will is merged with your authority. “This is not a cafeteria when you pick up what you want to pick up.”
2. His conscience is weak because there is no doctrine.
3. Without norms and standards based on doctrine the weak believer must depend on the norms and standards of his environment. When you depend on your environment you become weak. When you depend upon your background or some hero worship thing, you become weak.
4. Because of erroneous norms and standards the weak believer is flexible about the essentials of doctrine but he is inflexible about the non-essentials.

5. This is the antithesis of the strong or mature believer who is inflexible about the essentials of doctrine and flexible about the non-essentials.
6. The weak conscience has no capacity for life, no capacity for what God has provided to enrich life.
7. Lack of doctrine in the soul has the tendency to destroy all the capacities of life and enslave the believer with the shackles of a weak conscience.

Romans 14:14 I know and have received confidence in the Lord Jesus, that there is nothing unclean by means of itself; except the one [weak believer] who presumes something to be unclean, to that one it is unclean.

The weak believer has the right to believe these oddball things, but they are nonessentials.

The Principle of Romans 14:14

1. The issue: Every believer must understand the difference between essential and non-essential, as well as personal and impersonal love. This is necessary for the function of a doctrinal conscience.
2. About doctrine the believer must be inflexible, but in the application of doctrine there are many variables which demand flexibility.
3. This is especially true with regard to growth status because no two believers have attained the same state of growth. Hopefully, but not really, all of us are growing, but we haven't attained the same stage of growth.
4. The more you advance in the Christian life the more flexible becomes your application in the non-essentials and the more tolerant you become of the weak believer.
5. Especially since the weak believer is a very confused person. He is confused about being flexible about the essentials because of ignorance of doctrine, and therefore he is inflexible about the non-essentials because all he has is a series of false norms and a bit of arrogance and subjectivity. He has to show everyone how strong he is and so he takes a stand on something stupid.
6. Capacity for personal love includes capacity for impersonal love, so that the believer who is mature becomes quite tolerant of the weak and the immature believer.
7. This results in the superimposition of certain higher laws or standards over the law of liberty, so that the weak believer is not distracted from doctrine or disillusioned with regard to the doctrinal objectives of the Christian way of life. The law of love is applied in order to tolerate the weak believer.
8. Everything must be done both to provide the privacy of the priesthood and objectivity in perception of doctrine.
9. This requires thoughtfulness and understanding on the part of the strong believer.

Impersonal love means that you love others on the basis of your own integrity. Personal love is where you love someone else on the basis of their characteristics.

451 06/30/1978 Romans 14:15a Ike: qualifications and British; crusading; weak and strong believer re the honor code and conscience

Bob believes that no one, other than Robt E. Lee, could have done a better job than Ike. Moral courage is greater than any battlefield courage. The average Christian knows less about the Christian life than anyone else.

Operation Overland began in 1943. Ike accepted the work that Morgan had done. When he saw good thinking and good planning, he did not reject it. Montgomery and Bradley would take the lead. They would have air support in Normandy rather than an attack on Germany. Churchill constantly bugged Ike during the war, and he always had a lot of goofy ideas. Ike had 70 specific targets taken out.

For 11 months, Ike could not make a move without having Churchill on his back and Monty; and he fought for every decision. His decisions were right. Churchill thought himself a great strategist, but he wasn't. And Montgomery was one of the most petty persons there ever was.

The weak believer tries to get everyone to do what he is doing. And h thinks if he does it, he is blessed; and if he gets others to do it, he is double-blessed. The strong believer has to demonstrate tolerance to the weak believer. Each believer needs to avoid having eyes on self, eyes on others and eyes on things; but to focus on Bible doctrine. The strong believer directs his impersonal love to all, including the immature believer. Loving the brother does not mean that you interact with other believers, that you make friends with them, that you shake each other's hands, etc.

The first half of v. 14 is about the food taboos. Food is contaminated by the stupid thinking of the weak believer. It can become unclean while being prepared, but that is not what is in view here. Parasites and bacteria is not the issue that Paul is dealing with here. The issue is the legalism of the immature believer.

When you grow up, you start crusading. You will learn that even if this country is attacked by communists or tomorrow, our economy is destroyed; but you know that Jesus Christ controls history.

Ford was opposed to gun legislation, he was opposed to giving away the Panama Canal. He was opposed to SALT 2. Gerald Ford or Ronald Reagan or even Paul could not move into the country and save it; Jesus Christ controls history.

Most people under 30 cannot handle wine, women or song. If one presumes food to be unclean, then to him, it is unclean.

Verses 15 & 16, the necessity for the mature believer applying impersonal love from the royal family honor code.

Romans 14:15 For if on account of food your brother is grieved, no longer are you walking according to love. Do not destroy with food that one of you for whom Christ died. (BLB)

Verse 15 – “But if they brother be grieved with thy meat, now walkest thou not charitably.” The postpositive conjunctive particle gar is used to express a cause or a reason. It is followed by a conditional particle ei (εἰ) [pronounced /] used with the indicative to introduce the protasis of a 1st class condition. This is supposition from the viewpoint of reality. Then the prepositional phrase dia plus the accusative from brōma (βρῶμα) [pronounced BRO-mah], which refers to food—“For if because of food.” Plus the nominative singular subject adelphos (ἀδελφός) [pronounced ad-el-FOSS], plus the genitive of relationship singular from the personal pronoun su—“your brother,” a reference to the royal family of God with emphasis on the weak believer, the one who does not understand the plan of God. He is upset seeing the more mature brother eating meat.

The next “Amen” you hear will be from a weak believer (apparently someone said amen).

Then the word “grieve” which is not correct. It is the present passive indicative from the verb lupeō (λυπέω) [pronounced loo-PEH-oh], and it means to become sad, sorrowful, distressed. In the active voice it means to cause pain, but here in the passive voice it means to receive pain. The present tense is a customary present, it denotes what habitually occurs when the weak believer in arrogant hypersensitivity is frustrated by observing the mature/strong believer rejecting his pet food taboo. The customary present takes the weak believer who says, “God will not bless you unless you eat only vegetables and it’s murder to kill a cow or a steer.” The passive voice: the weak believer receives the action of the verb; he is distressed, and because he is operating on false norms and standards he becomes inflexible about a non-essential. The indicative mood is declarative to indicate a first class condition and to represent the verbal action from the viewpoint of reality.

Principle

1. The weak believer is wrong. The fact that he is wrong gives the strong believer the same opportunity to be wrong. He is wrong about the food and the strong believer is wrong if he tries to refute his attitude about food.
2. The weak believer is wrong because he is arrogant.
3. He is wrong because he is hypersensitive. He is offended by your eating meat in his presence. Or he is wrong because he has his eyes on people rather than on the Lord.
4. He is wrong because he allows the activities of other believers to distract him from learning doctrine. The only issue in life for that weak believer is doctrine.
5. He is wrong because he is critical of the mature believer. He is actually judging the mature believer.
6. He is wrong because he judges and utilizes vindictive criticism to bully a strong believer. But just because the weak believer is wrong there is no excuse for the strong believer to also become wrong. The weak believer does not function under the norms of the honor code because he does not have norms and standards based on doctrine. However, this is no excuse for the strong believer to depart from the honor code and from his doctrinally oriented standards and retaliate or retort. Retaliation on the part of the strong believer is a departure from his own norms and standards, but more than that, it is a departure from the royal family honor code. Principle: Two wrongs do not make a right.

1977 Romans

Lesson #452

452 07/01/1978 Romans 14:15b Ike vs. prima donnas; General Singlaub; doctrine of the royal family honor code (pt.1-9)

We are in a serious inflation spiral; there is a soft attitude toward communism; and there is an intent of communism to take over the United States. They do not have the ability to provide any kind of a standard of living. The welfare state is a violation of the laws of divine establishment. Profit motivation is legitimate; and it has been destroyed in many countries.

The laws of divine establishment require a buildup of the military. We have been studying the greatness of Eisenhower. He was not a genius like MacArthur and not flamboyant like Patton. Ike was very smart and very personable. He had no hangups; nothing to prove. Spruance and Ike more than any men were totally free of arrogant hangups. Ike graduated in the middle of his class; and he was without any combat experience starting in WWII. Having character and greatness is something else. At general staff school, Ike was #1 in his class. Greatest in tactics and strategy. Also at the top of his class in the army war staff. MacArthur used Ike for 6 years due to his brilliance. Ike would end up commanding all kinds of people from all over the world. No one else was qualified to do all of this.

Ike had great moral courage and this was necessary in Ike's position. Churchill kept trying to bully Ike. Ike was inflexible in the essentials. Churchill was a layman in the military even with his experience. Eisenhower set Italy aside and move forward on France. That is where he concentrated our troop movement.

Montgomery was critical, carping, and always made Ike come to him. Ike wanted to advance broadly. The great double envelopment was key to the destruction of the Germany army. Ike made that decision.

The weak believer is wrong about his hypersensitivity. He allows the activities of other believers to distract him from doctrine.

But there is no excuse for the stronger believer to react to the weakness of the weak believer.

Romans 14:15 For if on account of food your brother is grieved, no longer are you walking according to love. Do not destroy with food that one of you for whom Christ died. (BLB)

“now walkest thou not charitably” – the temporal adverb oukéti (οὐκέτι) [pronounced ook-EHT-ee], “no longer.” Then the prepositional phrase kata plus the accusative of agápē (ἀγάπη) [pronounced ag-AH-pay]—“according to the standard of love.” This is a part of the royal family honor code. Plus the present active indicative of the verb peripateō (περιπατέω) [pronounced per-ee-paht-EH-oh] which means to walk. With the negative temporal adverb, “you no longer walk according to love.” The descriptive present tense is for what is now going on. The strong or mature believer in Rome has suddenly lowered himself to the standards of the weak believer through retort and retaliation. The active voice: the strong believer produces the action, he doesn’t walk according to his own standards. His standard here is impersonal love. The indicative mood is declarative for the reality of the fact that the strong believer in Rome had abandoned the royal family honor code of impersonal love and therefore was entering into conflict.^[4]

A review of the royal family honor code. This matches more or less with the second doctrine in the notes. Most of the notes below were taken directly from this lesson and the next.

Royal Family Honor Code (1977)

1. All Aristocracies have standards. These standards are called Honor Codes. Right thinking results in right motivation. Right function is the basic concept of the Honor Code. It is based on perception of doctrine which circulates in the soul. The imputation of Divine righteousness demands advance to maturity. This righteousness is the imputation of one-half of Divine integrity to every believer. There is no compromise of God’s character; so there is nothing that we can do for His blessing. We cannot tithe or give legitimately or sacrificially in order to be blessed. But if we have not grown spiritually, we have no capacity for blessing. So blessing us would be worthless.
2. The privacy of the priesthood. Our objective is fulfilled by taking in Bible doctrine. Spiritual freedom must be defined in three concepts. Privacy, property, and freedom. Everyone has a right to come into this auditorium and be taught. We have a sin nature and we will have one until we die. The general principle is live and let live. We have all kinds of disagreements when it comes to the nonessentials.
3. The royal family honor code demands loving the brethren. You people as yourself means that you love people on the basis of the doctrine in your soul. Impersonal love always emphasizes the subject, not the object. When someone judges you or tries to destroy you, you do not retaliate. The immature believer who tries to get you to be like they are. They try to get you to conform to things which they learned prior to salvation. We respond with tolerance and impersonal love. Impersonal love excludes carrying a grudge. Loving the brothers is a mental attitude.
4. Our common objective is learning Bible doctrine in the local church.
5. The honor code builds integrity but does not reject morality. Morality is part of the Christian way of life. If we were moral before salvation; we continue with human morality.

6. The honor code excludes Christian production, works, talents and self-sacrifice as things which bring blessing from God. They do not elicit blessing from the justice of God.
7. Total dependence upon and confidence in the plan of God
8. The honor code is related to the function of divine imputation in the plan of God. Hope is absolute confidence about the future.

This appears to be Saturday? Patton is next up.

1977 Romans

Lesson #453

453 07/02/1978 Romans 14 Character of Ike; royal family honor code demands more of the strong believer; flexibility without tyranny

Bob talks about Eisenhower extensively. Eisenhower did not have military experience for the war. Bob thinks that you do not need experience.

Eisenhower could have fired Patton, but he knew that Patton was the right man to be in the field.

It is not well-known that Ike had an explosive temper; but he used his marvelous self-discipline to keep it all under control for the entirety of WWII. God has never blessed anyone for what they do or produce. Or you try to observe a special day like a Christian Sabbath.

Bob ran into someone who was a Christian pacifist. When Bob found out that he was a believer, Bob just dropped it.

We are not here to go on crusades to change how people talk or dress or what they do.

Impersonal love emphasizes the love of the subject always. The strong believer must carry the heavy burden of not bullying the weak believer. We all advanced; but others tolerated you while this took place.

Principles

1. The mature believer must supercede the law of liberty with the law of love. He understands the authority over him, whether the spiritual advance of a pastor; or the authority of a superior officer, or with wife accepting the authority of her husband.
2. He does not retaliate and he does not spend his time justifying his position in relationship to others. You might get accused of some weird things. You smile at your secretary and you are accused of having an affair. You never lower yourself to the gossiper or the maligner. Ike never explained himself. He never worried about all of the criticisms.

3. The mature believer does not make an issue out of his legitimate freedom. He refuses to hold a grudge or to put down the immature believer.
4. The issue must always be doctrine and the perception of doctrine under gap.
5. Because all believers are in different stages of growth, obviously, they have different modus operandis. They have different lifestyles.
6. Every believer must be given his privacy so he can avoid distractions for other believers. Every believer must be able to approach doctrine in their own way. Examples of those who were told to quite their Sunday job; to quit serving in a restaurant where liquor is served. You mind your own business. You don't tell people what they can do for a job. You ignore anyone who is different.
7. Therefore, the strong believer must give deference to the weak believer without giving into their bullying. The only problem we had were men out their flipping their butts around—ladies, cigarette butts.”
8. Courtesy and thoughtfulness which comes with the royal family honor code.
9. You do not abandon your standards or succumb to the bullying of the weak believer, who is petty, legalistic and implacable.
10. Above discussions about the nonessentials.
11. This may be some self-discipline on your part. Someone has to be honorable; someone has to be sensitive to the feelings of others. He knows what is offensive or what disturbs others.
12. If eating certain foods was morally evil, there would be no virtue in abstinence, as food would be an essential. Food is a nonessential in the spiritual life. Flexibility does everything in love except succumb to bullying.

Flexibility Without Tyranny

1. This means that you can supercede the law of liberty with the law of love. You can be right, but become wrong by arguing over a nonessential. You can win a debate, but it does not help anything. You have to be flexible and adaptable.
2. You know that eating certain foods like beef is not morally wrong or sinful.
3. Knowledge of beef, knowing that it is clean and nourishing; and it is sustaining. Your hostess may tells you that eating meat is bad; you eat the vegetables and keep your mouth shut. You do not distract the believer over some nonessential.
4. To abstain from legitimate things for the sake of the weak believer is an honorable thing.
5. There is no merit from abstaining from that which is wrong; only in abstaining from something that is right.
6. Judging the strong believer is both sinful and evil.
7. The weak believer is commanded to abstain from judging and maligning.
8. This is an essential and demands inflexibility. But eating food is not sinful or evil.
9. The flexibility of application for the strong believer occurs by abstaining in public. Spirit-filled flexibility demands that he be restrained from certain foods permanently. Gossip, maligning, judging are evil. We must be inflexible regarding those things.

454 07/02/1978 Romans 14:15c–16 General Singlaub vs. Carter; problem and responsibility of the mature believer; Jesus Christ vs. weak believers

Major General John Singlaub was a great soldier. He spoke up while in the service, which he should not have done; but then he retired from the service and began to speak up. We have heard from many sources the communist objectives to conquer, to destroy; we have elected the most idiotic people to office. Sooner or later the historical crisis will arise. Those who are prepared will deliver this nation.

God is impressed by what happened on the cross. He is not impressed if we feel badly for our sins or we promise Him never to do it again.

Romans 14:15 For if on account of food your brother is grieved, no longer are you walking according to love. Do not destroy with food that one of you for whom Christ died. (BLB)

“Destroy not him with thy meat” – the present active imperative of the verb apollumi (ἀπόλλυμι) [pronounced ap-OL-loo-mee], plus the negative mê (μή) [pronounced may] used with the imperative. The verb means to kill, to destroy, to void, to deprive of, to ruin. The pictorial present tense presents to the mind a picture of events in the process of occurrence. A mature believer gets to become careless, he loses his sense of responsibility, and loses track of the principles found in the royal family honor code. The active voice: the strong believer possessing doctrine in the soul and cognizant of the honor code is commanded to comply with the command. In fact, it is a negative command indicating that he has failed. The imperative mood: though often the present imperative of prohibition simply sees events as occurring, demands that they cease and desist. This is translated, “Stop destroying.”

The accusative singular direct object from the remote demonstrative ekeinos (ἐκεῖνος) [pronounced ehk-Ī-noss], referring to the weak believer. The weak believer is flexible with regard to the essentials of doctrine and inflexible in the application of false norms and standards. Therefore he is vacillating rather than being truly flexible. The remote demonstrative is used as the 3rd person pronoun and refers to the weak believer whose evil conscience is full of legalism, hypocrisy, tyranny and stupidity. The instrumental of cause from the definite article follows, used as a demonstrative pronoun. Plus the instrumental of cause from the noun brôma (βρῶμα) [pronounced BRO-mah], which refers to food. The instrumental of cause is a take-off from the instrumental of means. It is an easy transition from the intermediary means by which a result is produced to the original factor producing it. Lack of doctrine is the original cause but food taboos is the intermediary factor, therefore we translate, “Stop destroying him [the weak believer].”

“with thy meat” – the preposition hupér (ὑπέρ) [pronounced hoop-AIR] plus the ablative singular from the relative pronoun hos (ὅς) [pronounced hohç], “in behalf of whom” or “instead of whom.” Then the nominative singular of the proper noun Christos (χριστός) [pronounced krees-TOHSS]—“Christ,” plus the aorist active indicative of apothnêskô

(ἀποθνήσκω) [pronounced op-ohth-NACE-koh], used primarily for our Lord's spiritual death on the cross.

Romans 14:15 For if because of food your brother [weak believer] is distracted [and he is], you no longer walk according to [impersonal] love. Because of that food, stop destroying him in behalf of whom Christ died.

Principle

1. The efficacious sacrifice of Jesus Christ on the cross emphasizes not only the principle of grace but the fact that longer before us the Lord Jesus Christ was inconvenienced by these same weak believers.
2. Jesus Christ did not destroy these weak believers, but instead He was judged for their sins as well as your sins and mine when He was hanging on the cross.
3. The servant is not greater than his master. Therefore if Christ was inconvenienced by them on the cross, and before the cross, it is not comparable sacrifice on the part of the strong believer to take the responsibility for removing distractions from the weak believer, so that the issue is Bible doctrine.
4. Not only does this mean withdrawal to one's privacy but it also means refraining from retaliation, from revenge and retort, or any form of a put-down. It means avoiding trying to win a debate.
5. It also means do not flaunt your liberty or freedom in front of those who are weak. He is one for whom Christ died.
6. Do not create false issues by inflexibility but make an issue out of doctrine by the flexibility of application in the field of non-essentials.
7. In this way you retain your standards and capacity for life, along with occupation with Christ, and make it possible for the weak believer to see doctrine as the issue, rather than your personal life as the issue.
8. By refraining from retaliation, by refraining from bearing a grudge, you have retained your standards of maturity, you have complied with the honor code, and you have avoided at the same time being bullied and tyrannized by the weak believer.
9. Flexibility in application of the non-essentials avoids the tyranny of legalism and strife in the royal family of God.

Romans 14:16 Therefore let not your good be spoken of as evil. (BLB)

Verse 16 – “Let not your good be evil spoken of.” The inferential conjunction οὖν (oûn) [pronounced oon] denotes that what is introduced is an inference from the previous verse.

The good attained by you...

The Baptist church gives the gospel every Sunday; and by doing this, they are creating imbeciles.

Then a present passive imperative from the verb blasphemêô (βλασφημέω) [pronounced blahs-fay-MEH-oh] plus the negative mê (μή) [pronounced may]. It is used in relationship to God as blasphemy but here it is used in relationship to men, and it means in relationship to men's slander. It means to defame, to injure the reputation of someone by talking, implying, the innuendo of maligning. Hence, it connotes libel, slander, to utter falsehood, to accuse falsely, or to take someone else's sin that you actually know are sins and spread them around. It should be translated, "Let not be slandered." This is a descriptive present tense for what is now occurring in Rome. The passive voice: the mature believer's good receives the action of the verb. His good is slandered when he does not use the law of love in lieu of the law of liberty when the occasion arises. The imperative mood of prohibition expresses a negative command. Then the nominative neuter singular from the adjective agathos (ἀγαθός) [pronounced ag-ath-OSS] used as a substantive for advance to maturity, meaning good of intrinsic value, absolute good. Here it is the advance to maturity under the privacy of the priesthood and the function of the royal family honor code. With this is the generic use of the definite article, and also the ablative of means from the personal pronoun su in the plural—"the good attained by you." The adjustment to the justice of God through the daily function of GAP and resultant advance to the status of maturity is in view with the word "good." However, the true meaning of the ablative is a help here, the ablative plural from the personal pronoun su, because means is generally assigned to the instrumental case which is the usual case for expressing means. But the ablative is used when the expression of means is accompanied by origin or source. The origin or source is implied as the strong or mature believer.

Romans 14:16 Let not the good attained by you be slandered/maligned.

Principle

1. The strong/mature believer is inflexible in his doctrine but is very flexible in his application of doctrine. That is the right way to go.
2. Normally the strong believer functions under the law of liberty which is his privacy, his freedom, the normal modus vivendi of the mature believer.
3. Under freedom and privacy the mature believer has been liberated from legalistic taboos of the weak believer.
4. Therefore his lifestyle reflects this freedom, for the mature believer does not major in the minor. He doesn't insert false issues over petty things.
5. For this reason the mature believer is often misunderstood. He is slandered, maligned, is the object of vindictive criticism by implacable, weak believers.
6. Therefore the strong believer must set aside his freedoms in certain cases in order to make an issue out of doctrine rather than personal modus operandi. If the issue is being bullied by the weak believer, then the strong believer must stand fast in his liberty, as per Galatians 5:1. Stay away from the psycho-tongues crowd.
7. There are times when by giving way to the law of love the believer can make an issue out of doctrine, so that the weak believer can recover from his reversionism by the intake of doctrine and advance to maturity.
8. Since the ablative of means from the pronoun su indicates source we must remember that the source and means of obtaining spiritual maturity is the perception of Bible doctrine, and that we must capture the divine thought through perception of doctrine. The daily perception of doctrine is the only answer.

455 07/03/1978 Romans 14:17a "Kingdom of God"; aristocracy; spiritual vs. physical food

Romans 14:17 For the kingdom of God is not eating and drinking, but righteousness and peace and joy in the Holy Spirit. (BLB)

Verse 17 – the priorities of the honor code. “For the kingdom of God is not meat and drink.” The explanatory postpositive conjunctive particle gar means it is time to draw a conclusion. Words like these tell us where previous sentence ends and a new begins; even though there are no spaces and punctuation. There is also an inferential connotation. It is time to draw a conclusion.

A coach deals with this all of the time. Those on the team are all different. Some have potential, but no training. Some are well-trained, but of limited skills. The coach identifies the different places that people are and he teaches and trains them according to the stage of growth that they are at.

Babies are treated one way, adults are treated another. So, this is true in Christianity as well. For a baby, one thing is the Christian way of life; for a mature believer, the Christian life is something else. Sometimes, we put up with the foibles or the shortcomings of the weak believer; it is not up to us to straighten them out.

Spiritual reality is the greatest reality of all. Impersonal love is far different from personal love. We exercise impersonal love toward all other believers. When the mature believer has high standards and the immature believer has no standards or the standards from their background (good and bad standards). He sees the mature believer and he maligns and judges him for his freedom. The mature believer faces a great responsibility. The mature believer needs to be flexible to allow the immature believer to advance. We do not grow except through Bible doctrine.

Next is the nominative singular subject from basileia (βασιλεία) [pronounced bas-il-Ī-ah], a word which has been misunderstood. It is correctly translated “kingdom.” The descriptive genitive singular theos (θεός) [pronounced theh-OSS] tells us to what it refers, a spiritual kingdom. Whenever we have the word “God” put in, or whenever the context implies a spiritual connotation, and it refers to believers of the Church Age—as this does in Romans—obviously it is referring to our aristocracy. When we believed in Christ we became instant aristocracy, and the kingdom of God here is a reference to the aristocracy, the royal family of God in this dispensation. The kingdom of God used in Matthew has a different connotation and is a reference to the fulfillment of the unconditional covenants to Israel at a future time—the Second Advent, beginning historically in the Millennium and continuing and continuing to the end of the Millennium and then in eternity. The kingdom is said also in Matthew to be in a mystery form which would be the near eschatological anticipation of the Church Age.

Again, we have to understand that Jesus Christ is royalty on three counts. (1) In His deity He is royalty because He has all of the attributes of God. He is just as much God as the Father and the Spirit—co-equal and co-eternal. The other members of the Trinity are His royal family. His royal title is Son of God. (2) He is also royalty in Israel because He is directly related to David through the virgin Mary who is the direct descendant of Nathan, the youngest son of David and Bathsheba. He is legally descended from Joseph, who was not His real father, who was descended from Solomon, the eldest son of David and Bathsheba. David and Bathsheba are the royal line. They had four sons, and all of the descendants from the four sons are in the royal family of David. That means that the Lord Jesus Christ is royal family, the son of David, and He will rule over Israel and fulfil the unconditional covenants in the future. The kingdom of God often relates to that and this is a system of royalty. Jesus Christ is the royalty of Israel, the son of David who will rule forever. (3) There is another royalty, the one in which we are involved, which has only come into existence since the resurrection and ascension of Christ—battlefield royalty. This is the resolving of the angelic conflict. This royalty began with His resurrection, ascension, and being seated at the right hand of the Father. He was told to sit down until His enemies were made the footstool of His feet. In other words, until a tactical disposition of His enemies have been made, since the strategic victory was already won by resurrection, ascension and session. His was given a title: Kurios (κύριος) [pronounced KOO-ree-oss]. But actually that title is simply a reference to a longer title: King of kings and Lord of lords.

Someone born into aristocracy were always in training. Their children were not allowed into public until they had been properly trained.

When it comes to the believer, we are in public view all of the time; and in every stage of growth. And we are vacillating about everything and confused by everything. Some may become jealous or bitter of other believers, and our actions toward that person are sometimes poor and lacking in royal decorum.

No one gets to spiritual maturity without many people giving them the freedom to continue to grow spiritually. We do not tolerate the tongues movement; and we separate from them. Bob never saw a woman in the tongues movement who was not completely mixed up about authority.

Next is a verb, the present active indicative of eimi (εἰμί) [pronounced eye-ME] plus a negative ou (οὐ) [pronounced oo]—“is not.” This is the present tense of duration, sometimes called the retroactive present because it denotes what is begun in the past and continues into the present time. Our royalty continues forever. This is almost a static present which is a condition which is perpetually existing. This is always true, there never is a time when it isn’t true. It has been true since we were born again and became spiritual aristocrats. Furthermore, we are in an aristocracy which will last forever. The active voice: the kingdom of God produces the action of the verb, i.e. the royal family of the Church Age. The declarative indicative mood views the verbal action from the viewpoint of reality.

You sometimes have immature believers who believe that we should not be killing animals; and that we should only eat vegetables. India is the victim of Bambi propaganda; and they have all of this beef; but they are not eating of it.

When the Brits left India, that was a great loss. Nearly 2 million Indians died almost overnight once the Brits left.

The example of the immature believer who says that another believer is out of line because he is eating pork or he eats meat offered to idols or he drinks wine. There is no problem with eating any of these things.

We must face a negative reality: what the kingdom of God is not. The predicate nominative of brôsis (βρῶσις) [pronounced BROH-sihs] says in effect that the kingdom of God is not eating, not eating food.

Then the connective kai and the second predicate nominative, this time posis (πόσις) [pronounced POS-ihs] which refers to drinking alcoholic beverage. If eating and drinking were an evil (and they are not), then the taboo about eating and drinking would be a virtue. Eating and drinking is normal and good, and sustains the body. Therefore to observe a taboo about something that is good simply becomes a form of legalism and arrogance. All legalists are arrogant and have rejected some form of authority, and have substituted their own authority in some non-essential matter. Since eating and drinking do not sustain the soul they are not an issue in the spiritual life. The issue is what sustains the soul, i.e. Bible doctrine.

Eating and drinking has become a part of taboos; but eating and drinking are not problems. The believer must be sustained in the physical life. The issue is Bible doctrine. The issue for the spiritual life is growing. We do not evaluate a person's spiritual status based upon the food that they eat or don't eat; or the things they drink or do not drink.

1977 Romans

Lesson #456

456 07/03/1978 Romans 14:17b Freedom and authority; no capacity and no divine blessing; targets for blessing

Edward A. Bennet. The Americans were making their first counterattack. Citation for Bennet. He stormed a room where a machine gunner was. He killed 7 men who were in that room. The gunner had kept everyone down and from moving.

An young English soldier who had the highest honor. He became arrogant due to the Victorian Cross, he began to think that he was the last word on everything. His arrogance ruined his military career. Arthur Fitzgivens. He was a total failure.

As you advance to maturity, your responsibility becomes greater. Adolescent believers have a great deal of difficulty with authority. It is easy to be distracted; it is easy to disregard spiritual authority. No matter how smart or dumb you are, or how weirdo your personality is or how scintillating it is. You have to be a plodder. You cannot afford to be inflexible about the nonessentials. Freedom, privacy and property. Our government has attacked property; and the government is confiscating it. Freedom means inequality. Freedom eliminates equality. Freedom guarantees inequality. Under freedom you have little government. We are the peasants of middle Europe. We don't think like Americans, we don't act like Americans. End fourth of July speech.

Freedom must always provide a haven for the Jews. It provides missionaries, it provides evangelism; and many local churches. When people are getting out of the service, they are used as aggressors. This is what is done with believers in reversionism. They are used as aggressors to test you.

Women out of control. They met authority in Berachah, did not like it. And they would find a book which disagreed with Bob, and they would read this book and try to resist his authority based on this book.

We pass idiotic laws to handle social problems, which causes further social problems. Great Senator William Howard Taft (not sure if I got the first names right).

Bob was not reared to be a preacher. They were the lowest on the social scale in Beverly Hills. When Bob told his father he was going to become a preacher, his father gave him a very tough indictment. Diaconos means waiter, servant, garcon. That is what Bob is, as a pastor-teacher.

There are constant references to freedom and authority in Romans 12–15.

If eating and drinking were evil, then it would be virtuous to abstain from eating meat and drinking wine. Observing a taboo is legalism. They have substituted their own authority in some nonessential matter.

Romans 14:17 For the kingdom of God is not eating and drinking, but righteousness and peace and joy in the Holy Spirit. (BLB)

The positive side: “but righteousness, and peace, and joy in the Holy Ghost” – the adversative conjunction allá (ἀλλά) [pronounced ah-LAH] sets up a contrast between the low and high priorities of the royal family honor code.

The predicate nominative from dikaioσύνη (δικαιοσύνη) [pronounced dih-kai-oh-SOON-ā/dik-ah-yos-OO-nay], one of the dominant words in Romans—“justification,” the word which takes us right back to who and what God is, right back to the attributes of God. We deal with the integrity of God, therefore the righteousness of God and the justice of God. Justice is the point of reference for all believers since the fall of Adam. The justice of God could not even accept us until we were as good as God is good, and the only way that we could be as good as God is good is to have God's perfection. Therefore at the point of salvation the justice of God imputed to us the righteousness of God. Each one of us as believers possesses divine righteousness. This becomes the home or the target for blessing in time after salvation. Once the justice of God looks down and sees that we possess the righteousness of God by imputation then the justice of God pronounces us justified. Justification is the first act of the justice of God in our new relationship with God. Dikaïosunê (δικαιοσύνη) [pronounced dih-kai-oh-SOON-ā/dik-ah-yos-OO-nay] not only means divine righteousness but it also means imputed divine righteousness which is justification. God's perfect righteousness imputed to the believer at salvation is called judicial imputation #2. It is the basis for the next word, the predicate nominative eirênê (εἰρήνη, ης, ἡ) [pronounced eye-RAY-nay], which does mean peace, but not in the Bible. It is an exact equivalent to the Latin of the time, pax, and it really means prosperity. So its basic connotation is not absence of war but presence of prosperity in your life.

Example of getting married before you have capacity. Or promotion before you have the capacity for it. God does not provide the blessing until you have the capacity for it.

How can we have prosperity as a Christian? The answer is given in the first word, "righteousness." The presence of justice as the point of reference guarantees that God's attributes will never be compromised in blessing members of the human race. How can the justice of God provide blessing for us? How can it be imputed? Only because we have the righteousness of God. Divine blessing is imputed from the justice of God to the righteousness of God. That sets up the grace pipeline. Grace is the policy of the justice of God in providing blessing for imperfect man. Now we have what the kingdom of God is: imputed righteousness. Corrected translation: "but righteousness and prosperity." Why righteousness? So that the justice of God can imputed blessing without compromising His attributes.

We advance under the priesthood; and we produce from our ambassadorship.

Then the third predicate nominative, chara (χαρά) [pronounced khahr-AH], the result of receiving imputation of blessing from God,

The safety valve is found in the prepositional phrase en (ἐν) [pronounced en] plus the instrumental of pneuma (πνεῦμα) [pronounced PNYOO-mah] and hagios (ἅγιος) [pronounced HA-gee-oss]—"by means of the Holy Spirit."

Virtue is in thinking right, not doing right.

Romans 14:17 For the kingdom of God is not eating and drinking; but righteousness [imputed at salvation] and resultant prosperity [imputed at maturity], and happiness by means of the Holy Spirit.

1977 Romans

Lesson #457

457 07/04/1978 Romans 14 Happiness by means of the Holy Spirit; X+Y+Z=good; Christian way of life

Romans 14:17 For the kingdom of God is not eating and drinking; but righteousness [imputed at salvation] and resultant prosperity [imputed at maturity], and happiness by means of the Holy Spirit.

Some Points on this

1. Happiness by means of the Holy Spirit and perception of Bible doctrine. Faith + the knowledge of doctrine. Revised study of the edification complex structure coming up. This changes the norms and standards of the soul.
 - a. Everyone who is saved comes into salvation with their own norms and standards. Parallels to someone joining the service; ;and maybe you get up at 8 in the morning. Do you think they are going to conform to your standards? So the norms and standards that you bring into the Christian life are also not accepted. Your norms and standards are only good if they are divine establishment standards.
 - b. If you still have the same norms and standards that you started with when you believed in Jesus, then you are not growing. No one outside of the pastor-teacher and those authorized has a right to superimpose their personal concepts on you (the exception, parents).
 - c. Sooner or later, your standards have to be based upon Bible doctrine. Our norms and standards need to be Bible doctrine.
2. This happiness is sharing divine happiness from spiritual growth. The top floor of the edification complex structure is God's happiness.
3. The divine happiness shared with the mature believer is a blessing from spiritual maturity.
4. The Holy Spirit is the means of perception of that doctrine by which the believer attains spiritual maturity and the sharing of God's +H.
5. Each priority is based upon a previous priority. Spiritual maturity brings with it an inner happiness. Hilarity is not the same as happiness.
6. Prosperity is the result of imputed righteousness.
7. Happiness is the result of prosperity. The ministry of the Holy Spirit in teaching doctrine.

The historical crisis coming up is for those who are strong with doctrine. Legalism and antinomianism will not carry you anywhere in a crisis.

X+Y+Z = the Good. We must understand imputation in order to understand the plan of God. We are alive because God gave us life. God condemned us immediately, and that sets us up for God's plan.

The Kingdom of God is righteousness + prosperity. The good of God's plan from Romans 8:28 12:12 and elsewhere. The royal family honor code is a code of flexibility. We allow believers to have erroneous ideas. We tolerate the legalist so that they can advance. You need to know when to separate and when to tolerate. The negative believer is the reversionist.

Romans 14:17 For the kingdom of God is not eating and drinking; but righteousness [imputed at salvation] and resultant prosperity [imputed at maturity], and happiness by means of the Holy Spirit.

In eternity eternal reward is imputed to the resurrection body. Bob is tempted to take these imbeciles and beat them into the ground.

Principle

1. Eating and drinking are the nonessentials.
2. The filling of the Holy Spirit and Bible doctrine are the essentials. They demand inflexibility. Imputed righteousness.
3. We need to emphasize the essentials and remain flexible about the nonessentials.
4. Summarized by the X+Y+Z = plan of God.

Bob assumes that we know a whole set of doctrines. The next paragraph is the interaction in the body of Christ. 40 minute break.

1977 Romans

Lesson #458

458 07/04/1978 Romans 14:18 Function of the royal priesthood cf. royal ambassadorship (+ doctrine of, 7 pts.)

All believers wear two hats. You are an ambassador and a priest. The first is production the second emphasizes Bible doctrine.

Romans 14:18 For the one serving Christ in these things is well-pleasing to God and approved by men. (BLB)

Verse 18 – “For he that in these things serveth Christ.” The explanatory use of the conjunctive particle gar is followed by the articular present active participle from the verb douleúō (δουλεύω) [pronounced dool-YOO-oh]. The definite article is used as a personal pronoun. The perfective present denotes the continuation of existing results. In other words, a fact which has come to be in the past but is not emphasized as a present reality. The active voice: the mature believer produces the action of the verb. The participle is circumstantial. This is followed by the dative singular indirect object from Christos (χριστός) [pronounced krees-TOHSS], generally said to mean anointed but is even stronger than that, it is appointed—the one who is appointed saviour of the world, the one around whom the entire human race finds its relationship to life and to God’s plan. Literally, it says “For he who serves the Christ.” The generic use of the definite article emphasizes the uniqueness of the second person of the Trinity, as the God-Man, undiminished deity and true humanity in one person forever.

“in these things” – the preposition en (ἐν) [pronounced en] plus the locative singular form the demonstrative pronoun houtos (οὗτος) [pronounced HOO-tos], “in this.” This is a reference to the function of the royal family honor code on the part of the mature believer, as indicated in verses 14-17. The mature believer not only applies the honor code to the weak believer but in superseding the law of liberty with the law of love he serves the Lord Jesus Christ. The more you grow the greater becomes your flexibility. The mature believer has the greatest flexibility of all. He serves the Lord Jesus Christ in the non-essentials.

“is acceptable to God” – the function of the royal priesthood. Because of ellipsis we have to insert here the present active indicative of eimi (εἰμί) [pronounced eye-ME]. This is legitimate ellipsis showing that there is emotion involved, Paul is getting excited. The verb is understood because of the predicate nominative singular from euárestos (εὐάρεστος) [pronounced yoo-AR-es-toss] which means “pleasing.” The dative singular indirect object from theos (θεός) [pronounced theh-OSS] plus the definite article gives the translation, “is pleasing to the God.” Pleasing God is the function of the royal priesthood. This is related to maximum doctrine resident in the soul resulting in attainment of maturity adjustment to the justice of God.

“and approved of men” – the connective use of the conjunction kai, followed by the predicate nominative of dókimos (δόκιμος) [pronounced DOK-ee-moss] which means approved after examination and testing. Here it means “respected.” Then the instrumental plural of means from the noun anthrōpos (ἄνθρωπος) [pronounced ANTH-row-pos]—“by men.” This is a function of the royal ambassadorship of the believer. Being respected by men is ambassadorship. The basic fundamental difference between priesthood and ambassadorship is very simple. In priesthood we represent self to God; in ambassadorship we represent God to men.

Romans 14:18 For he who serves the Christ, in this is pleasing to the God [royal priesthood], and respected by men [royal ambassadorship].

The average believer connects production to blessing in time. Production is the manifestation of spiritual advance, but not the means of blessing.

The believer advances in the sphere of his priesthood but his production and application is in the sphere of his ambassadorship. Divine blessing is imputed on the basis of modus operandi of the priesthood, but not production from the ambassadorship. This is rightly dividing the Word of truth. It demands that we distinguish between the function of our priesthood and the function of our ambassadorship.^[5]

The Doctrine of Ambassadorship goes back to Lesson #361. Notes are there.

Ambassadorship Versus Priesthood

1. This passage distinguishes between the royal priesthood and the royal ambassadorship.
2. The priesthood relates to perception of doctrine and advance to maturity.
3. Also it relates to the royal family honor code.
4. The ambassadorship relates to the production of the Christian life.

5. Therefore, the priesthood relates to pleasing God; ambassadorship relates to the respect of mankind.
6. Priesthood relates to the essentials of Bible doctrine.
7. The function of the priesthood is related to maturity.
8. Ambassadorship relates to the production.
9. The believer represents himself before God in the priesthood; in the ambassadorship, he represents God to man.
10. Both the objectives of the priesthood and ambassadorship are fulfilled in the production of the royal family honor code.

1977 Romans

Lesson #459

459 07/04/1978 Romans 14:18–19 Six categories of SG2 blessings; doctrine of the importance of Bible doctrine (review)

James M. Burke, a captain in the Army. From Lee, Massachusetts. His citation is read.

Romans 14:18 For he who serves the Christ, in this is pleasing to the God [royal priesthood], and respected by men [royal ambassadorship].

The priesthood is mentioned first then the ambassadorship. The priesthood is related to pleasing God; and the respect of men is related to his ambassadorship. The priesthood is his advance to maturity. He represents himself to God. As an ambassadorship, he represents God to man; and this is his production of divine good.

Romans 14:19 So then, we should pursue the things of peace, and the things for edification among each other. (BLB)

Verse 19 – the fulfilment of the objectives of the honor code. “Let us therefore follow after the things which make for peace.” This verse begins with two inferential particles, ára (ἄρα) [pronounced AHR-ah] oun (οὐν) [pronounced oon], to show that we are moving now to a very important conclusion. The word ára (ἄρα) [pronounced AHR-ah] is used for inference; oun (οὐν) [pronounced oon] is another conjunction which is also inference but has a transitional connotation here. This can be translated “So then,” but better in English, “Consequently.” The verb is the present active indicative of diôkô (διώκω) [pronounced Dee-OH-koh], which was used in the ancient world for pursuit and the exploitation of break-through in military life. It also means to run after and is often translated simply to pursue. We use “run after” here because this indicates momentum of pursuit and also the exploitation of a break-through. Therefore in the connotation of momentum the corrected translation is, “Consequently we run after.” We as believers of the Lord Jesus Christ and members of the royal family of God are on the battlefield of this world, and therefore God has provided through logistical grace the necessary support to gain momentum, to pursue, to exploit the break-through. The next phrase is the accusative neuter plural direct object from the definite article used as a demonstrative pronoun and translated “those things.” This is followed by the genitive singular of relationship from the noun eirênê (εἰρήνη, ης, ñ) [pronounced eye-RAY-nay] which means “prosperity,” plus the generic use of the definite article to comprehend spiritual maturity as a single whole and to distinguish it from all other categories of spiritual status quo in this life—“related to prosperity.” This prosperity actually refers to the six categories of blessing which comes to the believer after he cracks the maturity barrier. They do not occur all at the same time but are spread out.

There are distinct categories of blessings for the believer who reaches supergrace in time.

Categories of Blessings (Taken from McLaughlin’s Site)

1. Spiritual blessings. These include sharing the perfect happiness of God and occupation with Christ as maximum category one love (toward God), which is greatly intensified in supergrace and ultra-supergrace. Many blessings accompany the believer's maximum love for the Lord Jesus Christ. The supergrace believer has great capacity for life, love, happiness, and blessing, and total appreciation for grace. He also receives the tremendous ability to face undeserved suffering in life with no complaining. For the supergrace believer, the intensification of spiritual blessings comes when he wears the shroud of maximum, unremitting, undeserved suffering to glorify God in the angelic conflict, and this suffering will not terminate until he departs this life. In the midst of it all, he still has perfect happiness, the "peace which surpasses all comprehension," Philippians 4:7. The supergrace believer also has the ability to correctly interpret contemporary history, to evaluate current events in the light of the Word of God. He is free from slavery to the circumstances of life, and he adaptable to changing circumstances. The mature believer shines in time of historical disaster. He has grace orientation, freedom orientation, authority orientation, common sense, and a total sense of security, whether in prosperity or disaster.
2. Temporal blessings. These include material wealth, either received or acquired, as well as physical health. The supergrace believer can have professional prosperity, including a great influence on others, leadership dynamics, success, promotion, and recognition in one's sphere of life. Abraham had the privilege of receiving one of the greatest titles in the Bible, "friend of God." Moses was a successful ruler. Paul was the greatest communicator of all time. Jeremiah was the greatest prophet of all time. In supergrace, the believer will have the ability to assume responsibility and authority without emotional inspiration or false motivation. The supergrace believer can also have great social prosperity and great friends, as well as sexual prosperity with one's right man or right woman. In mental prosperity, the ability to think and concentrate increases. This gives the believer a greater capacity for life and a great deal of interest toward what is happening in everyday life. Every day will be meaningful. God will also grant cultural prosperity, which is maximum enjoyment of drama, art, literature, music, history, etc. Establishment prosperity includes enjoyment of freedom, privacy, and protection of life and property from criminals and reprisal. Ephesians 3:19–21
3. Blessings by association. Those around a mature believer are blessed by their association or relationship with that person. There are two categories of blessings here. They are blessed either directly by God or indirectly from the supergrace believer as a result of the overflow of his supergrace blessings. These peripheral areas of blessing by association include spiritual periphery, loved ones, professional periphery, business life, social life, and the local church. There are also geographical blessings to the supergrace believer's city, state, and nation. This begins with the periphery of the pastor-teacher. There is the heritage periphery, where some are blessed as related to a supergrace believer who has passed away.

4. Historical blessings. The mature believer carries his generation, 2Timothy 1:5. He stabilizes his generation and even future historical generations. The ebb and flow of history does not disturb the tranquility or impact of the mature believer. He is the Matthew 5:13-14 believer, "the salt of the earth" and "the light of the world." The supergrace believer is on the winning side of history, whereas the reversionist is caught up in the disasters of history and swept along with them, Ephesians 4:14, "As a result, we are no longer to be children, tossed here and there by waves, and carried about by every wind of doctrine, by the trickery of men, by craftiness in deceitful scheming." The supergrace believer rides the crest of the wave of blessing. He rises above historical disaster.
5. Undeserved suffering. Only in time do we have the opportunity to glorify God under pressure, disaster, and undeserved suffering to prove to Satan and the fallen angels that Bible doctrine can handle any situation. God gives us the ability to handle suffering and turn suffering into blessing, Romans 8:28, Deuteronomy 23:5. A mature believer knows when he is under divine discipline or undeserved suffering. The former is unbearable; the latter is bearable. The supergrace believer's ability to handle undeserved suffering glorifies God and becomes evidence against Satan in his appeal trial. Undeserved suffering is also used by God to keep our eyes on Him and our focus on eternity, Revelation 2:10, 2Corinthians 12:9-10. Undeserved suffering also teaches us the value of Bible doctrine, Psalm 119:67-71. We read in Psalm 119:67, "Before I was afflicted I went astray, but now I keep Thy word." Here, the psalmist is living in disastrous conditions and still says, "I keep Your word." God in wisdom deals with us as perfectly as only He can. He allows suffering, heartache, and disaster in our lives to draw us closer to Him. Romans 8:18-30
6. Dying blessings (dying grace). Every believer has a choice in time between staying positive to Bible doctrine and receiving dying grace, or turning negative to doctrine and dying the sin unto death. For the supergrace believer, the curse of death with its pain and fear is removed, Hebrews 2:15. It is the greatest experience in life. The perfect happiness of the supergrace believer in time is exceeded only by his happiness in dying grace, 2Timothy 4:6-8. The mature believer has the best of life, greater blessing in dying, and better than the best for all eternity. As Psalm 116:15 declares, "Precious in the sight of the Lord is the death of His godly ones."
7. Surpassing grace blessings at the Judgment Seat of Christ. Surpassing grace is the optimum in spiritual achievement. It is the point of maximum blessing and reward, and the ultimate in glorifying Jesus Christ. "Surpassing" connotes something beyond supergrace and beyond time. Surpassing grace is the status of special blessings and rewards in eternity for the believer who has broken the maturity barrier in time.

Profit is the honorable pursuit of business. We are entitled to property. When property goes, freedom goes. Privacy, freedom and property all go together. And you cannot have any of these things without government (not our big government). Government should handle the laws of divine establishment.

The spiritual blessings which are imputed in time from the justice of God to the righteousness of God which is the home or target. The righteousness of God was given at salvation, the blessings of time are imputed at maturity and thereafter. These blessings in time glorify God in time, for when the justice of God can impute blessing to +R in any mature believer this becomes the means of glorifying God. In the spiritual blessings everyone has occupation with Christ which is category #1 personal love. Sharing the happiness of God or sharing +H also will belong to the mature believer. Capacity for life, love, happiness, blessing, grace orientation, authority orientation, freedom orientation, and common sense are some of the spiritual blessings. The ability to face suffering and pressure in life is another great blessing, as is the ability to correctly interpret contemporary history and to evaluate current events in the light of the Word of God. Freedom from slavery to circumstances, adaptability to the changing circumstances of life, a complete and total sense of security in life, regardless of whether you are in a period of obvious prosperity or obvious disaster. A sense of security in relationship to the plan of God for your life. These things are the spiritual heritage of the mature believer. The more you advance in maturity the more these increase, and these blessings imputed glorify the Lord Jesus Christ.

The verb diôkô (διώκω) [pronounced Dee-OH-koh], means to run after or pursue. The customary present denotes what habitually occurs in the modus operandi of the positive believer. He pursues, run's after, exploits logistical grace, and therefore has momentum which advances him into maturity. The active voice: the positive believer produces the action of the verb through consistent daily function of GAP. The indicative mood is declarative for a statement of fact with regard to the positive believer. This is how the positive believer becomes strong or mature. You have to keep running, and that is why we have the customary present. It means you keep on taking in doctrine no matter what the circumstances. Doctrine is your life.

“and the things wherewith one may edify another” – the connective conjunction kai, “and,” plus the accusative neuter plural direct object of the definite article used as a demonstrative pronoun, indicating a categorical concept—“and those things.” “Those things” refers to Bible doctrine which must be transferred from the page of the Scriptures into the soul of the believer for any spiritual advance to maturity. Then a genitive singular of relationship from the noun oikodom (οικοδομή) [pronounced oy-kod-om-AY], referring to the edification complex of the soul. Plus the ablative singular from a definite article used as a relative pronoun whose antecedent is the mature believer who becomes a blessing to other members of the royal family of God. Further more this definite article is in the ablative of source which implies that the original situation, i.e. maturity, contributes in some way to the status of blessing to other believers. When you have an ECS you become a blessing by association. Corrected translation: “from which comes blessing.” Then the prepositional phrase, eis (εἰς) [pronounced ICE] plus the accusative plural from the reciprocal pronoun allélôn (ἀλλήλων) [pronounced al-LAY-lohn]—“to each other.”

Romans 14:19 Consequently we pursue those things [doctrines] related to prosperity [imputation of divine blessing], and those things related to the edification complex from which comes blessing to each other.

Note that there is only one verb in this verse in the original Greek. Note also that the pursuit of doctrine is the basis for the objective of fulfilling God’s plan, which in turn results in fulfillment of the honor code and becomes a means of becoming a blessing to each other. In the statement of the Christian life priorities there are no variations, the answer is always the same: Bible doctrine must be the most important thing in your life. There is no substitute for Bible doctrine.^[6]

This leads us to the Importance of Bible doctrine. The notes for this doctrine are back in Lesson #298. This doctrine is expanded slightly from this lesson with regards to the translation of several verses.

Lesson #460

460 07/05/1978 Romans 14:20 L. Burke; jogging; when the law of love supercedes the law of liberty; right pastor–teacher; right vs. flexibility

Colonel Burke retired. He was a lobbyist for the Army. He acted as a liaison between the two. He was in Korea in 1951 and received, I think, a medal of honor for one incident. He caught several grenades in midair and threw them back at the enemy. At another point in this battle, he killed about 75 enemies; and later 25 more enemies.

The Lone Runner Strikes Again by Richard Smith. So-so article.

Verse 20-21, the strong believer’s application of the honor code to the weak believer.

Romans 14:20 Do not destroy the work of God for the sake of food. All things indeed are clean, but it is wrong to the man eating through a stumbling block. (BLB)

Verse 20 –“For meat destroy not the work of God.” The Attic adverb heneka/heneken/heineken (ἐνεκα/ἐνεκεν/εἴνεκεν) [pronounced HEN-ek-ah, HEN-ek-en, HI-nek-en], is used as an improper preposition with the noun brōma (βρῶμα) [pronounced BRO-mah]—“Because of/On account of food.” Plus the present active imperative of the verb kataluō (καταλύω) [pronounced kaht-al-OO-oh] with the negative mê (μή) [pronounced may]—“do not demolish.” The person who has grown and advanced to maturity in his spiritual life has far greater responsibility than the weak believer who has neither a sense of responsibility nor any concept of reciprocal relationship in the royal family of God. “Do not destroy/demolish” is a pictorial present tense which describes events in the process of occurrence. The active voice: the strong believer produces the action of the verb. He has the sense of responsibility, the flexibility, is oriented to reality, has common sense, understands thoroughly the function of the royal family honor code, and he knows when to supersede the law of liberty with the law of love. In some cases, you may abstain from certain foods or drinks if that might cause another weaker believer to stumble. This is for the believer who is weak but positive toward doctrine. Today, the most common application is probably not drinking in front of a believer who thinks that drinking is wrong.

The more self righteous a person is, the more they are likely to be a bully.

There are the types who realize that they have eternal security, so they decide that they are going to live it up.

This is the imperative of prohibition used in a negative command. Since kataluō (καταλύω) [pronounced kaht-al-OO-oh] is used for demolition or destruction of a building it certainly relates to hindering the construction of the believer's ECS which is a part of the advance to maturity. The verb itself has a preposition which is compounded, kata, which means itself "down, to pull down, to tear down," and to demolish a building. The building in this case is the ECS in someone else's soul. Then the accusative singular direct object from ergon (ἔργον) [pronounced EHR-gon], and with it the generic use of the definite article to emphasize the work of God in contrast to the distinction made on all of the other plans for mankind. This is a different plan; this is God's work. The plan of God, therefore, is called the work of God. All of man's plans have to be called the work of man. So a contrast is set up with the genitive singular of possession from theos (θεός) [pronounced theh-OSS]. God's plan is God's work, not your plan.

"All things indeed are pure" – the Attic Greek affirmative particle men used correlatively with de, which means "on the one hand" and "on the other hand." The nominative neuter plural from pás (πάς) [pronounced pahs] refers to every category of food, plus the predicate nominative neuter plural from the adjective katharós (καθαρός) [pronounced kahth-ar-OSS] which means pure or clean, ceremonially pure or clean. This is not talking about contamination through bacteria or any of the usual contaminations of life that may occur in food, it is talking about clean from the standpoint of the soul, the thinking.

Principles

1. This phrase eliminates food and beverage as a source of taboos and legalism.
2. There is one exception to this phrase, i.e. drunkenness, over-indulgence in alcoholic beverage. There is also a possible sin from over-indulgence in food.
3. Apart from over-indulgence all food and beverage is considered clean.
4. This is obviously the superior knowledge of the mature believer.
5. To the immature believer certain food and beverages are taboo, and the taboo to them is directly related to their spiritual life.
6. Because the weak believer makes a taboo out of certain foods and beverages and relates it to the Christian way of life the strong believer must not allow his superior knowledge of doctrine to hinder the advance of the weak positive believer.
7. The strong believer is absolutely correct in his norms and standards that all foods and beverages are clean, therefore edible and drinkable. But being right must not hinder the advance of the weak believer. No one gets to maturity without many mature believers staying out of your way, refraining from judging and correcting you. They tolerated you.

8. Three kinds of believers exist in the weak believer category, and each has its own erroneous norms and standards:
 - a. The unstable weak believer who is positive toward spiritual things but jumps from one person to another;
 - b. positive toward doctrine and under his right pastor, but has as yet not advanced very far;
 - c. negative toward doctrine and will never advance too far in the Christian life. We avoid such types when we are able.

Being right is not always the issue. Sometimes you are right, and you back off. You give other believers some freedom and choice. Your flexibility comes into play.

The adversative conjunction allá (ἀλλά) [pronounced ah-LAH] sets up the contrast in this passage between the non-essential right opinion and the wrong standard of the weak believer. The predicate nominative neuter singular from kakós (κακός) [pronounced kak-OSS]—“evil.”

Principle

1. A right thing done in a wrong way is not only wrong but it becomes evil—because it distracts a positive believer from doctrine. A right thing applied in a wrong way can also become evil.
2. The mature believer is to be inflexible with regard to the essentials of doctrine but flexible regarding the non-essentials of application.
3. This is why the law of liberty is often superseded by the law of love, so that doctrine becomes the issue to the weak believer rather than the life style of the strong believer. The life style of the strong believer should never be the issue to the weak believer.
4. Generally, eating and drinking are matters of privacy. But in public places they can become public issues which distract the weak believer from doctrine and therefore would destroy his momentum.
5. A right thing plus a wrong application equals wrong, and sometimes evil.
6. A right thing plus a right application equals good or right.
7. The burden of this function lies with the mature believer. He has a strong sense of responsibility and a strong sense of sensitivity where other believers are concerned.
8. The strong believer must be able to become flexible with the application of a correct principle, either by using the principle or by refraining from using the principle as circumstances dictate.

“for that man who eateth with offence” – the dative singular of disadvantage from the definite article used as a demonstrative pronoun referring to the strong believer, and the dative singular of disadvantage from the noun anthrōpos (ἄνθρωπος) [pronounced ANTH- row-pos], again referring to the strong believer who does a right thing in a wrong way resulting in wrong and being parlayed into evil—“but it becomes evil to that man [the strong believer].” Plus the articular present active participle of esthiō (ἐσθίω) [pronounced es-THÉE-oh], the verb for eating. The instrumental singular of the definite article is used to indicate an instrumental participle. The present tense of the participle is pictorial which presents to the mind a picture of events in the process of occurrence—the strong believer offending the weak believer by what he eats. The active voice: the strong believer produces the action of the verb by inflexibility in the non-essentials. Thus he violates the honor code which he understands best. This is an instrumental participle indicating the means by which the action of the main verb is accomplished—eating food which offends the weak believer. Then the prepositional phrase, dia plus the genitive from próskomma (πρόσκομμα) [pronounced PROS-kom-mah] which means an offence that is stumbling, injury, damage; dia plus the genitive denotes here attendant circumstances—literally, “with offence.” But it is an idiom in the Greek meaning to give offence.

Romans 14:20 Because of food do not destroy [tear down, demolish] the work of the God. To be sure, all foods are clean; but it becomes evil to that one [strong believer] who by eating gives offence.

1977 Romans

Lesson #461

461 07/06/1978 Romans 14:21 Avoid distracting the weak believer from doctrine; priorities vs. non-essentials; doctrine of drinking

Romans 14:20 Because of food do not destroy [tear down, demolish] the work of the God. To be sure, all foods are clean; but it becomes evil to that one [strong believer] who by eating gives offence.

Principles on Verse 20

1. The mature or strong believer is responsible under the honor code to avoid distractions of offence which would eliminate doctrine as the real issue in the weak believer's life.
2. This means that the law of love [impersonal love] in the honor code must prevail in all doubtful circumstances.
3. This means, then, that the law of love must and will supersede the law of liberty in such circumstances where the weak believer is offended so that he is distracted from doctrine.
4. None of us can grow spiritually apart from doctrine, therefore all who have grown spiritually and attained maturity did so because at some time while they were advances the law of liberty was superseded by the law of love. A strong believer tolerated our erroneous standards of the past.
5. Therefore just as the weak believer must learn to distinguish between the essentials and the non-essentials, so the strong believer must do likewise. But each has a different area in which they must learn this. This means inflexibility about the essentials of doctrine and flexibility about the non-essentials. This principle provides growing room for the weak believer who is positive toward doctrine.

Principle

1. Capacity for life demands that all of us establish priorities in life. You cannot have capacity until you have priorities. (Priorities are impossible until you personally learn to think. You do not have priorities if you are an emotional creature who never had a serious thought) Doctrine gives the capacity for thought, which in turn gives the capacity for life.
2. These priorities must be categorized into essentials and non-essentials.
3. This principle applies to various aspects of life—military life, the profession of law, law enforcement, coaching, teaching a subject in school, etc. From your priorities you have to decide what is essential and what is non-essential.
4. Above all, this principle of distinguishing between the essential and the non-essential is a basic principle of the Christian way of life.
5. Doctrinal is the essential; doctrine must have the number one priority in the life.
6. The believer must be totally flexible in the application of doctrine to life, to people, to circumstances.
7. For this reason there are three laws which supersede the law of liberty. In the modus vivendi of the Christian life there are three laws that the strong believer uses: the law of love which is direct toward the weak believer; the law of expediency directed toward the unbeliever; the law of supreme sacrifice which is directed toward God alone. (Amplified in 1Corinthians 8 & 10:23-33)

Romans 14:21 It is good neither to eat meat, nor to drink wine, nor anything in which your brother stumbles. (BLB)

Verse 21 – “It is good neither to eat flesh, nor to drink wine.” The predicate nominative neuter singular from kalos (καλός) [pronounced kal-OSS] is translated “honorable.” It is preceded by the verb to be: “It is honorable,” a reference to the function of the royal family honor code. Then the articular aorist active infinitive from esthiō (ἐσθίω) [pronounced es-THEE-oh] plus the negative mē (μή) [pronounced may]. The articular infinitive is an Attic Greek idiom which changes the verbalization of the infinitive into a substantive, and not only a substantive but great emphasis on the substantive. The definite article restores the balance between the substantive and verbal aspects of the infinitive. This means that when you have the definite article preceding the infinitive, often it is used simply as a noun. Here in the nominative neuter singular definite article we have a construction in which the subject is the definite article and the predicate nominative is simply kalos (καλός) [pronounced kal-OSS], honorable, and then the articular infinitive functions in exactly the same way that a noun would as the subject of a verb. So for the corrected translation literally, “Not eating is honorable.” This is a reference to the law of liberty being replaced by the law of love. The construction is completed with the accusative plural direct object of the infinitive kréas (κρέας) [pronounced KREH-as] —“meat.” The aorist tense in the infinitive is a part of a substantive idea and must be taken very strictly, and it means it is honorable not to eat meat in a specific case, not to refrain from eating meat all the time and abandoning your own freedom. It is honorable on a specific occasion. Next is the aorist active infinitive from pinô/piô/roô (πίνω/πίω/πρώ) [pronounced PEE-noh/PEE-oh/POH-oh], followed by a negative disjunctive conjunction mêde (μηδέ) [pronounced may-DEH] used to continue the concept of a negation. This is, again, a substantized infinitive without a preposition, used as a subject with the aorist tense indicating this is not continuous abstinence, this is an occasional situation. Plus the accusative singular from oinos (οἶνος) [pronounced OY-noss] —“wine.” “It is honorable not to eat meat, nor to drink wine in a specific situation.”^[7]

“nor anything, whereby thy brother stumbleth, or is offended, or is made weak” – mêde (μηδέ) [pronounced may-DEH], again, which is repeated for what is called formula ellipsis, and it has an idiomatic meaning which means “or do anything else.” “Do anything else” is not found in the original, it is a formula ellipsis where mêde (μηδέ) [pronounced may-DEH] is repeated with a negative side: first time to mentions specifics and then the second is a general.

Bob breaks down a great many categories of alcohol. The Pilgrims were known for their liquor. They had to land on Plymouth Rock since the victuals were spent, especially our beer. Many famous founding fathers imbibed in liquor.

The Doctrine of Drinking

06/08/1975 From the 1Timothy series; matches very closely to this study

1. The importance of objectivity.
 - a. We are interested in this study in what the Bible says about drinking and alcoholic beverage.
 - b. Those who have had personal problems because of drinking or are related to those with drinking problems have difficulty in approaching this subject objectively.
 - c. Those who have been reared in the atmosphere of Christian legalism will be shocked by what the Bible teaches.
 - d. Those who are looking for an excuse to get off the wagon will think they have smelled a cork.
 - e. No subject has more prejudice and less reason than the subject of drinking alcoholic beverage.
 - f. What we are about to study is not a booze sermon, nor is it an excuse for some weak sister to start drinking again. It is none of these things.
 - g. The objective is not to get believers on or off the wagon but to teach what the Bible says about drinking.
 - h. The fact that the Bible has a lot to say on the subject merely proves that drinking has long been an issue in the history of the human race.
2. The classification of 20th century beverage.
 - a. We live in a time of human history when there are numerous categories of alcoholic beverage, beverage which is not only available but made use of in many different ways for many different purposes. For example, medicine. Or, on the other hand, seduction. Or, escape or frantic search for happiness. Or stimulation. Also relaxation and celebration.

- b. It should be pointed out immediately that alcohol is both toxic and beneficial; it is both destructive and helpful; it is both a curse and a blessing.
- c. Therefore a classification of 20th century alcohol is helpful.
 - i. Medicine. Alcohol is very good in compounding prescriptions, it is an excellent solvent and it is a preserving agent.
 - ii. It also comes in the form of a whiskey, and alcoholic liquor which is distilled from serial grains. The term is derived from the Celtic "usquebaugh" and it means the plain spirit derived from grain. Later it included compounded beverages which added both sugar and flavourings, and finally it came to be called whiskey. Whiskey is often classified by geographical location. There are three general classifications: Scotch, Irish, and American.
 - iii. All whiskeys are manufactured by very much the same process. First of all there is the preparation of the liquor known as wort, the mashing. Then there is the fermentation of the wort to produce the wash, and thirdly there is the separation of the spirit from the wash by distillation. Irish whiskey uses both malted and unmalted barley, oats, wheat, rye. Scotch whiskey uses malted barley. These fall into four categories. The highland malts which have been cured over peat fires. There are lowland malts which have a full flavour but are not as distinctive as the highland so they're used for blends. A third category is the Islay malts, used primarily for blends. Then there is the Campbeltown malts which have a more pronounced flavour. Three categories are used for blends, the highland is not. US whiskey falls into two categories: Bourbon and Rye. There is also a corn whiskey.
 - iv. Vodka. It is an alcoholic beverage manufactured from potatoes and maize.
 - v. Gin. It gets its name from the juniper berry used as the principle flavouring. Gin is 76 per cent maize, 15 per cent malt, 10 per cent rye. Sweetened gin is obtained by adding sugar or syrup.
 - vi. Wine. This is the fermented juice of the grape. There are four general categories of wine today: Table wine, sherry, the fortified wines like port and Madeira, and then there are the sparkling wines like Champaign.
 - vii. Brandy, which is fermented juice of grapes and other fruits, aged for some time in wood. The most famous brandies come from a district in France called Cognac. Brandy does not age in a bottle, it has to age in wood.
 - viii. Liqueurs - flavoured spirits sweetened by the addition of sugar or syrup.

ix.

Beer. One of the oldest forms of alcoholic beverage. It is fermented of malted serials, usually barley malt, to which hops have been added. There is a record of Babylonian beer going back to 4000 BC. Ramses III of Egypt consecrated to the god of Egypt 466,303 jugs of beer. Historians like Herodotus, Pliny, Tacetus comment on beer in the ancient world. The art of brewing became well-known throughout the ancient world. The Chaldeans had it. The art spread to Egypt, Greece, and Rome, so that beer became quite a famous alcoholic beverage.

3. The Bible condemns drunkenness and makes it very clear that drunkenness is a sin - Isaiah 5:11,22; 28:7,8; Proverbs 20:1; 23:20; Romans 13:13; 1Corinthians 5:11; Ephesians 5:18. Drunkenness is a handicap to those who are in authority, temporal authority such as kings - Proverbs 31:4,5; spiritual authority such as pastors - 1Timothy 3:3; Titus 1:7; or deacons - 1Timothy 3:8. None of these categories are forbidden alcoholic beverage but all must be very temperate in keeping with the authority that they exercise. Those in authority, then, are not forbidden alcohol but they are warned against drunkenness as a possibility of abusing their authority. Not only is drunkenness a sin but people in that status abuse their authority.
 - a. Drunkenness is also condemned in certain Bible characters. Noah in Genesis 9:21; Nabal in 1Samuel 25:36,37; Lot in Genesis 19:32-36; the tribe of Ephraim in Isaiah 28:1.
4. The adverse effects of alcohol.
 - a. Drunkenness or excessive use of alcohol leads to crime, suicide, divorce, traffic accidents, economic and industrial losses, loss of health, miserable circumstances, poverty, national disaster.
 - b. It should be remembered that alcohol is not a stimulant, it is a depressant. As a depressant it lowers inhibitions, dulls the reflexes, destroys common sense and good judgment, and it stimulates mental attitude sins.
 - c. But drunkenness also produces more than impulsive behaviour and social tragedy, it is the source of quite a number of diseases. It is also weakening of the health which leads to diseases not directly induced by alcohol.
 - d. Excessive alcohol affects the brain in numerous ways, including cerebral hemorrhage, delirium tremens which produce mental confusion, anxiety, terror, auditory and visual hallucinations as well as delusions. Alcohol in excess also attacks the liver. It is the cause of vernicese disease: a paralysis of the eyes, uncoordinated walk, the clouding of consciousness, final coma and death. As a depressant alcohol cooperates with the old sin nature to lower standards of resistance to sins in all categories. This means that excessive drinking or drunkenness is not only a sin in itself but has dire spiritual consequences as well as physical. The Bible gives no encouragement and no excuse for excessive drinking.
 - i. There are two types, however, of excessive drinkers. The first type is the type who drinks a large amount at one time. The other one goes for days and days, the one who drinks constantly day in and day out. There are two kinds of people who have a drinking problem. Those who can't stop from the steady drinking and those who can't stop from heavy drinking in a short period of time. Both of these types should avoid any use of alcohol except in medicine. The chemistry of the blood and individual metabolism is related to how much a person can assimilate - how much alcohol content in the blood, how much can your body take out per hour as to how much you are taking in. Inebriation is a sin and there is no benefit from having an alcoholic problem.

5. Proper and improper uses of alcohol. Proverbs 34:4-7 - wine attacks authority of leadership; wine attacks the function of leadership; the correct use of wine (Give strong drink to him who is dying); to those whose life is bitter. 1Timothy 5:23 -
 - a. This passage indicates that wine or certain alcoholic beverages had both a relaxing and beneficial effect on Timothy.
 - b. Paul is prescribing a moderate amount of alcohol to relax the nervous high-strung Timothy.
 - c. A limited amount of wine acts as a sedation; too much wine has a toxic effect.
 - d. Wine stimulates the appetite through the increase of gastric juices while at the same time relaxing the solar plexus, the area of the central nervous system, the stomach muscles, and so on.
 - e. The benefits of wine, then, can be summarised as follows: beneficial to brain and nervous system as a depressant producing sedation; beneficial to the stomach in terms of appetite, digestion; beneficial to the circulation, especially in the case of older people.
 - f. Psalm 104:15 - "And the wine which makes man's heart glad, maketh his well-nourished face radiant, and food which sustains man's right lobe." To have the heart glad refers to a limited amount. The passage is actually saying a little wine with food is a good thing.
6. The incident where Jesus turned the water to wine - John 2:1-11.
 - a. Jesus was invited to a wedding in Cana of Galilee, along with His disciples - verse 2.
 - b. A crisis occurred when they ran out of wine - verse 3.
 - c. Jesus replied to His mother in verse 4. "What is this to me or to you?" I.e. What difference does it make to us. Neither Jesus nor Mary were in any way hurt by the fact that they arrived late and hadn't had any wine.
 - d. However, Mary implied that Jesus should have left before the wine ran out.
 - e. Jesus said to her, So what! You and I do not have to depend on wine for anything.
 - f. Then Jesus challenged Mary's subtle hint about departure by saying, "Mine hour has not yet come."
 - g. This was a reference to His saving work on the cross, and it is mentioned on numerous occasions: John 7:30; 8:20; 12:23,27; 16:32; 17:1. In other words, He begins with a very strong vocative of rebuke. It states that neither Jesus nor His mother depended upon wine for a good time. This verse states that

His departure from the wedding and from this life had not yet come. This is a double entendre. Furthermore, Jesus implied that He would stay and rectify the situation. So His mother understood that He would stay and that He would do something about it.

- h. His mother said to the servants, ". do it."
 - i. What about the wine? It was a wedding feast and they were serving alcoholic beverage, which was the custom. They ran out of wine which did create a crisis for hospitality. So Jesus, to indicate that drinking wine was not an issue with regard to eternal salvation, now performs a miracle. Wine isn't an issue. Now He provides more wine, and the best wine that anyone ever had. Jesus truly turned water into wine. The miracle, however, neither condones nor condemns drinking. Like all miracles, its purpose is to focus attention on who and what Christ is. it is to point out that Christ is the God-Man, the unique person of the universe. He is the son of David. This is the first advent. The issue is salvation, not whether you drink wine or not. The issue is Christ, not social crisis and not a social problem.
 - ii. There were six water pots, each one held 20-30 gallons. At 20 gallons that would be 120 gallons of water. Wine is composed of 70-80 per cent water. There is 12-30 per cent grape sugar, 12-14 per cent ethyl alcohol, there are other alcohols. Wine has carbon dioxide, organic acids, glycerin, organic colouring, microorganisms for fermentation. So water into wine is unexplainable, it is not a miracle if you can explain it. It was a miracle in which at least 120 gallons of water were turned into 120 gallons of wine.
 - iii. Christ, not wine, is the issue here. The miracle gave everyone in Cana a chance to be saved, for the miracle presents God's plan of grace in the person of Jesus Christ, the God-Man, the only saviour. It was a miracle to focus attention on who and what Christ is.
- 7. Drinking should also be related to the divine laws of modus operandi.
 - a. The law of liberty. Every believer has the right to drink a moderate amount of alcoholic beverage, it is not a sin. But then there are other laws that supersede at certain times.
 - b. There is the law of expediency. It is expedient not to drink under certain conditions: witnessing, and so on. Or when drinking becomes an issue to an unbeliever.
 - c. The law of love. It becomes necessary to refrain from drinking when it becomes a means of leading astray a weaker believer.
 - d. The law of supreme sacrifice. Drinking is forbidden when it hinders a specific ministry or leadership function in life.
- 8. Alcohol is also a part of national disaster - Joel 1:4-6; Isaiah 28:1-9; Jeremiah 13:12-17.
- 9. The principle of common sense in drinking. Not only does the Bible have a lot to say about drinking - pro and con, when you should and when you shouldn't - but even an unbeliever with an average amount of common sense ought to be able to handle the problem.

- a. Alcohol is wasted on young people. Young people ought not to drink. They are neither smart enough or wise enough to derive any benefit from drinking.
- b. Young people pick up all the pitfalls and none of the benefits of drinking.
- c. Do not drink while frustrated or unhappy. When you link emotion with drinking you are going to have a problem.
- d. Young ladies who date strangers should be non-drinkers (on that date). Never drink with a stranger, never drink at a strange place.
- e. Never drink alone. Moderate drinking is for social life.
- f. Never drink on the job or while doing work.
- g. Never drink while operating a motor vehicle, flying an airplane, operating any type of machinery.
- h. Never mix gunpowder and alcohol. Never drink while hunting, plinking, shooting.
- i. When you get a little older drink moderately with friends whom you trust.
- j. Drunkenness and dissipation is a waste of time as well as life. While drinking is not forbidden by the Bible drunkenness is stupidity as well as a sin.
- k. The Christian lush is a reversionist who has failed to utilize the grace provision for learning doctrine, growing in grace, advancing to the objective.

The next phrase is the preposition en (ἐν) [pronounced en] plus the instrumental singular from the relative pronoun hos (ὃς) [pronounced hohç]—“by which.” Plus the nominative singular of adelphos (ἀδελφός) [pronounced ad-el-FOSS] with a genitive of relationship from the personal pronoun su, correctly translated “your brother.” Then the present active indicative of proskoptô (προσκόπτω) [pronounced pros-KOP-toh], meaning to stumble, to be offended. The aoristic present tense is for punctiliar action in present time. On a specific occasion the weak believer will stumble when he is offended in his conscience by the function of a strong believer whom he observes to be eating meat, contrary to his own taboo, or drinking alcoholic beverage, again contrary to his own taboo. The active voice: the weak believer produces the action of the verb through being offended at something the strong believer does. The indicative mood is declarative for the fact that this is an actual occurrence. The false norms of the weak believer produce arrogance, and from that arrogance comes hypersensitivity. He can’t cope with the mature norms of a strong believer. Doctrine is blamed and therefore doctrine is rejected by the weak believer whose legalism is wrong, not doctrine. This means that by the strong believer taking the responsibility on these occasions all believers will have an equal opportunity to advance to maturity and the resultant imputation of divine blessing in time as a manifestation of the glorification of the Lord Jesus Christ. Equality, however, is not the issue. Freedom will create inequalities because some believers will use their freedom to learn doctrine while other believers use their freedom to reject doctrine and go any other way.

Romans 14:21 It is honorable not to eat meat, nor to drink wine in a specific situation, nor do anything else by which your brother [the weak believer] stumbles.

The phrase “or is offended, or is made weak” is not found in the original.

Principle: Believers with positive volition use their freedom to advance to maturity, while believers with negative volition use their freedom to reject doctrine. Therefore freedom creates inequality. That is, inequalities exist through the use of one’s freedom. Equality is an impossible myth; freedom is the potentiality for advancing in the plan of God.

The mature believer must balance out the norms of doctrine in his conscience with the modus operandi of personal love. The greater the exploitation of freedom under grace, the greater the responsibility not to abuse that grace. Every step...

Lesson #462

462 07/07/1978 Romans 14:22a Lord Tedder of the RAF & Ike; conscience of the strong believer toward the weak; law of liberty vs. the law of love

Lord Tedder might be called Ike’s counterpart in Great Britain. His chosen approach was that of a calculating intellectual. He was happiest behind a desk out thinking his enemy; but least when with his men. He was sensitive and quiet; and his was always subtle persuasion. He became a leader among leaders; a great man among greatness. He was truly one of the great men of British history.

He was an academic type and had no interest early on in the armed forces. He did not have the eye-catching brilliance of his contemporaries. He began his career in 1915. His record in the first world war was more interesting. Small, quiet, somewhat aloof, with a tremendous sense of humor. He made little impact upon his contemporaries.

An officer over him noticed (Air Marshal Trenchard) and he saw him as a man who saw the essentials rather than the details. He was inflexible with regards to the essentials; and flexible with regards to the nonessentials. He could sort the essentials from the trivia. Trenchard said he saw the essentials of the squadron’s ... He was going to become one of the greatest officers in air force history.

He was put in charge of the 70th and his planes were already ready to fly; and everything was taken care of for the men and the planes.

Churchill did not like him; and Churchill did not like some of the best generals.

Tedder was put in charge of research and development. Bouncing bomb and a jet engine all developed under Tedder, I believe.

Trenchard said the Tedder always had his priorities right. He was said to sort the jewels from the tinsel. He enjoyed the support of Lord Beaverbrook.

He was considered a limey with some sense. Officers are never to carry a package or an umbrella.

Ike too this British officer and said, you are in charge of everyone in the air force. Tedder was given great authority.

Tedder said there was no way to win the war by strategic bombing. This is ludicrous and Tedder recognized this. Tedder was critical of Montgomery all the way through. Even to today, history has not caught up with his foresight. He will rank as one of the great men of British history. He is very much like Nelson.

Romans 14:22 The faith that you have, keep to yourself before God. Blessed is the one not judging himself in what he approves. (BLB)

Verse 22 – you have to have a means by which you establish norms in your conscience, and doctrine is the only way to do this. This verse records the conscience of the strong believer, the norms and standards of the strong believer. “Hast thou faith?” The proleptic use of the personal pronoun su is addressed to the mature believer. “You there” is the correct translation. Paul understands the principle by which all great believers tick.

The accusative singular of general reference from pistis (πίστις) [pronounced PIHS-tihs]. The accusative of general reference is the subject of the infinitive. Here we have the simple reference without the infinitive. The word pistis (πίστις) [pronounced PIHS-tihs] generally is translated “faith” but that isn’t its only meaning. There are three basic connotations of the noun: a) Non-meritorious perception—trust, confidence, or faith. This is the active use of the noun; an attribute—faithfulness, reliability; a recognition of an acceptance of doctrinal teaching, and it comes to mean doctrine: that is the meaning here.

Then an accusative feminine singular from the relative pronoun hos. Ordinarily in the feminine or masculine gender this is translated “who.” But there is a reason for not translating it at all. Next is a present active indicative from the verb echô (ἔχω) [pronounced EHKH-oh], meaning to have and to hold. “You there, the doctrine which you have,” referring to the mature believer, the one who is advancing, the positive believer. This is a retroactive progressive present tense, it denotes what has begun in the past and continues into the present time through the daily function of GAP. These people have learned Bible doctrine, have persisted in it, have been pluggers, avoiding distractions. They have been stable and have avoided all of the pitfalls of peeling off from doctrine. The active voice: generally the mature believer produces the action of the verb. The indicative mood is declarative for the fact that the believers who are positive to doctrine and who stay with it possess doctrine as the basis for forming norms and standards in the conscience.

“have it to thyself before God” – present active imperative of echô (ἔχω) [pronounced EHKH-oh]. This is a descriptive present for what is now going on. The active voice: the mature believer again produces the action. This is the imperative mood of command—“be having it.” Then the prepositional phrase, kata plus the accusative singular from the reflexive pronoun seautou (σεαυτοῦ, ἑς) [pronounced seh-ow-TOO] which denotes a relationship to something. Here it is a relationship to self. “You there, the doctrine you have, be having it in relationship to yourself.” This command means that when you learn doctrine that is where you stand inflexible. Inflexibility with regard to the essentials.

Doctrine is the essential; doctrine is what is important. Doctrine in your norms and standards demands that you remain absolutely firm where doctrine is concerned.

The adverb enupnion (ἐνύπνιον) [pronounced en-OOP-nee-on] is used as an improper preposition. The object of the adverb is theos (θεός) [pronounced theh-OSS]. It means with the genitive, “before the God” or “in the sight of the God.” You have to know when to respect the privacy of someone else who is wrong. You may be right; they may be wrong, but you have to know when to keep quiet. So we have emphasis on the privacy of the priesthood and letting everyone live their life as unto the Lord. Let them establish their norms and standards from doctrine they learn, not doctrine you have learned. The exceptions are parents to children and times when people are seeking something and one can be helpful. But basically, everyone learns doctrine from their own pastor-teacher.

You cannot live your life as unto the Lord without Bible doctrine resident in your soul. The believer must live his life in the basis of doctrinal standards he possesses, not the doctrinal standards someone else possesses. So this phrase emphasizes three things: a) You must learn doctrine for your relationship with God, you cannot depend on doctrine others have learned for your relationship. You have to know doctrine to have a personal relationship with God as a believer; b) You must use the doctrine you have learned for your relationship with God, not the doctrine someone else has learned; c) You live your life as unto the Lord on the basis of that doctrine you have learned, you cannot live your life as unto the Lord under the aegis of some other believer, some other believer always telling you what to do. You have to know what to do, you cannot use some other human being as a crutch. The only way you can throw away the crutches is to learn doctrine for yourself.

Romans 14:22a You there, the doctrine which you have be having it in relationship to yourself before God...

Principle

1. Note that in the previous verse the aorist tense does not demand a total abstinence, or even permanent abstinence, from food and wine.
2. The honor code principle takes cognizance of the fact that the weak believer is ignorant of doctrine and full of prejudices, so that he has nothing in his soul to comprehend the divine approbation of your freedom.
3. Therefore the legitimate function of your freedom, using doctrine you have learned, has no frame of reference in the weak believer. So when you throw doctrine at him, even though you are right, he is distracted from learning doctrine for himself.
4. As a temporary function and not as a permanent abstinence you often supersede the law of freedom in your own life with a higher law, the law of love, so as to avoid distracting the weak believer from doctrine. He needs that doctrine to grow spiritually, and in effect, by staying with the law of liberty you are depriving him of the doctrine he needs.
5. Since you have doctrine with reference to yourself you must also encapsulate the application of that doctrine with reference to yourself so as not to distract the weak believer.

6. Therefore you must have a flexibility of application, flexibility from strength.
7. Food and drink are non-essentials.
8. Flexibility of application, therefore, demands superseding the law of liberty by the law of love, not as a permanent abstinence but as a temporary expediency under flexibility of application in the non-essentials.
9. This works no hardship on a strong or mature believer and does provide breathing room for the weak believer to express his positive volition toward doctrine and to continue in the function of GAP.
10. Therefore a public application of the principle of privacy.

Romans 14:22a You there, the doctrine which you have be having it in relationship to yourself before God...

Principle

1. Many of the mature believer's freedoms cannot be publicly flaunted without distracting the weak believer from the primary issue of doctrine.
2. While your life is not an issue to another believer who has the good sense to be occupied with Christ, your lifestyle can easily become a distraction to the weak believer who has neither the doctrine nor the understanding of the privacy of the priesthood to cope with your liberty.
3. Therefore you have to give number one priority to doctrine in your life and this requires flexibility of application in the non-essentials.
4. This flexibility of application demands that certain legitimate functions in life which distract the weak believer (who is positive) have to be set aside temporarily. This is the honor code.
5. Not only is the strong or mature believer responsible for toleration of the non-essentials but flexibility and application of doctrine to the non-essentials.
6. Remember that the mature believer's strength [doctrine in the soul] is the immature believer's weakness [lack of doctrine in the soul]. So, again, the mature believer's strength is the immature believer's weakness.
7. The mature believer is strong in doctrine while the immature believer is weak in doctrine.
8. The greater the amount of doctrine in the soul the greater the freedom in lifestyle.
9. Therefore the mature believer has an additional responsibility of making sure that his freedom does not become a stumbling block to the weak believer who neither understands nor has flexibility from doctrine of his own.
10. Consequently, doctrine resident in the soul must be possessed in relationship to self before God and applied in flexibility to the weak believer so that the weak one's perception of doctrine remains the true issue in the Christian way of life.

463 07/09/1978 Romans 14 General C. R. Huebner; two tragic flaws; non-essential image (actors) and arrogance (experts)

Bob is appalled as to how ignorant so many are when it comes to history, such as the history of WWII.

C. R. Heubner is an important name from WWII, who began as a private and 40 years later, he retired as a Lieutenant General? He became an expert stenographer, typist and something else from business school. He enlisted in 1910. He was commissioned, despite not completing high school. He was one of the most decorated officer. He went to army war college during the Depression.

He became Ike's G3. Weidemiar, Patton and Huebner all went to Alexander, and h said, "No one has spoken to me that way before." Wedemeir was brilliant politically as well as militarily.

On D-Day, Omaha Beach was the only place where we were outnumbered.

Huebner was the first to attempt to integrate the army units again. He was a plodder and a plugger; and there were many things against him becoming an officer.

A review of the translation.

Romans 14:22a You there, the doctrine which you have be having it in relationship to yourself in the sight of the God...

The tragic flaw #1: the non-essential image.^[8] When people become physically mature, they often erect an idol or image in their soul, which is the sum total of their norms and standards, something they admire and what to emulate.

Principle

1. This image is related to their norms and standards of conscience in such a way as to be a goal in life, or a system for emulation. By the time people become physically mature they have erected certain idols, they carry an image in their souls. This image is usually the sum total of their norms and standards: something they admire, something they desire to emulate.
2. For example, the woman may create her image from being stage struck. She seeks to copy some actress, etc. Such an image is a non-essential. She seeks to copy this person, this actress, and even views herself in the mirror in order to get it down. This image is a nonessential.
3. A male through his arrogance also creates an image (It takes a lot of arrogance and false norms to create this image) of masculinity from some stupid and strong clod he admires.
4. This he-man image in a non-essential. Being inflexible about such a non-essential image results in distortion in life.

5. For example, take a young man who is brilliant, sensitive, thoughtful, gentlemanly, kind, low profile. Suddenly he takes an ego trip by becoming inflexible with regard to a non-essential. He suddenly creates an image in his soul called manliness and assigns it to someone. He imitates this person and becomes rude, thoughtless, insensitive, belligerent, contentious, pugnacious, in effect chasing the shadows of non-essentials in the name of manliness.

Tragic Flaw #2: the problem of arrogance. It is characterized as the arrogant presumption pattern.

Principle

1. Arrogance in areas where people are successful is the problem. This pattern comes from arrogant presumption on the part of people who by some standard, or any standard, have qualified as successful—someone who has come into public notice, has achieved some kind of public attention. From this comes an arrogance problem—when people are successful or pseudo-successful attention-getters.
2. People who are brilliant or successful in certain fields and dumb. They assume in their arrogance that they are an expert in any field or any subject. Therefore in their arrogance they feel qualified to express and opinion on any subject that may come up. They've never been heard to say that they don't know and the opinion of someone who is qualified should be sought. This is characterized by arrogant presumption and it means that while you might be brilliant in one field and an expert you are not qualified to deal with all fields. The obvious result is inflexibility in the non-essentials, and the non-essentials are areas of ignorance. The momentum for this tragic flaw comes from success in one field of endeavour which linked with arrogance assumes expertise in every field of endeavour.

1977 Romans

Lesson #464

464 07/09/1978 Romans 14:22b Memorials to D.D. Eisenhower; tragic flaw #3: personality issues

Eisenhower died in 1969. Conservatives have ruined themselves because they are inflexible in the nonessentials.

A newspaper article from AP. This was all about Ike. "As long as I am above ground, I am never going to leave the army." He was regarded as the greatest general of the war. The Germans only fears Patton and Eisenhower. He became interested in tanks when they were clumsy monsters in WWI. He was the first one to take the tanks seriously. He was a tireless worker and he was known for thoroughness; and he accepted full responsibility. He never offered up an alibi. He even accepted censor, taking the rap for others.

Despite his battling with Churchill, they had a general affection for one another. His favorite hymn was sung at his funeral, A Mighty Fortress is Our Lord. He chose 3 passages out of the psalms to be read at his funeral.

He declined to insert himself into too many issues as president, because he thought the government was too involved in our lives as is. One essential of government is antisemitism. God will never allow a group to practice antisemitism.

Conservatives have been all mixed up; being inflexible about nonessentials; and flexible on the essentials.

Greatness in a person is not necessarily in lofty decisions or necessarily things that stand out. Ike believed that he would be serving a nation and not himself. He afforded some peace for our nation for a few years.

Most of these papers emphasized Ike's personality, which means they missed the point. The assumption is a great personality makes a great person. This is why so many people miss what is great. Bob was a unanimously hated person. Being in Bob's class which was known as Thieme's hell.

We have the essentials of Bible doctrine; and the nonessentials of life.

Tragic Flaw #3: the assumption that a good personality means a great person; that greatness is found in personality.

Principle

1. While it is true that some people do have great personalities, it is not true that a great personality has greatness.
2. While flair may accompany greatness, flair in itself is not greatness, it is merely a personality trend. Patton had flair, but this was not his greatness.
3. What the average person fails to realize is the fact that personality often obscures the real person.
4. It is true that personality often reveals the person but it is also true that it can be a disguise as much as a manifestation. Personality can obfuscate the real person.
5. Having a great personality does not imply greatness. Errol Flynn had the most fantastic personality; but he was not a great person.
6. This does not downgrade personality but merely places personality in its proper perspective. Personality is merely what people see. No one can see inside of your soul. There are the many facets of the soul; but the personality may reveal or hide what is happening in your soul.
7. Personality, then, can be a manifestation or an obfuscation of the real person.
8. Furthermore, personality is the area for the function of hypocrisy, so that the personality in itself is not greatness. Personality may be used by the individual to set up system to gain his own ends.
9. A coward may have a pleasing personality but the coward is still a coward.
10. In reality good personality is a non-essential in life, and those who confuse good personality with greatness become inflexible in the non-essentials. Therefore they are divorced from what is real in life, they live in their own private dream world.

11. The essential is the function of the soul; the non-essential is the personality which covers the soul. Stonewall Jackson and George Washington are both known for displeasing personalities.
12. By analogy, the essential is the function of the human body. The non-essential is the clothes that cover the human body. Being flexible in the essential emphasizes the health of the body, while being flexible in the non-essentials is the variety of clothes which cover your healthy body or unhealthy body.
13. So the essential is the norms of the soul, the norms of the conscience of the soul. The non-essential is the personality which fronts for the soul.
14. The believer must be inflexible about Bible doctrine in his soul, but he must be flexible about the non-essentials of personality.

The essential is the norms of the soul; the nonessential is the personality.

Your right pastor does not have a particular personality. Every person in the clergy has his own personality and his own soul. The message is the essential; the man is the nonessential.

Protestantism is too often all about searching out the personality one is familiar with; and that is a nonessential.

Romans 14:22a You there [mature believer], the doctrine which you have, be having it to yourself in the sight of God.

Principle

1. Many of the freedoms of the mature believer cannot be publicly flaunted without distracting some weak believer from the primary issue which is Bible doctrine.
2. While your life as a mature believer is not the issue to any other mature believer who has the good sense to be occupied with Christ and not with you, your life style can easily become a distraction to the weak believer, to the one who does not have the same amount of doctrine in his soul as you possess.
3. To give #1 priority to doctrine in your life requires flexibility of application in the non-essentials. Many things that you do and know are right may be offensive to weak believers, and therefore in the presence of those weak believers you avoid these things in order that such a believer might not be distracted from doctrine.
4. This flexibility of application demands certain legitimate functions the life which distract the immature positive believer be set aside under the royal family honor code.
5. Not only is the strong/mature believer responsible for toleration non-essentials but he must be extremely flexible in the application of doctrine to these non-essentials. Remember that the mature believer's strength is the immature believer's weakness. The mature believer is strong because he has doctrine; and the weak believer is weak because he lacks Bible doctrine.

Romans 14:22 The faith that you have, keep to yourself before God. Blessed is the one not judging himself in what he approves. (BLB)

“Happy is he that condemneth not himself in the thing which he alloweth.” The nominative singular subject from the adjective makarios (μακάριος) [pronounced mahk-AHR-ee-oss]. Usually this word is found in the plural, and when it is it is translated “blessed,” though it means literally, “happinesses.” But here it is in the singular, the predicate masculine nominative singular from the definite article with it used as a demonstrative pronoun—“Happy.” Here is a person who is absolutely happy in any circumstance of life. Then the definite article, predicate nominative, translated “that one.” The immediate demonstrative here refers to the mature believer, relatively near in thought and in activity, who is strong. “Happy is that one,” emphasizing the fact that all mature believers have happiness, they share the happiness of God.

Next comes the present active participle of the verb krinô (κρίνω) [pronounced KREE-no] plus the negative mê (μή) [pronounced may]. So happiness here means to be not doing something. This is a tendencial present used for an action which generally does not occur, or is inclined not to occur with the negative. The active voice: the mature believer produces the action by not doing something. The circumstantial participle tells us he is happy by not condemning. Then the object of the participle, the accusative singular direct object from the reflexive pronoun heautou (ἑαυτοῦ) [pronounced heh-ow-TOO], used here for the third person pronoun but it is reflexive, it brings the action of the verb back to the person in a negative way, so he is happy about what he didn’t do. This is translated “himself.” Next is a prepositional phrase, en (ἐν) [pronounced en] plus the locative of the relative pronoun hos (ὅς) [pronounced hohç]—“in what.”

Plus the present active indicative of the verb dokimázō (δοκιμάζω) [pronounced dohk-ihm-AHD-zoh] which means to approve, to test for the purpose of approval, to decide and approve on examination, to accept as approved. Therefore it refers to the fact that doctrine resident in the soul is the means of testing and approving. The mature believer has in the conscience of his soul these norms and standards that are based on Bible doctrine. The present tense is retroactive progressive present, it denotes what has begun in the past [perception of doctrine] and continues into the present time with doctrine forming the norms and standards of the soul. Then the doctrinal conscience approves what he does so that he does not judge or condemn himself in what he does. The active voice: the mature believer with doctrine in his conscience produces the action of the verb. He does not condemn himself because while he was right he did not press it. The indicative mood indicates the fact that the verbal action is from the viewpoint of reality, there were believers in Rome who were doing this right.

The mature believer carefully executes his liberty. There are immature believers who observe this mature believer and they go off on the wrong track but misunderstanding his freedom.

Romans 14:22 You there [mature believer], the doctrine which you have, be having it to yourself in the sight of God. Happy is that one [mature believer] who does not condemn himself in what he approves.

There are different stages of mature believers. There are those in the R&R of supergrace A.

The conscience of the weak believer is next.

1977 Romans

Lesson #465

465 07/10/1978 Romans 14:23 Doctrine of the tragic flaw (review of #1–3), #4 arrogant subjectivity: problems vs. GAP; doubts

Bob was not comfortable with tape recorders which happened at the airplane hanger. After he threw them out, he allowed them maybe a year or two later. Bob does not want anyone distracted by tape recorders. No recording inside the auditorium. There is one woman, maybe Clarke Mitchell? who pursued this and finally got permission to tape some messages.

Doctrine of Tragic Flaw

Romans 7/10/78; 8/6/78; Revelation 329 1/25/83

A. Definition and Description.

1. Fifth century B.C. Athenian Greek drama used the term tragic flaw for the weakness of the main character. It referred to a weakness which led to the tragedy of the drama.
2. In doctrine, the term is used for the flaw in the character of the believer who thinks he is positive, but the flaw hinders him from learning doctrine. Whatever keeps you from the intake of doctrine is your tragic flaw.

B. The tragic flaw is based on failure to distinguish between essentials and non-essentials in life.

1. Essentials of the Christian life are related to Bible doctrine and its application. The non-essentials of life include all other subjects, concepts, ideas, and actions.
2. Reality in the Christian life is defined as being inflexible where the essentials are concerned and being flexible where the non-essentials are concerned. Lack of reality comes from being flexible in the essentials, and inflexible in the non-essentials of life.
3. Only perception of doctrine can sort out the essentials from the non-essentials and provide the true perspective.

C. Tragic Flaw #1: The Non-Essential Image.

1. By the time people have become physically mature, they have erected a system of emulation, an idol in their soul, an image they admire. This sets up false norms and standards in the soul.

2. This image is related to the norms and standards of conscience in such a way as to be their goal in life, and system of emulation. They seek to gain their norms and standards from this image in their soul.
3. This can be illustrated by the woman who creates an image by being stage struck. She emulates to the point of distraction from the realities of life. Or a male through arrogance creates an image of masculinity through some stupid and strong clod he admires. Steve Reeves is known for his muscles but he has a high girlish voice; his voice is always dubbed.
4. Being inflexible about such a non-essential image results in distortion in life. A kind, thoughtful man becomes insensitive and thoughtless by emulation of the image he worships in his soul.
5. By becoming inflexible in the non-essential image, arrogance begins to rule the life. The victim of arrogance divorces himself from reality. He abandons his own norms and standards of morality and establishment as he charges the windmills of inflexibility in non-essentials.
6. The male who creates a he-man image that he worships in his soul. This is being inflexible in the nonessential. We have a great number of Don Quixotis running about.

D. Tragic Flaw #2: The Arrogant Presumption Pattern.

1. This is an arrogance problem in areas where people are successful. Because of their success, they make erroneous conclusions that they are experts in fields in which they aren't even qualified to express an opinion. Illustration of the actor who thinks he/she is an expert in other fields.
2. They become arrogant over their success in one field, and their arrogance forces them into opinions about subjects they know nothing.
3. It is difficult for successful people to put themselves under discipline and learn doctrine.
4. The news media has contributed to this by interviewing people on subjects they know nothing about.
5. Winston Churchill was a genius in some fields, but he assumed genius in other areas. This did not impress Eisenhower.
6. Greatness in one category of life does not mean greatness in another area of life, and only arrogance presumes this unreality. This is why a general has a staff.

E. Tragic Flaw #3: The Assumption that a Good Personality Equals a Great Person.

1. The real person is in the soul. Personality may hide or reveal what is in the soul, but it is no index to anything. A good personality is not greatness. Flair may accompany greatness, but flair is not greatness.
2. Personality can disguise the real person.
3. Personality is not to be downgraded, just put into proper perspective. Personality is not an index of the soul. Good personality is a non-essential.
4. The essential is the function of the soul in honor and integrity. The essential is the thought content of the soul. The believer must be flexible about the non-essentials of personality and inflexible about doctrine in his soul.

5. This attitude toward what is essential and what is non-essential provides the person with a low-keyed personality, and the same opportunity in evaluation as the "good personality" type.

6. This applies to how you rate a pastor and his message. The message is the essential, not the personality. Many a pastor with a great personality never settles down and perseveres in studying.

F. Tragic Flaw #4: Arrogant Subjectivity in Overemphasis of Personal Problems when Listening to Bible Doctrine Being Taught.

1. If your problems are on your mind while listening to doctrine being taught, you won't hear anything; you'll just be trying to make the doctrine fit into your problems. You must have self-discipline to set your problems aside before listening to the teaching of the Word of God.

2. Bible doctrine is the essential of life, which demands perception and inflexibility in determining the reality in life. What Bible doctrine says is reality to you, 2Peter 1:20-21. Experience is wrong. Reality can only be determined by what is taught in the Word of God.

3. Personal problems are non-essentials, which demand the application of doctrine, and at the same time flexibility, regulation, and restraint when involved in the function of GAP.

a. You must restrain yourself, and not think about your problems when listening to the teaching of Bible doctrine. You don't learn doctrine when thinking about your problems.

b. If you think your problem is more important than anything else in life, you are inflexible about your personal problem, therefore disassociated from reality.

4. Personal problems must not be a distraction to objectivity when under Bible teaching.

a. You can't think about your problems and hear doctrine at the same time. Everyone has problems. You must be flexible with your personal problems.

b. You'll always have problems, so you have to be flexible. Use your self-discipline to check them at the door before entering Bible class.

c. Self-centeredness is training yourself to think only about your problems. You must learn when not to and when to think about your problems. The Holy Spirit provides the self-discipline.

5. Under the principle of self-discipline, the believer must be regulated by the filling of the Holy Spirit to approach doctrine with objectivity and concentration.

6. Authority orientation demands that Bible teaching overrule preoccupation with personal problems.

7. The filling of Holy Spirit restrains occupation with personal problems as a non-essential during Bible class.

a. Romans 12:3, "Stop thinking of self in terms of arrogance beyond what you ought to think..."

b. When you think of your problems during Bible class, you are an arrogant person and have distracted yourself. Subjectivity indicates negative volition. You need what is taught every night. It is a system of doctrine.

c. "But think in terms of sanity [objectivity] for the purpose of being rational without illusion." This means being inflexible in the essentials and flexible in the non-essentials.

8. In church, all personal problems become non-essentials. Personal problems are a distraction to your objectivity. You become an opportunist seeking to distort doctrine, so that you can rationalize and therefore remove your problem.

9. Concentration on personal problems is tantamount to inflexibility in non-essentials.

10. In fulfilling the function of GAP, the believer must understand the interpretation of a Scripture in terms of grammar, syntax, exegesis, isagogics and contextual application rather than personal application.

11. By failure to set aside your problems, you inject arrogance into the function of GAP and the result is subjectivity in your approach to the Word of God.

12. Inflexibility in the non-essentials divorces you from reality of what the passage is actually teaching, not what you would like it to teach.

13. Correct interpretation of doctrine is an essential. Subjective distortion of doctrine to justify self or to solve personal problems is a non-essential.

14. It becomes arrogant presumption and subjectivity to presume that every Scripture is related to your current personal problems.

15. Consequently, instead of objectivity in approaching doctrinal teaching for the purpose of receiving the correct interpretation, you subjectively distort what you hear to relate it to your immediate problems, so that your approach to teaching is subjective and you do not profit from the teaching.

16. This tragic flaw neutralizes your positive volition and hinders your spiritual advance. It produces both self-centeredness and sociopathic reversionism.

17. To be inflexible about the essentials and flexible about the non-essentials, the believer must comply with 2Corinthians 10:5. "Assaulting and demolishing cosmic thoughts and every obstacle of pride which attacks the objective knowledge of God. Even making a prisoner of every human viewpoint system of thought to the authority of Christ."

18. It is negative volition to not concentrate when doctrine is taught. You are saying that your problems are greater than God's ability, and that your problems are more important than Bible doctrine. You have set yourself above God, which is arrogance.

G. Psychological Recognitions of the Tragic Flaw.

1. A sociopath. The norms and standards of conscience are necessary for orientation to reality. The sociopath is devoid of true norms and standards of conscience. His often anti-social behavior becomes a tragic flaw in which reality is the illusion of his self-centered modus operandi.

2. The neurotic is distorted in his disorientation to reality. He fantasizes. He relates to reality, but always it is a relationship to interpersonal conflict, therefore not quite with the concept of reality. The emotional instability of the neurotic becomes his tragic flaw. He doesn't have the perseverance to stick with doctrine.
3. The psychotic. He is totally divorced from reality. He cannot tolerate the demands of his environment. The resultant stress becomes his tragic flaw.
4. Abnormal types see reality as a non-essential. Therefore, they are out of touch with it. Christians divorce themselves from reality by expecting God to instantly stop the problem. They want instant solutions. Therefore they are abnormal.
5. Abnormal Christians do not see the problems of life as being just as much a part of life as the blessing of life. They want everything done their way. They are self-centered.
6. There are two kinds of abnormal Christians.
 - a. Those who although divorced from reality can carry on with their jobs.
 - b. Those who cannot.

Romans 14:23 But the one doubting has been condemned if he eats, because it is not of faith; and anything that is not of faith is sin. (BLB)

Verse 23 – the conscience of the weak believer, or lack of doctrine weakens the conscience with a guilt complex. “And he that doubteth is damned if he eat.” This is the weak believer. The postpositive conjunctive particle de is used to connect clauses where a contrast exists. We have the strong believer who is happy; we have the weak believer who is not happy. This is translated “But.” Then the present middle participle of diakrinō (διακρίνω) [pronounced dee-ak-REE-no]. krinō (κρίνω) [pronounced KREE-no] was used in the previous verse for the strong believer. Now, instead of krinō (κρίνω) [pronounced KREE-no] we have diakrinō (διακρίνω) [pronounced dee-ak-REE-no] which means to separate, to differentiate, to make a distinction; but in the mi take issue with self, to doubt, to waver.

The definite article is used as a personal pronoun, and we translate “But he who doubts.” The customary present tense denotes what habitually occurs when the weak believer violates his own personal food/beverage taboos and seeks to emulate the strong believer. In other words, he sees the strong believer whom he admires. He doesn't have the norms and standards yet, and so when the strong believer says, Let's go out and drink some beer, the weak believer says, Why sure! But all of his life he has heard that it is a taboo. He has even walked out of eating places where they served alcoholic beverage and he has a norm in his conscience that says alcohol will never touch his lips. But out he goes with the strong believer to drink some beer and gets drunk. He should have said no, which would have been the correct answer. The strong believer understands that a little alcohol is all right. But while the weak believer is drinking, the norm he has in his soul is sounding an alarm. This is a miserable person! He is doing something contrary to his own norms. The fact of his norms being wrong or right isn't even the issue. He hasn't heard what the Bible teaches about drinking. The customary present denotes what habitually occurs when the weak believer violates his own personal taboos. The middle voice is a direct middle which refers the results of the action directly to the weak believer with reflexive force. He is miserable all the time he is drinking because he is doing something contrary to his own standards. This is a circumstantial participle to set up the principle. Doubting merely expresses the function of a norm or standard in his conscience. The strong believer knows better than to do something like that. So when he is out with the weak believer he orders a non-alcoholic drink because of the weak believer. When the norms and standards of the soul of the weak believer are violated out comes operation guilt complex. The doubt results from lack of doctrine in the soul and resultant human viewpoint norms of conscience can't handle it, and guilt complex is one of the worst sins. It means you can't get rid of your problems, they become an obsession to you.

“is damned” is perfect passive indicative of katakρίνω (κατακρίνω) [pronounced kaht-ak-REE-noh], meaning to condemn. The perfect tense is the intensive perfect, the perfect of existing state. When special attention is directed to the results of the action emphasis on the existing state is intensified. The intensive perfect is a stronger way of saying that a thing is. The passive voice: the weak believer receives the action of the verb, condemning himself. His conscience begins to sound alarms. He is devoid of doctrine by which to handle the situation; he has no way of handling it, therefore he carries this monstrous guilt complex. The indicative mood is declarative representing the verbal action from the viewpoint of reality; “if he eat” – the conditional conjunction εάν (ἐάν) [pronounced eh-AHN] introduces the protasis of a 3rd class condition, indicating the fact that he doesn't have to eat/drink. It violates his norms and standards, he is free to say no. The 3rd class condition is setting up a possibility.

Then the aorist active subjunctive from the verb ἐσθίω (ἐσθίω) [pronounced es-THÉE-oh], which, when alone, stands for both eating and drinking that which is forbidden. This is a constative aorist and it contemplates the action of the verb in its entirety. The active voice: the weak believer produces the action of the verb by emulating a strong believer in violation of his own personal norms. The subjunctive mood is potential, used with εάν (ἐάν) [pronounced eh-AHN] to indicate he may or may not so this, he has a choice. An interesting sort of aorist tense here. Time relationship only with the indicative, which is past time. Aorist simply indicates that an action has been attained, but not necessarily completed?

“because he eateth not of faith” – this is a case of ellipsis in which the idea is not fully expressed grammatically. Ὅτι (ὅτι) [pronounced HOH-tee] should be translated “because.” Next is the negative οὐκ (οὐκ) [pronounced ook] demanding the indicative mood which clarifies what is omitted in the Attic ellipsis—“because if he does not eat.” Then ἐκ (ἐκ) [pronounced ehk] plus the ablative of means from πίστις (πίστις) [pronounced PIHS-tihs]—“by means of doctrine.” This is the problem. Doctrine must be the origin or the source of all norms and standards of the conscience.

Romans 14:23a But he [weak believer] who doubts is condemned [by his weak conscience] if he eats [contrary to his taboo], because he does not eat by means of doctrine.

Principle

1. Doctrine resident in the soul through the function of GAP is the only basis for establishing norms for the Christian life. Previous norms, before salvation, are not acceptable in the modus operandi of Christianity.
2. Instead, the weak believer here possesses norms and standards of conscience based upon his background.
3. To eat meat he must violate the pseudo-norms of his early environment and therefore the normal reaction is a guilt complex, a combination of both sin and evil in his life.
4. Principle: The royal family modus vivendi must be based on Bible doctrine resident in the soul. That means norms and standards in the conscience which form the norms and standards for the function of the law of liberty.

1977 Romans

Lesson #466

466 07/11/1978 Romans 14:23b Romans 15 intro Violation of conscience producing guilt reaction turns right into wrong; doctrine of the weak and strong believer (A–C)

Romans 14:23 But the one doubting has been condemned if he eats, because it is not of faith; and anything that is not of faith is sin. (BLB)

“for whatsoever is not of faith is sin” – the postpositive conjunctive particle de used here as a transitional particle without any contrast intended, translated “and.” The nominative neuter singular from the adjective pás (πάς) [pronounced pahs]—“everything.” Then the nominative neuter singular from the relative pronoun hos (ὃς) [pronounced hohç], plus the negative ouk (οὐκ) [pronounced ook] which demands the insertion of the present active indicative of esthiô (ἐσθίω) [pronounced es-THEE-oh]—“and everything which is not eaten.” This is followed by the prepositional phrase, ek (ἐκ) [pronounced ehk] plus pistis (πίστις) [pronounced PIHS-tihs]—“by means of doctrine.” With this is the explanatory use of the copular eimi (εἶμι) [pronounced eye-ME] which is a representation of something. Here is means the equivalent of. The customary present tense denotes what habitually occurs when the weak believer violates his own taboos. He has a guilt reaction. The active voice: the meat and the wine taboos are the ones that produces the action. The indicative mood is declarative for reality—“everything which is not eaten by means of doctrine is tantamount/equivalent to.” Then the predicate nominative singular from hamartia (ἁμαρτία, ας, ῆ) [pronounced hahm-ahr-TEE-ah], used here for personal sin.

Romans 14:23 But he [weak believer] who doubts is condemned [by his weak conscience] if he eats [contrary to his taboo], because he does not eat by means of doctrine. And everything which is not eaten by means of doctrine is equivalent to sin.

This does not imply that eating contrary to a taboo is a sin, but the result is a guilt complex, which is a very definite mental attitude sin.

The weak believer eats meat, which violates his religious standards, and he develops a guilt complex as a result. Guilt reaction is sin. False standards of legalism must be replaced with the true standards of Bible doctrine.

Principle

1. Christian freedom under grace must never precede or get ahead of doctrine in the soul which equates the action of the believer with the conscience of the believer.
2. Never permit your modus operandi to get ahead of your doctrinal norms. Always stay with your own norms and standards until doctrine replaces them.
3. Norms and standards of the conscience which are based on doctrinal inculcation must always be the basis for doing a right thing in a right way, and therefore avoiding mental attitude sins.
4. To do a right thing in a right way and avoid sinfulness requires that same maximum doctrine resident in the soul. Your norms and standards have to be changed so that you know exactly what you are doing.
5. The believer cannot live on the norms and standards of others. He must live on his own norms and standards, and therefore he must develop an accurate conscience. This requires the daily intake of doctrine.
6. The weak believer suffers from blind arrogance. He is evangelized into weakness by the weak, so that his weakness is intensified as he emulates weakness.
7. To avoid emulation of weakness intensifying weakness requires doctrine resident in the soul so that the believer's advance to maturity is accompanied by a total and complete overhaul of his conscience, and his norms and standards line of with the Word of God.
8. Therefore, the believer must function by means of doctrine and the royal family honor code so that legalism is not compounded into sinfulness.

Some girls go through a stage known as boy crazy; and are vulnerable to some of the boys at Berachah.

Romans 14:23 But he [weak believer] who doubts is condemned [by his weak conscience] if he eats [contrary to his taboo], because he does not eat by means of doctrine. And everything which is not eaten by means of doctrine is equivalent to sin.

The function of the royal family honor code.

Outline

Maturity function of the royal family honor code, verses 1-12

The three principles of momentum (Parenthesis), verses 13-16

The apostolic function of the royal family honor code, 17-33.

(Verses adjusted in the next lesson)

In chapters 13-15 the entire principle of doctrine is structurized around the weak and the strong believer. Notes for the Weak and Strong Believer is found here and there is also a doctrine of that as well (same points).

The Strong Believer

1. The strong believer is defined as one who through maximum doctrine resident in the soul has attained maturity adjustment to the justice of God.
2. Therefore the strong believer functions under the royal family honor code, rightly dividing the Word of Truth in such areas of personal and impersonal love, plus making the distinction between the essential and the non-essential.
3. The strong believer has received the initial increment of the 6th imputation of blessing in time, and he will continue to receive blessing from the justice of God until he reaches the point of dying grace.
4. Temporal blessings are parlayed into reward at the Judgment Seat of Christ, and the strong believer is sure of the fact that if God provided greater blessings at maturity, He will provide the easier blessings at the Judgment Seat of Christ.
5. The strong believer has maximum production. He advances to maturity through his priesthood, through the perception of doctrine by means of the function of GAP. He produces from his ambassadorship. We are not blessed for what we produce; we are blessed for our intake of Bible doctrine.
6. The strong believer is also known as the crisis personality, which is another way of saying that the mature believer is totally oriented to reality. There is no problem in life too great for the mature believer.
7. Since the mature believer has his priorities straight, and his priorities are related to Bible doctrine resident in the soul, he is inflexible with regard to the essentials and flexible with regard to the non-essentials.
8. It is flexibility regarding the non-essentials which provides such excellent orientation to life.
9. All high priorities are assigned to the essentials which to the believer include the perception of doctrine and the utilization of doctrine in the norms and standards of the conscience.

10. Therefore the crisis personality combines inflexibility regarding the essentials with flexibility with regard to the non-essentials.
11. The crisis personality, then, can cope with any disaster in life, personal or historical. The crisis personality does not follow any overt mold or pattern but possesses the inner dynamics of doctrine to meet every situation as it occurs in his circumstances.
12. Therefore the crisis personality is a synonym for the strong or mature believer, with emphasis on undeserved suffering.
13. The historical or personal crisis gives the strong believer the opportunity to apply doctrine to the reality of the situation, demonstrating the total adequacy of doctrine in his life, the total adequacy of divine provision for the believer in the devil's world.
14. The imputation of divine blessing to the strong believer includes undeserved suffering, which demonstrates the dynamics of Bible doctrine resident in his soul and labels the strong believer as the crisis personality.
15. The strong believer demonstrates the principle that if God doesn't promote you, you are not promoted.

Bob straightens out some new people in the congregation.

The Weak Believer

1. There are two categories of weak believer we will consider at this point: a) the ignorant believer who is positive toward doctrine; b) the ignorant believer who is negative toward doctrine.
2. The weak believer is defined as one who for several different reasons is ignorant of Bible doctrine, therefore is in the state of being spiritually weak.
3. Bible doctrine resident in the soul is the strength of the believer.
4. The weak believer is flexible regarding the essential and inflexible regarding the non-essentials.
5. For this reason, then, the weak believer is totally divorced from reality. He is a spiritual neurotic or psychotic.
6. The weak believer is either distorting grace into antinomianism or is zealously working for divine blessing, and therefore legalistic.
7. Because he is ignorant of doctrine the weak believer is arrogant, rejecting all authority. (Authority orientation is a part of adjustment to reality)
8. As an arrogant person divorced from reality the weak believer is frustrated by a saturation of mental attitude sins which motivate verbal sins—judging, maligning, gossiping, bearing grudges, revenge tactics.
9. The weak believer, then, is a sociopath having no doctrinal norms and standards in his soul. He is a law unto himself.
10. The weak believer is ignorant of the royal family honor code, therefore totally unaware of the imputation structure of the plan of God for his life.
11. The weak believer does not understand or utilize the provision of logistical grace. Logistical grace is designed for his advance to maturity and therefore the meaning and purpose of the Christian way of life are nebulous and abstruse. They have eluded him.

12. The positive toward doctrine weak believer, though, is tolerated through the strong believer's flexibility in the non-essentials. All believers start out as weak, and only as they learn doctrine do they gain momentum and advance to maturity and spiritual strength. Therefore all of us are tolerated by someone in the Christian community until we make that advance.
13. While toleration is the order of the day for the weak believer who is positive toward doctrine, separation is the divine order regarding the weak believer who is negative toward doctrine.
14. When the weak believer is negative toward doctrine and involved in reversionism he is constantly under divine discipline, and association with him invites disaster by association.
15. The weak believer has false norms and standards. He has a conscience distorted through rationalism and empiricism, or emotionalism.
16. The weak believer has erroneous concepts of Christian virtue. He places emphasis on superficialities—such as sincerity, human good, self-righteousness, socialism, the welfare state, pseudo-morality, asceticism, taboos, legalism.
17. Because the weak believer is ignorant of doctrine, therefore flexible regarding the essentials and inflexible regarding the non-essentials, he possesses very strong opinions which are completely erroneous.
18. In the weak believer lack of doctrine means erroneous application, therefore lack of common sense, lack of capacity for life, lack of orientation to reality, lack of authority orientation, lack of grace orientation.
19. The weak believer parlays human good into evil and rationalizes his modus operandi as the Christian way of life.
20. The weak believer can only gain strength by discrediting the strong believer. Therefore the weak believer constantly seeks to judge, malign, and vindictively criticize the strong believer. He resents the strong believer and therefore uses his false norms and standards and arrogance to attack the strong believer. The strong believer operates on impersonal love and doesn't try to defend himself, apologize, or explain himself. The weak believer continues to pour it on, in order to get a reaction from the strong believer. If the strong believer retaliates, he has accepted the weak norms and standards of the weak believer. This is the only way the weak believer can gain strength.
21. Such action only weakens the weak believer and subjects him to divine discipline for his presumptive assumption of divine authority. It is God's authority to judge, not human.

The Relative Concept of Nomenclature

1. The weak and strong are relative terms, they are based upon the amount of doctrine resident in the soul of the believer rather than lifestyle.
2. Nomenclature strong is not unconditional praise and approbation. While nomenclature weak is not unconditional reproach and condemnation.

3. Both strong and weak believer continue to possess in this life the old sin nature with the potentialities of sin, good and evil, which all emanate from the old sin nature.
4. Therefore the difference between the weak and strong believer is the difference between ignorance and cognizance of doctrine, plus the amount of time logged in the filling of the Holy Spirit. But it is not a difference in lifestyle.
5. Both strong and weak believer have their own peculiar occupational hazards and the principle that no one is perfect must be understood by all.
6. Pride is a subtle sin, as subtle as the originator of sin—Satan or Lucifer the son of the morning.
7. Therefore pride creeps into bed and seduces the sleeping, non-alert believer, whether weak or strong.
8. However that pride manifests itself in different ways regarding the weak and strong believer.
9. For the weak, pride is demonstrated in judging others, revenge tactics, maligning, gossiping, retaliation, expressing bitterness through retaliation.
10. For the strong believer, pride is demonstrated by intolerance of the weak believer.
11. The weak believer has the arrogance of ignorance while the strong believer has the pride of cognizance and achievement.
12. False standards are used with arrogance in the weak believer to turn him into a spiritual tyrant and bully, while true standards are linked with pride in the strong believer to vent sarcasm and intolerance toward the weak believer.
13. Both impersonal love and privacy of the priesthood in the honor code provide the necessary freedom and breathing-room for every believer to live his life as unto the Lord and to advance to maturity.
14. Freedom of opportunity is equality of opportunity, but freedom always results in the greatest inequalities. Various hyphenated Americans want equality, but they don't want equality, they want superiority. Some live by drawing a check from the government; and others work hard and do great things. Freedom always creates inequalities.
15. Freedom plus equality is a guarantee of inequality. There will be great inequalities in heaven.
16. Ignorance of doctrine makes one believer weak while cognizance of doctrine makes another believer strong. A part of spiritual maturity is developing norms and standards which are in agreement with divine norms and standards.
17. Normal spiritual growth through perception of doctrine involves variations of standards. By the time anyone attains spiritual maturity his norms and standards are the standards of doctrine.
18. The strong believer lives by the mature standards formed through doctrine resident in the soul; the weak believer lives by the background standards, including environmental standards, academic standards, and other categories of pre-Christian norms.
19. Christianity sanctions tolerance for immaturity and recognition that each stage of growth has its own standard for that stage. Therefore variation in standards is not only permissible for those stages of growth but necessary for advance to the next stage. The believer can only adopt the standard for his own stage of growth, he cannot adopt a standard for a higher stage of growth.

1977 Romans

Lesson #467

467 07/12/1978 Romans 15 Intro. Carter errors; doctrine of the weak and strong believer (D–G): variations and essentials; equality; love Bob gives a little pep talk at the beginning.

Still introducing Romans 15.

Chapter 15

The function of the royal family honor code provides for variation in standards at each stage of growth. The doctrine below was more abbreviated in this lesson; but it was apparently given at a later time, filling in some details.

The Royal Family Honor Code Function Provides for Variation in Standards at Each Stage of Growth

1. Around the principle "live and let live" are a series of encapsulating doctrines which give breathing space for each believer to advance to maturity: the laws of divine establishment, and the royal family honor code. These provide privacy so that the weaker believer can advance. God permits certain standards to exist at each stage of spiritual growth.
2. Such honor code principles as impersonal love, privacy of the priesthood, inflexibility regarding the essentials and flexibility regarding the non-essentials, all result in orientation to spiritual reality, Christian common sense, elimination of subjectivity and the inclusion of objective perception of doctrine within the framework of the body of Christ.
3. In other words, each believer must live his life as unto the Lord.
4. Each believer must live his life as unto the Lord. He is not required to meet the standards of a more advanced believer. He is responsible to meet God's standards for his stage of spiritual growth. This principle makes doctrine the true issue in life.
5. Therefore, only doctrine has the right to intrude on the privacy of another believer's priesthood. And doctrine must intrude, otherwise you will have false standards from start to finish.
6. In fact, doctrine must interfere with the privacy of the priesthood for your spiritual advance and growth in grace. Everyone grows because doctrine changes the norms and standards of their soul.
7. Variation of standards and differences of opinion, then, must be tolerated under the principle of impersonal love in the royal family honor code, as well as the privacy of the priesthood.

8. All positive believers must be tolerated and accepted into the fellowship of the body of Christ. Variation of standards and differences of opinion must be tolerated under the principle of impersonal love. This gives believers at different stages the same opportunity of advancing spiritually. Believers are going to be as different as people can be.
9. God does not reject or punish believers on the basis of non- essentials. Therefore, it is presumptuous to reject a believer whom God has accepted.

All the plan of God is based upon imputations and potentials which are set up as a result of the imputations. Every person is somewhere between X, Y or Z. There is a variation in spiritual growth; so a variation in standards.

The Difference Between Essential Doctrine and Non-essential Application

1. The honor code demands rigid adherence to the essentials of Bible doctrine.
2. Variation in application or differences in non-essentials does not permit or consent to variation in essential doctrines.
 - a. Personal love
 - b. Impersonal love
 - c. Categories of love.
3. Due to variation of growth different stages of ignorance do not change the absolute truth of Bible doctrine. Bible doctrine is true regardless of your stage of growth.
4. Therefore, about doctrine we must be dogmatic; about application of doctrine we must demonstrate elasticity rather than tenacity. We must be lubricated by the honor code rather than the abrasiveness of our personal arrogance.
5. Tolerance for the various stages of growth does not imply toleration of error in the essentials of doctrine.
6. The royal family honor code, then, binds the strong and weak believer together in their mutual advance together through Bible doctrine. It does this in such a way as to overshadow their differences of application at different stages of growth.
7. Noted from the previous chapter is the fact that two Christians can believe in the deity of Christ (an essential of doctrine), yet differ in their attitude toward non-essentials, such as food taboos and holy days.
8. Two Christians can believe in the doctrine of eternal security, which is an absolute, yet differ in their attitude toward non-essentials.
9. Two Christians can accept the doctrine of the baptism of the Spirit which unites them in the royal family of God, yet differ in their attitude toward the non-essentials.
10. Two Christians can subscribe to the eschatology of the pre-Tribulational Rapture, yet differ in their attitude toward the non-essentials.

Therefore the Difference Between Equality and Freedom

1. Every believer possesses under the honor code freedom. Freedom includes three factors from which it cannot be divorced, and which are a part of the freedom: privacy and property. So every believer possesses under the honor code the freedom and the privacy to advance to the objective under the plan of God—maturity adjustment to the justice of God through Bible doctrine resident in the soul.

2. Pipeline established between the righteousness of God and the justice of God which is imputed to us. This is encapsulated; and we cannot penetrate this pipeline by our works or by whatever we do.
3. Freedom guarantees that there is no equality among believers in either time or eternity.
4. All believers are given both freedom and time to advance to maturity.
5. However such freedom cannot manufacture equality or guarantee equality in the Christian life, or even human life. We are born equal only in the sense that we are all born spiritually dead and condemned from birth.
6. Some use freedom in time to reject doctrine, and some believers use freedom in time to learn doctrine.
7. God starts all believers on an equal basis at salvation by giving them 36 items.
8. But from the point of salvation and on inequalities exist through the use of freedom to accept or to reject Bible doctrine. Freedom guarantees inequality; and our Founding Fathers recognized this. This is why our Constitution demanded little government. We use our freedom to advance or to retrogress.
9. The result is the weak and strong believer.
10. Some believers are mature and some are immature. This is inequality.
11. Some believers are positive toward doctrine and some are negative. This is inequality. It results in inequality.
12. Some believers advance to super-grace and some retreat through reversionism. There is inequality.
13. Some believers have blessing of dying grace, and some the cursing of the sin unto death. This is inequality. Everyone who has lived has experienced death. The Word of God guarantees that we will all die.
14. Some believers are blessed in time and some are disciplined. This is inequality based on freedom.
15. Some believers are rewarded at the judgment seat of Christ and some have none. This is inequality.
16. Equality is a myth; freedom is a reality.
17. Freedom does not guarantee equality.
18. Equality is a device of the arrogant; freedom is the motivation of the grace-oriented.
19. Forced equality is the policy of Satan; grace freedom is the policy of God; and the two are in conflict for the rest of your life.
20. Equality is the epitome of evil when demanded; freedom is the vehicle of grace.
21. Freedom is dogmatic and inflexible regarding the essentials of doctrine, and at the same time freedom is flexible and pliable regarding the non-essentials of life. Therefore freedom is both common sense and orientation to reality. But freedom must have content of thought and that content of thought is Bible doctrine, the mind of Christ.

Parents kept trying to get everyone play. Bob said, "The best ones, the ones who work the hardest will play. Bob is going to train them for life." He used to meet them behind the glass. Bob used to teach baseball categorically.

Therefore Impersonal Love Is the Application of Freedom

1. Impersonal love emphasizes the subject rather than the object of love.
2. Impersonal love observes establishment principles as well as the Christian honor code principles in recognizing freedom, privacy, property, the umbrella of authority, imputed righteousness, and even recognizes the non-essential opinions of the weak believer.
3. Impersonal love does not lower one's standards to those who are antagonistic.
4. When you are the victim of gossip, maligning, judging, the victim of a grudge or retaliation or revenge, you do not reciprocate under the principle of impersonal love.
5. To retaliate or to reciprocate by emulation is to lower yourself to the standards of your antagonists, the standards of the weak believer.
6. Every time the believer holds a grudge, retaliates, seeks revenge, expresses hatred and reprisal or retorts, that believer has abandoned the principle of impersonal love.
7. Impersonal love gives breathing space for the function of freedom.
8. All of these principles are a prerequisite to understanding the function, the modus operandi of the royal family honor code.

Lesson #468

468 07/13/1978 Romans 15:1a General Fredendall, errors in Tunisia; responsibility of the strong believer under the royal family honor code; flexibility

An odd general with odd orders. I checked more carefully about 20 minutes into this lesson. Rommel beat our troops. It became apparent that Fredendall did everything wrong; and Ike relieved him from his duty. Bob thinks he should have been court marshalled; but he was given a promotion and brought back to the states.

Bob compares Fredendall to stupid fundies. You would be amazed as to what is happening with fundamentalists today. Smoking, drinking, our dress, our vocabulary; all of those things are nonessentials. But when it comes to Bible doctrine, the essential, they are very flexible. To them, love is being nice to jackasses.

The Example of Christ

Romans 15:1 Now we who are strong ought to bear the weaknesses of the weak and not to please ourselves. (BLB)

Verse 1 – the responsibility of the strong believer under the honor code. "We then that are strong." The postpositive conjunction de is used as a transitional particle. This is not setting up a contrast here as it usually is, it is a transitional going from a terrible road block which is destroying the image and dynamics of the ambassadorship for Christ in fundamentalist Christianity. We go from the roadblock to clearing it to developing dynamics, therefore the transitional particle is translated “now”. Then the nominative plural subject of the personal pronoun ἐγώ (ἐγώ) [pronounced ehg-OH]—“we.” God has seen fit to use people who are believers. This refers to the believer as a priest who must advance to maturity under the plan of God, and as an ambassador for Christ who must produce as an ambassador. Advance under the priesthood, produce under the ambassadorship is the standing order. If this function is going to become operational advance to maturity under the priesthood and production under ambassadorship then there must be the clearing out of the roadblock, a roadblock made up of weak believers.

Then comes the nominative masculine plural from the adjective δυνατός (δυνατός) [pronounced doo-nat-OSS], the “strong”—“Now we the strong.” Note that the writer considers himself strong, and that is not arrogance, it is a correct estimate of the situation. A believer who has maximum doctrine and is an advanced believer knows it. And he doesn’t know it in terms or in the framework of arrogance, looking down his nose at anyone, he looks at it from the standpoint that he has attained enough doctrine to be very strong in life. He recognizes it from his own life because he has a mirror in the world of God which says: he has essential doctrine, yes; non-essentials: flexible, yes. There is also the generic use of the definite article to indicate the category of the mature believer—“the strong,” and the generic use here means, once again, that self-consciousness is not arrogance. The self-consciousness of the mature believer is aware of the fact that he is strong, that he is a mature believer. It is a true, correct evaluation of his own life in the light of the Word of God which he understands. There is a principle here: The more you advance in the Christian life the greater becomes your responsibility to other believers.

“ought to bear the infirmities of the weak” – present active indicative of οφείλω/οφειλέω (ὀφείλω/ὀφειλέω) [pronounced of-ī-low, of-ī-LEH-oh] means to owe, to be indebted, to discharge an obligation, to be obligated. With an infinitive following it means to be obligated, and this is the meaning here. This is an obligation under the royal family honor code. The customary present tense denotes what habitually occurs. The mature believer under the royal family honor code is obligated to the weak believer, and this obligation is his part on the honor code. It is something that belongs to those who are mature; it is not the responsibility of all believers; this is a specialized order. He is obligated to the weak or immature believer who is positive toward doctrine. He does not have an obligation toward the weak believer who is negative toward doctrine; he must separate from him. The active voice: the strong believer only produces the action. The indicative mood is declarative for the reality of the honor code and the reality of the mature believer functioning under the honor code; and functioning in such a way that he takes responsibility for weak believers in his periphery. In other words, the royal family honor code demands much more of the mature believer than the weak believer. And this responsibility cannot be fulfilled unless you have strength in flexibility. Now the more flexible you become, the more people are going to misunderstand you, the more people are prone to judge you, the more people are prone to underestimate you. They are going to think of you in terms of being weak because you are flexible, because you are nice, because you are thoughtful. When you begin to develop flexibility in life, and strength through flexibility, you are moving into the area of reality. At last you are able to cope and face reality. People who are not flexible are people who become psychotic, neurotic, sociopathic, other types of weirdos. Inflexibility cracks up under pressure. The active voice: the strong believer produces the action of the verb. When you have a command given in the indicative mood with the active voice it becomes passive. That is why it is translated, “Now we the strong are obligated” – passive. Why not use an imperative? Because there aren’t too many strong in any generation to whom this command can be given so that there will be an enlarged pivot and more strong. The honor code demands more of the mature believer than the weak believer, and obligation under the honor code increases as the believer advances toward spiritual maturity. Much more is expected of the mature believer than the weak believer, quite obviously.

Christianity is known for being inflexible in the nonessentials. This is what happened to the Roman church.

Liberalism is being flexible about the essentials. “What’s wrong with a couple of fags who want to get married?” Lincoln was a Constitution bender. The Constitution is an essential and he became very flexible about the Constitution.

1977 Romans

Lesson #469

469 07/14/1978 Romans 15:1b Obligation of the mature believer; tolerance; doctrine of the royal family honor code (pt.1–11)

The Example of Christ

Romans 15:1 Now we who are strong ought to bear the weaknesses of the weak and not to please ourselves. (BLB)

Next comes the present active infinitive of the verb bastazô (βαστάζω) [pronounced bas-TAD-zoh], which means to take up, to carry, to bear. We translate, “are obligated to keep on bearing.” The retroactive progressive present tense denotes what has happened in the past and continues into the present time. The active voice: the mature believer under the royal family honor code produces the action of the verb. The infinitive is the infinitive of purpose. The infinitive may be used to express the aim or the action which is denoted by the finite verb preceding it.

Then the accusative plural direct object from the noun asthénēma (ἀσθένημα) [pronounced as-THEN-ay-mah] which means “weaknesses.” This refers to the weaknesses of the weak believer who is positive toward doctrine. The spiritual weakness of the believer is always because of lack of Bible doctrine in the soul. He is weak, not because he wants to be weak, but simply because he does not have the equipment to be strong, for strength in the spiritual life is measured in terms of doctrine resident in the soul. With this is the generic use of the definite article, also in the accusative plural. It represents the weak believer as a category, a classification or a group, and it distinguishes between the two basic concepts of a weak believer. There is the weak believer who is positive toward doctrine and the weak believer who is negative toward doctrine. Both suffer from the same problem—ignorance of doctrine. The positive believer will eventually rectify that; the negative believer will go into reversionism and the sin unto death. In this particular passage we are dealing with the weak believer who is positive toward doctrine. The mature believer has a much greater responsibility in the Christian life than the weak believer. We are to separate from the immature believer who is negative toward doctrine.

This is followed by a descriptive genitive plural from the adjective adunatos (ἀδύνατος) [pronounced ad-OO-nat-oss]. This is the adjective which tells us that we are dealing with a positive believer who is still ignorant of doctrine. The word means impotent, impossible, weak or powerless.

Romans 15:1a Now we, the strong [mature believer], are obligated to keep bearing the weaknesses of the weak,...

Principle

1. The royal family honor code assigns additional duties to the strong or mature believer.
2. Part of this obligation is described here as bearing the weaknesses of the weak. This is the maximum utilization of impersonal love and total toleration, flexibility, in the areas of the non-essentials. Only the strong believer has a total grasp of the non-essentials.
3. Maximum function of impersonal love fulfils this mature believer's honor code duty to the weak believer. It fulfils it because the mature believer operates on his own norms and standards of doctrine. The mature believer through doctrine develops a sensitivity toward the feelings of others. He becomes very aware of others; and he learns to be considerate of other people. The mature believer simply takes responsibility of the weak believers in his periphery.

“and not to please ourselves” – the connective use of the conjunction kai followed by the negative mê (μή) [pronounced may], used with the present active infinitive of aréskō (ἀρέσκω) [pronounced ar-EHS-koh], which sometimes means to please, to strive to please, or to accommodate. Since the positive side of this passage is going to come a little later under the concept of pleasing God the negative side, obviously means that God is pleased sometimes when we are not pleasing ourselves. Not pleasing ourselves is a mature modus operandi only. It is the modus operandi of being so aware of the problems and the difficulties and the heart-aches and areas of sensitivity of those around you that you are flexible enough not to offend them, and therefore to make an issue out of doctrine. This can be translated, “and not to accommodate ourselves.” The pictorial present tense denotes what happens negatively when the mature believer fulfils the honor code in this area. The active voice: the mature believer in fulfilling the principle of impersonal love toward the weak fulfils a negative purpose. Then the dative plural of advantage from the reflexive pronoun heautoû (ἑαυτοῦ) [pronounced heh-ow-TOO]. This places emphasis on the norms and standards of the subject which is the strong believer.

Romans 15:1 Now we, the strong [mature believer], are obligated to keep bearing the weaknesses of the weak, and to accommodate ourselves.

Personality can be a disguise of great arrogance. We learn not to accommodate ourselves.

Principle

1. Obligation and responsibility under the honor code increases with advance to maturity. Some men never mature because they have no obligation or responsibility; and some women live in a dream world, having no obligation or responsibility.
2. There is a much higher standard for the strong believer than the weak believer, which brings up a very important doctrinal principle: There are definitely different standards in the Christian life. There is the standard for the spiritual baby, the standard for the adolescent, the standard for the person approaching maturity, the standards as you crack the maturity barrier. There is a standard which God approves for each stage. The immature believer may have 10% divine viewpoint; and 90% viewpoint which they bring in from their previous life. When we deal with babies, we accept different standards. When you speak baby talk to a baby, you are recognizing that they are not the same as you. God has accepted the immature believer; so how are you greater than God? You simply accept them with their weird standards. Example of someone who attended Berachah with a beard and someone accosted him for having long hair and a beard. You do not have the right to accost anyway who do not come up to your standards. God has not made you the monitor. You are not calling strikes and balls. You don't have to like them; you must love them (impersonal love).
3. The royal family honor code assigns additional duty to the strong believer.
4. Bearing the weaknesses of the weak is maximum utilization of impersonal love and both toleration and flexibility in the areas of the non-essentials.
5. It is maximum function of impersonal love which fulfils the strong believer's honor code duty and responsibility to the weak believer.
6. Do not accommodate yourself to the weak believer who is reversionistic. On the other hand, by not accommodating ourselves to the weak positive believer the emphasis is placed on the norms and standards of that person. We lower ourselves; we lose every time we fail to accommodate ourselves to the weak believer and tolerate his standards which are erroneous.
7. Impersonal love always emphasizes the norms and standards of the subject and assigns no merit to the object.
8. To the mature believer it is quite a burden to see and hear the weak believer babbling nonsense based on ignorance of doctrine. The weak believer is weak because he has minimum doctrine combined with maximum arrogance to formulate inconsequential opinions about superficialities in life.
9. Therefore the strong/mature believer must carry a heavy burden by tolerating the silly, the inconsequential, without refuting of the non-essentials.

10. Through perception of Bible doctrine the weak believer will become strong and the doctrine resident in his soul will not only change his norms and standards but at the same time will provide enough poise, enough common sense, enough sense of humour, to laugh at his former norms. Doctrine must change the conscience. You are no one else's conscience; you are not to form their norms and standards; doctrine must change the conscience.
11. Furthermore he will see the humour of the inflexibilities with regard to non-essentials. You begin to grow up when you are able to laugh at yourself.
12. How is all this accomplished? Avoidance of argumentation, avoidance of refutation or retaliation. In other words, the strong believer must bear the weaknesses of the weak believer in order that doctrine might be the true issue, and therefore the weak believer can advance to maturity. While flexibility may appear as a weakness to the weak it is the strength of the strong to be flexible in the field of non-essentials. The honor and integrity of the strong believer contributes the spiritual growth and advance of the weak believer who is positive toward doctrine.

Point 11 here is the new thing:

Review of the Royal Family Honor Code (1978).

1. The greatness of aristocracy was the standards that made them great in the first place. Right thinking is right standards resident in the soul. Doctrine is converted into the norms and standards of the soul. The imputation of divine righteousness demands implementation of doctrinal standards. This doctrine provides the building material for the edification complex structure. The code for the aristocracy is the royal family honor code.
2. Freedom is related to privacy and property. The umbrella is authority. Attacks upon authority are attacks upon freedom. If you want a redistribution of wealth, you are a fascist. Freedom must be maintained. This leads us into the privacy of the royal priesthood. We think of privacy is isolation; but we should be able to have privacy even in a public place. The laws of divine establishment guarantee privacy for the royal priest. Spiritual freedom is the issue. Authority is the umbrella; privacy and property are the essentials of freedom. Every believer at the moment of salvation has privacy. He has privacy and is able to advance to maturity. He is also a royal ambassador. Production must be related to a believer's spiritual growth. The believer has the right to assemble without his personal life or mode of dress being an issue of any sort. We have the right to assemble in Berachah without your life being made an issue. A pastor would make members of his church to quit their jobs if those jobs were associated with alcohol in any way.
3. The royal family honor code commands loving the brothers. This is impersonal love. They cannot be obeyed until a person understands personal love and impersonal love; and essentials and nonessentials. Loving the brethren begins with the attributes of God.
4. The honor code recognizes the common objective of every believer in time, the advance to maturity.

5. The honor code builds integrity, but does not excludes morality.
6. The honor code excludes Christian production as a means of blessing.
7. Total dependance upon the integrity of God is called hope.
8. Therefore, the honor code is related to the divine imputation as related to hope.
9. A summary of the honor code.
10. The royal family honor code demands more of the strong or mature believer than it does of the weak believer. This comes out of Romans 15:1–4
11. the thrust of the honor code demands authority-orientation for continued momentum in the Christian life.
 - a. No one advances apart from authority-orientation.
 - b. Christian freedom is not an isolated entity; there are interrelate concepts forming a single principles.
 - c. Freedom, privacy, property and the umbrella of authority. These all stand together.
 - d. Divine authority is contained in the Bible.
 - e. The divine authority delegates human authority to reside in the pastor of the local church.
 - f. This is related to the spiritual gift of the pastor along with preparation and professional function.
 - g. Therefore, the pastor's personality is not an issue in this function of Bible teaching.
 - h. Do not let preoccupation with the pastor's feet of clay hinder your clear vision of the towering statue, the importance of perception of Bible doctrine
 - i. The height and scale of this statue are unrivaled. .
 - j. God has provided am umbrella of spiritual authority. Human authority hold over the mechanics of gap.
 - k. The honor code demands academic discipline and respect for authority in perception of doctrine.
 - l. Therefore, you cannot talk, make unecessary disturbance during the teaching of Bible doctrine. Or distract others.
 - m. The honor code recognizes that the freedom in which we stand in Galatians 5:1 cannot be divorced from privacy, property and authority.
 - n. The royal family honor code demands authority-orientation in the advance to maturity.

1977 Romans

Lesson #470

470 07/16/1978 Romans 15:2 USSR vs. U.S., Adm. Zumwalt; principle of sensitivity under the royal family honor code; impersonal love & capacity

Bob poses the question, what if the president interrupted your program and said to remain home for the next few days, and that Russian soldiers were going to be stationed in the United States.

The Russians are going into Vietnam now. Soviets could overwhelm us in a nuclear exchange today. The SALT agreement will mark the 3rd stage in our giving up to Russia.

We are trying to set up a parity agreement with the Soviets so that we would be equal; but this simply allows them to speed up their program to defeat the United States.

Zumwalt says that Carter is not aware of what is happening with regards to Russia, the United States and our nuclear weapons.

Carter is surrounded by Marxists advisors; to set us up to surrender to Russia without a shot. Everything that we have done for the Russians has aided their military. We are in trouble today; and there could be changes which turn your world upside down. The only thing that will bail us out is spiritual advance.

We have elected terrible people into office because we cannot distinguish between personality and character.

Romans 15:2 Let each of us please the neighbor unto the good, for edification. (BLB)

Verse 2 – the principle of sensitivity under the honor code, the ability to correctly estimate the feelings and the life of someone else. It is possible to be aware of someone else's existence without ever intruding on their privacy. The adjective hekastos (ἕκαστος) [pronounced HEHK-as-toss] begins the verse, it recognizes that every Christian is an individual, and as an individual has a soul, and as a person with a soul has areas of strength and areas of weakness, has areas of sensitivity and areas of insensitivity. This is an adjective but it is used here as a substantive in the nominative masculine singular in order to become the subject. It should be translated "Each one." God regards us as "Each one." With this is the descriptive genitive plural from the personal pronoun egó (ἐγώ) [pronounced ehg-OH], translated "of us." It indicates that there are other people in the body of Christ with you and that these people are just as human as you are human, and while they may have unpleasing personalities and may be very irritating to you, nevertheless they are members of the royal family of God.

Then the verb, the present active imperative of aréskō (ἀρέσκω) [pronounced ar-EHS-koh] which means to strive to please, to accommodate. The verb implies a positive relationship between two factors, therefore expressing the action of trying to please. It doesn't mean to try to please by simply complimenting someone, to be pleasing in the sense of being a flatterer. It doesn't mean that you should try to build up everyone in your periphery by finding out something nice about them and saying it. That is superficial. The word means here to accommodate. "Let each one of us accommodate." The customary present tense is for what habitually occurs where a mature believer is thoughtful about other people. The active voice: the strong believer produces the action of the verb. This is the imperative of command.

Then the word from chapter 13, plêsion (πλησίον) [pronounced play-SEE-on], meaning someone in your periphery and is translated "neighbor." This is an adverb used as a substantive and here it simply means those with whom you have contact. It means to take the responsibility for weak people. Weak people need your strength, and your strength comes from impersonal love. With this is the dative singular indirect object from the definite article used as a personal pronoun—“his.”

“for good to edification” –the prepositional phrase heís, mia, hen (εἷς, μία, ἓν) [pronounced hice, Mee-ah, ehn] plus the accusative singular of agathos (ἀγαθός) [pronounced ag-ath-OSS], plus the definite article to denote the concept of a separate category: “for the purpose of the good.” What is the good? Momentum in the plan of God. $X + Y + Z =$ the plan of God.

V. 2 is reaching [Y].

The second prepositional phrase is prós (πρός) [pronounced pross] plus the accusative of oikodom (οἰκοδομή) [pronounced oy-kod-om-AY], used for the edification complex which is completed when the believer is attains maturity adjustment to the justice of God. In other words, the completion of the ECS parallels arriving in the field of impersonal love. There is no definite article with oikodom (οἰκοδομή) [pronounced oy-kod-om-AY], making it anarthrous and emphasizing the high quality of the ECS.

Romans 15:2 Let each of us please the neighbor unto the good, for edification. (BLB)

Romans 15:2 Let each one of us accommodate his neighbor for the purpose of the good to the edification complex.

I assume this is the edification complex^[1]

1977 Romans

Lesson #471

471 07/16/1978 Romans 15 Thirty years after Guam D–Day; flexibility of Napoleon; prep school; doctrine of the edification complex

Argosy article about D-Day 30 years later. A really good story of his experiences, his loss of vision in war. Island of Guam will celebrate 30 years of freedom.

Many lessons were learned by this story, including how undeserved suffering changes one priorities. This is our time of preparation of what will take place. Many of us will face great disasters in the future.

Napoleon was fantastically great because he was flexible in the nonessentials. You must be able to distinguish between a principle and the application of the doctrine.

Bob is intolerant of those who show up once and awhile. You need to get the doctrine, not the application. Bob looks into the empty faces and he can tell that they are not getting it. The thrust of this ministry is to get every lesson; and no lesson is to be omitted.

The doctrine given in Romans is not a match-up for those in NB1 or NB2. The floors do not match up at all.

IRC is the involuntary respiration center; and this is not good without oxygen (or Bible doctrine). This is not mentioned in the existing doctrines.

The residual air is a parallel to the residual doctrine that you take in.

The Edification Complex of the Soul

1. The doctrine is based upon certain verbs and their cognates found in the Bible, both in the Hebrew and the Greek. E.g. in the Hebrew we have banah which means to construct and edifice. Its counterpart in the Greek is oikonoméō (οἰκονομέω) [pronounced oy-kohn-ohm-EH-oh] which means to build or construct, to erect a structure. There are also some nouns that go with oikonoméō (οἰκονομέω) [pronounced oy-kohn-ohm-EH-oh] - Oikodomê (οἰκοδομή) [pronounced oy-kod-om-AY] which means the act of building or erecting a structure. It is quite common for the ECS. Then there is oikonomia (οἰκονομία) [pronounced oy-koh-nohm-EE-uh] which is the ECS, the result of erecting a structure. There is also oikonómos (οἰκονόμος) [pronounced oy-kohn-OHM-oss] which refers to the contractor or the builder or the function of construction.
2. GAP is the source of the ECS, Ephesians 4:12,13. In that passage we have all the ingredients for the ECS. The believer is a priest in the Church. As a believer priest he is to gather with others, this gives him his privacy. The message of the pastor-teacher is all that is important to the believers who hear him.
3. The believer's ECS provides both stability for the individual and preservation for the national entity. It is the only way a believer can be happy. Furthermore, the ECS count is the basis for determining the preservation of the national entity, Jeremiah 42:10.
4. The rapid construction of the ECS comes from a maximum use of faith patience under maximum pressure, James 1:2-4.
5. The structure of the EDIFICATION COMPLEX STRUCTURE.
 - a. First floor: grace orientation. It is impossible to begin an ECS unless the believer is grace oriented;
 - b. second floor: the mastery of the details of life, and capacity for these details;
 - c. the third floor: the relaxed mental attitude of the believer's soul. This is freedom from any habitual mental attitude sins because MA sins destroy any capacity for life;
 - d. the fourth floor: capacity for love. This is important because all capacity for love does not start with people, it starts with God. As you develop occupation with Christ, then the other capacities fall in line;
 - e. the fifth floor: +H, the door that opens the believer into the normal Christian life which is supergrace.
6. The biblical use of the word "edification." It is used in Ephesians 4:11,12, as the objective of the pastor-teacher. His responsibility is to so communicate doctrine that those who are positive will hear and grow up into the ECS. The soul was saved in order that the soul might have something special from God. The soul is saved so that it can be structured by God's plan, and this is where the ECS comes in. The second use of "edification" is found where a local church with a maximum number of believers having an ECS is a prosperous church. Acts 9:31. The third use of "edification," the objective of phase two is to erect the ECS, not to speak in tongues, 1 Cor. 14:3,4, 12, 26. Fourth, human knowledge has a tendency to pump up but the function of GAP in the sphere of love edifies, 1Corinthians 8:1.

7. There are two spirits involved in ECS. The first is God the Holy Spirit, the third person of the Trinity. He functions in the intake of doctrine by which the ECS is constructed, John 14:26; 16:12-14; 1John 2:27; 1` Cor. 2:9-16. The second "spirit" in the ECS principle is the human spirit. It is the target for doctrine by which material is made available for the construction of the ECS, Romans 8:16; 1 Cor. 2:12,13; Job 32:8. Only doctrine stored in the human spirit is construction material, Ephesians 4:23,24; Colossians 1:9,10; 1John 2:3.
8. As a starting point for motivation the humanity of Christ possessed an ECS during the incarnation, Luke 2:40, 52; John 1:14.
9. Biblical synonyms for the edification complex structure:
 - a. Light, Psalm 43:3; Psalm 119:130; Ephesians 5:8,9,13.
 - b. Glory is used for the ECS, Jeremiah 13:16; 1Corinthians 11:7.
 - c. The fullness of God, Ephesians 3:19
 - d. Imitators of God, Ephesians 5:1. However, Eph. 5:1 not only refers to the ECS but emphasizes it as the entrance into supergrace.
 - e. Christ at home in your hearts, Ephesians 3:17.
 - f. Christ formed in you, Galatians 4:19.
 - g. The new man, Ephesians 4:24.
 - h. The new, Colossians 3:10.
 - i. The perfect work, James 1:4.
 - j. Christ in you, 2 Cor. 13:5.
10. The supergrace life is the objective after the ECS. The ECS, therefore, is the entrance into the supergrace life. Once the top floor has been constructed there is a transition into supergrace. The top floor is God's happiness shared with the believer.

This is very close to the notes given in the series. This doctrine was reworked on many occasions.

Lesson #472

472 07/17/1978 Romans 15:3–4a Rafferty; importance of grammar; momentum and motivation; mechanics of Old Testament inspiration; perseverance

Rafferty writes an article about the illiteracy of the teachers. The mother took this note to the school board, and the teacher was suspended without pay. Teacher's union files suit against the school board. Does the NEA really want an illiterate teacher representing them? Only the NEA is unconcerned about its charlatans.

He recommends literacy tests for all teachers, saying it is more important than the recent literacy tests for students ready to graduate from college.

Children should receive grammar in the 3rd grade and be proficient by the 5th grade.

You need to understand the English language in order to understand Bible doctrine.

Bob ran down the full name of the young soldier from the other day; and he is a psychology professor today.

Romans 15:3 For even Christ did not please Himself, but as it has been written: "The reproaches of those reproaching You have fallen on Me." (BLB)

Verse 3 – the illustration of the mature believer functioning under responsibility. The more you progress in the Christian life the greater becomes your sense of responsibility to those in your periphery. Maturity means occupation with Christ so that becoming thoughtful of other people and making occasional sacrifices. And replacing the law of liberty with the appropriate laws is really not that much of a sacrifice, because you have the privilege and the honor of impersonal love which gives you such a fantastic capacity for life and such a capacity for personal love that there is no strain in this function.

"For even Christ pleased not himself" – the ascensive use of kai used with the postpositive conjunction gar, "For even." The subject in the nominative case is ho Christos (χριστός) [pronounced krees-TOHSS]—"the Christ." This is the generic use of the definite article to emphasize the uniqueness of Christ and to indicate the area in which sacrifice is made. Jesus Christ as God cannot make sacrifice; sovereignty cannot make any sacrifice.

Adam could have chosen Jesus in the garden rather than the woman outside the garden. Adam could have said, "Enjoy your time outside of the garden, dear; God will make me another better than you."

Adam's sin had the greatest repercussion of all sins.

Next is the negative ou (οὐ) [pronounced oo] and the aorist active indicative of the verb aréskō (ἀρέσκω) [pronounced ar-EHS-koh] which means to please or to accommodate, and with it the dative singular indirect object from the reflexive pronoun heautou (ἑαυτοῦ) [pronounced heh-ow-TOO]—"For even the Christ did not accommodate himself." The constative aorist tense gathers into one entirety the 33 years of the incarnation, the first advent of Christ. The active voice: Christ produced the action of the verb. The indicative mood is declarative representing the verbal action from the standpoint of reality. This phrase emphasizes the fact of our Lord's objectivity. Subjectivity and selfishness, living to please and accommodate self, is arrogant disorientation to personal existence, and our Lord was totally free from any form of sin, including the most subtle of all sins: the arrogance factor. Therefore the phrase emphasizes the fact that our Lord was not only totally objective but He was totally thoughtful of others. Christ lived on earth as the God-Man (1st Advent) to please God the Father, but at the same time to accommodate mankind.

“but, as it is written” – the adversative conjunction allá (ἀλλά) [pronounced ahl-LAH] means that we are about to get some information from another portion of the Word of God—“but,” to set up a contrast. The adverb kathôs (καθώς) [pronounced kath-OCE] indicates comparison with scripture used as a formula to document scripture. Then the perfect passive indicative of the verb graphô (γράφω) [pronounced GRAWF-oh]—“but as it stands written.” The perfect tense is the intensive perfect emphasizing an existing fact: the Old Testament Scripture. The passive voice: the Old Testament canon receives the action of the verb through the ministry of the Holy Spirit. The indicative mood is the reality of the existence of the Old Testament canon on a par with the New Testament as far as inspiration is concerned and the reality of a specific verse which is now quoted—Psalm 69:9 (...because zeal for Your house has consumed me, and the insults of those who insult You have fallen on me).

KJV: “The reproaches of them that reproached thee fell on me” – the nominative plural subject is oneidismós (ὀνειδισμός) [pronounced on-i-dis-MOSS]. It means insults, abuses, reproaches. Here reproaches refers to the sins of the Jews, including their blasphemous insults while He was hanging on the cross—“These blasphemous insults.” There is a definite article here used as a demonstrative pronoun to indicate a specific category of sin, namely the sin of blasphemy. This was what the religious Jews were saying to our Lord hanging on the cross. The articular present active participle of the verb oneidezô (ὀνειδέζω) [pronounced on-ī-DID-zoh] means to insult. The present tense is pictorial present, it presents to the mind a picture of the cross: how over the period of some six hours while our Lord was being crucified the Jewish people who were unbelievers, reversionistic, constantly offered blasphemy and insults to our Lord. The active voice: the negative Jews of our Lord’s incarnation produce the action. The participle is circumstantial.

With it is the accusative singular direct object from the personal pronoun su, referring to God the Father, author of the divine plan—“the blasphemous insults of those who insulted you.” They were insulting God the Father. Plus the aorist active indicative of the verb piptô (πίπτω) [pronounced PIHP-toh]. The constative aorist tense gathers up into one entirety the judicial imputation of all personal sins to Christ on the cross. This is piptô (πίπτω) [pronounced PIHP-toh] with the preposition in front of it, epi (ἐπί) [pronounced eh-PEE] = on, i.e. on Christ on the cross. The active voice: personal sins produce the action of the verb as the result of the judicial imputation at the cross. The indicative mood is declarative for the reality of the judicial imputation of all personal sins at the cross. With this is a prepositional phrase, epí (ἐπί) [pronounced eh-PEE] plus the accusative singular of the personal pronoun egó (ἐγώ) [pronounced ehg-OH]—“on me.” All sins in the history of the human race were imputed to one person only—Jesus Christ.

The judicial imputation of all the sins of mankind are poured out on Jesus.

Romans 15:3 For even the Christ did not accommodate Himself; but, as it stands written [Psalm 69:9], The blasphemous insults of those who insulted You [God the Father] fell on Me [Christ].

Paul explains exactly why he keeps going back to the Old Testament and quoting Scripture from there.

Romans 15:4 For whatever was written in the past was all written for our instruction, so that through endurance and through the encouragement of the Scriptures, we might have hope. (BLB)

Verse 4 – hope as the motivation for the honor code. Momentum plus motivation equals advance. “For whatsoever things were written aforetime” – a quotation from the Old Testament in the previous verse leads to the explanatory use of gar. We have to explain. Why does Paul constantly quote from the Old Testament? This is followed by the nominative neuter plural from the correlative particle hosos (ὅσος) [pronounced HOS-os], translated “as many things as.” The verb is the aorist passive indicative from prographō (γράφω) [pronounced GRAWF-oh] [graphō (γράφω) [pronounced GRAWF-oh] = to write; pro = before], referring to the Old Testament scriptures. “For as many things as has been written before.” The constative aorist gathers into one entirety the writing of Scripture—from Genesis to Malachi, it looks at the formation of the Old Testament canon as a succession of events written over a long period of time. The passive voice: the Old Testament canon received the action of the verb, it was written by human authors under the direction of God the Holy Spirit. The indicative mood is for the reality of the existence of the Old Testament canon of Scripture.

“were written for our learning” – the preposition eis (εἰς) [pronounced ICE] plus the accusative feminine singular from the pronoun hēmēteros (ἡμέτερος) [pronounced hay-MEHT-er-oss], meaning “our”—“for our.” Then the accusative singular of didaskalia (διδασκαλία) [pronounced dee-dask-ah-LEE-ah/did-as-kal-EE-ah], teaching, inculcation—“for our instruction.” The pronoun is possessive, instruction that belongs to us. Plus the aorist passive indicative of graphō (γράφω) [pronounced GRAWF-oh]—“were written.” This is a culminative aorist tense, it views the function of the writing of the Old Testament canon in its entirety, but it emphasizes the existing results, namely instruction in the field of doctrine. With the exception of Church Age doctrine we learn doctrine from the Old Testament. The passive voice: the Old Testament canon receives the action of the verb under the principle of verbal plenary inspiration. The indicative mood is declarative for the reality of the existence of the Old Testament canon. The culminative aorist views these things from the standpoint of the formation of the Old Testament but emphasizes the blessing we receive from studying it. Blessing is the result—perception.

Jeremiah and Isaiah had tremendous ministries; but not everything that they taught was preserved. Only the things which would be pertinent to future generations (for believers in the Age of Israel and Church Age).

The Old Testament did not wave the human intelligence. Many of the prophets recognized the inspiration of writings which came before them.

Bob covers the division of the books in the Old Testament. Lamentations was read on the anniversary of the fall (of Judæa?)

“that we through patience and comfort of the scriptures” – the conjunction hina (ἵνα) [pronounced HEE-na], used with the subjunctive mood to introduce the final clause which denotes purpose, aim, objective or goal. It is translated “in order that.” Then comes the way in which we all have to learn certain doctrines, dia plus the genitive singular from hupomonê (ὑπομονή) [pronounced hoop-ohm-ohn-AY]—“through perseverance.” You cannot advance to maturity without facing areas where you are not stimulated, you are not interested, you are not fascinated, you are persevering. Notice the order: comfort follows perseverance. Dia plus the genitive of hupomonê (ὑπομονή) [pronounced hoop-ohm-ohn-AY] means “through perseverance.”

Next comes the sequential kai indicating that one follows the other, then the preposition dia plus the genitive of paraklêsis (παράκλησις) [pronounced par-AK-lay-sis]. When it is your time to face disaster and catastrophe in life you will never succeed without perseverance. You will never be able to handle your problem because you went to sleep, you were bored, you didn’t persevere when you weren’t interested. You have to have perseverance to have comfort. It is not just the verse you need, it is the structure of doctrine in your soul so that you will stabilize in disaster; “from the scriptures.”

Lesson #473

473 07/18/1978 Romans 15:4b Korea: history, Presbyterian and indigenous missions; doctrine of hope (revised, pt.1–2)

The fact that you question the idea of talking in church shows stupidity on your part. It is a sign of arrogance and this is a sign that you are not listening. It is indicative that you are not authority oriented. Last night was a bad night. Bob is ready to go down and grab the ears of children who are not being controlled.

Dusty Rhodes apparently did not get someone to take his place behind the glass. Bob would love to come down and smash you to bits.

Korea has had centuries of deep hiddenness; and it was known for being a separate nation, called a hermit nation. In the northern part of Korea, there is great land for farming. In good years, they could provide enough food for everyone and export some as well.

The Koreans are midway between the Northern Chinese and the Japs. High death rate among children. Described by a doctor as not as much traditionalists as the Chinese and not as industrial as the Japanese. Up until WWII, scholarship was important in Korea and the literacy rate was higher there than in the United States.

A particular area became a battleground for about 1000 years. One influence would be driven out and then another would come on in.

End of 1800s, the Japs took over control of Korea. They defeated both the Chinese and later the Russians.

A missionary took an interest in the Korean people and he learned the language and sent the New Testament into them. Thousands of Koreans were saved. As a result, a few missionaries came into Korea. End of the 1800s.

Two missionaries went into Korea and they had phenomenal success. Australian Presbyterian church became interested; Canadian after that. After a few years, millions of people believed in the Lord Jesus Christ.

A person set up an indigenous missionary system. He did not encourage any Koreans to leave their jobs. He started the concept of personal witnessing. This started in Korea in 1890. He said, don't bring a bunch of Americans or Canadians in there. The natives must support their own pastors and they build up pastor teachers out of the natives. The buildings were to be native in style, at a price that they could afford. 70–85% Koreans were born again believers by 1915. Great set up for this missionary set up.

Home Bible classes developed into local churches. Then the Koreans began to send out missionaries to foreign countries. 1907 was probably the greatest year of revival. 700 believers started in one city and by the end of the year, 50,000 believers and 15 churches. A famous missionary was quite impressed. The guy's name is Goforth. Heavy discipleship. He was describing the royal family honor code. He did not call it that. The Koreans were more advanced than he was used to. They had a love for God's Word. 400,000 children enrolled in one church??

This was an indigenous movement. The honor code, Bible doctrine, and the indigenous concept were all key.

What tripped up most missionaries was separating the essentials from the nonessentials. They do not give a single dime of American money to these churches. Doctrine is the essential; giving is the nonessential. There is no such thing as tithing.

The lowest thing a pastor-teacher can do is beg for money.

About halfway through this chapter we are going to get into the missionaries.

Africa. The essential is to get the natives the gospel. That is important. Then they are to get Bible doctrine. Some of these people are nudes; and some have a harem of 25 wives. These are nonessentials. You don't try to put clothes on the natives or tell a man to get rid of all his wives except one. These people need doctrine. They do not need someone to put clothes on them. The issue is not western European culture. That is not what we are teaching. We will be studying what missions are supposed to be.

Romans 15:4 For whatever was written in the past was all written for our instruction, so that through endurance and through the encouragement of the Scriptures, we might have hope. (BLB)

Then the final phrase, the present active subjunctive of the verb echô (ἔχω) [pronounced EHKH-oh], to have, or to have and to hold. The perfective present tense denotes the continuation of existing results when the believer is positive toward doctrine and perseveres in his perception of doctrine, and comes to the place where he has enough doctrine to receive and derive comfort. Perseverance in the perception of doctrine results in having inner comfort to carry with you always, and when you need it, it is there. The active voice: the believer who perseveres in perception of doctrine produces the action of the verb. The subjunctive mood used with the conjunction hina (ἵνα) [pronounced HEE-na] denotes a purpose clause. Plus the accusative singular direct object from the noun elpís (ἐλπίς) [pronounced el-PIS]—“hope.”

A young man who recently lost his entire family up in Winnie. He is a prepared person. You never know when something is going to come out of the blue.

Romans 15:4 For as many doctrines as have been written before [Old Testament], for our instruction they were written, in order that through perseverance and comfort from the scriptures we might have hope.

Lesson #474

474 07/19/1978 Romans 15 Wagner's ring operas; tragic flaws in drama characters; hopelessness of all beings without Jesus Christ; doctrine of hope (3–8)

Bob is especially moved by Wagner, the Ring Operas. Orchestrations are almost unbelievable. Best use made of the French Horns and Kettle Drums. The greatness of the music; but there is also great tragedy and the tragic flaw. Bob describes how the opera begins. The three women guard the gold, and they call for this little misshapen dwarf to renounce love. He does. His payment is going to be his lovely sister (the goddess of beauty). Tricked into changing into a dragon; and into a toad, and the ring is taken from him. A relationship to Genesis 6. The message is, people want to be what they are not; everyone wants to be a hero; no one is satisfied with what they have. Every ring opera ends with there is no such thing as confidence in mankind; that there is no super race.

Bob never see a missionary who did not run down another missionary or have some goofy idea. The last half of this chapter is all about missionary activity.

These four verses are the answer to the tragic flaws of the Ring Operas. All of them have their own tragic flaws; and Wagner does the only thing he can do, he blows the whole thing up.

The movies which portray the destruction of the earth are anti-Christian and they are goofy.

4 categories of people in the Wagner operas. Votan (Zeus) the chief of the gods; they were merely supermen who had their own failings. He wanted everything for nothing. He is married to Thrika (Juno) and her problem is jealousy, just as power lust ruins Votan. Then there are the giants.

Security is a theme in the Wagner operas.

Two dwarves. Lots more about the Ring Operas.

The solution in the Ring Operas was to blow everything up.

Lesson #476

476 07/21/1978 Romans 15:5 Ring operas; perseverance in, comfort, and reciprocity through Bible doctrine; thinking

Ricard Wagner wrote the four ring operas over a period of 20 years. Some people are quite nice until you promote them beyond their ability, and they are no longer nice people.

Siegfried was not with a tragic flaw, so he could be promoted and he retained his personal integrity.

There is a point at which someone should not be promoted. We are trying to make women into men; into soldiers, into fire fighters, into CEOs.

We next look at the concept of mental attitude. No one has ever thought himself to death. Thinking is not an anti-Christian thing. Thinking doctrine is the greatest virtue in the plan of God. Common sense and any kind of thinking is rare today.

Romans 15:5 Now may the God of endurance and encouragement give you to be of the same mind with one another, according to Christ Jesus, (BLB)

Verse 5 – the function of mental attitude in the royal family honor code. “Now the God of patience and consolation” – the postpositive conjunctive particle de is used as a transitional conjunction and means “Now.” The subject is ho theos (θεός) [pronounced theh-OSS]—“the God.” Then the descriptive genitive singular from the noun hupomonê (ὑπομονή) [pronounced hoop-ohm-ohn-AY], used also in the previous verse and translated “perseverance.”

With it is the descriptive genitive singular from paraklêsis (παράκλησις) [pronounced par-AK-lay-sis], used also in the previous verse for comfort or encouragement—“Now the God of perseverance and comfort.” Perseverance and comfort, mentioned in the previous verse, are mentioned again because the true meaning of life, true capacity for life, true blessing in life, everything that is meaningful and great in life, inevitably must be related to these two words. In the previous verse perseverance and encouragement from the Scriptures is the basis for momentum; now the God of perseverance and hope is so mentioned. The God of perseverance and hope refers to God who in grace has provided the very means of advancing in His plan, glorifying Christ and receiving great blessing. But blessing does not come through our talent or anything that we can do. Perseverance is what God demands. It means to be listening to and learning doctrine even when you are not interested in the subject.

All of these doctrines are a part of our momentum. It is not just the few things that interest us. Therefore, you persevere.

Principle

1. God who is comfort and encouragement transmits these attributes to us through Bible doctrine.
2. Bible doctrine must be transferred from the page of the Word to our frontal lobes where perseverance and encouragement become the function of mental attitude. There will come a time when the only thing that keeps us going is a small bit of Bible doctrine in our brains. When you completely want to give up. When you want to fall into self-pity. One thought can pick you up and move you forward. That motivation moves us forward.
3. Inasmuch as perseverance, encouragement and motivation are human characteristics this phrase, then, becomes tantamount to anthropopathism. Now the God of perseverance and encouragement...

4. The anthropopathism is to provide royal family guidelines for the fulfilment of the plan of God. What is expected of the royal family? When it comes to perception of doctrine there is just one virtue: perseverance. Perseverance is a virtue because it gives the motivation to listen to passages where you are not particularly interested.
5. The servant is not greater than his master. We are not greater than the Lord, the God of the universe.
6. Therefore God is a God of perseverance and encouragement. Therefore He expects us to persevere in learning doctrine so that we might have encouragement and comfort from that same doctrine, once learned. You cannot have comfort and encouragement from doctrine you do not have in your soul.
7. Encouragement is the result of such perseverance in perception of doctrine. Encouragement and comfort become mental attitude motivation to keep on keeping on in learning Bible doctrine.

“grant you” – aorist active optative of the verb didōmi (δίδωμι) [pronounced dihd-OH-mee] which means to give. With the optative it means “may give.” So we have to change it a little and say, “Now may the God of perseverance and comfort give.” The aorist tense is a constative aorist, it contemplates the action of the verb in its entirety. It refers to an action extended over a period of time. The active voice: God produces the action of the verb through perception of doctrine. He works through doctrine. The optative mood is a voluntative optative, it expresses a wish for the future. The optative is the mood of possibility or strong contingency. It contains no definite anticipation of realization but presents the action as conceivable. Here the voluntative optative expresses Paul’s wish or desire for the royal family of God. The wish can only be fulfilled through maximum doctrine resident in the soul. With this is the dative plural indirect object from the personal pronoun, second person, su, referring to all members of the royal family. The dative of indirect object indicates the one in whose interest the act is performed.

“to be like-minded one toward another” – the present active infinitive from phroneō (φρονέω) [pronounced fron-EH-oh] means to think, to form thought, to hold an opinion, to sculpture thought, to set your mind on certain thoughts, to be a computer to select thoughts for the moment, to have thought, to have attitude. This is a customary present denoting what habitually occurs among believers who persevere in perception of Bible doctrine. The active voice: believers positive toward doctrine who persevere in learning doctrine are the ones who produce the action. The infinitive is the infinitive of intended result, where the result is indicated as fulfilling a deliberate aim. In other words, it blends purpose and result into one concept. The accusative neuter plural direct object is from the definite article, and the intensive pronoun is the attributive use of the intensive pronoun, autós (αὐτός) [pronounced ow-TOSS]. It means literally, the same things—“to be thinking the same things [same category of things].” The intensive pronoun emphasizes identity, which in this case is Bible doctrine, the divine viewpoint of life.

The prepositional phrase, en (ἐν) [pronounced en] plus the locative plural of the reciprocal pronoun, plus allêlôn (ἀλλήλων) [pronounced al-LAY-lohn]. When this pronoun is in the plural it is represented as affecting an interchange of action. The interchange of action should involve thought, for this is signified by the infinitive. The locative denotes presence, and therefore the translation: “in the presence of one another.”

Principle

1. Reciprocity must be based on thinking doctrine.
2. This means if you are going to think doctrine it means inflexibility regarding the essentials and flexibility regarding the non-essentials.
3. Thinking doctrine, the mind of Christ, means applying doctrine, which means the function of doctrine in the honor code in our human relationships.
4. Many people have eaten and drunk themselves to death but no one has ever thought himself to death.
5. Thinking is not anti-Christian. In fact, thinking doctrine is the motivation, the fulfilling, the momentum of the plan of God.

“according to Christ Jesus” – kata plus the accusative of Christos (χριστός) [pronounced krees-TOHSS] and Iêsous (Ἰησοῦς) [pronounced ee-ay-SOOCE].

Romans 15:5 Now may the God of endurance and encouragement give you to be of the same mind with one another, according to Christ Jesus, (BLB)

Romans 15:5 Now may the God of perseverance and encouragement give to you to be thinking the same category of things [Bible doctrine and resultant divine viewpoint] in the presence of one another, according to Christ Jesus.

Lesson #477

477 07/23/1978 Romans 15:6 Charles Wohlstetter re unqualified bureaucracy; unanimity of believers through the royal family honor code function

Wohlstetter gave comments about Gulliver. The ability to face reality is not one of the distinguishing characteristic of the electorate. They elected a dead person. We have a child-like belief that a new law will solve our problems. We are shifting from the rule of law to the rule of bureaucratic officials. We are in the hands of saints and saviors. It is like we are at the Mad Hatter’s tea party and I am ready to say, “Please pass the sugar.”

He is dealing with some of the same principles as we are studying. We are a nation who have become flexible about the essentials, and inflexible about the nonessentials.

What the Bible teaches about freedom is key. It is composed of privacy, property and the umbrella of authority. Tyranny is an attempt to take away property from others as a redistribution of wealth. There are a small number of people who can put together a business package.

Bob speaks to a smirking guy with a beard.

A review of the translation.

Romans 15:5 Now may the God of perseverance and encouragement give to you to be thinking the same category of things [Bible doctrine and resultant divine viewpoint] in the presence of one another, according to Christ Jesus.

Principle

1. Verse 5 requires unanimity of believers and the fact that we must have something with which to think—Bible doctrine. The new believer has a soul filled with old norms and standards. As he begins to advance, these standards are replaced by divine norms and standards. The mature believer sees the immature believer and he is very tolerant of the baby believer's standards. He does not try to straighten out the baby believer or the intermediate believer.
2. Even doctrinal perception is at different levels, resulting in different stages of spiritual growth among believers. The real issue is: Is the individual positive toward doctrine. Remember that attitude toward doctrine determines whether you are advancing or retreating in the Christian life.
3. Therefore the royal family honor code with its command to impersonal love, respect for the privacy of the other believer, distinguishing between the essentials and non-essentials, when to be flexible and when to be inflexible; this is the basis for proper freedom for every believer in his advance spiritually. There can be no advance unless in the family of the local church you are tolerated, your privacy is respected, you are loved on an impersonal basis, so that doctrine is an issue in your life.
4. The honorable and ethical function of the inculcated honor code gives each believer that breathing space to advance to maturity. This is the only way to glorify God in time. And therefore doctrine is essential, and therefore other believers must stay out of your way so that you can appreciate and enjoy and learn Bible doctrine.
5. Because of the various stages of growth we cannot think alike as believers, but we can think in terms of obedience to the honor code. Therefore, God has provided for each stage of growth. We do not think alike but we do have something in common: an honor code whereby we learn to respect each other's privacy, property, freedom, so that doctrine is always the issue in every stage of growth. The honor code principles must be ethics whereby duty to God becomes the obligation of every believer.
6. Allegiance to Christ Jesus and obligation to the honor code demands that we respect the rights of every believer priest during our sojourn on this earth.
7. No believer is authorized to think of himself as an isolated ambassador for Christ. He is a part of a royal priesthood which demands impersonal love, thoughtfulness, and even sensitivity to the feelings of others.
8. In other words, there is no believer who is an island. There is no believer who is a part of the vast mass of believers who is above or below or in between. He is simply a royal priest with privacy having the breathing room to live his life as unto the Lord, to gain momentum from his thinking, to advance to maturity, so that the Lord Jesus Christ can be glorified by his personal and royal priesthood.

9. No believer is a star with preferred treatment. Every believer is a member of the team, subject to team policy and team discipline. There is no such thing as a special case.
10. So the believer must learn to think in terms of others, rather than just himself. He must be aware of other people. He must not concern himself with the clothing or hair styling of those around him. You do not go up to a person like that and tell them what they should wear. No one should stick their nose into the privacy of another and tell them what to wear; or what job they should have.

Bob characterizes the Baptist church as a place where everyone shakes hands before the service and then after the service; and sometimes during the service (I have experienced this at a small Baptist church).

God gives us a policy but then also gives us the objective of that policy.

Romans 15:6 so that with one accord, with one mouth, you may glorify the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ. (BLB)

Verse 6 – one of the objectives with regard to honor code function. That ye may with one mind and one mouth glorify God” – the conjunction hina (ἵνα) [pronounced HEE-na] plus the subjunctive mood introduces a purpose clause; “In order that.” The adverb homothumadón (ὁμοθυμαδόν) [pronounced ho-moh-thu-mah-DON] [homou = together or in the same place; thumos (θυμός) [pronounced thoo-MOSS] = the mind or the soul under strong passion of anger, rage, or simply one without them] means one mind in life, one objective or one purpose. So it comes to mean, “In order that with one motivation.” Eventually the adverb came to mean the inner unity of a group of people engaged in similar action, like the advance to maturity. In the New Testament the general use is the inner unanimity of the royal family of God. But here it seems to connote motivation from doctrine resident in the soul. Doctrine is our ammunition with which we think, it is designed for our thinking, to awake thinking in us so that we can have the divine viewpoint of life. Doctrine resident in the soul being used for thought becomes the dynamic of the Christian life.

Next is a preposition, en (ἐν) [pronounced en] plus the instrumental of the numeral heís, mia, hen (εἷς, μία, ἓν) [pronounced hice, Mee-ah, ehn], used for the human mouth, and also for the jaws of an animal because the next word that comes up is stoma (στόμα) [pronounced STOHM-ah], a mouth—“by one message.” Stoma (στόμα) [pronounced STOHM-ah] connotes a message. This is doctrinal teaching.

Then the present active subjunctive of the verb doxazô (δοξάζω) [pronounced dox-AD-zo]—“you may glorify.” The present tense is a perfective present, it denotes a continuation of existing results. The existing results are related to the daily function of GAP, the advance to maturity adjustment to the justice of God; you are advancing toward the glorification of the Lord Jesus Christ. The active voice: the mature believer produces the action of the verb by being persistent in his attitude toward doctrine. No one ever attains maturity without perseverance. The subjunctive mood plus hina (ἵνα) [pronounced HEE-na] is both potential but is used here as a purpose clause. The object of the verb is the accusative singular direct object from theos (θεός) [pronounced theh-OSS], plus the definite article indicating that this is a previous reference, a reference to God whom we have previously studied.

“even the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ” – The ascensive use of the conjunction kai means here “even.” Then an appositional accusative singular from patēr (πατήρ) [pronounced pat-AYR]. It is in the accusative case because it is in apposition of theos (θεός) [pronounced theh-OSS]—“God, even the Father.” The possessive genitive, “our,” the genitive of kurios (κύριος) [pronounced KOO-ree-oss], the deity of Christ, then lêsous (Ἰησοῦς) [pronounced ee-ay-SOOCE] and Christos (χριστός) [pronounced krees-TOHSS], the humanity of Christ and the role of Christ.

Romans 15:6 In order that with one motivation [Doctrine resident in the soul] by one message [Doctrinal teaching] you may glorify God, even the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ.

Principle

1. Glorification of God and God’s plan can only be accomplished through the teaching and perception of Bible doctrine. Your Christian service cannot gain you blessing.
2. This requires objectivity and freedom from interference. This is why we have the honor code.
3. The honor code has something for each stage of spiritual growth.
4. For the weak believer who is positive toward doctrine the principle of the privacy of the priesthood. This forbids the weak believer from judging and maligning believers who have advanced beyond him.
5. For the strong believer there is the policy of impersonal love and resultant flexibility, toleration in the non-essentials of life.
6. Therefore the objective of the honor code is to allow each believer the full use of the privacy of his priesthood—freedom from distraction and interference so that he, too, can be inculcated with doctrine and glorify God.
7. The objective of the honor code function is to advance every believer to maturity and the fulfilment of the plan of God.
8. God’s plan is fulfilled with the 6th imputation for the mature believer in time, and the hope/absolute confidence of the 7th imputation at the judgment seat of Christ.
9. Through the attainment of spiritual maturity, not only is God’s plan fulfilled but, at the same time God is glorified.
10. The function of the honor code, then, is designed to glorify God.

478 07/23/1978 Romans 15:7–8a Wohlstetter (cont.); reciprocity in application of the royal family honor code, Jesus Christ our example; DIAKONOS

Another commentary about the government by Wohlstetter. The US draws its unique character from its sharply divisive conflicts.

Romans 15:7 Therefore receive one another as Christ also received you, to the glory of God. (BLB)

Verse 7 – reciprocity application of the honor code. “Wherefore receive ye one another” – the inferential conjunction dió (διό) [pronounced DEE-oh] denotes a self-evident inference and is translated “Therefore.” The verb is the present middle imperative of proslambánō (προσλαμβάνω) [pronounced pros-lam-BAHN-oh] which means to accept into one’s society, to accept into one’s acquaintances, therefore used both here and in Romans 14:1 for one believer of the royal family being receptive toward another believer. This is the reciprocity application of the honor code: “Therefore receive.” The present tense is the perfective present, it denotes a continuation of the existing results from the daily function of GAP, the existing doctrinal norms in the conscience provide motivation to live under the royal family honor code, and again to accept people at their particular stage of growth as just as much a part of the royal family as you are with your advanced stage of growth. The middle voice is a reciprocal middle in which the plural subject in which the weak and the strong believer represent an interchange of effort between the acting agents. This is sometimes called the redundant middle or the reflexive middle. The imperative mood is the imperative of command. Corrected translation: “Therefore be receiving.” It is a continual process.

Next is the accusative plural direct object from the reciprocal pronoun allêlôn (ἀλλήλων) [pronounced al-LAY-lohn], which means one another of the same kind, each other or one another. Whom God has received we cannot reject, and therefore the principle:

Principle

1. This corrected translation introduces a principle which recognizes that every believer is at a different stage of growth in his spiritual life.
2. This principle also recognizes that no believer is perfect, and we are not to make an issue out of someone else’s sins or failures.
3. This principle recognizes the privacy of the priesthood as the basic tenet of the royal family honor code. Live and let live overflows into the Christian life from the freedom principle of divine establishment to the honor code.
4. Live and let live now means that every believer must have equal opportunity in learning doctrine, with hindrance or distraction from another believer.
5. This principle, then, emphasizes the flexibility in the non-essentials, for there is great strength in flexibility.
6. Vacillation and oscillation is weakness, but flexibility from the application of doctrine is great strength. The strongest people in life are those who can bend without breaking.
7. The stronger the believer, the greater the flexibility in his modus operandi. (By the way, the more flexibility you have the more you are misunderstood)
8. This principle, then, emphasizes the importance of impersonal love in the fulfilment of the royal family honor code.
9. Impersonal love emphasizes the subject rather than the object, therefore emphasizes the norms and standards of doctrine in your conscience.

10. This principle emphasizes orientation to authority as the only means of learning Bible doctrine.
11. This principle emphasizes the fact that the mature believer through flexibility in the non-essentials has become oriented to reality.

Summary

1. If Christ has received us at salvation with all of our imperfections and weaknesses, then we can do no less than receive fellow believers regardless of their weaknesses and irritating sinfulness.
2. We are not looking for perfect people with whom to have fellowship. In other words, those who possess the same imputed righteousness and who are involved in the same plan of God, positive volition toward doctrine, gathering momentum in the advance to maturity.
3. Therefore the illustration or analogy is the fact that Christ receives all believers at the moment of salvation and we can do no less at any time during the spiritual life. The one exception is separation from the reversionist.

“as Christ also received us” – the adverb of comparison kathôs (καθώς) [pronounced kahth-OCE] indicates the standard of comparison is how Christ received us at salvation; “just as.” The subject is ho Christos (χριστός) [pronounced krees-TOHSS] – “the Christ.” There is also the ascensive use of kai, so it is translated “even as the Christ.” Plus the aorist middle indicative proslambánō (προσλαμβάνω) [pronounced pros-lam-BAHN-oh], which this time means to receive, “has received.” The constative aorist tense contemplates the action of the verb in its entirety, it refers to a momentary action at salvation in which each Church Age believer received 36 things from God. In other words, Christ received each one of us at salvation. The middle voice is the indirect middle which emphasizes Christ as the agent producing the action of the verb. Although the participation in the results is present to some extent the emphasis is on Christ as the agent producing the action. The indicative mood is declarative for the dogmatic statement of a principle of doctrine. Christ has received us at salvation, even though we were sinful before and would be sinful time and time again afterward. Next comes the accusative plural direct object from the personal pronoun egó (ἐγώ) [pronounced ehg-OH], referring to all believers at the moment of salvation.

“to the glory of God” – the preposition eis (εἰς) [pronounced ICE] plus the accusative singular from doxa (δόξα) [pronounced DOHX-ah], the object of the preposition; it means “glory.” Eis (εἰς) [pronounced ICE] here means “for the purpose of.” Then the possessive genitive singular of theos (θεός) [pronounced theh-OSS], referring to God—“for the purpose of the glory of the God,” literally. God is glorified by the formation of the royal family to compliment our Lord’s battlefield royalty and strategic victory in the angelic conflict. It is further glorification of God when the believer receives another believer as a function of the royal family honor code.

Romans 15:7 Therefore be receiving one another (of the same kind), even as Christ has received us for the purpose of the glory of God.

Principle

1. If Christ could accept us having received imputed righteousness with our imperfections, so we can accept each other on the basis of the same imputation, knowing that each one of us has the same +R.
2. We are not using our arrogance to look for perfection but we are using doctrine to establish true reciprocity on the basis of grace and the function of the honor code.
3. If Christ glorified God the Father by receiving us as His royal family, certainly we can do no less with each other.
4. If Christ glorified God the Father by receiving us, then we, too, can glorify the Father by receiving or accepting each other with all of our imperfections; but also, remembering that each one of us with our imperfections possess the perfect righteousness of God.
5. If the integrity of Christ can glorify God by accepting us, certainly the integrity of the believer under the honor code can glorify God by accepting each other. There is, therefore, a legitimate reciprocity in Christian fellowship.
6. This analogy demands the function of the royal family honor code in the field of Christian reciprocity.
7. Differences of spiritual growth result in different standards in the conscience, but the royal family honor code and the reality of the doctrine combines to demand that we accept each other for the purpose of glorifying God. Furthermore we are accepting each other on the basis of doctrinal standards, not on the basis of impressing each other. The doctrinal standards would be recognizing the righteousness of God within all other believers.
8. Our human differences do not exclude us from this function of the royal family honor code. There is a place for separation from other believers. That is not what we are studying.
9. The royal family honor code not only covers our differences but provides the principles which bind us together in the unity of the royal family and the glorification of God the Father.
10. Since the Lord Jesus Christ has been used as an analogy in this verse He is now used as an example or illustration of this principle, verses 8-12.

Christ the Hope of Jews and Gentiles

Romans 15:8 For I declare Christ to have become a servant of the circumcision for the truth of God, in order to confirm the promises given to the fathers,... (BLB)

Verse 8 – “Now I say that Jesus Christ was a minister of the circumcision for the truth of God.” The postpositive conjunctive particle gar is used to express inference in a self-evident conclusion. The present active indicative of légō (λέγω) [pronounced LEH-goh] means here to report—“For I report.” The retroactive progressive present denotes a report given in the past by Paul, but a report which continues into the present time. The active voice: Paul as the human writer of Romans produces the action. The indicative mood is declarative representing the verbal action from the viewpoint of reality. Next is the accusative singular of general reference from the proper nouns Christos (χριστός) [pronounced krees-TOHSS] and Iêsous (Ἰησοῦς) [pronounced ee-ay-SOOCE].

Then the perfect active infinitive of gínomai (γίνομαι) [pronounced GIN-oh-my], which does not mean to be, it means to become. This is a consummative perfect emphasizing completed action. The passive voice: Christ receives the action of the verb. This is the infinitive of actual result. "Consequently, I report that Christ has become." Next is the accusative singular direct object from diakonos (διάκονος) [pronounced dee-AK-on-oss], here used of Christ working on behalf of someone, namely on behalf of Israel.

The Doctrine of Diakonos by R. B. Thieme, Jr.

1. This is also diakonos (διάκονος) [pronounced dee-AK-on-oss] from which we get the word "deacon" but it has many meanings. The political meaning of the word: The word minister is translated "minister" and that is all right if it is understood the command is "carry out to the maximum your ministry."
2. The political use for this word is found in divine institution #4 where diakonos (διάκονος) [pronounced dee-AK-on-oss] is used for the head of a state, one who has the authority to administer capital punishment - Romans 13:3,4. In other words, diakonos (διάκονος) [pronounced dee-AK-on-oss] was used in the Bible to indicate a political ruler, one who had the authority to administer in the political realm of the national entity.
3. The second use of the word is the universal ministry of the believer. There is a sense in which every believer is a minister and has a responsibility before the Lord. This is for the royal family of God in the sense that all believers are in full time Christian service. It emphasizes the royal priest as the ambassador for Christ. In 2Corinthians 3:6 - ". who has appointed us ministers..." Also 2Corinthians 4:1; 6:1,3.
4. The third use of diakonos (διάκονος) [pronounced dee-AK-on-oss] is connected with the administration of the local church. The pastor has all of the authority but he delegates authority to certain men in the church in order to carry on administration. This is where we get the word "deacon." Philippians 1:1. So a deacon is a man who has received delegated authority from the pastor in order to carry on the administrative activities of the local church.
5. The fourth use is the pastoral use. The pastor is also called diakonos (διάκονος) [pronounced dee-AK-on-oss] or a minister many times, and this has to do with the original source of all authority in the local church. It is delegated to the pastor who in turn delegates it to certain members in the congregation. All members of the congregation are ministers in the sense of coming under the teaching of the Word. 1Corinthians 3:5; Ephesians 3:7; Colossians 1:7,23; 1Thessalonians 3:2; 1Timothy 1:12. This is a technical use of minister for a pastor-teacher.
6. This word is used of Jesus as a minister or servant.
7. A fifth use of diakonos (διάκονος) [pronounced dee-AK-on-oss] is the evil usage - 2Corinthians 11:13-15. Self-righteousness is always a Satanic concept.

Next is the objective genitive singular from peritomê (περιτομή) [pronounced per-it-om-AY]. It means "circumcision" and is used here as a synonym for the Jews.

479 07/28/1978 Romans 15:7–8a (Minor problem with sound) Jesus Christ, Minister to the Jews; time elapse before fulfillment of the covenants to Israel

Five days has passed since the previous lesson.

We have been studying the royal family honor code; and divine establishment. Socialism is an attack on property; and an attack on property is an attack on Jesus Christ. Socialism is anti-God. Every Cadillac on the road should make you happy. You have the right to have property. Socialism is an attack upon your freedom. It is anti-Christian and anti-God.

Privacy is a reference to your public appearances. You have a right to live your life unto the Lord. You have a right to dress the way that you want to. No one advances in the Christian life apart from a pastor-teacher.

There are ladies, there are females and there are broads. This woman had arrogance in every field.

Most Americans think like communists; and even Christians do. What you eat or drink are nonessentials. What you understand about Bible doctrine is an essential.

The Christian way of life is not equivalent to morality; it includes morality.

A review of the first 6 verses.

We are to tolerate immature believers. The royal family honor code is presented in Romans 12–16. If God has accepted that person, where to we come into the picture to reject them?

“to confirm the promises made unto the fathers” – eis (εἰς) [pronounced ICE] plus the articular aorist active infinitive from bebaiōō (βεβαιόω) [pronounced beb-ah-YOH-oh] which means to confirm, to make firm, to establish. It is translated “to establish,” but it is a little more complicated than that. Eis (εἰς) [pronounced ICE] plus the accusative of the definite article is used to introduce a purpose clause. The function of a purpose clause constructed from the accusative of the definite article with eis (εἰς) [pronounced ICE] is to express the aim, the action denoted by the main verb; in this case, gínomai (γίνομαι) [pronounced GIN-oh-my]. Christ has become a minister to the Jews for a purpose hereinafter stated: to establish something, to confirm something.

What is established or confirmed comes next: the accusative plural direct object from epaggelia (ἐπαγγελία) [pronounced ehp-ang-ehl-EE-ah], referring here to the unconditional covenants. The function of a conditional covenant is immediate, and the meeting of the requirements of the unconditional covenant produce whatever the unconditional covenant has stated, e.g. the Mosaic covenant. Unconditional covenants means that God makes a promise in which there are no strings attached, and therefore the fulfillment of that promise demands that God keep His word. None of the unconditional covenants have ever been fulfilled, they are still outstanding. The promises are said to have been given to the fathers, i.e. the Old Testament writers/prophets who received bits and pieces, and lengthy dissertations, on these four unconditional covenants. So this introduces a principle: The integrity of God is responsible for the fulfilment of the unconditional promises made to the ancestors of the Jews.

The aorist active infinitive of bebaiōō (βεβαιόω) [pronounced beb-ah-YOH-oh] is correctly translated to establish or to confirm. The aorist tense is a constative aorist, contemplating the second advent and the millennial reign of Jesus Christ in its entirety, plus the end of time with the Gog revolution. The active voice: Jesus Christ establishes or confirms, i.e. He fulfils divine promises to Israel, namely the unconditional covenants. This is the infinitive of purpose.

The Unconditional Covenants and Time

1. The principle of intercalation. Intercalation means insertion, interruption and insertion. The dispensation of Christ was interrupted by the strategic victory of Christ on the cross, His death, burial, resurrection and ascension. He is now without a royal family, but that is being formed in this dispensation. The insertion of the Church Age becomes the intensification of the angelic conflict. The Church Age was not revealed in the Old Testament and therefore it is classified under mystery doctrine. But the dispensation of Israel has a great deal to say about the unconditional covenants, and during the Age of Israel there were four promises which God made which have not yet been fulfilled—the Abrahamic, Palestinian, Davidic and New covenants to Israel.
2. The covenants to Israel. There are basically five covenants which were given to the Jews from the time they were formed into a nation at the Exodus, up to the concluding time of the 5th cycle of discipline. These covenants are classified as conditional and unconditional. There is one conditional covenant and four unconditional covenants. A conditional covenant requires some human function in order for the covenant to be operative. As far as the unconditional covenant is concerned nothing is required of man, it all depends upon the attributes and the character of God. The mosaic law is divided into three parts in order to explain the national heritage which began at the time of the Exodus. Codex #1 is the freedom heritage made up of the ten commandments of the Decalogue and it is used to describe freedom in terms of the laws of divine establishment. Codex #2 is the spiritual heritage called in the KJV “the ordinances.” It is a complete Christology and soteriology, and it includes the tabernacle, the holy days, Levitical offerings, and the modus operandi of the Levitical priesthood. It presents all aspects of the person and the work of the Lord Jesus Christ. Codex #3 is the political heritage or the judgments. This is called the establishment code and it includes many concepts—freedom through military victory, authority in public life; it explains privacy, property, taxation, sanitation, diet, universal military training, the principles of health and quarantine, criminal law. All of this is a conditional covenant and not in view in Romans 15 which talks about the promises of God. The next four covenants are the “promises to the fathers.” Berith in the Hebrew and diathêkê (δικαθήκη) [pronounced dee-ath-AY-kay] in the Greek both mean approximately the same thing: a gracious bestowal by party of the first part on party of the second part. They are unconditional, party of the second part does nothing in order to receive the covenant.

3. The postponement of the Age of Israel. The dispensation of Israel had been sequential through the period of the patriarchs—Abraham down to the time of the Exodus. It was sequential during the period of the Law, the time of the nation of Israel from Moses to the Lord Jesus Christ. But suddenly it comes to a halt with the ascension of our Lord Jesus Christ and the entire dispensation has not been completed but postponed until the calling out of the royal family of God. The purpose of the postponement of the Age of Israel is so that the royal family of God can be completed and removed prior to our Lord's return, for He will return with a royal family.
4. The principle of measures of measurement. There are four principles. The simplest of all is called the nominal, a simple yes or no. There is a second one a little more complex called the ordinal. This means greater than. The third is the interval, the concept of the artificial zero. The final one is the racial, which is the concept of the absolute zero.
5. The variables when related to artificial and absolute zero. There are primary and secondary variables. There are three primary variables: a) temperature, which does have an absolute zero as a means of measuring; b) length, which establishes an absolute zero; c) there is mass. The secondary variable uses an artificial zero, and time is involved in this fact. The secondary variable is time because time has an artificial zero. Theologically time has an absolute zero from the fall of man to the present time, elapse unknown. When time does have an absolute zero we are looking simply at history. But from the standpoint of the function of time we have an artificial zero. Time is regarded here as a gift from God to mankind in general, and is a part of logistical grace to the believer, the means of fulfilling the plan of God. There is an artificial zero for your time which is sequential—the moment that you believe in the Lord Jesus Christ. And you are allotted time to advance to maturity, and/or time to enter into reversionism, depending on your attitude toward doctrine. But all the time that is necessary is allotted to you.
6. There are two concepts of time, then, as a secondary variable. There is sequential time which means that there is no break as far as the plan of God is concerned. Sequential time is God's plan for your life: $X + Y + Z =$ the plan of God. The second concept of time is interrupted time, giving to Israel the concept of the fulfilment of their promises. There were many believers in Israel in the past and there will be many believers in Israel in the future. They have been given unconditional promises which have not been fulfilled. These promises were promised in sequential time but they are going to be fulfilled in interrupted time. Therefore we have the concept of the artificial zero, i.e. the Second Advent of Christ, the time when these covenants will all be fulfilled. At that time Israel will be regathered and there will be the fulfilment of these covenants, and all divine promises which are unconditional or gracious are always fulfilled. But to man who is living in sequential time and who is oriented to sequential time it is very difficult for him to see the interruption of time, until he understands that time has an artificial zero and that time can begin at any particular point when time has been interrupted. It's just as if your watch had stopped and then after the elapse of time it resumes and works perfectly. It is impossible for God to default on an unconditional promise. Therefore the apparent slowness of God in fulfilling His promise to Israel is based upon the fact that the Age of Israel has been interrupted, and that an artificial zero in the interval level of measurement has been created—the Second Advent of Christ.

God has not forgotten Israel. Israel will occupy everything between the Nile River and the Euphrates. When God clicks that stopwatch, then it starts. Time is a secondary variable. God is not slack as some men count slackness. Time is invented by God, and time is determined by God.

1977 Romans

Lesson #480

480 07/30/1978 Romans 15:8b–9a Wohlstetter: Government in the Shadows; doctrine of elapse of time for fulfillment of covenants to Israel

There is some confusion among Jews regarding their future status.

Christ the Hope of Jews and Gentiles

Romans 15:8 For I declare Christ to have become a servant of the circumcision for the truth of God, in order to confirm the promises given to the fathers, (BLB)

Romans 15:8 Consequently I report that Christ has become a minister to the circumcision [the Jews] on behalf of the doctrine of God, to establish the promises [the covenants] made to the fathers.

Doctrine of Elapse of Time

7/30/78

A. The Principle of Intercalation.

1. Intercalation means interruption and insertion.
2. The Jewish Age was interrupted by the introduction of the Church Age ten days after the ascension of Christ. At His session, Jesus Christ received a battlefield royal warrant, but He was without a royal family. Therefore, the Church Age was inserted into history to call out a royal family. The Church Age becomes the time of the intensification of the angelic conflict.
3. The Church Age is terminated at the Rapture. Then the Age of Israel continues until the Second Advent. There were four promises made to Israel during the Jewish Age that are yet to be fulfilled. The Church Age was not revealed in the Old Testament, so it comes under the mystery doctrine.

B. Covenants to Israel.

1. There are two kinds of covenants which God made to Israel.

- a. The conditional covenant requires some human function for the covenant to be operative.
 - b. The unconditional covenants require nothing of man. They depend entirely upon the attributes of God.
2. The Mosaic Law is the only conditional covenant to Israel.
 - a. Codex one is the freedom heritage. It describes freedom in terms of the laws of divine establishment, defining life, freedom, privacy, property, and authority.
 - b. Codex two is the spiritual heritage which teaches a complete Christology and soteriology, presenting everything necessary to believe in Christ.
 - c. Codex three is the establishment code. It teaches concepts of authority in the husband, parents, government, and the military, as well as rules for health, law, trial, punishments, sanitation, etc.
 3. The unconditional covenant is a gracious bestowal by one party on behalf of another. There are four unconditional covenants to Israel.
 - a. In the Abrahamic Covenant, God promised a new race called the Jews and a new nation called Israel, Genesis 12:1-3, 13:15; Revelation 21:2,10; Hebrews 11:8-10. This covenant applies to the progeny of Abraham through Isaac and Jacob. This covenant was the basis for the deliverance of the Jews and the beginning of the new nation, Ex 6:2-8. This covenant has not been fulfilled yet. It is fulfilled when the Jewish race and nation is perpetuated forever as a source of blessing.
 - b. In the Palestinian Covenant, God promised the Jews that they would inherit the entire Middle East, Genesis 15:18; Numbers 34:1-12; Deuteronomy 30:1-9; Josh 1:3-
 4. During the Millennium, the land of Israel will extend from Turkey to Syria in the north, west to the Med Sea, south to East Africa, include all of Saudi Arabia, and east to the Euphrates River.
 - a. In the Davidic Covenant, God promised David that he would have a son who would rule forever, 2Samuel 7; Psalm 89:20-37.
 - b. The New Covenant, Jeremiah 31:31-34, confirms the fact that the unconditional covenants already given would be fulfilled.
- C. The Postponement of the Age of Israel. The Age of Israel was sequential until the ascension of Christ. It has been postponed until the royal family is completed and the Church Age is terminated.
- D. The Principle of Levels of Measurement. There are four levels of measurement.
1. Nominal: yes or no.
 2. Ordinal: greater than.
 3. Interval: artificial zero.
 4. Ratio: absolute zero.
- E. Variables related to Artificial and Absolute zeros.

1. There are three primary variables using the ratio level of measurement or absolute zero: temperature, length, and mass.
 2. Secondary variables, such as time, use an artificial zero.
 - a. Theologically, time has an absolute zero which begins at the fall of man. This elapse is unknown. But from the standpoint of the function of time, there is an artificial zero.
 - b. Time is regarded as a gift from God as a part of logistical grace.
 - c. Your artificial zero is the moment of your salvation. You are allotted all the time necessary to advance to spiritual maturity.
- F. Two concepts of time as a secondary variable exist.
1. Sequential time. There is no break in time as far as the plan of God is concerned. God has a plan for your life from birth to death. Therefore, you are given one day at a time to advance.
 2. Interrupted time. Unconditional covenants were promised in sequential time, but will be fulfilled through interrupted time. Therefore we have the concept of the artificial zero.
 3. The time for the fulfillment of the covenants begins at the Second Advent and Millennium.
 4. God is not slow with regard to His promises. All divine promises are always fulfilled. God can begin time at any point He wishes. God's apparent slowness in fulfilling His promise to Israel is based on the fact that the Age of Israel has been interrupted and an artificial zero in the interval level of measurement has been created, i.e., the Second Advent of Christ. Therefore, Christ is still the minister to Israel, Romans 15:8.

Verses 9-12, Christ is also a minister to the Gentiles.

Romans 15:9 and for the Gentiles to glorify God for mercy, as it has been written: "Because of this I will praise You among the Gentiles, and will I sing to Your name." (BLB)

Verse 9 – "And that the Gentiles might glorify God for his mercy" – the postpositive conjunctive particle de is used as a transitional conjunction, "and that." Then the accusative plural of general referenced from the noun ethnos (ἔθνος, οὐς, τό) [pronounced EHTH-noss], used in this passage for Gentiles. With it is the generic use of the definite article in the Greek, representing a category, a group or a class. The accusative of general reference is the subject of the infinitive. The infinitive is the aorist active of the verb doxazō (δοξάζω) [pronounced dox-AD-zo] which means to glorify. The culminative aorist tense views the advance of Gentile believers in the Church Age to maturity but emphasizes the existing results. Every advancing believer, every believers who perseveres, who is consistent in the intake of doctrine after his salvation will go through the stages: the spiritual babyhood, the adolescent, close to maturity, then cracking the maturity barrier. And in the momentum of the Christian life the Lord Jesus Christ is the minister. So the culminative aorist views the advance of the positive believer. The active voice: in this case Gentile believers, in contrast to Israel in the previous verse, produce the action of the verb. It does not exclude Jews, they advance the same way. The infinitive is the infinitive of intended result, a result which indicates the fulfilment of a deliberate divine objective: the advance to maturity, God's plan for each life. This infinitive blends purpose and result.

Next is the accusative singular direct object from theos (θεός) [pronounced theh-OSS], plus the definite article to denote an individual member of the Trinity, namely God the Son, the Lord Jesus Christ. Then a prepositional phrase, hupér (ὑπέρ) [pronounced hoop-AIR] plus the ablative of eleos (ἔλεος) [pronounced EHL-eh-os] which means mercy or grace. With this is the concept of a possessive pronoun, "for his mercy." Eleos (ἔλεος) [pronounced EHL-eh-os] or mercy refers to logistical grace, divine support of the individual believer in his advance to maturity.

Principle

1. It is obvious that in the dispensation of Israel that the Jews occupied a place of special privilege. But now in the dispensation of the Church the Gentile believer is equal with the Jew, having the same opportunity as the Jew, and having the same promises. In the Age of Israel, the Jews had many revelations from God, giving them a great advantage.
2. Because of the baptism of the Spirit Gentiles are just as much under logistical grace as Jewish believers, in the Church Age.
3. Therefore, whether Jew or Gentile, when a person believes in Christ during the Church Age he is entered into union with Christ; he becomes a member of the royal family of God with the same freedom, the same opportunity, the same privileges at salvation are given.
4. Since both Jew and Gentile are in the royal family they have the same privileges, the same logistical grace to support them in time.
5. Therefore just as Christ is the minister to the Jews in the fulfilment of the unconditional covenants at the Second Advent, so now Jesus Christ is the minister to the royal family in the fulfilment of the plan of God.
6. The royal family honor code takes cognizance of the fact that Jew and Gentile have the same rights and privileges and opportunities in their advance to maturity.
7. Divine support under logistical grace is provided for both Jewish and Gentile believer alike, and the former privileges of the previous dispensation (the Age of Israel) no longer apply to this dispensation.
8. In this dispensation the Lord Jesus Christ is the prince ruler of the Church and is said to be minister to the Gentiles.
9. Inasmuch as Christ is a minister to the Gentiles it becomes necessary to have an honor code which guarantees equal opportunity to all believers in their advance to maturity, whether Jew or Gentile, an opportunity without distraction. The new believer is a baby on the mother's breast.

The mature believer must be tolerant of the new believer. Often the new believer is flexible regarding the essentials, and inflexible with regards to the nonessentials.

Paul will quote a number of Old Testament passages (four passages will document that, despite the privileges of Israel, God still would reach out to gentiles).

481 07/30/1978 Romans 15:9b Conspiracy against U.S. Army; Jesus Christ, minister to the Gentiles; blessing by association, U.S. immigrants Officer Review an article by Iris C. Aker. He was a famous person in WWII. Attacks on the quality of the men and women in the armed forces. Those making the attacks are subversives and pacifists. Moscow opposed the B1 bomber, and some pacifist groups immediately took up that cause and it was cancelled. It was not the army which failed in Vietnam, but the political component.

Pastors today are inflexible in the nonessentials; and very flexible in the essentials. What is tolerated today by the general public. Incompetence is seen as a virtue. The only nations which can face reality are those nations which are beaten down. Those who are tyrannies in the gulag in Russia recognize how awful socialism is. Moral courage has declined, beginning with FDR. There are few places in this world where freedom in an important concept.

Christ is both a minister to the Jews and the Gentiles. The latter is what we are studying over the next few classes.

Daniel ministered to gentile empires. Some of the greatest soldiers in David's army were gentiles. Whenever there is a pocket of positive volition, God will provide.

Romans 15:9 and for the Gentiles to glorify God for mercy, as it has been written: "Because of this I will praise You among the Gentiles, and will I sing to Your name." (BLB)

"as it is written" – the comparative adverb kathōs (καθώς) [pronounced kahth-OCE]. It indicates a comparison with Old Testament scriptures which anticipated the fact that the Gentiles of our dispensation would have equal privileges with the Jews, but in the Old Testament dispensation in the Age of Israel, even when a Gentile was positive toward doctrine he was given the opportunity, regardless of his geographical isolation or linguistic barrier, by means of the Lord Jesus Christ providing the necessary information for spiritual advance. So equal privilege has always been a historical fact, even though it is very difficult to find it in past history.

Next is the perfect passive indicative from the verb graphō (γράφω) [pronounced GRAWF-oh] which means to write. In the perfect tense here it is translated "just as it stands written." In the perfect tense we have a concept. When special attention is directed to the results of the action stress on the existing fact is intensified. This is the emphatic method in the Greek of presenting a fact or a condition which, in this case, is the existence of the Old Testament Scriptures and the quotation from this as from the Word of God. The fact of quoting the Old Testament Scriptures indicates that the Old Testament canon is equivalent to the New Testament canon, therefore both are equally the Word of God. This is the intensive perfect tense. In the passive voice the Old Testament canon receives the action of the verb, being used for documentation. The indicative mood is declarative for the dogmatic statement of fact: the Old Testament canon is just as much the Word of God as the in-preparation New Testament canon. The documentation which is about to be quoted extends from verses 9 through verse 12. In verse 9, a quotation from Psalm 18:49; in verse 10, a quotation from Deuteronomy 32:43; in verse 11, a quotation from Psalm 117:1; in verse 12 a quotation Isaiah 11:10.

Documentation from the Old Testament and brought into the New Testament.

The first Old Testament documentation, Psalm 18:49. The context is Psalm 18:46-50. The Psalm is David's hymn of worship and praise for deliverance from Saul and his other enemies.

Verse 46, The Lord lives, a phrase representing occupation with the person of Christ on the part of a very mature believer. Jesus Christ is more real than anything else, and David has learned, as all mature believers do, that about the essentials one must be totally inflexible. And about the Lord Jesus Christ David never wavers, he has the capacity to love the Lord; and blessed be my rock – David has been blessed in his circumstances; therefore exalted be the God of my deliverance. – David mentions the rock, which is Zion, the place where he built his castle.

Verse 47 – The God who executes vengeance for me. David maintains the concept of impersonal love when He says this because he did not seek vengeance. He always put things in the Lord's hands; and subdues the peoples under me – even after David became king he was still a great general. He is referring to the military profession.

Verse 48 – He delivered me from my enemies. Here is one of the great imputed blessings, our Lord's deliverance from enemies. When the Lord does it, it is right and fair; if we do it, it is not right and it is not fair because our judgment is imperfect; surely, you promote me above those who rise against me. You have rescued me from the violent man. It is interesting that David understood the difference between good military procedure in killing the enemy and violence against the establishment principles of authority.

Verse 49 – all of these things have been accomplished by the Lord, and David has written this hymn and is celebrating at this moment. Note that Jews are involved but also Gentiles are involved. Therefore I will give thanks to you among the Gentiles, O Lord, which means that he has Gentiles among his staff. Some of his generals are Gentiles. David's body guard is made up of Gentiles; "and I will sing praises to Your person.

Verse 50 – [Great deliverance giveth he to his king \[David\]; and shows mercy \[grace\] to his anointed \[the one who has been commissioned\], to David, and to his descendants forever \[he is the recipient of the Davidic covenant\]](#).

Gentiles and Jews were both saved by believing in the Lord Jesus Christ.

Continuing in Romans 15:9 and the first documentation, the quotation from Psalm 18:49. "For this cause I will confess to You among the Gentiles, and sing unto Your name." The prepositional phrase dia plus the accusative singular from the demonstrative pronoun houtos (οὗτος) [pronounced HOO-tos]—“Because of this.” To what does the demonstrative pronoun refer? It refers to David’s deliverance, promotion, the imputation of divine blessing at the point of his maturity and thereafter.

Then the future middle indicative of exomologeō (ἐξομολογέω) [pronounced ex-o-mo-lo-GEH-oh], which means to acknowledge, to praise, to celebrate. The future tense is a gnomic future for a statement of performance rightly expected under normal conditions of receiving the imputation of divine blessing after maturity. In this case blessing is promotion, deliverance from his enemies, and continued success in his original profession—soldier. The middle voice is the indirect middle in which the agent [David] is emphasized as producing the action. The indicative mood is declarative representing the verbal action from the viewpoint of historical reality. The historical reality includes not only David’s praise to God, but the fact that such praise was uttered and expressed in the presence of Gentile believers. Gentiles went along with him and became great. They were not only under the principle of blessing by association with David but many of them advanced to maturity through perception of doctrine, even as David had done so. Therefore Paul quotes a meaningful passage in which the court of David and the national administration of Israel includes successful Gentile believers. That is the issue Paul is emphasizing.

Therefore Paul quotes a meaningful passage in which the court of David and the national administration of Israel includes successful Gentile believers. That is the issue Paul is emphasizing. This is followed by the dative singular indirect object from the personal pronoun su, referring to Jehovah in Psalm 18:49. The preposition en (ἐν) [pronounced en] plus the locative plural of ethnos (ἔθνος, οὐς, τό) [pronounced EHTH-noss] is literally, “among the Gentiles.” “The Gentiles” is referring to Gentile believers who are positive to doctrine, advancing to maturity in the dispensation of Israel.

“And sing unto Your name” is the future active indicative from the verb psállō (ψάλλω) [pronounced PSAL-loh], meaning to sing to the accompaniment of musical instruments, plus the connective use of the conjunction kai—“and I will sing.” Again the gnomic future for a statement of performance rightfully expected under the normal condition of receiving divine blessing. The imputed blessing from the justice of God is both promotion and deliverance. It follows logically that such blessing from God will be expressed in the worship of singing. The active voice: David produces the action of the verb in response to the divine imputation of blessing. The indicative mood is declarative representing the verbal action from the viewpoint of historical reality.

Plus the dative singular indirect object from onoma (ὄνομα, ατος, τό) [pronounced OHN-oh-ma], generally translated “name” but really meaning a person, a title, a category, plus the possessive genitive singular from the personal pronoun su—“and I will sing hymns to your person,” referring to the person of the Lord Jesus Christ.

Romans 15:9 And that the Gentiles might glorify God for his mercy; just as it stands written, Because of this [imputed blessing] I will praise you among the Gentiles [believers in David’s court], and I will sing hymns to your person.

Principle

1. There are two categories of blessing by association with mature believer David in this quotation. The first category: blessing by association with David as a mature believer in ultra-super-grace.
2. Secondly, the blessing by association with the doctrine which David sang. He sang in the presence of Gentile believers, indicating that Gentile believers were positive toward the doctrine he was singing and the doctrine that was being taught in Israel.
3. Association with doctrine means cognizance of doctrine resulting in the advance to maturity.
4. Association with a mature believer means blessing by association, which documents the fact that Gentile believers were being blessed in the Age of Israel.
5. Christ is the minister to the Gentiles in the Age of Israel.
6. Now in the Church Age Jewish believers can be blessed by association with a mature or strong Gentile believer, and vice versa. Jew and Gentile are in Christ but both can be blessed by association with the other.
7. Consequently both Jewish and Gentile believers in the body of Christ have equal opportunity: the same freedom, the same logistical grace by which to advance to maturity. The opportunities for gentiles existed even in the time of David.
8. Under the royal family honor code both Jewish and Gentile believers who are strong in doctrine must be very careful not to distract weak Jewish or Gentile believers from receiving doctrine. No believer, Jew or Gentile, can advance to maturity and glorify God apart from perception of doctrine. Therefore in the royal family honor code this quotation is significant. Are you a Jewish believer? Do not distract a Gentile believers. Are you a Gentile believer? Do not distract a Jewish believer. We should not allow cultural differences to distract one group or the other. The Jew with his superior culture was not to be a distraction to the Roman believer with an inferior culture.

Romans 15:9 And that the Gentiles might glorify God for his mercy; just as it stands written, Because of this [imputed blessing] I will praise you among the Gentiles [believers in David's court], and I will sing hymns to your person.

Additional Points

1. Prior to the first documentation from Psalm 19:49 a statement of principle as well as a statement of purpose is made: "and that the Gentiles might glorify God for his mercy."
2. This glorification of God is only possible through advance to maturity by means of doctrinal perception.
3. Gentiles have equal opportunity with Jews in this dispensation Under the mercy of God [logistical grace] believers, regardless of race, status, or any background factor, have the same opportunity to attain maturity.
4. Therefore note well that the Gentiles in Psalm 18:49 were being blessed by association. But the Gentiles in Romans 15:9 are glorifying God by advance to maturity.

5. Therefore, never in human history has every race, colour, or nationality had better opportunity for spiritual advance to maturity than in the Church Age since the completion of the New Testament canon.
6. The greater the opportunity, the less excuse for failure.
7. There is no excuse for failure to attain maturity since doctrine is available through the teaching of one's right pastor and time is available.
8. There is no excuse for failure.

The United States has had a policy of letting people into the United States, people who do not understand our Constitution and often the language as well. Bob has been personally opposed to this. It is not what we feel or think. Jesus Christ controls history. The Irish and the Chinese were allowed in. Debatable whether the Irish had a culture at all. You would never confuse the Irish for a Chinaman, or vice versa. But hundreds of thousands were evangelized. They came to a country where they could be evangelized.

Many opposes the Japs coming into the United States; but some of the greatest Americans in the United States were Japanese. Many opposed their entrance into this country. There was an emotional hysteria after Pearl Harbor. Bob never knew a Jap to accept welfare. Many of them got their draft notices in prison camps. Their businesses were lost. They were abused in every way. The Nissi battalion was the most decorated battalion in the United States. They were always great Americans.

God has a purpose in the amalgamation of races in this country. God has a plan for all of these races. Every race and background is in Berachah Church or listening to the teachings from elsewhere in the United States. No mature believer will allow his culture to distract a younger, maturing believer.

Lesson #482

482 07/31/1978 Romans 15:10–11 Solzhenitsyn: U.S. loss of courage; blessing of Gentiles in the Old Testament; "praise" cf. "laud"

Solzhenitsyn speaks at a Yale graduation. A decline in courage, especially among the ruling groups and the elites. There are many courageous individuals. State policies are based on weakness and cowardice.

Moral courage has just about disappeared and Solzhenitsyn explained it very well. One almost never sees the exercise of self-restraint. Society seems to have little use for this self-restraint. Movies with violence, nudity, etc.

Romans 15:10 And again it says: "Rejoice you Gentiles, with His people." (BLB)

Verse 10 – "And again he saith, Rejoice, ye Gentiles, with his people." This is a quotation from Deuteronomy 32:43. The connective conjunction kai plus the adverb palin (πάλιν) [pronounced PAL-in]. The two words following the perfect tense of graphô (γράφω)

[pronounced GRAWF-oh] in the previous verse indicate another citation from the Old Testament—“And again.”

The present active indicative of légō (λέγω) [pronounced LEH-goh] refers to the Old Testament as the Word of God and to the human author, Moses. The present tense is a historical present viewing a past event, the writing of Deuteronomy, with the vividness of a present occurrence. The active voice: Moses as the human author under the ministry of the Holy Spirit produces the action of the verb by writing Deuteronomy 32:43. The indicative mood is declarative for the reality of this verse of this verse as a part of the Word of God.

Deuteronomy 32:43 is the last line in the eschatological part of Moses' death song. It is a prophetic utterance with regard to the Second Advent of Jesus Christ as related to His first advent. Significant to us is the fact that Gentiles in the time of Moses were to be rejoicing with the Jews of Israel, indicating the very purpose of the documentation that Jesus Christ has always been a minister to the Gentiles as well as to the Jews, even during the age of the Jews, the privileged Age of Israel. This indicates saved Gentiles living at the same time as saved Jews, and it indicates that Gentiles in the time of Moses were also enjoying the privileges of advancing to maturity. Saved Jews and saved gentiles lived side-by-side in the Old Testament.

Literally from the Hebrew this verse says: Rejoice, O Gentiles, with his people [the Jews]; for he will avenge the blood of his servants, and will render vengeance on his enemies, and will atone for the land, and his people. Deuteronomy 32:43

This was not something that was fulfilled in the time of Moses or in the time of Joshua, or at any time when the Jews occupied a very small part of the land which is promised to them under the Palestinian covenant.

Only the first line is quoted by Paul because Paul is documenting from the Old Testament for the express purpose of demonstrating that Jesus Christ has always been the God of the Gentiles as well as the Jews.

Next in verse 10 is the aorist passive imperative from the verb euphrainō (εὐφραίνω) [pronounced yoo-FRAH-ee-no]. In the active voice this word means to cheer up, but in the passive voice it means to be glad, to enjoy one's self, to be at a very high and stimulating area socially, to be merry, or to rejoice. It is not the usual word for “rejoice” which is some form of chara (χαρά) [pronounced khahr-AH], but we get an entirely different word to indicate that in this case the stimulation is not emotional but it is rational stimulating the emotion, or the emotion responding to a rational concept. This is the dramatic aorist tense which states a present reality with the certitude of a past event. This idiom is a device for emphasis. The active voice: the Gentile produce the action of the verb under the ministry of Jesus Christ and in their association with those who communicate doctrine. Principle: Gentiles are stimulated by doctrine in their positive volition, just as in the past in Deuteronomy men like Moses and Jews who advanced to maturity were stimulated by doctrine. The imperative mood is a command to Gentiles who have attained maturity adjustment to the justice of God, a command which was listed from the book of Deuteronomy.

Then comes the vocative plural of the noun ethnos (ἔθνος, ους, τό) [pronounced EHTH-noss], which can refer to nations but often refers to Gentiles as a category; it is used for several categories of Gentiles: the historical Gentile who was saved in the time of Moses and to whom this was addressed at the time of writing Deut. 32:43; at this time, Moses was preparing his death hymn. There is a second concept. Prophetically it anticipates Gentiles who are saved in the time of the Tribulation and who are alive at the Second Advent. It applies also to Gentile believers who have attained maturity adjustment to the justice of God. The next phrase is prepositional, meta plus the genitive singular from laos (λαός) [pronounced lah-OSS] which has with it a possessive genitive from the intensive pronoun autós (αὐτὸς) [pronounced ow-TOSS], referring to God—“with His people.” The Jews are the people of God.

Romans 15:10 And again it says: “Rejoice you Gentiles, with His people.” (BLB)

Romans 15:10 And again he says, Rejoice, O Gentiles, with His people.

There is an association with Jews in both the Old and New Testaments.

Bob was saved by reading the Bible. That was the beginning of his salvation. Jews are told how they were to live in association with God.

V. 11 gives us the third citation; or the third evidence by documentation from the Old Testament.

Romans 15:11 And again: “Praise the Lord, all the Gentiles, and praise Him, all the peoples.” (BLB)

Verse 11 – the third documentation. “And again, Praise the Lord, all ye Gentiles; and laud him, all ye people.” “And again” is not a part of the quotation. We have kai palin (πάλιν) [pronounced PAL-in] for the second time. It means “citing another passage,” a third area of the Old Testament. The adverb palin (πάλιν) [pronounced PAL-in] always means an additional citation. This time it is a reference to the shortest of all psalms, #117. Psalm 117:1 in the Hebrew says, “Praise the Lord, all Gentiles; laud him, all ye people.” It is addressed to Gentile believers in the dispensation of Israel. It provides not only the fact that Gentiles were saved in the Old Testament but that they were able to maturity, as indicated by the word “laud.”

In Psalm 117:2 the Gentile believers are definitely said to have cracked the maturity barrier, for it says “For his grace [cheçed (חֶסֶד) [pronounced KHEH-sed]] increases over us.” With this is the qal active indicative from the verb gâbar (גָּבַר) [pronounced gaw^b-VAHR], which means to be mighty, to be great, to be a hero. Whose grace? This isn’t quoted but it tells us what category of Gentile is here: a Gentile who is saved by grace but who experienced the increase of grace in the dispensation of Israel. The second line says,

“and the doctrine of Jehovah endures forever. Praise the Lord.” It demonstrates the fact that Gentiles had systematic doctrine structured in their soul through Bible teaching, and were therefore capable of cracking the maturity barrier and able to fulfil the command, “Hallelujah.”

Psalm 117:1–2 Praise the Lord, all Gentiles; laud Him, all you peoples. For His grace increases over us and the doctrine of Jehovah endures forever. Praise the Lord.

You must have structured theology in order to go into the ministry. Bob did not feel prepared, but he understood about 400 or 500 doctrines in the structured form.

In order to laud the Lord, you would have to know a lot about Him.

1977 Romans

Lesson #483

483 08/01/1978 (at some point during this month, I moved to Houston) Romans 15:11–12 Solzhenitsyn, U.S. evils; Jesus Christ, minister and evaluator of Jew and Gentile of every dispensation

Apparently Berachah has been plagued with people with having no manners. We seem to be back to the serious students.

Solzhenitsyn message to Harvard (did I get it wrong last message?). He experienced socialism firsthand. He says that he also could not recommend what the western system is today. We cannot remain in an abyss of lawlessness. A revolting invasion of privacy, intolerable music, a tv stupor. The forces of evil have begun their offense. The west has difficulties in understanding reality as it is. The cruelest confusion is about the Vietnam war. The US are as responsible for what is taking place in Vietnam as they are in Hungary.

Bob says that the gas shortage was strictly political and not real.

Romans 15:11 And again: “Praise the Lord, all the Gentiles, and praise Him, all the peoples.” (BLB)

Romans 15:11 And again, Praise the Lord, all ye Gentiles, and applaud him, all you people.

Principle

1. This entire psalm reveals the fact that Gentiles were saved in the Age of Israel. Gentiles were positive toward doctrine and advanced to maturity, sometimes with the help of Israel and in some cases without the help. There were saved gentiles in every generation of Israel; and those who reached spiritual maturity as well.
2. This psalm was very familiar to the Jews, but not very popular with some of them because it placed total emphasis on the Gentiles.

3. Only a grace oriented and mature Jewish believer like Paul can appreciate and quote in such a brief and meaningful psalm about Gentiles.
4. Not only does it describe historically the fact of Gentile salvation through faith in Christ but the advance of Gentile believers to maturity—through doctrine resident in the soul. We do not know all of the ways in which the doctrine was available but we do know that there was doctrine, enough to advance to maturity and to fulfil the plan of God.
5. Prophetically this short psalm is messianic. It refers to the attitude of Gentile believers prophetically at the Tribulation—Tribulational believers who through spiritual maturity have been preserved in historical catastrophe by the grace of God, and who are alive at the Second Advent of Christ. In fact, these Gentile believers form the Gentile cadre for the millennial population of Gentiles.
6. While the style of this psalm is liturgical the content is doctrinal.
7. The doctrinal implications are both historical and eschatological, therefore Paul quotes it to confirm the fact that Christ is the minister to the Gentiles as well as the Jews in every dispensation of history, and in dispensations which are related to prophecy.
8. Mature Gentile believers worshipped Jehovah in the Old Testament. Mature Gentile believers will worship Christ during the Tribulation, at the Second Advent, and will carry over into the Millennium. In Romans 9:30-33 many Gentiles in the Old Testament were saved while Jews who had the advantage of evangelism were unsaved.

In the Romans quotation is a present active imperative from the verb aineō (αἰνέω) [pronounced ahēe-NEH-oh]. It means to praise, to celebrate. Here it is used for the expression of worship based on Bible doctrine resident in the soul. Hence, the mature Gentile believer is expressing his occupation with Christ in worship. The customary present tense denotes what habitually occurs in the worship of the mature believer. He is occupied with Christ. He has tremendous inner resources of doctrine, and therefore has the ability to concentrate on who and what Christ is. The active voice: the mature believer produces the action of the verb in worship. The imperative mood is the imperative of permission. The command signified by the imperative may be in compliance with an express desire or a manifestation inclining toward the one who is the object of the command. The mature believer is the object of the command. Furthermore, the mature believer is a Gentile in the dispensation of Israel.

The accusative singular direct object from kurios (κύριος) [pronounced KOO-ree-oss], one word for the battlefield title of royalty of the Lord Jesus Christ—King of kings and Lord of lords reduced to one word, kurios (κύριος) [pronounced KOO-ree-oss], but refers to the entire title. With it is the generic use of the definite article to emphasize the 3rd category of our Lord's royalty as well as His uniqueness in hypostatic union. Plus the vocative plural from the adjective pás (πάς) [pronounced pahs] and the noun ethnos (ἔθνος, οὐς, τό) [pronounced EHTH-noss]—"all you Gentiles."

“and laud him all ye people” – the connective use of kai followed by the aorist active imperative of epainéō (ἐπαινέω) [pronounced ehp-ah-ee-NEH-oh]. The change from praise to laud is not in the verb which means both. The ep added here as the prefix means to applaud. It is translated in the old English, “laud,” but it means to applaud, an overt manifestation of an inner thought. The culminative aorist tense views the worship in its entirety but regards it from the viewpoint of existing results. The mature believer, in effect, applauds. The active voice: the mature Gentile believer of Old Testament times and the Tribulation occupied with the person of Christ produces the action of the verb. This is the imperative of permission again. The accusative singular direct object from the intensive pronoun autós (αὐτός) [pronounced ow-TOSS], used primarily in the New Testament for the third person personal pronoun, is correctly translated “him”—“and applaud him.” Then the final vocative plural, pás (πάς) [pronounced pahs] plus laos (λαός) [pronounced lah-OSS], indicating a large number of people who have cracked the maturity barrier at certain times in history, in the past, and skipping over the Church Age, prophetically in the future.

Romans 15:11 And again, Praise the Lord, all ye Gentiles, and applaud him, all you people.

Points

1. Eschatologically this is comparable to the big genuflect for the Church or the royal family of God. After the resurrection of the Church at the Rapture the next event is the big genuflect which precedes the judgment seat of Christ.
2. A similar event occurs at the Second Advent in which the Old Testament believers are resurrected and receive their efficiency rating at an event comparable to the judgment seat of Christ. There will be Jews and gentiles raised up.
3. Prior to this judgment seat of Christ there will be a period of worship, and that period of worship is also included prophetically in this quotation. It is described in Revelation chapter 5, also Revelation 19:1-6; 20:4.

Romans 15:12 And again, Isaiah says: “There will be the root of Jesse, and the One arising to rule over the Gentiles; in Him the Gentiles will hope.” (BLB)

Verse 12 – “And again” is kai palin (πάλιν) [pronounced PAL-in]. Reference to Isaiah 11:10 which, correctly translated from the Hebrew says, “Then it shall come to pass in that day [Second Advent] that the root sprout of Jesse [title for the Lord Jesus Christ: root = virgin birth; sprout = resurrection, ascension, session], who stands as a guidon [used for rallying and organization]; for him the Gentiles will search” – the Jews are being regathered; He is the guidon for the Jews. The guidon is how troops would be rallied or gathered in the right place.

But the Gentiles also will search for Him – the qal imperfect of the Hebrew verb dârash (דָּרַשׁ) [pronounced daw-RASH], which means to be motivated in a search from information contained in one’s soul. In this case it is Bible doctrine. Mature believers from among the Gentiles are searching for the Lord Jesus Christ – “and his temple shall be glory.” In that day, 2nd advent, the root shoot of Jesse, with emphasis on His humanity—root: David's greater son; sprout: virgin birth; fulfilled in Revelation 5:5; 22:16.

At the Second Advent we have the military standard used as the rallying point. The Jews rally for regathering and receiving the unconditional covenants. The saved Gentiles are mentioned as gathering also, they are seeking the Lord Jesus Christ. The Gentiles, then, in Isaiah 11:10 are very important: "For him the Gentiles will search." Paul is making a big point in quoting this. He is pointing out once again that there never was a time when, because Jews had special responsibility and are God's people, Gentiles are ever excluded. "And his temple shall be glory" is the qal perfect of hâyâh (הַיָּה) [pronounced haw-YAW] which means to become—"his temple shall become glory." The word for "glory" here is the feminine singular noun m^enûwchâh (מְנוּחָהּ) [pronounced m^e-noo-KHAAH], plus the suffix meaning "his glory." This is the third masculine singular suffix, referring to the Lord Jesus Christ at the Second Advent. M^enûwchâh (מְנוּחָהּ) [pronounced m^e-noo-KHAAH] is translated "glory," but it really means "resting place," place of prosperity, and it is used for the temple of Jehovah. Glory actually refers to the coronation of the Lord Jesus Christ in that temple.

Isaiah 11:10 Therefore it will come to pass in that day [Second Advent] that the root sprout of Jesse, who stands as the guidon [rallying point of the Jews of the dispersion]; that the Gentiles will also search for him, and his resting place shall be the glory.

The Gentiles will find him because they are just as well briefed as Israel. Even though they are not of that chosen race they have doctrine resident in their souls to the same extent, to the same degree, to the same amount and more so, and therefore they are included in blessing. The principle is that race, colour, creed, geographical location, etc., are never a handicap in the plan of God.

Our only handicaps are those we place over ourselves and those we allow others to put over us.

Paul continues: "Esaias saith," present active indicative from légô (λέγω) [pronounced LEH-goh], meaning to communicate. The present tense is a historical present, it views past event of Isaiah and the prophet writing the book of Isaiah with the vividness of a present occurrence. It is just as if yesterday Isaiah had said this to Paul, even though it had been in the canon of Scripture for a long time. The active voice: Isaiah as the human author under the ministry of the Holy Spirit produces the action of the verb. Isaiah was aware of the fact that he was writing sacred scripture. The indicative mood is declarative for the reality of Isaiah 11:10 as being a part of the Old Testament canon of scripture. "And again. Isaiah communicates."

"There shall be a root of Jesse" – future active indicative from eimi (εἶμι) [pronounced eye-ME]. This is a predictive future tense. The subject prophetically is the Lord Jesus Christ at the first advent, and the indicative is the absolute dogmatic reality of the first advent of Christ—the virgin birth, hypostatic union, impeccability, reconciliation, propitiation and redemption (at the cross), followed by physical death, burial, resurrection and ascension. The indicative views the action of the verb from the viewpoint of reality. Next is the predicate nominative from the noun rhiza (ρίζα) [pronounced HRID-zah]. With the generic use of the definite article it comprehends Christ as a single whole in the hypostatic union and sets Him off in distinction from all other people—He is the impeccable God-Man. The proper name, David’s father Jesse in its Hellenised form is Iessai (Ἰεσσαί) [pronounced es-es-SAHee]. This is a messianic title for the Lord Jesus Christ, emphasizing both the Davidic dynasty and the importance of the virgin birth. There is a relationship here for shôresh (שֹׁרֶשׁ) [pronounced SHOH-resh] [Hebrew] and rhiza (ρίζα) [pronounced HRID-zah] is an exact equivalent in the Greek—the root sprout. “There shall be the root sprout of Jesse” the Lord Jesus Christ descended from David, the son of Jesse, in His humanity.

“and he that shall rise to reign over the Gentiles” – the ascensive use of kai is correctly translated “even.” The articular present middle participle from anistêmi (ἀνίστημι) [pronounced ahn-ISS-tay-mee] means to rise up in the sense of coming into existence, coming on to the scene historically. But it also means to rise up in the sense of a literal, bodily resurrection. Both are true with regard to Christ. Christ came into existence to rule and Christ was raised from the dead to rule. However, since the root of Jesse covers the virgin birth and the existence of the hypostatic union this refers to the resurrection of Christ—“even he who shall rise up.” The definite article is used here as a personal pronoun referring to the Lord Jesus Christ in hypostatic union. The perfective present tense denotes the continuation of existing results. Jesus Christ continues in hypostatic union forever. It refers to the resurrection of Christ as a past event but emphasizes it as a present reality. Our Lord is seated at the right hand of the Father in hypostatic union and we are a part of His royal family. The direct middle refers to the fact that the subject, the Lord Jesus Christ participates in the results of His own resurrection. This is a circumstantial participle, it is a major part of eschatology.

There is an express reason stated for the resurrection here. Not the resurrection as related to the Jews, which is a true doctrine—the fulfilment of the unconditional covenants, but the resurrection as a relationship to the Gentiles: “to reign over the Gentiles” – present active infinitive of the verb archô (ἄρχω) [pronounced ahr-KHOH] which means to rule or to reign. The present tense is a futuristic present, it denotes an event which has not yet occurred but is so certain in thought that it is mentally already in existence. It is a reality, it is already here in the thinking of anyone who knows Bible doctrine. The significance: Jesus Christ is returning to deliver Israel, to fulfil God’s Word to Israel. But He is returning for another purpose. All the Gentile believers of the Old Testament and all the Gentile believers of the Tribulation are just as much in the picture as the Jews. The active voice: Jesus Christ produces the action of the verb at the Second Advent and during the Millennium. The infinitive is an actual result. With it is the objective genitive plural specifying the Gentiles, ethnos (ἔθνος, οὺς, τό) [pronounced EHTH-noss], to indicate that Jesus Christ is just as much God of the Gentiles as He is the God of the Jews.

“in Him shall the Gentiles trust” – the preposition epí (ἐπί) [pronounced eh-PEE] plus the locative of the intensive pronoun autós (αὐτὸς) [pronounced ow-TOSS] used as a personal pronoun, and it means “in him.” Gentiles have just exactly the same position as the Jews without having all of the advantages that existed in the dispensation of Israel or in relationship to the unconditional covenants. The absence of the definite article emphasizes the quality of these Gentiles, they are believers who survived the Tribulation because of doctrine. Flexibility through doctrine means survival. In the life of the mature believer the essential is doctrine; the non-essentials are everything else.

The word translated “trust” in the KJV is elpizô (ἐλπίζω) [pronounced el-PID-zoh]. It is both an Attic Greek verb and a Koine Greek verb, but there are differences between the Attic and the Koine. Here Paul switches from Koine to the Attic future tense. But this is also a gnomic future for a statement of fact or performance which is expected of the mature Gentile believers of the Tribulation. With doctrine you can stand anything, you can handle anything, under any situation in life. The active voice: the Gentile believer with maximum doctrine in the soul produces the action of the verb in the Tribulation—future tense for a future event. The indicative mood is a dogmatic declarative indicative for an absolute statement of future fact. This will happen. Believers will survive the most awful conditions in history for one reason: they have remained inflexible about the epignôsis (ἐπίγνωσις) [pronounced ehp-IHG-noh-sis] doctrine in their souls, but they are totally flexible with regard to its use and application in historical catastrophe.

Romans 15:12 And again, Isaiah communicates, There shall be the root sprout of Jesse, even He Who shall rise up to reign over the Gentiles; in Him shall the Gentiles trust.

Lesson #484

484 08/02/1978 Romans 15 Doctrine of the royal family honor code (revised, pt.1–6); dueling; morality

Jesus Christ is the minister to the Jew and to the gentile in Old Testament times. Jesus is the head of the body; and we live under the royal family honor code. From the beginning of the day of Pentecost to today, we are under a unique system.

We cannot begin v. 13 until we know the royal family honor code. What is being portrayed here but nowhere else in the Word of God?

Napoleon placed Moreland in a barrel of rum; but the hair on his mustache continued to grow and it came down to his waist. Human life begins with God imputes it.

X+Y+Z plan of God.

Personal integrity under the royal family honor code is giving others the leeway to advance spiritually.

There are 13 points in the royal family honor code. Some will be a review and some of it will be new. This will include material from Lessons #484, 485, 486 and 487.

The Royal Family Honor Code (1978)

Starting this doctrine from scratch:

A.

Definition and description:

1. The royal family honor code is the Christian way of life. This is what God requires for the individual believer to advance to maturity. It allows others to advance without one believer distracting another believer.
2. Aristocracy have standards. Royalty emerge and they have superior standards which they develop. Right thinking results in right motivation resulting in right function. Aristocracy means an honor code. Sometimes, it includes dueling. This is done very formally. The one challenged picks his pistol. They have agreements which are set up first. When Bob was growing up in Beverly Hills, much of this code was still in effect to some limited degree. Believers are aristocracy forever.
3. Right thinking and right motivation are based on maximum doctrine resident in the soul.
4. The honor code of the believer is based upon the fact that every believer at salvation receives the imputation of divine righteousness at the moment of salvation. Possessing God's righteousness requires advance.
5. The royal family honor code is how we all advance in a group, even though in any local church, we have every sort of variation. The Christian baby is obviously a dummy; but do we jump down his throat for every wrong thing that he says? He can say something stupid and you let it go.
6. Every believer has one-half of divine integrity.
7. The royal family honor code lines up with the spiritual advance of the believer.
8. The honor code demands that we operate with the grace policy of God.
9. All blessing comes from the justice of God passed down to the believer is through the grace pipeline. Nothing breaks through the encapsulation.
10. The objective is to advance in the spiritual life.

B. Principles of the royal family honor code:

1. Recognition of the privacy of the priesthood. We have freedom, which includes privacy in public. We have a right to the way we dress and the way that we groom ourselves. Freedom requires property.
2. The Christian way of life is pro-freedom. It is for free enterprise.
3. The principle of live and let live overflows to the Christian mode of life.
4. We are our own priest. We represent ourselves to God. This is quite different from Israel and their priesthood system.
5. Every believer has the right to gather and learn Bible doctrine. We have a right regardless of what we do in life; we have a right to assemble. You have a right to come and listen to the Word of God.
6. We surrender our privacy to individuals to whom we choose. Under impersonal love, the subject is emphasized; for personal love, the object is emphasized.
7. When we choose under impersonal love to give up our privacy, then we cannot complain. We can sit in Berachah Church and be as anonymous as we want to be. Every believer must approach the Word of God with objectivity.

8. Each believer needs to avoid maligning, judging, gossiping,...
 9. Toleration of other opinions must exist.
- C. The royal family honor code demands impersonal love.
1. You must understand between essential and nonessential; personal love and impersonal love. If you get these mixed up, you will be mixed up for the rest of your life.
 2. Personal love is only for a few people and the object is emphasized.
 3. Rm/rw is category #2. This is very limited.
 4. Friends opens the door a little bit. We have some built-in friends; your relatives and your dog. This is still limited.
 5. Impersonal love is unlimited. Love the brothers is not personal love. Nor is it standing up and telling the person behind you that you love them. This is idiocy; this is abnormal. You don't tell everyone that you love them unless you are insane; or a nymphomaniac. Impersonal love = relaxed mental attitude. Our norms and standards are not what we think.
 6. You do not need to run around and explain yourself to others. They might be gossiping or whatever. You do not seek revenge. You do not retort or retaliate.
 7. Impersonal love cannot be reduced to dog-eat-dog. This would be lowering yourself to their standards. You function under your standards.
 8. Some people spend a lot of time looking sad or they bandage themselves up. The biggest failure in the honor code is the person who feels sorry for himself and then wants everyone else to share in this. This means that you are not living as an aristocrat.
- D. The common objective of every believer in time: the advance to spiritual maturity; perseverance in the production of Bible doctrine.
1. People who flit from place to place. You must get under one person and learn a system. Now, many are not able to do this. We must get under a system of theology. This is imperative. You must be thinking in terms of honor code.
 2. Pastor's authority is teaching doctrine and setting policy in the church. It is not up to him to referee fights.
 3. Our legislature has moved into a place of interference. Imputation righteousness. You may be rubbing elbows with people in another stage of growth.
 4. Motivation must come from the individual believer's inner resources. You can come to class and not get it.
- E. The honor code builds integrity but does not reject morality. People can have integrity without morality. Gaius Julius Cæsar and Napoleon Bonaparte had no morality, but were both men of integrity. Integrity function of the honor code. This comes from the filling of the Spirit and taking in Bible doctrine. Christianity is not morality but it does not exclude morality.

- F. The honor code excludes Christian production as a means of blessing from God. The royal family honor code excludes all forms of works as the means of divine blessing. There is blessing by association with a mature believer.
- G. The Christian way of life; we know that God is able to properly evaluate us. The question might be, what if I am saved for 5 minutes and am raptured. I could not grow; I could not produce. God is able to determine how the believer would respond if given those additional years. Everyone gets a fair shake from God. The Christian way of life does not reject morality but morality is not the Christian way of life. The Christian way of life is a supernatural way of life that demands a supernatural application.
 - 1. As battlefield royalty, there was no honor code and no royal family. No aristocracy without a code. Morality is not a code but it is a system. A code excludes self-righteousness and self-pity. A code of honor goes with aristocracy.
 - 2. There is the house of Hanover, which are not very bright people; but the code carries them. Perhaps two smart people in the whole line. George III was one of the two smart ones (George III from the US Revolution).
 - 3. Bob cannot remember the music group, but he calls them the four jackasses. You can be the dumbest person in the palace and know exactly what to do from Bible doctrine.
- H. Total dependence upon the integrity of God is called the honor code; and this is known as hope. (One point off; might belong with previous)
- I. The royal family honor code sustains the believer in the advance to maturity. Two sustaining factors: the laws of divine establishment; royal family honor code. Without these two systems, no one could advance to maturity. Laws of divine establishment provide us the freedom. These are for believers and unbelievers alike. We depend upon the honor code in order to advance. We are at different stages of growth and we do not mess with others during this advance.
- J. A summary:
 - 1. The honor code is related to God, the nation and to individuals.
 - 2. The morality of establishment, along with live and let live; but the integrity of the mature believer surpasses all morality. Integrity is greater than morality. With integrity you can be right and not distract anyone. Most people are right and they are a pain in the neck.
 - 3. Advancing to maturity is the thrust of the royal family honor code.
 - 4. The honor code relates the plan of God to the individual on a day by day basis. God is looking out for us by providing the royal family honor code; and also by looking at our potential as well as our actual. It is not God's will for anyone to be lost. But if you are negative at God consciousness or at gospel hearing, then you have superimposed your free will over God's sovereignty. This is blasphemy against the Holy Spirit. The potential of salvation is the beginning of momentum.

5. God allows us to reject His will at any time.
6. X+Y+Z plan of God.
7. Young believers can move ahead if the mature believers give them space and freedom.

K. (Actually point #10). The royal family honor code demands more of the strong or mature believer than of the weak believer. Romans 15:1–4 We all have blind spots, but we learn more and more about the honor code. We learn it little by little. There comes a time when our conscience and our personal integrity are equal. We fail, but we know that we have failed. People with integrity can carry a person who lacks leadership. You do not hear the word integrity under socialism.

L. The thrust of the honor code demands authority-orientation. (This is point #11)

1. The true concept of authority is taking responsibility for many other lives. For most people, it is a matter of telling other people what to do. Authority is absolutely necessary because all people are not equal; nor do they have a clarity of thought regarding the organization of life.
2. Authority requires moral courage and the concept of fairness toward all.
3. There is no one in government today in any branch of government who can even begin to compare with the greatness of those in free enterprise in the business world. They had enough courage to put together large packages; and they were willing to supply others. The government comes along, having more moral courage or concept of free enterprise, and they try to take their cut. Today, to be a successful businessman, is to be a pariah on society. They are considered to be the lowest. The thrust of the honor code demands that we have spiritual authority. No working man can make the policy. The policy is up to those who are running the show. Labor unions are anti-Christian. This divides the authority and it destroys the authority of those who made things great. In the past, labor unions could not get through the front door because the laborers were taken care of.
4. Weak people resent authority. Arrogant people are weak people; and they resent authority. This can be the wife rejecting the authority of her husband or the parents rejecting the authority of their parents.
5. There are no self-made men in Christianity. You cannot read a book and be an expert. You cannot do that as a Christian. Everyone in life must learn the system of authority which they are in. Jails are filled with people who never caught on to authority. Welfare rolls are filled with people who have not adjusted to authority.
6. This means that you follow a policy which is designed for the benefit of all concerned. Bob can be fired; but until that day, we are going to do thing his way and not your way. For crises in life, Bob is not going to run around and hold hands with everyone. His job is the teach us doctrine to apply during the crisis. "If I'm polite to you on the phone is a miracle."
7. The positive believer can move forward in the Christian life as long as there is authority to allow. There are police officers in the parking lot patrolling to keep us safe in the parking lot. Without law or the police, you would not have anything. A bad cop or a bad pastor does not knock out the entire system. Just because we know of a bad apple in a barrel, that does not mean that we stop eating applesauce.

8. Divine authority is clearly represented in the Scripture. There is no system of authority which is not found in the Word of God. Life is structured by authority. We like sports because there is a system of authority in place. Divine authority delegates human authority.
 9. In the spiritual realm, authority is relegated to the pastor-teacher. No matter how society accepts or rejects you, you have the same right to take in doctrine as anyone else. Your background is not an issue. "I saw your husband in church the other night." It blew his cover. The authority of the pastor is related to the spiritual gift. The pastor-teacher needs to delegate authority when necessary. The person with authority should not handle the administration of a church. In the prep school, there is a vast army of administrators. Bob only approves the curriculum when it is presented to him. Bob smiles at the rug rats and return their salutes.
 10. The pastor's personality is never the issue. There is no substitute for Bible doctrine in your soul.
 11. The whole trick to learning doctrine will be you setting aside your personal problems.
- M. Reciprocity in categories. Romans 15:26–27 we anticipate a detailed study of this passage.
1. Romans conquered Greece. They called the people the Achaians; later they would be called Dorics. Achaian is northern Greece. Many officers moved there. Philippi was the place of a great battle. Paul did extensive evangelism in this area. Many Jews in Jerusalem may even resent the offering made to the gentiles outside of Jerusalem. The honor code principle, reality always demands that you are inflexible with regards to the essentials. The principle of reciprocity as an extension of the royal family honor code. No matter what the mental attitude might be, arrogance, antagonism, etc. makes no difference. This comes from the norms and standards of the soul.
 2. Loving the brethren does not mean that you must turn around and tell them that you love them. Courtesy, yes. Direct contact, not necessary. Impersonal love is all about the subject, not the object.
 3. Romans 15:1 we are to bear the weaknesses of the weak and not to accommodate ourselves. This is a description of the gentiles sharing their blessings with those in Jerusalem.
 4. Distortions of asking for money, begging for money, finding out your income and presenting you with a bill.
 5. Emotion is the appreciatory. Memory center. Norms and standards. Emotion has no ability to think; it has no common sense. Emotion is not spirituality. The spiritual life is doctrine + filling of the Spirit.
 6. Reciprocity between doctrinal teaching and the blessings from God.

7. The grace pipeline is established between the two attributes of God: His justice and His righteousness.
 8. Aided and abbetted by a clergy of imbeciles. Blessing is based upon the justice of God giving to the righteousness of God.
 9. The strong or mature believer has been blessed; and he is so motivated from the doctrine to give to the destitute believers in Jerusalem.
- N. Royal family honor code demands the avoidance of self-pity and any function that arouses pity in others. Self-pity is a weakness. This comes from being inflexible in the nonessentials. Requiring and demanding the love of someone else because you make yourself into a pitiful object.
1. Great strength through flexibility. Great weakness in trying to make others feel sorry for you.
 2. The response demanded is impersonal love. This excludes self-pity and repudiates any system to gain another's compassion. A lover's quarrel and one see the writing on the wall, so he does something to get the pity of the girlfriend. One person in Berachah was always able to look sad or pitiful.
 3. Romans 14:8 when we live, we live to the Lord; and when we died, we die to the Lord. People use pity in order to get their way. Self-pity is a sin and it is a false norm for love. Romans 15:5–7 now may the God of perseverance and encouragement. The royal family honor code demands for every believer to utilize Bible doctrine in order to find his courage and inner strength from... At the old Berachah Church, this guy who was wealthy would pretend to be a beggar and he really cleaned up. He made much more than Bob did in those days. Bob calls him Lazarus. It gave many people such a thrill to give money to him. He was never bothered by inflation. Bob never let people know. There are people who intentionally dress in a way in order to make you feel sorry for them. Missionaries do this as well.
- O. The elimination of self-righteousness. Self-righteous people are always a pain in the neck and other parts of the anatomy. They are right and wrong at the same time. This is why the honor code function excludes self-righteousness. Sin, human good and evil are what we are to avoid. Self-righteousness is a sin; and it produces human good and evil. Self-righteousness is a complex of evil which is eliminated in the royal family honor code. Self-righteousness is excluded. It is an insult to the integrity of God. It is a denial of logistical grace.

Lesson #485

485 08/03/1978 Romans 15 Doctrine of the royal family honor code (7–10); morality; greater obligation of the strong believer

The royal family honor code points will be placed with the doctrine above.

If you learn any doctrine, you will never be a liberal again. This country is going crazy.

Some Additional Points

1. The royal family honor code assigns additional responsibility to the strong believer
2. Bearing the weakness of the weak is part of this assignment; and total toleration when it comes to the nonessentials. Flexibility in the nonessentials is strength and not weakness. The arrogant person may look down on you, but in reality, you are much stronger than he is. You may bend me but you will not break me.
3. Maximum function of impersonal love fulfills the strong believer to the weak believer. This is called the law of love.
4. By not accommodating ourselves, the emphasis is placed on the norms and standards of the subject. By not accommodating ourselves, we are flexible. We do not accommodate ourselves; but we accommodate others. Strength through flexibility. You can back down because you do not have to prove anything. You back down and apologize even when you don't need to. The loudmouth is arrogant. But you do not take yourself down to his level.
5. Impersonal love emphasizes the norms and standards of the subject. No merit is assigned to the object.
6. It is quite a burden to hear the weak believer babbling nonsensical opinions. You must remember that the weak believer is weak; minimum doctrine and maximum arrogance. A fool is someone who is inflexible about a nonessential. The strong or mature believer must carry heavy burdens by tolerating silly people and arrogant people; and inconsequential people with inconsequential opinions. You cannot give new norms and standards to a fool. You can knock his teeth out, but he holds onto his norms and standards. You cannot bully him with new norms and standards. Through perception of doctrine, the weak believer will become strong.

Historically one of the things which has saved the English people is their marvelous ability to laugh at themselves. No humor in the Arthurian legends. Everyone is inflexible with regards to the nonessentials.

The man who will succeed the king is called the prince of Wales due to the early rulership of the Welsh. The English had a very sly sense of humor. We are going the same way, it seems.

The honor and the integrity of the strong believer is the Christian way of life. This is thinking integrity and being flexible.

1977 Romans

Lesson #486

486 08/04/1978 Romans 15 Doctrine of the royal family honor code (11, necessity of authority orientation to maintain momentum for advance); delegated authority at Berachah prep school

The royal family honor code is above morality and all other codes. Freedom is related to privacy, property and the umbrella of authority. We have learned about the essentials and the nonessentials.

For too many people, the Christianity is on some sort of competition between our morality and the morality of other religions. People in their minds do not see any difference. We have not demonstrated that there is a difference experientially to the casual observer. It is one thing to be a soldier; but it is another to actually function as a soldier.

The royal family honor code points will be placed with the doctrine in Lesson #484.

1977 Romans

Lesson #487

487 08/06/1978 Romans 15 Doctrine of the royal family honor code (12–14); reciprocity; self–pity; self–righteousness; doctrine of the tragic flaw

Romans 12–15 we have noticed the great thrust of the Christian way of life.

A Review of a Number of Principles:

1. $X+Y+Z =$ good of intrinsic value. God has a plan for every member of the human race.
2. Our freedom includes the privacy of the royal priesthood. The concept of live and let live.
3. The difference between the royal priesthood and royal ambassadorship. Every believer can produce at various stages of growth. Production is the result of spiritual advance, but never the means.
4. Flexibility and inflexibility with the essentials and the nonessentials.
5. God accepts all who believe in His Son, even if they become believers and are filled with human viewpoint. The new believer has many unusual ideas not associated with Bible doctrine.
6. There is privacy in Berachah Church. No visitor cards. No demand that you stand up and talk with people around you. People have some kooky ideas and we let them alone.
7. Impersonal love and personal love. Love you neighbor as yourself is not, however you feel about yourself, that is how you should feel about your neighbor.
8. A fellow believer might gossip about you; but you allow them to do this with retaliating. You do not lower yourself to their norms and standards. Forgiven and forget and move on.

The royal family honor code points will be placed with the doctrine in Lesson #484.

The concept of the tragic flaw; always some flaw which limits the intake of Bible doctrine. We have studied this previously. This was done back in Lesson #465. Doctrine is a system or a structure, where one thing is dependant upon another. Our happiness is based on having the entire system. The Baptist approach, attending church on Sunday and prayer meeting; and you throw in some morality. Only Bible doctrine can sort out the rival things in life. A sociopath, the norms and standards of the conscience are required, but the sociopath lacks any true norms and standards. A sociopath who is positive toward doctrine has the advantage because he has never had any norms and standards before. The neurotic and psychotic have more difficulty. The neurotic tends to get into interpersonal conflicts. All people who come to church are not normal. Most are.

Bob has contact with several psychiatrists in the city who ask what is going on there, because they seem to have motivation from going to Berachah Church. Abnormal persons do not see reality as an essential but as a nonessential. Christians like this are self-centered and they are expecting God to clear up their problems immediately. Abnormal people who are disassociated with reality can still carry on in their jobs. They can function. There were abnormal people in the air force who could fly. Once they got out of the plane, they were back to unreality. You can do a great many things at a job, mechanical things, because people with mental problems can do mechanical. There are neurotic generals who get messtup and can no longer make decisions. We have these in the pulpits, but they hide everything under a pleasing personality.

Entertainers can be extremely entertaining, but we should not look to them for advice in real life. We develop confusion in our souls if we allow ourselves to be influenced by their thinking.

Someone sees someone who is very strong, he goes to the gym and develops muscles. A person is not a man for having muscles.

Winston Churchill was brilliant in many ways, but he was terrible in strategy and tactics.

Tragic flaw #2: having capabilities in one area means you have similar capabilities in other fields.

Tragic flaw #3 is a good personality is a good person. Errol Flynn had a marvelous personality, but he was not a good friend and he was terrible to women. In reality, a good personality is a nonessential.

Stonewall Jackson and General Patton and George Washington all had terrible personalities; but they were great men. The personality of your pastor is unimportant.

1977 Romans

Lesson #488

488 08/07/1978 Romans 15 Doctrine of the tragic flaw (cont.); personal problems; doctrine of the weak and strong believer

Freedom is not divorced from privacy or property; and it has the umbrella of authority.

Tragic Flaw #4 is arrogant subjectivity with an overemphasis of one's own personal problems. These are people who fail to check their problems at the doors. You forget about your problems when you are in church. If you spend the entire class thinking about your problems, then you do not get any doctrine. The essential in life is the systematic theology of Bible doctrine. The nonessential are your problems at this moment in time.

The strong believer is protected from becoming arrogant regarding his blessings. He will have many opportunities to be flexible about the nonessentials.

Some of you plan to go to the hill country to deal with a crisis. But there are problems with hill country. In an historical disaster, the big question that Bob has is, does God want me to survive this disaster?

1977 Romans

Lesson #489

489 08/08/1978 Romans 15:13a Principle of hope motivation; doctrine of hope (points. 1–5); eternal security

Motivation for day to day. Expectations.

Romans 15:13 Now may the God of hope fill you with all joy and peace in believing, for you to abound in hope in the power of the Holy Spirit. (BLB)

If the gentile believers can attain maturity, then so can the Jewish believers.

Verse 13—“Now the God of the hope.” The postpositive conjunctive particle de is translated “Now.” This word indicates a connection between this verse and the previous one. This is to have us drive forward.

Christians are fine when the hole is opened up and it is easy to move through it; but they have problems when they face difficulties when trying to accomplish the same thing.

You cannot have 50,000 stumbling Christians claiming, “The devil is in my life and way.” The devil can only be in one place at a time. You can hit a stride in life, and without any effort at all, you can intensify it. You can find that you have motivation every day and you can have a tremendous zest for life.

Then the nominative singular subject ho theos (θεός) [pronounced theh-OSS] “the God.” This is a reference to the Lord Jesus Christ. He is God; and all of His attributes are perfect.

Hope is not uncertain; it is not merely a preference. Hope in the Bible is absolute confidence. You are expressing something that you know is true that has not yet taken place.

This is followed by the genitive of apposition from elpís (ἐλπίς) [pronounced el-PIS], absolute confidence with regard to the future. Hope is both the motivation and the momentum in advance in the Christian way of life. Jesus Christ is the hope. He is the primary motivator in life.

Plus the aorist active optative of the verb plêroô (πληρώω) [pronounced play-ROH-oh] plus the accusative plural direct object of su—“fill you.” If we have hope it is like a goblet, and the hope always demands filling. The fillings are the blessings. The hope is a goblet that God fills. What does God want to put in your goblet of hope? It must be filled up with something, and we have a series of things mentioned. Circumstances rule people; but when you have hope, you are not ruled. The optative mood is the mood of probability.

The Doctrine of Hope, which is back in Lesson #363. It is reasonably close and many of these points were covered previously.

1977 Romans

Lesson #490

490 08/09/1978 Romans 15:13b Doctrine of hope (points. 6–13); undeserved suffering focuses mature believer on eternity

The Doctrine of Hope is in Lesson #363.

Romans 15:13 Now may the God of hope fill you with all joy and peace in believing, for you to abound in hope in the power of the Holy Spirit. (BLB)

Some review of the exegesis. If we have hope, it is like a goblet; and the hope always demands filling. The filling are the blessings.

First of all, what is called “all joy” – the objective genitive singular from the adjective pás (πάς) [pronounced pahs] plus the noun chara (χαρά) [pronounced khahr-AH]. Chara (χαρά) [pronounced khahr-AH] is +H, God’s happiness. The first thing that God pours into hope is all happiness. Next “and peace in believing,” – the connective kai plus eirênê (εἰρήνη, ης, ἥ) [pronounced eye-RAY-nay] which means “prosperity,” the thought content of the soul under the 3rd hope. There is a relationship with God that no one else can have. That is why Abraham was called the friend of God, he carried around the 3rd hope—“and prosperity.” This is the imputation of blessing in time which glorifies God, and an imputation that will never occur until you crack the maturity barrier.

Then en (ἐν) [pronounced en] plus the instrumental singular from the definite article, and with it the present active infinitive of the verb pisteúō (πιστεύω) [pronounced pis-TOO-oh]—“by means of the believing.” The definite article indicates that the believing is a special process—transferring gnōsis (γνώσις) [pronounced GNOH-sis] doctrine to the right lobe and converting it into epignōsis (ἐπίγνωσις) [pronounced ehp-IHG-noh-sis] which is usable doctrine. This is accomplished by believing and is actually a reference to the function of GAP. The perfective present denotes a continuation of existing results. It refers to the use of faith to transfer Bible doctrine from the left lobe to the right lobe and converting it to epignōsis (ἐπίγνωσις) [pronounced ehp-IHG-noh-sis] in the mechanics of GAP. Hence, it refers to faith as the means of converting gnōsis (γνώσις) [pronounced GNOH-sis] into epignōsis (ἐπίγνωσις) [pronounced ehp-IHG-noh-sis]. The active voice: the believer who is consistently positive toward doctrine produces the action of the verb. The infinitive is an actual result. Now may the God [the Lord Jesus Christ] of the hope [the first hope] fill you with all happiness and prosperity by means of the believing. (Romans 15:13 so far)

491 08/10/1978 Romans 15:13c Flexibility traps illustrated by airlines, knife fighter and Napoleon; doctrine of happiness

Flexibility can be an indicator of strength but there are so many types of flexibility. Article on air travel, because of a rise in usage and a lowering of price. 16% increase over a year with 78% full. Head of Eastern pointed out that we have become mass travel. New mass transit role. Bob had a hippy next to him in 1st class.

Now a book on knife-fighting? Several systems of knife fighting.

All the things that Bob is reading is related to flexibility traps. Unhappiness, uncertainty and defeat. Unhappiness, uncertainty and defeat. Without doctrine, the believer can count on these three things. Strength through flexibility.

A person may be terribly unhappy and has just discovered that there is something beyond the gospel message. He replaces the law of liberty with the law of love. The very purpose for doing this is loss. Instead of strength through flexibility, you have unhappiness and defeat from flexibility. All jilted lovers: they are unhappy, etc. This is why v. 13 is so important.

Romans 15:13 Now may the God of hope fill you with all joy and peace in believing, for you to abound in hope in the power of the Holy Spirit. (BLB)

Bob repeats the Greek words.

Happiness is the content of doctrine in your soul which hooks up a line between you and God, so that you are aware of God in all of His attributes, you have new priorities which demand chara (χαρά) [pronounced khahr-AH]—thinking type happiness. We hear a lot about happiness in the Christian way of life; but there is not much of it in all actuality. The new priorities are the result of your advance in the plan of God. Happiness is the function of doctrine in your soul. Therefore happiness is related inevitably to doctrine since doctrine is our awareness of God, our relationship with God, our understanding of God, our appreciation of God. It is God's happiness connected to God's righteousness is what is the key to our thinking. And happiness is thinking, not emotion. There are many things that will stimulate emotion, there is only one thing that will stimulate chara (χαρά) [pronounced khahr-AH], and that is Bible doctrine. Now may the God [Jesus Christ] of the hope fill you with all happiness and prosperity by means of the believing [function of GAP].

We think of happiness as going out and having a good time. This is superficial and very unstable. Evanescent and frustrating. It is the accumulation of future misery more miserable.

Now, when the people who are in love, they are happy when together; and miserable when they are apart. A little happiness leads to a great deal of misery. Neutral H is a result of the laws of divine establishment. Minus H is happiness due to stimulation and the things that you want to do. This is going to make you unhappy tomorrow. You can never beat the rap with minus H. It leaves an after effect of missing something. To perpetuate minus H violates the entire concept of God's plan. Neutral H is achieving under free enterprise. Or the happiness of achieving in a profession. The soldier or the policeman who knows that he has done a great job, whether recognized or not. The relationship of rm/rw. This is a system that God has set up, found in Romans 13. Free enterprise, freedom through military victory, small government and big people; to succeed in a profession or in some activity of life. To succeed in life by identifying the right person of the opposite sex. These things do lead to legitimate happiness. Neutral H is a result of divine establishment principles. Not imputed to us by God. There is neutral H when the children turn out right. Believers and unbelievers can be happy when their children turn out well. Mothers are always delighted when their children turn out well. There is such thing as a happy nation from Psalm 98. A happy nation is a military nation.

Doctrinal teaching is related by happiness. To total military victory. There is happiness in military victory. There is happiness for those involved in free enterprise/prosperity.

+H is not determined by the circumstances of life. As a mature believer, you can be happy in a gulag in Russia or in a party in Houston. This is very unusual. This is way beyond the faith-rest technique. This only comes with maximum doctrine in the soul. Psalm 31:7 32:10–11 a Structurised heart is maximum doctrine in the soul. Psalm 33:3–4 Justice is the initiator and righteousness is the receiver. 1John 1:4 in fact these things we keep on writing in order that our happiness might be completed there might be doctrine in the soul

+H stabilizes every situation. In [Z] eternity becomes important. Philippians 4:4 Keep on having happiness; and once more I repeat the command. Proverbs 14:41 The one despises his... Psalm 146:5 Happiness to the one whose... Proverbs 16:20 happinesses to those who trust in the Lord. How happy is everyone who walks in the ways of the Lord Psalm 128: For thus will the man be happy 1Peter 3:14 If you should suffer for righteousness, you would be happy. Romans 14:22 related to the conscience of the believer. God is perfect, His character is perfect. God is immutable, his happiness is immutable. Happiness is an essential in the plan of God. Psalm 97:12 give thanks for the memory of His holiness. Habakkuk 3:18

you cannot build your happiness on someone else's unhappiness. You cannot build your happiness on the details of life. You cannot build your happiness on pleasant environment. You cannot build your happiness on those you love. Or on celebrity, success; or by revolution; on reversionism or carnality. You build happiness on establishment or by taking in Bible doctrine.

There is also a future happiness. Most of the beatitudes in Matthew are mostly for the Millennium. Happy are the meek ones, the mature believers in the Millennium.

You are happy when they heap insults upon you. Your happiness can be based upon being the salt of the land.

492 08/10/1978 Romans 15:13d Gentleman's flexibility in social life and manners; concept of prosperity, categories of blessing

An attack on a couple in a vehicle. More and more this is taking place today. A near collision resulted in a shootout. Several examples are given. 413 highway patrolmen were attacked and injured in the previous year in CA. Heterogenous groups tend to clash more often than homogenous groups. The real root is the sin nature. These old sin natures are functioning everywhere.

We have the misunderstanding of what it means to be inflexible with regards to the essentials and flexible with regards to the nonessentials.

Flexibility

1. Flexibility plus doctrine in the soul is strength. But on the other hand, flexibility minus doctrine resident in the soul is weakness. So that flexibility in itself is not a sign of strength, it can also be a sign of weakness.
2. The honor code teaches strength through flexibility, but this flexibility is based on doctrine resident in the soul through the daily function of GAP and should never be confused with oscillation or vacillation.
3. Flexibility without doctrine produces unhappiness, uncertainty and defeat.
4. Strength through flexibility is an honor code function which demands inflexibility in the essentials of doctrine and flexibility in the non-essentials of life.
5. Doctrine is an essential. The application of doctrine produces flexibility in the non-essentials. So the essentials of doctrine relate to the non-essentials of life.
6. For example, what doctrine teaches about the woman is an essential about which man must be very flexible. He can be inflexible with regard to the principle but he must be flexible with regard to its application. Some men in Berachah are inherently rude. Some assume their lordship over the females of the species.
7. In the application of doctrine producing flexibility we have a principle: Too often the arrogance of man makes certain demands on the woman where the man is self-righteous and too hasty to correct the woman, or to be self-righteous with the woman over some trivia.

A minor bit of manners is, the man offers his hand, but the woman does not. But once a woman offers her hand, no reasonable man would refuse it.

The woman being the weaker vessel does not mean that men walk all over them or tell them how things are going to be. Many of you have a lot to learn about flexibility. It is possible to be right in the matter of manners and to be wrong in the way that you apply that. You can be wrong and weak.

Bob learned to stand for you ladies when he was young; but his father stayed seated. Now, when Bob is around women, he stands for all, because they would certainly not understand the differences. Flexibility with strength is a great thing. You will never have flexibility with strength as long as you are filled with self-righteousness and a few bits of knowledge here and there.

Circumstances + doctrine = malleability.

Romans 15:13 Now may the God hope fill you with all joy and peace in believing, for you to abound in hope in the power of the Holy Spirit. (BLB)

Γνωσις has no application. It must be ἐπίγνωσις; Bible doctrine which has been believed.

“Where did you get that? Dr. So-and-so never taught that.” That is not believing. What you think is a nonessential. If you think your own thinking is the final say in all matters, then you cannot grow.

6 imputations outline the plan of God. Perception of doctrine is the only way to determine our steps through the plan of God.

It took 2 judicial imputations to get us to salvation. Adam's original sin was imputed to every person; and all of our sins were imputed to Jesus Christ. There is no natural affinity between our sins and the perfect Son of God; but they were accepted by Him. Then God's righteousness is imputed to us at faith in Christ.

Eirênê describes the six blessings which are given to us. Righteousness demands that justice impute divine blessing. God cannot impute blessing to us without compromising His perfect character. Righteousness as the principle of divine integrity.

What about the blessings that we receive after salvation? Last Thanksgiving, you thanked God for your clothes, your car, your place of residence. This is simply divine support. We are not given the same shelter, the same clothing, etc. There is blessing through establishment. It takes food to stay alive; and God provides different types of foods to different believers. We may come in a Porsche, a Rolls or one of those Jap jobs. Technically, this is all logistical support. It could be blessing if this came as a result of association with a mature believer.

Romans 8:32 The God, Who did not even spare His Own Son.

You have prepared for me a banquet before my enemies; You have anointed my head with oil. My cup is overflowing. Only prosperity and grace will pursue me all the days of my life and I will dwell in the house of the Lord forever.

If you are going to fast, do it in style. Without complaint and looking as good as you can. David was in a status of great blessing.

Temporal blessings: Wealth, prosperity, social and sexual prosperity, technical prosperity, professional prosperity, mental prosperity, the ability to enjoy your emotions without your emotions entering into a state of slavery. Cultural prosperity. Establishment prosperity. Leadership dynamics, health. A loved one periphery. If you are in reversionism, no one is blessed.

3rd category: blessing by association. In your periphery there are certain categories, your blessing to them in life; and sometimes even a blessing to them after you die. Direct blessing from God and indirect blessing. Your local church. As a mature believer, you are a blessing to that church and its function and operation.

4th category historical blessings.

5th category undeserved suffering which allows us to refocus on eternity.

6th category is dying grace.

“that ye may abound in hope” – the preposition eis (εἰς) [pronounced ICE] plus the accusative neuter singular from the definite article to introduce a purpose clause. The articular present active infinitive of the verb perisseuô (περισσεύω) [pronounced per-iss-SUE-oh], which means to abound, to overflow, to be extremely rich in, to excel in, to be prominent in—“that you may excel in the hope.” The present tense is a perfective present, it denotes the continuation of existing results of positive volition toward Bible doctrine. The active voice: the believer who is positive produces the action. The infinitive of purpose is the concept behind this preposition plus the articular infinitive.

With this is the subject in the accusative case, called the accusative of general reference, from the personal pronoun su in the plural—“you.” Plus the preposition en (ἐν) [pronounced en] plus the locative of elpís (ἐλπίς) [pronounced el-PIS]—“in hope.” Not hope in the sense of uncertainty but hope in the sense of absolute confidence and assurance with regard to a future event.

“through the power of the Holy Spirit” – this is a reference to spirituality: en (ἐν) [pronounced en] plus the instrumental of dúnamis (δύναμις) [pronounced DOO-nahm-iss], plus the possessive genitive from pneuma (πνεῦμα) [pronounced PNYOO-mah] and hagios (ἅγιος) [pronounced HA-gee-oss], a reference to the teaching ministry of God the Holy Spirit in the function of GAP: “by means of the power of the Holy Spirit.” The power of the Holy Spirit is the function of the filling of the Spirit in the perception of Bible doctrine. There is no perception of doctrine apart from the ministry of the Spirit. It also refers to the ministry of the Holy Spirit in the application of doctrine, in the application of the norms and standards which are developed in the conscience of the soul.

Romans 15:13 Now may the God [Jesus Christ] of the hope fill you will all [categories of] happiness and [peace and] prosperity by means of believing [function of GAP; Operation Z], that you may excel in the hope, by means of the power of the Spirit.

493 08/13/1978 Romans 15:14 Book: "Crisis in Command"; structurized Bible doctrine for motivation; tortilla image: divorce from reality

While young officers are motivated by principles, they often find those over them lacking in these principles. Promotion is associated often with trivial acts. Not moving up is too often related to a single poor efficiency report.

We will go into the next war with the unnecessary sacrifice of many men. No general can be an expert in the 15–20 disciplines necessary to know in order to oversee a brigade, an army, etc. Some people are ideally suited for specific numbers, and too often they are removed if they do not move up.

Christianity is out of touch with the reality of God's plan. Too many passages are bypassed because they do not apply to your personal situation at that particular time. The key is a large structurized system of Bible doctrine.

We have divisional commanders who do not understand strategy and tactics. They are there because of politics and not due to ability.

Paul the Minister to the Gentiles

Romans 15:14 And I myself also am persuaded concerning you my brothers, that you yourselves are also full of goodness, being filled with all knowledge, and being able to admonish one another. (BLB)

Verse 14 – “And I myself also am persuaded of you, my brethren.” The perfect passive indicative of peithō (πείθω) [pronounced PIE-thoh]—which means to obey, sometimes to believe, to be persuaded, and with the perfect tense of the passive voice it means to be convinced: “I am convinced.” With this is the intensive use of the postpositive conjunctive particle de, “in fact.” The intensive perfect emphasizes the existing results. When special attention is directed to the results of the action of the verb emphasis on the existing fact is intensified. This is the emphatic method in the Greek of presenting a fact or a condition. It is a strong way of saying to us a thing is, therefore it is translated by the English present tense. In the passive voice Paul, the human writer, receives the action of the verb from the observation of the Roman believers and their positive volition toward doctrine, as well as their recognition of apostolic authority. The indicative mood is declarative indicating a simple statement of fact. Plus “my brethren” – the vocative plural from the noun adelphos (ἀδελφός) [pronounced ad-el-FOSS], addressed to royal family in a specific location, translated “brethren,” but referring simply to those of like kind. Plus the genitive of relationship singular from the personal pronoun egó (ἐγώ) [pronounced ehg-OH]. “In fact I am convinced my brethren.”

Next in the Greek comes a phrase which may seem to be a little out of order with the English but in reality is the correct order: kai autós (αὐτοῦς) [pronounced ow-TOSS] egó (ἐγώ) [pronounced ehg-OH] peri humôn (ὕμῶν) [pronounced hoo-MONE] – “even I myself concerning you.” The ascensive use of kai is translated “even,” plus a repetition of the first person singular personal pronoun egó (ἐγώ) [pronounced ehg-OH], plus the predicate use of the intensive pronoun autós (αὐτός) [pronounced ow-TOSS], plus the prepositional phrase peri plus the genitive of the personal pronoun su.

“that you are full of goodness” – the predicate nominative plural from mestós (μειστός) [pronounced mes-TOSS], “that you are full.” The present active indicative of eimi (εἰμί) [pronounced eye-ME]—“you are.” The present tense is customary, it denotes what habitually occurs when believers have been motivated to take in doctrine consistently and now have structured doctrine in the soul. The active voice: positive believers produce the action of the verb. The indicative mood is declarative for historical reality. The word “goodness” is a possessive genitive singular from a substantive, agathōsunē (ἀγαθωσύνη) [pronounced ag-ath-o-SOO-nay], indicating the quality which man has who is agathos (ἀγαθός) [pronounced ag-ath-OSS], an adjective which means good of intrinsic value. The good of intrinsic value inside of us is Bible doctrine. Agathōsunē (ἀγαθωσύνη) [pronounced ag-ath-o-SOO-nay] is the possession of the highest virtue, and this in effect becomes the possession of the honor code functioning under the principle, inflexibility with regard to the essential of doctrine and total flexibility with regard to the non-essentials of life. So it involves both doctrine and the function of the honor code. Therefore a corrected translation: “that you are full of goodness [in the sense of doctrine producing integrity].”

“filled with all knowledge” – perfect passive participle of the verb plêroō (πληρώω) [pronounced play-ROH-oh], “having been filled.” This is a dramatic perfect emphasizing a completed action with emphasis on the results. In other words, this says that in the past we have taken in doctrine on a consistent basis and now we have cracked the maturity barrier, and now continue to take in doctrine and enjoy the benefits of the imputation of blessing in time. The passive voice: the believer who persists in +V toward doctrine produces the action. The participle is circumstantial for persistence and consistent function of GAP.

The objective genitive follows from the adjective pás (πάς) [pronounced pahs] plus gnōsis (γνώσις) [pronounced GNOH-sis], used here of knowledge as an attribute of God rather than knowledge in the first stage of the function of GAP. Cf. 1Corinthians 2:16, “the mind of Christ.” The word is used in the non-technical sense of thinking: “having been filled with all thinking of doctrine.” Because we think doctrine we are constantly oriented to reality and therefore flexible in the non-essentials.

“able also to admonish one another” How exactly does this related to the privacy of the priesthood? The adjunctive use of kai is correctly translated “also.” The present passive participle of dunamai (δύναμαι) [pronounced DOO-nam-ahēe] which means to be able—“also being able.” The perfective present tense denotes a continuation of existing results from maximum doctrine resident in the soul. The passive voice: the mature believer and the communicator of doctrine produces the action—the ability to communicate doctrine so that reality will persist in a group of people, a group of friends, or from the pulpit. The circumstantial participle emphasizes the communication of Bible doctrine.

Now, do we get to run around and tell other people how to act or how to dress? The present active infinitive from the verb nouthetéō (νουθετέω) [pronounced noo-thet-EH-oh] which is made up of two words: noús (νοῦς) [pronounced noose] = mind; tithēmi (τίθημι) [pronounced TIHTH-ā-mee] = to put]. It means to put into the mind, or to put or place in thought. It comes to mean to instruct, to impart understanding, and in some cases in the sense of setting something right. It means to communicate doctrine under the circumstances warranted. The verb connotes effect on the intellect, and it emphasizes the one qualified to exercise influence over the intellect. It means to soothe, to remind, to correct, and here to have a corrective influence. The descriptive present tense is for what is now going on in the life of the mature believer. The mature believer produces the action. The infinitive is actual result.

Plus the accusative plural direct object from the reciprocal pronoun allēlōn (ἀλλήλων) [pronounced al-LAY-lohn], which means each other of the same kind, referring to believers.

Romans 15:14 In fact I am convinced, my brethren, even I myself concerning you are full of goodness [in the sense of doctrine producing integrity; producing the royal family honor code function], having been filled with all knowledge, being able also to have a corrective influence on each other.

You are not intruding on the privacy of someone else. People carry over some very weird ideas from their unbeliever life.

When people are saved, it is a brand new world. They think that anything that is weird or abstruse is the spiritual life.

Bob Green article. A woman is making burritos for her husband's lunch. A woman sees the pattern on the tortilla produced a picture of Jesus, and she was convinced that this was a miracle. Everyone looked at the tortilla and decided that it was the image of Jesus. They decide to have the tortilla blessed. The pastor is not there, as he serves three churches. She drives 17 miles and the Father says, I think that this is just a coincidence. The woman disagreed and Father Finnegan blessed the tortilla, flexibility in the not essentials. She went home, put it in glass, and built a shrine to the tortilla and she quit her job to see to the tortilla. These people are totally divorced from reality. More and more people came to the Rubio house. In fairness, a reported said, "It looks more like Leon Spinks to me." Rubio's tortilla shrine has become quite a thing with 8000 signing her guest book. People brought pictures of sick family members. The changes in her life are divorced from reality.

1977 Romans

Lesson #494

494 08/13/1978 Romans 15:15a "Crisis in Command"; General John Wood; principle of alertness in Bible doctrine and personal defense

Jeff Cooper and his book. Loss of thought; loss of alertness.

There are times to back off; most of the time. Some drunk might approach you, you simply apologize and back off. The people there may think that you are a coward, but it makes no difference. It is not always the manly thing to be violent. The arrogant person either backs off as a coward; or if he is not afraid, he refuses to back down. The idea that the arrogant male needs to straighten out everyone is not a part of the Christian life.

It is okay that an officer is defeated; but never okay that he is surprised.

Always know what is behind you and always be aware of anything which is out of place. From flexibility you become alert. Alertness is one of the most important functions of life. Always note the unusual.

We have from doctrine in our souls and different situations require different responses.

Romans 15:15 But I have written to you more boldly in part, as reminding you, because of the grace having been given to me by God (BLB)

Verse 15 – as this verse stands in the KJV one would never assume that the basic principle found in this passage is alertness. If you are not thinking, you are not alert. The comparative adjective from tolmêros (τολμηρός) [pronounced tohl-may-ROSS] which means bold, daring, audacious. The adverb is formed from the comparative adjective, and the adverb is tolmêróteron (τολμηρότερον) [pronounced tol-may-ROT-er-on] and it means “more alertly.” Paul is suddenly alert to the problems of the believers in Rome and therefore he is writing in terms of alertness. With this adverb is a postpositive conjunctive particle de, translated “in fact.” The verb is the aorist active indicative of graphô (γράφω) [pronounced GRAWF-oh]. The active voice: Paul, as the human writer of the epistle, produces the action. He has become alert on behalf of the Roman believers. He is addressing this to them as believers.

The vocative of adelphoi (ἄδελφοί) [pronounced ad-el-FOY], however, is not found in the original, we simply have the dative plural indirect object from su. This is also the dative of advantage, it is to the advantage of the believers in Rome to be alerted by the doctrine now being presented, just as it is to our advantage to become alert with regard to what is going to be hereinafter written. “In fact I have written to you more boldly [with more alertness].”

“in some sort” is simply a prepositional phrase, apó (ἀπό) [pronounced aw-PO] plus the ablative singular of méros (μέρος) [pronounced MEH-ros], literally, “from apart.” This is an idiom meaning “in some part” or “in certain parts.” It means in certain parts of this epistle Paul has written for the purpose of making them aware of something, making them alert to the fact that the Christian way of life is not a system of self-righteousness, of keeping the law, of giving up things and observing taboos. Throughout the epistle there are certain alert passages in which the believer is to become aware of those around him, where he is to become sensitive, thoughtful and kind; those things which are so important in relationship to others.

“as putting you in mind” – the comparative particle hōs (ὥς) [pronounced hohç] indicates the manner in which something proceeds, and it should be translated “in such a way as.” Plus the present active participle from a triple compound verb epanamimnêskō (ἐπαναμυμνήσκω) [pronounced ep-an-ah-mim-NACE-ko] [ἐπί (ἐπί) [pronounced eh-PEE] = on, over, above; ἀνά (ἀνά) [pronounced aw-NAW] = again and again; mimnêskō (μιμνήσκω) [pronounced mim-NACE-koe] = remember or remind] It means to remind someone again—“in such a way as to remind you again.” Alertness comes from repetition. The progressive perfect is for linear aktionsart. Repetition means being reminded again and again. The active voice: Paul produces the action of the verb as the communicator of doctrine. The participle is circumstantial. Alertness comes from repetition.

60,000 men were wiped out in one hour of British aristocrats. Wiped out a generation of aristocracy.

You become alert by repetition. You see something over and over. Bob is a counter puncher. A bishop cannot be a striker of persons; but he can protect himself.

1977 Romans

Lesson #495

495 08/14/1978 Romans 15:15b Experience; John Keegan: "Face of Battle"; decisiveness; doctrine of logistical grace; Roman Empire cf. Republic; Patton's lack of grace

Eisenhower had no combat experience; yet he had moral courage and wisdom. This made him a great general.

Having experience is not necessarily a plus.

John Keegan book, where he says that he has not been in a war. He has walked through battlefields; he has read about battles; and he has some battles on television. He puts together a book with great understanding and research. He knows all of the details. There are three battles described in his book.

Romans 15:15 But I have written to you more boldly in part, as reminding you, because of the grace having been given to me by God... (BLB)

“because of the grace” – dia plus the accusative singular of the noun charis (χάρις) [pronounced KHAHR-ic], and the definite article which is used as a demonstrative pronoun, calling attention with special emphasis to grace as the designated subject. Therefore it is translated “because of that grace.” That grace is specific, it is not some principle of abstruse concept. Two specific concepts are in view here. The first is divine support in time, called logistical grace. The second principle is the spiritual gift involved. Paul recognized that Paul has a purpose for his life and that that purpose must be related to doctrine, and that whenever a problem, crisis, disaster or difficulty comes there must be structured doctrine resident in the soul on which to draw and on which to utilize. When Paul says “because of that grace” he is talking first of all about his spiritual gift of communication which is the gift of apostleship. But he is also talking about what he communicates to these Roman believers so that they will be ready for many difficulties which are coming historically to Rome. That means that they have the logistical support, that doctrine is available to them under logistical grace.

They are going to profit based upon what they learned prior to going into the situation. Some of us do not have problems or pressures right now, but we will. And what we have learned over and over again, we will apply those things in difficult circumstances.

Logistics is the science of supporting the troops in any position or action. 1Peter 3:18 But grow by means of grace and... Our momentum and our advance is all a matter of logistical grace. This includes keeps us alive. God is our security. Social security is an evil; it is neither social nor secure. Logistical security is fundamental in the life of the believer.

We are given time during which to fulfill God's plan; and this is done so that we can take in the information necessary from Bible doctrine. God provides the life, time and security; and this is all put together under the analogy of logistical support. Logistical grace requires that you learn Bible doctrine. Your pastor-teacher is your D.I. to provide you the information. The Bible is your field manual. The local church is designed your classroom. It is a teaching situation, for whatever comes in your own life. The principle of a home or a lot somewhere or a place by the river; any place where people can meet. The buildings that we meet in are not sacred. We meet for the purpose of shutting out the outside sounds and distractions. God provides a right pastor-teacher, which requires him to have the gift of communication. This is a part of God's grace. It is all based on grace. The pastor does not earn or deserve this. Nor does he develop this gift by being sweet. The pastor is human just like anyone else. Too many of them are moral cowards, beggars, and afraid of their congregation and of their authority. No pastor deserves his gift but he has it. Like the military; you may not like those with authority over you, but they are there. Similar to marriage. Marriage is not 50-50. It is a divine law; I didn't even make it up.

A man wants to think of women in romantic terms, but he can't do it if he has to deal with a revolution known as a bitch.

“that is given to me of God” – the articular aorist passive participle from the verb didōmi (δίδωμι) [pronounced dihd-OH-mee], “which have been given.” The aorist tense is a constative aorist for a fact or action extended over a period of time. It contemplates the action of the verb in its entirety. The passive voice: Paul receives the action of the verb from salvation to the time he wrote Romans. The participle is circumstantial. Plus the dative singular indirect object from the personal pronoun egó (ἐγώ) [pronounced ehg-OH]—“to me.” The indirect object in the dative case indicates that the one, Paul, in whose interest divine grace is provided. Paul has been sustained to this very moment so he can write to the Romans. Next is apó (ἀπό) [pronounced aw-PO] plus the ablative of source from theos (θεός) [pronounced theh-OSS]—“from the God.”

Paul understood grace and he lived under grace. The royal family honor code tells us how to live as a grace person. Berachah stands on this lot because of grace.

Romans 15:15 In fact I have written to you more boldly [with greater alertness] in part [in some parts of Romans], in such a way as to remind you again, because of that grace which has been given to me from the God.

Paul has been the recipient of grace and he gives that to us.

1977 Romans

Lesson #496

496 08/15/1978 Romans 15:16a FDR, unconditional surrender; doctrine of communication: Old Testament and Church Age gift of evangelism cf. witnessing

Panzer battles and an author explaining why the Germans lost. The people who wanted to assassinate Hitler sincerely believed that they were going to do the best for our country. FDR enunciated a policy to accept Germany's socialist government in unconditional surrender. This was at a conference in North Africa; and what FDR stated was all over the news. He was inflexible and this resulted in many being killed. To demand unconditional surrender is being totally disoriented to reality. He was never oriented to reality in any way. He gave a third of the earth to communism. "Don't worry about that; I can handle Joe."

At that point, Germany would have surrendered, except for what FDR said.

Romans 15:16 ...for me to be a minister of Christ Jesus to the Gentiles, administering the sacred service of the gospel of God, so that the offering of the Gentiles might become acceptable, having been sanctified in the Holy Spirit. (BLB)

Verse 16 – "That I should be the minister of Jesus Christ to the Gentiles." The preposition eis (εἰς) [pronounced ICE] plus the accusative of the definite article to plus the infinitive introduces a purpose clause. The function of a purpose clause is to express the aim of the action denoted by the main verb. The main verb is in the previous verse. This aim may be of the nature of a deliberate design, or it may be a matter of general direction, or as in this case, contemplated result. This is simply translated, "That I."

Next is the present active infinitive from eimi (εἶμι) [pronounced eye-ME], and with it the accusative of general reference from the personal pronoun egó (ἐγώ) [pronounced ehg-OH] used as the subject of the infinitive eimi (εἶμι) [pronounced eye-ME]. "That I should be." The present tense is a historical present employed when a past event is viewed with the vividness of a present occurrence. The active voice: Paul produces the action through the grace ministry of God, specifically God the Holy Spirit in providing for him a spiritual gift. He is the twelfth apostle. The infinitive of intended result is used when a result indicates or fulfils a deliberate objective. This is a blending of purpose and result.

Principle: Whatever we are, whatever it is that God intends for us to be, whatever we should be, God has guaranteed complete and total logistical support. God's grace is in total support of what He intends us to be. The same, of course, was true of the apostle Paul.

Next comes the accusative singular from the noun leitourgos (λειτουργός) [pronounced li-toorg-OSS]. The word has several related meanings. It means a servant, a government official—according to the laws of establishment are designed to be servants, never masters. It is also used in connection with the Levitical priesthood in Hebrews 8:2 where we have the priest as the minister, one who communicates Bible doctrine. “That I should be a minister” is a good translation.

With this is a genitive of relationship from the proper noun Christos (χριστός) [pronounced krees-TOHSS], used for the Lord Jesus Christ from the standpoint of His appointment, plus Iêsous (Ἰησοῦς) [pronounced ee-ay-SOOCE] which is used of Christ with emphasis on His humanity—“of Christ Jesus.” The direction: a new prepositional phrase, eis (εἰς) [pronounced ICE] plus the accusative plural of ethnos (ἔθνος, οὐς, τό) [pronounced EHTH-noss]—“to the Gentiles.” The communicator of doctrine is a servant in the sense of providing spiritual food.

Who was a communicator of doctrine before Moses? There is the line of Seth, but no communicator of doctrine named. Next comes Abraham the great patriarch. He was a receiver of doctrine; he was not a communicator of doctrine. But he did lead some to the Lord. He did bring to gospel and others. Isaac was a wimp all the way. Then we have Esau and Jacob. Whatever Jacob was, he certainly was not a communicator of doctrine. Bob does not see there being a true communicator of that era, not until we get to Moses. Moses was the unique prophet. He did a lot of talking.

What is this phenomenon beginning with Moses and coming down to the present time to communicate doctrine. Now it is official that there are people with the gift of teaching; and we recognize this by coming to Bible class.

Missionaries had to have some gift of communication of some sort.

Doctrine of Communication

8/15/78

A. Definition and Description.

1. We have communicators of doctrine in the Old Testament and New Testament. The voice of God is now in writing. We do not hear the voice of God, not since 96 A.D. on the isle of Patmos. In the Old Testament, the voice of God was heard by those who had the gift of prophet. Also men were taught by angels. Then the written word of God was communicated. The Old Testament communicator received his information from three sources: God, angels, and the Canon. Those who claim to have heard the voice of God are kooks and weirdos. Only those with the gift of communication heard the voice of God; and there were teaching angels as well. Once the Old Testament was completed, that was an accurate location of Bible doctrine.
2. Until Moses there were no communicators. Moses was as unique to the Jewish age as Paul was to the Church Age. Moses and Paul started out in very different ways; but they became expert communicators. Moses was the military hero of Egypt; and saved the Egyptians 4x from an invasion of the Ethiopians. Moses was a genius in writing, administration and music. Thutmose II used the administrative system set up by Moses when he (Thutmose II) came to power. No one ever starts out as a communicator. Moses had both the office and gift of prophesy. Those with the office of prophet were official communicators of doctrine only. Those with the gift of prophesy did something else but also communicated doctrine and received direct revelation from God, e.g., Daniel, David, Solomon. When Aaron took his place, that frustrated Moses and he finally pushed Aaron aside and took over.

3. During the time of the early church, circa 30-96 A.D., Paul had two sources: God directly and the Old Testament Canon. He became the greatest source of doctrine in the New Testament. There was also the temporary spiritual gift of knowledge (gnosis) which was academic knowledge of the content of doctrine which would be contained in the New Testament Canon before it was written.
 4. After the Canon is closed we have only one system, the pastor- teacher. The pastor-teacher has two sources: his pastor-teacher, and the education to dig out information from the Canon itself.
 5. In the Tribulation there will be a new system. The 144,000 Jews will teach the word of God; Moses will be resuscitated along with Elijah to teach doctrine; and angels will teach again.
- B. The three types of communicators to this point have been prophets, Apostles and pastor-teachers. In the Tribulation there will be Moses and Elijah brought back and angels and the 144,000.
- C. The communication system at present is not direct from God; it comes through the pastor-teacher.
1. You can't read the Bible for yourself and get what God intended for you to fully understand. You are in a playpen until you hook up with your right pastor. How would you like to learn how to perform a brain operation by reading a book?
 2. A pastor-teacher has a spiritual gift sovereignly bestowed by the Holy Spirit at salvation. It is not earned or deserved. The spiritual gift provides both the authority and ability to communicate. All types of personalities have the gift and not all are eloquent, but they do communicate and you do understand. Everyone has a right pastor-teacher. Even the extremely shy person. Not everyone with the gift of pastor-teacher is eloquent. This gift was given to many people. They may have some peculiarities.
 3. Baptism doesn't help communicate doctrine, only the Lord's table does this, which is why it is the only ritual left in the Church Age.
 4. There is no such thing as "surrendering to preach."
- D. You discover the gift of pastor-teacher by persistent study of God's Word. Through growth it becomes apparent to you that you possess the gift. Also accompanying spiritual growth, you have a lot of discipline. You try a lot of things at which you're good and never succeed. You learn by a lot of knots on the head.

- E. There are five New Testament Greek words used for the communicator.
1. Presbutês (πρεσβύτης) [pronounced pres-BOO-tace] means old man, elder; a title for authority, commanding officer. Only one man has the authority; there is no such thing as plurality of elders in a local church, or assistant pastors.
 2. Poimên (ποιμήν) [pronounced poi-MANE] POIMENAS means shepherd; connotes provision; pastor. Those who receive the doctrine are students under strict academic discipline.
 3. Epískopos (ἐπίσκοπος) [pronounced ep-IS-kohp-oss] means to look over the situation, the guardian of the system. It is an administrative term in the sense of policy making. He is the overseer.
 4. Diakonos (διάκονος) [pronounced dee-AK-on-oss] means servant; administrative function of serving the Lord. This is originally meant to be a waiter.
 5. Leitourgos (λειτουργός) [pronounced li-toorg-OSS] means sacrifice at the altar. There is unique sacrifice involved in the communication of doctrine. A pastor's sacrifice means that he can never be quite human. He doesn't live a normal life. The demands of study and communication preclude normal living. For example, Paul as an ultra supergrace believer should have had a billion dollars, but he couldn't enjoy it since he had no time. The pastor-teacher is chained to the Bible; therefore, he lives a sacrificial life. Generally a communicator will always be historically obscure. He forgoes success in some other normal realms of life. He doesn't have the time or the opportunity; being chained to the Bible. Bob's father said, "You are a failure, no matter how you succeed."
- F. The Purpose of a Communicator, Ephesians 4:11-12, 13, 14-17. And He gave some Apostles [the top communication gift in those days] and other prophets, and others evangelists [a specialist; he gets the attention of his audience] pastor-teachers; For the purpose of training and equipping saints [the royal family] for combat; for the purpose of the vocation of the ministry, for the purpose of the edification of the body of Christ; until we all attain the goal, because of the consistency of doctrine and the full knowledge of doctrine of the Son of God, with reference to a mature noble man, to the standard of maturity which belongs to the fullness of Christ, in order that we no longer be childish ones [immature ones] , being tossed here and there by waves, being carried by every wind of false doctrine by the dice playing of men cheating, face to face with their cunning methods of deception; but by teaching doctrine in the sphere of love [the filling of the Spirit, the concept of impersonal love] may cause to grow up by all things of doctrine with reference to Him who is the absolute Chief [Jesus Christ] Christ, through Whom all the body, being joined together [in union with Christ] being taught categorically through every joint of supply according to the operational power in measure, one pastor for each part which causes growth in the body resulting in an edification complex belonging to self in love. This therefore, says Paul, I explain and make an emphatic demand by means of the Lord that you all no longer continue walking just as the gentiles [reversionistic types] keep walking by means of nothingness in their minds that I should be a minister of Christ Jesus to the gentiles.

1. If no one is saved because of the work of the evangelist, then there is no need for the gift of pastor-teacher. Therefore, evangelists are more important than pastor-teachers.
2. If there are no pastor-teachers doing their job, then there are no believers with momentum glorifying Christ.
3. Bob was lucky to be in a Baptist church at first, because that has given him all of his illustrations.
4. No such thing as evangelizing in a church; an evangelist meets people on a neutral ground.
5. God is not going to change the system just because some evangelists don't know the gospel. God honors that gift, even if they get a few things wrong. No matter, people are going to be saved.
6. The first thing a missionary does is scour up converts. You are an oddball to them; you don't look right, you don't smell right; and you make many linguistic errors which they make fun of.
7. The evangelist is named before the pastor-teacher, because there need to be believers first. No believers then the pastor-teacher has no one to teach. You cannot have a church without believers.
8. Bob was a kid in Florida; and he walked by the tent where Gypsy Smith was an evangelist and Bob was spellbound. He came home and said where he had been, and his father laughed for 30 minutes. His mother quietly told him that he could go back and he did.

Lesson #497

497 08/16/1978 Romans 15:16b Korean War, William F. Dean; prep school flexibility and illustration of Old Testament priest use of training aids

We hold a perfect record when it comes to entering into war unprepared. We went into Korea with 400 men. 8 tanks was the point. There were several miles of North Koreans and all they did but the Americans only took out a few hundred yards. We backed up. We did not have any ammo. Could not get our howitzers out of there because they were out of gas. No communications. Problem after problem.

This man William Dean was an amazing man. He was criticized by antithetical groups.

Because of the royal family honor code, never apologize and never explain. Why explain yourself to a lot of people who could care less anyway.

Berachah Church has a lot of firsts. No one taped a message until it was at Berachah. First to use the overhead. One of the most important firsts is prep school. They are exposed to vicious propaganda every day. Bringing the young people into the auditorium is not a good solution. In implementing this, they have had every sort of a setback that one could imagine.

You cannot send a school bus around and teach kids once a week at Sunday School; and then to have a one-week daily vacation Bible school every year.

Romans 15:16 ...for me to be a minister of Christ Jesus to the Gentiles, administering the sacred service of the gospel of God, so that the offering of the Gentiles might become acceptable, having been sanctified in the Holy Spirit. (BLB)

“ministering the gospel of God” – the present active participle of hierourgéō (ἱερουργέω) [pronounced hee-er-oorg-EH-oh] is translated “ministering.” It means to perform sacred rights as a priest. The priest places the animal on the altar, explains what it represents, then kills the animal. This is used to teach Christ being judged for our sins. This lamb gave up his life and died; Christ on the cross was judged. It means to officiate as a priest at an altar, to communicate doctrine with training aids. The present tense is a progressive present, it signifies the action in progress or in a state of persistence; it is linear aktionsart. To teach as a priest means to use something so that people can remember it. Then the possessive genitive singular from theos (θεός) [pronounced theh-OSS] which belongs with the accusative singular direct object from euangelion (εὐαγγέλιον) [pronounced yoo-ang-GHEL-ee-on], called the “gospel of God,” but not really; it is “good news of God,” literally.

“that the offering up of the Gentiles might be acceptable” – the conjunction hina (ἵνα) [pronounced HEE-na] introduces a semi-final clause denoting purpose and goal or objective. The function of the purpose clause is to express the aim or the action denoted by the main verb. The nominative singular subject prosphora (προσφορά) [pronounced pros-for-AH] means the act of bringing or presenting an offering. Paul’s students know nothing about Judaism, nothing about Israel. They are Gentiles, the appositional genitive plural from ethnos (ἔθνος, οὐς, τό) [pronounced EHTH-noss]. They have an inferior culture, an inferior heritage. It means they can hear for the first time about the tabernacle. Paul refers to the fact that his contribution is to read the Gentiles into the doctrinal picture by using Jewish training aids. Training aids help to understand doctrine. Next is the aorist active subjunctive from the verb gínomai (γίνομαι) [pronounced GIN-oh-my].

1977 Romans

Lesson #498

498 08/17/1978 Romans 15:16c–17 Blessing without capacity; Thaddeus Kosciuszko; distortion of missions; Talleyrand

What is fame without the capacity for fame? Many people want to be famous or make some big flash in life. Also, what is life without capacity for life? What is success without capacity for success? What is love without the capacity for love. Some of you have started going to Bible class as a result of being lonely. Those who are anxious for love but they do not have the capacity for it. There are pickup joints all around Berachah and they are filled with lonely people. The Scripture calls this vanity of vanities, emptiness of emptiness. What is promotion without the capacity for promotion?

The royal family honor code answers all of these questions with the right answers. Bible doctrine gives you the capacity to have nothing and do it well; or to have something, and truly enjoy it.

Some of you may think that I am promising you with doctrine no friends and no fun. The royal family honor code has the answer to every situation in life.

Polish name that was anglicized to give us Thaddeus Kosciuszko. One of the greatest men in Poland and for a time, the dictator of Poland during the war with Catherine the Great in Russia. He was somewhat responsible for us winning the battle of Saratoga. Kosciuszko found a natural place to set up a fort. He built one of the finest forts in its day called West Point. Some said, "What does a Polack know?" He was only a colonel and several generals did not like him. He kept one army away by the fort. Kosciuszko was #1 in his class two times; and a great engineer. Designed and built on the Delaware River to build a couple of forts, and this stopped the British from that direction. After we won the war against our British cousins. He put together a small army against 100,000 Russians. His men were well-trained but well-trained. Kosciuszko was wounded 4x during the battle. He was taken prison along with 12,000 of his troops. The czar offered him a bargain not to fight for Poland again, but he refused. He was liberated, and he went to France and moved on. He always made good applications and he always fought for freedom. He raised an army in Poland under very difficult circumstances. He joined the French army until Napoleon came along. His whole life was freedom; that was his strength and his flexibility.

These different generals coming in against the American army from three directions.

There were no medals like today. General Washington give him his sword and two pistols; and Washington was given a ring for some reason, and Washington gave his ring to Kosciuszko in recognition of his great engineering. This was a man with honor. He never compromised with two czars on the principle of freedom. He was always consistent with regards to his beliefs about freedom. He was a man of tremendous flexibility. He even started himself for the Brit prisoners who did not get enough to eat. He refused his check when the privates did not get theirs.

FDR gave the poles over to the Russians.

Romans 15:16 ...for me to be a minister of Christ Jesus to the Gentiles, administering the sacred service of the gospel of God, so that the offering of the Gentiles might become acceptable, having been sanctified in the Holy Spirit. (BLB)

The Church Age is the time of the royal family. The principle of strength through flexibility.

“being sanctified by the Holy Spirit” – the royal family honor code has a supernatural means of function. In order that we might function properly under it and have great security and success in things that appear to be wrong to others, but in reality are right; and to be able to be right and to carry on in spite of being criticized as being wrong, the ministry of God the Holy Spirit is involved. The perfect passive participle of the verb hagiazō (ἁγιάζω) [pronounced hawg-ee-AD-zoh] which means to be set apart for something unusual, and that is what we have here—“having been sanctified,” having been set apart for an unusual purpose. The dramatic perfect tense is the rhetorical use of the intensive perfect. The existing results of the completed action are emphasized in a very vivid and realistic way, therefore an emphasis on the existing state of sanctification, a state which demands honor code function. The passive voice: through the baptism of the Holy Spirit at salvation the Gentile believer receives the action of the verb and is on an equal basis with the Jewish believer who is also brought into the royal family the same way, and in contrast to the previous dispensation when the Jew was the basis of blessing for everyone. The participle is a modal participle which signifies the manner in which the action of the main verb is accomplished—the baptism of the Spirit and positional sanctification. Then the prepositional phrase, en (ἐν) [pronounced en] plus the instrumental of pneuma (πνεῦμα) [pronounced PNYOO-mah] and hagios (ἅγιος) [pronounced HA-gee-oss]—“having been sanctified by the Holy Spirit.”

Romans 15:16 That I should be a minister of Christ Jesus to the Gentiles, ministering as a priest the gospel of God, that the offering consisting of the Gentiles might have become acceptable, having become sanctified (set apart) by the Holy Spirit.

There is no question about the preeminence of the Jewish people in the previous dispensation; but that is no longer the case.

Verses 17-33, the apostolic function of the honor code.

Many missionaries have visions in the bush and they are about as weird as anything that you might find outside of a nuthouse. Some are very enthusiastic, some wear the native costume, and they have a lot of stories. Bob grew up in that generation. Bob did not see it as other young believers did. He was cynical about the missionaries. You liked them or disliked them. You saw them as phonies or as the greatest.

During Bob's time starting out with Berachah. He has developed a more sane view. But we come down to a paragraph about missionaries.

Missionaries were the bane of Bob's existence at first. Somehow the missionaries there wanted to straighten out his congregation and teaching. They would bring in kookie ideas and it would take Bob several months to cure his congregation of their ideas. Bob stopped having missionaries for awhile.

Bob is not going to strongly criticize missionaries or place them on a pedestal.

Romans 15:17 Therefore I have the boasting in Christ Jesus in the things pertaining to God. (BLB)

This appears to be a blank check.

Verse 17 – the context is talking about esprit décor in the ministry, not just the ministry of communicating from the pulpit but the ministry of communicating on the mission field, the ministry anywhere where you communicate. “I have therefore whereof I may glory” – the inferential postpositive conjunctive particle oun (οὖν) [pronounced oon] is correctly translated “therefore.” The present active indicative of the verb echô (ἔχω) [pronounced ECHKH-oh] means to have or to have and to hold. This is the retroactive progressive present denoting that doctrine perceived in the past and the perception that continues in the present time has some tremendous implication. It is called the present tense of duration. Not only did you have it in the past but you still have it and always will have it. The indicative mood is declarative for the reality of an esprit décor that comes from doctrine.

A peasant when challenged looks to right back then or to wait in hiding to get revenge later. The Christian life is not doing the same thing in the same way every day. Sometimes you fight and sometimes you back down.

The accusative singular direct object kaúchēsis (καύχησις) [pronounced KOW-khay-sis] which means esprit décor. “Therefore I keep on having esprit décor.” It says in effect, I keep functioning under the honor code. Then a prepositional phrase used to indicate aristocracy, en (ἐν) [pronounced en] plus the locative singular of Christos (χριστός) [pronounced krees-TOHSS] and Iêsous (Ἰησοῦς) [pronounced ee-ay-SOOCE]—“in Christ Jesus.”

“in those things” – the accusative neuter plural definite article. The neuter gender indicates Bible doctrine, the essential. The plural definite article is used as a demonstrative pronoun. With it is a prepositional phrase, prós (πρός) [pronounced pross] plus the accusative of theos (θεός) [pronounced theh-OSS]—“pertaining to the God.”

Romans 15:17 Therefore I have esprit décor in those things pertaining to the God.

Note that esprit décor is based upon “those things” – doctrine that has been learned and been stored in the soul. It is based upon doctrinal norms and standards in the conscience of the soul. It is based upon advance to maturity and the function of the royal family honor code.

499 08/18/1978 Romans 15:18 Modus operandi of a missionary; history of missions; importance of administration

It is not really a mission field if there are churches there. Those who work for Youth for Christ, Campus Crusade who see them selves as missionaries. But a missionary goes to where there are churches, then they are not really missionaries.

If there is positive volition in a particular region, God will send missionaries to that region. Like the movement to missionaries to Africa and India in the past two centuries. There was a time that Europe was as heathenistic as Africa; and missionaries went to various places in Europe.

Wherever communism goes, mission fields close down. Communism is as antithetical with Christianity as Jesus Christ and Satan.

In some areas, a missionary needs more preparation than a pastor-teacher. He must be prepared academically; he must be saved; learning new languages and customs and culture.

There is the spiritual intercourse on the field. There is also personal contact with the natives in a country.

The missionary's job is not to put clothes on the natives or to train them in American customs. He is to give them the gospel message and teach basic doctrine.

A missionary must continue to take in Bible doctrine.

All missionaries need to have a high esprit decor. They must be motivated and reasonably enthusiastic.

Romans 15:18 For I will not dare to speak of anything except what Christ has accomplished through me unto the obedience of the Gentiles by word and deed, (BLB)

Verse 18 – “For I will not dare to speak of any.” The verse begins with the word “not”—οὐ, plus the postpositive explanatory use of gar, “For not.” Then the future active indicative of the verb tolmáō (τολμάω) [pronounced tol-MAH-oh] which means to dare or to presume. It means to dare where there is genuine courage, but it also means to presume, depending on whether there is courage or stupidity. Here it means “For I will not presume.” The predictive future tense is talking about a future event. The active voice: Paul produces the action of the verb in a negative way: “I will not presume.” He is actually saying that since he has maximum doctrine resident in the soul which is the source of his esprit décor he does not presume to tell of his great missionary experience, but he emphasizes the doctrine which he has learned. The indicative mood is the reality of Paul's grace humility and lack of arrogant presumption.

Plus the present active infinitive of the verb laléō (λαλέω) [pronounced lah-LEH-oh], which means to speak or communicate. Paul is talking about the honor code. In effect he is saying the honor code must be included in missionary function. The descriptive present indicates what is now going on in Paul's experience. The action voice: Paul produces the action of communicating. The infinitive is a conceived result which is assumed as a consequence of doctrine in his soul. The word ti accusative neuter singular direct object of the infinitive from the indefinite pronoun tís (τις) [pronounced tihç]—"anything." The indefinite pronoun is not indefinite, it is used to delineate a category. "For I will not presume to speak about anything."

It is inflexible to try to get natives to live American style.

"which Christ hath not wrought by me" – the objective genitive plural from the relative pronoun hos combined with the negative ou (οὐ) [pronounced oo], "which not." But it means "except what." The negative ou (οὐ) [pronounced oo] used with the relative pronoun is an idiom in the Greek. So it comes out exactly the opposite of what we expect. The KJV translation doesn't make sense. It should be "except what Christ has done by me." Then the nominative singular subject Christos (χριστός) [pronounced krees-TOHSS] for "Christ."

The verb is the aorist middle indicative of κατεργάζομαι (katergázomai) [pronounced kat-er-GAHD-zom-ahee], which means to achieve, to accomplish, to work out, to bring about—"except what Christ has accomplished." The constative aorist contemplates the action of the verb in its entirety, it refers to a succession of events extended over a period of time—the missionary activity of Paul up to this time. The middle voice: a deponent verb, while middle in form it is active in meaning. Therefore Christ produces the action. The indicative mood is declarative for historical reality. Christ has accomplished a great deal and that is what Paul wants to talk about, not what he has accomplished. Then dia plus the genitive of egó (ἐγώ) [pronounced ehg-OH]—"through me."

"to make the Gentiles obedient, by word and deed" – the prepositional phrase eis (εἰς) [pronounced ICE] plus the accusative singular of hupakoê (ὑπακοή) [pronounced hoop-ak-oh-AY], "resulting in obedience." A result clause states a consequence of the main verb. The main verb is κατεργάζομαι (katergázomai) [pronounced kat-er-GAHD-zom-ahee] which Christ has accomplished through Paul, resulting in obedience. It is a reference to salvation adjustment to the justice of God, maturity adjustment to the justice of God, and perpetuation of maturity. The subjects of Paul's missionary activity: the subjective genitive plural from ethnos (ἔθνος, οὐς, τό) [pronounced EHTH-noss], translated Gentiles; sometimes it means "nations." Obedience to what? The instrumental of logos (λόγος, ου, ό) [pronounced LOHG-oss], used here as doctrinal communication. This is translated here, "by word." The missionary's primary function is communication of doctrine: gospel to the unbeliever and the teaching of the believer. Plus the instrumental singular from ergon (ἔργον) [pronounced EHR-gon] which means deed, action, manifestation, but here it means occupation—the occupation of a missionary, his profession.

Romans 15:18 For I will not presume to speak about anything except what Christ has accomplished through me, resulting in obedience of the Gentiles, by word [doctrinal teaching] and by occupation [professional missionary function].

Paul was at least tri-lingual (Latin, Greek and Hebrew).

The missionary should be professional. No flaring of tempers. No unnecessary language. No pettiness, no explosion of temper. Simply getting the facts in a cold dispassionate way. Important everywhere; especially on the mission field. They should not hear missionaries yelling and arguing with one another.

Constantine decided to move headquarters to Byzantium. There was an eastern and western empire. Headquarters in Rome and the other in Constantinople. Catholic versus and Greek Orthodox.

Both churches began some missionary activity. The western church active for 300 years; but the eastern church went nowhere. The eastern church could not get doctrine together. They spent all of their time in theological controversy. Pockets of positive volition were neglected in the eastern empire. The Roman church wherever there were heathen, all over Europe, there were great pockets of heathen people who were positive at God consciousness. Great missionary activity out from the West.

Boy captured by the Goths, and he returned giving the gospel to unbelievers and doctrine to the believers. He learned their language as a captive. Nothing had been written in the Gothic language before. He reduced their language to an alphabet and put the Bible into their language, except for Samuel and Kings. This is the oldest form of the Teutonic languages. This is known today as the Silver Bible. It is worth millions.

What about France? The most natural boundaries of the world. The Alps on the west. Natural barriers on almost every side. Because of its soil and climate, all of the Barbarians decided to go there. It became a melting pot; anything from anywhere got to France. It became very heathenistic. A missionary went there, a soldier by profession. He went out from the Roman Catholic church; and France appealed to him because there were so many soldiers there. He was all for it. Irenius was there earlier but now all heathenistic. This new guy would evangelize soldiers and they would be sent out to evangelize others; and a few he would train to be pastors (he identified their gift). He was a great missionary. He is the patron saint of the French people. He organized his people into an army. People could not talk during his teaching. Martin Bishop of Tours, famous for stopping the Muslims.

Patrick, a Scotsman, taken a prisoner by Irish pirates. When he was saved in Scotland, he went back to Ireland. He was a great missionary. Tremendous opposition from the Druids. The light in a dark place can be traced back to him. Where doctrine is taught, there is motivation for thrust in the mission field. The eastern church folded up with regards to missionary work.

Columbo was an Irishman who went to Scotland.

Administration and the Mission Field

1. While the word emphasizes missionary work, and where there are more than two people, administration is necessary. Being professional means good administration. Lousy administration among most missionary groups. A strong need for administration. A missionary requires administration in order to have missionaries. There is all-night security at Berachah. Administration must never be divorced from communication.
2. Administration cannot be neglected in the mission field.
3. Gentile obedience.
4. Missionary function includes every phase of the divine plan. Jew and gentile.
5. Paul as a missionary is the channel through which Christ reached the gentiles in his day.
6. There must be a professional administration.
7. The natives who have been converted may be trained in systematic theology so they can reach their people in evangelism and in administration.
8. Paul's missionary work set a policy of work. Bob names a great number of missionaries.

Lesson #500

500 08/20/1978 Romans 15:19a History of missions and empires; purpose of miracles; missions and letters of Paul; positive volition

A review of previous material: Sheer unadulterated mistakes when the Chinese and the missionaries supported and helped the people in China. This missionary group went elsewhere after China. A missionary must be prepared. He needs to be saved; he needs to have doctrine; he needs to understand the royal family honor code; and he needs to know the language and customs where he is going; and common sense.

Spiritual and social intercourse is needed. Jesus had many conversations with people.

The indigenous concept, where pastors are eventually trained to teach their own people.

The missionary must not become involved in politics or the philosophy of government. He must regard all opposition as not personal.

There must be a maintenance and perpetuation of his own spiritual growth.

Romans 15:19 in the power of signs and wonders, in the power of the Spirit of God, so as for me, from Jerusalem and around unto Illyricum, to have fully proclaimed the gospel of Christ,... (BLB)

Verse 19 – “Through mighty signs and wonders, by the power of the Spirit of God.” The preposition en (ἐν) [pronounced en] plus the instrumental of dúnamis (δύναμις) [pronounced DOO-nahm-iss], “by the power.” This is a continuation from verse 18. The word “power” refers to the ministry of God the Holy Spirit. No one can function in the Christian life without the Holy Spirit who indwells every believer but does not fill every believer. It is the Holy Spirit controlling the soul that makes the difference. The power here is related to something which existed before the canon was completed but do not necessarily exist at this time.

Next is the descriptive genitive plural from the noun sêmeíon (σημεῖον) [pronounced say-MY-on], which in the plural means remarkable events, in some cases miracles but not necessarily. Plus a descriptive genitive plural from the noun téras (τέρας) [pronounced TEHR-as] which means an omen, a portent, a wonder, or a miracle. While both words refer to extra-natural events each one has a different emphasis. Sêmeíon (σημεῖον) [pronounced say-MY-on] refers to unusual events which directed to the Jews established Paul as the twelfth apostle. Téras (τέρας) [pronounced TEHR-as] emphasizes Paul’s ministry to the Gentiles. So here these words have a technical sense. “By the power of signs [to the Jews] and miracles [to the Gentiles].”

Then the preposition en (ἐν) [pronounced en] plus dúnamis (δύναμις) [pronounced DOO-nahm-iss] with the possessive genitive of pneuma (πνεῦμα) [pronounced PNYOO-mah] and hagios (ἅγιος) [pronounced HA-gee-oss]—“by the power of the Holy Spirit.” All teaching is accomplished in the power of the Spirit and perception after salvation in the power of the Spirit. 1Corinthians 1:22 is a key to this passage: the Jews asked for signs and the Greeks [Gentiles] asked for wisdom. Prior to the completion of the canon of Scripture miracles were used to establish the communicator as being from God. Now that the canon of Scripture has been completed such miracles are unnecessary since we continue to have the ministry of God the Holy Spirit.

“so that from Jerusalem” – the conjunction hôste (ὥστε) [pronounced HOH-steh] is followed by the infinitive to introduce a result clause, and is translated “with the result that.” The accusative singular of general reference from the personal pronoun egó (ἐγώ) [pronounced ehg-OH]—“I”, plus the preposition apó (ἀπό) [pronounced aw-PO] and the indeclinable noun for Jerusalem: “with the result that I from Jerusalem.” Paul’s starting point was Jerusalem. Note that Jerusalem is a Jewish city and that is the reason for the use of sêmeíon (σημεῖον) [pronounced say-MY-on].

The missionary must be able to witness at home before they try witnessing as a missionary.

“and round about unto Illyricum” – the ascensive use of the conjunction kai, followed by the locative singular of place from kuklos (κύκλος) [pronounced KOOK-loss] which means “on a circuit as far as.” Plus the preposition méchri (μέχρι) [pronounced MEHKH-ree] and Illyrikón (Ἰλλυρικόν) [pronounced il-loo-ree-KOHN]—“even on a circuit as far as Illyricum.”

This circuit includes Paul's first three missionary journeys and therefore it is a circuit covering Palestine, Syria, Asia Minor, Greece, Macedonia, and the eastern shore of the Adriatic Sea.

The second missionary journey. He wrote the 1 and 2 Thessalonians.

The third missionary journey. He went overland to his hometown Tarsus. In Ephesus around A.D. 53. Apollos came and said he had been thrown out of Corinth. Paul wrote 1 Corinthians. A.D. 57 Paul writes 2 Corinthians. Then the Galatians went bad. They were sold on the Law. 57 A.D. Paul also went to Corinth and he wrote Romans there. Paul will not write again until 62–63 A.D. Ephesians, Colossians, Philippians, and Philemon. He was a missionary straightening out missionary churches.

Paul goes to Spain and France. He was captured again and taken in for his last imprisonment.

When Paul died; everything that Cæsar started ended, with the assassination of Nero.

"I have fully preached the gospel of Christ" – the perfect active infinitive of plêroô (πληρώω) [pronounced play-ROH-oh], which means to fill up a deficiency, to fill up with a certain quality. There is +V at God-consciousness in central Turkey, so Paul goes to all of these places. The word "fully" which is really not an adverb but an infinitive is the key to this. It means to implement in an area where there is +V, to preach to people who want to hear it. They may not know they want to hear it, but they listen and respond. Paul is filling up their deficiency. The most flexible person in the world has to be the missionary.

You may go to a communist country; but you are not there to organize against communism. Take away their lust for power, and they are left confused.

Lesson #501

501 08/20/1978 Romans 15:19b "End of Roman World"; evangelization of Celts and Teutons; church and state; missionary function.

The Teutons and their neighbors are laid out. They have as good a reason to claim their possession of the territory which includes Sweden.

The Goths conquered the Roman empire in the north and stabilized it. Great religious awakening at this time. A translation of the Bible converted the entire Gothic race to Aryan Christianity. This is from Cambridge ancient history.

When there is a large area of positive volition, then God will send them a missionary. They need to carry on in self-propagating churches.

Romans 15:19 in the power of signs and wonders, in the power of the Spirit of God, so as for me, from Jerusalem and around unto Illyricum, to have fully proclaimed the gospel of Christ, (BLB)

It is not up to the people of God to change society; nor are they to seize temporal power. 300 years after Paul wrote this, the Roman church would seek out temporal power.

It is doctrine that changes things. Doctrine changes a nation; doctrine changes a people. There were no self-propagating churches in China.

Missions

1. Fulfillment in evangelism, in administration, with
2. Evangelization followed up with Bible doctrine.
3. The royal family honor code functions in that geographical location; so that the plan of God can be fulfilled in that set of local churches. There needs to be follow through.
4. Maturity adjustment to the justice of God.
5. Attainment of maturity is the tactical victory of the angelic conflict.

There were a number of nations which became nations as a result of missionary activity.

Other Points

1. Two words that apply to the 20th century; power of the Holy Spirit and the gospel or good news.
2. Power of the Spirit is the power of the missionary. It demands that we understand the doctrine of the indwelling of the Spirit.
3. The final word, the gospel, represents the principle of doctrine that is involved in missionary power and thrust. Without doctrine, a missionary is helpless and useless.
4. Therefore, before any missionary should function, he should have maximum doctrine, so he can be flexible with regards to the cultural foods and norms. The essential is doctrine.

A few more things to do with v. 19 before moving into v. 20.

Lesson #502

502 08/21/1978 Romans 15:20 Columba; Charles Martel; missionary policy and the royal family honor code; Paul and Spain

A great aristocrat among the Celts Columba. He believed in the Lord Jesus Christ. He learned some doctrine and wanted to do something for the Lord. He set up a system for missionaries. He got into a brawl and killed a man; he was determined to be innocent, but sent out of Ireland. There was a few hundred missionary stations. He was copying a manuscript of the gospel of John. His copy looked much better. The owner of the first manuscript said the second should be his. A brawl with several people. The court ruled Columba to be innocent. He was sent to the cooler climes of Scotland. This is one of the more unusual missionary calls. He took 12 men with him and landed on an island. There was no Scotland at the time. Two groups fighting over this land. He proclaimed the gospel and taught doctrine every day; and trained the army. They drove the Picts out of the land. It was guessed that 85% had been converted. Columba organized missions to go all over the world; he never missed a day teaching doctrine. He was a great soldier and a barroom brawler when necessary. He went to Lochness and killed the monster there. The story is that he was told about the monster, so he went there and killed it. He probably left a great impact on the missionary concept. He left his impact historically and spiritually to this day.

Pepin I and Peppin II. A bastard son was Charles Martel and he was doing what he could to save France from the Moslems. They were in the tours and Martel flanked them.

Our victories in China and India made it possible for the United States to go into these regions with missionaries. There appears to be positive volition in this places.

Romans 15:19 not given

Romans 15:20 ...and thus being ambitious to preach the gospel where Christ had not been named, so that I might not build upon another's foundation. (BLB)

Verse 20 – the honor code principle for missionaries. “Yea, so I have strived to preach the gospel, not where Christ was named.” The intensive use of the postpositive conjunctive particle de is correctly translated “In fact.” The adverb houtos (οὗτος) [pronounced HOO-tos] refers to what follows by way of missionary policy. “In fact, in this way.” This is anticipating missionary policy.

Then the present middle participle from the compound verb philotiméomai (φιλοτιμέομαι) [pronounced fil-ot-im-EH-om-ahee] [philos (φίλος) [pronounced FEE-loss] = love; timê (τιμή, ἡς, ἡ) [pronounced tih-MAY or tee-MAY] = honor] which means to love honor, therefore we know we are dealing with the honor code. It comes to mean to aspire to have as a policy that which is honorable. Translation: “In fact, in this way, I consider it a point of honor.” The customary present tense is for what habitually occurs when the missionary is mature and functions under the honor code. The middle voice of the deponent verb—middle in form, active in meaning: Paul as the greatest of all missionaries produces the action of the verb. He operates on the principle of honor. All missionary function must be compatible with the royal family honor code. The participle is circumstantial, it delineates missionary policy related to the royal family honor code. This is superior to any system of morality ever devised, including the morality of divine establishment. The missionary has to go it alone. He must operate on the honor code as very few people. The honor code can only be met by persistence of learning. He should be able to operate under the honor code before going abroad with it.

Great missionaries like David Livingston and others. We do not build our principles on experience. We build it upon Bible doctrine. Missionaries must be the best spiritually.

Principle: Function in the Christian life is the royal family honor code. The honor code can only be understood by means of persistence of perception of doctrine. Knowledge of doctrine, therefore, is the key to missionary modus operandi. Next is the present middle infinitive of the verb euaggelizō (εὐαγγελίζω) [pronounced yoo-ang-ghel-EED-zo]. It means in the middle voice to proclaim the gospel. It refers to the initial missionary function which is evangelization. The retroactive progressive present denotes what is begun in the past and continues into the present time in missionary function. The middle voice stresses the agent producing the action, therefore special attention is focused on the subject—Paul as a missionary. The indirect middle here emphasizes the agent as producing the action of the verb as a part of a policy, as a point of honor, rather than participating in the results of the action. The infinitive is of intended result in which the result fulfills a deliberate objective, therefore a blending of purpose and result. With it is the negative ou (οὐ) [pronounced oo] with the adverbial particle of place hopou (ὅπου) [pronounced HOHP-oo], —“not where.”

Then the subject, the nominative singular from the proper noun Christos (χριστός) [pronounced krees-TOHSS]—“not where Christ.” Then the aorist passive indicative from the verb onomazō (ὀνομάζω) [pronounced on-om-AD-zoh] which means to name, to mention, but in the passive voice it means to be known—“not where Christ has been mentioned.” The dramatic aorist is used for stating Paul’s policy, a present reality with the certitude of a past event. This idiom is a device for emphasis and it states a result which has been accomplished, namely the application of the honor code to the mission field. The honor code has a greater application when one is a guest, a visitor in another country, therefore the application must be intensified. The passive voice: the missionary function receives the action of the verb, the function of the royal family honor code. The indicative mood is declarative of a dogmatic statement of policy.

“lest I should build upon another man’s foundation” – hina (ἵνα) [pronounced HEE-na] plus the negative mê (μή) [pronounced may] introduces a negative purpose clause. “that I might not.” The present active subjunctive of oikodomeō (οἰκοδομέω) [pronounced oy-koe-doh-MEH-oh]. The static present is for a policy to be taken for granted as a fact. The active voice: Paul produces the action. The subjunctive mood: it is a purpose clause. Then epí (ἐπί) [pronounced eh-PEE] plus the accusative of qemelion. Epí (ἐπί) [pronounced eh-PEE] plus the genitive emphasizes contact—on, at, by, before; epí (ἐπί) [pronounced eh-PEE] plus the locative case emphasizes position—at, over; epí (ἐπί) [pronounced eh-PEE] plus the accusative emphasizes motion or direction—on, up to, to, over. Here it means “on”—“on a foundation.” With this the genitive of allótrios (ἀλλότριος) [pronounced al-LOT-ree-oss], “belonging to another.”

Jerusalem was pretty much worked over by experts.

Romans 15:20 In fact, my standard operation procedure [in this way]: I consider it a point of honor [application of the royal family honor code] to proclaim the gospel, not where Christ has been mentioned, in order that I might not build on a foundation belonging to another [missionary].

Principle

1. There is an emphasis on the fact that there is a missionary ethic. This verse establishes the fact of a missionary ethic, summarized simply as royal family honor code intensified.
2. To be a missionary means to understand the royal family honor code and to live by it. This requires prior preparation—perception of doctrine and the metamorphosis of the missionary's conscience.
3. No one can go to the mission field without the norms and standards of Bible doctrine resulting in a full cognizance of the honor code.

All kinds of nonessentials being done on the mission field. Without the honor code norms and ethics, it becomes dishonest and dishonorable

Principle

1. This verse states a firm missionary policy, a policy which Paul himself violated shortly after this passage was written. Paul is going to go to Jerusalem and act as a missionary, which means that he violates his own principle.
2. Anticipating verse 24 where Paul mentions Spain as the mission field where Christ has not been mentioned, Paul was consistent in his policy to go to Spain. This is where he should have gone. The Iberians were crying for the gospel. They are positive and they are waiting for Paul to come there.
3. Anticipating verse 25 where Paul states the fact that he is going to Jerusalem, Paul is not only inconsistent but he is rationalizing; he wants to go to Jerusalem. Paul is inconsistent here. He is rationalizing. People who go to the holy land are inflexible; they demand that you see their pictures.
4. Jerusalem had always had a special attraction for Paul because he is a Hebrew of the Hebrews and a Pharisee of the Pharisees. But ministering in Jerusalem was building on the foundation of another apostle. The gospel has already been worked over by experts.
5. Going to Jerusalem is emotional revolt, while going to Spain is rational obedience.
6. This stated policy of verse 20 is important in understanding the delay and the postponement of the fourth missionary journey. Paul was going to cover the west in his 4th missionary journey. To whom much is given, much is expected. There were perhaps 4 years lost here.
7. Paul's stated objective in coming to Rome on the way to Spain was fulfilled, not from direct volition of the apostle following the plan of God but through divine discipline for emotional reversionism involving an unnecessary journey to Jerusalem.

8. In other words, what Tarshish was to Jonah, Jerusalem was to Paul. God sent Jonah to Israel, which was going east. So Jonah went west instead.

3rd Principle:

1. Disobedience does not hinder the plan of God. The people in Spain are ready for the gospel message; and God will see to it that they get it. God's plan goes along with us or without us. It is not going to be stopped by anyone, even greater than Paul.
2. The plan of God marches on through doing the will of God, or through being disciplined by God for not doing the will of God.
3. Paul could have gone to Spain via Rome, all he had to do was cross the water. Instead, Paul went to Spain via Rome the hard way: reversionism. The road to Spain is a tough one for Paul. It involves rejection by the Jews in Jerusalem, being almost killed by the mob, being delivered by the Roman Army, being imprisoned in Caesarea, taking a ship to Rome and being shipwrecked, finally getting to Rome as a prisoner, cooling his heels for two years while Nero decided his case.

More Points

1. Perception and function under the honor code protects the believer from making terrible mistakes which postpone blessing, as well as production demanded by the plan of God.
2. The royal family honor code policy is a safeguard against emotional aberration. It is also a safe guard against policy deviation.
3. When in doubt consult the honor code.
4. Paul should have been inflexible about going to Spain and very flexible about visits to Jerusalem.
5. In other words, missionary activity must be an assignment with honor, not competition for numbers.

1977 Romans

Lesson #503

503 08/22/1978 Romans 15:21 Pseudo missions by knights; Columbanus and Boniface; negative volition of Gentiles without the Gospel

The Huns and the Vandals both conquered the Romans. The Vandals have disappeared from history; and so have the Huns. The Romans are still very much with us. Why did two great powers, Teutonic and Mongolian, disappeared from history. The key is Bible doctrine and the missionary effort in Rome. The Huns and Vandals had no tie in with Bible doctrine, so they disappeared from history. There is a ridge where the blood of a half dozen groups spilt their blood there.

Decimus Magnus Sonius was one of the great scholars of the day, a believer in Jesus Christ, and not a minister. He planted vines in this place. He is famous for his comments.

He would pray for an hour. Then he would go downstairs to figure out what wine to drink with his lunch. He is not closely associated with Bible doctrine; but simply because he planted vines in one of the best cliffs.

Another name known. The Roman armies were withdrawn from Briton. In the Arthurian legions, the knights were related to Christianity.

Knights would wander far and wide to save damsels, slay dragons and search for the holy grail. They are called pseudo missionaries as they should have admitted that they were just going for a good time. It is doubtful that the cup exists. Going after it is absolute insanity.

The Huns and Vandals were exposed to missionary efforts but they rejected the gospel and disappeared from history.

King Arthur stands for what happens when you reject the gospel message. The rejected Bible doctrine and they got all tied up with ridiculous ideas, like the holy grail.

A century or so later, a Celt known as Columbonus. The root word means dove and this is the sign of the Holy Spirit. Columbus maybe not as much.

Someone (Columbonus?) learned Greek and Hebrew. He went to France; and he would not stay, but long enough to prepare some to teach after he was gone. Romanism was getting off base, but the Celtic version was more accurate. He was banned I think from England. Went to Sweden and established something there.

Boniface had success all over. Charles Martell asked him to teach in his court. Saxons were impressed by Martel. He was started to cut down a tree that the Saxons worshipped, and the Saxons were going to get him; but a bolt of lightning his the tree.

A sermon given to new converts. By a missionary given in the 4th century A.D.

The honor code was studied with regards to the honor code in v. 20.

Romans 15:20 In fact, my standard operation procedure [in this way]: I consider it a point of honor [application of the royal family honor code] to proclaim the gospel, not where Christ has been mentioned, in order that I might not build on a foundation belonging to another [missionary].

Romans 15:21 Rather, as it has been written: "They will see, to whom it was not proclaimed concerning Him; and those who have not heard will understand." (BLB)

Verse 21 – "But as it is written." The rhetorical ascensive use of the adversative conjunction allá (ἀλλά) [pronounced ahl-LAH], which means "Not only this but." The adverb kathôs (καθώς) [pronounced kahth-OCE] indicates a comparison between Paul's policy and the previous verse—"just as."

The perfect passive indicative of the verb graphô (γράφω) [pronounced GRAWF-oh] which means to write. The perfect tense is intensive indicating a completed action—the canon of Scripture, Old Testament—but emphasizing the existing results. The result: an Old Testament scripture is quoted for documentation of Paul’s honor code statement. The active voice: the OT canon produces the action of the verb by confirming Paul’s missionary policy as it applies to the royal family honor code. The indicative mood is declarative for the reality of the completion of the OT as the Word of God, and its citation here as documentation. The quotation is from Isaiah 52:15. “But not only this honor code application but just as it stands written” is the idea.

Isaiah 52:15 is translated literally: “So he will startle,” the hiphil perfect of nâzâh (נָזַח) [pronounced naw-ZAW]. It is a reference to the coming of Christ at the Second Advent, “many Gentiles; kings shall shut their mouths before him; for what had not been communicated to them” – the pual perfect of the verb çâphar (צָפַר) [pronounced saw-FAHR] means communication – “they will see” – qal perfect of the verb râ’âh (רָאָה) [pronounced raw-AWH] – “and what they had not heard” – qal perfect from shâma’ (שָׁמַעַ) [pronounced shaw-MAHG], communication through the teaching of the Word – “they will discern for themselves” – the hithpael perfect from bîyn (בִּיַן) [pronounced bean], perception; in this case empirical perception of the Second Advent.

The context is Jesus on the cross contrasted with the return at the 2nd advent. This verse is quoted to document that there are many gentiles who have not heard. Many ancient gentiles came to places where they were hear the gospel. In the next generation, the large number of saved people had become reduced. But there are missionaries coming from Ireland and England. They can get the gospel in two ways. They conquer your land and you give them the gospel or you send out missionaries to them.

This is beautiful genius application of a verse. There are always gentiles out there who have not yet heard.

Isaiah 52:15 So he will startle many Gentiles; kings will shut their mouths before him; for what had not been communicated to them they will see, and what they had not heard they will discern for themselves.

This explains the rhetorical ascensive use of the conjunction allá (ἀλλά) [pronounced ah-LAH] which, in effect, sets up a contrast between Paul’s honor code application to the missionary policy with a statement of Isaiah 52:15 which illustrates the principle of preaching the gospel to those who have never heard. Notice that in Isaiah 52:15 the prophecy concerning the second advent says there are a lot of Gentiles who have never heard about this Second Advent, and are utterly shocked by our Lord’s coming. And when they come into His presence their mouth is shut; they are startled; they are shocked. This is to document the principle that there will always be, in every generation throughout all of history, those who have not heard, and who just as at the Second Advent are going to be shocked in time of judgment. But there is a slight difference because we are dealing with the Greek language.

It begins with the future active indicative of the verb horaô—“they shall see.” (Not actually the correct word for here). The predictive future anticipates the Second Advent of Christ when every eye shall see Him, including all the Gentiles who hadn’t heard about Him. The Gentiles in every generation who have not heard is the principle that Paul is documenting from the Old Testament eschatological passage. The active voice: the Gentiles at the Second Advent produce the action of the verb in the context—Isaiah 52:13-15. Verse 13, the victory of Christ in the angelic conflict. Verse 14, the humiliation of Christ on the cross. Verse 15, the glory of Christ at the Second Advent. So in the context of this verse which is quoted we have a contrast between the humiliation on the cross when He is bearing our sins and the glory of the Second Advent when He returns as King of kings and Lord of lords. Why is this quoted? It documents a principle which believers can rapidly take up: the world is filled with Gentiles who have not heard.

“to whom he was not yet spoken of” – dative masculine plural indirect object from the relative pronoun hos (ὃς) [pronounced hohç], plus the aorist passive indicative of the verb anaggelô (ἀναγγέλω) [pronounced ahn-ang-EHL-oh] which means to report, to announce, to proclaim, to teach. It should be translated with the negative, “those to whom it was not reported.” The constative aorist refers to an action extended over a period of time in the Tribulation. The passive voice plus the negative means the gospel was not receiving the action of the verb, being heard, in a time when the world is more saturated with missionary activity than at any time in history—the last seven years of the Age of Israel, the period of the Tribulation. The prepositional phrase following the verb is peri plus the genitive of the intensive pronoun autós (αὐτοῦς) [pronounced ow-TOSS], used here as a third person singular pronoun referring to the Lord Jesus—“concerning him.” It is translated, “those to whom it was not announced/reported concerning him.”

“and they that have not heard shall understand” – the connective kai brings together two clauses. The nominative masculine plural definite article is used as a personal pronoun—“and they.” The third person plural (Attic Greek) second perfect active indicative of the verb akoúô (ἀκούω) [pronounced ah-KOO-oh]. There is no Koine way of expressing this, i.e. the qal perfect of shama in the Hebrew. This emphasizes the fact that the language of the New Testament was a street language; the language of the Old Testament is one of the magnificent higher types of language ever. The writing of Isaiah who was a nobleman is a high class nobility language. Therefore when Paul, knowing the Hebrew so well, cannot use the usual Koine Greek form, he switches morphology under the ministry of the Holy Spirit to remind us that missionary function is one of the noblest and honorable functions of the Christian church—“and they who have not heard.” The perfect tense of existing state in which the past is dropped from the thought and attention on the present status quo. The active voice: the Gentiles produce the action. The indicative mood is declarative for historical reality, there were Gentiles then who hadn’t heard. With this is also a future active indicative from the verb suniêmi (συνίημι) [pronounced soon-EE-ay-mee], used for technical knowledge about a subject; here for technical knowledge of theology or doctrine. It means to know the underlying laws and the meaning of an object, and therefore to gain special insight on how it works and therefore to have complete comprehension of a subject. The subject here is the gospel. The gnomic future tense of suniêmi (συνίημι) [pronounced soon-EE-ay-mee] is for a statement of fact or performance which may be rightfully expected at the Second Advent on the part of shocked or startled Gentiles. The active voice: the Gentiles who were previously in ignorance of Christ and the gospel now have full cognizance by the startling event of the Second Advent. The declarative indicative represents the verbal idea from the viewpoint of historical reality in the future. But it is not just future. The principle applied in Paul's day and it also applies in our day.

This is obviously a reference to Gentiles who have not heard the gospel, and have not therefore been evangelized through missionary effort. The documentation does not refer to the fact that Paul's missionary ministry is fulfilled in Isaiah 52:15, but merely to the fact that there is a parallel situation in the time of Paul and in every generation thereafter. The Church Age is the dispensation of the mystery, which means that prophecy in the Old Testament is never fulfilled in the Church Age. It will be fulfilled in the Tribulation, Second Advent, Millennium. Unfulfilled prophecy in the Old Testament is fulfilled in the Tribulation, 2nd Advent, or Millennial reign of Jesus Christ. Quite frequently an Old Testament passage is cited to demonstrate a similar event, a parallel event, to establish an additional frame of reference. This is demonstrated by another passage which is quoted in the New Testament—Peter's quotation from Joel 2:28-32 in his Pentecostal sermon.

Quoting an Old Testament Passage in the New Testament

1. This is a reference to gentiles who have not heard the gospel.
2. The documentation does not refer to the fact that Paul's missionary ministry is fulfilled in Isaiah 52:15 but merely to the fact that there is a parallel situation in the time of Paul.
3. The Church Age is the dispensation of the mystery; and prophecy from the Old Testament is not fulfilled from the Old Testament.
4. Unfulfilled prophecy of the OT will be in the future.
5. An Old Testament is often cited to speak of a parallel event or similar event.
6. This is demonstrated by Peter's quotation of Joel 2:28–32. Peter was not saying that Joel was being fulfilled at Pentecost, but simply showing a similar situation.

Romans 15:21 But just as it stands written, Those to whom it was not reported [Gentiles] concerning Him [Jesus Christ], shall see: and they [Gentiles] who have not heard will comprehend [or, understand]. (Isaiah 52:15)

There will never be a time that the entire world will be converted. That is the pre-millennial view. Post-millennialism says that we will convert the world. In other words, there will always be Gentiles on this earth who have not heard the gospel.

More Points

1. It is essential that every believer distinguish between the ministry of the Holy Spirit in the Old Testament, the ministry of the Holy Spirit in the New Testament, and in understanding the ministry of the Holy Spirit in the New Testament to distinguish between the indwelling and the filling of the Spirit.

2. In the Church Age Christ is absent from the earth, seated at the right hand of the Father. Therefore once the difference between the indwelling Holy Spirit and the filling of the Holy Spirit is understood, the purpose for the filling of the Spirit during our Lord's absence from the earth is also understood. His purpose is not designed for ecstasies or emotion, it is designed to fulfil the functions of the royal family enjoined by the New Testament epistles. It is designed to have Christ formed in us.
3. But in the Millennium, Christ is present on the earth, and the purpose for the filling of the Spirit is simply appreciation of Christ. Only then is the filling of the Spirit related to ecstasies and emotional stimulation.

Ecstasies and emotion have nothing to do with the filling of the Spirit today; but that will be a part of the millennial experience. Joel 2:28 is a passage on that subject.

The believer in the Old Testament was not indwelt by the Spirit or filled with the Spirit, except for a few specific individuals.

Lesson #504

504 08/23/1978 Romans 15 Scandinavian missions: Ansgar, Iceland, Thorvald and Eric; ministry of Holy Spirit in the Age of Israel; doctrine of the indwelling of the Holy Spirit; health is not a spiritual issue

There was a vast difference between Celtic and Roman Christianity around the 5th century. Because of the Roman false doctrines, we entered into the Dark Ages.

The Scandinavian nations have their own very peculiar aspects. Ansgar decided to be a missionary in 822. He did a good job where he went. In 826, then Charlemagne worked out a deal with Denmark, Ansgar was going to be a part of this. Ansgar warms up by leading all 401 people. The Denmark people were not very receptive. They half burned down his missionary station. When he came back, he just started all over again.

Their king began to make Christian noises, so he was thrown out along with Ansgar. Ansgar went back, and he was sent to Hamburg, which is very close to the Danish line. He opened up a school and trained Danes from there; and he sent a flow of native missionaries back to Denmark. Twelve were trained and were well-known in Denmark.

Then he was invited to Sweden. Captured by pirates on the way there. He was dumped on the shore of Sweden with a single set of clothes. The presents that he brought to be a fawning PR type. He walked into the court penniless and helpless. He was reduced to teaching Bible doctrine only. About 840 the political situation was disastrous. The man who supported Ansgar; so he had to go back to Hamburg. He taught Danes and Swedes there.

A fight over that portion of Europe and broken into three pieces.

This gave the Danish pirates a chance to sail around and rob here and there. This set everything back. When they came back from pirating. They would hear this messages from the missionaries. Well, they went through this region and wiped out all the missions. 600 ships sent down to Hamburg to plunder and destroy it and they were there to destroy Ansgar. Ansgar went to the Bishop of Braymen. He was turned away. Braymen wrote a letter to the pope being mean to Ansgar. Ansgar refused to defend himself. Braymen dies; and the pope makes him something. Sweden and Denmark were opened up again to missionary activity.

Hochhan started the ball rolling again. Missionaries did not do to well until Gustalvus Adolphus, which brings us into recent history.

An article by Quinn Jones. Olaf sent some missionaries and he wanted them to be tough and stand on them until they believe. The first missionary came back. A priest called Thorvald was sent as the second missionary. He challenged all of the worshipers of Thor to a fight. This was very typical. Hard to tell the difference between a Viking pirate and a missionary. Eric the Red changed things. They went from violence to a different approach. He was the grandson of Thorvald. A very famous woman was converted. Eric had a son, so he called him Lief Ericson, and then he started again and called him Thorvald.

Eric married a fascinating woman and she was truly converted by hearing someone talking about the gospel. She built the first mission station in Greenland. Eric killed someone in a gospel dispute and he was sent out. He went to Greenland and there was virtually no one there. His wife built a mission station there and that became their church.

Biyarny Hairhoffson and he ran supplies between Iceland and Norway. He got off course and got into a fog and then a storm and when things cleared up. He sailed up and down the coast from Newfoundland down to Massachusetts. Eric the Red heard this and he decided to go there and check it out. They could not find people to witness to. They landed at Baffin Island, horsed around and then came back. He was given a whole service on his activity; but he met no one.

His son went back there and he saw Indians and Eskimos. He went down as far as Maryland, it appears. He was shot by an arrow and killed (Lief? Thorvald?).

They eventually went back t the Bible in the 12th and 13th century, and Christianity became a thing again. Around that time England sent out missionaries.

The verses that we have studied are below:

Romans 15:17 Therefore I have esprit décor in those things pertaining to the God.

Romans 15:18–19 For I will not presume to speak about anything except what Christ has accomplished through me, resulting in obedience of the Gentiles, by word [doctrinal teaching] and by occupation [professional missionary function] by the power of signs to the Jews and miracles to the gentiles in the power of the Holy Spirit; so that from Jerusalem, in a circuit as far as Illyricum I have fulfilled the gospel of Christ. .

Romans 15:20 In fact, in this way [according to my standard operating procedure]: I consider it a point of honor [application of the royal family honor code] to proclaim the gospel, not where Christ has been mentioned, in order that I might not build on a foundation belonging to another [missionary].

Romans 15:21 But just as it stands written, Those to whom it was not reported [Gentiles] concerning Him [Jesus Christ], shall see: and they [Gentiles] who have not heard shall comprehend [or, understand].

These are the names that we have studied as missionaries; and they understood the ministry of the Holy Spirit.

There are some similarities between this next two doctrines and what is taught; but not really a very good match.

The Seven Things That the Holy Spirit Does for Us at the Moment of Salvation

1. The doctrine of efficacious grace starts out with the gospel being presented to those who are in spiritual brain death, and therefore God the Holy Spirit makes the gospel perspicuous because spiritual brain death cannot understand any part of spiritual phenomena. The gospel is spiritual phenomena. The Holy Spirit makes the gospel perspicuous under the concept of pneumatikoj which is spiritual phenomena. Now it goes down the pipeline to the nouj where the spiritually dead person understands that Christ is the issue, not sin, not human works, but Jesus Christ. That is the point of the divine call to believe which is nothing more or less than an invitation from the Father to believe in Christ, and an invitation that is given through our understanding of the issue. Then in spiritual death we can believe in Jesus Christ. Only faith in Jesus Christ can be taken by God the Holy Spirit and made effective for eternal salvation. This is called efficacious grace, a ministry of God the Holy Spirit at salvation which cannot occur if you add anything to faith.
 - a. The positive volition of the spiritually dead person is described in two non-meritorious functions:
 - i. The spiritually dead person can do one thing that is non-meritorious: he can listen to the gospel;
 - ii. The unbeliever believes in Christ.
 - b. Because the unbeliever has spiritual brain death, according to 1 Corinthians 2:14, he does not understand what he hears. He uses his volition to listen because listening is non-meritorious. But the problem is that when you hear what is being said with regard to the gospel you cannot understand it apart from the ministry of God the Holy Spirit who makes it understandable. The Holy Spirit acting as the human spirit makes the gospel perspicuous and this is what we call common grace.

c. The faith of the spiritually dead person has no power to produce the intended effect - salvation - and therefore God the Holy Spirit has to take our faith and make it effective for salvation. Common grace understands the gospel, the divine invitation or call works on the human will, not common grace. Efficacious grace is the ministry of the Holy Spirit in taking faith in Christ of the spiritually dead person and making it effective for salvation. Efficacious grace works on the faith of the spiritually dead person, not his will. The decision to believe has already been made and the Holy Spirit makes that faith effective.

d. The sealing ministry of the Holy Spirit is related to common and efficacious grace. When we believe we are spiritually dead. The Holy Spirit makes our faith effective and that is sealing salvation. The sealing ministry of the Holy Spirit is actually a signature guarantee that includes four principles: the guarantee of the ministry of the Spirit in efficacious grace; the guarantee of eternal life; the guarantee of eternal security; the guarantee that in eternity past God the Father provided for each one of us our very own portfolio of invisible assets. The sealing ministry of the Holy Spirit covers eternity past, time, and the eternal future in these four guarantees.

2. Regeneration - Titus 3:5; 1Peter 1:23. Defined as the ministry of the Holy Spirit at salvation in creating a human spirit which causes the believer to become instantly trichotomous.

a. The origin of the body is conception - biological life. There is the old sin nature in the biological life but it is not active in the womb because there is no human being, there is no volition, there is not temptation in the womb. But when biological life emerges from the womb (and simultaneously the OSN) God creates soul life and imputes it to biological life, and now you have a human being. In physical life we become dichotomous: a body, biological life, and soul life created by God imputed to it - a human being and a spiritually dead one.

b. So we need salvation, the wages of sin is death but the gift of God is eternal life. How? Because at the moment we believed in Christ God the Holy Spirit created the human spirit. This is the second birth, this is what it means to be born again. God the Father imputed eternal life to the human spirit. We had soul life prior to salvation, now we have soul life and eternal life.

3. The baptism of the Holy Spirit. God the Holy Spirit takes each one of us at the moment of faith in Christ and enters us into union with the person of Christ. We are in that circle and we can never get out. That is positional sanctification. The baptism of the Spirit is the basis for the new spiritual species and the royal family of God. (The baptism of the Spirit is the only case in all of history where everyone is on an equal basis. There is absolute equality because every believer receives the same baptism of the Spirit at salvation). The baptism of the Spirit distinguishes the Church Age believer from all other dispensations. It never occurred before and it will never occur again after the Rapture.

4. The Holy Spirit indwells every believer at the moment of salvation. This is something that never happened before. Neither the Father nor the Son nor the Spirit indwelt Old Testament saints. When the Rapture occurs and the Tribulation and Millennium there will be no indwelling by any member of the Godhead. Scripture for indwelling: 1Corinthians 3:16; 6:19,20; 2Corinthians 6:16. These passages are important because they also explain the purpose of the Holy Spirit. The Holy Spirit indwells our bodies. Why? To provide a temple. In every cell of the body, with one exception, the old sin nature resides. The Holy Spirit provides a temple for the indwelling of God the Father and the person of our Lord Jesus Christ.

5. The filling of the Holy Spirit. It occurs at the moment of salvation but it is experiential.
6. The sovereign distribution of a spiritual gift. God the Son, who was involved in the initial distribution of spiritual gifts in the beginning of the Church Age, Ephesians 4:7,8, has now turned that over to the Holy Spirit. So at the moment of salvation, 1Corinthians 12:11, God the Holy Spirit gives to each one of us a spiritual gift.
7. The sealing ministry of the Spirit - a signature guarantee.
 - a. (Sealing in the ancient world was a signature guarantee) It is a signature guarantee of four things: a. Efficacious grace - the Holy Spirit takes the faith of the spiritually dead person and makes it effective for salvation; b. The guarantee of eternal life; c. The guarantee of eternal security; d. The guarantee of your very own portfolio of invisible assets which God the Father prepared for each one of us in eternity past.
 - b. The sealing ministry of the Holy Spirit covers eternity past, our life in time, and our eternal future. That is the subject of Ephesians 4:30.

This is also not the same doctrine given. A few points correspond:

The Holy Spirit's Ministry in the Age of Israel

7/6/75; 8/23/78; Ephesians 65; Anti-Sem 19 12/3/89

- A. The Deity of the Holy Spirit.
 1. The Holy Spirit is eternal God and is coequal with the Father and the Son, 2Corinthians 13:14. He has the same essence as God the Father and Jesus Christ.
 2. The Holy Spirit is called "God" using the sacred JHWH in Isaiah 6:8-9 cf Acts 28:25; Jeremiah 31:31-34 cf Hebrews 10:15-16.
 3. Divine attributes are ascribed to the Spirit.
 - a. Sovereignty, 1Corinthians 12:11.
 - b. Omniscience, 1Corinthians 2:10-11.
 - c. Omnipotence, Genesis 1:2.
 - d. Omnipresence, Psalm 139:7.
 4. The deity of the Holy Spirit is taught in the New Testament, 2Corinthians 3:17.
- B. The Holy Spirit had a ministry in the formation of the Canon of Scripture.
 1. The Holy Spirit had a special ministry of divine revelation to Old Testament believers; primarily, but not exclusively, to those who had the gift of prophecy. The Spirit had a ministry to every writer of Old Testament Scripture. Every writer was controlled by the Spirit in what he wrote.

a. 2Peter 1:20-21 Understand this first, that all prophecy from Scripture does not originate from one's own interpretation; for prophecy was never produced by the will of mankind, but men communicated as they were being carried along by means of the Holy Spirit.

b. 2Timothy 3:18-19 All Scripture is God-breathed, and is profitable for doctrine, for reproof, for correction, for training which is righteousness, that the man of God may be proficient, equipped for every good work.

(1) The Greek word THEOPNEUSTOS, meaning God-breathed, refers to two things: inhale and exhale. In addition to revelation as the ministry of the Holy Spirit, we have the doctrine of Inspiration.

(a) The inhale: God the Holy Spirit communicated to human authors of the Old Testament God's complete and coherent message for both that generation and for all future generations.

(i) Jeremiah 1:9 Then the Lord [God the Holy Spirit] stretched out His hand and touched my mouth and said to me, 'Behold, I have put words in your mouth.'

(ii) Mark 12:36 David himself said by means of the Holy Spirit, 'The Lord said to my Lord, "Sit down at My right hand until I put your enemies beneath your feet."

(iii) Acts 28:25 The Holy Spirit rightly spoke through Isaiah the prophet...

(b) The exhale: the human authors wrote down in their own language the divine message from God.

(2) The result is the correct and accurate doctrine of the inspiration of Scripture, which says: God so supernaturally directed the writers of Scriptures, that without waving their human intelligence, their vocabulary, personality, literary style, feeling, or any other human factor, His own complete and coherent message to mankind was recorded with perfect accuracy in the original languages of Scripture, the vary words bearing the authority of divine authorship.

2. The ministry of the Holy Spirit to the Old Testament writers in the doctrine of inspiration included three categories.

a. The TORAH. This was written by Moses, who had both the gift and office of prophet.

b. The NABIIM, which includes Joshua, Samuel, Isaiah, Jeremiah, Ezekiel, Hosea, Joel, Zachariah. The human authors had the office of prophet.

- c. The KETHUBIM, which means "the writings." The human authors had the gift of prophesy only: David, Solomon, Daniel, Ezra, Nehemiah.

C. The Ministry of the Holy Spirit to Old Testament Believers.

1. It was extended to very few believers and only for special purposes. The Spirit's ministry in the Old Testament was to less than one percent of believers. There was no indwelling or filling of the Spirit in the Old Testament.
2. The purpose was to empower and enable certain believers to accomplish the will of God under certain and varying circumstances.
 - a. In the Old Testament this ministry was always to a few believers, but in the New Testament the Spirit's ministry is to all believers.
 - b. Because people do not understand this, there is a great deal of confusion. Pentecostal groups have picked up the ministry of the Holy Spirit to the Old Testament saints and have attempted to bring it into the Church Age.
3. This ministry is called enduement, or being clothed with the Spirit (LABACH). Enduement means to empower; to invest or endow with some gift, quality, or faculty of power; to clothe with power or ability above and beyond human ability.
4. Examples.
 - a. Joseph, Genesis 41:38.
 - b. Skilled labor to make Aaron's high priestly clothes, Exodus 28:3; and to build the tabernacle, Exodus 31:3.
 - c. The seventy administrative assistants to Moses, Numbers 11:25.
 - d. Joshua was empowered to be successful in warfare, Numbers 27:18.
 - e. Othniel and certain judges were empowered to kill Israel's enemies, Judges 3:10; Gideon to kill Arabs, Judges 6:34; Jephthah, Judges 11:29; Samson to kill a lion, Judges 14:6, and the Philistine army, Judges 15:14ff. All of these passages link the empowering of the Holy Spirit with killing the enemy or ruling the nation, and not as a part of spirituality.
 - f. Saul was empowered for ruling and communicating, so that the people could identify their leader, 1Samuel 10:9-10.
 - g. David, whose great feats were accomplished in the power of the Spirit, 1Samuel 16:13. David was perpetually empowered with the Spirit.
 - h. Daniel was empowered: Daniel 4:8, 5:11-12, 6:3.
 - i. The human authors of the Old Testament, 1Peter 1:11-12; 2Peter 1:20-21. These men knew all about Jesus Christ in His first advent. They preached by means of the power of the Holy Spirit.
5. There were three carnal believers in the Old Testament whom the Holy Spirit empowered.
 - a. Balaam, Numbers 24:2.

- b. Samson, Judges 13-15.
 - c. Saul, 1Samuel 19:23-4.
- 6. The Holy Spirit empowered a few Old Testament believers to perform miracles. There were three great periods of miracles.
 - a. During the ministry of Moses.
 - b. During the time of Elijah and Elisha.
 - c. During the dispensation of the Hypostatic Union by the Lord Jesus Christ. Matthew 12:28; Luke 4:14-18.
- D. Old Testament believers could request the empowering of the Holy Spirit.
 - 1. Elisha requested a double portion of the Spirit, 2Kings 2:9-10.
 - 2. The disciples were told to ask for the Spirit, but did not, Luke 11:13. So before the beginning of the Church Age and after His resurrection Christ gave them the Holy Spirit, John 20:22.
- E. Old Testament believers who received the Holy Spirit could lose the Holy Spirit as a matter of discipline.
 - 1. Saul, 1Samuel 16:13-14.
 - 2. David, Psalm 51:11.
 - 3. The warning to Solomon, Prov 1:23.
- F. The ministry of the Holy Spirit in the dispensation of the Hypostatic Union.
 - 1. During the dispensation of the Hypostatic Union, there were a few believers who were filled by the Holy Spirit, such as John the Baptist. However, the most important ministry was the ministry of the Holy Spirit to the humanity of Christ.
 - 2. The filling of the Spirit is always related in the dispensation of the Hypostatic Union or the Church Age to the divine dynasphere.
 - a. The humanity of Christ dwelt in the prototype divine dynasphere; we have the operational type divine dynasphere. This is why the filling of the Spirit which we have takes its precedence from the filling of the humanity of Christ.
 - b. The humanity of Christ was both indwelt and filled with the Spirit. That is precedence for our relationship with the Holy Spirit in the Church Age.
 - c. Efficacious and common grace are the same in every dispensation. Salvation is the same in every dispensation, but not the ministry of the Spirit to the believer.
 - 3. The prophesy of the ministry of the Spirit to Christ is found in:
 - a. Isaiah 11:2, "And the Spirit of the Lord will rest on Him, the Spirit of wisdom and understanding, the Spirit of counsel and knowledge, and occupation with the Lord."
 - (1) When anyone has the Holy Spirit, they have their own counsel and understanding. They do not have to go to anyone else for counseling. With doctrine, you have the ability to counsel yourself.

(2) "Wisdom" is doctrine that causes spiritual growth. "Understanding" is exposure to the teaching of doctrine. With doctrine, you do not depend on anyone with influence or power to do anything for you; you will depend upon the power of the Holy Spirit.

(3) "Knowledge" is understanding and being able to use the problem solving devices, which only the Spirit can reveal.

- b. Isaiah 42:1 quoted in Matthew 12:18 Behold My Servant [Jesus Christ], whom I sustain. My Chosen One, in whom My soul delights. I have put My Spirit on Him.
 - c. The Spirit filling Christ is the fulfillment of John 3:34 For He whom God has sent speaks the doctrines of God; for He does not give the Spirit by measure.
 - d. Matthew 12:28 Jesus said, 'If I cast out demons by the Spirit of God, then the kingdom has come to you.'
 - e. Luke 4:14 Jesus returned to Galilee in the power of the Spirit.
4. Our Lord was sustained in His humanity by the Spirit. He did not use His own divine attributes to glorify Himself or to fulfill anything in the strength of His divine power. It was a part of the dispensation of the Hypostatic Union that our Lord would depend on the Father's provision, including the Father's provision of the Holy Spirit. This would establish a precedent for the royal family of God in the Church Age.
5. Our Lord offered the filling of the Holy Spirit to any of his disciples who would ask for Him.
- a. This is why it says, "Ask and you shall receive, seek and you shall find, knock and it shall be opened unto you." That was Jesus giving a promise to the disciples to show them the mechanics for getting the filling of the Holy Spirit prior to the Church Age.
 - b. Luke 11:13 If you being evil, know how to give good gifts to your children [and you do], how much more shall your Father from heaven give the Holy Spirit to those who ask for Him. We do not ask for the Holy Spirit during the Church Age, since we receive Him as of the moment of salvation.
 - c. None of the disciples ever did ask the Lord for the filling of the Spirit. Consequently, just prior to the ascension, our Lord gave the Holy Spirit to the disciples without their asking. Why? Because He knew that in the ten days before the Church Age began, they would be tested beyond their power. Therefore, He gave them the power, so that they would be in fellowship and ready for the Church Age to begin on the day of Pentecost. John 20:22, "And when Jesus had said this, He breathed on them and said to them, 'Receive the Holy Spirit.'"

G. The ministry of the Holy Spirit in the Church Age to the royal family is unique.

1. Regeneration and efficacious grace are the same in all dispensations. The Holy Spirit makes the Gospel a spiritual reality to the unbeliever in every age.
2. But in the Church Age the key is the baptism of the Holy Spirit, which enters us into union with Christ.
3. Christ was appointed royalty at the session. But He is alone and must have a royal family to compliment His third royal patent, His battlefield royalty "sit down at My right hand until I make your enemies the footstool for Your feet."
4. God the Father stopped the Jewish age to provide a royal family for our Lord as the "King of kings and Lord of lords."
5. Therefore, because we are royalty, God the Holy Spirit does more for us at salvation than for believers of any other dispensation.
 - a. He makes our faith effectual, the ministry of efficacious grace.
 - b. He creates a human spirit for the imputation of eternal life, the ministry of regeneration.
 - c. He enters us into union with Christ as a guarantee of our escrow blessings, the baptism of the Spirit.
 - d. He enters us into the divine dynasphere for the power to execute the protocol plan of God, the ministry of the filling of the Holy Spirit. (The system of spirituality for Old Testament saints was not related to the Holy Spirit but to the faith-rest drill.)
 - e. He indwells us to provide a temple for the indwelling of the Shekinah glory (our Lord), the ministry of indwelling.
 - f. He provides a spiritual gift for function as a member of the body of Christ.
 - g. He guarantees our escrow blessings and eternal security, the sealing ministry of the Spirit.
6. Every believer is indwelt by the Holy Spirit and cannot lose that indwelling.
7. Every believer is filled with the Spirit at the point of salvation (because we are entered into the divine dynasphere) and loses the filling of the Spirit at the point of post-salvation sinning or carnality. The filling of the Spirit is only valuable when we know doctrine. The filling of the Spirit is the means of learning doctrine.
8. Recovery of the filling of the Spirit occurs through the use of the rebound technique, 1John 1:9, not by asking for the Spirit.

H. Summary.

1. The ministry of the Holy Spirit to the Jewish Age believer was quite different than His ministry to the Church Age believer.
2. In all dispensations the Holy Spirit is the agent of regeneration.
3. In the Church Age the Holy Spirit does much more for the royal family than He did for the believer in the Old Testament, or will do for the believers in the Millennium.
4. Fundamentalist Christianity today sometimes fails to make this distinction, resulting in apostasy and heresy.

5. The ministry of the Holy Spirit in the Old Testament was limited to a very few believers and was very different than His ministry to believers in the Church Age.
6. Not only was His Old Testament ministry limited to a few believers, but it could be taken away because of the believer's carnality and reversionism.
7. The Holy Spirit may be quenched or grieved in the Church Age, but He continues to indwell every believer. Sin neutralizes the filling of the Spirit until rebound occurs.
8. In the Church Age we are never commanded to ask for the Spirit, since we receive Him at salvation.
9. In the Church Age we are only commanded to be filled with the Spirit. This is accomplished by the use of the rebound technique, 1John 1:9.
10. In the Old Testament a believer could ask for the Holy Spirit and pray for His continued presence.

Lesson #505

505 08/24/1978 Rom. 15:22 Timing and legitimate asceticism of a missionary; Constantine and Methodius; 3 conditions of the believer

Being a missionary is a devotion to genteel poverty. God's blessing of a missionary does not, as a rule, come in material things. Missionaries learn how to starve gracefully and how to get on with a lot less things in life. This is why some missionaries seem odd when they return home to this life.

Louis the Pius supported many missions in the field; but he is a rare person who did this. Early on missionaries just went with their own money and the clothes on their back. They just went to where they believed God wanted them to be. For this reason, many missionaries have entered into some sort of asceticism.

Missionaries often do not know where their next meal is coming from; or where their set of clothes will come from. We have no idea what it is like to be a missionary. It requires a great deal more to be one.

Constantine took on the name Cyril (?). Two brothers, Constantine and Methodius (nothing to do with the Methodist church). High peer ratings for his art. Constantine become a great scholar. These two brothers lived in Thessalonika and heard the gospel there.

A monk at one time was a missionary who remained in one place and worked from there.

These two ran into the Kazars and they were being evangelized by Jews. They debated before the king and he began to lean in the direction of the Christians.

Then went to the Bulgarians, who were having problems with those in Transylvania, who practiced witchcraft.

Constantine was speaking of the last judgment and his brother painted a picture on a blank wall. The King, Boris, believed in Jesus Christ.

Constantine decided that these people needed to get a Bible in their own language. He reduced the Slavic language into an alphabet. Then he was able to translate the Bible into the Slavic language. This was their Bible and this divided them forever from the Roman Catholic Church. This took about 4 years for Constantine to do.

Bohemia would never be taken by the Catholic church. The reformation occurred 200 years earlier in Bulgaria.

Andrew one of the 12 Apostles, went to Russia and led some of them to the Lord.

The grandson of a believer, Vladimir, who led hundreds of thousands to the Lord. Most missionaries who do pioneer work are often very ascetic. They cannot afford anything other than energy. Many have never had wives; men of intense characters and ascetics. They would be considered oddballs and weirdos.

Compared to missionaries, we live normal lives. Missionaries are often not even accepted at their own home church.

With the indwelling of the Holy Spirit and the indwelling of the old sin nature, we have antithetical concepts arguing about who is going to control the soul. If the Holy Spirit controls the soul,

There is such a thing as demon possession; and as weird behavior, but one does not always indicate the other.

Bob covers some points on the filling of the Spirit. We can only glorify the Lord by being filled with the Spirit.

Emotion or ecstasies have no spiritual connotation in this dispensation.

There were places blocked off from Paul. He could go into Troy, Tarsus, South Galatia; Lycus valley, Ephesians, Northern and Southern Greece, and several others.

Romans 15:22 Therefore also I have been hindered many times to come to you. (BLB)

Paul has always wanted to go into these other areas. They are open to him, but he will blow it and go to Jerusalem instead.

The Adriatic Sea split Rome into east and west. Greek spoken on one side, Latin on the other.

Verse 22 – “For which cause also I have been much hindered from coming to you.” Up until now God has closed the door on coming to Rome. In his missionary function God wanted Paul to cover the eastern half of the Roman empire first. Not all of it, but the important parts. The verse begins with dió (διό) [pronounced DEE-oh], plus the conjunction kai, plus the imperfect passive indicative enkóptō (ἐγκόπτω) [pronounced eng-KOP-to]. dió (διό) [pronounced DEE-oh] is self-evident inference, an obvious inference, translated “For this reason.” The adjunctive use of kai is “also, for this reason also.” The imperfect passive indicative of enkóptō (ἐγκόπτω) [pronounced eng-KOP-to] means to impede, to hinder, to prevent, to delay, to detain. Here it means to detain. This is the voluntative imperfect tense, lack of attainment in the case of a desire or wish, hence lack of realization of fulfilling of a goal or project. Paul has always wanted to preach in Rome. “For this reason also I have been detained.” He has been detained in order to take up the slack in certain areas of positive volition in the eastern part of the empire. The passive voice: Paul receives the action of the verb, God has detained him as a part of settling certain positive areas in the east. The indicative mood is declarative for the reality of Paul being hindered or prevented from coming to Rome to minister.

Then the accusative neuter plural direct object from the adjective polus, polos (πολύς, πολλός) [pronounced poll-OOS], meaning “many times.” The articular aorist active infinitive from the verb érchomai (ἔρχομαι) [pronounced AIR-khoh-my] which means to come. With it is the ablative singular of source from the definite article, and it is translated like a preposition meaning “from,” with the infinitive—“from coming.” The aorist tense of the infinitive is constative, it refers to a series of events gathered up into one entirety. There were several times when Paul could have gone to Rome but he was always hindered or prevented. The active voice: Paul was hindered from producing the action of the verb, which was coming to Rome. Finally, the preposition prós (πρός) [pronounced pross] plus the accusative of su.

Verses 22-24, the timing of the ministry.

Paul's Plan to Visit Rome

Lesson #506

506 08/25/1978 Romans 15:22 Principle; doctrinal missions in Europe; review of the doctrine of divine guidance; the will of God for you

Paul was about halfway through his ministry at this time. He was a missionary at this time. This requires more self-sacrifice and almost a life of asceticism.

A missionary station at that time was called a monastery and those who worked there were called monks. These words have a much different set of meanings today.

How some places were cut off and how others were opened up. Radical change of weather. North American continent shut down for a considerable amount of time.

Missionaries are some of the most gallant people in our midst. Missions are the very lifeblood of our country. If missions go wrong, the 5th cycle of discipline cannot be far behind. Even in the Dark Ages we had some very important great missionaries, including some who were in the Roman church.

The acceleration of missions really took off after the reformation.

Baron Von Realts had a complete change of attitude. He was an aristocrat. Three propositions, (1) Is it right that we keep the gospel just to ourselves? (2) Is it right to have so many students of theology and we do not encourage them to go elsewhere? (3) Is it right for us to be so wealthy, and not send missionaries out? The reaction made him understand that Austria and Germany were not for him. After intensive study, he set sail for Dutch Guiana. He won a few thousand. It appeared that he was a failure; but that is not true.

Others began to fight against the formalism of the Lutheran Church. 1698 the famous university of Holland. This was to train men for the mission field and there was an emphasis on scholarship. From this was a movement to break into India. This is the beginning of modern missions. India was a place where a lot of little brown men were confused, but they received with joy the gospel of Jesus Christ.

Rereading of vv. 18–22.

Paul says that he would not intrude on the mission field of another person. The Roman Catholic church originated from the concept of building a field, and then going to another field, and proselyting (they did this first in the 4th century). They succeeded using the sword and political pressure, this led to the dark ages.

Points

1. When this was written, the Roman church started out very well. Peter and Paul were not founders of the church. Acts 2:10 and visitors from Rome, both Jews and proselytes.
2. God does not guide Paul into someone else's field.
3. When the time is right, Paul will go to Rome.
4. You have no ministry until God opens the door. This Roman epistle is the beginning of Paul's ministry.
5. Paul must be sensitive to the will of God, as all believers ought to be.

Areas which previously enjoyed balmy weather suddenly became very cold (like Greenland and similar regions). Changes in weather can open and close doors and is possibly God's purpose.

Visions, dreams, and other things can guide a person, at least in that period of time.

The only effective foreign policy that we have ever had comes from missionary work. You cannot know the will of God apart from the Word of God.

There are different classifications of the will of God. God has a preventative will. There is the volition of angels as related to human history. The axiom for divine guidance. 1John 3:23. That we believe in the name of His Son, Jesus Christ, and love one another.

There are people who have no idea what the will of God is. These people are not patient enough to take in doctrine and to listen to what is being taught.

In counseling, Bob has found out that people simply want to superimpose their will over God's will.

The have to be patient; you have to relax. You have to figure out what to do. Some of you want to get up now and rush out and do some great things for God.

L. L. Lector made you want to get up and then to the altar and then go out and do great things. But no one can achieve anything on the mission field half-baked. You need to have greater flexibility than the person filling out his income tax where he made a million dollars for that year.

Do not think that you need to get up immediately and go somewhere.

There must be classification of the will of God. Does God want you to learn doctrine? Hell, yes.

The directive will of God. Everything clicks.

Balaam is put into a situation where he faces the various wills of God. Directive will, permissive will of God, and the overruling will of God.

Principles of the Will of God:

1. Doctrine in the soul is found in Psalm 32:8; Isaiah 58:11. The pure thoughts of doctrine, not the deceptive thoughts of man, are the basis for divine guidance. Prov 3:1-6; Romans 12:2. Gates 1-4 of the divine dynasphere are the key to divine guidance.
2. The filling of the Holy Spirit is a part of divine guidance, Ephesians 5:14-18.
3. Spiritual growth causes you to know more of the will of God, 2Peter 3:18; Hebrews 11:7.

Paul Fails as a Result of His Emotion

1. Paul will violate his own missionary policy, and the reason is emotional revolt. A missionary cannot get into an emotional jag. Paul understands this principle, even though he will violate it.
2. Paul's divine guidance should cause him to advance to Spain. God's plan was not for Paul to go to Jerusalem.
3. Paul has been very lucid about not going to places where Christ has been mentioned. But he violates this by going to Jerusalem.

One More Principle

1. The royal family honor code tells you the will of God. Impersonal love. Flexibility in the nonessentials.
2. Because the application of the honor code to missionary function, Paul has been able to reason that he should stay away from where Christ was already preached.
3. Paul says that he was hindered from coming to Rome, this was his own policy. That policy told him what to do.
- 4.
5. An illustration. Many people have eaten or drunk themselves to death; but no one ever thinks himself to death.
6. Thinking is not anti-Christian. Thinking doctrinal viewpoint is fulfilling the plan of God.
7. Emotion should be subordinate to thinking. Not leading. You are saved whether you feel saved or not.
8. Christianity is what you think, not what you feel.
9. Going to Jerusalem will be Paul's emotional response. Self-imposed negative volition keeps him out of Rome.

1977 Romans

Lesson #507

507 08/27/1978 Romans 15:23–24a Schwarz and India; analogy of Keil Und Kessel; doctrine of Paul's fourth missionary journey

Romans 15:23 But now, no longer having a place in these regions, and having had a great desire for many years to come to you,... (BLB)

Verse 23 – “But now having no more place in these parts.” The postpositive conjunctive particle de is used to emphasize a contrast with the previous part of the sentence in the previous verse. With it is the adverb of time, nuní (νυνί) [pronounced noo-NEE], is used. It is now time to make a decision. This refers to Paul's current status, and having covered the areas of the eastern empire he is now ready for the next step in God's plan for his life. Plus the present active participle of the verb echō (ἔχω) [pronounced EHKH-oh], and the negative adverb mêketi (μηκέτι) [pronounced may-KEHT-ee] meaning “no longer.” “But now no longer having” is the correct translation. The historical present tense views a past event with the vividness of a present occurrence. The active voice: Paul produces the action of the verb. The participle is circumstantial. With this is the accusative singular direct object from topos (τόπος) [pronounced TOP-oss], a region, a place, to minister as a missionary. Then the prepositional phrase, en (ἐν) [pronounced en] plus the locative of the demonstrative pronoun houtos (οὗτος) [pronounced HOO-tos], plus the locative plural from klima—“in these regions.” Paul’s missionary function has been replaced by the operation of the local church. He functioned on the indigenous principle and therefore he no longer has a mission in these places because everywhere he has gone he has not only evangelized but he has established churches.

“and having a great desire these many years to come to you” – the connective use of the conjunction de is translated “and.” The present active participle from the verb echō (ἔχω) [pronounced EKKH-oh], “having.” This is a descriptive present for what is now going on in the soul of Paul. The active voice: Paul produces the action. The participle is circumstantial meaning it is time to move.

The accusative singular direct epipothía (ἐπιποθία) [pronounced ep-ee-poth-EE-ah] means a very strong desire. God often leads through a proper desire. It is now time to move on. The articular aorist middle infinitive from the verb érchomai (ἔρχομαι) [pronounced AIR-khoh-my] means to come. The aorist tense is a dramatic aorist stating a present reality with the certitude of a past event. While this is in the middle voice it is a deponent verb, middle in form but active in meaning. Paul produces the action, a desire to travel to Rome. He is really coming as a visitor of the Roman church, to see a place he has never seen. The infinitive expresses his purpose. Then the preposition prós (πρός) [pronounced pross] plus the accusative of su – “face to face with you.” He wants to be there in person and see the area and meet the people. Next is the preposition apó (ἀπό) [pronounced aw-PO] plus the ablative from the adjective hikanos (ἰκανός) [pronounced hik-an-OSS], which means sufficient, large enough, adequate. In the plural it means “many.” Plus the ablative plural from etos (ἔτος) [pronounced EHT-oss] – “years.”

A missionary penetrates a region and moves along from there and penetrates a new region. This is known as Keil Und Kessel. This is like an army advancing. They do not take each and every place; they take a section and move ahead; take a portion and advance. Leave the rest for another army to mop up.

Romans 15:23 But now no longer having a ministry in these regions, and having a desire to come to you for many years.

Summary Points

1. Paul’s desires were compatible with the great genius of his soul and compatible with the plan of God for his life.
2. The greatest mind in history would have a normal interest in the capital of the Roman empire, the administrative centre for the fullness of time. Galatians 4:4. The fullness of time was the Roman empire, not the Roman republic. The republic could not accomplish what the empire accomplished. God used the adventure of Cæsar to move ahead. The Roman empire was the fullness of time. Therefore, Paul would like to visit the central headquarters of all this.

3. Little did Paul realize that eventually his attention would shift from Jerusalem to Rome, which he would visit twice. Paul will die there on his second visit.

The Roman church is confused about honoring Peter, as Peter did not every visit Rome; Paul did twice.

Romans 15:24 ...whenever I may go to Spain, I hope indeed, going through, to see you and to be equipped there by you, if first I should be filled of you in part. (BLB)

Verse 24 – “Whensoever I take my journey into Spain.” We are still dealing with the same sentence which began in verse 22. The comparative particle hos indicates the manner in which something proceeds. Here it introduces an indefinite temporal clause. Next is an untranslatable particle, án (ὅν) [pronounced ahn]. It means that in writing the Greek language certain things were brought out when you read them but you didn’t have to pronounce them because everyone understood them. This is was sort of help to make a person understand that the action of the verb was dependent upon some circumstance or condition. So they used the word án (ὅν) [pronounced ahn] in a temporal clause for an actual future reference. The two particle hos plus án (ὅν) [pronounced ahn] plus the subjunctive mood introduce what is called an indefinite temporal clause in the Greek. It is translated, not “whensoever” but usually “as soon as” or “whenever.” Then the present middle subjunctive of the verb poreuomai (πορεύομαι) [pronounced po-ROO-oh-my], which means to go. The tendencial present is for an action which is purposed though it is not actually taking place at the moment. The middle voice: while the active voice emphasizes the action the middle voice emphasizes the agent. This is an indirect middle, emphasizing the agent as producing the action rather than participating in the results of the action. The subjunctive mood is potential, with the án (ὅν) [pronounced ahn] emphasizing an indefinite temporal clause which refers to something qualified by an element of contingency. Then the preposition eis (εἰς) [pronounced ICE] plus the accusative of the proper noun Spanía (Σπανία) [pronounced span-EE-ah] —“to Spain.”

Paul and Rome

1. Paul wrote this indefinite temporal clause circa 58.
2. Allowing time for Paul’s emotional reversionism and discipline he will reach Rome about 62. This will take Paul about 4 years from this writing.
3. Paul will be placed under house arrest for two years in Rome, waiting for his trial before Nero—Philippians 2:23, 24; Philemon 22.
4. During his imprisonment in Rome Paul will write the four great epistles: Ephesians, Philippians, Colossians, Philemon. They are called the prison epistles.
5. Paul will be tried by Nero and released for lack of evidence in 63 or 64 AD.
6. At this point Paul will begin the fourth missionary journey.

There is a parenthesis beginning after the word "Spain."

Paul's Fourth Missionary Journey

Paul has a future after discipline. We will study his discipline later one; but let's study his glorious future. It takes divine discipline to advance us in the plan of God. If we are still alive at the end of God's discipline, we can move forward.

1. On Acquittal in 63 or 64, he will travel east. In Romans 16 he had planned to go up to Marsais, going west. Instead, he has to go west, so he goes to Macedonia instead. The church in Rome is a church of vigorous believers; but in four years, they have lost their vigor. So he must go back to churches he can still send missionaries. He could not go directly west from Rome. Philippians 2:24 and Philemon 22. Some people do not think there is a 4th missionary journey. The principle is sometimes you must go backward in order to go forward.
2. This means that Paul traveled by land, the Ignatian Highway. Paul was their best customer. No restrictions there on speed. This goes to Philippi and then it curls down and goes to Ephesians and then to the Lycus Valley. Released in 63 or 64 and he takes the famous road.
3. Paul has not previously visited the Lycus valley. Paul wanted to see just what the indigenous movement could do. This was an historical monument. There were established churches.
4. The necessity that brought Paul there is related to missions and gnosticism.
5. At the end of the year, 64, after making the circuit east, he travels west to Spain. Romans 15:24–28
6. Paul left from Ephesus, moving west across the Mediterranean to Asyilia (Marsais). Rome was too hot at the moment, so Paul bypassed Rome. God preserved Paul from the wrath of Nero. Going east and then west threw Nero off, who expected him to have gone strictly west.
7. Paul established something in Marsais, but Paul did not go north in France. He set up a mission station in Marsais and moved on.
8. He crossed the Mediterranean to Gades and he got them trained in two years. This mission station would expand, ideally speaking, to Spain and to France.
9. Paul set out then to Ephesus.
10. From Ephesus he went to Macedonia. So Paul wrote Timothy a letter. Timothy did not know what to do with the women who ran over him. Paul is saying goodbye to people that he would never see again.
11. At this time, from Macedonia, Paul also wrote to Titus in Crete; and Titus was a great troubleshooter for Paul. Trouble began to break out. He left some people behind, Trophemus, Titus, and Erasmus.
12. Paul then advanced to Nicopolis which was built by Augustus in 30 B.C.
13. Paul wintered in Nicapolis in 67–68. Nero was aware that Paul was there, so Paul was captured there.
14. Paul was brought in chains to Rome. He wrote his final letter to Timothy.
15. Except for Luke, Paul was alone. He retraced all of the key churches.

16. Paul knew that he was condemned before it was told to him. 2Timothy 2:9. He is ready to die.
17. Pauline team had been dispersed by the great peal off. 1Timothy 1:4–5 2Timothy 4:20 4:10, 12 (I missed one in there).
18. A brief account of Paul's trial 2Timothy 4:6–8 14–17 In between the trial and the execution, Paul wrote to Timothy. As long as Paul was around, Nero would live. When Nero killed Britannicus, that wiped out the Claudio-Julian line. It began with the ministry of Jesus and ended with Paul's death.

This doctrine is also found in Acts.

1977 Romans

Lesson #508

508 08/27/1978 Romans 15:24b Engedi and Iceland; Moravians; legitimate sacrifices, asceticism and recreation of a missionary

There were questions about what had happened in Greenland. Took two years to get his congregation to release him. 46 people aboard to make that perilous voyage. Only darawf and stupid Eskimos at that time. He evangelized them. It was the tremendous influence of Lief Erickson and others to cause him to do this. Hans Engedi did this.

Someone who came in the 1700s influenced by Engedi. Developed a tremendous missionary organization. Started with 2; and 100s by the 1900s. Records of 75,000 people led to the Lord and trained.

We have lost our impetus in the field of doctrine; and the desire to send out missionaries. We will receive discipline for a lack of interest in Bible doctrine; a lack of interest in missionaries. Their preparation requires a great deal. In this country, we evangelize; in other countries, we send missionaries.

Romans 15:24 ...whenever I may go to Spain, I hope indeed, going through, to see you and to be equipped there by you, if first I should be filled of you in part. (BLB)

“for I trust to see you in my journey” – the explanatory use of the postpositive conjunctive particle gar, followed by the present active indicative of the verb elpizō (ἐλπίζω) [pronounced el-PID-zoh], used here in the sense of future anticipation, future confidence—“for I expect.” The expectation means that he anticipates with confidence something that will happen in the future. This is a result of, first of all, having had a successful life at this point in the teaching of the Word. But more than that, it means that when you learn a lot of doctrine you develop a lot of confidence, not only about the present but a tremendous amount of confidence about the future. And you can often make application with regard to the future right into your present situation. That is what Paul is doing with regard to his own missionary activity. The present tense is a tendential present used for an action which is purposed but not yet taking place. The active voice: Paul produces the action of the verb. The indicative mood is declarative for the reality of Paul's intention and application.

Next is an aorist middle infinitive from the verb theaomai (θεάομαι) [pronounced theh-AH-om-ahee] which means to see a perspective. The constative aorist gathers into one entirety the action of the verb. The action whether momentary or extended is complimented in its entirety as far as this verb is concerned. This is a deponent verb. This is the infinitive of purpose. It is followed by the accusative plural direct object from the personal pronoun su. Translation: "for I expect to see you."

Next is a present middle participle from diaporeuomai (διαπορεύομαι) [pronounced dee-ap-or-YOO-om-ahee] which means to pass through. This is a futuristic present. Paul produces the action. It is a deponent verb; it is a temporal participle, and it is translated "when passing through." He knows he is going to see the Romans, but because of his own reversionism there will be no passing through experience. It will be halt, sit down, produce the prison epistles, have some wonderful fellowship and get some shock—all the Roman believers aren't very nice, though some are wonderful.

Bob talks about the teens in Berachah Church. And about those who have the wrong perspective of life. They have a desire for things.

Whole families have moved to Houston, and there are all kinds of problems. In their own little home, they could turn on the tape recorder and there were not all of the distractions of the other people in Berachah Church (or in Houston). People have become negative after coming to Berachah. Thousands have come with the idea of getting doctrine and have left with negative attitudes.

All Berachah people are not wonderful. There are people here who would cheat you or use you up. They use this church. All Berachah is not Berachah.

Here is a person who is absolutely confident that he is going to continue to live. He doesn't realize yet all that is ahead of him but he has absolute confidence that his death is not near.

Paul was not expecting what would happen. He would have two years in Rome and he will be more productive than in his four missionary journeys. His accomplishments are nothing compared to what he wrote in Romans and the prison epistles. They will have impact on every generation until the end of time.

Paul knows that he will see the Romans. He will not be passing through, however. He will be kept there for a couple years. Paul is assuming too much.

"and to be brought on my way thitherward by you" – the connective use of the conjunction kai, then the preposition hupó (ὑπό) [pronounced hoop-OH] plus the ablative of agency from the personal pronoun su should be translated "and by you." Then the aorist passive infinitive from the verb propempō (προπέμπω) [pronounced prop-EM-poh] which means to escort, to assist with money, clothing, food, and even companion. Paul is saying, in effect, “and by you being assisted.” He is talking about money, clothes, food, and people to escort him. The constative aorist gathers up into one entirety all the assistance necessary to send the missionary to the field. The passive voice: Paul receives the action of the verb—to be helped by believers. The infinitive indicates intended result. When the result is indicated as fulfilling a deliberate objective it is called intended result, a blending of purpose and result. This is not the way it is going to work out historically but it still is the principle, therefore the Holy Spirit led Paul to put in something that would not happen. The Roman church would not send him out. It was churches in the Roman province of Asia headquartered in Ephesus, that would send him out. The principle holds whether it works out the way Paul wanted it to or not. The principle is: People cannot go to the mission field without support from local churches. Paul expected his support to come from Rome, but it would come from Ephesus. Missionaries must be supported.

Monasteries were built so that a missionary might stop and get fed and then he moves forward. The principle is, missionaries must be supported. The monasteries did this at first; but since then, they have gone haywire.

So many missionaries take part in providing water or plumbing or something along those lines; but they are supposed to be providing the gospel and then some Bible doctrine.

Next is an adverb of place, ekei (ἐκεῖ) [pronounced ehk-ē], which means “there” or “to that place,” referring to Spain and Gaul.

Let’s say that you have been called by God to the mission field and then study your brains out. And then you have to walk around with your hand out. There should be a way for missionaries to get to the mission field without begging.

The Maravian churches never had more than maybe 60,000 in them in total, but they have 1000 people in the field. They have a custom. No missionary ever has to beg or crawl or starve.

We appear to be superficial and flighty to missionaries. They tend to be very intense. It is hard for a missionary to have a sense of humor with everyone on their back. There are missionary boards and various religions. Bob knows five people who came back from the mission field because they were married to bitches who nagged them back here.

Some have the gift of refreshments; and you ought to be helping these people out, taking them out or having them over.

Paul expects rest and recreation from Rome. Something happened and the Roman church did not send Paul out on this 4th missionary journey.

There are a lot of places in the world where there were good teachers in the Roman church, an example being Martin Luther. The pope, in order to gain power, fouled up the system very badly. The Dark Ages or the Middle Ages have people in power coming to the popes for forgiveness.

1977 Romans

Lesson #509

509 08/28/1978 Romans 15:24c–25 Bible doctrine priority over social life; doctrine of Paul's reversionism; emotion and rationalization

Romans 15:24 ...whenever I may go to Spain, I hope indeed, going through, to see you and to be equipped there by you, if first I should be filled of you in part. (BLB)

“if first I be somewhat filled with your company” –the conjunction which introduces the third class condition is εάν (ἐάν) [pronounced eh-AHN], plus the subjunctive. The 3rd class condition is a more probable future condition. With it is the adverb proton (πρώτον) [pronounced PRO-ton], first in sequence of enumeration, correctly translated “first.” The verb is the aorist passive subjunctive from empiplêmi/emplêthô (ἐμπίπλημι/ἐμπλήθω) [pronounced em-PIP-lay-mee/em-PLAY-tho], which means to be satiated, to have the full enjoyment of something, to be filled with something, but generally it means to be satisfied with something: “if first I am satisfied.” The constative aorist contemplates the action of the verb in its entirety, i.e. the teaching of doctrine to the Romans, and fellowshiping with them over a period of time. The emphasis is on teaching, for Paul will have something for the Romans to learn before he departs to go to Spain. When he is satisfied that what he has for them is understood he will leave. The subjunctive mood is potential and is used for recognition of the 3rd class condition. With this is the objective genitive plural from the personal pronoun su, referring to Roman believers—“if first I am satisfied with you.” The prepositional phrase από (ἀπό) [pronounced aw-PO], plus the ablative singular of méros (μέρος) [pronounced MEH-ros] which means a division from the whole and therefore a part or a fragment. Literally, “from apart.” It is an idiom meaning “partly” or “in some measure” or “in part.”

Romans 15:24 Whenever I go to Spain—for I expect to see you when passing through, and by you be assisted to that place, if first I am satisfied with you in part—...

Points

1. The last phrase in the KJV, “if first I be somewhat filled with your company,” has often been construed as enjoying for a while the company, the fellowship or social life of the Roman believers. Such an interpretation is just too frivolous for the Romans, and for the apostle.
2. His traveling motives are related to the tremendous amount of doctrine he carries in his soul, plus his spiritual gift, plus the filling of the Spirit. Therefore he is not above having a couple of hours of social life, provided it does not interfere with evangelization or teaching doctrine.
3. Paul will not be satisfied with part of the congregation until first he has communicated and ministered to those doctrines which they have never heard.

4. The doctrine Paul will communicate when he arrives in Rome will be the content of the prison epistles.
5. When Paul is satisfied that Roman Christians have responded to these doctrines so that some of them have advanced to maturity, then he will depart from Rome with confidence that he has secured his supply line to the west. He has left behind a missionary-minded church who will support him with prayer, personal interest, money, friends to accompany him, and whatever else it takes to get Paul operative in the mission field of the west.
6. A missionary must not leave behind any unmended fences as he goes into the mission field—no indebtedness, no bills, no problems.
7. In other words, any missionary starts by being one at home, not in a foreign land.
8. If you cannot witness at home you cannot evangelize on the mission field.
9. If you cannot apply doctrine and use common sense at home you will not do so on the mission field.
10. If you are inflexible regarding the non-essentials at home you will be inflexible regarding the non-essential on the mission field. And this is a disaster.
11. Going to a foreign country as a missionary does not change the missionary.

Anticipating verse 25, which begins with two particles: nuní (νυνί) [pronounced noo-NEE] de. It describes the beginning of Paul's reversionism. Verses 25-27, Paul's planned reversionism: a) Paul's emotional aberration, verse 25; b) Paul's opportunity for rationalism, verse 26; c) Paul's administrative distraction, verse 27.

Romans 15:25 But now I am going to Jerusalem, ministering to the saints. (BLB)

Verse 25 – “But now I go to Jerusalem to minister unto the saints.” Right before our eyes we see the great apostle dissolving into emotional reversionism. The postpositive conjunctive particle de sets up a contrast between what Paul desires and what God wills. The adverb nuní (νυνί) [pronounced noo-NEE] is an adverb of time—“But now.” In these three verses Paul is going to anticipate his own reversionism. He is still in fellowship, he is just describing what he is going to do. Once he does it, he is out of fellowship. Next is the present middle indicative of the verb poreuomai (πορεύομαι) [pronounced po-ROO-oh-my], meaning to go, to travel. The pictorial present presents to the mind events in the process of occurrence, though Paul has not made a move as yet. The middle voice is the indirect middle, emphasizing Paul as the agent producing the action rather than participating in the results of the action. The declarative indicative mood is for historical reality or the beginning of a journey into reversionism. The fateful prepositional phrase, eis (εἰς) [pronounced ICE] plus the indeclinable noun Hierousalēm (Ἱερουσαλήμ) [pronounced hee-er-oo-sal-AME], is “to Jerusalem.” “But now I go to Jerusalem.”

The word “to minister” is the present active participle of diakoneō (διακονέω) [pronounced dee-ak-on-EH-oh], which means, as translated, to minister—doctrinal teaching. The futuristic present tense denotes Paul's administration, the offering from Greece, and his hope of teaching doctrine at the same time. Paul's plan is to use this offering in order to get a speaking engagement in Jerusalem. The active voice: Paul assumes the action of the verb in his thinking. The participle is a telic participle, it denotes a future purpose and is translated like a purpose infinitive. Next is the dative plural indirect object from the definite article, plus the dative plural indirect object from the noun hagios (ἅγιος) [pronounced HA-gee-oss]—"to the saints," a reference to believers in Jerusalem.

The gentiles want Paul's teaching; the people in Jerusalem do not. It is fine to bring the offering to them; but he should not use the offering in order to leverage the church hierarchy into a course of action that they don't want. Paul should have sent someone else down there with the offering.

Romans 15:25 Now I go to Jerusalem to minister to the saints.

By way of anticipation:

Doctrine of Paul's Reversionism

8/28/78

1. It was the will of God that during Paul's fourth missionary journey, he should go to Spain, Romans 15:24,25,28.
2. After Paul's visit to Ephesus and the riot of the silversmith union, Paul was headed west in the right direction, to Macedonia, but he stops at Corinth Acts 20:1. Paul then turned for Troy; at Miletus he was hurrying to Jerusalem, Acts 20:16. Here Paul had his pastor's conference for the pastors of Ephesus, Acts 20:17-28. From Miletus, Paul sailed directly to Tyre, Acts 21:1-3.
3. Paul was warned twice by the Holy Spirit not to go to Jerusalem, Acts 21:4-9, 10-13.
4. Paul, now in reversionism, disobeyed completely, Acts 21:14-17.
5. Paul fails in Jerusalem. He took bad advice from the local pastors, Acts 21:20-24. No pastor has to compromise with anything or anyone to gain a hearing for the teaching of Bible doctrine. Paul was asked to compromise Bible doctrine by taking a vow.
6. When Paul returned to the temple, he was discovered, and a riot broke out, Acts 21:27-32. He was rescued by the Roman military and kept in the Mark Anthony barracks for his own safety, Acts 21:33ff.
7. He was taken to Caesarea and spent two years there as a prisoner, 59-60 AD. Three judges heard his case and all considered him innocent: Felix in Acts 24, Festus in Acts 25 Festus, and Agrippa in Acts 26. It took two years for Paul to recover from reversionism. An assassins group of 40 took a vow to not eat until they killed Paul.
8. Paul spent the next two years in Rome as a prisoner, 61-62 AD, while his case was being appealed to Cæsar. He wrote Philippians, Ephesians, Colossians, and Philemon while under house arrest. Philippians 3:12-19 tells us that he continued his spiritual advance, while Philippians 3:4-8 describes his perspective as a spiritually adult believer having recovered from reversionism. He is through with human celebrityship, with the false perspective of Judaism, v. 7 he has the perspective of a supergrace believer; and now has a new set of priorities.

510 08/29/1978 Romans 15:26 Mrs. "Stonewall"; military honor codes; rationalization; giving to the destitute

Anna Jackson, Stonewall Jackson's wife. She was 32 when he died; she died at age 85 in 1915. She knew personal troubles and losses. She never married again. Marrying again would have been unthinkable to her. Her husband left no great means. Finances gave her some difficulty and she refused to take help. She turned down offers to write about her husband. Eventually, she did write about him. She is a woman who never lost perspective. She never tried to take any credit.

Men will lie and cheat and even send men to the deaths in order to advance in the armed forces. The government of the United States is creating a dishonest population. Careerism had produces a dishonest, unprofessional corps of men.

Christianity has an honor code.

We are in trouble because of the honor code of all branches of the military. There is no accepted standard in this realm. It has been destroyed by bitterness and vindictiveness. Careerism to the military is like reversionism for Christianity.

Going back all the way to Romans 15:1

Hamburger Hill was a disaster and it happened because we lacked an officer honor code.

Romans 15:26 For Macedonia and Achaia were pleased to make a certain contribution for the poor among the saints in Jerusalem. (BLB)

Verse 26 – “For it hath pleased them of Macedonia.” The explanatory use of the postpositive conjunctive particle gar. He is explaining why he is going to Jerusalem. The aorist active indicative of eudokeô (εὐδοκέω) [pronounced yoo-dok-EH-oh] [eû (εὐ) [pronounced yoo] = good or well; dokeô (δοκέω) [pronounced dok-EH-oh] = to assume and to think in terms of superficialities] means to think well, literally. It means here to be well pleased, to take a delight in, to take a pleasure in, and to decide for. “For I have decided with pleasure.” The constative aorist gathers into one entirety the great motivation of the subject. There was nothing wrong with the decision of the believers in Macedonia, they did the right thing. Only Paul will do the wrong thing in connection with their right decision. Principle: It is possible for some people to do something right + right = right (the believers in Macedonia), but Paul is going to take their rights and is going to rationalize. Right plus rationalization = wrong. When you start to ride on the coat tails of someone who is right, you might turn out being wrong. The subject is Macedonia and Achaia. They have decided with pleasure. The declarative indicative views the action of the verb from the standpoint of reality.

“to make a certain contribution for the poor saints which are at Jerusalem” – the aorist middle infinitive of the verb poieō (ποιέω) [pronounced poi-EH-oh], which doesn’t mean to make a contribution. It means to do, to make, to manufacture. The dramatic aorist takes a present reality with the certitude of a past event. The idiom is a device for emphasize, it refers to the great offering which is being administered. The middle voice is the dynamic middle which emphasizes the part taken by the subject, emphasizing the fact of proper motivation and proper giving totally apart from any system of gimmicks. The infinitive is an actual result. Plus the accusative singular direct object of the verb from the indefinite pronoun tís (τις) [pronounced tihç], which is not indefinite but categorical. This is the emphatic use reflecting a sense of distinction and importance. Therefore we translate “certain” or “special.”

Next is the accusative singular direct object from koinōnia (κοινωνία) [pronounced koi-nohn-EE-ah], which means fellowship or offering, and here it means to make a special offering. This phrase emphasizes the principle of giving as a function of the Christian life without begging, without gimmicks, without any form of solicitation. Then comes eis (εἰς) [pronounced ICE] plus the accusative plural of ptōchos (πτωκός) [pronounced ptoh-KHOSS],, sometimes translated “beggar” but it really means “destitute. We translate it here, “the poor ones.” The ablative of comparison plural from hagios (ἅγιος) [pronounced HA-gee-oss]—“among the saints.”

The people in Jerusalem are under discipline. Why aren’t people in Jerusalem giving money? They don’t have it. They are all under discipline there and many would be killed, dying the sin unto death.

It is not our business to determine if someone is worthy or not. It is our job to live our lives as unto the Lord and to be helpful to those who are suffering. It is not our business to judge them.

Plus en (ἐν) [pronounced en] plus the locative of Hierousalēm (Ἱερουσαλήμ) [pronounced hee-er-oo-sal-AME]—“who are in Jerusalem.”

Impersonal Giving

1. There is no distinction made between the poor reversionist in Jerusalem and the poor positive believer. When people are destitute distinction are not made. If your enemy hungers, then feed him. If he thirsts, give him to drink. That is the honor code.
2. This is impersonal giving, which means it is not based on emotion but based upon compassion from rationalism or doctrine.
3. Impersonal giving emphasizes the subject rather than the object.
4. The subject is properly motivated by doctrine rather than impelled by emotionalism.
5. Impersonal giving is motivated by impersonal love, therefore such giving becomes a part of the function of the royal family honor code.
6. Many of the saints in Jerusalem are destitute as a part of the divine discipline.

7. Other believers are positive toward doctrine and their poverty is a part of the principle of testing as a means of advance, testing for the purpose of determining priorities. In some cases it is undeserved suffering of the mature believer. But the reason for being destitute is not the issue, it is the question of the believer's motivation in giving.
8. The reason for the poverty is not the issue. Impersonal giving, like impersonal love, emphasizes the doctrinal standards and grace motivation of the subject.
9. Furthermore spiritual giving divorces emotion from the motivation factor. You do not give from emotion.
10. Emotion as the master of the soul is a distraction to the Christian way of life. Emotion distracts from the royal family honor code. Normal soul reflex finds emotion the slave, not the master.
11. It should be remembered that emotion has no spiritual connotation in this dispensation.
12. Therefore true motivation in giving is not based on emotion but on the impersonal love function of the honor code.

No complete translation of v. 26 is given.

1977 Romans

Lesson #511

511 08/30/1978 Romans 15:26–27a "Crisis in Command" and military honor codes; distorting right into wrong; principle of giving

Things were better during Bob's youth; and even better during the time of his father. Criminal activity was restrained and now it is unrestrained. Prissy self-righteousness of the environmentalist. "Crisis in Command" by Richard Gabriel and Paul Savage. A list of problems. Disregard for principles but respect given to the completion of the least mission with zero defects. This has forced the young officer to choose between the goals of career and traditional values. Military Careerism has become the highest value of officers.

The Vietnam era introduced this problem. Resistance and protest to officer orders were not common. A shift from traditional values to entrepreneur values. It seems fair to conclude that there is no formal code of moral; and no place where we could find such a moral code. Careerism becomes the highest value.

An attempt to instill values in some in the academy. The problem is turning everyone in that you observe. It creates officers who learn how to manipulate the system as distinct from following an honor code.

Doctrine is the essential; but we are flexible with regards to the nonessentials. Those who are inflexible with regards to the nonessentials is what causes us to have kooks and weirdos.

Romans 15:26 For Macedonia and Achaia have decided with pleasure to make a special offering to the poor ones among the saints in Jerusalem.

Some Points

1. This collection of money was a good thing prepared for transport to Jerusalem.
2. Paul uses this good thing to become divorced from reality. He is inflexible where he should be flexible. He shuts out the honor code; but he rationalizes instead.
3. Therefore Paul justifies a trip to Jerusalem as the chief administrator of this gift.
4. A good thing has been rationalized into a system of self justification; and this puts off Saul going west.
5. No one can take the responsibility for a good thing done in the right way and turn it into emotional deviation.
6. Some hearers rationalization that occurs on the basis of good Bible teaching. Many criticisms of Berachah Church come distortions coming from weirdos. In what is about to happen, Paul will be the only one at fault. Taking that money to Jerusalem was an administrative function; which Paul did not need to do. Paul was needed west of the Adriatic; not in Jerusalem.

Romans 15:27 For they were pleased, and they are debtors of them. For if the Gentiles have shared in their spiritual things, they ought also to minister to them in the material things. (BLB)

Verse 27 – “It hath pleased them verily; and their debtors they are.” The postpositive conjunctive particle gar is used as an emphatic particle. It means here, “In fact,” or “Certainly,” or “Indeed.” Or it could even be translated “Yes.” The aorist active indicative of eudokeō (εὐδοκέω) [pronounced yoo-dok-EH-oh] – “Yes, they have decided with pleasure.” This is a culminative aorist viewing the action of the verb in its entirety but emphasizing the existing results. These believers in Greece have done a great thing. First because their motivation in giving was right. From their doctrine and motivation they have produced this wonderful offering; they have given with pleasure, and it was their decision. Eudokeō (εὐδοκέω) [pronounced yoo-dok-EH-oh] eliminates emotion from giving. The active voice: the believers of Macedonia and Achaia produce the action of then verb. The indicative mood is declarative for the reality of true giving motivation.

The money was going to be sent to the central location in Corinth and then taken from there. Paul is emotionally involved and he is going to take something which is right; and he will distort it into wrong. You haven’t lived until you have heard a rationalization. People rationalize in order to do with they want to do.

For every good Christian there are ten crybabies.

Giving is a mental attitude; it is not a result of flattery or compulsion.

The emphatic use of kai is translated “in fact.” The third person plural present active indicative from eimi (εἰμί) [pronounced eye-ME]—“they are.” The present tense is a historical present, it views a past event with the vividness of a present occurrence. The active voice: the Gentile believers produce the action of the verb. The indicative mood is declarative for historical reality. The predicate nominative plural from opheilētēs (ὀφειλέτης) [pronounced off-ī-LEHT-ace] which means obligation. Honor code comes into the picture. They are “obligated.” Plus the objective genitive plural from the intensive pronoun autós (αὐτός) [pronounced ow-TOSS], “to them.” “Yes, they have decided with pleasure to do this; in fact they are obligated to them.” This is an obligation related to the royal family honor code.

1977 Romans

Lesson #512

512 08/31/1978 Romans 15:27b Lord Kitchener's pal Battalions of WWI; anti-Semitism; Greeks recognize obligation to Jews for the Scripture; giving German maxim machine guns in one hour killed 60,000. Last some 30 days; 2.5 million died in that one battle. Apparently mostly Brits?

Manchester Pals.

Some of the Greek is reviewed. So far: Yes, they have decided with pleasure to do this; in fact they are obligated to them...

How are the Greeks Obligated to the Jews?

1. The Gentile believers in Philippi, Corinth, Thessalonica, and other parts of both northern and southern Greece, were cognizant of the fact that Jewish believers were responsible for the existence of the Old Testament canon. Paul taught them from the Old Testament. The Jews were writers of the Old Testament, which Paul used.
2. They were also aware of the fact that human writers of the New Testament (that which was available) were either apostles or someone intimately associated with the apostles, and the apostles were Jews. Mark is really Peter's gospel. They were aware that spiritual information had come from Jews.
3. They are further aware of the fact that all of these apostles were not only Jewish believers but that Jerusalem was their headquarters. This was the first city of the Church Age.
4. Understanding these facts they were obviously pro-Semitic, which means that no believer today has any right, under any circumstances, to be anti-Semitic. It is a violation of the honor code to be involved in anti-Semitism. Being grateful for doctrine and being motivated by doctrine they are anxious to assist financially the source of their spiritual blessings—Israel. Many of the Jews that they will help are in reversionism and opposed to Christianity. Does not make any difference. A believer who is antisemitic is a jackass.
5. As God has prospered them financially they sought to share this prosperity with those who were humanly responsible, i.e. doctrine was the source of their prosperity and therefore they tried to share with those who were the source. The Jews had shared their spiritual prosperity of doctrine (through Paul), now these Gentiles desired to share their material prosperity with those who are the source. Therefore another honor code principle—reciprocity of categories: the sharing of spiritual prosperity in doctrine motivates the sharing of material prosperity in money.

6. The believers in Jerusalem were often poor, living in poverty, simply because they were negative toward doctrine. They were ignorant of doctrine. In some cases, however, they were also poor and impoverished because they were positive toward doctrine, and this was one of their tests in the advance. Some were mature believers who were going through the undeserved suffering stage. But regardless of the reason for their poverty the giver does not make the distinction. The giver gives on the basis of who and what he is, not who and what the recipient is. Like impersonal love, the honor code demands impersonal giving.

When you are judged by someone else; you do not judge them. You stick with honor code standards and you do not judge them.

The obligation here comes from their own standards and priorities.

Whatever the reason, the poor of Jerusalem needed the help.

Romans 15:27 For they were pleased, and they are debtors of them. For if the Gentiles have shared in their spiritual things, they ought also to minister to them in the material things. (BLB)

“For if the Gentiles have been made partakers of their spiritual things” – the explanatory use of the postpositive conjunctive particle gar should be translated “For you see.” The conditional particle ei (εἰ) [pronounced /] introduces the protasis of a first class condition, “if and it is true,” supposition from the viewpoint of reality. The subject is the nominative plural from ethnos (ἔθνος, οὐς, τό) [pronounced EHTH-noss], plus the generic use of the definite article setting up a category—“For you see if the Gentiles.”
